Revival Begins Nazarene Church Monday Evening

A series of revival services will begin at the Church of the Nazarene Monday evening, July 15, with Rev. W. P. Jay, evangelist doing the preaching. David Jay, son of the evangelist, is a guitarist of note, and will assist in the singing services.

R. E. Spray, singer with the party, cannot be here as previously announced.

Rev. W. P. Jay and party have an enviable reputation for successful revivals, and according to Rev. W. E. Bond, local pastor, all are invited to hear them while the revival lasts.

Services will be held each evening beginning at 8 o'clock.

THOUSANDS AT LAKE OPENING THE FOURTH

Various estimates from 7,000 up were made of the big crowd that attended the opening of Lake McLean, July 4th.

The novelty of the various events kept the crowd entertained and pulled from attendance of other celebrations nearby that offered rodeos as practically the only feature. Many visited their home celebration during the forenoon and the lake after noon.

Miss Norma Hise, 15-year-old McLean girl, won the bathing beauty event, receiving a 15-inch silver loving cup as trophy.

The picnic tables in the park below the dam were much in demand from noon on, and cars came and went all during the day as visitors poured into the lake valley.

The boat races attracted the largest crowds and seemed to be the most enjoyed attraction.

A fireworks display closed the outside entertainment in the evening.

PENTECOSTAL HOLINESS CHURCH

W. R. Maxwell, Pastor

Sunday services as follows: Sunday school 9:45 a. m. Preaching 11 a. m. P. Y. P. S. 6:30 p. m. Evangelistic service 8 p. m. Week day services: 11. M. S. Monday, 2 p. m. Prayer meeting Wednesday night. Preaching Saturday night.

Rev. Geo. Nichols was in charge of the services Saturday night and Sunday in the absence of the pastor.

The Keeton trio favored with two specials Sunday morning. Sunday night they sang again, assisted by Rev. Henry Maxwell, who also played a guitar accompaniment. Mrs. H. O. Byerly was the speaker of the evening.

On Thursday night we will have a camp meeting service.

Next Sunday is regular foreign missionary day. The county singing convention will meet here at 2 p. m. Everyone is invited to all our services.

John Sturgeon, Pampa attorney, made an address on "Real Americanism" at the Lions Club ladies' night banquet and installation of officers, in the recreation hall at Lake McClellan Tuesday evening.

The speaker paid his respects to fifth columnists, saying that democracies are destroyed by terrorists working from within. "Now is the time to hedge against fifth column activities in America," said Mr. Sturgeon. "We need to elect men to congress and the state legislatures who will shut the door on all fifth columnists. Right now is the time to clean house as we assume the tax burden for national defense. We need new state laws enabling us to deal quickly with offenders against the government of our country, or resort to court martial."

Mr. Sturgeon says that the present labor system that allows men who refuse work themselves to keep others from working is all wrong. "No man has any right to keep another man from working when offered a job to his liking," said the speaker.

Mr. Sturgeon closed his remarks by saying that there is no room in the United States for any other "ism" besides real Americanism.

Following the speaker, Dr. H. H. Hicks of the Pampa Lions Club installed the new officers in a short but impressive ceremony.

Entertainment features consisted of group singing led by T. A. Landers with the club's sweetheart, Miss Beth Evonne Floyd, at the piano; singing by the Sweethearts girls' quartet, and a piano solo by Mr. Sturgeon.

Boyd Meador, retiring president, who acted as toastmaster, called for committee reports, and recognized the guests.

Earl Stubblefield and J. L. Dysart were introduced as newly elected clubs and were presented with lapel buttons.

The meeting adjourned with the newly installed president, Joe Dowlin, in the chair.

The following officers were installed: President—Joe Dowlin. First Vice President—A. W. Hicks. Second Vice President—Guy Hibler. Third Vice President—Emory Crockett.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY ROGER SHAW

Russian Drive Into Rumania Alters European War Picture; G. O. P. Picks Willkie, McNary

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union.

King Carol of Rumania is pictured here inspecting one of his army's tanks. This particular machine is one of a number made for Rumania in England while that country was still on the allied bandwagon. Now, harassed by Russia, Rumania has shifted her loyalty and has appealed to Berlin and Rome to keep Russia from "grabbing" more territory.

III RUSSIAN WAR: Bessarabia, etc.

This so-called World War is a peculiar affair—a war of in-and-outers. Russia, for instance, is always popping in and out of it. One never knows where she is. For example, the Soviets popped into the latter stages of the Polish campaign last September, and took most of the eastern half of what they used to call "Polonia Restituta." Then, at the beginning of December, and thereafter, Russia popped in again, and fought the Finns, picking up Finland's second city of Viborg (Viipuri), the Finnish Mannerheim line and other bases and odd bits. Also, on and off, Russia has virtually annexed the three little Baltic states of Lithuania, Latvia, and Estonia, which used to belong to the czar and his navy, prior to 1917.

Then came another Russian putsch, quite impersonal, like the others. This time it was Rumania, which had grabbed off a Russian province called Bessarabia, in 1918. The Soviets took it back, and also took handy bases at the mouth of the river Danube, and on the strategic Black sea coast. Comic King Carol, playboy of the western world, appealed to Germany and Italy as a matter of course, then took the Russians rather calmly. Rumania also "owed" territory to Hungary and Bulgaria (from 1918), and has treated her racial and religious minorities badly. Nobody wept much over comic King Carol, and his Merry Widow setup.

II GERMAN WAR: Mr. Shaw . . .

George Bernard Shaw made some really pertinent remarks on England, France and Germany. G. B. S. said that anybody who introduced 100 per cent military communism, a la Hitler, could not fail to beat anybody who didn't introduce it. He said that England, under Churchill, had gone through the motions of introducing military communism, too, but that it was, thank goodness, still merely a blueprint. He indicated that there were better things than military conquest: which is pretty obvious. Then, he got around to la belle France. He said that England should have declared war on France, when Pétain quit the war, just as England declared war on Russia, when Lenin quit the war, in 1917. He said that France was more dangerous to England as a phoney neutral, than as a militant foe.

NAMES . . . in the news

At its thirty-sixth annual convention in Chicago, the Advertising Federation of America selected as president Elon G. Borton, advertising director of La Salle Extension university, Chicago.

Mrs. Wendell Willkie's maiden name was Wilk. She comes from Indiana, too. To match that, Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt was a Roosevelt, before her marriage.

Col. Thurston Hughes, U. S. A., was announced by the war department as chief of defense of the American Panama Canal Zone. The colonel has been adjutant general of the Panama canal department. He succeeds Gen. Jacob Devers, U. S. A.

Dr. Wilhelm Stekel, once Dr. Freud's No. 1 psychoanalyst, another exile, died at 74, in London. Dr. Freud, in exile, had died previously, in England. Stekel was strongly anti-dictatorial and an expert on sadists (Nazis?) and masochists (Fascists?).

Japan's Birthday

Kenseke Horinouchi, Japan's ambassador to the U. S., cuts the ornate birthday cake during ceremonies in New York, which marked the 2600th anniversary of the founding of the Japanese empire. Sideline wits were wondering whether Japan is trying to cut her cake in China and still have it, too.

RUMORS: Believe or Not

There was increasing talk—despite denials—about Neville Chamberlain rising from the political grave, as a possible peace-maker. The great "appeaser" was still popular in conservative British circles, which did not altogether trust Premier-dictator Churchill and his totalitarian setup. Chamberlain has been better liked by the Germans than Churchill, and the rumor-mongers said Neville might be able to turn the peace trick, without incurring too much expense. The trade-unions disliked the "umbrella bearer," but old England is well over half female in population, and the ladies traditionally have preferred "Chambers" to "Church." They swing a very heavy, organized feminine vote. One critic observed that the far-flung dominions of the seven seas seemed more bellicose than the British Isles proper. The anti-French element in England, always strong, was pointing a finger, tipped with gall, at the "back-stabbing" Gallics across the narrow channel. In New York, opinion indicated some sort of peace by, at very latest, mid-August or September 1. As you know, your commentator likes to sidestep predictions.

THREATS & THRUSTS: Might of Mars

England was threatened by Germany. Rumania was more than threatened by Russia, and also by Bulgaria and Hungary. French Indo-China was threatened by Japan. French Morocco was threatened by Spanish Morocco. British Malta was threatened by Italy. Marshal Pétain was threatened by Winston Churchill. Uruguay was threatened by some Nazis. London threatened to conscript the humble Hindu. Hindu revolt threatened London. The French navy threatened to join England, to join Germany, to commit suicide. The southern Irish threatened the northern Irish, or vice versa. The Chinese threatened to make peace, and threatened to go on fighting. The so-called fifth column threatened America (so they said)—then subdivided into campaign Republicans and campaign Democrats, who threatened one another.

INDUSTRY: Change of Pace

Current reports of Federal Reserve banks plus other commercial indices reveal that a downward trend of industrial activity which has marked U. S. business since last December has now been reversed. Expanding production is noted in many key industries.

Steel production is now booming along at capacity speeds and new orders from foreign and domestic buyers which are currently pouring in should keep blast furnaces roaring for many months to come.

Automobile tire shipments have shown large increases and leading rubber companies say these more than offset a seasonal decline in sales to car manufacturers.

TASTY TRIFLES: Hysteria

A Wyoming crowd showed the current hysteria. They tarred and feathered a member of a harmless religious sect, who had been distributing pacifist literature, and who was against compulsory flag-saluting. The poor fellow did not know how to salute the flag—and accidentally gave what looked like a Nazi salute. Of course, as a pacifist, he detested Nazis. Nevertheless, he was a dangerous fifth-columnar.

Boston school children can split their infinitives to suit themselves, according to a sensible proposal by a school committeeman, named Joe Lee. There really is no such thing as correct English spelling, pronunciation, or punctuation, as George Washington was forever pointing out. "Language, obviously, is a tool, and not a musical instrument," as one linguistic cynic put it.

It was 6,000 airplane engines for England, to 3,000 for America, that revolted Henry Ford, although it did not seem to revolt Secretary Morgenthau.

Entrancing Rubber Flowers To Wear With Your Swim Suit

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A THEME for poet and painter, and as to those whose mission it is to tell the story of fashion in columns such as this, the dictionary, quick! It's super-glamorous adjectives we must have to describe the beauty of water-sprayed flowers worn by fashion's mermaids. The happy thought about these flowers is that, being made of rubber, they come up out of watery depths looking as fresh as flowers in a summer garden.

It is indeed a pretty fashion that has been launched of wearing flowers made of rubber to wear with swim suits. There is simply no limit to the possibilities this fashion envisions in the way of picture effects. When one sees the charming bathing ensembles by Kleinfert that are enhanced with flowers, one is brought to a realization of the importance of the role rubber is playing in the fashion realm.

Faithful reproduction of the color and design of real flowers has taken years of training in workmanship. It requires artistic ability-plus to successfully reproduce in rubber realistic camellias, violets, water lilies, anemones, sweet peas, forget-me-nots, gardenias, roses, cornflowers, dahlias and chrysanthemums such as fashion offers this season. We are showing below in the picture just a few types available, and if you go in quest you will be shown many more where swim suit accessories are sold. The swim suits here pictured are most as interesting as the flowers that trim them, in that they are made of a new rubber fabric that has a crepe-like knitted surface that can be softly draped to give a dressmaker touch. From the outside these attractive, practical rubber suits appear to be seamless. In reality the seams and reinforcements have been scientifically designed to prevent the possibility of ripping. Being of rubber, when you emerge from the water your suit will dry quickly, fit smoothly and feel wonderfully comfortable.

Were the accompanying illustration printed in color, as we wish it might be, one would see how amazingly realistic are the tones and tints of the flowers. The lady shown to the left is putting out to sea in a dressmaker swim suit which reflects Hawaiian influence in its wide-skirted silhouette and garland of turquoise and coral sweet peas that outlines the bodice top. Dress, flowers and matching turban are all of rubber. The striking beachbag slung over her shoulders is rubber lined. The picture centered below gives a close-up view of the flower arrangement.

The costume to the right presents an interesting study in rubber flower culture. This clever maiden selected a flower bedecked suit in deep pink. Under the flower cluster a "mad-money" pocket is hidden, which also holds locker key and lipstick, which is self explanatory as to why this suit is called "pocketeer." And now for another revelation in rubber artistry. This time it is rubber jewelry. Note the matching halo to hold tresses in place and bracelet which the lovely lady pictured in the center at the top is wearing. Blue and yellow corn flowers form the straps of the bathing suit and the jewelry. This ensemble is called "debutante" no doubt in honor of its wearer. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Red, White and Blue

"Three cheers for the red, white and blue" and it's fashion that is joining in the chorus in accents loud and clear. This stunning hat and bag ensemble sounds a patriotic note in its red, white and blue color scheme. It is woven of cord in the three colors and emphasizes the importance of matching accessories. Accessory sets simply thrill with exciting adventures such as a bag and hat made of print cotton of the old-fashioned caico type. Polka dot bags and hats are the rage. Latest is hat, bag and shoes made of print in bizarre colorings.

Field Flowers

Daisies seem to be the winning design in the flower group, with daffodils and lilies next.

Gingham Gaiety

Brightly checked gingham is a gay touch to add to a tailored summer suit.

Felt Cartwheels

In for Popularity

If hat designers have their way, big-brimmed hats will be the outstanding successes of this summer. Felt hats as big as cartwheels are shown again and again, and to make them more interesting, their brims and crowns are intricately manipulated. Some are arranged in fan shape, others swoop back from the face and are trimmed with gay feathers. Almost all of them, even the largest, are trimmed with veils—some long enough to reach the waist.

Bag and Bracelet

In Red Style Note

The fashion for bright red hats, bags, jewelry and other accessories is going strong this summer. Try this combination to enliven your navy, white or black costume—a stunning bag in red leather of fabric, together with a striking red bracelet which may be of the carved plastic type or one of the new poppy red flower effects. It is within the bounds of good taste to add a matching necklace if your enthusiasm for red carries you that far.

Trim It With Lace

Is Now Sure Fire

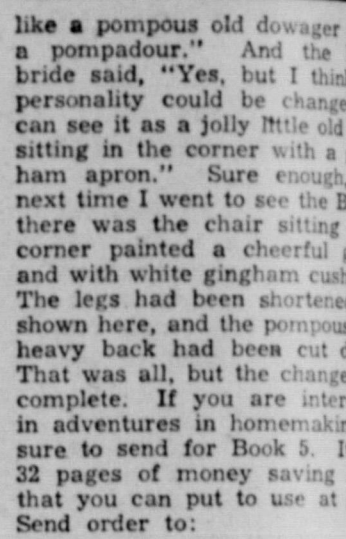

When in doubt trim it with lace. Bolts and bolts of fine lace edging are contributing to the news in summer fashions. Hats are very smart with bows, bands, brims and crowns of lace. Accessories include matching lace bags and belts of lace—and it's chic to carry a lace parasol, too!

Old High-Back Chair Changes Personality

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

HERE comes the Bride again. Many of you have met her in Sewing Book 5. She is the resourceful young lady whose adventures with an old dresser, a fish bowl and a piano stool are described in that book; and who remodeled one of the old rockers in Book 5. Today's sketch shows another of her slight o' hand tricks with a chair.

There it was in a junk shop window. "Did you ever see anything so impossible?" I said, "It looks like a pompous old dowager with a pompadour." And the bride said, "Yes, but I think my personality could be changed; I can see it as a jolly little old lady sitting in the corner with a gingham apron." Sure enough, the next time I went to see the Bride, there was the chair sitting in a corner painted a cheerful green and with white gingham cushions. The legs had been shortened, as shown here, and the pompous top-heavy back had been cut down. That was all, but the change was complete. If you are interested in adventures in homemaking be sure to send for Book 5. It has 32 pages of money saving ideas that you can put to use at once. Send order to:

Sea Bed Reveals History

In 10 feet of sand and mud on the Atlantic ocean bottom scientists can read a million years of history of the Ice age. Samplings have been taken from the sea bed across the North Atlantic with a cannon-like tube that is shot by gunpowder into the floor as it touches bottom. From these samplings the United States Geological Survey scientists have found evidence of advancing and retreating ice, of one-celled animals and of periods of volcanic activity, the latter indicated by layers of ash thrown off perhaps by eruptions in Iceland.—Pophar Mechanics.

Southwestern PUBLIC SERVICE Company

HOLBROOK UTILITY GETS NEW FRANCHISE

At a special election held Tuesday, voters of Holbrook, Ariz., approved by 160 to 91 a 25-year renewal of the electric franchise of the Holbrook Light and Power Company, a subsidiary of the Southwestern Public Service Co. of Amarillo.

Although the city council had previously approved and passed the extended franchise, a public vote was necessary under Arizona laws.

There has been increasing public satisfaction with the company's operating methods over a period of years following a series of voluntary rate reductions made effective by the company.

"This makes the third franchise renewal granted our properties in Arizona during recent years," said J. S. Mackig, Amarillo, president of the Southwestern Public Service Co., in commenting on the election. "The other renewals voted were in Flagstaff in 1938 and Winslow in 1931. It is gratifying to know that our operating policies meet with public favor."

Van Brawley was in Pampa Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Gray made a business trip to Amarillo Monday.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features-WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—Some people don't know when they are well off. Karl Ulmanis was a milk man at Lincoln, Neb., for five years, and doing all right, before he went back to Latvia, to be president of the country and sit on a hot seat for 25 years thereafter. It was erroneously reported that he had fled, as the Russians moved in, but the news today is that he is still around, and has broadcast a message to his people to be nice to the invaders. Nobody knows the trouble he's seen. Considering that steady job he had, it looks like a score for the isolationists.

In Lincoln, in 1909, he was Karl Ullman, not Ulmanis, former dirt farmer and country editor in the state college of agriculture got him the milk route, so he could work his way through college. He was graduated in the allotted time. He was steady and dependable, and might have been mistaken for a Nebraska farmer.

One day, he discarded his bib overalls, appeared in a store suit and was seen no more in those parts. Everybody liked him and they were especially shocked by the fact that he owed about $1,000, which he had borrowed to start a cheese factory in Texas. Six years passed when A. L. Haecker, one of his creditors, had a letter from him, enclosing full payment of his debt. He explained that he had a nice job as president of Latvia and was glad to be able to pay what he owed. Other bank drafts followed. The $1,000 was paid in full.

As president and foreign minister of Latvia, he lived in an ancient, turreted castle and ruled in a medieval throne room. On the wall behind his desk, the medieval heraldic emblem of Latvia was crossed with the green pennant of the Nebraska State College of Agriculture. But he wasn't having a wonderful time.

The country was under czarist Russia when young Mr. Ullman ran his newspaper. An indiscreet editorial brought about his departure for Lincoln by devious routes. To stave off Nazi aggression, he made himself dictator in 1934.

THE possibility of South and Central American countries picking up empire salvage before the U. S. A. works out its hemisphere defense plans seems to have been but lightly regarded. However, here's little Guatemala reaching out for British Honduras, and Sir Samuel Hoare's mahogany forests and mills therein, according to news reports.

Gen. Jorge Ubico, dictator of Guatemala for the last nine years, brings forward in the files the tale of a British pirate who snatched British Honduras from his country 60 years ago. "Losers weepers, finders keepers." Whether that applies to the wreckage of empires seems not to have been covered in international law.

General Ubico is the only living ruler who looks like Napoleon. He often is called the "Little Napoleon of the Tropics." He was elected for his first one-year term as president. He survived two revolutions during this term, and then set aside the constitutional limitation against more than one term—and has had eight repeats, so far.

The general received a technical and military education in the United States and Europe, and rose to political power through various provincial and national offices. He entered the national assembly in 1918. He concentrates on road-building, sanitation, agriculture and vocational training for young people. He has been strongly pro-U. S. A., and reports from Washington are that our state department probably wouldn't make much of a fuss over his grabbing British Honduras—as long as Hitler doesn't get it.

Brilliantly educated, hard-boiled and diligent, he has worked out in his small laboratory his own idea of an authoritarian state. Monopoly is the central idea. He grants exclusive concessions in basic goods and industries. To restrain grabbing and grafting, he establishes a probity department in his cabinet. Anyone working for the government is doing important business with it, so to file a complete inventory of his own and his family's possessions. If these goods and chattels increase so rapidly, the general's busy little gutstep is on the job.

FARM TOPICS

COW 'ON PASTURE' REQUIRES GRAIN

Constant Ration Aids the Production of Milk.

By DR. GEO. E. TAYLOR

Discontinuance of grain feeding of cows on pasture is somewhat akin to the action of the man who killed the goose that laid the golden egg. Yet many a dairy farmer stops grain feeding as soon as his cows increase their milk flow under the stimulus of luxuriant pasture rich in protein, minerals and vitamins. To make so radical a change in the ration is to make a costly mistake.

Dairy cattle on good pasture will maintain increased production without grain for possibly three to four weeks, but they will lose weight in the process. This loss of body weight will be followed by a reduction in milk production. Even with renewed grain feeding, it will be difficult to restore production once it has been allowed to slump.

Continued feeding of grain and a limited amount of hay until the cows just turned on pasture are accustomed to the change in their ration is recommended. Amount of grain to be fed will depend upon the quality and amount of available pasture and the level of milk production.

Good pasture alone will provide sufficient nutrients for body maintenance and the production of 10 to 20 or more pounds of milk, depending upon the per cent of fat in the milk. New Jersey experiment station trials demonstrated that the feeding of one pound of grain to 8½ pounds of milk maintained the level production during June. Under average feeding conditions, however, a more liberal allowance of grain is usually recommended for the entire pasture season. One pound of grain to every five or seven pounds of milk produced should be sufficient. The higher testing breeds require the more liberal allowance of grain in proportion to the amount of milk produced.

"Since the protein content of green pasture is higher than the protein content of roughages fed during winter, the protein content of the summer grain mixture can be reduced. A concentrate grain mixture containing 12 per cent crude protein will supply ample protein for cows on excellent pasture. A usually high producer excepted. A mixture of such home grown cereal grains as corn, barley and oats contains about 12 per cent crude protein.

"During summer, cows should have free access to a mineral mixture of equal parts salt and steamed bone meal.

Novel Device Checks Field Contour Lines

Technical assistance in laying out contour lines on farms has long been an expressed need of conservation-minded farmers. L. H. Schoenleber, Iowa agricultural engineer, has attempted to meet this need with a device which enables farmers to lay out contour lines for themselves, without surveying equipment or technical assistance.

His invention is called a grade meter. It has not yet been placed on the market, but it has demonstrated its merit in a wide variety of tests. Schoenleber has received a public service patent on the grade meter but plans to subject the device to further tests before offering it to farmers throughout the country. Contour farming is a basic part of the farm planning program.

The grade meter consists of a pendulum connected to an indicator arm through a train of gears. This is mounted rigidly on the tractor in front of the operator. As the pendulum swings it causes the indicator arm to move over a scale which shows deviations from zero. The operator of the tractor endeavors to keep the meter reading zero at all times.

Agricultural News

About $20,000,000 is lost each year from eggs that are incubated but fail to hatch.

If you want to insure pastures for all summer, use moister soils for pasture seedings and divide large fields into small lots.

Most cows will drink from four to five pounds of water for each pound of milk they produce. They should have access to all the fresh, clean water they can drink.

The newest transparent food wrappers developed by scientists are made of tightly stretched rubber that will encase products in a skin-tight, air-free container.

4-H club work hit a new high last year when more than 1,300,000 boys and girls held membership in 79,500 clubs in the United States and territories.

Good cows change almost two-thirds of their feed into milk and butterfat.

Doctor Bids 'Babies' to Huge Party

Dr. A. O. Belmore of Bridgewater, Mass., (on platform, right) speaks to some of the 2,002 babies he has brought into the world, in unusual party staged at his home, in celebration of his thirty-fifth anniversary as a practicing physician. Close to 1,000 of his "babies" attended the party.

Queen Elizabeth is interested in a Toronto Scottish machine gun crew in training, while her husband, King George VI, chats with Major General A. G. L. McNaughton, during a visit to a southern England camp. They are inspecting regiments of the Canadian active service force.

Against Reds

Gene Tunney lambasts the Reds, and especially what he terms their control of the National Youth congress. He is speaking at a press conference at Hotel Roosevelt, New York city.

'Armistice Car' in Old Role—In Reverse

The most fantastic retake of history was staged in this historic vehicle recently, at Compiègne forest, France—an armistice meeting in which the French and German roles of 1918 were reversed. The Germans, as the conquerors, handed to envoys of the defeated French, peace terms which "must be accepted as a whole."

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions. These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

A man seldom regrets holding his tongue, but talking too much is a different matter.

We have never been able to get all "steamed up" about any candidate for office. We have found that it does not make too much difference in the long run. Most any candidate tries to do his best when he gets into office, and when an occasional incompetent one gets in he does not stay very long.

The next legislature will probably be overwhelmingly against a sales tax, and with practically all of the candidates for governor committed against the proposition, the people of Texas should be safe from such a thing for the next two years. Even if a governor favoring the tax should be elected, the legislature should be able to prevent its passage. And while we are on the subject, a sales tax by any other name smells just the same.

It is time that candidates ran upon their own qualifications and not upon the failings of their opponents, but it seems that the old-fashioned way of denouncing one's opponent is still effective, and as long as it gets votes we may not hope to see it discontinued by everyone. It may be that a well qualified man hesitates to offer himself on account of this custom; however, when a man is not qualified, voters are entitled to know his record, so maybe the thing works out all right in the long run.

AUTO QUIZ NO. 7
 Answers

1. d. twenty miles an hour. The most common fault in hill climbing is failure to shift to a lower gear soon enough. This is dangerous because it may mean a stalled motor on a dangerous grade. The correct answer of 20 miles an hour given here is approximate, and recommended by good drivers as well as automotive engineers. It may vary slightly with different makes of cars. The main thing is for you to set a fairly definite point for yourself which will keep you out of trouble.
2. d. the same gear you would use to get up the hill. If the hill is steep enough so you would have to go up in second or even first gear, it is wise to get into that same gear when going down. The engine works as a brake and saves wear and tear on your real brakes. Never descend a hill in neutral.
3. False. The "one-drink" driver may be as dangerous on the road as the inebriate because even a slight exhilaration may cause him to take chances. Studies indicate that one or two drinks definitely impair one's driving ability.

Man, Not Machine, Chief Cause of Traffic Deaths

In the majority of automobile accidents throughout the country during the past year the driver and not the car was at fault, according to research experts.

They estimated that 93 per cent of all automobiles involved in fatal crashes in 1939 and 95.5 per cent of those in non-fatal accidents were in good mechanical condition.

Of 37,000 cars dealing out death, only 670 were found to have defective brakes and 510 had faulty lights. A puncture or blowout was reported as the primary cause of accident in but 440 cases.

While it stressed man-failure rather than machine-failure as the chief cause of accidents, the report was careful not to minimize the importance of keeping vehicles in good condition.

"It is known that many accidents attributed to some failure on the part of the driver would be averted if the car were in perfect or near-perfect condition," the report stated. "As an example, an investigating officer writes into his report as the cause of an accident: 'Operator drove off the roadway.' The driver may have been inattentive; however, is it not possible that with perfect brakes, perfect steering mechanism, and good tires he could still have pulled himself out of the hole into which his inattentiveness placed him?"

In other words, the report concludes, mechanical failure is often cited as a contributing cause but not the principal cause of accidents.

THESE BORESOME RODEOS

The towns of this section are trying with each other putting on rodeos this year. Not a week has passed lately but that some neighboring town has invaded our usually quiet town amid the blast of car horns, fire sirens and other noise making apparatus. Of course all of them tell us how much pleasure we all get coming to their town and sitting or standing in the hot sun for two hours, living on hot dogs and pop while we watch some bowlegged cowboy ride a lousy steer. All cannot see alike or all of us would want Sal for a wife, but we don't attend rodeos right here in our own village, much less go off to one. Personally we think the thing has been run into the ground as deep as a South Plains oil well. # TRAILER GIRL

By VERA BROWN

WNU Service

THE STORY THUS FAR

Lynn Morrow, beautiful blonde New York girl, is stranded in Palm Beach in her suit with only 50 cents when her employer, Mrs. Helen Warren, disappears. Lynn and her sister, Rene, had been in a car and trailer from a camp where they had been working. Mrs. Warren advised Lynn to call her New York attorney's office for her clothes and wages. She is now in a hotel in New York, where she is waiting for her sister, Rene, who she met in the beach. She goes to his home, where she is met by a maid who provides her with a key to a room. She then goes to a garage where she finds her sister, Rene, who is waiting for her. Lynn and Rene are then taken to a trailer camp where they are met by a secretary, Miss Morrow, who is waiting for them. Lynn and Rene are then taken to a trailer camp where they are met by a secretary, Miss Morrow, who is waiting for them.

CHAPTER IX

Lynn stared at the check and then looked back to Mr. Mortimer. "I can't take such a sum as this," she explained. Mr. Mortimer smiled. "My dear young woman, the least Mrs. Warren could have done was to pay your fare back from Florida. I was shocked when I learned you were stranded down there. We were liable."

Just then the secretary came in with Lynn's big suitcase. Mortimer was silent while she was in the room. "I am deeply concerned over this. If you will allow me, I am going to give you a card to a man I know, who, perhaps can give you a job."

Lynn's face lighted: "I'd be terribly grateful!"

He took one of his own cards and scribbled an address on the back of it. "Go there tomorrow. I think we can find work for you."

"I'm afraid I may not be able to go tomorrow," Lynn said hesitating. Then she added with charming frankness: "You see how I'm pressed. I must get my clothes pressed, and get some shoes and things."

"Of course."

"Besides, I've hurt my ankle. I got into a little accident, an automobile accident on the way from Florida, and it is hard for me to walk yet."

"Then the first of the week will be all right. He pressed a button on his desk and he was going to send you home in my car, Miss Morrow. Now, undoubtedly, you'll want to get that check cashed. Suppose I send my secretary with you to the bank across the street? She can arrange things there."

"I mustn't trouble you. I am afraid I made things very difficult for you."

Mortimer was watching Lynn intently. In spite of the awful clothes, the girl was a beauty. Mortimer nervously fingered some correspondence. He wondered. He must watch her. That would tell more. Then he indicated the interview was at an end. But as Lynn tried to thank him he held up his hand: "Thank Mrs. Warren. She's really responsible. And I'd be grateful if you'd not discuss this with anybody under any circumstances. And there is no need to tell anybody the sum Mrs. Warren sent you."

"I'll not discuss it with anybody!" Lynn promised.

As Lynn went down in the elevator with the secretary, Mortimer went for his chauffeur and gave minute instructions. Fifteen minutes later Lynn was sitting in Mortimer's handsome black sedan whirling back home with $200 in her pocket. She kept pinching herself to see if she were really alive.

And all the time Lynn had been blaming Mrs. Warren. The girl was puzzled now.

Then she gave it up as too much for her.

As they got into the Bronx Lynn directed the chauffeur. Fifteen minutes and Lynn limped into the trailer home, radiant. The chauffeur brought in her suitcase over her protests, and to Rene's amazement. When he had tipped his hat and closed the door, Lynn fell on her knees beside Rene and pulled the suit out of her pocket.

"The old homestead's saved! Here, we're rich! We can eat, and everything! And I'm to have a job!"

Rene was speechless at the sudden turn of events.

After supper, the girl dived into the suitcase. She had a brown suit and a topcoat of excellent cut. They had belonged to Mrs. Warren and she had given them to Lynn when they first started for Florida. Lynn had worn the suit down South, and the coat over a lightweight dress.

So enthused was Lynn at having a few of her belongings with her that she insisted on taking her suit and coat to the cleaners that night.

Two days later Lynn went downtown and got a new hat and gloves and a purse. She felt well-to-do and well-dressed, and the suit had not turned out badly.

Lynn's blonde hair gleamed from under the tiny off-the-face hat, and Rene thought she was the prettiest thing he had ever seen.

"You know, some day I want to do a decent portrait of you," he said, suddenly as though that thought just occurred to him. "Here I have before me one of the best models I've seen about these parts, and somehow I never thought of doing it, except for a garage man."

Lynn hurried off without any more discussion of the matter. The address Mortimer had given her was on Fifth Avenue. The girl had no idea what kind of a place it was, but she was to ask for Mr. Wallace. She walked over to Fifth Avenue from the subway with the card in her hand, and turned into the avenue, hunting for the number. There were several smart shops along the way, hats and shoes and frocks. Then a branch bank. Her number turned out to be the bank, and Lynn's heart sank. What could she do in a bank?

Lynn waited patiently outside Wallace's door for almost an hour. When she had completely despaired, a secretary motioned her into the room.

"Miss Morrow, eh?" The man behind the desk looked startled, as he saw Lynn standing there before him. "Can you type?" he asked after a long pause.

"Yes, sir."

Wallace nodded; nothing was said about salary. He told his secretary to take Lynn into the big office behind the cages.

A severe woman of 50 told her where to hang her hat and coat, and then began explaining her duties to her. Lynn's head swam. The thought of copying all those terrible figures appalled the girl. She was in a panic. She had to make good! She had to keep this job.

Just before closing time Wallace called the model of efficiency who so terrified Lynn and asked to have Miss Morrow come to his office.

Wallace was not alone. An elaborately coiffured woman in luxurious black was sitting across from him.

"Oh, Miss Morrow, will you come in," Wallace smiled at her, and Lynn, so grateful for his courtesy, smiled back at him a tremulous smile.

"This is Mme. Reanoud, one of our good customers." Wallace let her stand there for a moment. Lynn bowed, and the two looked at the girl appraisingly.

"Walk over there to the window, Miss Morrow," Wallace said, "and now come back."

"Are you limping?" Mme. Reanoud spoke for the first time. She had a deep, almost masculine voice.

"I sprained my ankle a week ago; it is still a little troublesome."

"Nothing permanent?"

"Oh, no; it is much better."

Mme. Reanoud made a sign to Wallace, nodded her head.

"Let me explain why I asked you to come here," Wallace said.

A shadow settled on the girl's face.

"When I saw you this morning I was struck by your appearance," he went on, not seeming to notice her remark. "Then, Mme. Reanoud came in here and told me some of her troubles. She's one of our good customers. She has a dress shop, two shops down the street. You needs a model and I thought of you immediately."

"Have you ever done anything like that?" Mme. Reanoud was making mental notes of the girl's roughened hands. They'd have to be fixed up.

"No."

"That is odd; I should think you would have."

"I have been out of school for a short time. I did office work last Fall, and this Winter I was in Florida."

"You came back at a bad time."

Lynn merely smiled.

"Wouldn't you be interested? Do you like clothes?"

"I love them, but I haven't any."

"That's a good suit—excellent, in fact."

"It is a hand-me-down," Lynn answered, truthfully.

Mme. Reanoud laughed. "I like your frankness. Come and work for me. I'll give you $18 a week to start, five days a week, and your clothes at wholesale."

"It's hard to work in this joint," Rene said irritably.

"I won't be buying many clothes, I'm afraid."

"You will when you see mine!" She handed Lynn one of her business cards. "Report tomorrow at nine."

CHAPTER X

Lynn ran most of the way from the subway to the trailer camp to tell Rene about her good fortune. She burst into the trailer like a whirlwind to be met by howls from Rene.

"Close that door, damn it!" he shouted. "Do you want to ruin everything?"

Lynn stood still in the doorway in amazement. All over the walls, standing on the stove, on the sink, on sofas, on the floor were scores of sketches—all of a girl by the name of Lynn Morrow. There were sketches of Lynn in bathing suit, of Lynn walking, running, smiling over a cup of coffee. And Rene, begrimmed, with rumpled hair was working away at his drawing board turning out more.

"Look! I've got an idea at last. You! Why I didn't realize before I don't know. I'll make my fortune yet!"

"What does it mean, Rene?"

"Just that I have the swellest model in New York, and haven't done anything about it. Now watch me go to town!" In a tumble of words as he worked Rene explained.

"You're a natural! I wanted to work and work at these sketches, to hold every line firmly. Then I'll start painting!" His eyes shone triumphantly. "I'll paint stuff that I can sell anywhere!" He threw down his pencil. "When do we eat and what? I haven't had anything all day."

Lynn frowned severely at him as she put up the gingham curtain, got out of her one decent outfit into the old overalls ready to cook supper.

"Didn't you even drink any milk?"

"Too busy!" he said shortly.

So engrossed was Rene in his own ideas that Lynn did not get a chance to tell him about her new job and her fabulous salary until at supper.

"Nonsense! That will do for a few weeks, but when I get going I'll want you to model all the time. You can't go to work then. If I only had decent quarters. It's hard to work in this joint!" he said irritably.

Lynn was at work fifteen minutes early the next morning and had to wait until Madam got in.

It was almost 10 before Madam could devote a few minutes to Lynn. She called her into one of the unoccupied fitting rooms.

"Now, my dear, I've made an appointment at Selano's for you at 10:30. He'll cut your hair. You don't do it well. And he'll prescribe for your hands. If you must work at home, wear rubber gloves. Get back as soon as you can. This will be a busy day."

Lynn went obediently up the street to the hairdresser's.

The rest of the day she kept getting in and out of clothes, parading before customers.

At 5 o'clock Madam called her again to another fitting room for a hurried conference.

"You've got a lot to learn, Lynn. You have a million-dollar smile. Use it, but only on the women. Didn't you see Glenda Royall walk out just now? Why, do you suppose? Because you were smiling too much at the old guy with her! Use your head! Smile, but at the fool women!"

"I didn't realize—" gasped Lynn.

"I know, but Glenda did!" Madam put her hand on Lynn's arm. "You're going to learn a lot in the next few weeks. Most of it won't be pleasant."

The days flew.

One Sunday morning in May, Lynn was cooking Sunday breakfast of bacon and eggs. The trailer was in a cloud of bacon smoke, for she'd burned the first slices a bit. Rene was grumbling at her carelessness. The smoke made his eyes smart.

"Hi, Boucher, are you there?" called a voice from the doorway.

"Come stepped into the doorway, looming big in the little home.

Just then, in a resounding smack, a newcomer to the tourist camp banged smartly into Rene's trailer back! Crack! Away went the bacon and eggs and the coffee pot, down to join up with the sketches and drawing board in a welter of grease and general confusion. Lynn was holding a burned hand.

"Oh, oh, how awful!" Lynn was on her knees trying to rescue the sketches. She had to see the new comer in the doorway.

"That's it, that's it, get to work, you fool. Get to work, say!" The big man hopped and wapped about over the floating drawings. "Rene, get to work! Sketch you fool, sketch! That's what I want!"

A great light broke over Rene's face. "Stay there, Lynn!" He grabbed up some paper from the drawing board and set to work. Lynn sat back on her heels and just looked at the two mad men, as she nursed her blistered hands. As she started to rise, Rene cried: "Wipe up the mess. Stay where you are."

"My hand!"

"Damn your hand!" Rene was sketching furiously.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for July 14

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

JOB'S STRUGGLE TO FAITH IN LIFE AFTER DEATH

LESSON TEXT—Job 14:13-17; 17:13-16; 19:23-29. GOLDEN TEXT—For I know that my redeemer liveth.—Job 19:25.

If life ends at the grave, it has comparatively little meaning and its struggles and sorrows are hardly worth bearing. Job, living in all probability about 1,500 years before Christ, did not have our knowledge of the resurrection of Christ and the assurance that He is but the "first fruits of them that slept" and that we too shall rise (see I Cor. 15:22, 23). But in the midst of suffering, discouragement and spiritual conflict, he looked with the eye of faith all the way beyond the grave.

The background of our lesson is found in Job's experience with his three professed comforters, who speak thus:

"Eliphaz: But who ever perish being innocent (4:7)? Be glad that you are being corrected (4:17). Job: Answer my question and I will keep still. Show me where I am wrong. What does your 'proof' prove (6:24, 25)?"

"Biddad: Do you think God perverts justice (8:3)? Ask the wise men of the ages. Consider what our fathers taught (8:3). Job: It is all the same; God destroys the righteous with the wicked (9:22)."

"Zophar: Do you expect to understand God? Put evil away (11:7, 14). Job: I know as much as you do (13:2). Your burning remarks are cold ashes (13:12). I would like to reason it out with God (13:3). I have stated my case; I am righteous (13:8)."

"The three friends have not helped him, but Job struggles on alone with the problem."—Dr. Carl S. Knopf.

I. Uncertainty—"If a man die, shall he live again?" (14:13-17).

Job, while maintaining that he was righteous, felt that his sufferings must indicate that God was displeased with him. He thought he might best seek refuge in Sheol (R. V. in place of "grave" in v. 13), the abode of the dead. But suddenly he turned again to the hope which was dear to his heart; namely, that somehow there must be a blessed future life with God.

He asked the question, "If a man die, shall he live again?" The fact that he quickly lapsed into despair indicates that he was not certain that the answer to his question was "Yes." How blessed it is that we know, for have we not heard the voice of the One who, standing before a grave in Bethany, said, "I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live" (John 11:25)?

II. Hope—"Where, then, is my hope?" (Job 17:13-16).

Eliphaz had again sought to set Job right by accusing him of vanity, impatience and pride (chap. 15). Job answered (chaps. 16 and 17) that his friends were worse than useless as comforters, being so sanctimonious in their assurance of his wickedness, when in fact he was only a man who was on the verge of despair, but still holding to his faith in God.

Job cried out, "Where, then, is my hope?"—undoubtedly thus expressing his bewilderment, bordering on complete despair. Yet do we not even in the question see that he still had hope? The man who has given up says, "There is no hope"; but Job continued to hope against hope, crying out, "Where is my hope?" knowing full well that his only hope was in God.

There is a lesson here that we do well to learn. Whatever our situation may be we shall find that God is there and that we may trust Him.

"Does all the world seem against you and you in the battle alone? Remember, at 'Wh's End Corner' is where God's power is shown."

III. Faith—"I know that my redeemer liveth" (Job 19:23-29).

What blessed vision and what glorious faith! Job lived in the time of Moses or before. He had no New Testament—no old Testament—but he did have God, and by faith he believed that God was to make Himself known to man here on earth as a living Redeemer.

We say that we know because we have the record of His coming; of His Son of God incarnate; of His bearing our sins on Calvary; of His death and resurrection again; of His ascension to be with the Father, and His coming again in glory and power. Job, however, had to reach through doubt and darkness to faith in life after death. How much richer should be our faith, infinitely more precious, stirring us to loving obedience and service for Christ our Redeemer.

A Blessed Inheritance

Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to His abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you.—I Peter: 1, 3, 4.

PATTERN SEWING CIRCLE DEPARTMENT

SWEET and summery as a basket of flowers, this frock (8729) is perfect for warm afternoons. In printed silk, or flower-patterned cottons like voile or batiste, it will look so cool and fresh and feminine, with its open-topped sleeves, heart-shaped neckline, and frills that put all the emphasis up at the top, an effect always becoming to slim figures. The skirt has the lifting grace of circular fullness.

And notice how little detailing is required—just a few gathers at the waistline; otherwise it's all straight, easy seams. Even beginners can make it, guided by the step-by-step sew chart included in the pattern. In fact, you'll probably repeat this design many times.

Pattern No. 8729 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39-inch material without nap; 2 3/4 yards of ruffling. Send order to:

GET VITAMINS YOU NEED...

AS YOU REFRESH YOURSELF!

Oranges can help you to feel your best

When you want refreshment, eat an orange! Or help yourself from the big family pitcher of fresh orangeade! "Hits the spot!" you'll say.

But that's not all. Oranges add needed vitamins and minerals to your diet. And fully half of our families, says the Department of Agriculture, do not get enough of these health essentials to feel their best!

The best way to be sure of getting all the vitamin C you normally need is to drink an 8-ounce glass of fresh orange juice with breakfast every morning. You also receive vitamins A, B<sub>1</sub> and G and the minerals calcium, phosphorus and iron.

There's nothing else so delicious that's so good for you. So order a supply of Sunkist Oranges right away. They're the pick of California's best-ever crop of wonderfully juicy summer oranges. Copy, 1940, California Fruit Growers Exchange

CITIZENS WANT HIGHWAYS TO BY-PASS TOWN

Austin.—Highways are passing up Texas towns and nobody is mad.

Time was when Squedunk, on the route of an old state artery, raised a collective howl when state highway engineers planning a new location for the road, left the village high and dry on the outmoded pavement.

Now the same citizens actually petition the highway department to by-pass their town.

They realize at last, say engineers, that most highway traffic is non-local and through travelers will not stop to buy gasoline, hot dogs, soda or anything else they can get most anywhere on their route. Then, too, cross-state arteries add to traffic hazards in a community.

The practice of the highway department is to build good spur roads from new highways to towns when they are taken off the main roads. This is no inconvenience to local and regional travelers who need to reach the particular town.

Currently, the department is by-passing San Marcos through which U. S. 81 winds a tortuous path which often adds 15 minutes to north-south bound motoring time. Now Braunfels and Waco on the same highway have been by-passed. Motorists in south Texas can whiz past Alice on U. S. 281 with nothing but a side glance for the town. The same holds for Goldthwaite, Mules and Killeen on U. S. 190 and West on U. S. 81.

Five years ago, an engineer says, Palestine citizens fought a proposed location for U. S. 79 which eliminated the city from its route. Now, he adds, Palestine wants to be by-passed.

Maybe its citizens heard about the irate cross-country motorist who pulled up to a filling station outside a small southwest Texas town.

"Are you in the city limits?" he asked the proprietor.

"No, sir," was the reply.

"Well, fill her up, then; nobody in town will get my business."

MAN'S FAULT

God has not made war. Man makes war; he is wholly responsible for it. And men and nations, however peace-loving and right-thinking, are dragged into it against their judgment, in spite of their deep loathing, because some man or group defies reason and justice and has to be resisted if decency is to survive.

So the nations spend billions every year getting ready for war, and then waste their lives carrying it on. Man has made the mess we are in. And all because he keeps forgetting, or deliberately ignoring, the fact that God is his great partner, to whom he is responsible.

God means to make this world a glorious world, full of righteousness, peace and joy. But He will not—in a deep sense, He cannot—bring such an outcome until and unless man plays his part. Just so long as man plays the fool, the traitor, the self-seeker, just so long must the creature wait, "groaning and travailing in pain."—Rev. Dr. W. P. Merrill in The Pathfinder.

FAD FOUNDS INDUSTRY

Vitamins may sound like magic, they may act like magic, but they're making industrial news. A fad in the early 20's, better understanding of their uses within recent years has transformed them into a substantial new industry.

Bakers, dairies, soda bottlers, tomato juice and breakfast food manufacturers, candy and cough drop makers are fortifying their products with extra vitamins. Even plant foods are being flavored with vitamin B! Every day now somebody discovers a new one, or something about an old one and it's a gay life for researchers, consumers, manufacturing chemists, and guinea pigs.

Deficiency in one vitamin or another is believed to be related to many ailments. Proper intake of vitamins helps assure maximum growth and a state of buoyant health as well as resistance to numerous infections. Vitamins are valuable in medicine, but of infinitely greater value in preventive medicine.

R. C. Pollack, general manager of the National Livestock and Meat Board, with headquarters in Chicago, reveals that last year Americans ate more meat than in any previous year in the nation's history—an estimated 17,201,000,000 pounds. During the first four months of this year, he says the use of meat was 17% ahead of the same period in 1939.

We should have a great many fewer disputes in the world if words were taken for what they are, the signs of our ideas only, and not for things themselves.—Locke.

BUSINESS AS USUAL

A statistically-minded service station operator, reports Cedric Adams in the Minneapolis "Star-Journal," recently took notes on his business for a day. In the course of his research he discovered that among the customers of his station, which was opened to serve motor traffic, were 135 bicycle riders.

Of the 135 bicyclists, he found 48 stopped for drinks, 21 stopped to borrow tools, six wanted to borrow patches for punctured tires, 12 used the washroom, and 46 came for information.

The other two made purchases totaling 30 cents!
