Library Takes Progress Last Few Days

McLean public library is now in the charge of Mrs. Lady ... the new librarian. The library is open every week day from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m., except Tuesday, when the hours are 1 till 6. The library has been placed under the supervision of the city council. This step has been taken, the State library will lend to this library a basic collection of 400 books for a period of six months. The books will be received in 100 boxes, and additional shelves will be added to house the collection. New rules have been made governing the library service. Only one book at a time may be checked out by one person, and when the new books are received, only one may be checked out at a time. The magazines may be checked out three at a time by one person. The books and magazines are kept for a period of one year with a fine of 2c per day for each book and magazine kept out.

RECOMMENDS LIBRARY HELP

The city council in session last week recommended that $25.00 be added to the budget for the free library, such help to be from Sept. 1 to next year. It is understood that this recommendation is subject to the legality of the matter.

BOYS STEAL CAR HERE

A group of boys who claimed their car was in Oklahoma took a car belonging to Tom Boyd, Inc., from the street last Monday night and fled west, but had to abandon the car a few miles west of Alanreed, because of running out of gas. The boys were seen taking the car and officers started on the trail. They were arrested soon after leaving the car, and placed in the Pampa jail.

4-H GIRLS PROUD OF SUMMER'S RECORD

The 4-H girls are busy with their bedroom work and poultry growing and wish their friends and the public to know about some of the worth while things they have done. They are inviting you to come and see their work this month.

They chose this month as they will have time to finish up their work before school starts.

The six clubs will have their achievement days and displays on the following dates: Laketon will meet on the 19th at 2:30 in the home of Yvonne Hoffer to inspect bedroom work, then to Peggy Ruth Ware's to hear about poultry work of the club and to see Peggy Ruth's poultry. Task will meet on the 20th at Pecos; Matthews' at 2:00 for bedroom inspection, then to Elsie Mae Holloway's to see her demonstration in poultry. On the same afternoon, the Webb 4-H girls will entertain the group at Ruby Lee Ray's for bedroom at 3:20, and from there to Louana Michael's for a review of her poultry work.

The Alanreed 4-H girls will have their achievement with Velma Davis on August 21st at 2:30, and then visit Lily and Goldie Collier's bedroom and poultry work. The Southeast 4-H girls will meet on August 22nd with Bennie Mae Wade at 2:30 for bedroom, and Betty Lou Roth at 4 for poultry. The county-wide girls will have their bedroom and poultry work with Doris Smith August 23rd at 2:30 p. m.

On each occasion each club member will have a chance to display any outstanding feature of their work and tell the story of their accomplishments.

L. R. BUSH WRITES

Thermopolis, Wyoming, Aug. 7, 1940.

Mr. T. A. Landers, McLean, Texas.

Dear Friend: You will find enclosed $100 for which you will send us the McLean News for as long as this will pay.

We would like to get the news from the old home town and of our many friends there.

ALANREED COUNTY FAIR NEXT MONTH

Alanreed citizens are busy making preparations and plans for the annual county fair to be held in September. The committee has great expectations for a fine exhibit and invite all interested persons and organizations to bring their examples of good home grown and home made products. This may include hand work in the arts department, needlework of all kinds such as crochet, embroidery, quilts; craft work; food preservation work in any form—canned, pickled or preserved; agricultural exhibits including all products grown on the farm, from a single exhibit to a community exhibit.

Every year a number of people ask about a place to exhibit some of their splendid work. This is the only fair that Gray county sponsors and this is an opportunity to encourage other people to do work that is worthwhile by showing them what you have.

MYROSES TO LEAVE FOR HOUSTON SUNDAY

Rev. and Mrs. John W. Myrose will leave Sunday for Houston, where Rev. Myrose will teach in a Presbyterian conference. Mrs. Myrose will visit in the home of Rev. Harry Saries at Port Arthur.

Free Cooking School to Be Held in McLean

The McLean News has contracted with Southern Newspaper Features of Dallas for a Happy Kitchen Cooking School to be held in this city on Sept. 27, 28, 29, with Mrs. A. D. French, noted Southern home economist and food authority, in charge. The lecture staff of Southern Newspaper Features has talked to over one million housewives in the past several years in conducting cooking schools in many cities.

The Happy Kitchen Cooking School will include many new cookery secrets, budgeting, short cuts to economy, marketing, proper kitchen equipment, how to plan meals, new recipes and household hints, new and attractive ways to serve foods, and in addition, many other phases of homemaking will be discussed.

Mrs. French is a native of Texas. She has spent years in preparation and study of foods and home problems. She will give actual demonstrations at each session of the cooking school and will be glad to answer any questions, the question box being one of the features of the school.

Mrs. French is one of the outstanding cooking school lecturers in her profession on the platform today. She has presented her lectures to thousands of housewives and is looking forward with pleasure to her visit in McLean when she arrives for the Happy Kitchen Cooking School.

German and British Airmen Raid Vital Industrial Centers; Political Campaign 'Roars On'

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union

YE CAMPAIGN: Roars On

Boss Ed Flynn of the Bronx, a man with a surprisingly fine library, who likes to read, took Jim Farley's place as national chairman of the Democrats. He was the same general type as Farley, with a similar background, except that Farley was a country boy, and Boss Flynn was a city laddie. Like Farley, Flynn is respected around New York, and well liked by many.

Willkie came out and said he would not get into personal arguments with members of congress, individual hecklers, or anybody like that. Willkie went on to say he had very determined views about conscription, and about helping the Bullmen abroad, but he wouldn't admit what those views were. Some Republicans remarked that they felt they had signed a blank check made out to Wendell Willkie esquire. And yet, more than 90 per cent of the newspapers of the United States were supporting him against the III term. More and more, people were showing themselves anti-Roosevelt, rather than pro-Willkie.

Dilemma

An evidence of this was the continued drift of Democrats, over to the Republican fold. As each Demo moved over, Roosevelt would denounce him, but still they moved. Lewis Douglas, Roosevelt's erstwhile budget director, had been one of the first. Now came Edmund Toland, counsel to the house committee, investigating the National Labor Relations board. Toland resigned, in order to work for Willkie.

On the other hand, a fair number of liberal Republicans were none too sure about Willkie. They stressed his "non-savory" background, and his "anglophile" war expressions.

THE WAR:

Aircraft

While the world waited wearily for the German invasion of England, air fighting raged to and fro between the Royal air force and the Goering flying circus. The Germans forced the port of London, biggest in the entire world, to close, and also the ports of Newcastle on Tyne, Hull, and Newcastle. This meant that all sorts of commodities had to be unloaded in the still solvent west of England, and shipped east, which dislocated the British timetable no end.

On the other hand, the British claimed they had peppered Hamburg to a really serious degree. This is Germany's third biggest city—after Berlin and Vienna—and by far the friendliest city to England of them all. Its inhabitants speak a

NAMES

... in the news

☛ The three Musico brothers were discharged from their bail—George, Arthur and Robert. George's bail was worth $10,000, and his brothers were worth $5,000 apiece. The trio served short sentences at the federal jail in Lewisburg, Pa. They were accused of "mulcting" $4,000,000 via larceny and forgery. The fourth brother was the late Philip Musica, of McKesson & Robbins. He called himself F. Donald Coster.

☛ Congressman Lindsay Warren of North Carolina, age 50, was selected by President Roosevelt as comptroller-general. Chairman of the accounts committee of the house, he had served there for 16 years. The job of comptroller-general lasts 15 years, and nets $10,000 per year.

☛ One hundred thousand names unknown to history were the victims of a bad flu epidemic in Puerto Rico. They called the disease, the "monga." Drs. Edwin Lenette and John Orlin were rushed down there from the Rockefeller institute and the United States health service.

local dialect closely akin to Anglo-Saxon, and its sea-going and commercial ties with John Bull have always been strong. After the Napoleonic wars, Hamburg's republican senate petitioned England to take them over.

Bremen, Hamburg's sister city, also got it in the neck, but not so bad. So did Duesseldorf, Essen, Wesel, and Duisburg, in the valley of the river Rhine. Essen is the German Pittsburgh, where the vast complex of the Krupp works spreads out. It is an easy aerial target. Sheffield, the English equivalent of Essen and Pittsburgh, was scheduled to be "next" on the list, while Welsh Cardiff and English Portsmouth were reportedly already badly gutted. One ex-Englischer was excited by all this. He was living in faraway Chicago, but he bought a Spitfire fighter and presented it to his home town: Leamington Spa, in Warwickshire.

Anti-Aircraft

In the German service, the anti-aircraft department is an integral part of the Goering flying circus, which is an independent branch of the national defense, co-equal with army and navy. (In the American service, anti-aircraft is part of the army's coast artillery.) During the first 11 months of the present war, the crack German anti-aircraft brought down 1,230 enemy planes, knocked out more than 400 tanks, sank 10 ships, and damaged 10 more of them.

The Catch

There is a catch to all this aerial warfare, between the British island fortress and the long seacoast under German domination. It is this: the Germans do their air raiding by day, and the British do it by night. Air raiding by day is much more dangerous to the flyers, but it is also much easier to hit land targets when the sun is up. Night bombing is safer for the pilots, but it is far harder to "reach" the objectives. This accounts for the much heavier German air losses. The Germans outnumber the British in the air by perhaps 3 to 1, so they can afford to "take" it. The Royal air force has to be economical in its expenditure of men and machines.

U. S. ARMY

Parachutes

At Hightstown, N. J., some 48 infantry regulars from Fort Benning, Ga., gave a parachute jumping demonstration from two 125-foot steel towers. High army officers looked on with grave attention, for it was sensational stuff in the line of troop training. The Benning infantry jumped in four "easy" stages, like this:

This unusual picture was made as the first doughboy made his jump at the army parachute training center in Hightstown, N. J.

Stage 1 was a drop in an open parachute, equipped with a comfortable seat. That wasn't so bad at all. Stage 2 was a drop in an open parachute, with harness instead of a seat. Stage 3 was a "free" drop with an open parachute, and stage 4 was a "free" drop with a packed parachute, which had to be opened up in the air. In any man's country—Russia aside, for some reason—it is none too easy to recruit parachute jumpers. Goering, in Germany, had to start it off by using the daredevils ("mordskerls") of his own bodyguard. Even these toughies grumbled, the first time up and down.

'Headache'

Meanwhile, the U. S. army had a new headache. It found that its 800 best airplane reservists were working on the wide network of American commercial and transport airlines. Here they are vitally needed, and so is the flying equipment. Some of these toponotch civil pilots are military, some are naval, and some are marines, but all of them will have to stay—in case of war—right where they are. This was the U. S. general-staff verdict.

'Pauline Revere'

"Pauline Revere" in the person of Miss Elane Summers, 19, University of Wisconsin beauty queen, pictured about to mount her white horse in front of Chicago's city hall en route to Washington, D. C., with an anti-conscription bill or scroll to be presented to President Roosevelt. Her ride is sponsored by the Committee to Defend America by Keeping It Out of War. This gives but one side of the conscription problem, as proponents of the plan claim that America's interests can best be served by a universal military training program.

COMMONS:

It Laughs

The house of commons, at Westminster, is pretty grim these days. But it got a good laugh for once. One member announced that no less than 14 Italian submarines had been sunk by the British navy in the Mediterranean. In Parliament, there is a rough and tough Scotch Labor deputy named J. J. Davidson, who loves to wise-crack the Tories and the "furriers." When he heard about the submarines, he yelled out: "Is it true the British sailors at sea, only have to call out, 'waiter!' and Italian subs come to the top?"

But the Italians had an answer. They were actually shipping "pocket" submarines over the Alps, to help Hitler in the English channel operations. Once the great Hannibal of Carthage shipped his elephants over the Alps to harry the Italians, and now the Italians were turning the same fantastic trick with their fiery sea-serpents. And strangely enough, historians have always referred to England as the "modern" Carthage, because of its shipping, banking, colonizing and trading.

SPORTS:

Porkers

The Wimbledon tennis club, in England, is the best known in the entire world. Every American champ and she-champ has played there on the green turf. It is glamorous and top-drawer. It was announced that the Wimbledonians would turn to pig-breeding for the duration of the war, and would deal in porkers instead of lob-lollies and back-hands. It was revolutionary, and it certainly wasn't cricket, or tennis either. It seemed that the Davis cup was turning into a bitter cup of misery, to be drained by a new champ, the great god Mars. So with English polo, as well. Its fields were plowed up!

Britons are good sports. England needs aluminum, and needs it bad. One veteran of the last war turned in his aluminum false leg, to a scrap metal depot at Windsor. He wanted to hold off Hitler, just as much as the fancy Wimbledonians did. Meanwhile, there was a lot of talk about equipping parts of the British army with steel breastplates, and helmet visors, to bounce off shell splinters, which was one back-step more toward the dark ages of ironshades, ironpants, and ironheads. At the battle of Bull Run, in 1861, some of our own New York militia wore bullet-proof vests. But they proved so heavy, that the New Yorkers threw them aside when they ran away. They were not such good sports.

Gorillas

Alfred was an Anglo-gorilla at the Bristol zoo. He is worth $8,000 and weighs 426 pounds net. He eats $12 per week in foodstuffs, and is said to be the longest lived gorilla in captivity. Keepers say he's just as good a sport as the fellow with the aluminum leg. But Alfred's too expensive to keep up, and if somebody doesn't adopt him, he'll get shot. Nobody in England likes that prospect. One man wrote the Bristol zoo, and said: "Why don't you ship him to America, with all the other Hapsburgs." Simultaneously, 3,000,000 dogs were being slaughtered in Germany, to save food. Poor dogs; poor Alfred; poor Hapsburgs!

DOPE SHEET:

Diagnosis?

One European neutral observer doped out the American presidential race like this: If the war is still in progress, Roosevelt will win, hands down. People don't like to change horses in crossing a stream. But if the war is over, Willkie will have it by a nose. For if Churchill resigns, which is always possible, the Roosevelt foreign policy will be discredited. The observer linked Churchill to Roosevelt, just as Chamberlain was linked to Daladier.

Preparedness Is Speeding Ahead, Says F.D.R.

Visiting the U. S. naval stations, aerial and ship yards in the Norfolk, Va., area, and the naval and army bases in the Hampton Roads, Va., area, President Roosevelt expressed his pleasure over the advancing state of armament preparations. At left, the President is shown some 37 millimeter anti-aircraft shells by Lieut. E. H. Walter at Fort Monroe. At right, the President is shown arriving at the Norfolk navy yard with his naval aide, Capt. Daniel J. Callaghan. The presidential yacht Potomac is in background.

Skull Practice Perfects A.R.P. Wardens' Work

Efficient rescue work by air raid precautions wardens in England following bombings by Nazis is due to their rigid training. Above is shown a squad of wardens during a "skull drill" in a tactical table in one of the air headquarters in London. By using this table the men are carefully drilled in handling traffic, administering aid to the injured and extinguishing fires during the raids. Credit for an unusually low casualty rate during the raids on England following France's capitulation was given them.

Bottle Tops Make Guns for Tommies

Miss Lillian Hall, a London clothes model, appointed herself a committee of one to collect all the metal bottle tops she could find. Her quest was in response to the government's appeal for old metal to be transformed into guns and munitions with which to meet the onslaught of the Nazis. Among other articles being collected are pots, pans, old cannon and tin cans. The movement which was started in London spread to other cities in the British Isles.

'Colleagues Cheer'

"Colleagues cheer as one of their comrades takes a swipe at a ball during a baseball match" was the way an English newspaper described this Canadian soldier's battling efforts during a camp game in Britain.

Expert Training for War Portfolio

Robert F. Patterson, newly appointed assistant secretary of war, shown as he underwent training recently in the Citizens' Training camp at Plattsburg, N. Y. A former federal circuit judge, he succeeded Louis Johnson as assistant secretary of war following the appointment of Col. Henry L. Stimson to the war post. He won the D. S. C. in France in 1917.

Most Accidents Occur on Dry Roads, Report Shows

Of the many surprising facts in the newest booklet on road safety is that the great majority of accidents occur not on busy or snowy roads but when road surface is dry and probably safe.

The booklet, entitled "Smash Hits of the Year," analyzes the circumstances surrounding the accidents in which killed 32,100 Americans and injured almost a million and a half others.

Out of five fatal accidents, it is shown, happened on dry roads. Where non-fatal accidents were concerned, the ratio was almost as great. About 15% of all accidents occurred when the road surface was wet and, surprisingly, only 5% when the roads were covered with ice or snow.

AMERICA

"To me America is definitely more than an aggregate of 120,000,000 people; to me America is all that the submerged races of the world wish to be and cannot; to me America is the concrete realization of what the ages have hoped for and labored for.

"It is a continent. It is a creed. It is a challenge. God built a continent of glory and filled it with treasures untold. He carpeted it with soft rolling prairies and pillared it with thundering mountains. He studded it with soft flowing fountains and traced it with long winding streams. He graced it with deep shadowed forests and filled them with song.

"Then he called unto a thousand peoples and summoned the bravest among them. They came from the ends of the earth, each bearing a gift and a hope. The glory of adventure was in their eyes and the glory of hope within their souls. And out of the labor of men and the hopes of the world, God fashioned a nation in love, blessed it with a purpose sublime and called it 'America!'—Anonymous.

GIVE FLOWERS NOW

I would rather have one pleasant word
In kindness said to me,
Than flattery when my heart is still
And life has ceased to be.

I would rather have a loving smile
From friends I know are true,
Than tears shed 'round my casket
When this world I've bid adieu.

So bring me all your flowers today—
Pink, yellow, white or red;
I'd rather have one blossom now
Than a truck load when I'm dead.

COLLECT BACK TAXES!

Dallas county officials are preparing to launch a drive to collect $100 in delinquent ad valorem taxes before next January 1st.

For the last 20 years, in these delinquencies total $129,811, divided as follows: State, $7,599; counties, $31,613,466; municipalities, $32,209,968; school districts, $23,235,311; all other districts, $9,117.

Debtors who meet their governmental obligations promptly are penalized by such an accumulation of delinquent taxes. Those who fail to pay are getting a free ride on the backs of those who pay. That equitable taxation with a vengeance—The Texas Weekly.

There Are Two Ways to Get at Constipation

Yes, and only two ways—before and after it happens! Instead of enduring those dull, tired, headache days and then having to take an emergency cathartic—why not KEEP regular with Kellogg's All-Bran? You can, if your constipation is the kind millions have—due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. For All-Bran goes right to the cause of this trouble by supplying the "bulk" you need. Eat this toasted, nutritious cereal regularly—with milk or cream, or baked into muffins—drink plenty of water, and see if your life isn't a whole lot brighter! Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

NO NEIGHBORHOOD FIGHT

Voters of the 18th Congressional district are not interested in a mere neighborhood scrap as between Deskings Wells and Eugene Worley. When the voters go to the polls they wish to select a Congressman, rather than a local idol.

From news stories coming out of the Worley camp in Shamrock, it is proposed to base the election on the popularity of the two candidates in their own communities, and the superiority of two good counties.

Both of the candidates are popular with their home people. Both of the towns and counties which they represent are splendid communities and have fine people living within their boundaries.

Both of the men are of the highest type, and are of the highest moral character. Neither has engaged in any questionable tactics during the campaign. They have talked straight to the voters.

Mr. Worley is a young lawyer, and has served with credit to his district in the legislature. Mr. Wells is a little older and is one of the outstanding newspaper men of the Southwest. Wells has achieved while Worley only shows promise of achievement. Maybe Worley might have accomplished as much as his own profession with the added years of experience as Wells has during his professional career, but that remains to be seen.

The voters are interested in the present ability of the two men to step into the shoes of Marvin Jones and continue his work.

Wells has worked with the farmers; been sympathetic with the farm program; has worked with the farm program both at College Station and in Washington. Worley lacks that experience, as he has been in the legislature since receiving his law degree.

Congress is composed largely of lawyers, and to be representative, this district should send a man of some other profession. Well balanced legislation cannot be expected unless the lawmaking body is composed of men and women from the representative vocations of the nation. The criticism of some of the defeated candidates for this office against a newspaper man being elected to congress was silenced when President Roosevelt chose a distinguished newspaper man, Frank Knox, as a member of his cabinet; and likewise chose another distinguished newspaper man, Henry Wallace, as his running mate in the coming election. The newspapers are not trying to get a monopoly on the lawmaking bodies of the nation, but when a distinguished man of the profession offers for public office, we see no reason why he should not be elected over a lawyer.—Canyon News.

ARSON CURE

There are 9,000,000 acres of Federal forest land in the South, where half the nation's costly fires occur. After Federal foresters had repeatedly reported that the fires were deliberately set by hill-billies living in the reserves, the government sent Dr. John P. Shea, University of Kansas psychologist, to probe this arsonous bent. Last week Dr. Shea made his report and recommendation. Though the hill-billies gave all sorts of reasons for setting the fires, Dr. Shea said, their real reason was that they got bored with just "sittin', spittin' and whittlin'." Dr. Shea's recommendation: establish community centers where the mountaineers can enjoy fiddling, dancing and other sports, to take their minds off setting fires. They can fiddle while the forests don't burn.—Pathfinder.

CHAPTER XVIII—Continued

"You've never seen Wild tight, have you? He's a scream! Kept us laughing. He put Mrs. Wall's gold-stiches in the champagne. You should have seen them. They got cocked!"

Terry was not trying to be cruel. Never occurred to him that Lynn was taking Wild seriously. She felt she could not face Rene at now and she went straight to her new apartment. Terry wrote down the number.

"Have you a telephone? Well, I'll get you at the shop," he waved and by. "See you soon."

The room darkened. It must have been nine when she got up and fixed her face, and put on a white dress. She'd go to Rene now. She laughed at herself. She knew why she was going. To see Wild might be waiting.

From the street she could see Rene's apartment was dark. He often sat with the lights out, so she went on up. Rene, however, was there. She found a note for her. "I've gone to eat with Marty."

She waited a while, idling about the room, picking up this sketch and that. She could stand it no longer. She scribbled a few words on the end of Rene's note and left. If only Wild were waiting for her as usual. She was crying now, for she knew that Wild would not come. What had happened? Terry? His mother?

Warily she made up the cot for the night, and undressed. It was hours later when the door opened. She jumped up, and rubbed her toe on the strange hair, felt for the buzzer. Rene? He must be ill. She hunted for her dressing gown and threw it on over her thin nightdress. Her eyes were heavy with sleep as she waited at the door. She could hear somebody stumbling up the stairs at the next floor. She was sure something had happened to Rene! She waited until the footsteps reached her door. Then she opened it. It was Wild.

He came to her and took her in his arms, buried his face in her ruffled, blonde hair. "My God, Lynn! I couldn't stay away. I tried, but I couldn't!" He could not let her go, his lips on hers.

"Wild! Lynn's voice was pleading. She realized he had been drinking. She struggled to get away from him. "Don't, Lynn! I love you so!" There were tears in his eyes as he spoke.

"You've got to let me go," Lynn's voice was desperate. "I'll never let you go, not after these two days." Finally she broke away from him.

"You've got to leave here, Wild. Right now!" Lynn was in a panic. Mrs. Roth warned her against men visitors late at night.

He laughed softly: "I thought I could give you up if I wanted to. Well, I'm putting my cards on the table. I can't."

He sat down suddenly, as though his knees were weak. "And I thought I was so smart! I who hate women!"

As she worked, dawn began to break. She worked with a white set face until everything was neatly packed, the pictures she had hung with such pleasure, the little vases, even the disturbing papers from the table.

She made some coffee and managed to drink it. Then she bathed and dressed slowly watching the slow-moving hands of the clock. By seven, she could stand the place no longer. Ready for work, she walked down the stairs, praying she'd meet none of her neighbors on the way.

She made her escape and almost ran into the street. She'd have to begin the job of apartment hunting all over again. There parked at the curb was Wild's car. He was at the wheel. When he saw her he got out and walked over to her.

Somewhere he'd found a barber shop. He was shaved, and sober. Only the fine moisture on his forehead showed his two days of drinking.

"Lynn."

"She did not answer him. "Don't make a scene here. I'll pick you up and put you in the car if you do. I swear it!" And Lynn knew he meant it. She opened the door and got in.

Wild drove away in silence for a few blocks, then parked the car and turned to her. "I'm asking you to forgive me, Lynn." He tried to look into her haggard eyes. "I was drunk. That's the only explanation I can offer! I'm a fool. If you only knew what I've been through these last two days!" He put his hand over hers and would not let her take hers away.

"You've got to listen. You'd allow a murderer that! I—" he stumbled on. He could not tell Lynn there had been a difficult scene with his mother. She had tried to be kind, had tried to make him see how impossible his infatuation for Lynn was. She'd kept her temper and had been logical and straightforward.

"You don't understand how I love you, Lynn. I mean it!" She looked so ill and tired. He reviled himself bitterly.

"It was pretty awful, wasn't it? That old fool! But I must have been mad. I ran into Terry and he said he'd seen you and that you'd moved. I had no idea of time. I just came, that's all!"

An officer came along and told Wild not to park his car there. The morning rush traffic was beginning. "You didn't sleep did you? Or eat any breakfast?"

"I'm all packed, ready to move." These simple words pushed Wild back into the slough of despond. "I'm no good! I deserve to be shot! What can I do, Lynn, to make you forgive me?"

Tears were rolling down the girl's cheeks, and he tried to wipe them away with his pocket handkerchief as they halted in traffic. Finally he saw a place to park and pulled his car over to the curb.

When he dropped her off at the shop, he said: "I'll be waiting for you tonight." And he dashed off to complete his plans for the day.

How different this day was than the one previous! Lynn chided herself and sometimes when she thought of Wild's absurd proposal in the little automat, her heart got cold. She must tell him all about Rene. Tonight she'd tell him. The longer she waited the worse it would be.

That night Lynn flew into her street clothes. And then she went out to meet Wild.

"I must drop in and see Rene for a moment and then go apartment hunting. Maybe I can stay in a hotel tonight. I'm all ready to move."

"I'll wait," Wild retorted crisply. "It's all my fault you're moving. The least I can do is to help you find another place."

When Lynn got to Rene's studio she found him and Marty deep in a conference. "Where on earth have you been?" Rene demanded in annoyance. "Apartment hunting."

"I thought you'd found something."

"It didn't pan out, Rene. I'm sorry. Why this solemn conclave?" "Rene's going to do the illustrations for Bryant Montgomery's new novel," he announced. "That means we've got to work like wildcats, Lynn. I've been reading the thing and we're mapping out plans now."

Marty insisted that Lynn sit down and talk to them. "It means you've got to leave Mme. Reanoud's, Lynn. Rene needs you. He'll pay you $50 a week."

"But, poor Mme. Reanoud. I hate to leave her now when she needs all of us."

"I'm going up there tomorrow to see if I can fix things with her. Maybe she'll let you work afternoons and give the mornings to Rene."

Lynn had a bad time trying to get away, but she escaped at last to an impatient Wild. When she came back he said: "I thought you'd stood me up! Now—"

"I want to get my stuff." "Just a minute. I had our rental agent get a list of apartments down here today, at the price of your other one. Let's try this address. On Minetta Street."

Glad of the suggestion, Lynn complied, and they stopped before a tall, old building. "These look too expensive."

GOD'S CARE OF HIS PEOPLE

LESSON TEXT—Psalm 23. GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.—Psalm 23:1.

Confidence, contentment, assurance, safety, security—all words expressing the deep desires of the human heart—fittingly characterize the blessed and beautiful Shepherd Psalm which is our lesson next Sunday.

Here the soul meets God in personal, intimate fellowship—in the promise of provision for every need, deliverance from every danger, the assurance of both present and ultimate blessing. It has become the best known of all psalms and perhaps the favorite scripture of most Christians.

Familiarity may cause us to miss the blessing of such a scripture passage. To help us to make a fresh approach to this Twenty-third Psalm, let us follow the suggestion of Dr. W. E. Barnes and think of it as describing the journey of life. We find that we may go forth

I. In the Care of a Sure Guide (vv. 1, 2). Nothing is more important in traversing an unfamiliar land than to have a competent guide. The journey of life is a pilgrimage through a land unknown to us, with its many pleasant places, but also its howling wildernesses, its pitfalls and its enemies in ambush.

"The Lord is my shepherd." If I am in His flock He will guide me, care for me and give me the joy of green pastures and still waters. The expression "maketh me to lie down" (v. 2) is worthy of special comment—that all too often we become too busy or too important to take the rest we should have, and the Good Shepherd has to "bend the knee" of the sheep and make him lie down, sometimes even by the force of sickness, or of trying circumstance. Why do we make it necessary for our Shepherd to thus deal with us?

II. With Every Need Provided (vv. 3-5). We are a needy people, constantly dependent on the loving provision of our God. Dr. J. H. Jewett says that man has three enemies: (1) The sin of yesterday, from which he cannot get away; (2) the temptation of today, made more powerful by the pressure of the clever and insidious seducer, Satan; and (3) the fear of death which awaits him tomorrow. Good Shepherd, wilt Thou meet these mine enemies for me? "Yes," comes His answer through the psalmist.

For the sin of yesterday there is the restoring of the soul. Everywhere the power of God is evident, restoring that which has been destroyed or broken down, healing the wound; but nowhere is it more evident or blessed than in His restorative ministries to the soul. He cleanses from sin, gives peace through His Word, joy through a hymn or a bit of poetry, comfort in the fellowship of a friend.

For today—"He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake." The world offers many by-paths, and makes them seem to be the right way, but my heavenly Guide will lead me in the way of righteousness. This He does, not because of any merit in me, but for His own dear name's sake—for "the praise of the glory of his grace" (Eph. 1:6). That cares for the need of today.

But tomorrow, or on some tomorrow, I must go the way of all flesh and (unless Jesus comes) I must "walk through the valley of the shadow of death." Even there I need "fear no evil." The Good Shepherd is as much with me in the dark and swelling waters of that valley as He was with me "beside the still waters." Little wonder that this psalm has been the comfort of tens of thousands of believers in Christ as they have passed through that valley. Why will anyone do without this Christ, who is the Good Shepherd (John 10:11)?

Every need finds its full satisfaction: enemies are discomfited, the oil of gladness anoints our heads, and our cups run over as we go on III. To a Destination Certain and Blessed (v. 6). Not all who set out upon a journey reach their goal, but the Lord has never lost one of those entrusted to His care (John 17:12). Goodness and mercy through all the days of our lives would lead only to ultimate disappointment if they did not bring us to the Father's house.

In that house there are "many mansions" or abiding places (John 14:2) prepared for us by our Lord. We know we shall come to that blessed journey's end with safety, because He will bring us there, to go in and out no more forever. To study such a lesson is to create the desire in one's heart that all men should know about this Good Shepherd, to be brought into His flock. Reader, do you know Christ as your Saviour and the Shepherd of your soul? If not, will you not come to Him now by faith?

WASTE NOT

McAndrew had been buying a few things at the local drug store. As he was collecting his change he knocked over a bottle of iodine and smashed it. Most of the liquid was spilt on his clothes. Noticing this, McAndrew made a dash for the door.

"You needn't be afraid," the drug-gist shouted after him. "I won't make a charge for it."

But McAndrew never slackened his pace. "It isn't that," he bawled over his shoulder, "I'm just going home to cut my finger."

SAVING THE DAY

A man noticed a woman whom he disliked coming up his front steps. Taking refuge in his study, he left his wife to entertain the caller. Half an hour later he emerged from his retreat, listened carefully on the landing and, hearing nothing below, called down to his wife: "Has that horrible old bore gone?"

The objectionable woman was still in the drawing-room, but his wife was equal to the occasion. "Yes, dear," she called back, "she went long ago. Mrs. Parker is here now."

"Is he honest?" "I think he must be. I haven't heard him bragging about it."

"How's the lawn going this year?" asked the suburban gardener. His neighbor smiled. "I found a four-leaf clover in it this morning," he replied.

"Ho, ho!" exclaimed the other gardener. "I suppose you think that's lucky?" "I certainly do," said the neighbor. "I'm lucky to find anything in that lawn except dandelions and daisies."

For All She Knew The rather pompous man who had given the waitress a lot of unnecessary trouble during the meal finally finished and beckoned her to his table. "How much do I owe?" he snapped. The girl shrugged her shoulders. "That's rather difficult to tell," she replied coldly, "but your bill here is fifty-five cents."

Conscience A small boy had been reported to his father for stealing apples from the stall outside a fruit stand, and the parent was pointing out the evils of theft. "My boy," he said, "you must have known it is dishonest to steal. And, in any case, didn't your conscience tell you the man was watching?"

Showing a New Use For Candle Wicking

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

WHEN we last heard of Marty and Bill the curved bottom shelf of that old buffet had not been used. Well, Bill made it into a cornice board for the bathroom window, and painted it blue. Then Marty went into action on curtains to match.

Grandmother is an expert at doing old-fashioned candle wicking, so together they made the tufted curtains illustrated. They used plain white muslin marked off diagonally in three-inch squares. They found the blue they wanted for the tufting in a soft string type of cotton yarn. The sketch tells you the rest. The dipping is what really turned the clipped stitches into tufts; then the curtains were stretched into shape to dry but were not ironed. All this about curtains has given Gram the most wonderful idea for something for a bride's kitchen shower that is coming off soon. It is pretty clever, we think. Watch for it, next week.

NOTE: Many other old-time stitches have modern uses. Sewing Book 2 contains directions for 42 of these stitches with suggestions for their use in your home. To get a copy send order to:

Light That Failed "You never say nice things to me now—you used to call me your heart's delight." "Yes—de light that failed."

THERE IS NO DEATH

"There is no death; those gone before
Have just stepped through an open door,
Just passed into a land unseen
Still near, with just a wall between.
The door may close, the wall conceal,
But nothing's lost that's truly real.
They still are ours, those loved ones all—
They wait for us beyond the wall."

I gave a beggar, from my little store of wealth, some gold.
He spent the shining ore, and came again, and yet again,
Still cold and hungry as before.
I gave a thought, and through that thought of mine,
He found himself, the man supreme,
divine.
Fed, clothed and crowned with blessings manifold;
And now he begs no more.
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

On the basis of a study made of 750 boys and girls in two junior high schools, Dr. John P. Anderson of Columbia University Teachers College,
New York City, is convinced that the classroom bully is the result of parental nagging and disinterest. If parents are rough and tough with their children, he finds, the children are likely to show similar characteristics.

waitin' for him regular."

Although most people disregard the hazards of electric storms, some either killed or injured by lightning each year. Of those killed, the annual average is about nine men to each woman.

Is This the Kind of Cooperation
Gov. O'Daniel wanted

The last session of the legislature ADJOURNED June 21, 1939.
While the legislature was working on revenue bills to pay OLD AGE PENSIONS, TEACHERS' RETIREMENT, AID TO THE BLIND, and other social security obligations, MAX BOYER's record is as shown below:

1. MAX BOYER voted on May 10, 1939 (immediately following his vote for S. J. R. 12) to ADJOURN the legislature. HE WAS THE
ONLY ONE OF THE ENTIRE DELEGATION OF FIVE PANHANDLE REPRESENTATIVES VOTING FOR ADJOURNMENT. See pages 3203-4, House Journal.

2. MAX BOYER, on May 19, 1939, WROTE AND INTRODUCED a resolution himself, being House Concurrent Resolution No. 19, to ADJOURN the legislature without providing for the funds which Governor O'Daniel had requested. Again MAX BOYER was the ONLY ONE of the entire delegation of five Panhandle representatives voting for ADJOURNMENT. See House Journal Pages 3458-9.

3. On June 1, 1939, another motion to ADJOURN the legislature was made, and those who wanted to work out the Social Security and Old Age Pension Problem voted to table the motion and ADJOURN. But MAX BOYER voted against tabling the motion and by his vote again tried to ADJOURN the legislature at that time. See House Journal, Pages 3802-3.

4. On June 5, 1939, MAX BOYER WROTE AND INTRODUCED a resolution to ADJOURN the legislature. His motion failed, but he voted in favor of ADJOURNMENT. See pages 3811-2, House Journal.

Governor O'Daniel wrote everyone of the 94 representatives who at ANY TIME voted for S. J. R. 12, including MAX BOYER, a letter of thanks for their vote on ONE DAY (May 10) and stated: "If we CONTINUE to do all we can," etc. But, disregarding the governor's plea for continued work, MAX BOYER followed his vote in favor of S. J. R. 12 on May 10 with a vote to ADJOURN (H. J. 3203) the legislature, although the remaining of the five Panhandle representatives voted against him. The legislature did not adjourn until 42 days after Mr. Boyer's FIRST VOTE TO ADJOURN. During those 42 days, the remaining Panhandle delegation CONTINUED their work to pay social security obligations.

Could the legislature CONTINUE its efforts if adjourned?
Could the legislature pay pensions if adjourned? Can you pay your crops after you quit? Was YOUR local representative always wrong?

WAS THIS THE KIND OF COOPERATION GOVERNOR O'DANIEL ASKED?

Was Mr. Boyer working in HARMONY with our other Panhandle representatives who voted against him?

WHAT IS THE TROUBLE?

The contributors of this advertisement cordially invite you to inspect the above record as shown by the Official House Journal.

O'Daniel).
