200 MILES SHELTERBELT FOR 1940

Over 200 miles of shelterbelt have been approved for planting in Northwest Texas, reports W. E. Webb of Wichita Falls, state director of the Prairie States Forestry Project, on March 1. Approximately 60 miles of tree belts have already been planted this year.

Wherever necessary replacements are being made on the older belts in order to place them in a more satisfactory condition. This will take care of the losses suffered in the unseasonably dry weather this past summer. The unusual amount of snow and rain during the past 10 weeks has done wonders in putting the ground in shape for the planting. The moisture has gone down over 20 inches in most places.

Mr. Webb further reports that more than 700 applications have been made for tree belts in 32 counties. The foresters have their hands full in examining proposed areas for shelterbelts, meanwhile keeping over 25 crews in operation. However, they will continue to accept applications for the next few weeks. Applications may be turned in to the county agents or forest service officers in Wilbarger, Hardeman, Childress, Cottle, Motley, Hall, Collingsworth, Donley, Gray and Wheeler counties.

Forester Raymond L. Buskirk of the McLean office says that 10 miles of new shelterbelt has been planted this season at McLean and the work is going on at a rapid rate this week.

EASTSIDE CLUB HEARS DISCUSSION ON EGGS

"Feed counts in quality of eggs," said Mrs. Julia E. Kelley, county home demonstration agent, in a demonstration on poultry products at the meeting of the Eastside Club Friday at the home of Mrs. J. H. Wade.

"A balanced ration of feed," continued Mrs. Kelley, "consists of laying mash, green material, milk and oyster shell. An indication of quality eggs is a yolk that is yellow and will stand up firmly on the white when freshly broken. Poor feed and stale eggs cause strong flavor and bad odor."

"To get your money's worth, eggs should be sold by the pound, according to government standards." Cooking eggs at low temperature was demonstrated by adding eggs to boiling water in a covered vessel and setting off fire to cook from 10 to 30 minutes.

A parliamentary drill with the agent as leader and club members cooperating, was the main feature of the program in the afternoon.

Members present were Mesdames H. M. Roth, C. A. Myatt, Kate Stokes, Floyd Lively, T. H. Hardin, Lauther Petty, Jess Ledbetter, P. E. Hambricht, H. L. Dorsey, B. L. Stokes, and Miss Hettie Burr. Mrs. Elton Johnston was enrolled as a new member, and Mrs. Johnnie Whitacker was a visitor.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Foreign Policy Holds Spotlight In Both Houses of Congress; Reciprocal Trade Act Studied

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union

AT HOME: Eyes Overseas

Foreign affairs superseded domestic problems on the congressional calendar. The senate foreign relations committee postponed again its consideration of a proposed arms embargo against Japan, while a subcommittee discussed the resolution of Iowa's Sen. Guy Gillette to invoke the neutrality act in Asia's war. Main reason for delayed action was the rumor that Britain and Japan were about to sign a treaty which would give Tokyo a free hand in China, provided Japan keep hands off British possessions in the Orient.

Foreign policy discussions in the house centered around Secretary of State Cordell Hull's reciprocal trade program. Up for passage was a resolution continuing the state department's trade treaty power, but there was a strong G. O. P. fight to restore the senate's ratification right over such treaties.

Both politics and the war entered into this question. Should the house adopt the resolution (a virtual certainty), Secretary Hull's presidential aspirations would be furthered. Moreover, G. O. P. hopeful Robert Taft, senator from Ohio, was expected to defend his opponent's program from the senate floor. Reason: Taft has always opposed congressional participation in trade treaties.

How the state department feels about its program with regard to Europe's war was indicated at Chicago, where Assistant Secretary Henry F. Grady addressed a for-signed trade convention. Said he: "The results of the trade agreements programs have demonstrated . . . the benefits . . . of such cooperation . . . Shall we, as a great neutral power, continue to uphold the principles of economic cooperation . . . or shall we renounce the cause under pressure from special interest groups?"

Other news from Washington:

Emil Shram, chairman of RFC, told the house inquiry into the National Labor Relations board that NLRB had tried in nine separate cases to make RFC refuse loans to companies accused of not conforming with the Wagner labor act.

The advisory council of the federal reserve system okayed a bill by Delaware's Sen. John Townsend Jr., calling for repeal of the administration's foreign silver purchase program. Reasoning: It is a direct subsidy to foreign governments which must be borne by U. S. taxpayers. Next day Nevada's Sen. Key Pittman suggested that silver bullion should be coined to delay approach of the national debt limit. His reasoning: Since the monetary price of silver is fixed by law at $1.29 an ounce, and since the treasury now pays about 35 cents an ounce on the world market, the reserves could be turned to a good advantage.

The house banking committee deferred its vote on senate-approved legislation to boost the Export-Import bank's working capital by $100,000,000, thus making $20,000,000 available for non-military purchases by Finland.

At Madison, Wis., it was indicated both Senators Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan and Robert Taft of Ohio would enter the April 2 presidential primaries to stop another G. O. P. hopeful, New York's Tom Dewey.

Fearful that congress is "drifting with the international situation," 24 bi-partisan congressmen decided to wrestle with "the first and most fundamental problem before congress—unemployment."

Chairman Arthur Altmeyer of the Social Security board urged that states liberalize their unemployment insurance systems.

A senate sub-committee was named to probe charges by New Hampshire's Sen. Charles Tobey to the effect that two 1940 census questions were an invasion of the right of privacy.

ABROAD: Spreading Warfare

Hard-pressed Finnish troops continued retreating on the Karelian isthmus, where the Russian invaders were pouring men and machines extravagantly into a mighty campaign against the Mannerheim line. Moscow claimed capture of Koivisto, western anchor citadel of the Finnish defense system and guardian of the Reds' immediate objective, Viipuri. As a blizzard swept down to immobilize opposing armies for the time being, the desperate Finns called up men of 45 and 46—their last reserves.

If aid was coming from France and Britain, it took a long time to get there. Foreign Minister Viscount Halifax told the house of commons that munitions were being sent to supplement the British volunteers passing in a steady stream through Norway and Sweden.

In Scandinavia

Denmark remained aloof from complications, apparently through a peculiar arrangement between Britain and Germany. But Norway and Sweden had no such luck.

Norway continued protesting Britain's action in raiding a German supply and prison ship, the Altmark, within Norwegian territorial waters. About 300 British prisoners of war were freed in the raid, Germany complaining that Norway should have protected the Altmark. Britain, on the other hand, wondered why Norway had allowed the ship inside her territorial waters. German wrath cooled when Norway indictated the incident might be turned over to the League of Nations.

Sweden's position was even more delicate. Fearful lest a Soviet victory in Finland would place Sweden next in line for a Russian invasion, the Stockholm government nevertheless hesitated to send aid for fear of angering Russia's partner in crime, Germany. But it was hard for the Swedes to close their eyes when Russian planes crossed the northern frontier and showered 40 bombs on Pajala, a town of 3,000 population.

In the Mediterranean

Britain's disregard for Scandinavian neutrality was also being felt by Italy, heretofore the recipient of many an allied favor. But Italy has consistently refused British-French trade offers; hence the allies decided to apply blockade restrictions against Italian purchases of German coal. Said Ronald Cross, British minister of economic warfare: "A period has been arranged to enable Italy to negotiate to obtain its coal from other sources (meaning England), and this period will come to an end shortly."

Another Mediterranean state, Turkey, prepared to insure Balkan neutrality with force. Said Istanbul's Yeni Sabah, authoritative newspaper: "Turkey will enter the war the day a foreign power marches into the Balkans."

What happened the next day looked bad for Balkan peace. As if acting on the Turkish threat, several hundred Russian technical experts employed in Istanbul industry, got orders from Moscow to hurry home. Meanwhile, Rumania rushed mobilization of 1,000,000 men, presumably to safeguard her Bessarabian province from a Russian attack. But equally important was Germany's challenge of a Rumanian ban on export of aviation gasoline.

In Asia

Japan's diet passed a $2,420,500,000 budget, representing the largest spending program in the nation's history. What made it most outstanding was the breakdown—nearly 70 per cent will be devoted to military purposes. Strongly hinted, moreover, was a plan to spend much of this 70 per cent for an arms replenishing program aimed at preparing the country for a world war. Finance Minister Yukio Sakuruchi told the diet that Nippon's budget must grow bigger instead of smaller.

RELIGION:

Top-of-the-World

At Lhasa, in far-away Tibet, a six-year-old boy arrived from the tiny village of Taerhssu. While Buddhist priests nodded in approval, he was dressed in red silk robes and given a gold crown. Then he was placed on a throne, to reign over the "land at the top of the world," Tibet. As such, young Ling-Erh became dala lama, so-called reincarnated civil and religious ruler who was reputedly born the moment his predecessor, the thirteenth dala lama, died on December 17, 1933. For six days Lhasa celebrated with abandon, then settled down for three months of milder celebration. Most evident among those who came to pay tribute was the Chinese delegation sent from Chungking, hoping to establish better economic relations with its Tibetan provinces. Purpose: To open up new trade routes and tap Tibet's vast mineral resources.

COMMERCE:

Kim Crisis

Several weeks ago the Russian freighter Kim caused a mild U. S. sensation. Docking at San Francisco, Kim dumped a cargo of Soviet gold bullion, much to the consternation of congressmen who feared Russia was trading the gold for munitions. A couple of weeks later Kim returned to the news, probably verifying congressional fears. At Mexico's Pacific port of Manzanillo she took aboard 12,000 tons of copper which had been mined in the U. S. and sent to Mexico for transshipment to Vladivostok. From there, observers learned, it will be carried across the Trans-Siberian railroad to Germany.

Informed of this, the commerce department expressed official doubts that such Russian imports would get to Germany. Nevertheless, the department had to admit that 90 per cent of Russia's purchases here since last September have been essentials for war.

MISCELLANY:

More Power

At London, the government announced a 20-year program costing $80,000,000 to check industrial strife and economic deterioration in the British West Indies.

At New York surgeons "fished" with wires in the arteries of Smith Reavis, noted Associated Press writer, to remove a blood clot in the abdomen.

At Washington it was announced the Sierra Iron company of Nevada had entered a $10,000,000 contract to use the government's Columbia river hydro-electric energy produced at Bonneville dam, Oregon. Previously negotiated was a $10,000,000 contract with the Aluminum Company of America.

At Detroit a state referee ruled that nearly $3,000,000 in unemployment compensation benefits should be paid to 27,000 of the more than 50,000 Chrysler workers thrown out of work by a prolonged labor dispute last October.

Fabric Alone or With Straw Is Millinery Theme for Easter

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ONE glance at the new hat fashions for spring, year 1940, and forthwith you feel your spirits mount high for you know in a flash that milliners are turning out creations of the flattering sort.

Perhaps the most outstanding news in regard to hats that will grace the Easter millinery picture is the wide use being made of fabric, especially jersey (for wrapped turbans and snoods) and silk prints as gay and colorful as an artist's palette. See the hat centered below in the illustration. Here is a bright and shining example of what is being done with silk print. This wondrously chic little pillbox with shirred crown is made of a bordered silk print scarf. Its patterning of overlapping disc motifs achieves a dashing color alliance. The manner in which the draped matching scarf is attached to the back of the hat by means of snaps so that it can be removed at will is both unique and practical. The fact that the hat can be worn alone with its detached scarf translated into a neckerchief, knotted in place or held with a gay pin, adds greatly to its interest.

One of the big attractions offered to style-seeking women this season, is the print dress and hat ensemble or the print blouse that sells with a matching turban. You will find as the season progresses that the theme of the matching hat of printed silk will prove fashion's favorite spring song.

Now that the pastel color craze is taking the world of fashion by storm it has become a reigning vogue to wear a classic draped turban made of the identical pastel material that fashions the dress. The striking dinner gown pictured in the inset oval illustrates this new trend. Sand beige silk jersey is the fabric that fashions this charming costume. The bodice is softly gathered from high neck to high waistline. The flowing skirt is pleated into a wide wrapped girdle. An elaborate ornament set in gold trims the rajah turban of self silk jersey in the manner of a regal potentate.

Sailors are with us again. Milliners report they are better than ever this season. Dusty pink suede forms the bandeau of the navy blue straw sailor shown at the top to the right. The ends of the suede jut through the crown and are stitched to give stiffness. A lovely model this, to wear with the very new and smart navy costume on Easter day.

Another type that maintains style prestige is the postillion. Lime green straw and a cactus blossom trim gives a springtime air to the postillion illustrated below to the right. This simple model will make an excellent fashion "first" to initiate your spring style program.

The new collections include many hats that are made of ribbon. A high-crowned chapeau of golden mustard-colored ribbon swathed in black net veiling, as shown above to the left, is a youthful headpiece that tunes ideally to midseason and early spring wear.

Startling Color Schemes Are Seen

Daring is the word for the startling color schemes that are carried out to a nicety by designers this season. It is really a revelation that colors so intensely "contrasty" can resolve into a symphony of color or loveliness under the touch of an artist style creator.

Navy for the skirt, old gold for the blouse, bright red for the wide corselet girdle and the entire sums up to color perfection as a charming dress in sheer wool recently displayed bears testimony.

Clever two or three-color alliances are being handled with brilliant and decidedly novel technique. A dark dress takes on a front panel of vivid tone, such as red with navy, fuchsia with turquoise. An evening gown in blackberry tone has a long train starting between the shoulders of bright fuchsia red.

Dual Personality In Jacket Outfits

Bright print jacket costumes possess a dual personality which more than doubles their practicality. While they may be worn on cool-less spring days they also present a smart late winter appearance under fur coats.

A print with a white pattern on pearl gray makes an ideal background for bright-colored accessories. With a gray or black fur coat your accessories might include a gray hat with a red feather trim, and red gloves and bag.

High-Color Gloves Match to Jewelry

A new move in the fashion realm is that of bright gloves that sound the key color for the rest of the accessories. Especially effective is this color treatment when gloves match the color of the enamel flower necklace worn.

More Stripes

Day and night, stripes continue active in the fashion realm. A handsome silk in stripes that adopt a color scheme of Quaker gray, pink and white is the fabric choice for this tailored jacket designed for dinner wear. The leg o' mutton sleeves, box-pleated (at the back) peplum, the zippered front fastening are important style details. Taffeta is becoming increasingly important for formal evening gowns and daytime costumes as well.

The Basic Coat
A perfect foil for magnificent fur accessories is the simple untrimmed black cloth coat.

Hinged Curtains for Window Cupboards

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

WHY not build cupboards at each side of a pair of windows and a comfortable seat between? This takes very little space and adds useful storage room; as well as a cozy place to sit. The cupboards are hidden by hinged curtains that are a part of the general window treatment. The chintz for the valance and seat pad is in tan, yellow and blue-green. The blue-green edges the curtains and valance and is used also for the two cushions. The frilled glass curtains are clear yellow. The closet curtains tacked to a hinged arm may be swung back just as you would open a door.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears has prepared four booklets for our readers containing a total of 123 thrifty homemaking ideas; with step-by-step illustrated directions. Each book contains an assortment of curtains; slip covers; household furnishings; rag rugs; toys; gifts and novelties for bazaars. Books may be ordered one at a time at 10 cents each; but if you enclose 40 cents with your order for four books (Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4) you will receive a FREE set of three quilt block patterns of Mrs. Spears' Favorite Early American designs.

Send orders to:

The Chemistry of School

As probably every high school student knows, there are experiments in chemistry. In writing them we use this form: subject, material, procedure, results and conclusion. The experiment of school runs along the same line. Is not there an object in going to school? Yes, truly there is. That object is to gain more knowledge. The next thing in this experiment is the material. We are equipped with a certain material when we start to school. That material is the brain God gave us to develop. Then comes the procedure. The procedure we use in school comes in the term of grades. If we try to develop our brain, we usually make each grade. Then when we have reached the adult stage we consider our brain developed. The results of this development may be good. It is entirely in the hands of the particular person who is making this experiment. Then when this person thinks about his grades he can draw his own conclusion. There are only two conclusions to draw, either he was a success or a failure. That is the chemistry experiment of our life. Let's work and pray to God that our experiment will be a success.

THE HOUR OF CHARM

A charm test was given last week to the girls of M. H. S. to determine their rating of charm. A score of two points was given for each positive answer. Although there are some rather charming girls in high school, 100, the perfect score was a bit too much to expect. Eighty and above proved to be a pretty grand charming person. Between 60 and 70 shows you to have charm but not making the most of it. If the score was below 60, you'd better start self-improvement.

Questions included health habits, happiness, grooming, cleanliness, conversation, friendliness, tone of voice, intellectual habits, and cheerfulness.

MEET THE SENIORS

Bernice McClellan
"Winning friends and influencing people" is the hobby of Bernice McClellan, who is really good at influencing because, you see—she is a blonde.
Bernice was born in Amarillo. She began her school career in McLean and plans to finish here if nothing happens. She plans to attend a business college in Dallas and then attend the University of Texas, and listen you big bosses, she wants to be a private secretary.
Bernice has participated in most every activity in high school, some of which are home ec. club, glee club, speech club, pep squad, declamation, and recently she served a term as vice president of the Panhandle High School Press Club.
She simply adores chilli (on the hot side), Woodbury's soap, Chamberlain's lotion, Larry Clinton, Connie Bonnell, "Does Your Heart Beat for Me," and she definitely likes her men dark, 5' 9"; and, like Julia Maye Morris, the name should begin with a J.
Vernon Kinard
Vernon Kinard, age 17, was born in McLean and has attended schools in McLean, Fort Worth, Dallas, Keller and Wheeler. In fact "Percy," as he is known to most people, has really been around before coming to our fair city. He has participated in the science club, football, soft ball shinny, and is now supposed to be a star marble player.

"Percy" is very "air minded." He plans to be an airplane pilot and to attend Freed Hardman, a school of aviation. His hobbies are building airplane models and collecting gopher matches.

He has a long line of likes and dislikes, some of which are: Dislikes: carrots, R. C. Cola, Fred Allen, silly girls, and he definitely hates red nail polish. He likes Wayne King, "South of the Border," football, Spencer Tracy, "Dawn Patrol," Gracie Allen, Mollie McGee, and he specially likes Joyce Fulbright.

MRS. VARNADO ADDRESSES STUDENTS IN ASSEMBLY

The high school student body was called together Tuesday morning for chapel.

Rev. Troy A. Sumrall gave the invocation and introduced the speaker, Mrs. O. A. Varnado, wife of the pastor of the Second Baptist Church of Bogalusa, La.

Mrs. Varnado, a lover of youth, said: "Properly invest the time that is yours for the greatest return in the future. No one can take away time from us; we each have 24 hours a day. One of the best ways to spend time is to express our gratitude; think of the battles that are won by the two little words, 'Thank you.' We should also express our gratitude through the deeds we perform."

In conclusion, Mrs. Varnado said: "Guard yourself so that you will not you that Christianity is a myth. The be deceived by those who will tell practices of Christianity would be worth while even if there were no hereafter. Pledge allegiance to God and so conduct thyself in youth that no man can despise thee."

"HERE COMES PATRICIA" PRESENTED TONIGHT

On a certain spring morning the whole population of the town of Fern Lawn gasps to see a pretty 9-year-old, overall-clad girl in charge of the local filling station. Inquiry reveals that she is Patricia Hammond (Bernice McClellan). Within a week she is twice threatened with being driven out of town by the indignant townspeople, and, never having experienced anything of the sort before, is delighted with the sensation she is creating. To Jimmy Clark (Randy Mantooth, Jr.) is assigned the dismaying task of getting rid of her. What luck he has is all bad, and to add to his trouble, he falls in love with the little nuisance. About this time the whole town is agog over the expected arrival of the governor and his daughter, and appropriate ceremonies are planned.

Come to the play to see what happens on the big night, and find out for yourself just who "this Hammond girl," as she is called by Adam (Whiskers) Wade, the town's most prominent grouch (James Fulbright), really is. You will also enjoy the aristocratic Mrs. Smith-Porter (Christine Kennedy); indolent but likable Tim Hopper (E. J. Windom, Jr.); coy, persistent Elsie Crowder (Opal Thacker); long-suffering, much-abused Elbert Hastings (Donovan D'Spain); homely Bud Flannigan (Clint Doolen, Jr.) upon whom Angelina and Minnie Knoop (Margarette Kramer and Glenda Landers) have matrimonial designs; and quiet, unassuming Mrs. Carrol (June Blackerby).

For an evening of good entertainment see "Here Comes Patricia" at 8 o'clock tonight in the high school auditorium.

CANDIDATES & CARD PEDDLERS

Down in old Fisher county, the newspapers have laid a trap to catch all the candidates who patronize the "mail order" printers for their cards. Many times solicitors will tell candidates they can deliver a whole routine of votes for his card order, when as a matter of fact, they may not have a vote themselves. The Fisher county printers will put this on all the cards they strike "Printed in Fisher county." Local printers in all counties should adopt the same rule.—Terry County Herald.

SAVED HIS LIFE! CAFE MAN TELLS HOW OLD INDIAN TONIC SAVED HIS LIFE

"Pop" Keller, one of Blackwell's prominent residents says: "Twenty years ago Old Indian Remedy saved my life! I was riding the range for the Miller Bros. on the 101 Ranch. I was suffering from rheumatism caused by poor functioning of my kidneys and a sour acid stomach. At times my distress was hardly bearable! "After consulting many leading physicians of that time and trying many remedies and suffering day and night with pain and severe headaches which I could hardly endure, an old Cherokee Indian pharmacist, W. G. Highwood, asked me to try a remedy that had been handed down from generation to generation of his people. While taking this Old Indian Remedy it worked like from my system as black as ink, and gave relief to my pain and suffering. After taking this treatment for 30 days as he directed I was back in the saddle doing a full day's work, eating anything I liked and enjoying the pleasure of good health once again. "Six months ago I was bothered getting up nights and my heart began to jump caused by gas on my stomach and my other trouble started to recur. "I was overjoyed to find my Old Indian Remedy Prescription at a local drug store, which I took with such wonderful results 20 long years ago. After taking two bottles I am again fit and sound and I am not bothered by night risings or gas on the stomach and my rheumatic pain has completely disappeared. I want to tell my friends of this remedy and its wonderful results and if they are suffering from these troubles I invite them to call on me at my restaurant at 407 N. Main and I will give them my personal recommendation for Old Indian Remedy!" You can obtain Highwood's Old Indian Prescription only at

TRUTH

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination, sometimes with disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes - feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

'Gentle Breeze' Is New Iron Man For Paraguay

NEW YORK.—"Gentle Breeze" is a loose translation of the name of Paraguay's new dictator, Jose Felix Estigarribia. On September 13, 1935, this department observed, "It is possible that a new iron man is checking in, in Paraguay, with the emergence of the shrewd, resolute General Estigarribia." It appeared to be a wrong guess, until recently, when the general announced his dictatorship, having assumed the presidency last August.

Graying, handsome austere, just turning 50, he is the smallest of dictators—130 pounds, five feet, six inches tall. He was a Napoleon addict in his youth, but is said to have abandoned such attitudes and interests in later years. Of remote basque ancestry, he is the descendant of a wealthy Paraguayan family, educated for the army at home and in Paris. He entered the Gran Chaco war as a lieutenant colonel, gained a generality in a year and emerged as a national hero.

The U. S. A. has a stake in his new dictatorship. When he entered his brief turn as minister to Washington, he lunched at the White House and was extended generous credits for the "re-building" of Paraguay.

"Extrasensory perception" has been fading rapidly after its sudden burgeoning of two years ago, but here it is again, with Professor J. B. Rhine, its high priest of Duke university, making a study of Faith Hope Charity Harding, the little Pennsylvania girl who has been calling the future the way a pool-player calls his shots. Now 4½ years old, she has been making bull's-eye prophecies since she was 18 months old; so naturally they get Professor Rhine on the job.

He has kept right on running his parapsychological laboratory at Duke, since his 2,500,000 tests of University students there convinced him of the reality of mental telepathy, and the possibility of our peeping into the future, as well as into the minds of our neighbors. He said it would take 1,600 digits to express the mathematical degree of improbability in his tests.

Professor and Mrs. Rhine began exploring the spook world when they were getting the doctor's degree at the University of Chicago. Among other such phenomena they examined the feats of "Margery," the Boston medium and reported that the "whole game was base and brazen trickery." They repeatedly have assailed fake occultism. As to mental telepathy, they lay it on the line, but they're still working on the prophecy business. They started the latter inquiry in April last year.

For the last year, knowing obervers of European war and politics have warned the world to keep a sharp eye on Col. Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, commander in chief of the German army. His tracks usually lead in the direction of the next German lunge, and, controlling the army, he makes as well as executes decisions.

General Von Brauchitsch is a member of an old east Prussian feudal family, a conservative by instinct, education and tradition, but politically malleable. A distinguished officer in the World war, he hated the republic, but went along with it, alienating his stiff-necked Junker colleagues, and became head of its armed forces. From 1922 to 1932, he delivered many scholarly denunciations of bolshevism, but, perhaps more than any other one man, put through the interchange of officers, technicians, fabricated goods, munitions and raw materials between Germany and Russia during this decade.

Weighty opinion from the other side is that General Von Brauchitsch, rather than Hitler, Goering or Rosenberg, schemed the Russo-German deal and forced it to a conclusion through his unquestioned hold on the army.

To him is also attributed the plan, the decision, the timing and the start of the drive into Poland. In several instances there have been indications of hostility between the general and Goering, with the betting on the former, if it ever comes to an open break. The general was born in Berlin in 1881 and has been in the army since his early youth. He is handsome, imposing and brilliantly educated, within the limits of the old army caste, and has employed power in a manner to make him an ace exhibit in Dr. Rauschning's "revolution of nihilism."

GETHSEMANE: TRIUMPH THROUGH SURRENDER

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 26:36-46.
GOLDEN TEXT—Not as I will, but as thou wilt.—Matthew 26:39.

Surrender brings victory. The world would say that our statement is not true; surrender is the mark of defeat. It is the final chapter in a story of struggle against impossible circumstances, against a stronger power, and finally of giving up to accept the bitter sorrow of subjection and sometimes destruction. But again we say, the way of strength is through surrender, for we speak of the spiritual realm and of our relationship to God. Here there is no victory until there is surrender. In fact, the measure of victory is the degree of surrender. Full submission to Christ means complete triumph for the Christian. The Lord Jesus does not ask His disciples to walk a way which He has not trod Himself. He went the way of full surrender to the will of God in the garden of Gethsemane. We observe five things about this way of "triumph through surrender." It was

I. A Way of Sorrow (vv. 37, 38). He was exceedingly sorrowful unto death. It was not an easy thing that the Saviour did as He fulfilled the will of God the Father in the garden. We know that no man ever sorrowed as He did on that day, for only He bore the sins of the world. There is, however, a lesson here for us who are His disciples. If this is the road the Master trod, should not His servants tread it still? The way of victory for us is through surrender.

II. A Way of Self-Denial (vv. 39, 42, 44). Self-denial does not consist in depriving one's self of some little cherished luxury. It means the denial of self, namely, that self-will is put aside and God's will is supreme.

It was no "easy thing for Jesus to carry out the Father's will and to go to the cross. He was submissive to that will; yet in this hour of anguish in the garden, when the unspeakable horror of what lay ahead almost overwhelmed His soul, it means much to say, "Not as I will but as thou wilt" (Dr. B. L. Olmstead). It may be a hard thing to do, but by His grace we too may say, "Thy will be done."

III. A Way of Loneliness (vv. 36, 37, 40, 41, 43).

There were three disciples with Him as He entered the garden, and their very presence reminds us how very much alone Jesus actually was. There were twelve with Him in the upper room, but one went out into the darkness to betray Him. Eleven came with Him to the gate of the garden, but only three came into the garden with Him. Even they could not go all the way with Him. He prayed and agonized alone, and the three who were near at hand failed Him and slept through the dark hour when He most needed their fellowship in sympathy and prayer.

Alone? If the Master had to walk the way of surrender alone, let no Christian expect that it will be otherwise for him. Let us thank God for every blessing of true fellowship, but let us not be surprised if we are often called to walk alone—with God.

IV. A Way of Betrayal (vv. 45, 46). "He is at hand who doth betray me" "into the hands of sinners." One feels that the cup of the Master is already overfull without adding betrayal by one of His own, but there it is, a dark and tragic reality. Note with what peace and assurance Jesus goes to meet it. The victory has already been won in prayer, in communion with the Father, and in submission to His will.

No one of us will ever know such a betrayal as that of our Lord, but we do face similar crises as we go on in a life of devotion to God's will. We do well to remember the experience of Christ that we be not overwhelmed by the treachery of men and that we prepare ourselves to meet it with the power and grace of our God.

V. A Way of Divine Fellowship and Blessing (vv. 39, 42).

The way of surrender is a glorious and delightful way to go. But, some one may ask, have we not been talking of sorrow, self-denial, loneliness and betrayal? Yes, but even these things may become the means of blessing if God is in them. Though no man stood by our Lord in His experience in Gethsemane, the Father was there. Jesus talked with Him, prayed to Him, trusted Him, yielded fully to His will, and the result was peace and blessing. We read in Luke 22:43 that an angel also came and strengthened Him.

Buddhist Masses
Beetles on Pay Roll

Several cottonseed oil mills in the South still use the coarse hair of Chinese women to weave the mats through which the oil is separated from the seeds after they have been mashed by hydraulic process. One large mill in Memphis purchases 2,000 heads of such hair a month for this purpose.

The Japanese hold the world's most sentimental ceremonies—Buddhist masses for the "souls" of such objects as ships that have been sunk, oysters that have been eaten, dolls that have been smashed and needles that have been broken in the past year.

More fish is used in manufacturing processes and products than is eaten as food.

Because of its high nitrogen content, most of the hogs' hairs obtained in the slaughtering houses of this country is made into fertilizer.

The American Museum of Natural History in New York keeps a small "army" of live beetles, whose job is to clean the bones of animals before they are mounted.—Collier's.

COUNTRY NEWSPAPERS

"It should be borne in mind that the maintenance of the country newspapers is a matter of vital importance to the entire country. It is the most typically American institution that yet remains. Pull the Trigger on Constipation, and Pepsin-ize Acid Stomach Too

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how Pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

Country weeklies are not the only papers that make mistakes. Last Sunday the Dallas News carried a large picture upside down. Speaking of the News, that grand old paper has promised its readers that it will show no more debutantes and escorts at banquets sipping their champagne, wine, or what have you. They showed some such parties lately, and in the people's section they certainly crawled all over the News—hence the promise.—Terry County Herald.

THE SCOUT OATH AND LAW

The scout law is the foundation upon which the whole scout movement rests. By committing himself to the scout oath the boy promises to live up to this law with its ideals of self-development and service to others. It is the fulfillment of this promise that makes a boy a true scout.

In the scout law is expressed the goal toward which he will be striving in an effort to become a man of strong character, courteous and helpful to those who need this aid, a man who can be trusted.

The genius of scouting is most evident in the law of the movement. It was based upon the codes of old, transformed into a positive, living ideal for the modern boy, devised as a guide to his actions rather than as a repressive of his faults. That is what makes the scout law outstanding.

Most other laws start out with a "Do" or a "Don't," a "You must" or "You may not"—they are either commanding or prohibiting, prescribing punishments for their breach.

Not so the scout law. It is a statement of FACTS, of what is expected of a scout. "A scout is trustworthy, loyal, helpful . . ."

By keeping this inspiring guide before each individual boy from the minute he is received into scouting at an appropriate investiture ceremony, and by placing him in life situations in which he may exercise his loyalty of the scout ideals, the wise scoutmaster, the scoutmaster of imagination and vision, is able to instill into each individual boy a desire to help others, and yearning to do his utmost to keep himself "physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight."

The entire scout law and the scout oath loom large in affecting the boy's whole attitude toward life and influencing his daily conduct. It is by aiding him to keep that oath and to live that law that we shall most surely reach our goal of fashioning his character and preparing him for participating citizenship.

IRISH EYES

THE STORY THUS FAR

Sheila Carscadden, blue-eyed, reddish-haired and 21, loses her job in New York by offering useful but unwelcome suggestions to her boss.

Toward mid-morning Sheila was wanted at the telephone. This was a quite unprecedented occurrence.

It was not Peter. It was Frank Mc Cann who had called.

"I mean—my young lady has an engagement this afternoon," Frank said in his easy, self-confident way.

Sheila was bewildered. Her wits deserted her completely.

CHAPTER V

Still, she did not intend to go to the library.

She couldn't go to the library anyway, because Joe was usual on Saturdays called for Cecilia, and it was natural that they should all walk out into the cold streets together.

At twenty-five minutes of four Sheila found herself alone in the cold, dirty, dark street.

She hesitated; walked a block east. No, she wouldn't keep this date with Peter!

Resolutely, Sheila changed to an express train, was whirled north, under the thundering streets.

The drug-store clock said three forty-eight. Suddenly, breathlessly, Sheila had turned, had crossed the street to the downtown subway, had plunged in her nickel, and pushed through the turnstile.

She was on her way. She would be late. No matter, he would wait.

The Law Library was on the fifth, and top, floor of a dark old rubber-and-top floor of a dark old rubber-scented building, whose mahogany-paneled elevators tottered on their way up.

Peter was not in sight. Sheila stood hesitant, with shame and self-contempt in her heart.

"Good girl!" he said in approval. And Sheila was instantly sorry that she had come. It was giving in to him; he had known that she would; he was taking her for granted.

"You look swell!" he said, evidently surprised at her smartness. Suddenly everything was flat and dull.

was leading the way through the room toward a sort of large alcove at the back.

In the room were old shelves lined with books, a long table with a worn black leather cover held in place by nail-heads, two or three old chairs, a library ladder.

"Sit down," Peter directed her. He lighted a dangling light. "Listen," he went on, "I had to talk to you. Listen, why didn't you ever write me?"

"Sheila was across the shabby, leather-topped table, her linked hands lying before her.

"I didn't know your name." "You heard it."

"Yes, I heard it that morning when we met each other. But I didn't remember it."

"I couldn't find you," he said. "You had my address."

"Yes, but listen. That paper was nothing but a piece of pulp when I tried to read it."

"I wouldn't want you to think that I could talk like that, and just—just be fooling," Peter said, awkwardly.

"Oh, that was all right!" Sheila assured him, vaguely and politely, and they were silent again.

"You see—well, we're getting married on Tuesday!" Peter explained youthfully.

"I know." It seemed to her that all life was a long blank ahead of her. Not that she wanted this particular man, or any man. It was just that everything was dull.

"I had to explain it to you. I tried to find you. I couldn't."

"No, but how's everything?" he asked, out of a silence.

"Fine." "And that girl who was with you, how's she?"

"Rose? Rose Foley. She's fine." Peter watched her intently, across the table, for several long seconds.

"You see—well, she's a great girl," he offered.

"It's all right. But I didn't think either one of us were—were—just fooling," she said, presently, in her soft, plaintive voice.

"I wasn't fooling," he said. "I waited for you, that Tuesday night," Sheila admitted, in a silence.

He winced. "I thought you would." "I'm glad," Sheila said, hesitantly, "that you didn't want to—throw me down."

The homely phrase expressed her meaning, at least. He caught at it. "I never threw anyone down in my life!" he said, looking at her seriously, across the table.

Somehow, with the suddenness of a shock, her feeling altered. The words, the tone in which he said them, awakened her. He was acting—a little. He was enjoying this—just a little. Sheila felt giddy with a revulsion of feeling. She wanted so much to like him—she had dreamed dreams about him for so many months! Now it was as if he were disintegrating before her eyes.

Her cheeks grew red. She continued to look at Peter steadily, but there was discomfort in her feeling now. She wished she had not come to meet him so impulsively, this man who was to marry another girl in less than a week's time.

"Listen how it all happened," began Peter. "I go off for a beach picnic with a couple of fellows, don't I? And I meet a girl—the girl."

off," he began again with gusto; "we like each other. We have dinner together, and we dance together, and along about midnight I find myself telling her that I love her—get me? And it was true, too! I said to that girl, 'You and I are going to be married, Sheila. I'm coming to see you Tuesday night, and meet your folks, and just as soon as we get ready to tell them—'"

"Yes, I know," Sheila interposed, scarlet-checked. "But—"

"Well, I come back to town, I try to find my girl, it can't be done," Peter summarized it rapidly. "For a while I'm all off my feet; I feel rotten. I get to walking up and down strange streets looking for her—no good."

"Well, all the time Gertrude's right in the picture, see? Just like one of my sisters—I mean," Peter interrupted himself, speaking more naturally. "I mean I've always liked Gertrude. And she's always liked me. It was Mother who tipped me off. We were going to Forest Hills for the tennis, one day. She said, 'Now, don't you break Gert's heart on her, Peter! Gert got as red as a beet. 'Ah! I thought, 'is that the way the land lies?' Well, we fixed up everything that day, and everyone was glad. My father got me a job, and everything was fine."

No, he had talked himself out of her heart. It had been done quite simply, in the kindest possible way. She was not losing him, she had never had him; no one had ever had the Peter of her memories, because there never had been such a Peter.

Looking at him, the actual Peter, as she decided this, she was conscious of a sense of light-headedness.

"You're terribly pretty," he said, "and lots of fellows will fall for you. But I wanted you to know that—well, I'm not the sort that says things—things like I said that night—to a girl and doesn't mean 'em. That was the first thing I thought of the other night at home—when I saw you—"

"Well, a lot of fellows wouldn't have thought of that. They'd have thought it was a long time ago; it's over. Not me. I had to see you. I told Gert and Mother, you know."

"You told them?" She was startled out of a musing dream that had carried her miles away; she was thinking that she might get Joe a tie like that for Christmas—

"I told them I'd met you last summer, and I thought you were fine, and that I'd no idea that things were so bad with you."

He smiled at Sheila, and she smiled back. She felt humiliated and cheapened somehow; she wished herself miles away, but he must not see it. After all, it was of no consequence, for in another five minutes he and she would part, and they would not see each other again.

"So that's the way the whole thing came about!" he said, rising. "How much more he would have thought of me if I'd paid no attention to his note, and hadn't come here today," Sheila thought, standing, too.

Peter reached up, ready to snap off the light, glanced at his wrist. "Gosh, it's after five!" he exclaimed, shocked into complete naturalness for the moment. "And I was to go to the tailor for a minute between half past four and five, and I have to meet Gertrude at church! What do you know about that—four minutes past five!"

His hand was on the door. Sheila, following him, saw his expression change curiously.

"Why," he ejaculated simply, "it's locked."

"It's stuck."

"Stuck nothing! It's locked."

They investigated. Some fourteen or fifteen feet below them was a dirty, cinderly roof, just the depth of one of the stories of the old building in which they were trapped. A fire-escape's railings curved up over one edge of this roof; there was a tangle of chimneys, tanks, other roof levels about and below.

"We couldn't drop that?" Peter speculated nervously, beside her at the window.

"We'd break our legs."

"Gosh!" he ejaculated, off for another feverish inspection of the room. "My mother's waiting for me now!"

"I know it."

"I'm due at a party at seven!" he boy muttered.

He had returned to the door. It was a high door, deep-set and unpromising. It had been built in that long-ago time when solidity and permanence were considerations in architecture. Even to the pressure of Peter's body it yielded not a quiver. Peter kicked it; it did not stir.

"Gosh, I'll bet there aren't ten doors like that in New York!" he exclaimed bitterly.

NOT HOT POTATOES

There is a man by the name of Jim Davidson in Nebraska who runs the Nebraska Power Company. He has had his share of political troubles in the way of public ownership schemes in the power field. But he hasn't gotten sour. He has just kept on trying to give the best electric service possible in Omaha and surrounding territory.

And here is an incident that shows the constructive attitude of his company which recently hired 15 temporary electric equipment salesmen for 90 days. When their work was done, instead of dropping them like hot potatoes, the company bought a quarter-page advertisement in the Omaha World Herald which said: "Wanted: Jobs for 15 good salesmen." Ten of the men got permanent jobs and five had several offers each to consider.

It is good for the country to know this type of management exists in a so-called "heartless" corporation. The country needs more Jim Davidsons to head its industries.

RADIO ADS FAIL TO SELL

Time after time, as we've diabled our radio off some highly-praised or long-winded radio announcement seeking to publicize some article for sale, under the guise of giving some featured entertainment, we have wondered whether those ads, and that kind of advertising could be listened to by very many persons, and whether it could be remembered more than 90 seconds by those who did.

The Chicago Tribune, one of the biggest and greatest daily newspapers in the world, which also owns a radio station, recently conducted a survey to determine the "get over" of programs, and here is what they found:

Out of 9,900 daytime (8 a. m. to 6 p. m.) telephone calls to private homes in the Chicago market made Monday and Tuesday, we found these conditions prevailed:

24% of the homes that we reached or attempted to reach were not answering the telephone.

61% of the 9,900 families called were at home and not listening to any radio program being broadcast at that time from the numerous stations, and found that only approximately 14% of the people called had their radios turned on.

A baseball game, broadcast at 2 o'clock was checked, and we found that approximately:

34% of the families did not answer the telephone (apparently not at home).

52% were at home but not listening. 14% had their radios turned on and only 8% actually listened to the game.

Then we made a survey of a football game being broadcast. It was on Saturday, and a Northwestern-Minnesota game—rather important in our section:

23% not answering the telephone. 53% at home but not listening. 24% with radios turned on, and only—19% actually listening to the broadcast.—County-Wide News.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

"What is the chamber of commerce doing?" ask citizens of a community. Or, again, "Why doesn't the chamber of commerce do this-and-so?" is another favorite expression.

The first query may be answered in most small towns very pointedly: "It is not accomplishing a great deal," simply from the fact that so few citizens of the community assist the officers in plans which they undertake.

In the second instance, the answer is given "that the chamber of commerce cannot do this-and-so because it has so little funds upon which to operate."—Canyon News.

BUYING VOTES

White men used to buy negro votes by paying over the cash on election day. Our modern officials have that system skinned a city block. They give rentals and benefit payments and subsidies to numerous special classes of our citizens who would spurn a bribe. But the effect is just the same; and there is this advantage: they pay off with government funds.—Lynn County News.

SHE "KILLED HER HUSBAND"

Every time I see Sterling Holloway, successful Fort Worth attorney, an incident of years ago comes to mind.

Holloway graduated from the University of Texas law school, was delegate to a Y. M. C. A. convention in Europe and then went to Eastland to serve as assistant district attorney. One morning a plainly-dressed, middle-aged woman whose features told a story of hardship and lack of opportunity entered. He did not recognize her as having been defendant in a sensational case some time previously when she was acquitted because of unconsciousness of mind, nor did he know that her neighbors, with a queer idea of humor, had told her 'hat, if she took possession of a piece of land and held it for four years, the State would buy it from her.

After the young lawyer had listened long enough to see that his visitor had nothing to present which was any business of the district attorney's office, he said:

"There's nothing we can do." But this didn't please her at all and she declared: "I don't want any trouble; of course, I killed my husband, but—"

The naturally rosy-complexioned Holloway turned pale and stammered: "You—you—you killed your husband?" "Yes," she calmly replied. "I hit him in the head with an ax and then I cut his throat with a knife because I couldn't stand to see him suffer."

"Sit down, madam, sit down," claimed Holloway, grabbing a pen and paper. "Now just tell me about this land of yours."—By House.

CIVIC PHILOSOPHY

If you want a good school, a good town, a good state and nation, pay your taxes. If you say you want things to be good and don't pay your taxes, your actions make up noise that we can't hear what you say. You can pay your taxes, know you can because I have heard there.

MAYBE YOU WILL GET THAT SAME OLD DOLLAR BACK AGAIN

The dollar you spend for printing in McLean, Mr. Merchant, stays right here. It goes to work for your neighbors and customers, and the chances are it will soon be back in its old place in your till again, ready to help you buy the next lot of printing you need.

But the dollar you send out of McLean has, very likely, kissed you good-by forever. It will never work for you again.

It will pay you to remember this the next time you feel inclined to give an order for printing to an out of town concern because you think you can save a little money.
