Near Fight Ends House Repeal Debate

Statement Of Houston Man Opens Trouble

Resolution Withdrawn Following Incident; Combatants Apologize

AUSTIN (AP)—A resolution to submit repeal of the prohibition section of the state constitution was placed before the house for action Tuesday but later was withdrawn after the house had been thrown into confusion by a near fight between Representative Weaver Moore of Houston, author of the resolution, and Harry Graves of Georgetown, one of its opponents.

The difference between Graves and Moore arose when Moore questioned Graves concerning a statement allegedly made by Graves that he would vote to submit prohibition repeal to the people of the state. Both apologized later.

I. D. 'Uncle Ike' Eddins, 87, Resident Of City 52 Years, Succumbs; Funeral Tuesday

Death Takes Man Who Presided At First Court Session In City And Who Served 48 Years As Texas And Pacific Car Foreman

Isaac David Eddins, affectionately known as "Uncle Ike" died at 4:45 p. m. Monday at his home, 203 Nolan street. Funeral services will be held from the First Christian church beginning at 4 p. m. Tuesday with the pastor, Rev. S. J. Shettlesworth, officiating and music by the church choir, directed by Mrs. Omar Pittman. Funeral arrangements were in charge of the Eberley Funeral Home.

Mr. Eddins was believed to be one of three present residents of the city who came here with the Texas and Pacific railroad in 1881. He was 87 years, two months and 19 days of age at the time of his death and died two days after his second anniversary of his arrival in the frontier village of Big Spring.

His death left only one surviving charter member of the First Christian church, Mrs. M. E. Barrett. The church was organized 30 years ago.

Services at the grave will be in charge of the Masonic fraternity. Members of the Order of Eastern Star were to attend in a body. Burial will be beside graves of Mr. Eddins' first and second wives.

Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Sallie Eddins. Surviving children are Roy Eddins of Big Spring, Harry Eddins of Key West, Fla., Mrs. Headlock of El Paso, who arrived here Tuesday morning. Stepchildren surviving include F. C. Tynes of Quanah, H. E. Tynes of Big Spring, Sisters-in-law of Mr. Eddins are Mrs. E. A. Allen, Mrs. Hiley Wall of Big Spring, Mrs. Mattie Bradley, Tahoka; Mrs. Calhoun and Mrs. Jordan, Kaufman. Brothers-in-law are D. E. Glenn of California, G. Glenn of Big Spring and Bill Glenn of Midland.

Other survivors include 17 grandchildren, several great grandchildren and one great great grandchild. Mr. Eddins attended services at the First Christian church. He was stricken ill at 2 a. m. Monday.

Here in 1881. Big Spring was as wild as the surrounding country when Mr. Eddins settled in this city. In the first three years of its existence, thirteen men died by violence. With the advent of families here, the rougher element moved westward.

As first justice of the peace in Howard county, it fell the lot of Mr. Eddins to convene the initial court. Two men, accused of unrestricted imbibing of hard liquor, were hauled before the justice who delivered one who pleaded guilty and fined a sound talk on temperance. The other snarled defiance, whipping out a gun. With the open end of a six-shooter barrel staring him in the face, Uncle Ike got his first chance to demonstrate judicial dignity. Presently the culprit lowered his arm and was placed under a $1,000 peace bond.

For forty-eight years Eddins was car foreman for the Texas and Pacific railroad here. In his forty-ninth year of service he was seized by an attack of hardening of the arteries and was forced to retire.

In that length of time he saw the town grow from a small depot to a thriving city of 13,000 persons, saw driving streets replace grassy lanes, saw towering skyscrapers rise from the ruins of frontier shacks.

First House in Town. He saw the first house erected and could remember how the first school also served as a church when the circuit rider happened to be in town.

Uncle Ike was the son of a wealthy southern planter. Born in Wilcox county, Alabama in 1846, he was reared amidst old southern culture until the Civil War.

Entering the service of the Confederacy, young Eddins was assigned to Company F of the 7th battalion from Alabama. With 70 years separating him from his service in the gray, he could call his company roll without faltering, telling what happened to each in the way. "Dave Scarborough was my captain," he used to say. "Hodson my colonel, and Clanton was my general."

Wounded In War. Once a krapnel tore a huge gash above his knee, leaving a scar he bore to his last day.

After the war Mr. Eddins left the deep south when the wave of carpetbagging surged over the conquered states. He came to Dallas in 1874, but was not pleased with the town, so he moved to Arlington where he engaged in the wagon

Motorcade To El Paso Will Halt In City

Big Spring Night Stop On Itinerary Of Memphis Contingent

Big Spring has been designed as a night control point on the itinerary of the annual Broadway of America motorcade.

Approximately 300 cars will be halted here Saturday and several hundred occupants will spend the night in this city.

Two musical units will be with the eastern section of the motorcade which starts simultaneously from Memphis, Tenn., and San Diego, Calif., to meet in El Paso for a gala celebration.

Colorado will enter fifteen cars and send her band to El Paso. The McMinnville, Tenn., quartet, which made a favorable impression on route to San Diego last year, will again be in the motorcade.

Big Spring will have two or more cars to join the caravan of cars here.

Motorists Given Slips At Stations Listing Tax Bill

"You have just paid blank dollars and blank cents for gasoline tax—road rent," a little blue slip reads that is being passed out by several local filling stations and other stations all over Texas.

The slips, furnished by the Texas as Good Roads Association of Houston, Dallas and Lubbock, are filled out and given to motorists when they fill up with gasoline.

They explain that one cent of the five-cent tax goes to the educational institutions of Texas, yielding $28,000,000 annually or $5.00 of the $17.50 per capita public school allotment for the $1,567,700 school children of Texas.

The slips explain further that another cent goes to reimburse counties of Texas for highway bonds and that two cents goes for road construction and maintenance, while one cent goes to the federal government.

Motorists are urged by the slips to use their influence against further diversion of this road tax, in order that Texas highways may be eventually connected up with paying and may likewise be properly maintained for the use of those who pay the tax.

South Plains motorists are particularly interested in maintaining the two-cent portion of the tax in order to complete the present contemplated paving program which is under way in the South Plains section. Percy Hall of Ball, president of the South Plains Good Road Association, district organization of the state body, has announced.

Mrs. A. M. Rippe has returned from England where she attended an instruction school for Psych-

W. T. C. C. Official Discusses Program In Amarillo Conference

James E. Ferguson, former governor, and James V. Allred, attorney general of Texas, will discuss taxation and public expenditures and budget laws at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce's fifteenth annual convention here next month.

Officials of the W.T.C.C. announced from Amarillo Monday evening that Ferguson and Allred had accepted invitations. President Wilbur Hawk of Amarillo was joined there for a conference on program plans for the Big Spring convention by General Manager D. A. Bandeen, Assistant Manager Mury Hopkins, First Vice-President Spencer Wells of Lubbock and Second Vice-President Walter Glass of Wichita Falls. Hopkins, who opened convention headquarters here April 1, was to return in the city late Tuesday.

Melvin A. Traylor, Chicago, internationally known banker and native Texan, has been invited to address one of the general assemblies but his acceptance has not been received.

Ferguson, who is principal adviser to his wife, Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, will discuss problems of taxation and public expenses now confronting the state. His address will be to the general assembly May 12. Allred will speak to the group conference on public expenditures and budget-making on the enforcement of the various budget laws. Local committees from 137 cities will attend.

Other speakers will include Executive Bradford Chapp of Texas Technological college, Lubbock; President Pat M. Neff of Baylor university, Waco; and Wilbur C. Hawk, Amarillo, president of the regional chamber. Walter Glass, second vice-president of W.T.C.C. Falls, will speak on the need for a new constitution for Texas.

The convention will be devoted almost entirely to giving West Texas cities and counties information on obtaining government aid, making their own expenditures, and cutting their own expenditures.

Senate Body Favors Beer Referendum

Constitutional Amendments Committee Casts Unanimous Vote

AUSTIN, (AP)—The senate committee on constitutional amendments Monday voted a unanimous favorable report on a house resolution proposing submission to the people of the question of legislation of a 2.2 per cent beer.

The proposed constitutional amendment would be submitted on next Aug. 26.

A few members of the committee expressed opposition to the local option feature of the resolution but took no action after they were warned any material alteration might kill the proposal.

Senator W. K. Hopkins of Gonzales, senate advocate of legalized beer, pointed out the resolution was adopted by the house under an agreement by the beer and anti-beer factions. He asserted that if the proposal were materially changed, it might upset this agreement and result in the resolution not receiving the two-thirds majority necessary for submission.

The proposed constitutional amendment would provide that political subdivisions which were dry before the adoption of statewide prohibition would not given beer immediately even though the state should approve legislation. The voters of those subdivisions would have to approve legislation in another election before beer could be sold within their limits.

Two or three committee members expressed belief the whole state would have been until the voters of some of the sub-divisions decided otherwise. Senator Hopkins said he agreed with this idea but that he did not believe it advisable to attempt such a change.

Clarifying Amendment An amendment to clarify the resolution was adopted. However, committee members expressed confidence that the house would concur in this change.

It was indicated floor action on the proposed constitutional amendment would be held up until the beer taxation and regulation bill is ready for floor consideration. The senate state affairs committee planned to meet to consider the taxation bill. Senators expressed doubt that final action on either proposal could be taken before next Thursday.

Effect Of Socialism And Communism To Be Discussed Before Physicians

Sixty-Seventh Annual Convention Of Texas Medical Association To Be Held In Mineral Wells May 8 To 11

By VERNON A. McKEE
 Dallas Press Staff Correspondent
ST. LOUIS, Mo., (UP)—Effects of socialism and communism on the practice of medicine will be discussed here during the 67th annual convention of the State Medical Association May 8-11.

Prof. C. P. Patterson, chairman of the department of government at the University of Texas, will address the association on that topic at its first general session.

The annual address of Dr. John H. Foster, Houston, president of the association, also will be heard at the opening session. Dr. Henry F. Vaughan, Detroit's public health commissioner and one time president of the American Public Health Association, is the third scheduled speaker.

The convention's opening session on May 8 will be preceded by nearly a score of smaller conventions the day before. These meetings will include conferences of county and city health officers; assembly of the Texas radiological society; Texas Dermatological Society; Texas Railway Surgeons Association; and the Texas Neurological Society.

Unique in that welcoming speeches and answering addresses are barred, a program replete with clinics, sectional conferences, studies of public health measures, and demonstrations is planned for the state association.

On its second convention day, Dr. Edward H. Cary, Dallas, will discuss activities of the American Medical Association, of which he is president.

Other speakers include Tulane's University's professor of clinical surgery, Dr. Edw. Cohn, New Orleans; Dr. Irving W. Potter, Buffalo, noted obstetrician and a representative of the American Association of Obstetricians, Gynecologists and Abdominal Surgeons; Dr. F. A. Williams, head of the cardiology section of Mayo Clinic and a professor of medicine at the University of Minnesota; Dr. A. C. Broder, pathologist at Mayo Clinic; and Dr. Walter L. Treadway, assistant surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service.

The House of Delegates, the State Medical Association's "legislature," will begin its sessions May 8 to consider committee reports, resolutions and memorials. Election of officers and selection of the next convention city are scheduled for May 11.

A series of luncheons and teas for the women's auxiliary of the association, alumni banquets, the president's reception, fraternal luncheons and a barbecue make up the entertainment program.

Things Not To Do When Bitten By Snake Told By Sterling Physician

Three things "not to do" are listed by Dr. W. B. Everett, Sterling City physician and surgeon, to be remembered when and if one is bitten by a poisonous snake. The three-point warning is: Don't get scared; don't run; and don't drink whiskey.

"Instead make a cross-cut incision; apply suction, with the mouth if necessary, and afterward mechanical suction 15 minutes every hour 15 to 20 hours; and give anti-venom serum every 3 or 10 hours, as directed, the physician says.

"Snakes as a species, the West Texas poisonous varieties, how a campaign is being conducted against them in Sterling county, and what to do if bitten by a snake" and how to treat a patient bitten by a snake are explained by Dr. Everett, an authority with experience back of him.

selected by Dr. Everett. First, he says, "This does not mean that the first snake to bite a man was getting along nicely in it. It is in the form of a snake entered and ground himself on a man's hand, so that I have been called upon to treat 18 rattlesnake bites during my 17-year stay in Sterling City; and, last, but not least, I have been bitten by one of the vipers myself."

Incidentally, the Sterling City doctor was successful in treating all of the 18 patients. He takes his duties seriously in such cases. He refuses to treat snake bites unless he can stay with his patients. He gets a room at the hotel for his patient and one close by for himself and there the fight against the deadly poison is carried on until the danger is gone.

"There are eleven species of rattlesnakes in the United States belonging to the Crotalus family. The Crotalus Atrox, the Diamond Back Rattlesnake, is our enemy in Texas. There are two species of Pituophis rattlesnakes, belonging to the Croturus family, and the copper head, belonging to the Agkistrodon family. The fifteen species cover all our poisonous snakes in Texas.

"The average life of the rattlesnake is about two years. In captivity, he lives only about one year. Rattlesnakes go into hibernation the first cold spell of winter and come out again the first balmy days of spring-time. They are usually killed in great numbers around the caves and under ledges of rock on the mountainside where they spend the winter. The boys and men of Sterling county last year killed 1462 rattlers, and this year so far, have killed 481. Our motto is, 'A Snakeless County.'

"The rattlesnakes begin mating in April, carrying their young about five months, and birth to from six to eighteen at a litter. They do not eat during hibernation, and only about every two weeks while they are out for the spring and summer. They will not eat anything dead. They will catch own prey, such as mice, rats, rabbits, squirrels, etc., by biting them and just about the time they stop breathing the snake begins swallowing them.

"I said in the beginning of my proposition that the pit- viper is our deadly enemy, and it is not their fault if they do not kill every time they strike you. The average size diamond back rattlesnake, not the largest or the smallest, but the average size, injects from 250 milligrams of venom every time he bites. Remembering that 30 milligrams is a lethal or deadly dose, you can see that he injects between seven and eight deadly doses. On other words he injects enough venom at every strike to kill seven or eight persons. Deadly of course is he, and it is not his fault if he does not accomplish his purpose.

"The rattler injects about two-thirds of the full quantity of venom the first strike, reserving one-third for the second strike, and then he is through—out of venom for about one week or ten days; that is, it replenish the full amount of full quantity again. Though he expends all his venom the second strike, I would not advise you to let him try his hand on you by letting him

The Importance of Following Through

In moving forward, as the Administration is now doing, it is well to look backward occasionally and to seek to learn what we can by our mistakes in the past. The most important lesson to be learned, I think, is that partial measures are certain to fail.

Thus we tried to balance the budget last winter. But we did not try very hard. We strove to be contented with minor economies, leaving the great items of supposedly uncontrollable expenditure untouched.

We tried a policy of "reflation" through the Federal Reserve System. But at the end of the summer, when the policy was just about beginning to take hold, the pressure of the open market operations was relaxed, and in the winter before the banking crisis, it became ambiguous and irresolute.

We set out to stop bank failures through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. But when the pinch came, the R. F. C. had lost its nerve and was found to be engaged not in saving banks but in cornering the remaining liquid assets of the endangered banks.

We tried to restore world trade. But at every vital point in the effort we struck a third time. I am sure I would not feel it absolutely safe to say, "What to do if bitten: Do not get scared, do not run, and do not drink whiskey." The first two suggestions are almost impossible. I am sure, but it is much safer and better for the patient to remain as cool and quiet as possible. The venom is more rapid. Make a cross cut incision over each fang wound about 1/4 inch each way. Just through the skin and encourage free bleeding by suction or otherwise. If you have a friend with you or if you are with a friend, do not hesitate to suck the wound; it will not hurt you, though your mouth be full of bad teeth. Be a good Samaritan, suck the wound freely without any fear of harm to yourself and thereby save your friend or your child. Then tie a cord above the wound not too tightly, just enough to retard the capillary circulation, get in your car and go to your physician who will take care of you. On your way to your physician, loosen your bandage for one half minute every ten minutes for free circulation.

"Mechanical suction is applied for 15 minutes every hour for 15 or 20 hours; then 25 cc. of anti-venom serum is given in 10 cc. doses every 8 or 12 hours as indicated.

"There is but one thing, in addition to the general systemic symptoms, that would indicate the amount of venom injected and that is bleeding from the absence of blood from the bite wounds. The snake venom in small quantity will increase the clotting time of the blood and a large amount will destroy the clotting power of the blood altogether. If we have little or no bleeding from the fang wounds, we are reasonably sure that a small dose of venom has been injected; and likewise, if we get a history of profuse bleeding, we know there has been a large amount of venom injected, and treatment and general care can be directed accordingly."

can ever produce.

The country needs and desires quick relief, a rise in prices, a resumption of investment and trade and employment. It will anticipate this result and co-operate to bring it about, if it feels sure that the Administration means to follow through on all the lines of action which it has been opening up.

Changes In Ranch Country Language Brought On By College Boys, Girls

Prof. Mary Dale Zucker Of Texas Technological College Seeks To Preserve Portion Of Slang Terms

DALLAS (UP)—Texas boys and girls who leave ranch homes and go to college are fast bringing about changes in the language of the great range country.

Slang expressions long common among cattlemen of the plains are giving way to the conventional speech of campus and classroom—brought back by the returning college boys.

To preserve a portion of the vanishing idiom of the Texas Frontier, Prof. Mary Dale Zucker of Texas Technological College has compiled a glossary of terms used in camp and corral, at the table and in cowboy routine.

The glossary, contained in the current issue of American Speech, linguistic quarterly published by the Columbia University Press, reveals many expressions not understandable to urban residents.

For example, she points out that a biscuit shooter is a cook. A boy-guy-top pie is a pie with one crust. Cold slobbers means meringue on pie.

Prof. Zucker mourns the passing of the distinctive ranch language as a "matter of deep regret which should be of concern to sociologists, historians, and philologists, for a close study of the early idiom of the country will discover whole chapters of colorful ranch life."

Here are a few more of the terms in Prof. Zucker's slang collection as published:

To California is to throw an animal by tripping it.

A cold-jaw is a horse that does not respond to bridle signals.

An Arbutuckle is a tenderfoot and a breachy cow is a fence breaker.

Chuck-away is a dinner call, based on the threat, "If you don't come and get it, I'll throw it out." Cigarettes are "chuck-a-balls" and revolvers are "shooters."

To high-tail it is to make one's departure swiftly.

DON'T LET COMMON CONSTIPATION DULL THE JOY OF LIVING

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brings Relief

Constipation takes the sunshine out of your days. It may bring headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness, sallow skins, pimples. If neglected, it can seriously impair health.

Fortunately, you can avoid this condition by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides two things needed to overcome common constipation: "bulk" and vitamin B. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

How much better than dosing yourself with patent medicines. Two tablespoonsful of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

CHAPTER XXXVII

Silver Bay was Janet's first introduction to a summer resort. It was, as Mrs. Curtis had said, a "quiet" place but to Janet it seemed impressive. The two hotels facing the beach were built with huge verandas looking out over the lake. Two dozen or more cottages were scattered about and farther back were narrow streets, lined with trees that did little business except during the summer months.

Most of the activity of the place centered about the beach and the bathing wharves. Lake boats stopped wherever there were passengers. Fishing craft set out each morning and speed boats cut their way through the water, trailing spray. The water was deep and rather cold but swimmers braved it. The people incident were content to sun themselves, lying on the sands, viewing the water sports from a high walk leading to the hotels. Mrs. Curtis had been coming to the Lake Shore Hotel for years. On the day that she and Janet arrived she spent half an hour talking with old acquaintances where they could go in to lunch. An hour later a bridge game was in progress on the veranda. The same bridge game, with now and then an occasional substitute for one of the players, was to continue at least as Mrs. Curtis returned at Silver Bay.

The days drifted into an easy pattern. It was cool at Silver Bay when the sun shone down brightly—as it usually did—the breeze from the water was cool. Janet had little to do. Each morning she went to the beach for a "hot" swim and then 15 minutes on the sands. The rest of the morning she spent with Mrs. Curtis, reading to her, answering her letters, sending dresses to be pressed and making appointments for manicures and facial massages. Through the hotel was so "quiet" it was a rather dreary place and the routine of dressing for luncheon and then again for dinner was unalteringly observed.

On sunny days Mrs. Curtis and her friends had their afternoon bridge game on the veranda. When it rained they moved inside to one of the parlors but nothing, except the recurrent arrival of Sunday, interrupted this program. Janet usually sat near-by with a magazine or book. Now and then if one of the players happened to be called away she would take a hand, though most of the time she read. Mrs. Curtis liked to have her near so that if she wanted a word or anything from her room Janet could get it.

There were plenty of young people at Silver Bay. Some of them spent their days on the water and boats, some on the beach. Others played golf, rode horseback or went with them. She sent a card to Jeff Grant and received a letter a few days later. Due to a change in office relations, Jeff wrote, there was no vacation in sight for him. He had spent another week-end at the home of his friend, Nelson. Lanester had cooled and then he came back again. The letter was rather disappointing. It was brief. A few statements of facts, closing with the hope that Janet was enjoying herself. There was no chatty gossip.

She re-read the letter, looked at it a few moments and then laughed. How exactly like Jeff that letter was! Of course there was no gossip, nothing about what Jeff had been thinking or feeling. Of course not! But the letter had been written the day he had received her card. That was characteristic, too. Jeff was always practical. He wouldn't write about himself because he so seldom talked about himself.

She sent cards to Mollie Lambert and Pauline Hayden and one or two others. Mollie's answer was an announcement of her marriage. She had taken place at Mollie's sister's home in a little town outside Lancaster.

Standing alone on the hotel veranda one night, looking out at the lake, Janet thought that of all those she knew, Mollie was the one most of happiness. She and her Al would get along. They would have their quarrels, as Mollie said, but afterward they would be made up and be happier than before. Yes, they would be happy. The breeze rustled Janet's skirt and blew her hair back against her face. Silver Bay in the moonlight was really silver. Far out on the water lights twinkled and music came from within the hotel. For an instant the beauty of the night swept everything else from Janet's thoughts.

Then she heard Mrs. Curtis' voice and turned quickly. She said, "Your coat? Yes, Mrs. Curtis, I'll get it right away."

They had come to Silver Bay for two weeks. At the end of that time Mrs. Curtis decided to spend another week there and at the end of the third week she decided to stay a fourth. The first of September was just two days away when they finally arrived in Lancaster.

Frederick met them with the

Connally Seeks Action On Measure For Re-Valuation Of Gold Dollar

(By Special Correspondent)
WASHINGTON—An effort to secure action soon on his bill to re-value the gold dollar is being made in the Senate by Senator Tom Connally who introduced the measure last month. It is now pending before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

The bill provides that the gold content of the dollar be reduced to approximately two-thirds of its present content. It would also cause the discontinuance of minting gold coins, and all gold reserves and gold owned by the government would be retained in the Treasury for the redemption of currency and gold certificates.

Extension of the order of President Roosevelt prohibiting gold hoarding and gold exports makes this an opportune time for the re-valuation, Senator Connally said.

"The present gold dollar," the Senator said, "is not a sound dollar measured in the price of commodities which the people produce or measure in the debts which they owe and which were incurred at a time when commodities were at a higher level and gold was at a lower level. The broad effects of this plan are, first that it preserves the gold standard for the United States on a sound and equitable basis; second, it will make possible a reduction and readjustment of farm mortgages; third, it will lessen the debt burden and thereby hasten the return of prosperity; fourth, it will lift the price of all commodities; fifth, it will enable people to discharge their debts at a fair figure, and sixth, it will place the value of our money more nearly on a level with that of other countries and enable them to do business with us again."

Agitation for action by Congress to carry out the Democratic platform pledge and President Roosevelt's inaugural declaration for a "sound and adequate currency" is growing here continually. There have been proposals introduced in Congress, including various schemes for inflation and for re-valuation of silver. Senator Connally spoke several months ago in the Senate on his plan for a forthright and direct re-valuation of the gold dollar and the speech attracted widespread attention. He announced at that time that he would submit a bill after he had studied the subject more thoroughly and gone into its constitutional phases carefully. The present measure is the result of intensive study and Senator Connally declares that the plan is clearly within the expressed power granted by the constitution to Congress to coin money and regulate the value thereof.

WHIRLIGIG

Continued from page 1. In back of their new large appropriation to spread French propaganda in America. Although no announcement has been made, the Havana agency has been made as New York staff. The position of its offices here and elsewhere is under way. The plan is to send the government-controlled news service direct to American newspapers. That has never been tried before. The trouble with that plan is no one will buy it or take it if it is given away. American papers were not born yesterday. Washington has learned a lot about the foreign diplomacy in the past few years. It has been hit too often. The old big-hearted attitude of looking on all the world as a brother is entirely absent. The state of mind of our officials now is that if you want to keep your eye teeth among those sharp traders, you will need your wits. There are no hard feelings toward any nation, just a deep opinion that we must be on guard to protect our rights. That marks a new departure from the attitude of the past three administrations.

The inside story of how they treated Japanese statesmen Matsuo while he was here is a good example of the new feeling. He was a propagandist sent here by the government to sell the Japanese Far Eastern cause to the new Administration. His purpose was concealed behind the announcement that he was on a pleasure trip. Nobody was fooled. They gave him the red treatment. Everyone was very cordial. They treated him with every courtesy. But he never got a chance to get two propaganda words out of his mouth. As soon as he started his spiel they rushed him over to meet someone else. His conference with Mr. Roosevelt lasted less than five minutes.

Calming—Labor is being fixed up quietly by the Administration. Its threatened revolt against the Roosevelt Farm Bill failed to materialize. There are two contributing reasons. One is that while the bill was under discussion Mr. Roosevelt made a striking labor gesture. Without display he designated a vice-president for the Machinist Union, Robert Wechner, to head the Reformation Reformation against Labor fought so hard. The appointment was handled so that angle of labor not stressed. It moved to labor that the reformation program would not be permitted to interfere with labor principles.

The other move was the Roosevelt letter to governors of industrial states urging them to legislate against sweat shops. Mrs. Roosevelt has also been active backstage in this regard. She has publicly advised women not to purchase the cheapest dresses made by underpaid labor. Furthermore official word was permitted to seep out that Mr. Roosevelt would try to effect a five day week for government employees. This latter step was designated to calm the labor waters troubled by ditching of the industrial five day week bill by the House Democratic leaders. It did.

Notes—The new French Ambassador Louboulaye started his new deal here by not raising anything to drink at his first press conference. He made a good impression with unusual frankness for a French diplomat. He spoke English freely, something M. Claudel has never been able to do. Our officials are quite well pleased with the change. The reason Argentina delayed acceptance of our economic conversations invitation was because she has been on her hind legs for two years over the American tariff. Apparently she had not heard of our new deal. The judgment of this administration is that George Bernard Shaw is "the greatest living actor." Not even Hugu Long gets his name in the papers so easily and consistently. Laurence A. Weishardt, a nephew of Sam Undermyer will get the Sweden ambassadorship. W. H. Hornbrook of Utah will get Perla because he wrote a campaign pamphlet "40 reasons why Senator Smoot should be defeated." It was so good the Democrats rubbed out Smoot's name, inserted Jim Watson's and used it in Indiana.

NEW YORK By James McMillin Casualties—Charles E. Mitchell will have plenty of company before the government ceases firing. Income tax evasion casualties among the Wall Street brass hats will be heavy. District Attorney Melia assigned a couple of assistants to go evidence against Mitchell. They struck a pay lode. They not only found enough material for a second indictment against Mitchell but for a carload of other indictments on exactly the same grounds. Mr. Melia had not expected such a rich haul and was a trifle surprised. After consultation with attorney General Cummings and Senate Investigator Pecora it was decided to press the Mitchell case first and use it as a precedent for further prosecutions. If Mitchell is found guilty—which is almost certain—the courts will stage a Roman holiday. When the firing squad finishes its job one of our better known institutions may be in the embarrassing predicament of having only a single Vice President left. That's equivalent to nudity but it would mean golden opportunities for the

Harriman

The Harriman put it still seething under the lid and the argument is a long way from finished. Some of the banks which originally expressed a willingness to absorb their share of the Harriman's losses are now trying to take it back. They are afraid they may get stuck for the whole bill while the banks which filed legal objections get off scot free. Their fears look groundless to the better informed insiders. The situation is full of technical complications and Wall Street lawyers are having a field day. One angle that has the legal profession by the ears is the possibility of government suits against individual officers of the Clearing House. The government's position is that somebody made a commitment to the Harriman and therefore somebody must pay. If it turns out to be simpler to collect from bank executives instead of from the banks themselves, that's just too bad for the executives. The funny part about it is that many lawyers are afraid to give advice because they actually do not know where their clients stand. There are no precedents to fall back on. A wrong guess now might be very costly later.

Federal Reserve—Governor George L. Harrison of the Federal Reserve Bank is sitting much prettier than he was a month ago. He worked closely with Secretary Woodin and the Manufacturers Trust on the Harriman pay-off plan. His reports that he will succeed Eugene Meyer as head of the Federal Reserve board are highly imaginative. The past may be forgiven—but not to that extent. It is worth bearing in mind that the Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board will have the most powerful job in the country next to the presidency itself. Changes in the banking setup will greatly extend his authority and influence.

Germany—As the German situation grows more acute experts say the only man of the highest qualifications to experience could possibly handle the ambassadorship there. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia has caught the President's eye as the man for the job. Dr. Butler has been a frequent visitor to Germany, where he has made important speeches, including an address before the Reichstag. The word came through high Columbia channels of a growing conviction at the White House that if Dr. Butler would accept the mission the ideal ambassador to Berlin would have been found.

Navy—Advocates of a large navy need not worry, as long as Roosevelt is President. It's one of his real hobbies. (Copyright McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

UNCLE IKE—(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) Building business. In 1878 he transferred into the service of the Texas and Pacific at Weatherford, coming to Big Spring April 16, 1881. Oddly enough, he lived only two days after celebrating the fifty-second anniversary of his entrance into Big Spring.

MAN ARRESTED—(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) Miss Lottie Pritchett, postoffice clerk, testified to having seen Oxford seal a letter which he placed in Mrs. Jeffrey's box. Another clerk, Edwin Mosser, said mail that had been placed in the box showed evidence of having been tampered with. Oxford detailed from the witness stand an account of his friendship with Mrs. Jeffrey, asserting after their meeting in August, 1933, he was with her "almost every day" and that they corresponded. She gave him the box combination, Oxford said, and read him letters, or parts of letters she received. The defendant said he "ought I had authority" to get her letters, asserting he "always put them back." On cross-examination by Crager, Oxford did not give a specific instance of Mrs. Jeffrey's authorizing him to get her mail. A 90-day jail term on one count and a year's jail term, suspended, on other counts were assessed by the court against Leroy Reeves, former principal of the school at Ekota who pleaded guilty to a charge of misuse of the mails in allegedly fraudulent transactions. Indictment against Reeves charged ed he issued checks, ranging in amount from $2.50 to $25, over false signatures, to athletic supply houses, publishing houses and other firms, to purchase school supplies. Reeves told this court the items purchased were for school use. He said he was to be paid with proceeds from a school play, and intended to make the bills good with that money; but that school trustees did not allow him the play proceeds on the ground he purchased the equipment without authority. Pleas of guilty to violation of the national migratory bird act in shooting ducks out of season brought fines of $10 each to five prominent Sweetwater residents Monday. They were John H. Hendrix, manager of the board of city development; Sam Rothwell, city manager; C. E. Paxton, chief clerk at the Gulf refinery; R. M. Landon, refinery superintendent; and Ben Roberts, branch manager of the International Harvester company. Information against the hunters were presented in connection with the group's visit to Lake Sweetwater last October 25. Under the state game law, duck shooting became legal October 15, but the federal migratory bird treaty fixed the open season as beginning November 1. Judge Wilson suspended imposition of sentence in the case of Mrs. Esther Martin, Stone County woman charged with misuse of the mails. The charge presented she inserted advertisements in papers offering to sell six pounds of quilt scraps for 50 cents, and did not fill the orders. The ads were signed by the Martin's Orphans Home, J. P. Stinson, appearing for the defendant, told the court the woman had "delusions of wanting to help somebody" and that there was no such an orphan home. Mrs. Martin told Judge Wilson she thought she could raise some money to start an orphan home, but found she could not furnish the quilt scraps as she had advertised. She said she bought some new bolt material to send out on the orders; and that she later tried to refund some of the orders she did not fill. Other sentences imposed Monday, on pleas of guilty. Sam E. Williams, five-year prison sentence on a charge of violating the national motor vehicle theft act in transporting a stolen car from Oklahoma to Abilene. Raymond Neal, six months in jail, with sentence suspended, on a charge of theft of a letter from a rural-mail box. John Williams Jackson, negro youth, 18 months in the reformatory on a charge of theft and misuse of a government check; and 18 months in the reformatory, suspended for three years after duration of the first term on a charge of theft of parcel in mail transit.

Second Coming of Christ Draws Nigh, Says Evangelist

"Capital and Labor" was Evangelist Montgomery's subject last night at 211 Goliad Street. There was a good crowd and all seemed to enjoy the lecture. It was well illustrated with stereopticon pictures. The speaker based his lecture on the prophecy in James 5. He said in part: "This is a prophecy of the struggle between capital and labor in the last days." The statement "Ye have heaped treasure together for the last days," indicates that it is a last day prophecy. Verses 7 and 8 where there is mention that "the coming of the Lord draweth nigh" also shows that it has its application in the last days. In fact we can see the fulfillment of this prophecy before our eyes today in the industrial struggle that is going on. "Another prophecy in Daniel was commented upon. 'But thou, O Daniel, shut up the words and seal the book even unto the time of the end, and many shall run to and fro and knowledge shall be increased.' Dan. 12:4. 'This is a striking prophecy of the marvelous increase of knowledge in our times. The rapid means of traveling makes it possible for many to run to and fro in these days.' The evangelist's subject for tonight will be, "Where are the dead?" "Where do the righteous go when they die? Where do the wicked go? The Bible makes it clear." Come and hear.
