CURIOS, BRIC-A-BRAC WANTED FOR JULY 4TH

By D. A. Davis, Chairman Novelty Committee

On July 4th we are going to have a big celebration. It's going to be patriotic and historical. I've got something to do with the dispensing of patriotism in our modern way. I'm old-timey and ancient history and methods are my dish, and I want all you old timers to help me get up an exhibit of relics and curios.

I know lots of you 'all have a lot of old-timey things hid away in your attic, and the older the better. So I'm calling on all you old timers to help me out in this display. We will search them thoroughly and insure you they will be returned to you in perfect condition. I know that lots of these curios are priceless and that you would not part with them for love or money, and I want to assure you that they will receive the best of care.

I want a lot of old branding irons, saddles, pictures, camp utensils, old coats, hats, chaps, spurs, and bridles; in fact anything you ranchers have that will make up a dandy booth of our old ranch life and customs.

And I want a booth of old pioneer household equipment such as old dishes, furniture, pictures, clocks, watches, jewelry, old books and Bibles, in fact anything that you used in the good old pioneer days up here on the plains. These articles will be displayed in a special booth, also.

And I want you grandmothers to get out all your old lace, dresses, gowns, poke bonnets, quilts, bustles and hoops, hats and shoes, and if possible a side saddle, to make up a special booth of the things that were so near and dear to our pioneer womenfolk.

And I'd like to have a booth of old fighting equipment such as old guns, pistols, derricks, swords, and the like, for another booth.

And I want you boys scouts to help me collect up all the Indian arrow heads and the like for a boy scout booth.

I'm going to give a prize of five dollars for the best booth, either to the boy scouts or the girl scouts, and I'm going to ask the boy scouts and the girl scouts to help me collect and display these curios. We will have two divisions: the ranch booth the Indian booth and the old fighting equipment booth will be sponsored by the boy scouts; and the household equipment booth and the wearing apparel booth will be sponsored by the girl scouts.

I want this to be a huge success, folks, and sure will appreciate it greatly if you all will do everything you can to help me out.

I would like to get up a good collection by the tenth of June to display at Pampa June 14th and 15th at their Top o' Texas Fiesta, and if we win a prize it will be equally divided between the boy scouts and the girl scouts.

So everybody get busy and help me out by bringing your things to the City Secretary's office, where a receipt will be issued for your curios and the best of care taken of them. Let's make this one of the most interesting features of our celebration.

4TH OF JULY CELEBRATION

By Geo. A. Hervey

Chairman Jolopy Committee

There is going to be a big frontier celebration the 4th of July at McLean—the biggest celebration of its kind ever put on at McLean, sponsored by the chamber of commerce. There will be an all day entertainment, consisting of some of the wildest cows, buckin'-est broncs, a frontier parade which will be five miles long, cowboys, cowgirls, floats, bands from 20 towns in competition to see which can make the most noise. There will be a new attraction this year, which is the bucking twins which have never been ridden—barring none. Riders from Pendleton and Cheyenne have all been piled in the dust, say the committee on the celebration.

Now you bronc peelers, sharpen up your spurs and get a good supply of glue on your pants, for you will need that and some more to ride the bucking twins—in fact, they are so much alike that if you get bucked off of one you might get on the other one and not know the difference.

And folks, there will be a five mile jolopy race, over the roughest track that was ever laid out. Now you all know what a jolopy is? Well, I'll tell you. A jolopy is an old car that has been laid among the sweet peas for a number of years, or is old and feeble, with its frame all falling to pieces, but still has a strong heart; and wants to show its big brothers by going places and doing things and showing the world that it can still kick up its heels and do things. The race will be 10 laps on a half mile track in second gear.

We have arranged with the highway department so that all entrants don't have to have license plates. You don't have to have tires unless you want them. No car is to be valued over $25.00—in fact, any entrant must be willing to take $25.00 for his car if a buyer is available. Each entrant must have the name of the town competing painted on the side of the car. So, if any of you think you have a jolopy that can run, come on and show us. We're from Missouri; the McLean Jolopy Club says we can't be beat. What do you think?

"I want to have some kind of window box for flowers, improve the chairs to have them more comfortable, add more attractive drapes which will allow more light to come in for cheerfulness, and refinish the floors so that they will be more easily cleaned, and also I want a better lighting system for reading," said Mrs. Roth, as she planned with the home demonstration agent, Mrs. Julia E. Kelley, a more adequate social center for the members of the family.

EXPANSION OF HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUBS

For several years home demonstration work was carried on in McLean, the club serving some fifty families, but in February of 1938 the club disbanded, with only six members ready to try to carry on the year's work.

Through desire for this class of club work, one of the members, Mrs. Luther Petty, together with the county agent, Mrs. Julia E. Kelley after three attempts to interest enough women east of McLean, set the first day of April to either organize or abandon the idea.

On this date, in the home of Miss Hettie Burr, the Eastside Club was formed, with six members. The club now has fifteen members, with five having dropped out.

Mrs. Jack Foley served as first president, followed by Mrs. H. M. Roth, the present executive.

While the Eastside Club is only a little over a year old, its members feel that much work has been accomplished under the leadership of Mrs. Kelley. Some twenty-five visitors have registered, several later becoming members. Good will has been created and the social life of the community and its homes has been strengthened.

BEAUTIFYING COUNTRY HOMES

By Vera R. Martin

Country homes need a style of landscape treatment different from that suitable for town houses, because the atmosphere is different. In the country, much space and a number of outbuildings and constructions besides the house have to be considered. Many native plants may already be growing about the grounds so an informal planting which is in keeping with the inviting, free atmosphere of country life is best.

A rise in the ground that slopes away in all directions, having trees grouped near the back of it, makes an ideal location for a farm home. The dust and noise of traffic will not be constant annoyances if the house is set back from the road. The arrangement and planting of the whole farmstead should take account of the fact that the house is the center of interest. No building or planting should eclipse its importance in the landscape picture. For that reason barns and outbuildings should be grouped according to use in an area back of the house. They should help form for the place the sort of background that indicates intelligent farm activities.

The farm housewife's complaint that all her company comes in thru the back door may be overcome by some rearrangement of the approach. A turning area and shade for parking near the front may be needed; or if there is a fence, placing the yard gate at the spot where cars must park and providing a wide and inviting walk to the front door might help. Perhaps the front steps could be changed to the side of the porch to make a front entrance more convenient. If the back door is very prominent or is near the entrance at the side, a planting may be arranged that will rather obscure it.

Walks, drives, fences, walls, and other structures related to landscape gardening are meant for use, and should be left off unless they are needed.

A lawn is nature's carpet, good sod keeps the soil from washing away; it keeps down dust and glare, and mud and weeds. It reduces the summer temperature about the house through evaporation and lessened reflection. It requires less work to keep neat when once it is well established than any other form of yard arrangement.

EASTSIDE CLUB TO MEET FRIDAY

The regular meeting of the Eastside Home Demonstration Club which was postponed from last week, will be held Friday, May 26, in the home of Mrs. Luther Petty.

All women who desire are invited to come and bring their children. An unusual program on Everyday Manners, Child Health, and the club organization's birthday, will be given by various members.

In addition, a social time of games and songs will be held. At the last meeting, the value of tomatoes in the family diet was stressed. A survey showed 12 varieties of tomatoes being planted by club members this year.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Tax Revision Brought to Fore By Administration Objection Over Huge Farm Appropriation

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

CONGRESS:

Spend, Tax, Save

Excess spending was the complaint of U. S. Chamber of Commerce members at their annual convention. This has also been congress' complaint against President Roosevelt. A few days after the Chamber adjourned, Secretary of Commerce Harry Hopkins returned from a Potomac cruise with the President to radiate optimism, pooh-poo the Chamber's complaints and pump for another year's spending as "essential."

Almost as he spoke the senate passed a record agriculture appropriations bill which totaled $1,218,000,000 (compared with the President's budget estimate of $842,126,051). Restored were $225,000,000 in parity payments to growers of wheat, cotton, corn, tobacco and rice, earlier shelved by the house. Added was a $113,000,000 item for disposal of surplus commodities, and an extra $25,000,000 to the original $24,984,000 estimate for a farm tenancy program.

If the senate thought Mr. Hopkins' spending plea meant a green light from the White House, it soon learned otherwise. At his press conference the President rebuked congress for breaking its promise to levy new taxes to meet out-of-pocket costs. Recalled was last session's $212,000,000 farm parity appropriation for which no revenues were provided. Chimed in Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau: "The bill . . . disturbs me greatly. I think that if they are going to add . . . to the present deficit, it should be up to congress to meet the increase . . . It's about time we began tapering off."

Probable upshot is that the farm appropriations squabble will force consideration this session of two issues treated superficially thus far, namely, economy and tax revision. Said Georgia's Sen. Richard B. Russell, floor leader for the farm bill: "I am strongly opposed to singling out the farm program as the only one which must be reduced, or for which we must levy new taxes. . . I am willing to economize, but not solely at the expense of the farmer."

Since the President opposes new levies on small taxpayers, tax revision (probably the price congress with Polish Foreign Minister Josef Beck. Upshot was a lessening of Polish suspicion. Next day the Soviet proposed a four-power (Russia, France, Poland and Britain) mutual assistance pact to safeguard European peace. Reason: Hitler's denunciation of pacts with Poland and Britain have made a new "peace front" imperative.

Vatican. Pope Pius XII, himself a one-time ace diplomat, had his papal nuncios to Britain, Poland, France, Italy and Germany invite those nations to a conference over the Polish-German question. Though shunned because (1) anti-Axis nations feared it would mean a new Munich appeasement conference, and (2) anti-God Russia was not invited to participate in a discussion which vitally concerns her, the proposal nevertheless brought one possible ray of hope: Hitler and Mussolini rejected it because they believed the European situation not sufficiently serious to endanger peace. The Vatican thought this might mean Hitler does not intend to precipitate trouble right now.

VLADIMIR POTEKIN
Poland grew less suspicious.

Scandinavia. Foreign ministers of Denmark, Norway, Finland and Sweden apparently rejected proffered non-aggression treaties with Germany. Such pacts are still possible, but by their reluctance Scandinavian states remain a bulwark of neutrality which obviously wants no truck with Der Fuehrer.

Japan. Often reiterated the past month has been Japan's reluctance to turn its anti-Communist pact with Germany and Italy into a military alliance. Reason: Japan wants no war with democracies, which would inevitably result if a new Russo-British-French-Polish entente were to fight Hitler.

PEOPLE:

Charlie Agair

One summer day in 1874 curly-headed four-year-old Charles Ross and his brother were taken for a ride by two men who promised them Fourth of July fireworks. Charlie's brother was found a few days later but Charlie himself was never found despite 23 ransom letters demanding $20,000 for his release. The best clue was lost when two burglars were shot five months later on Long Island. One, Joseph Douglas, gasper before he died that his dead partner had helped him steal Charlie Ross.

Since then hundreds of abandoned children have been identified as Charlie Ross, but this spring a new candidate arose in Gustav Blair, 65-year-old carpenter at Phoenix, Ariz. Blair claimed his traits and appearance resembled Charlie Ross. Lincoln C. Miller, whose family reared Blair, testified his (Miller's) father had told him Blair was a kidnapped child, that he had guarded the four-year-old child in a cave.

After deliberating eight minutes, a Superior court jury at Phoenix decided on the basis of this testimony that Charlie Ross had been "found." At 65, the horny handed carpenter looked to radio and film contracts.

FORECAST

—By Democratic Statistician Emil Hurja, that on basis of current standing Vice President Garner and New York's Tom Dewey will win Democratic and Republican presidential nominations next year, provided President Roosevelt seeks no third term. Meanwhile, a Gallup poll gave Dewey 54 per cent of all Republican votes.

—By Washington gossip, appointment of Francis B. Sayre, assistant secretary of state, as Philippine high commissioner to succeed Paul V. McNutt, Democratic presidential aspirant.

—Also by Washington gossip, mid-summer resignation of Richard C. Patterson, assistant secretary of commerce, to enter either utility field or motion picture industry.

POLITICS: GOP Liberalism

Though U. S. political power swings pendulum-like from conservatism to liberalism and back again, there is a long-run trend to liberalism. New Deal liberalism will probably be followed by Republican conservatism, but no alert Republican believes his party can win by junking all New Deal reforms and going back to the theories of Coolidge and Hoover days.

A good sample of progressive G. O. P. thinking is that of Minnesota's youthful Gov. Harold Stassen who, according to Dr. Glenn Frank of the party's program committee, believes something like this: Republicans should accept much of the New Deal's social legislation, first auditing the New Deal's results and soliciting constructive statements regarding G. O. P. philosophy on political and economic problems. Though believing farmers "are ready to repudiate the New Deal," Mr. Stassen warns that the party cannot favor any individual clique like farm, business or labor groups.

Stassen on the 1940 convention: "It is very important that delegates represent genuinely and honestly the sentiment of their states. They should not just be a delegation picked by political bosses. Among them should be some youngsters, some real farmers, real workers."

WHITE HOUSE:

Plan No. 2

Legalized by the newly passed governmental reorganization bill, President Roosevelt's No. 1 federal shakeup (effective June 24) created new agencies for public works, lending and welfare. Plan No. 2 followed quickly, a roundup of long-misplaced bureaus whose abolition or consolidation the President believes will save $1,250,000 yearly.

Its most significant feature: Abolition of the unique national emergency council and transfer of its major functions to the President. An immense elaboration of ex-President Hoover's famed "secretariat," NEC has been and will remain a sensitive, nationally organized ear-to-the-ground device whereby the Chief Executive can keep his finger on the public pulse. Its 38 state administrators will probably be retained. Its director, Lowell Mellett, will probably be named one of six presidential assistants with a "passion for anonymity."

Other changes (with former affiliations parenthesized):

To COMMERCE: Inland waterways commission (War); to AGRICULTURE: Rural electrification administration (independent); to JUSTICE: Federal Prison Industries, Inc. and national training school for boys (independent); to NATIONAL ARCHIVES: Codification board (independent, to be abolished).

To INTERIOR: Coal commission (independent, to be abolished); bureau of insular affairs (War); bureau of fisheries (Commerce); biological survey (Agriculture), and Mt. Rushmore memorial commission (independent, to be placed in Interior's park service).

To STATE: Foreign commerce service (Commerce); foreign agricultural service (Agriculture), and foreign service buildings commission (independent).

To TREASURY: Bureau of lighthouses (Commerce, to be placed under Treasury's coast guard); director general of railroads and War Finance corporation (independent, both to be dissolved).

Expected soon is Plan No. 3, probably shifting jurisdiction over deportable aliens from labor to justice departments, and ironing out jurisdictional overlapping concerning public lands.

ASIA:

Up the River

Twenty-two months ago China's capital was Nanking. Japanese aggression pushed it westward up the Yangtze to Hankow, next backward into Szechwan province and the ancient walled city of Chungking. Playing a retreating game, Gen. Chiang Kai-shek knows that the deeper he can draw Japan into his bailiwick, the easier will China's resistance be.

CHINA AND HER CAPITALS
Japan is prepared to follow.

But Generalissimo Chiang did not expect what happened next. Into Chungking (normally 635,000 population) swarmed 1,500,000 refugees, in itself a grave problem. Then one day 45 Japanese war planes swarmed over Chungking, dropping incendiary bombs and demolitioners, more than 100 in all. When the smoke cleared China could count 5,000 casualties, a ruined capital and temporarily blasted morale. Germany and Britain found their embassies destroyed. For all concerned it seemed best to move the capital-nest again, this time 150 miles northeast into Chengtu, whose normal half million population will automatically double overnight.

Peace-loving Chengtu might well regard this official invasion as a death sentence. General Chiang probably hopes an off-the-river capital may break his bad luck jinx, but Tokyo thinks otherwise. Despite British protests that Chungking's bombing was purely terroristic and without a definite military objective, Nippon's warriors announced their death planes were prepared to follow China's capital wherever it may roam.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK. — Radio, automobiles, airplanes, moving pictures and virtually all the other technical ten-strikes of the modern world came in between the first and second Chicago world's fairs. About all that is brand new at the New York World's fair is television, which took its bow with a telecast at the inaugural ceremonies.

Unlike Britain's garret inventor, John Logie Baird, Allen B. Du Mont, putting his by-line on the new television set, came along through the "channels" in which promising young technicians are grooved these days. Out of Rensselaer Polytechnic institute in 1923, he was employed as a tube engineer with the Westinghouse company in Bloomfield, N. J., until 1937, when he became chief engineer of the De Forest Radio company.

But, when he caught the television germ, he did just what Baird did, the only difference being that he holed up in a cellar instead of an attic. It was in 1931 that he quit a good job to play a hunch. The hunch was that the cathode ray was the joker in the flickering television deck. So he dived into his basement, built his laboratory and stayed underground until he was ready to come up with a cathode-ray tube which is pretty nearly the works in television.

In 1937, Mr. Du Mont rounded up some capital and built a sizable two-story laboratory at Montclair, N. J., employing 42 men. By 1938, Paramount pictures had declared itself in a big way, and, at last accounts, Mr. Du Mont's enterprise was virtually a subsidiary of this corporation. That is interesting in view of the fact that, in England, they already are televising events for the moving picture screen. It is indicated that the Du Mont boys may be subject to the same development.

COL. EDWARD STARLING, who confers with Albert Canning, chief constable of Scotland Yard, about guarding the British king and queen on their visit here, is an American of the "Deadwood Dick" tradition which the British like to think is typical of this country—a long, lean, reserved, tight-lipped Kentuckian, with a sombrero, the guardian of five Presidents, camera-eyed and a crack pistol shot. He will be there when their majesties go to the White House, but he will not be conspicuous. He merges with the scenery like a chameleon.

He saved Clemenceau's life during the Paris peace conference. Guarding Woodrow Wilson, he rode in an automobile immediately behind the "Tiger's" car. He saw an assassin level a gun. Shooting from the hip in a lightning draw, he cracked the killer's wrist.

He is the one man the President has to obey, an advance man who interviews police, maitres d'hotel, transportation officials and chefs, even editing menus, and, on occasion, speeches, if they indicate too much of a tax on the President's receptive energies.

At 17, he was a deputy sheriff of Hopkinsville, Ky. As a special agent for the railroads, he touched off his first national headlines by trapping the "California Kid," a desperate murderer who had long eluded capture. President Theodore Roosevelt gave him special assignments which routed him into the White House secret service detail in 1913. In 1935, he became head of the detail, which congress had authorized after assassination of President McKinley.

He is six feet tall, gaunt and serious, graying now, the better to fade into the crowd.

JOHN R. STEELMAN, the government's special mediator in the Appalachian soft coal dispute, was once a "blanket stiff," riding the rods with the hoboos to get from Arkansas to the western wheat fields.

There, in the post-war boom days, he earned $9 a day and invested his savings in a Henderson college A. B., a Vanderbilt M. A. and a University of North Carolina Ph. D. Heading the government conciliation service, he smoothed out 4,231 labor disputes, involving 1,618,409 workers, in the 1938 fiscal year. He was an Arkansas farm boy, working the southern logging camps. He is tall and dark, and friendly and easy-going in manner.

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"Fog of Death"

HELLO EVERYBODY: Well, sir, the Vikings of old used to sail the seas in oared galleys that were hardly bigger than the motor cruisers in which we plough through our lakes and rivers today. I'll give them a lot of credit for their nerve. But they had oars to row with and sails to carry them along. They knew where they were going and they had a pretty good chance of getting there. I'm betting a lot that there wasn't a Viking in any age who would have put himself in the spot Pete Gear of Sunnyside, L. I., found himself in. Not for any amount of money.

It happened in September, 1927—and here's how. Pete got a job on a coal barge. And one of the first trips that barge was sent on after Pete joined the crew, was a tow out to sea with a load of coal for a ship that was to meet them a hundred and ninety-five miles out in the Atlantic.

The rendezvous at which they were to meet was south-east of Block island. A tug was to take the barge out. Five men composed the barge's crew. Four of those fellows—Pete included—had never been out to sea before. The fifth man was a regular seagoing bargeman.

Trip Was Like a Moonlight Excursion.

On the afternoon of the day appointed, the tug came along and the barge was hooked on behind it. Pete says the trip up Long Island sound was like a moonlight excursion. But after they passed Montauk Point, the sea was mighty rough. The four landlubbers immediately got seasick.

It was a hard night for those lads—but it was going to be a lot harder before they got back. The next day, when they arrived at the appointed spot, there was no sign of the boat they had come to meet. The tugboat captain told the bargeman to drop anchor and he would circle around and see if he could find the other boat. He cast off the tow line and the tug steamed away. Soon it was out of sight. There was nothing in sight, as a matter of fact, but water and more water. They were nearly two hundred miles from the nearest land. Then, half an hour later, a thick fog settled down over the anchored barge.

Says Pete: "We were lying in our bunks, too sick to move, when the regular bargeman came in and told us about the fog. He explained that we were anchored in the shipping lane, and that was a dangerous position. We would have to keep the fog bell ringing as long as the fog lasted. Otherwise we would most likely be run down by one of the liners which were continually passing through that part of the ocean."

And that was only the beginning. The troubles crowded thick and fast after that. It was night now, and the bargeman went aloft to hang

Pete went out and started ringing the fog bell. A riding light. He was hardly up there when he fell to the deck and lay still, his leg broken. "Then," says Pete, "the nightmare began."

Pete Hauls Injured Bargeman to His Bunk.

Pete picked him up and carried him to his bunk. The other three men were still lying in their bunks, the ghastly pallor of seasickness on their faces. When he had done what little he could for the injured man, Pete went out and started ringing the fog bell.

The night wore on, and the fog showed no sign of lifting. Pete yanked away rhythmically on that bell, tolling a monotonous dirge. His arm was getting tired. His hand was chafing from its constant contact with the bell rope. Every minute he expected to see the bow of an ocean liner looming over the barge. Every minute he expected to hear a thud and a crash of splintering timbers as some huge craft cut them in two.

Pete began to feel that he couldn't hold his arm up to pull on that bell rope any longer. He went into the cabin and tried to rouse one of the seasick men. Not one of them would get up. Pete was seasick himself, but these fellows felt a lot worse. In vain he told them of the dangers of leaving that bell unmanned. They didn't care whether the barge went down or not. In fact, one or two of them hoped it would.

Pete dragged himself back to the bell. He was sick—sleepy—aching. But he couldn't quit. His life depended on it. And so did the lives of those other four men in their bunks. Dawn came, and still he was jerking away on that rope. Still he fog hadn't lifted. All morning long—all afternoon—he stuck to his post. Both his hands were so raw now that he had to hook his elbow through the bell rope and pull it with his arm.

Night came—and still Pete was at it. His whole body was stiff now. He ached in every muscle and joint and bone. His arm was working mechanically now. He scarcely realized that he was pulling that cord.

Pete Rings Bell for 36 Hours Straight.

And for two nights and a day Peter rang that bell. Never will he forget the nightmare of that experience. On the morning of the third day he couldn't take it any longer. He didn't quit. He just fell asleep—right where he was—from sheer exhaustion.

When Pete awoke again the sun was just disappearing over the western horizon. But the fog had lifted. There was no sign of the tug. When the fog came down it had been unable to find the barge—and it still hadn't found it.

All that third night they waited. On the fourth day Pete sighted a plane. It circled around in the skies and then headed back toward land again. "When it turned around," says Pete, "I thought that pilot hadn't seen us." But the plane had spotted the barge. It had been sent out from New London for that very purpose. And on the fifth day the tug boat came out and reclaimed its lost tow.

It didn't take Pete long to get over the effects of his adventure. Now he looks back on it as quite an exciting experience. There's one thing, though, that makes Pete mad. He worked himself to exhaustion trying to keep some vessel from sending that barge to the bottom. "But in all that time," he says, "I didn't see a single one of those big liners that I was in such fear of."

Walks Should Be Aimless, Peripatetic Expert Says

A walk should never have an objective. If you have it firmly fixed in your mind, at the outset of your walk, that you are on your way to Cousin Ella's or that you are going to get a pound of raisins, the awareness of this objective will gnaw constantly at your subconscious, like a maggot in a walnut. It will tinge your sensibilities and irritate your psyche. Do not, therefore, have an objective. Just go for a walk. The taking of a walk must never be a premeditated ritual. It must not be an event that is planned in advance, like a bridge party or an application for a bank loan, but must be as spontaneous as a sudden smile. One of these days, while you are quietly sitting reading—or doing the housework or tidying the cellar or whatever—the notion will suddenly and unaccountably flit across your consciousness that it would be pleasant to take a walk. You must act upon this notion instantly. Do not attempt to think up reasons or pretexts or objectives for the walk. Just open the door and go out.

MUSIC ORGANIZATIONS ATTRACT ATTENTION

There are three music organizations in the high school that have attracted much attention the past year. They are the girls' quartet, the girls' glee club, and the A Cappella choir; all are under the direction of Miss Dale Smith.

Girls' Quartet

One of the most active groups of musical organizations in McLean high school is the girls' quartet, who have sung at numerous occasions. Miss Dale Smith is director.

They have sung at the following places: Lions' banquet, chamber of commerce banquet, Odd Fellows banquet, at the Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian Churches, and the general school programs.

Ruth Bond, Evonne Floyd, Frances Sitter and Juanita Hancock compose the group. With the exception of Juanita, a senior, all the girls will be back next year. The pianist for the group is Willie Louelle Cobb.

Glee Club

One of the all girl organizations that added much to the music department is the girls' glee club.

Officers of the club are: President, Juanita Hancock; vice president, Louelle Cobb; secretary, Miss Hodges; librarian, Ruth Bond.

SENIOR GIRLS' OCTETTE

DRUNK AGAIN

By O. L. D. Timer

Mirandy don't like it when I go and get drunk once again; She says the look upon my face When I'm drunk is a disgrace.

My mouth comes open more and more And it emits an awful roar, And then comes fourth a great big store.

Of words that make a woman sore, She flays me, with her tongue, of course.

And keeps it up 'till she is hoarse, She says that I must not partake Another drop just for her sake.

Then when I get another jug She starts to scold and then to nag, And keeps it up 'till I'm most dead— First I turn green and then see red.

She's so ashamed when'er I drink She cannot work or even think, She says I just ain't got no respect, That if I had I would of checked.

My drinking when that I was young, And wonders why I was not hung, But now that I am all unstrung And when I died I'll be unsung.

But when I wake and over roll, A sense of peace creeps over my soul, And when my friends express in tone That I should do like Deacon Jones,

And walk the straight and narrow way, Or ere the fiddler I must pay, And I shall be among the goats If I just keep on sowing oats.

But now I'm facing round about; My will was weak but now is stout, But now all liquor I will ban And work and work until I tan.

And if indeed you are my friend And will bear with me to the end, I'll be the best old man in town— The surest course that's safe and sound.

Miss Ruby Cook has returned to Chicago after a visit with her mother and sister.

1938-39 GLEE CLUB -- DIRECTED BY MISS DALE SMITH

Besides appearing on chapel and assembly programs, they have sung on general school programs Thanksgiving and Christmas weeks; the chamber of commerce banquets, the McLean churches and the Heald Methodist Church.

Fifty-four girls meet at activity period on Monday and Wednesday for practice. When making public appearances, they wear gold satin blouses and black skirts.

A Cappella Choir

Under the direction of Miss Dale Smith, music director, the A Cappella choir has sung at a number of civic meetings, entertainments and programs.

"An Old Fashioned Charm," an operetta, was the biggest project of the year. Approximately thirty students participated in the play.

They appeared at the Kellerville school, Lefors school, school assemblies, three churches and the Lions Club.

The A Cappella choir is composed of twenty-eight students; all are second year music students.

Work of Stonecutter

Most modern sculptors do not produce their own marble statues. They merely make small models in wax, clay or plaster and then turn them over to a stonecutter or carver for reproduction. Sometimes the sculptor adds a few finishing touches, but these are not necessary when the marble worker is an expert.—Collier's.

Now I eat sausage, bananas, pie, anything I want and never feel better."—Mrs. Mabel Schick. Two things happen when you are constipated. FIRST: Accumulated wastes swell up bowels and press on nerves in the digestive tract. SECOND: Partly digested food starts to decay forming GAS, bloating on your stomach, indigestion, and heartburn, bloating you up until you sometimes gasp for breath. That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its busy and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—in the risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood. You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pain, swelling, but constantly tired, nervous, all worn-out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to get rid of excess poisonous body waste. They are antiseptic to the urinary tract and tend to relieve irritation and the pain it causes. Many grateful people recommend Doan's. They have had more than forty years of public approval. It has been charged on the state senate floor that the so-called fair trades acts over the country were the brain children of Coster-Musica. The power of fixing Texas prices in the hands of Eastern manufacturers does not look like good business from this distance.

Jerry Sadler has struck the right note in threatening to throw oil production open until there will be no occasion for other states to ship oil into Texas. It does not make sense to keep local producers shut down while other states run wide open. If this condition keeps up, Federal control may be the only solution.

The pension racket has always been used as a political football and it is time that some kind of showdown was held. That there is need for pensions in many cases, no one will deny, but past history has shown a record of unfairness that has no place in modern times. There should be no difficulty in working out a plan that will take care of needy cases, and let others provide for themselves just as other worthy folks have to do. There is no need for blanket pensions for any reason whatever. Money taken from the taxpayers' pockets to pay pensions to people plenty able to take care of themselves has no place in a Democratic government.

RELIGIOUS REVIVALS

Why should a great economist like Roger Babson call for a wide-spread revival in religion as the only sure cure for our economic ills? Babson may be a great economist, as well as an economist. Or perhaps he is merely a close student of history and has observed the results of religion upon the lives of nations. The fact remains that no nation has ever long flourished the teachings of Christ and continued as a strong nation. Anti-religious Russia, Germany and Italy will fall sooner or later if the present trend of the rulers continue. History repeats itself where religious matters are concerned. A great religious people is a people of thrift and even wealth. Those in America who are now calling upon the leaders to throw American religious ideals to the wind and to turn the people loose with legalized gambling, legalized liquor and all sorts of anti-Christ devices are planning the downfall of this nation. Yes, President Roosevelt was going to have the nation drink itself back to prosperity but instead of prosperity the national debt has increased 50%. This is certainly a time when all sane people should keep their thinking straight.—Canyon News.

CHAIN TAXES

Maine's Senate last week, for the second time in the fortnight, killed a proposed chain store tax sent on to it with the approval of the House. Thus, as of last week, the record of state chain taxes in the current legislative sessions stood: Four states (Georgia, Florida, Indiana, West Virginia) had refused to change their present laws. Twelve states (Kansas, Arkansas, Arizona, Massachusetts, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, Utah, Washington, New York, Maine, Connecticut) kept themselves in the column without chain store taxes by either defeating or adjourning without voting at all on proposals that would have imposed chain taxes for the first time. Three states (South Dakota, Montana, North Carolina) passed new legislation extending or slightly changing old taxes. Iowa's legislature seemed about ready to adjourn without considering its chain tax proposal. And Michigan, Texas and Wisconsin were still considering measures to repeal their present taxes.—Tide.

Breck shook his head, but he could reconstruct what had happened. Art getting drunk after Irene threw him down, brooding over it; driven at last to take it out on somebody. Standing here in the cabin, he could still see the distorted face thrust close to his.

Joe Scott came in, a big, dark-faced man. He held a lamp near the wound, probed a little with his pocket knife, then straightened. "Arm bone's broke, rib shattered some. Good thing the lead went clean through."

"We'll have to get him down," said Cook.

Scott wagged his head. "No; too much danger of that rib puncturing a lung. I'd say send for a doctor." He bent again over the cowboy, adding, "Ain't goin' to bleed much and he's passed out in a drunk. Get me some rags and I'll fix him up for the time bein'."

Louise went for them. Breck strode from the door, saying to Cook, "I'll tell Lone Tree to send a surgeon."

By this time word had gotten out to the dancers, and he came at once among a knot of men beyond the shanty.

"What happened, Ranger?" "A gun went off," Breck replied. "Nothing serious."

"Who's hurt?" He mumbled a name indistinctly and passed on toward the telephone. There he rang Lone Tree, ordering the clerk to send up a doctor, and to make certain of getting the right man, told how badly Tillson was shot.

When he turned from the phone, Irene was standing at his back. "Gordon!" she gasped. Her face was blanched, eyes wide in a look of comprehension, as if she realized her part in this. "I heard what you said. Tell me . . . tell me what happened. Gordon, did you kill . . .?"

He put a hand firmly on her shoulder, turning her around. "Go back to your family, Irene. Don't frighten them. I'll come later."

"But tell me . . ."

"For God's sake do as I say!" Back at the cabin he found Joe Scott and Cook finishing the job of binding Tillson's wounds. Louise was not there. Sierra slouched toward him as he entered. "Partner, show me the barbecue pit, will you? I ain't et since noon."

Outside he added less casually, "I want to talk. Come on."

Fire had burned to coals in the pit, and only strings of beef were left upon the bones hanging there. Sierra took off a rack of ribs while Breck found cups and poured coffee. They sat together on a log.

Breck drank his first cupful, poured another, suddenly aware of nerves beginning to let down. "Seen Jud and Hep?" Sierra asked.

"They haven't been here all day." "How do you figure that?"

"I don't. Neither does Cook." Sierra tore two ribs apart and deftly secured the meat between his teeth; that finished, he said gravely, "What do you suppose Art was sashaying' around alone for—actin' plumb loco that way?"

"He was loco," Breck answered, "over a girl, and that explains a lot. He went out of his head over this girl I brought up. She made a fool of him and he came back at me."

Sierra nodded. "That's about what I might a-knowed." Breck said nothing. Through the pines he saw figures moving again about the dance fire. Voices were lifted to a higher pitch of excitement. His eyes went to the cabin where a light shined in one window.

Presently Sierra expressed Breck's own thought. "Well anyway," he drawled, "Art won't cause us no trouble for a long time."

Breck nodded. But there were still the other two. A breeze stirred the coals into a burst of flame. Light added distance to the circle of vision. Breck's gaze moved up the slope behind him, passing slowly through the black tree trunks. It halted upon one spot. He stared, half-rising, then suddenly caught Sierra's arm.

"Slim!" Sierra looked. A figure was coming down toward them, stumbling, one hand groping as if in blindness. Though the face was smudged and partly covered by long strings of hair, Breck recognized the boy from the Potholes.

"It's Jack Weller," he said quietly to Sierra. "Something's wrong. I've seen that look—we mustn't frighten him."

The boy approached with glazed eyes staring at the fire. His jaw hung slack. Bloody scratches showed through torn clothing. One hand outstretched in front of him held what had once been a barn lantern. Now there was left only the wire bail.

Breck stood up slowly when the boy came within a few feet, but he did not speak. The glassy eyes rested upon him, moved off, strayed back. A tight flat lifted the lantern ball as if to cast its glow higher. Gradually his lips parted to form soundless words. Breck held out his hand, saying, "Hello, Jack. How are you?"

The boy hesitated, took a step nearer, yet no sign of recognition came into his face.

"Let's get him some whiskey," Sierra advised.

"No," said Breck. "Wait a minute." He took the boy's arm and drew him down to the log, then spoke in an even, questioning voice. "Well, Jack, been bear hunting lately? Here, I'll blow out your lantern."

He unclenched the small fist and went through the action of extinguishing a light. "Cold, isn't it? Have some coffee? Bring us a cupful, Slim."

Jack drank in gulps and gasped one long breath when he finished. For a moment Breck looked away, thinking, knowing he must establish some contact in the little fellow's mind. It was plain he had been through a terrible experience, and then had been fighting through the woods—no telling how long.

In moving, Breck's hand touched the Luger. He pulled it out, turning it over in his palm as he looked at Jack.

The boy was staring with the first sign of sane comprehension. He reached for the gun. "That . . . that's a Luger, ain't it?" he stammered.

"Yes," said Breck, "it's a Luger and holds a lot of shells and I've been a soldier, and now, Jack, is your father all right?"

The small hand shook convulsively. Words blurted of their own accord. "Pap's dead! They killed him. They killed my pap! I seen him. They killed my pap! I seen 'em!" He stopped, started, contact was made. "Ranger," he cried, "I've been comin' to you. Them Tillsons killed him!"

"Yes, Jack," Breck said quietly, trying to soothe him by putting an arm about his shoulders. "But maybe you can tell me later."

The boy drew back. "Not I've been runnin' to get here, ever since I heard them coyotes a-howlin' for Pap."

"All right then. Tell me. What did the Tillsons do?"

"Came arguin' about a fire. Blamed my pap for tellin'. He talked back and they shot him!"

"Where are they now?"

"The nesters run 'em off to Sulphur—and they're goin' to burn 'em out!" Jack paused, looking up with puzzled face. "Is this tonight?"

"Yes, this is tonight."

"Then they're doin' it! Burnin' them Tillsons!"

Sierra sprang up. "Say!"

"Easy," Breck warned him. "Get Kern Peak on the phone."

Sierra strode off. The boy in Breck's arms was fast falling into a stupor of exhaustion. He lay with eyes closed, though with the terror of what he had been through stamped indelibly upon his old man's face. As sleep came, his voice trailed off faintly. "They left me watchin' pap. But them coyotes . . . a-howlin' . . . I run . . ."

"Kern Peak line is dead," Sierra announced, returning from the telephone. "Wire's either cut or in a fire."

Breck leaped up. "Take this boy to Louise. Give me your horse and I'll ride to the ridge. Better tell Cook."

He was half an hour in climbing the backbone above Temple Mead, but when he reached the crest, ow, but when he reached the crest, he halted for only a moment. Far below, the whole Sulphur Flat was below, though actual flames were hid-afire, though actual flames were hidden by an intermediate canyon wall. The sky was red for miles above the lower part of Sulphur Creek. Breck wheeled and crashed down, letting his swift descent pass the word to those below.

Animals were already being sad-

somewhere to the south and east of Sulphur Creek?"

Cook came from his side of the mule. "All right, son, what's on your mind?"

"I've got the Tillsons' back door spotted," Breck declared. "They can't climb to it before daylight—too rough—and by that time Slim and I can be there if we go ahead."

"Then go," Cook ordered. "I'll make up a crew here and meet you at Indian Rock. Slim knows where that is."

Sierra had vanished in the crowd, leaving Kit tied to a stump. Breck exchanged horses and was swinging into his saddle when Senator Sutherland rushed to him.

"Here, my boy, here," he cried, puffing with excitement. "A fire is it? Great stuff! Everyone going? Never saw a mountain blaze first-hand. You wait now till I get my horse!" He dashed on.

"Oh, Gordon!" Again Breck turned from mounting. Irene was running toward him. "Gordon, you'll saddle for me? Is it a real fire? I don't know where my horse is."

He lowered his foot to the ground. "You won't need your horse. You're not going."

"Absurd! Why am I not?" Breck waved a gloved hand toward Temple's cabin. "Because a man is in there badly hurt. You made a drunken maniac out of Tillson. Now how big are you? Someone has got to keep him up till the doctor gets here tomorrow. He'll get over the gunshot, but he's the sort that goes straight to the devil when a woman takes his pride. Talk to him, Irene, lie to him, anything to explain yourself. For God's sake that's one thing you can do!"

He swung to his saddle before she could reply, and hoped some bit of comprehension would move her to a decent act. Art might be his enemy, yet he had come to have something of Louise Temple's sympathetic understanding of him.

He found Sierra roping up a fresh horse and gave his plan. The mountaineer listened, said nothing, and in a few minutes they rode together out past the clearing, where in the light of fresh logs more than twenty men were getting tools for the fireline. Among them Breck saw Louise.

"Are you going?" he asked, halting at her side.

"Why not? You'll need all of us." A swift admiration filled him. He was proud of her. Little thoroughbred! Love welled in his heart. Then fear. But he knew she would scorn his thought of danger. Tom Temple hobbled over with a shovel and ax. "Be right with you, Ranger!"

Breck saluted and loped on to overtake Sierra. His veins tingled. There was something military about this night move—like shock troops breaking into action.

He led, knowing the route to the spot where he had once seen Jud and Hep vanish down Sulphur Creek. He pushed Kit at a run. It would be almost daylight anyway by the time he and Slim could cover the range from Temple's camp to the broken country.

They left the blazing government trail at the spur where Breck had come down before, climbed it, and came at last to the brim that dropped a thousand feet into cliffs and falls and unmapped gorges. Firelight flooded the lower level. Roar of the blaze rose faintly.

Breck halted. "You see we've come to sort of a blind trail, Slim. It dips over the ridge and crosses the head of Sulphur Canyon. That's where we go down. I don't know how far."

Sierra kicked his foot out of one stirrup. "I'd say we leave the cayuses here and walk."

Breck agreed, pulled from the trail and tied his horse. Then together they walked on. The canyon was not far. It plunged away steeply, with the stream cutting a sharp-banked gorge through the rock. Their path skirted the brink for two hundred yards, then curved around a brush clump. In another turn it ended against a blank wall.

To the left was the mountain face; on the right a sheer drop to the stream. Breck looked down at white water dashing through boulders.

"What do you make of it?" he asked.

Sierra did not answer. His head was tilted sidewise, attention centered above and behind them. "Hear that?"

Breck listened, yet heard only the waterfall and roar of fire further on.

"Nothing, Slim." "Maybe not. How about your trail?"

"We've slipped up somewhere." "I thought so. It turns to the right back here."

Breck faced about dubiously. To the right meant a straight drop into the gorge. Sierra took a few steps and halted. Suddenly he motioned with his hand. Before them a narrow rock bridge spanned the chasm from rim to rim.

Sierra stepped back behind a boulder and put his pistol on its flat top. "Partner," he said softly, "this looks like our place."

Breck stood with his gaze sweeping up the granite barricade of Kern Peak. No chance of escape up there. He was satisfied. For Jud and Hep it was this way out or none. His hands tightened. A name flashed through his thoughts. Jim Cotter.

Dawn came swiftly. With it a new sound broke the rumble of the falls. Breck met Sierra's eyes and his question was acknowledged with a look. Horses were climbing along the far rim of the gorge, having difficulty in woods where night still lingered. One stumbled; its shoes clattered.

Waltzing Mouse Shown in London Zoo; Breed Once Numerous in America, Japan

A humble, but nevertheless fascinating addition to the London zoo is a "waltzing" mouse, says the Times of London. To the last generation "waltzing" mice were well known as children's pets, and they are still largely bred by fanciers in America and Japan, but they have become scarce in this country. In fact, when two years ago the zoo wanted a family of them as zoological curiosities to illustrate Mendelian inheritance they were unobtainable.

"Waltzing" mice are a strain of common mice possessed of a habit, often repeated many times a day, of spinning round and round for perhaps half a minute in a very small circle. This so-called waltz is due to an anatomical defect, the exact nature of which is still doubtful. The condition has received a great deal of attention from biologists, and the "waltz" has been found to

PAUL THINKS IN WORLD TERMS

LESSON TEXT—Romans 1:1-17. GOLDEN TEXT—For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth.—Romans 1:16.

"I see chaos . . . only one thing will stop this coming chaos . . . a sweeping spiritual revival. Unless we have such a reawakening of religious forces we shall have a depression within the next 10 years that will make the last one look like a Christmas eve program." So wrote a prominent business advisor recently, as quoted in the Practical Commentary. His view is shared by others not only in business but in governmental circles. Religious leaders, some of whom until recently were presenting glowing pictures of the beautiful fellowship of the peoples of the earth in a modernistic faith which is far from the gospel, are now either silent or prophets of despair. Faithful witnesses for God have long seen the approach of this day, and like prophets of old have warned the people to turn to God. God still lives. The good news of the gospel has lost none of its redeeming power. The Light of the World is ready to shine in the darkness. Now is the time to preach.

I. The Gospel (vv. 1-6).

Paul knew himself as the bonds-lave of Jesus Christ, recognizing that he had been set apart by God for the exalted purpose of preaching the gospel. The word itself means "good news," that is, any good news. But because there is but one bit of good news in the world entitled to a place of supremacy, it has come to mean the good news of the grace of God in Christ Jesus.

Note the three points made by Paul. First, it is "the gospel of God," good news from God. "Humanly speaking, from every reasonable standpoint, God can have only one message for fallen, rebellious men—a message of judgment and death. If there is to be good news from God, then God Himself must undertake to change the relationship between man and Himself so that He will be able to bestow His richest blessings upon men. This is the good news, that God is undertaking to save men from the judgment and doom that man deserves" (Wilbur M. Smith).

Then observe that this salvation was prophesied beforehand (v. 2). This gospel we have is not something suddenly prepared to meet an emergency. It was prepared before the foundation of the world (Eph. 1:4; Rev. 13:8). And in verse 3 we read that the good news is "concerning His Son." He is the only Saviour and unless it is concerning Him that we are to speak, the news is not good news.

II. The Gospel for the Whole World (vv. 7-15).

Religious cults flourish only where conditions prosper them. "Buddhism, we are told, succeeds best in warm climates. Mohammedanism flourishes among people of low culture. The gospel of Christ breaks through all barriers of geography, climate and race, and has proved itself to be equally adapted to men of 'all nations'" (LeRoy M. Lowell).

Paul was called to preach to Greek and barbarian, to Jew and Gentile, to the wise and the unwise, to every living soul. What is more, he regarded himself as a debtor to them, and that is the spirit that brings forth a sacrificial determination to make Christ known to the ends of the earth. Let us recognize that we too are in debt to the whole world because we have the gospel that men need. Then in Christ's name let us as honorable men and women pay our debt. Perhaps some who would not wait overnight to pay the grocer for what he has delivered, have never felt the slightest compunction about standing in debt to all men for the preaching of the gospel.

III. The Gospel for the World's Salvation (vv. 16, 17).

Paul was not ashamed to take the gospel into the very heart of that ancient world, the magnificent city of Rome. Had he come with some new philosophy of life which had no power to transform men, he might well have been ashamed, but he knew that what he had would meet the deepest needs of humanity for deliverance from sin and sorrow and eternal death. He knew that the need of the "up and out" was the same as that of the "down and out"—namely, the redeeming grace of God—the gospel which is "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth" (v. 16).

Why should we who follow Christ be so timid when Paul could be so bold? Certainly we should not speak to men about this good news in an apologetic, "hope-you-won't-mind" attitude. Men need Christ. We know Christ will meet their every need. Let us not be ashamed to tell them about Him in the home, in the church, in the office, in the street, in America, in China, in Africa, yes, even to the very ends of the earth.

That the City Council does hereby determine to assess part of the cost of curbs and gutters and part of the cost of paving against the owners of the property abutting thereon and against their property in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 9, Title 28, of the 1925 Revised Statutes of Texas, as amended, and the ordinances of the City of McLean. That said assessment shall be made after notice to such property owners and other interested persons and the hearing herein mentioned, and that the said portion of the said costs of improvements to be assessed against such property owners and their property shall be in accordance with the Front Foot Rule or Plan in the proportion that the frontage of the property of each owner bears to the whole frontage of the property to be improved; provided, that after such hearing, if such plan of apportionment be found to be not just and equitable in particular instances, the City Council shall so apportion said costs as to produce a substantial equality between all such property owners abutting on said portion of said streets, having in view the enhanced value of their property and the benefit derived from such improvement and the burdens imposed upon them by such assessment, and that in no event shall any assessment be made against any owner or his property in excess of the enhanced value of such property by reason of such improvement, and in no event shall any assessment be made against any owner or his property in excess of the limit provided by law.

That the proposed cost of such improvements which is contemplated to be assessed against such owners and their property shall become due and payable as follows: One-fifth within thirty days after said improvements have been completed and accepted by the City; one-fifth on or before one year after said completion and acceptance; one-fifth on or before two years after such completion and acceptance; one-fifth on or before three years after such completion and acceptance; one-fifth on or before four years after such completion and acceptance; together with interest thereon at seven percent per annum payable annually together with reasonable attorney's fees thereon, and all costs of collection, if incurred.

That the total proportionate part of such improvements which is contemplated to be assessed against such owners and their respective properties and the names of the owners of property abutting upon said streets aforesaid, properties to be improved and the description of that property, and the several amounts proposed to be assessed against said owners and said property respectively for paving and for curb and gutter, and the grand total thereof, which said sum does not and shall not in any event exceed that portion of the total costs as provided by Chapter 9, of Title 28, of the 1925 Revised Statutes of Texas, as amended, is as follows:

Lace Tunes to This Summer's 'Lovely Lady' Fashion Trends

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ITS fashions that trend to "lovely lady" types that will hold the spotlight during the coming months. Which brings us at once to the theme of this story—lace, lovely lace! With the new styles going in so enthusiastically for feminine prettiness in hat, gown and accessories, the logical answer needs must be lace, as has been the answer throughout the centuries of fashions that have gone before.

With the craze for lace trims on hats, for billowy masses of lace at throat and at wrist, with the return of the "baby waist" that is exquisitely sheer and entrancingly lace-trimmed, with tailored laces for daytime wear, with sheer pleated laces for dress-up wear, with picturesque period frocks enchantingly detailed in lace, with lace playing a star role in boudoir fashions, with accessories even to gloves and bags and boutonnieres of lace, the current message of lace has become too vast, too all-inclusive for words. You just have to get the bigness of the lace theme grow upon you as the pageantry of present and coming modes pass in review.

The important thing to say about modern laces is that they are so versatile in character that there's a lace for every occasion no matter what the challenge may be. For that matter it is not an exaggeration to say that an entire wardrobe could be planned of lace. There are fabriclike laces for tailored use, stunning laces for afternoon frocks, laces of grand dame elegance for formal evening wear, sheer laces of cobweb mesh that pleat up beautifully, two-way stretch laces for bathing suits and so on and so on without end.

The responsiveness of lace to every mood of fashion accounts for the fact that designers are acquiring the lace habit with an increasing enthusiasm as the possibilities reveal the growing tendency of lace producers to supply a type for every need.

Smart Rainwear

That adage, "prepare for a rainy day," ever instilled in the minds of the young, has been taken literally in the realm of fashion. The modern interpretation of stylish rainwear is reflected in the very attractive rain cape here pictured. Surely some little girl's geography book must have inspired this all-America raincape in that it is printed with a map of the United States, rivers and mountains and borderlines included. It comes either with a babushka to match, as pictured, or if preferred you can get it with attached hood.

The illustration presents three distinct types of frocks fashioned of lace. A new medium for the tailored sheer dress which will be found ever so practical for summer wear, is an interesting conventionally patterned two-tone lace as pictured to the left in the group. Bruyere designed this dress which has a grosgrain ribbon belt and two ribbon bows on the shoulder.

Utterly feminine and charming is the afternoon dress shown in the foreground to the right. Vera Borea designs this lovely frock of a delicate but firm lace that delineates big florals with sheer mesh between. The ruffles around the neckline and on the sleeves are indicative of Parisian trends. In this dress of horizon blue lace the ruffles lend a beguiling feminine note with no suggestion of fussiness. For summer afternoon wear and informal evenings, there is wide favor expressed for pastel laces.

An interesting feature of sheer afternoon lace frocks is that many are worn over costume slips in contrasting color. Dark laces, very sheer, are also worn over light foundation slips. The monotone effect that demands a matching color for the slip is equally good style.

The model in the center shows an evening dress designed by Molyneux. It demonstrates how pleasingly sheer lace yields to pleated treatments. The straight-fitted sheath skirt is finely pleated, and the dramatic balloon sleeves are likewise pleated. The deep square décolletage is noteworthy.

Pleated Skirt in Summer Fabrics

Skirts and blouses are usually on the wane by the time really warm weather sets in and the lightweight suit usually is the only opportunity for continuing this casual style. But not so this year, at least if the prominence of spun rayon, linen and cotton skirts are any indication.

The pleated all-round skirt is especially good in summer fabrics, which may account for the increased popularity, and not only the skirt departments but the blouse and summer sweater departments are preparing for much activity.

The practicality of the skirt and blouse or sweater is undeniable. It is easy to have a number of changes at little outlay and there is less necessity of laundering than with a number of one-piece frocks.

Feminine Frills On Shirtwaists

Sportswear is not being neglected, even among the frills and ruffles of the majority of feminine clothes, and the shirtwaist is making a conspicuous appearance, changed in some cases by the addition of pleated and gathered fullness, but still basically the same.

In some instances this style is seen with additional color contrasts, among them one shirtwaist dress with rose top and navy skirt, another with a pink and white striped top and pink skirt, and others solid pastel shirtwaist frocks with contrasting bright cummerbunds around the waist.

A Little Bit Humorous

EARLY FILIAL FIDELITY

One of the clerks at the employment agency was a bit of a wit, and he was preparing to gain a laugh at the expense of the next in line.

"Where were you born?" he asked the man, a Scotchman.

"Glasgow," was the reply.

"Glasgow! Whatever for?" continued the funny one.

"I wanted to be near mother," said the other with devastating meekness.

Call the Union!

A little girl had been to church for the first time. When she returned home her mother asked her what she thought of church.

"I like it very much," she said, "but there was one thing I didn't think was fair."

"What was that, dear?" asked her mother.

"Why, one man did all the work and then another man came around and got all the money."

Two Good Reasons

"You never read the weather predictions?"

"Nope. I skip 'em for two reasons. One is that there's no use of worrying about what you can't help, and the other is that you never can rely on a prophecy till after it's come true, an' then it's too late to make any difference."

No Danger

Jimmy—Yes, ma'am.

Annoying

Patient—That's different. The trouble with me is that I'm such a confounded bore!

What to Eat and Why

C. Houston Goudiss Describes the Role of Phosphorus in Nutrition; Tells Where to Obtain This Mineral

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

THERE are at least 11 different mineral salts which are essential to the structure or functioning of the human body. But of these, only four—calcium, phosphorus, iron and iodine—require the careful consideration of the homemaker. That is because a diet which furnishes adequate amounts of these four will automatically provide the others. But when the diet is deficient in any one of these four minerals, disastrous consequences may result.

It is therefore of the utmost importance that every homemaker should know something of their functions, and what foods supply them. In this article, we shall deal specifically with phosphorus.

Versatile Phosphorus

It has been said that if the biographies of the elements could be written, that of phosphorus would be the most interesting of all. That is because there are 14 different ways in which compounds of phosphorus may function in the body. In fact, it is doubtful if any other inorganic element enters into such a diversity of compounds or plays an important part in so many functions.

This mineral is indispensable for all the active tissues of the body and likewise helps in regulating the neutrality of the blood. It is found abundantly in nerve tissue.

Needed for Teeth and Bones

Its most significant role, however, is to team with calcium in giving rigidity to the bones and teeth. Approximately 90 per cent of the total phosphorus of the body and 99 per cent of the calcium are found in the bones and teeth.

Both these minerals are required in generous amounts, but almost twice as much phosphorus as calcium should be supplied every day. Moreover, children should have about one-and-one-half times as much phosphorus as adults, to meet the requirements for growth.

The muscles and soft tissues need phosphorus as well as the bones, and in the dietary of the child, they must share with the bones, the phosphorus that is provided by the food. Hence, the greater need for this mineral during childhood.

Phosphorus and Rickets

If a child's diet is deficient in phosphorus or calcium, or if conditions are not favorable for their proper absorption, rickets will occur. This devastating nutritional disease may result in deformities of the chest and pelvic bones, as well as the more familiar bow legs and knock-knees.

Investigators have spent many years in discovering how to prevent and cure this disease which has made life miserable for so many children and which has far-reaching effects that carry over into later life. For example, adults who have bow-legs or a pigeon breast as a result of childhood rickets, are always self-conscious because of their defects. And motherhood may be far more difficult for young women whose pelvic bones were deformed by rickets in their early years.

A Low-Phosphorus Diet

It was found that rickets may be associated with a low-phosphorus diet, even when the calcium content is high. And investigations also determined that there is a seasonal tide of blood phosphorus which corresponds to the amount of available sunlight. This led to the realization that sunlight—which we now know helps the body to manufacture vitamin D—is closely related to the proper utilization of phosphorus.

And today it is well established that rickets can be prevented, or cured, by a diet containing liberal amounts of phosphorus, calcium and vitamin D. Vitamin D can be obtained from direct sunshine, but where this is not available in adequate amounts, cod-liver oil, irradiated foods, or those fortified with a vitamin D concentrate will supply this necessary substance.

Make Use of Sunlight

As we approach the season when the greatest amount of sunshine is available, homemakers should see to it that not only the children, but every member of the family spend as much time as possible in the sunlight. This will help to promote the proper utilization of phosphorus and calcium. And both teeth and bones will benefit, as well as the general health.

Where to Find Phosphorus

Every homemaker should acquaint herself with the foods that supply phosphorus most abundantly, so that she will be prepared to include this mineral in the diet every day. Egg yolk and dried beans are both valuable sources of phosphorus. So are whole grain cereals and lean meats. In fact, cereals and meats have this in common—both are rich in phosphorus and deficient in calcium. Whole grain breads are likewise important for their phosphorus content. And on a percentage basis, cheese ranks very high as a carrier of this mineral.

Cocoa also contains a large percentage, though it must be remembered that, as a rule, only small quantities of cocoa are consumed at one time. Many nuts, including almonds, peanuts, pecans and walnuts, furnish significant amounts. And this mineral is found in dried fruits such as raisins, figs and prunes, and in much smaller quantities in vegetables, such as spinach, cauliflower, string beans, carrots and Brussels sprouts.

Milk supplies phosphorus, though not in such generous amounts as calcium. However, if you follow the rule of a quart of milk daily for every child and a pint for each adult, you will contribute materially to the phosphorus and calcium content of the diet.

Questions Answered

Mrs. S. E. N.—The three- or four-year-old child who wakes early should not be allowed to go for a very long period without breakfast. For this reason, seven o'clock is recommended as a good hour for his first meal of the day. After such an early breakfast, however, a mid-morning lunch of milk and crackers will be necessary. A child of this age may be expected to go to bed not later than seven o'clock.

Use Oilcloth Scallops And Red Rick Rack

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

DEAR MRS. SPEARS: The curtains I made from your Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator, are so smart and modern looking that they have given our living room an entirely new appearance. Right now I need an idea that will pep up my kitchen windows. Everything is up to date but the curtains. They look old fashioned. The color scheme is red and white, but please don't tell me to use red and white checked gingham because I have done that before.—J. B.

Alright, no checked gingham! How about some nice crisp dotted swiss with the widest red rick rack you can find for the edge? Then make a border around the top and sides of the window by pasting scalloped red oilcloth on the window frame, using wall paper paste. Cut the oilcloth in strips first, then mortise the corners by cutting them on the bias. Start marking the scallops at the corners, as shown here, making the center top scallop wider than the others. The tie-backs for the curtains may also be made of the red oilcloth.

With the help of Book 1, SEWING, for the Home Decorator, you can make many of the things you have been wanting for your home. Book 2—Embroidery and Gifts, is full of ideas for ways to use your spare time in making useful things. Books are 25 cents each. Enclose 50 cents for both books, and leaflet illustrating 36 authentic embroidery stitches will be included FREE. Address, Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

"UNJUST, DISHONEST, UNFAIR"

Those who have swallowed whole the claim that the TVA has established a fair and accurate yardstick with which to measure the rates charged by the private electric industry, must have become disillusioned after reading some of the testimony given during December before the congressional investigating committee.

The TVA's own chief planning engineer, for instance, admitted that the TVA operated at a loss of $1,000,000 during the last fiscal year. That isn't a large sum of money, as money is spent today. But when you consider that the TVA is subsidized by the public treasury, is practically free from taxation, is immune from the strictures of state regulation, and has various expensive services given it for nothing by the government, the wonder is that the Authority isn't showing up a handsome operating profit. The whole TVA setup was so planned as to give the Authority every conceivable advantage over the private companies with which it competes—yet it has been far from a financial success.

It remains to be seen whether the TVA can make money in the future. And, more important still, it remains to be seen whether TVA executives will continue to insist on taking private electric properties at "buyers' prices which cause heavy losses to thousands of innocent investors, or whether they will accept arbitration prices established by some disinterested third party, such as the Securities and Exchange Commission. It remains to be seen whether TVA will adopt the standard accounting methods which the law forces the private utility industry to use. And it remains to be seen whether the government will continue to give away millions of dollars of tax money collected from all the people to a few chosen towns, for the purpose of building unnecessary, duplicate plants.

In the words of Representative Jenkins, "it is unjust, dishonest and unfair to have anybody stand up in Congress or anywhere else and say that the TVA yardstick is fair for the entire country." Expert after expert has shown the yardstick to be about as inaccurate as possible. All in all, the TVA has proven itself to be a Socialistic experiment that destroys private enterprise at gigantic cost to the country.—The Railroad Journal.

GAINING CONTENTMENT

By Rev. Edw. Worcester
"But Godliness with contentment is great gain. For we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out. And having food and raiment, let us be therewith contentment."—1 Tim. 6:6-8.

The struggle for material wealth and worldly gain has caused more suffering, and destroyed more souls, than all other evils combined. It is the only hunger that grows stronger as it is fed, and can never be satisfied. The more a man gains in material wealth and power the more he craves; and often he cares little for the sorrow and suffering he causes others by his methods of attainment. Finally he is utterly astonished to learn what he has gained brings him little satisfaction and contentment. He begins to realize the world will take back all it has given him; and he has nothing he can carry away when he goes.

On the other hand, the person who attains spiritual wealth, has a treasure eternal and can live here content with the bare necessities of this life if conditions bring no more. If he obtains more than he needs he is concerned about utilizing it wisely for the good of others less fortunate than himself.

Voltaire said: "I know of no great men except those who have benefited humanity," and every thoughtful person must agree with him on that point.

So the gain of contentment is linked with the Godlike disposition to give rather than to receive.

Jesus gave us the great truth, "It is more blessed to give than to receive," and everyone has something good he can give to others if he will; and in so giving gains for himself greater Godliness and contentment which are lasting treasures.

TAXEATERS

It was a motley crew of citizens who appeared before the legislature demanding the passage of the transactions tax. Several negroes were in the crowd. The leader was an imported Townsendite. Since Governor O'Daniel is responsible for stirring up all this pension mess, he should take into consideration those who will pay these taxes, rather than appeal to the prejudices of those who are to receive the benefits of the taxes. Most all classes of citizens of Texas might be induced to accept monthly checks from the state treasury, provided the other fellow paid the tax bill. Even newspaper men might consider they were entitled to a monthly pension after years of hard labor in their profession, should some unwise portion of the profession start such a movement and could figure out how a tax could be settled on the utilities or natural resources of the state for the benefit of this particular class. And so on it goes. We are all willing to accept from the state, but how many will volunteer to pay in the money which the state must have before making these monthly distributions. It appears to the News that the just and equitable method is to consult those who are going to pay the taxes, rather than attempting to cram down their throats a big tax bill for the benefit of a few. After all, only about 150,000 people in Texas are qualified under the constitutional amendment for old age assistance, out of a population of 6,000,000. Calling out the band and raising a great commotion will not raise taxes. Defying the taxpayers will only cause resentment. This whole pension problem will be equitably settled if only sense and reason instead of hysteria, can prevail. The people at Texas approve old age assistance, but do not want to see the problem made a football for budding politicians. — Canyon News.
