ANOTHER CALL FOR REDBUD

The last mail brought me a card from a man over in Woods county. He read something like this: "I have read your 'Field and Garden' column on the growing of redbud from seed. Can you tell me where I can go to find some of the seeds? I want to use several hundred plants in a hedge. Is the redbud a good plant for this purpose?" Now, let's just suppose, for a moment, that I had forgotten all about the redbud, except that it bloomed early last spring. I get out my garden notebook and go through the entries for March. There I find the following entry:

"Redbud (Cereis canadensis): Positive theme flower of early spring in Oklahoma. Found in thickets along all stream beds and on the margins of low woodlands, where its pink masses dominate the view across adjacent fields. Look for it next fall to collect seed and to study its character in foliage." And so I went to see the redbud again this afternoon. As I walked across a field I could readily pick it out of the distant woodland margin, its coarser foliage standing out in pleasing contrast against the neutral background of elms, hackberries and pecans.

As I approached another familiar sight came to my view, a sight of the large, roundish heart-shaped leaves, suspended in rhythmic regularity along the graceful twigs, each one casting its shadow across the one below it. Half buried by the leaves were the brown seed pods, hanging thickly along the stem like many pendants on a lady's necklace. I hope the man over in Woods county finds it, I hope he likes the plant in the fall as much as he did in the spring. As for the hedge, redbud would be just right, with two reservations. First, it should be left to grow unsharped, as shearing would destroy its most desirable characteristics. Second, if a screen or wind-break is desired, the branches will be too open after the leaves have fallen in autumn. But whether it is used as a hedge or just for its sheer beauty, the redbud will hold its own as an interesting plant in the winter garden, its graceful branching habit on par with the finest or foreign species.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Boiled Vegetables.—Vegetables, if allowed to stand in water after they are boiled, become soggy. Drain off water they are boiled in and use for soup stock.

Light-Weight Blankets.—Wool blankets and light-weight comforters give warmth without excess weight and pressure, and insure the sleeper a restful feeling on arising.

Washing Silk Crepes.—To wash silk crepes or georgettes use warm water and white soap. Do not rub, but squeeze the garment through a good suds. Rinse several times and iron on the wrong side when partly dry.

NEW REMEDY FOR UGLY HUSBANDS

When your husband (or wife) gets cross, ugly and grouchy; when he finds fault with the coffee, the eggs, the bacon, and the cook, you may well suspect that he has a touch of biliousness or so-called "Torpid Liver," so prevalent in hot weather. All he may need to set him straight is a little Calotabs, or better still, Calotabs, the improved calomel compound tablets that make calomel-taking a pleasure.

Calotabs give you the combined effects of calomel and salts, helping Nature to expel the sour, stagnant bile and washing it out of the system. One or two Calotabs at bedtime with a glass of water—that's all. Next morning your system feels clean and refreshed, your head is clear, your spirit bright, and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you wish and go about your work or pleasure.

Genuine Calotabs are sold only in checker-board (black and white) packages bearing the trade mark "Calotabs." Avoid imitations. Family packages only twenty-five cents; trial package ten cents, at your dealer's. (Adv.)

Some people seem to be unable to distinguish the difference between dreams and reality.

It's strange that gambling games are not outlawed at carnivals, school, club and church affairs.

How long is it going to take people to realize that every cent spent for pensions, relief and other things by the government must of necessity come out of the taxpayers' pockets?

Dr. Townsend and Governor O'Daniel have made promises to the old people, but to date they have been able to do very little toward making their promises good; which is perhaps just as well for all of us.

Eastland county voted beer out last Saturday week by over 200 majority. With the towns of Ranger, population 6,208; Cisco, 6,027; and Eastland, 4,648, voting, it would seem that there is something wrong with beer. As we have not heard of 3.2 beer in a long time, maybe beer is back to its old status as an intoxicating beverage.

Now it is claimed that Johnson grass is the solution to holding the lighter soils of the plains. One farmer near Dalhart has 1,000 acres of the grass and he claims that his Johnson grass gives him greater returns through pasturage than the same land in cultivated crops. Land intended for the grass should not be planted to anything else, as the grass is a pest in cultivated land.

The weekly digest of war news carried by this paper comes as near giving the facts as can be found anywhere. It is practically useless to try to follow the war news each day, as censorship colors it until there is no way to tell fact from propaganda. Our analyst is a trained reporter who carefully sifts the facts from the news that reaches this country, and his items can be depended upon to contain no European propaganda.

Bouquets are comparatively rare in the editor's life, but last week we received two. Mrs. W. E. Bogan says she likes the editorial column and has been thinking for some time of mentioning it to the editor, as she believes in scattering flowers among the living. Mrs. H. E. Franks liked one editorial in last week's issue particularly well on account of its timeliness and constructive nature. The editor appreciates the thoughtfulness of Mrs. Bogan and Mrs. Franks. It is things like this that give one inspiration for better work and adds much to the joy of living.

A WEDDING STORY

If you're interested in unusual wedding stories, here's one concerning which the last issue of the Jayhawker Press says:

When Bill Long of the Southwest Daily Times of Liberal, Kan., was married Sept. 4, the write-up, accompanied by a two-column cut of the bridegroom, was termed by Ada Montgomery of the Topeka Capital as "The revolt of the bridegroom." Or, it might be dubbed, "Bill Long's Last Stand." Here it is, as it appeared in his own column:

Mr. Bill "G. R." Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Long, of Overbrook, became the husband of Miss Jan; Dunlap in a beautiful ring ceremony yesterday morning at 10:05 o'clock. He was attended by Mr. Robby Dunlap as groomsmen.

Blushing prettily, he replied to the questions of the minister in low but firm tones, never indicating that he noted the omission of the "obey" question in the bride's answers.

He was attractively clad in a three-piece suit of blue woolen material consisting of coat, vest and pants. The coat was charmingly festooned with a white flower in the left buttonhole.

The vest was sleeveless, closed in front, and gracefully fashioned with pockets. It was held together at the back with a strap and buckle.

His pants were neatly pressed for the occasion and he wore them with an air as if he little suspected it would be the last time he "wore" them.

Some people fail because they never begin. More fail because they never finish. Stick-to-it-iveness wins often than genius or luck. You may make mistakes, others may misjudge you. You may be tired and discouraged. You may be tired and discouraged. But if you stick by and by everything and everybody will give way to you.

If you have principles, they will do you no good unless you stick to them. If you do not stick to your friends, you do not deserve friends. If you do not stick to your job, you cannot make a success of it and find a better one. In a troubled and anxious time of the civil war, Gen. Grant said, "I will fight it out on this line if it takes all summer." Let that be your motto.
