Free Cooking School Opens Today

The News Happy Kitchen Cooking School begins this afternoon (Thursday), at 2 o'clock.

Cooking was considered the servant's problem in grandmother's day but times have changed and the modern home-maker knows it is her job to be interested in the food that is served at her table.

Modern methods take the place of make-shift, and cooking becomes an art that takes its place in the front row of health. We know this to be a truth, and realizing its importance to all homes. The News takes pleasure in presenting Mrs. A. D. French, well known home economist and lecturer, who has talked to thousands of women, and who now comes to conduct the Happy Kitchen Cooking school at the Southwestern Public Service Company office, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Each day the Happy Kitchen Cooking School will present new and interesting hints on home-making. The problem of making each dollar of the budget reach farther will be discussed. New methods in planning the meals will be given, as well as new ways to serve the old-stand-bys that are favorite dishes in every family. How to arrange your kitchen to save steps and work . . . what you need in a properly equipped kitchen. Every phase of home-making will be covered, and so many interesting high-lights on modern home management that you will want a note book with you so you can jot down notes to keep for future reference.

It will be to your advantage to attend each day of the Happy Kitchen Cooking School. Something new and interesting will be given each day, including new recipes, new menus and new household hints. Make arrangements now to attend each day. A number of free gifts will be made each day of the school. Be sure to register each day and don't forget that the sessions each afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock are free to everyone who desires to attend. All are welcome.

BRIDGE CLUB ORGANIZED

Mrs. Delbert Daniels was co-hostess at the meeting.

MERCHANTS INVITED

Mrs. French will serve hot gingerbread and coffee to the merchants at 10 o'clock Friday morning, as a part of the cooking school program. All business men have an invitation to visit the school at this time.

THANK YOU, DOCTOR!

The eminent Dr. William Lyon Phelps of Yale recommends the reading of newspapers for longer life. "The money invested in a newspaper is one of the greatest aids to vitality we have," Dr. Phelps says. "The paper provides us with interests that will take us out of ourselves. The more we are interested in things beyond ourselves, the better we can combat despondency and trouble, and the longer we live," he concludes.

ALANREED COMMUNITY FAIR OPENS TUESDAY

The fourth annual Alanreed community fair will be held Tuesday of next week, Oct. 1, with a prospect of being the largest fair ever attempted by the board of directors.

There will be no admission charge to this year's fair, and in addition to the agricultural exhibits there will be a curio section, school exhibits, boys' 4-H club exhibits, girls' 4-H clubs, home demonstration club exhibits, and a fair carnival.

Catalogs are out and everyone has an invitation to enter any of the competitive exhibits. Ribbons will be given for first, second and third places in all exhibits.

Alanreed extends a cordial invitation for everyone to attend the fair some time during the day.

The board of directors under whose auspices the fair is being staged are: President, L. L. Palmer; vice president, Foreman Stubbs; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. L. S. Prock; Mrs. Oscar Tibbets, Frank P. Wilson, Mrs. Hugo Remer, T. T. Griffin and D. W. Turner.

NEW CHURCH IN FORMAL OPENING

An all day fellowship meeting and formal opening of the new church will be held next Thursday, Oct. 3, at the Assembly of God Church at the corner of Main and North 4th Streets. The meeting will begin at 10 a. m. and continue throughout the day.

Visitors from all over the Texas Panhandle are expected to be in attendance. Rev. H. M. Reeves, superintendent of the West Texas district council of the Assemblies of God, will be one of the main speakers, with Rev. H. E. Comstock, Pampa pastor and presbyter of this section, in charge of the services. Special singers and musicians will be present to contribute to the services. The revival now in progress will continue through this week with services at 7:45 each evening. The pastor, Rev. R. L. Franks, extends a cordial invitation to the public to attend all the services.

RECEPTION FOR FACULTY AT LAWN SUPPER MONDAY

A reception was given the faculty of the McLean schools at a lawn supper under the trees at the First Baptist Church Monday evening.

Long tables were spread from well filled baskets, and supper was served to some 247 people.

Pastor Troy A. Sumrall of the host church was master of ceremonies. Rev. W. R. Maxwell, Pentecostal Holiness pastor, gave the invocation, and Rev. John W. Myrose, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, had charge of the games following the supper.

Supt. C. A. Cryer presented the various members of the faculty after a few appreciated humorous remarks. The affair was sponsored by the Women's Fifth Tuesday Council of Churches.

ALANREED RED CROSS ROLL CALL CHAIRMAN

C. T. Howell of Alanreed has accepted the chairmanship of the McLean chapter committee for that community, it was announced this week by Charles Cousins, chapter chairman.

Mr. Howell and his committee, which will be appointed later, will be responsible for all Red Cross activities in the Alanreed district. The jurisdiction of this committee will be the Alanreed independent school district.

As chairman of the committee, Mr. Howell becomes a member of the McLean chapter board. He also serves as roll call chairman for his district. An objective of 30 members has been set for that community. Funds will be spent by the community for health and relief purposes.

CAR CRASHES INTO BROOKS TAILOR SHOP

A run-a-way car crashed into the rear of Brooks Dry Goods building occupied by the tailor shop, last Friday, smashing the double doors and making about a four foot hole in the brick and tile wall, and breaking a water pipe.

The driver of the car had parked across the alley on an elevation and tried to start the car by pushing it, but the car got away from him before he could get into the driver's seat, with the above results.

The accident occurred during school hours, or some children might have been killed or injured, as it is a customary spot for them to play after school.

NEW FUNERAL HOME FORMAL OPENING SUNDAY

The Womack Funeral Home will hold its formal opening Sunday afternoon with a religious dedication service at 5 o'clock, to which all are invited.

Singers from various towns served by the home will be present and several special numbers will be given. Full particulars are given elsewhere in this paper.

DRUM AND BUGLE CORPS

A girl's drum and bugle corps with 23 members has been organized at the high school to add color to the football season.

Instruments and uniforms have been ordered and may be on hand for the opening game Friday.

Some $260 was raised by donations for pep squad uniforms, which was used to outfit the corps. No regular pep squad will be organized this year, but the whole student body will be in the cheering section at the games.

Library News

By Catherine Patterson

The McLean free library is now located in the city office building with an entrance on the north side street. With the beautiful new tables in natural wood finish, the library is adequately equipped to render excellent service to all of its patrons. Things are in proper order and everyone is invited to visit the library in its new location. Open hours are 12 to 5 p. m. daily except Sundays and legal holidays.

The books in the library may be borrowed free or charge. No deposit is required for the books. Two books at a time may be checked out by one person, and they may be kept for one week. However, if the books are returned after the date due, a fine of 2c per day for each book must be paid by the borrower.

Magazines and books have been coming in daily, and the library board is grateful to each and every donor. People who have read their current issues of Life Magazine are asked to donate them to the library.

A book fund has been established and it is hoped that new books purchased from this fund will be on the shelves within the next few weeks. Anyone desiring to contribute to this fund may do so by placing the contribution in the bank on the librarian's desk. All contributions to this fund will be used strictly for the purchasing of new books.

During this week there is a small collection of bird pictures on display in the library. The pictures are all in colors and the eggs of each bird are shown.

The public is cordially invited to visit and to use the McLean free public library.

STATE-AID TREACHEROUS

One of the most treacherous trends in taxation today is recognized in the practice of what is called "subventions" or "state-aid" to local governments.

Briefly, we mean by "subventions" and "state-aid," funds that are collected by the state and paid out of the state treasury to counties and municipalities for local purposes.

Accepted eagerly by local governments because of the instinctive desire for "something for nothing," the practice invariably becomes deeply entrenched in a state before taxpayers realize that it is they who must foot the bills.

Since it looks like "easy money," the local governments try to get as much of it as they can, and many local officials even boast to the taxpayers when they get a big haul from the state.

The "catch" to this system of governmental spending is that the money really comes from local taxpayers in the first place. It is a well-known but little heeded axiom that "the government can give to the people only what it takes from the people." There is no place for the government to get its revenue except from taxpayers.

It is vitally important that taxpayers prevent the practice of "state-aid" and "subventions" from spreading. It must be admitted that the most effective way to keep the cost of government within the paying ability of taxpayers is to keep local expenditures under local control. Since "state-aid" to local governments looks like "easy money" it leads to "easy spending" and discourages economy. —News, Hammon, N. J.

A very particular housekeeper was having her bedroom painted. Wishing to learn what progress the painter was making, she crept to the bottom of the stairs and listened. Not a sound reached her ears.

"Painter, are you working?"
"Y's, ma'am."
"I can't hear you making a sound."
"Perhaps not, ma'am. I ain't putting the paint on with a hammer."

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Cheney, Mrs. Thos. Aslby and daughter, Miss Nora, were visitors in Amarillo Friday.

For Fresh Only

Just as a kitten lives in darkness for the first few days of its life, so all freshmen live through a similar period.

Luckily enough, after the first week here in the M. H. S. corridors, most fresh open their eyes to the fact that high school is more than just rushing to beat the bell—checking down a sandwich in forty minutes—or carrying an armload of books.

Despite all his fears, the first week never hurt the "greenie." It's those following weeks that mark the trail for his four year trek.

Perhaps the first milestone along his way is that of the study hall. The noise may be bothersome at first, but soon it becomes just a pleasant background for a period of concentration. Furthermore, little bits of lessons

Neglected day by day.

Make one's grades drop lower—Such standards just don't pay.

Naturally each study hall used wisely means more leisure after school as well.

Another point which shouldn't be overlooked is that of making friends.

Friendship is too precious to ever wear a price tag. The sooner the freshman gets acquainted, the more he'll enjoy high school life.

Then, too, don't hesitate to take part in school functions, for the student who participates will discover his gain to be far greater than he who sits back and applauds the achievements of others. — Lehman Journal.

FASHIONS OF THE WEEK

This week the girls are selected for the fashion news. They are Alice Billie Corts, Opal Nichols, Maudie Dale Woods and Madge Burrows.

Alice Billie, the freshman stylist, wears a white blouse, blue skirt, with a blue bow in her hair. She wears saddle oxfords and blue socks.

The sophomore queen of this week, Opal Nichols, better known as Tommy, wears a pink shirt waist dress trimmed with white buttons which represent snails. She wears pink socks and brown oxfords.

Maudie Dale, reigning as this week's model for the juniors, wears a blue dress trimmed with white lace. She also wears a blue bow in her hair. She wears socks to match and white shoes.

Madge, making a fashion hit with the seniors, wears a rose dress with white dots. She wears hose and beige colored shoes.

SNOOPER

Just look what snooper found all neatly written out with red pencil—a love problem solved by geometry: Given: I love you.

To prove: You love me.

Proof:

1. I love you, therefore I am a lover.
2. All the world loves a lover.
3. You are all the world to me.
4. Therefore, you love me.

We hadn't really planned to start a column of "Advice to the Lovelorn," but maybe we have a faculty member who could qualify as its editor.

QUEEN RACE NEWS

The different classes have elected their candidate whom they hope to have reign as football queen.

The race officially opened Friday, and will continue for about two weeks.

The senior queen is Margaret Combs; the junior, Virginia Blackerby; the sophomore, Mary Evelyn Foster; and the freshman, Verena Sargent.

TIGERS LOSE TO PHILLIPS

Saturday night the McLean Tigers played their first game of this season, with the Phillips Blackhawks. The teams were matched evenly in ability only. The Blackhawks have one of the largest class A teams in the Panhandle, while the Tigers average less than 150 pounds per man. What the Tigers lacked in weight was made up for in speed and deception.

The Phillips team made one of their touchdowns in the second quarter, but the try for the extra point was blocked. The Tigers were on the Phillips 15 yard line when the half ended.

The Tigers scored once in the second quarter when Lee went over from the six yard line, and again in the last quarter with a 60 yard run by Cooke. Both attempts for the extra point were blocked.

With less than a minute to play, the Blackhawks caught the Tigers asleep and passed forty yards for the winning touchdown. The extra point was made by a short pass into the flat zone.

The Tigers fumbled several times during the drives toward the Phillips goal line.

Coach Christian is working hard this week to improve several weak points that were evident in last week's game. The Tigers will be at full strength when they meet the Panhandle Panthers on Tiger Field Friday night.

Bill Porter of Shamrock was in McLean Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Atwood were visitors in Berger last Wednesday.

SO SOULFUL, TOO

Madge—I wonder why the Air Corps turned Harold down?

Myrial—I heard it was on account of his eyes.

Madge—Surely not. I think he has lovely eyes!

Rastus—My, but yo' looks prosperous these days.

Sambo—Boy, Ah's livin' off de fat of de land.

Rastus—How come, big boy?

Sambo—Ah runs a reducin' establishment.

A. T. Wilson attended the Amarillo fair last week.

Johnnie Windom and Vernon Ruff attended the Amarillo fair Friday.

GIANT HOG

Carl Geber, farmer near Donna (Hidalgo county) claims to have raised the largest hog in the world. It is a Duroc Jersey and weighs 1,300 pounds. Geber bought the animal in Minnesota when it was a mere pig.

More From U. S.
The European war Argentina imported 18.3 per cent of her goods from Great Britain, 17.6 per cent from the United States and 17.6 per cent from Germany. To American products have replaced the German, lifting the United States far in front of other nations supplying Argentina. In the three months of 1939, this country exports to the South American continent had a tariff value of approximately $14,600,000 as compared with the $25,000,000 now. German goods dropped from approximately $4,400,000 in 1939 to $1,700,000.

Production Increased
The textile industry's five main items, said Emil Rieve, president of the Textile Workers union, have had reduced employment 20 per cent in the past 20 months while production has increased 25 per cent. To illustrate the point, Mr. Rieve testified that 1919 machinery has increased productivity of each employee in silk and rayon industries by 145 per cent; in knit goods, 86 per cent; in hosiery, 77 per cent.

Handkerchief Parachute
All boys who are interested in fun can have fun making and using little parachutes. The materials needed: Some string and a handkerchief. After cutting four pieces of string, each six inches long, fix a piece to each corner of the handkerchief. Then gather the four loose ends together and tie them around a weight, such as a light stick or small stone. If your strings have been tied evenly the parachute is ready.

Ladies "Naughtier"
Women are getting "naughtier" all the time, Federal Bureau of Investigation records indicate. A study of 20 arrest records for 1939 disclosed that 7.6 per cent represented women. Only 6.8 per cent of cases filed in 1938 were those of women. FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover pointed out that, although fewer women than men commit crimes, more women who do break laws commit serious violations.

Babies Increasing
"Baby Crop" in Britain is increasing, contrary to the prediction of scientists that the birth rate will be decreasing, partly due to war. It began increasing shortly after the war and is continuing to rise to statistics disclosed. More than 14,000 babies are being born every week in Britain, with the average of 8,000 marriages a week leading to 9,000 at the beginning of the year.

Lunch Came Back
A man from Malden, Mass., lost his lunch bag when the car he got caught in the door handle of a passing automobile, has it back. He caught the license number of the car which spirited away his empty lunch basket and a policeman found it hanging on the doorknob of William E. Park machine in New Bedford, 50 miles away.

Low Blood Pressure
Low blood pressure is on the increase in America, says a report of A. B. Brower of Dayton, Ohio, of the American College of Surgeons. Slenderizing diets are one of the contributing factors, he reported. Low blood pressure victims live longer than persons with normal blood pressure, but have less energy.

31 Blossoms on Stalk
In her garden, Mrs. Oscar Kummer of Seattle has lilies growing which have produced 31 blossoms on one stalk which is four feet long. The flowers are all clustered at the top, jostling each other gently for a share of the sunlight. The lily has attracted considerable attention.

Hughes Almost President
On election night, 1916, Charles E. Hughes went to bed as President-elect. When he awoke in the morning he discovered that the late votes from California had swung the election for Woodrow Wilson.

Start Low, Finish High
Sound as it may seem, but according to Col. Louis Johnson of the war department, the United States entered the World war with 100 planes and 35 pilots and ended with 22,000 planes and 35,000 pilots.

G. W. T. W.
On April 20, "Gone With the Wind" had drawn more than $17,000,000 at the box office. The 433 color prints of the picture now shown total more than 1,600,000.

Costly Planting
The government a cent and a quarter apiece to grow and plant the 125,000,000 trees set in 131,000 acres of national forest last year.

Wash Rice
Rice should always be washed before cooking. Use cold water and wash it two or three times until the water is clear.

America First
The airplane is an American invention, and the idea of parachute is also an American idea.

Human Body
The average human body contains 60 miles of blood vessels.

We hope the women of McLean will like the cooking school as it has cost a lot of money to put on. If they like the school we will endeavor to make an annual affair of it and in time it should pay its own way as merchants come to see the value of it.

The News appreciates all those who have cooperated in putting on the cooking school. Cards were mailed to everyone who might have been interested in advertising, and in personal interviews almost 100% cooperation was secured. The school is an honest effort on the part of the home paper to give value received to both merchant and those attending the school.

This issue of The News indicates a live town, with most every line of business represented in the advertising columns. The town and community would probably be a lot better off if something approaching this kind of paper could be issued each week, but education as to the value of advertising is a slow process. It takes actual participation in newspaper advertising for a regular length of time to properly determine its value to any business.

DENWORTH BAPTIST W. M. S.

Ladies of the Denworth Baptist W. M. S. met Monday for their monthly mission study class. Mrs. Dick Brown is the new mission study chairman, and we are finishing the book, "All the World in All the Word."

A group of friends met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Billie Blaisdell Sunday afternoon for ice cream and to honor Mrs. Blaisdell with a handkerchief shower on her birthday.

Mrs. G. M. Daugherty, who has been seriously ill the past month, is now on the way to recovery. She is with her parents at Shamrock. Misses Pat Cobbs and Maudie Dale Woods of McLean spent Monday night with Joyce Dowell.

Mrs. Clyde Holloway and Mary Ruth visited relatives at Hedley Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Rath and family visited relatives at Sarah, Okla. over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Cool Griffith, John and Phyllis Ann, and Tommy Nichols were among those who attended the football game at Phillips Saturday.

Charlie Back, Mrs. Lawrence Watson and little daughter, Marie, were in Pampa Tuesday.

Donald Dowell spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Moon at Shamrock.

Wife—What did you rip the back part of my new book out for?

Surgeon—Excuse me, dear; it was labeled "appendix" and I took it out without thinking.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Watkins visited W. B. Upham at a Pampa hospital Thursday.

THE 30-HOUR WEEK

Someone has suggested that the road to prosperity lies through a 30-work-hour week without a reduction of wages. Fine. Suppose we all have it. In case we are producers or manufacturers, of course we will have an equal jump in profits so we can keep up with the procession. You know higher wages mean increased cost of production. If this were accomplished all we would have would be a cheaper dollar. This would benefit the debtor class and work serious injustices to the creditor class. That is, with a cheapened dollar everything would jump in price and those who had their money in collaterals or cash would lose a heavy portion of its purchasing power, while those who owed money could pay it with less effort.—Republican, Humboldt, Iowa.

Mrs. French Recommends Electric Cookery

Because---

ELECTRIC COOKERY IS CLEAN

Electric heat is as clean as summer sunshine. No flames to deposit soot on the bottoms of pots and pans. No greasy vapors from the oven to soil walls and drapes.

ELECTRIC COOKERY IS COOL

Surface units apply heat direct to the bottom of utensils. None is wasted. Oven heat is heavily insulated to keep heat and cooking odors out of kitchen.

ELECTRIC COOKERY IS FAST

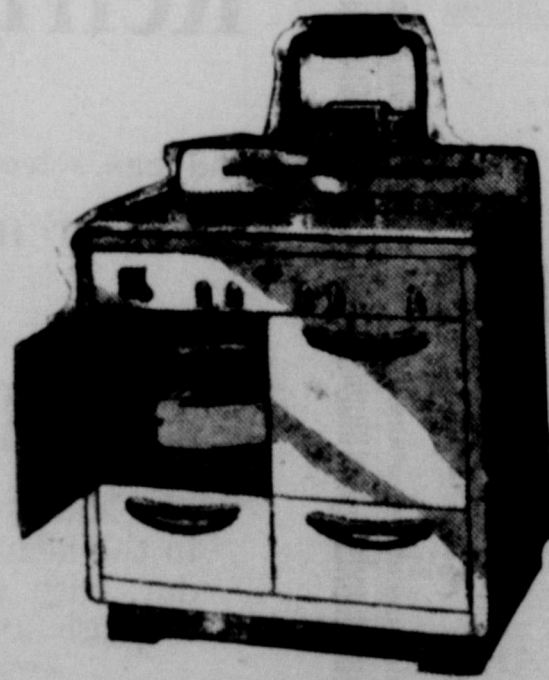

High speed surface units bring glowing heat almost instantly. Small amount of water required speeds cooking operation.

ELECTRIC COOKERY IS ECONOMICAL

"Waterless" electric cookery reduces shrinkage—makes meats go further. Tenderizing effect of "waterless" cookery permits use of cheaper cuts of meat.

ELECTRIC COOKERY SAVES TIME

Automatic operation enables you to put dinner in the oven and leave the kitchen. Oven turns on automatically at predetermined time, cooks food to perfection, then snaps off. Meats are cooked perfectly without basting.

LOAF AND BE WISE

The importance of Lin Yutang, the Chinese philosopher, points out that those who are too busy can't be wise and the wisest man is he who loafs gracefully.

Try and creative thinking are as important as the pols. When you asked how often have you said: "I haven't time to think?" Remember that great executives have valued the value of loafing. John Rockefeller once was asked why he paid a certain man $100,000 a year. In reply, Mr. Rockefeller said: "I put his feet on his desk and cannot generate their best ideas when they are eternally busy. They must slow down to up the quality of their think-late Dr. Elmer R. Gates of Chase, Maryland, created more than two hundred useful patents. He got his ideas by going into a room, relaxing and concentrating on his problems. Before him a small table with a pencil and a sheet of paper, and on the wall a switch controlling the lights. He sat in silence until the light flashed—then he turned on the light and made his notes.

Christopher Morley, the famous author, told a group of us once that he sits on a davenport reading detective stories when some of his best ideas flow into his mind.

Hubbard declared that he got some of his best thoughts while on horseback or digging in the dirt. He's too much piffle about pep. Many think they are cheating if they are not rushing. We would like more of our problems, develop ideas, if we would do more loafing. Let's loaf more and be

WAR PREPARATIONS

In France and England, war preparations were limited to lip service for months, because the government leaders were unwilling to bear down and tell racketeering labor leaders that the time had come for co-operation. Had French government leaders adopted a firm policy with communistic leaders and had those leaders been told to keep their men at work, France would have lasted longer against the Hitler "blitzkrieg." Instead, France refused to abandon the 40-hour week and its governmental officials chose to coddle labor leaders because of politics.

We have something of the same basic situation in this country right now. It is well known, of course, that Mr. Roosevelt has favored the labor leaders who could control votes. He was not alone. Others have done the same thing—Republican as well as Democrat.

Only lately, Mr. Roosevelt said at the White House that, come war or peace, there would be no modification of the New Deal policy respecting shorter and shorter hours of work. This New Deal reform was to stand, he said, and he is evidently going to stand on that declaration, just as the French did some months ago. Since the President is so firmly committed to this policy, I am wondering when this nation is going to draw its belt tighter and get down to war preparation.—William Bruckart.

Womack Funeral Home to Have Formal Opening Sunday Afternoon

The Womack Funeral Home will conduct a religious dedication service at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Sept. 29, when the ministers of the city and their respective congregations will gather at the new Womack Funeral Home for a joint community religious service. Musicians from McLean, Wellington, Memphis, Clarendon and Amarillo will render a musical program that will be very outstanding. The McLean girls' quartet will have a leading part on the program, the Kelso girls' ensemble from Wellington are outstanding singers, composed of six young ladies; while from Memphis comes an 8-year-old boy accordionist with his young sister; to play and sing; while from Amarillo will come some of the leading singers and accomplished musicians from that city. The personnel of the Womack Funeral Home requests everyone to be present at this service. Invite your friends, they will always remember this program. If you enjoy good religious singing, then you will surely enjoy this program. Advertisement 1c

Announcing the big
NEW FORD 1941 FORD

In some years, some cars take a big jump ahead. The Ford does that for 1941.

It has jumped ahead in size. It's the biggest Ford we've ever built, inside and out. It's wider. It has a longer wheelbase. Its seating room is wider by as much as 7 inches. It has new wide doors and semi-concealed running boards.

You'll notice also a new beauty, achieved by a skillful blending of mass with longer flowing lines. Larger windshield and windows give better vision all around.

One of its biggest advantages is the new soft ride.

New, slower-action springs give a slow, gentle, gliding movement. A newly designed stabilizer helps absorb road shocks, and maintains balance on sharp curves and in cross winds.

More rapid acceleration to match its familiar speed and power makes this new Ford an even livelier car to drive.

These are only a few of this new car's outstanding features. It represents all the rich experience gained in building more than 28 million motor cars.

Any Ford dealer can give you many good reasons for making this your 1941 car.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

By Roger Shaw

16,500,000 Expected to Register for Draft On October 16, as President Signs Bill; U. S. Political Campaign Is Warming Up; Nazis Continue 'Hammering' of London

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

CONSCRIPTION: Ready, Set—!

Congress passed and sent to the President the Burke-Wadsworth military conscription bill, which provides that all male citizens between the ages of 21 and 36 will be required to register for possible service with the armed forces. Two days later the President signed the bill into law.

Under present plans, such registration will take place on October 16, 1940, with 400,000 trainees scheduled to be dressed in khaki by the end of the year. Seventy-five thousand will probably enter service about the middle of November with subsequent quotas of 100,000 or 125,000 until the 400,000 mark is reached.

The much-debated Fish amendment to the measure, which provided for a 60-day volunteer plan before the draft would be invoked, was dropped before the law was finally passed. The Russell amendment which provides for the "drafting" of industry war is modified somewhat in the final act but under its terms the nation will have power to "take over" (lease) manufacturing plants if the owners fail to co-operate properly in the scheme of national defense.

Draft boards will be set up in each community to handle the registration.

WILLIAM KNUDSEN—U. S. Defense Commission production chairman and Maj. Gen. H. H. Arnold, air corps chief, are pictured inspecting a P-40, Allison-Powered pursuit plane during a visit to the Curtiss-Wright plants at Buffalo, New York. Knudsen stated, after a nationwide tour of aircraft plants, that U. S. military forces would be equipped with 19,000 new fighting planes by April 1, 1942.

tion of the 16,500,000 men affected.

DEATH: Two Party Leaders

On the same day death came to an outstanding leader in each of the nation's leading political parties.

Speaker of the House William B. Bankhead died of an internal hemorrhage after an illness of a week and Dr. Glenn Frank, former president of the University of Wisconsin and a candidate for the United States senate in that state's current primary election, was killed in an auto crash near Greenleaf, Wis.

Dr. Frank's son, Glenn Jr., 21, a newspaper reporter, was killed in the same accident.

Sixty-six years old, William Bankhead had served as speaker since 1936. He was the third to die in that office during the Roosevelt administration. He had been a house member since 1917.

Dr. Frank was 52 years old at the time of his death. He had been a Republican party adviser, educator and author. He was chairman of his party's policy committee and was seeking senatorial nomination on the Republican ticket.

NAMES . . . in the news

The duke of Windsor, now governor of the Bahamas islands, off Florida, cabled his congratulations to brother George, for his family's escape from German bombs. Premier Mackenzie King of Canada did the same thing.

Authorized German forces declared that Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering, chief of the Nazi air force, flew over London at the controls of a Junkers plane, in one of the nightly raids on that city.

The French Vichy government put on trial ex-Generalissimo Gamella, ex-Premiers Daladier and Reynaud, and ex-Minister Georges Mandel, for bungling or treachery, or any other charge. Really, it was a conservative purge of liberals—one that had been coming on, in France, since the celebrated Dreyfus case of the 1890s.

THE WAR: Hammers

The war had taken this turn. It was the hammer of Thor, wielded by Hitler, beating down on the more or less solid English anvil. The whole struggle had boiled down into an anvil chorus. Its reverberations shook the world.

When a hammer hits an anvil, one of several things can happen. Either the anvil eventually cracks, or the hammer finally shivers in the hands of the blacksmith. Never does an irresistible force meet an immovable object.

This nonchalant London gent, who is taking in his milk from the doorstep, is typical of many Englishmen today. While the constant bombing raids naturally upset the daily routine, the English (according to British news sources) are attempting to adjust their lives accordingly and still live as closely as possible to the "normal" way of doing things.

Hitler might hammer England, until his air force began to weaken. That was perfectly possible. But, if Hitler turned himself into an anvil, how could the English anvil turn itself into a hammer? The hammer may not be able to crack the anvil. But the anvil can seldom, if ever, hammer the hammer. That was what puzzled the critics. England might very possibly defend itself, but how could it strike back, to defeat Germany? If Germany could not cross 20 miles of water to invade a small island, how could little England counter-invade, to conquer a whole continent? What would Churchill's striking force be?

Anvils

The British blockade is one force. How much it can accomplish in revolt in Germany would be another. But there were no signs of revolt in Germany, and the iron grip of whip tanks precluded revolt in the seven subject states and nations. Would Russia act as the English hammer? Otherwise it might drag on as a deadlock between two anvils, neither of which was equipped with a heavy-enough hammer. In the meantime London was being bombarded mercilessly and invasion threatened from day to day. Buckingham palace was no more immune from Nazi bombs than London's "east end."

PARADOX: What a Shame

The British aviators, over Berlin, gutted the famous local Jewish Home for the Aged. Luckily, nobody was hurt. The same day, the royal air force just missed the luxurious home of Joseph Goebbels, German propaganda minister, one of Nazidom's most unsavory figures. The R. A. F. had hit Jewish property, and it missed that of the No. 1 Jew-baiter. What a paradox, and what a shame. Modern air warfare is, indeed, hit-and-run war in the dark.

YEAR 1940: Campaign

Wendell Willkie invaded the natal town of the powerful Kelly-Nash political machine, the home of the Democratic national convention last July, Chicago.

Willkie was greeted by half a million people, and at once attacked the New Deal in four snappy addresses. He spoke to the stockyards, to the Negroes, to the Western Electric, and in South Chicago. At one point, he became so preoccupied that he didn't recognize Mrs. Willkie, when she confronted him.

Said Willkie: "Let me say to you, if you elect me President of the United States, no American boys will ever be sent to the shambles of the European trenches." Then he said: "There are a lot of people in the country who had better do all they can to beat me, because the penitentiary jaws are going to open to some of them."

Just the same his enemies said that he straddled some issues. He had disappointed many mid-western Republicans by endorsing conscription and the 50-destroyer deal with Mr. Churchill, some claimed.

HORRORS: In Jersey

Here are three of the injured victims of the Kenvil, New Jersey, munitions plant blast, pictured shortly after they were struck by flying bombs.

Thirty buildings were left in ruins at Kenvil, N. J. The FBI was called in with a quick rush. Some $2,000,000 worth of U. S. government work was disrupted. Close to 50 were dead, and 200 were injured. It was all caused by a series of hideous explosions at the Hercules Powder company, where 66,000 tons of smokeless powder "detonated" with a series of dull thuds.

Nazi sympathizers were blamed for it, and members of the Dies committee were sent to the scene of carnage. There was open talk of sabotage. The Nazi bund has a camp at Andover, about 12 miles from Kenvil. Later this camp was raided by authorities. Whatever the truth, it was a bad business all round, and more than equalled the contemporary air raids over London and Berlin. In fact, little Kenvil stole the headlines from the spires of Westminster, and the dome of St. Paul's.

III REICH: World's Fair

The long arm of the III reich reached out to Long Island, where the World's fair aquabellies out over many acres. The German "protector" for Bohemia-Moravia—what used to be Czechoslovakia, in part—ordered the Czechoslovak pavilion at the fair to send "home" the products of some 35 Czech firms. The Czech commissioner-general is named George Janacek. Mr. Janacek refused to comply with Baron Von Neurath's command. Said Janacek: "To obey would actually be taking recognition of the German occupation of Czechoslovakia. I will sell as many of the exhibits as I can," added the Patriotic Mr. Janacek, whose joy it is (and no wonder) to defy Mr. Hitler.

He added that the 35 Czech firms in question were "under duress." The 300,000 German soldiers and 50,000 Gestapo men who are holding down the Czechs would tend to agree with Mr. Janacek.

YOUTH: In Flying Boots

Here's a couple of good ones, out of Canada, where men are men, and some people are credulous. It seems, according to Ontario sources, that the German fliers over England are mostly 15 and 16 years old, and that the five-man German bombers are being maneuvered by not more than a couple of kids, still in their teens.

To cap the climax, a Toronto source declared as follows: A German plane was shot down somewhere in England. In the plane were found the bodies of the operating crew. The operating crew consisted of two little girls. These news gems are gleanings from what the boys abroad write home to the old folks. It is all of the same ilk as "Paolo" Revere (Revere's snorting steed was probably named "Il Duce").

REVERE: Call Me Paolo

The Italian press came out with a brand-new one. They said that Paul Revere was a good, Anglo-hating Italian. They said that his first name was really Paolo. They said that this patriotic Paolo Revere was born in sunny Italia, in 1735. This came as a complete surprise to American historians, the poor dopes. The dopey American historians had believed that Paul (Paolo) had been born in Boston, Mass., in 1735. His father was Apollios de Revoire, who came to Boston from the British island of Guernsey (now occupied by the Germans) where they still speak Norman French. In short, Paul Revere was of French Huguenot stock. His silver-smith father anglicized the family name, "merely on account, that the bumpkins should pronounce it easier."

G B S: Shaw Speaks

George Bernard Shaw, the modern English Shakespeare, advised his countrymen to woo the Russians as quick as they could. He pointed out that Winston Churchill had long been an outstanding anti-Russian and red-baiter. But, he added, Mr. Churchill had changed his views. He pointed out that Churchill had declared Lenin was a very great man.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON (Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—The urgency of the times is such that perhaps this country needs a good alchemist more than a good five-cent cigar.

Good Alchemist Possibly we have one in Might Be Our Dr. Samuel Colville Lind, Greatest Need who offers what appears to this department to be the first soundly conservative sanction for the possible availability of atomic power—power in our time.

At the Detroit meeting of the American Chemical society, starting its national defense inventory of chemical skills and resources, Dr. Lind reports a startling advance toward the power riches of the metal uranium 235. Hit a few atoms of U-235 with 50 electron volts and you draw off 200,000,000 electron volts. It looks like a power millenium, which this country could use just now. Dr. Lind says there is plenty of uranium and that the seizure of its power is a practical possibility, not nullified by high costs of the process. Cutting the power atom out of the herd of slightly different atoms is the one great remaining obstacle.

Dr. Lind has been an ace atom-nucleus bomber for many years. His field of radioactivity has been a zone of wizardry in chemistry and he has turned in much basic research, including his ionization theory of the chemical effect of radium rays. He has written extensively on subjects in his field.

From his native McMinnville, Tenn., where he was born in 1879, he went to Washington and Lee university and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, with an educational chaser at the University of Leipzig and later at the University of Michigan, served as chief chemist of the U. S. bureau of mines and is now dean of the institute of technology of the University of Minnesota.

MILLIONS by the hundreds are just about an irresistible target, and perhaps Sunday supplement writers can be forgiven for trying Field Humps at occasionally Keeping English playboy out of Marshall Children Moving Field, although in his heyday his chief sins have been no more than an understandable interest in hunting and horses, and dogs, mainly retrievers.

Now, however, even these trot into the background as he gears up the National Child Refugee committee of which he is chairman. His job is to keep well oiled the wheels that roll English children by the thousands out of the reach of Nazi dive bombers. It must keep him whacking away long after the latest fox has taken cover.

Just the same the supplementers were right on one point. He really has hundreds of millions. They pour down from the original Marshall Fields of Chicago.

In his middle forties now, Chairman Field is sturdily handsome, with a grayish pompadour and a big, sharp nose. He dresses well, as he was taught at Eton and Cambridge where he got his schooling, though conservatively. His pants have no cuffs at all.

THREE Americans talk up the war with King George and one is Major General Emmons of the United States air corps. He is one of the young officers picked by President Roosevelt to give the country's several military arms extra socko. Fifty-two years old, he has been in the army since 1909; with the infantry until 1916, when he was switched to the signal corps. That made him a flier because in those dark and stumbling days the signal corps was all the flying service the United States had.

At birth his parents named him "Delos." Mostly, the Deloses lack adequate explanation of their parents' curious preference, and the general belongs to this forever-puzzled fry.

In full his name is Delos Carleton Emmons. In many given names there is little sense indeed, but in "Delos" there can be no rhyme or reason. This commentator knows one "Delos" who explains feebly that his given name stems from a French cook in a Wisconsin lumber camp where his father was foreman. No more! Not even that he slipped a noble flapjack. The general has one daughter; she undoubtedly has told him he is a man who never learns. Because guess what he named her. Deloise

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE USE AND ABUSE OF WEALTH

LESSON TEXT—Proverbs 11:24-31; Luke 16:11-13. GOLDEN TEXT—Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven.—Matthew 6:20.

Money—its making and using—is a matter which constantly concerns all of us as long as we live in this world. It is the medium of exchange whereby the labors of one man may be exchanged for the labors of another, in the purchase of goods and services. It may be used to send a messenger to the ends of the earth with the good news of salvation or, on the other hand, it may be the ready instrument to destroy both body and soul of those who abuse it. Man may have money, and be a blessing, or money may have a man, and be a curse.

I. The Right Spirit in the Use of Money (Prov. 11:24-26).

What a man does with his money is only a reflection of what he is in his inmost life. The spirit which withholds unless there is a return to itself in pleasure or profit is a selfish and ungodly spirit. To attempt to present one's self before the world as a follower of Christ and to have that attitude toward what one possesses is to deny by one's acts the testimony of one's lips.

Not all "scattering" (v. 24) is commendable. It is possible to be careless and wasteful, and that neither honors God nor helps our fellow men. Then, too, a man may scatter liberally, as the farmer does when he sows seed, knowing that he will have a richer harvest for himself. That is only a different type of selfishness.

The man who knows "God, that giveth to all men liberally" (James 1:5), scatters not only his money, but his riches of mind and spirit in his life and service. He gives himself and what he has to God—and to man as he serves God—and rich is his reward. In sad contrast is the man who keeps his possessions, but finds that withal he has only barren leanness of soul and life.

II. The Good and Bad Use of Money (vv. 27-29).

The man who looks for good finds it, and the one who looks for trouble finds that, too. That is true in the use of money as well as elsewhere in life. One way to end up in certain disappointment is to put your trust in money, for, while it opens many doors, it cannot open the door to heaven, and, while it can buy most things, it cannot buy health and happiness. To seek good, seek the Lord and His righteousness, and you will "flourish as a branch." You may not have the riches of this earth, but you will prosper in those things which are of eternal value. You will be wise in the conduct of the affairs of your own house (v. 29) and life, because you are "wise of heart."

III. The Best Use of Money (vv. 30, 31).

One of America's leading business analysts and statisticians said some years ago that the best investment of funds was in the winning of souls to Jesus Christ. Had man expended the money which should have gone for that purpose, at the right time, we might have been spared the spending of billions of dollars for war in these latter days. "He that is wise winneth souls" (v. 30 R. V.). "And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness, as the stars for ever and ever" (Dan. 12:3).

The glory that awaits the believer in this life and in the life to come, as well as the judgment which inevitably must fall on the sinner (v. 31), should urge us on in the winning of souls. But even more than that, the love of God, and "the love of Christ" which "constraineth us" (II Cor. 5:14), should cause us to put ourselves and our money into His hands, to be used in the winning of souls. Could there be any better use of money?

IV. The Test of the Use of Money (Luke 16:11-13).

Ultimately each one of us must give an account to God of the manner in which we have lived. These verses and others indicate that one of the matters for which we must answer is the manner in which we have used or abused the money or other possessions with which God has blessed us.

We are stewards, and only as we demonstrate our faithfulness and wisdom in the use of the "unrighteous mammon" (v. 11); that is, the money of this world, can God entrust us neither here or in the world to come with His true riches.

Let us be very clear about this point today. It does make a vital difference to your spiritual life how you regard money. You cannot separate your life into compartments, with a spiritual Sunday religion and a do-as-you-please weekday, business or social life. The dollar you spend on Monday is of as much concern to God as the dollar you put in the offering on Sunday.

STRAIGHT
(Guest conductor for
L. L. Stevenson.)

I love New York for its beauty; hate it for its brutality. Unlike any New Yorker, I don't think of it as a grand and exciting place to live. To me, it is a place to come on a boat, through the dawn, when skyscrapers loom through the city mist. Then it is a city of sunrise. But it is not a place to linger long. It is a city to taste and savor—to leave across a bridge; to look back at the tremendous magnitude of its skyline; to listen, to catch its rhythmic, subterranean roar. New York at a distance is wonderful—especially at dawn or dusk, the shadowy outlines of its buildings dotted by lights that blink off and on; its rivers, with their ferryboats, and pleasure boats, and wharfs, and sound, and smoke; its bridges, the most beautiful in the world, swinging so eagerly and so gracefully onto the island, approached by a lacework of parkways.

Although born here, I do not, like most native New Yorkers, have a composite picture of the city that suggests the impressions of various years. I left here when I was 11 years old. I have a picture of the city which my childhood was spent in. I came back for a year; and I have a picture of the city in which I was a busy and serious young student. Away again, and I came back to live outside of the city; and I have pictures of a New York in which I dash on hurried visits which I rush appointments. Usually, they are in connection with the playhouse theater studio at Ridgefield, Conn., where I live and work as assistant director, as a teacher of acting young drama students, as an actress; the most thrilling and, to me, the most important experience of my life.

This New York offers no leisure to wander as one pleases. New York can become, threatens to become, a horror—until one stumbles upon some wonderful person, some funny little shop of a specialist in wigs, or costumes, or sets, or some of the many things needed for stage productions—may be a secondhand shop full of marvelous things, hard to tear one's self away from; an auction sale; a paint shop in Chinatown or on the wery.

Except on Sundays. Then it's a different New York. New York on Sunday or a holiday is a city of great dignity, of peace, calm and quiet. One can walk instead of hurry. One can choose what one will do and do it slowly. One can enjoy moments instead of longing for them.

In the winter, though, New York is at its best. The lights are bright in the cold. The keen air is fresh and clean. Plays, music, movement—yes, the winter is its glory.

In the early spring. In Central Park, the tulip trees; the many games and the children; the dogs and their funny masters, so incongruous; foreign old men with their toy boats on the round pond in the park, their pride in the beautifully fashioned little ships that color or pass so gracefully in the water.

On the drive along the Hudson river, on the edge of the island, looking out to the busy Jersey shore and the towering Palisades, is as fantastically lovely as the views from the heights.

New York today differs from the New York that lingers from my childhood—a city that held the magic of the spears and disappearing faces at the opera; red and yellow flags that whistled in the wind; a man who sold the colored balloons, the circus, roller-skating and dancing with my brother.

It is the New York of my recent days. I loved the evening hours of the park. I loved the quiet, their slowness; people's faces, the crooked little streets of the tenement village; restaurants, a quiet country each night, sitting and talking and relaxing after the elevated looking into the windows of homes, imagining the hundreds of lives being lived behind the walls.

New York! Its beauty makes me forget the brutality that I have loved with hate.

WHY CAN'T HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS READ?

This question was treated fully in a recent number of the Texas Weekly, by Booth Mooney. Mr. Mooney sums up by saying:
"A strong case could be offered in support of the theory that our schools are not doing the job they should do for the precise reason that so much money is spent on them. This is not an anomaly. As the schools have received ever-increasing sums of money from public funds, they have broadened their curricula, added special subjects, introduced new wrinkles into the teaching of old subjects, made additions to their faculties, constructed new and elaborate buildings, consolidated districts and put on school buses, and in general departed radically from the old-time idea of education. And the joke of it is—or would be if the whole thing were not too costly to be funny—that the old-time idea seems not to have been so far wrong after all. Some of the innovations are all right in themselves, to be sure; but it is most decidedly not all right for them to take the place of such a large extent of the basic purpose of the public school system. Nor is it all right that, while doing this, they should cost so much money that the taxpayers' load gets ever heavier, never lighter.
If we could get back to fundamentals in spending tax money for schools, perhaps we could get back to educational fundamentals in the schools. We might get more by spending less—by taking action that "I don't want to live any more," the boy scolded to his mother. A few minutes later the mother found Joe dying of a pistol wound. Justice of the Peace O. L. Wiley said it was a case of suicide.—Houston Chronicle.

TRAFFIC JAM

We read where the Jehovah's Witnesses own a building in San Diego, Calif., and the deed is recorded in the names of several of the major prophets, Daniel, Ezekiel, Isaiah, etc., just to avoid trouble in the courts in case these Biblical characters decide to make an appearance on earth and claim their property. Trouble in the courts would be a minor difficulty compared to the trouble they'd have in getting down the street.—Wits End in Shamrock Texan.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, pain under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, stinging or itching of the urinary tract.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wise in such cases. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nationwide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people in every country over. Ask your neighbor!

"SILKHAT" Fallon tapped Slugger Schultz's hairy chest with a perfectly manicured forefinger. "In the sixth," he said, "you go to sleep. Now, don't forget it. In the sixth."

From across the room, Dinkey Mosely said: "Make it the tenth, Silkhat. Them suckers will think Slugger's a sissy if he lays down in the sixth."

"Yeah," said Slugger, "make it the tenth. I ain't no sissy."

Silkhat considered a moment. "All right. Make it the tenth." He thrust forward his jaw belligerently. "But don't get no fancy ideas about this. You take the full count and a couple to boot."

"O. K.," said Slugger. "For a hundred grand I'd sleep for a month."

Silkhat sucked in his breath. A hundred grand! He liked the sound of those words. They were music to his ears. He looked across at Dinkey. The pack of cards which Dinkey's fingers had been endlessly shuffling had become still in his hands. "A hundred grand!" he breathed. "Silkhat, me an' you is smart."

"How about me?" said Slugger. "Yeah," said Dinkey, "you're smart, too. Yeah."

Slugger didn't like the sound of Dinkey's voice and he glowered. Silkhat stepped quickly into the breach.

"Cut it!" he snapped. "We're all smart, and that goes for the three of us, equal." He grinned. "Tomorrow night at this time, boys, we'll all be in the dough."

Which remark eased the tension and produced a trio of pleasant expressions. However, both Slugger and Dinkey knew that the idea was really Silkhat's. Silkhat was a promoter, a gambler, a man with brains. It was he who had found Slugger in a barroom on First street.

At the moment, Slugger was standing above a giant of a man whom he had just sledge-hammered into unconsciousness for some minor offense. Watching from the shadows near the door, Silkhat had observed Slugger's thick biceps, his bullet-like, almost neckless head. And in that instant the great idea was born.

The fight game wasn't what it used to be, but there were still plenty who would pay a buck or so to see a bull like Slugger sledge-hammer giants into unconsciousness. A year passed and Slugger, under Silkhat's guidance, and having acquired some slight knowledge in the art of pugilism, had battered his way into a dim sort of prominence. Another year, and only one man stood between him and a crack at champion Dynamite Dunn. Dynamite, too, had come up from the ranks, but his career, begun earlier, hadn't been so spectacular. He had slipped back twice in his climb; Slugger had come steadily upward, each rung of the ladder being represented by a knockout.

And now he stood on the threshold with the championship fight less than 24 hours away, and victory practically assured. Odds were 10 to 1 in favor of the Slugger. Fight fans and sports writers had seen him in action, and few there were who doubted that Dynamite Dunn's championship days were doomed.

Which was exactly the situation as farsighted Silkhat Fallon had planned it. Aided by Dinkey and a small army of underlings, Silkhat began quietly to take up the Slugger money. Every cent he and Dinkey and Slugger could scrape together was bet on the supposedly doomed Dynamite. It would be a clean-up. There'd be at least three hundred grand to split three ways and another fifty for the small fry of underlings. Oh, it was a neat set-up, a sure-fire proposition.

Silkhat issued his final instructions to Slugger. "Make this look like the real thing, Slugger. Hit Dynamite and hit him hard—but not quite hard enough. And in the tenth, when you take it on the button, make sure it's enough of a blow to give you a bit. Don't lay there like a log. Try to get up a couple of times, but be sure and flop back again. If them suckers should suspect this was a set-up we'd be mobbed."

Slugger nodded. "I gotcha," he said. "I'll hit him all right. I know how much that jigger can take without going down. I'll look real tough."

Silkhat and Dinkey were in Slugger's corner. They looked out at the crowd of fight fans and exchanged pleased and satisfied glances. They gazed across at Dynamite Dunn, ugly to look at, glowing at them, champing at the bit, full of confidence, resentful of the attitude of the fight fans and eager to show them they were wrong in their estimate of him. Which was excellent; exactly as Silkhat had planned it.

The referee called the combatants into the ring. A bell sounded. The pugilists stepped forward. A roar went up. Silkhat Fallon produced a cigar, bit off its end. His pig-like eyes were on Slugger. Slugger was following instructions. He was hitting hard, but not too hard. It was genuine.

The round ended. It was a good round. The fans were satisfied. The second followed, the third, fourth, fifth and sixth. One was a repetition of that which preceded it. Both fighters were going strong. Dynamite Dunn was revengeful. It was plain he was out to re-establish himself, to reclaim the faith and recognition of the sports world. Which was fine. Splendid.

Silkhat threw away his unlighted cigar and produced another, his fourth. A warm feeling of benignity toward Slugger permeated his being. Slugger was following instructions. Slugger was doing all right. It looked like the real thing. Now in the tenth if he could only go to sleep in a way that would dispel any possible trace of suspicion.

The crowd was howling. Up to now it was Slugger's fight.

He had the edge. Which was as it should be, because the odds were on him. Only a lucky punch on Dynamite's part could turn the tide of battle. And that wasn't at all likely.

Silkhat produced his sixth cigar and bit off its end. It was the ninth round. One more to go, and then it would be all over. Out in the center of the ring the fighters were battling furiously. Dynamite was making a desperate effort to get in his lucky punch. Silkhat clamped down on his cigar—and then his jaw fell open. He stared, and a sickening feeling of horror surged through him. About his ears the air vibrated with the sudden roars and yells of spectators.

The worst had happened. Slugger Schultz had stepped in and driven a left hook to Dynamite's jaw. And Dynamite had gone down like a log. The blow was unexpected, but it looked genuine. The referee raised his hand and began to count. "One—two—three—four—"

Dynamite groaned, tried to rise, reached his knees, hung there. "Five—six—seven—"

Over in his corner, Slugger Schultz stared stupidly, incredulously, thinking that the blow hadn't been nearly as powerful as some of his earlier ones. The cigar fell from Silkhat's parted lips. "Eight—nine—ten!"

The referee lifted Slugger's arm high above his head. Glassy-eyed, Silkhat slumped back, his brain a chaotic whirlwind, but out of the chaos came a vision. The vision was that of Dynamite Dunn lying prone on the canvas. Dynamite Dunn rolling over so that he faced Silkhat, Dynamite Dunn opening one eye and closing it again in an unmistakable wink.

A Book Shelf for The Study Corner

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

SCHOOL again, and this sketch shows a quiet study corner for one girl. It is all very gay in tones of golden yellow and green and was made almost entirely of things already on hand—even down to the hooked rug.

The hanging book shelf doesn't really hang at all. It is made of a box screwed to the wall, and if you never thought of slip-covering a book shelf, here is proof of how smart one will look, especially if it is matched with a chair covered in the same material. The legs of the chair are painted green and so is the old kitchen table which has now become a desk. The yellow tone is repeated in the blotter and an old brass lamp and other desk things carry out the green and yellow color scheme. A shelf like this one would be attractive in almost any room, even the bathroom or the kitchen. This box was so rough that the oil cloth lining was necessary. A box of smooth wood could be painted inside.

NOTE: One hundred sixty of these homemaking articles by Mrs. Spears have been printed in five booklets, each 32 pages. The stacking cat and doll on the shelf are in Book 2; directions for the book rug are in No. 5; also descriptions of the other booklets. Booklets are 10c postpaid and should be requested direct from Mrs. Spears. Send order to:

When YOU dust use O-Cedar on your dustcloth. Dust and NEVER raise a dust. Here's the smart, easy, modern way to dust. Add one tablespoonful of genuine O-Cedar to one pint of warm water, dip your dustcloth in that, dry it and use it. Now when you dust you pick UP the grit and lint and sandy dust. You don't raise clouds; you don't scatter the dust from table to chairs back to tables again... your cloth picks UP the dust, and your furniture is spotless. Ask for:

U. S. Regaining Spirit of Sailing

Great Days Predicted for Big Cargo Fleet Now Riding the Waves.

WASHINGTON.—The spirit of the American clipper ships—a streamlined, diesel-driven spirit—is riding the high seas again.

Officials of the maritime commission cite these signs of a new-born American merchant fleet to match the old traditions when New World sailing vessels ruled the trade routes:

Forty-three spanking new American cargo ships, designed for economical speed and safety, are riding the waves today.

Before year's end, another 25 will join them.

New American cargo ships are sliding down the ways at the rate of one a week.

Shipbuilders are hammering and riveting today at more than twice as many new hulls as they had under way last year.

The latest luxury liner to bid for the glamorous trade of the Mauretania and Queen Marys is the newly launched S. S. America, flying the American flag.

Ships Find New Routes.
Although 110 American vessels were "benched" when the neutrality act barred them from European ports, they have found new work on other trade routes.

Today the American flag has gained new ascendancy on the sea lanes to South America, the Orient and Africa.

Vessels flying Old Glory are twice as important today in the trade of South America as they were before the European war broke out.

On many a ship, cadets freshly trained by coast guard officers have taken their posts beside oldtime graduates of the run-away-to-sea school, and many a toughened salt has taken on new learning in government schools.

At the same time, the navy has signaled its faith in the usefulness of the merchantmen for national defense by calling out seven commercial vessels, some to serve the new "minute-man" mechanized units of the marine corps.

There are even signs of a revival of that pride in America's merchantmen that marked the great days of American sailing ships. One sign is the story being told:

Something of a Record.
An old Hog islander put out of New York harbor on the run to India. Practically a month later, one of the new C-2 cargo ships left the metropolis on the same route.

The two ships returned to their berths in New York within 15 minutes of each other, both loaded to capacity. But the C-2 ship carried 1,000 tons more cargo.

The World war gave great impetus to the merchant marine of the United States, and the nation built $3,000,000,000 worth of ships. But after the war the tonnage of American ships carrying American goods in foreign trade declined again.

In 1936 congress set up the maritime commission, substituting an outright subsidy for the subterfuge of mail contracts which previously had been relied on to offset the difference in costs between American wages and foreign wages.

The Maritime commission set marine engineers to drafting the plans for merchant ships to serve the double needs of American trade and American defense.

It embarked on a building program to provide a fleet of 500 new American vessels in 10 years. When Europe's war clouds loomed last summer, the commission speeded up its program.

Mother Gives Life to Save Son in German Air Raid

LONDON.—A young mother gave her life to save her infant son during a German air raid on a southeastern English village.

Thinks Wife Is Barrel—Much to His Sorrow

HULL, MASS.—A man who mistook a submerged beer keg for his wife was wishing that the Nantasket beach lifeguards had not bothered to "roll out the barrel."

Because when they did, in response to his cries that his wife was "drowning," she arrived safely from another part of the beach just in time to learn that he had thought the keg was she. Spectators retreated discreetly while she shrilly told him a thing or two.

H. M. DUNCAN
President Duncan Coffee Co.

Good coffee begins hundreds, even thousands, of miles away from the cup in which it is served. It begins, as a matter of fact, where the green coffees are selected, and each successive step contributes to the goodness of the finished product.

Jules E. Cathalogue, a highly respected coffee authority who has earned the reputation of an expert through many years of experience, is associated with one of the world's largest coffee export organizations. Being so associated, he is in a position to know which roasters buy the finest coffees.

"Throughout the past twenty years," says Mr. Cathalogue, "we coffee men have watched with keen interest the rapid growth of the Duncan Coffee Company. The reason for the ever-increasing popularity of their product, Admiration Coffee, is no secret to men of the coffee trade. For we know that the Duncan Coffee Company has always purchased the finest coffees. They always buy the top of the crop."

These fine, high-grade green coffees are blended under the supervision of H. M. Duncan, president and general manager of the Company, to produce distinctive rich, winy and full-bodied flavor for which Admiration Coffee is famous. This blend, which was accepted wholeheartedly when it was introduced in 1918, has not been changed since its popularity was first established.

After selection and blending of the green coffees comes the all-important process of roasting. Admiration Coffee is roasted by the most modern process known to the coffee industry — Thermo-Roasting. Thermo-Roasted Coffee never comes in contact with charring flames, being gently and uniformly roasted clear to the center of the bean by indirect heat.

When Admiration Coffee is roasted, it is cut—not ground—with razor-edged steel knives in three ways, one to suit every type of coffee maker. Steel Cut is intended for percolators and pots, and Drip Cut for dripolators.

Admiration is the only coffee on the Southwestern market which has a cut prepared especially for glass coffee makers. Glassdrip Admiration is, in fact, recommended by the manufacturers of both Cory and Silex coffee makers.

Vacuum-packed Admiration, in either the blue tin or the glass jar, affords a superlatively fine, rich coffee guaranteed to give satisfaction. It is also packed in an economical, cellophane-sealed triplex bag.

TAX THE TAX EATERS

Municipal power utilities in Nova Scotia, Canada, are to be taxed in the future on the same basis as private utilities. The reason for that, in the words of Angus MacDonald, Premier of the Province, is that "nothing is more unfair than the way publicly-owned projects are exempt from taxation, although they are carrying on the same business as private concerns." The Province, Premier MacDonald added, should be receiving something like $75,000 a year in taxes from the publicly-owned companies.

That should arouse considerable interest in this country—particularly among those who have regarded the Canadian public systems as model enterprises and have pointed with pride to the low rates charged. As all students of the matter know, these low rates have been the result of a policy of indirect and direct subsidization. The plants were largely built with tax money—they have been given immunity from taxes—and, in many cases, additional doles of tax money have been necessary to make up their recurrent deficits.

What is true in Canada is true to even a larger extent in the United States. Tax immunity for publicly-owned business enterprises has no economic justification whatsoever. It is purely and simply a political device to conceal from the people the real financial facts about the systems. In effect, all the taxpayers must help to pay the bills of the few who are served by public systems. And the cost to the general taxpayer, in such large ventures as TVA, Grand Coulee, Bonneville, etc., runs into the hundreds of millions.

A law to tax publicly-owned utilities the same as private companies has long been agitated in this country. It has been supported by economists, a large section of the press, responsible statesmen, and thinking citizens. With government seeking tax revenue as never before, this vital "reform" should be immediately effected. The advocates of tax immunity for any government business enterprise haven't a leg to stand on.—Industrial News Review.

TRAILER GIRL

By VERA BROWN

WNU Service

Lynn sank again into her chair. There were tears in her eyes. "But it will be awful. Everything will be raked up again, my engagement to Wild! Oh, Mr. Mortimer, you can't do this to me!"

His eyes bored into her pleading. "I suppose you know now why Helen Austin ran away?"

By Helen Austin ran away? Lynn's eyes were wide as she listened.

Charley Austin came to Palm Beach to join his brother. She thought he was in Europe. She saw that day you were at the beach, in that car in downtown West Palm Beach. Poor girl. She was frantic. She had to leave you stranded. She thought he knew she was here. She thought he might have seen her. She didn't even dare send you a note.

"Poor Mrs. Warren . . . I mean . . . Lynn covered her face with her hands. She could see Helen Warren she knew with her son in her arms as she read him his bedtime story. She jumped up: "I'd hurt your case. They'd say I'd just trying to get even with the Austins did to me! They'd say I'd worked myself into their confidence! Oh!"

"I've thought of all that, Miss Lynn. You're our best witness. Lynn charges his wife ran away with his best friend. You know she was those first few months after she left Austin's house. You are the only person who does." He went on and on. Every detail of Helen Austin's struggle to keep her son with her was recounted. Mortimer's eyes were hard as they watched Lynn. "You're going to do your duty, no matter how it hurts. It's the only decent thing to do. We can't let them get away with it!"

Lynn sat with her face covered. She could see the fight stretching out and on. How well she knew the Austins would never stop until they had Buddy! She flung out her hands: "Can't you make them make it all up? Can't you use your influence to get them together?"

"How can I? He won't even talk to me! He's bitter and under the influence of his family. If he had any idea of where Mrs. Austin is, he'd tell that child if it took a company of State troopers! I don't trust them. They'd agree to conciliate and they'd double-cross. I know them!"

Mortimer kept her there three hours without dinner. She gave a detailed statement of her life with the Austins, five months she spent with the woman and her son in the trailer.

"It will be worth your while, Miss Lynn."

Lynn dropped her pencil as he spoke. "What I am doing, I am doing because I must tell the truth! I understand that. I don't want your money! I couldn't take it." She was furious at the implication in his words. "All this is terrible for me! You must know that. But as you say, I can't do anything else!" Tears trembled on her long lashes, and her odd gold-flecked eyes were swimming.

It was terrible! There was no doubt that she must remain loyal to Helen Austin. She paced up and down the room, trying to see her way clear. She must see Chuck and talk to him. That was the only way. She must! No matter what Mr. Mortimer said. Chuck would listen to her. He had to!

Next morning Lynn dressed with unusual care for work. She was so eager and so nervous over that the day might bring that she could eat no breakfast.

During the morning she managed to find time to telephone Chuck, but he could not reach him. What she did not know was that every newspaper man in town was also trying to find Charley Austin.

At noon she went to his office. When she walked into the reception room the clerk on duty straightened. Lynn was a breath-taking sight in her lovely clothes. She smiled and said for Mr. Austin.

"Mr. Charles Jr.," she added. "It's a personal call."

"I'm sorry, but he's out of the office."

Lynn's face clouded. She must reach him. Something in the clerk's words told her the truth.

"May I leave a little note for him?"

"Certainly, we'll be glad to forward it."

Lynn wrote hurriedly: "Please see Mr. Chuck, as soon as you can. It's terribly important to me. I'm waiting for Mrs. Reanoud's for two days." Then Lynn turned to the secretary: "This is very important to me. Will you please see that Mr. Austin gets it as soon as possible?"

She went back to the shop, waiting and hoping that he might telephone. There was no word.

Mrs. Reanoud, realizing Lynn was under a great strain, spoke casually of other things to her and did not seek to learn the cause of her distress. For which she was grate-

"Oh, Chuck, I've got to see you!" "Are you in trouble?" "Yes. I need you."

Chuck paused a moment before he answered: "I'll fly in. Meet me at the airport tomorrow night."

There were tears in Lynn's voice when she thanked him.

"Don't tell anybody I'm in hiding. Just meet me there. I'm ducking everybody. I won't even go home," he said.

Lynn hung up the telephone and stood there staring at it. Now that he was coming, she was appalled at what she had done. Would he believe her? Lynn went over and over what she would say. He'd be furious. He'd tell her to mind her own business and then go and find poor Helen and steal Buddy from her.

After work the next day, she got the bus for Newark at the Hotel New Yorker. She was early.

When Chuck's ship was called, she was so nervous that her knees shook.

He was first to get off, and he seemed glad to see her.

"Well, here I am, Lynn." He was smiling, and his smile somehow reminded her so of Wild that her heart melted inside her.

"Chuck!" Now that the time had come, she was in a complete panic. She was weeping openly. Through her tears she said: "Come to my apartment. Nobody will bother us there, and we can talk."

"What has happened?" Chuck's voice was alarmed. "Is it Wild?"

"No."

She tried, but her courage failed: "Chuck, let's wait until we get to my house. It's difficult—"

When they finally walked into Lynn's poor little studio, Chuck felt something of the girl's state of high tension, facing her in the light of the studio lamp.

"It's a long story, Chuck. Be patient with me." She was so appealing in her obvious panic, that Chuck was gentle with her.

"Chuck, sometimes it is hard to do the things you have to do."

"I've found that out."

"Let me tell you something about part of my life you don't know anything about." Blindly, haltingly, she continued: "It's about Florida and here. I didn't have a job. I was just out of school. One day here in New York I answered the ad of a woman in a Newark hotel." Lynn stopped: "Chuck, in spite of all that's happened do you have faith in me?" She broke down suddenly.

Chuck, watching her bowed head, was mystified, but he felt sincerely sorry for her:

"I have faith in you, Lynn. You're honest."

Mrs. Reanoud spoke casually of other things to Lynn.

CHAPTER XXXI

His answer gave Lynn strength to go on.

"I went to work for a woman. She had a trailer, and she wanted me to go with her down South, as a maid, help her drive, take care of her child. That was in October."

Suddenly Chuck's face assumed a different expression. There was a sudden hardening of his eyes. Lynn seeing this, stood silent before him, beseeching him: "You must listen. I stayed with that woman until February." She tried to choose her words carefully. It was hard. She was a heartbroken woman. Chuck, I know. Night after night, I heard her cry herself to sleep. We wandered all over the South. I never knew much about her . . ."

Chuck turned suddenly in his chair: "What was her name?"

Lynn did not answer, for a moment. She came over to Chuck and slipped onto her knees beside him. "I'm throwing myself on your mercy, Chuck. You've got to play fair with me! You've got to!"

He did not answer.

She put her hand on his shoulder. "You've got to promise! You've got to."

He stared at her for a long time. Finally he spoke: "It was Helen, wasn't it?" His words were not even a question.

"Yes."

"Buddy?"

"He was with us."

"God!" Chuck covered his face with his hands for a moment. Then he stood up: "Where are they now? What name was she using? I'll have every cop in the country after her.

"I'll find her and I'll get that baby if it's the last thing I ever do!"

She forced him to sit down and listen to her. "You've got to play fair. You'll never get that boy away from Helen Austin. I can tell you that right now!"

Chuck's eyes blazed: "This is all I wanted, a tip where they are. The rest is easy. Once I get him, she hasn't a chance."

Lynn's fighting spirit was up: "That's what you think, Chuck. I shall go on the witness stand and tell everything that happened those first five months I was with your wife and baby. When I do, there isn't a court in the world that will give you that baby, Chuck!"

Chuck looked at her unbelievably. "No, Chuck. You'll never get that boy. There isn't any other man. I know."

He started to get up: "Why did you get me from Florida to tell me this fairy story?"

"I'm telling you the truth."

"Bunk. What's Mortimer paying you?"

Lynn did not even bother to answer. She just looked into Chuck's blazing eyes, her own full of contempt. Suddenly he was on the defensive.

"Why did you wait a year to tell me this? So you knew it all along when you were giving me all that sound advice up at Austin Manor!"

Lynn swallowed, thought hard before she made her answer:

"I did not know that Helen was your wife until I saw her picture and Buddy's in the papers two days ago." She spoke simply, directly. Her level eyes forced him to look at her. He laughed loud:

"Did Mortimer send you here to see me? He's tried hard enough to get me every way."

"If Mr. Mortimer knew I was here telling you this, he'd be frantic."

"Then you're working for him."

"I am his witness, if that is what you mean. I am going to be honest with you, Chuck."

He threw up his hands. "Very smart of Mortimer, but not smart enough. I'll have that baby in two days."

Lynn was white now. She'd never forgive herself if this did not turn out right. She stood before him, her hands clenched together.

"Helen's a decent woman! When I say she loves you, I mean it. You didn't use her right! I know so well what happened. Leisure is hard for us. Your friends up at Austin Manor didn't care about me, either. They've got a closed union. They said from the beginning that your marriage wouldn't work. And they did everything they could to see it didn't."

"That isn't true! My family did everything . . ."

"I'm not talking about your family. Do you think that gang was nice to me when I was up there?"

Chuck seemed surprised. "Of course they were!"

Lynn laughed shortly. "Of course they were not! It's little things a man doesn't understand. But I could see how they'd eat into a girl's soul. She wasn't interested in them; thought they were pretty dumb. And they resented her; thought she was dull."

At least he was listening! There was a dead silence in the room.

"Your wife ran away in a panic and left me stranded. That was because she'd seen you in West Palm Beach that day." Lynn felt she had to make the whole thing clear to him. "I didn't know. I never could understand. Not until two days ago."

Chuck turned on Lynn. "If you testify, we'll tear you to shreds. We'll bring up everything . . . Everything!" His eyes threatened her.

Lynn stood quiet, looking up at him.

"I would expect you to do that, Chuck. I'm a working woman, we're fair game. But here's one that's going to stick to your wife!"

"Chuck! Chuck! Why do you want to pillory her when she's done nothing? Why do you want to take Buddy from her when her greatest sin has been lack of understanding of your friends? What has she done?"

Chuck did not answer. He was breathing hard. He must walk warily. If he once got the boy, they could all go hang! He'd take him where none of them would ever see him again!

"I know what you're thinking. You'll steal him, and Helen will never see him again!" There was agony in Lynn's voice.

"Chuck, I begged Mortimer to try to talk to you. I know the situation. But he refused. He said you'd do just what you're planning to do." She covered her face with her hands.

"I thought I knew you. I thought you loved them both. I thought you'd believe the truth when you heard it. He warned me! But I couldn't believe anybody would do that to any other human being!"

Tears ran down her face. She had tried so hard! She had believed she could work this miracle. Bitterness swept over her.

"Why did I try? I've ruined everything, when I wanted to help! God! I wish I'd never seen the Austins!"

Chuck flared up at this. "Why did you then?"

FASHION is playing a game. It's contrast "tops." Here's how. You buy one or two or more smart skirts. Follow this up with a wardrobe of contrasting "tops" and you win a clothes collection that will carry you through with a smashing style record as you travel in campus environs and at all the football games you have dated in advance on your fall program.

For that lasting "first impression" at college you will go down in history vain gloriously as a smart dresser if you wear a costume as pictured to the left in the group illustrated. Evelyn Allen designs this versatile jacket dress with a gay check-printed velveteen top contrasting the youthful flaring skirt. Note the shirred pockets and bishop sleeves. If you take the jacket off and wear your skirt with your new sweaters and blouses, you will be voted among the best dressed of all campus trotters.

Centered in the group is another contrast-top costume by the same designer. This softly tailored frock of gay plaid with its interesting bell sleeve and its contrasting skirt will put you at the head of your class so far as fashion is concerned, and it will keep you there. A two-piece frock such as this is liable to prove the talk o' town for months to come.

Fashion is playing up with great success the idea of the one-piece dress that looks like a two-piece. The smart dress to the right in the picture is an apt demonstration. It merited spontaneous applause recently at the National Wash Apparel style revue held in Chicago. It is of the popular shirtwaist persuasion. The checked blouse top, seamed to the skirt, has a yoke front and back. Acorn buttons are placed down the front opening and on the pockets of the monotone skirt. Here is an ideal dress for go-to-school wear and it will prove a favorite standby for informal dating. You can get this very charming dress in handsome navy or sparkling wine.

Nice thing about this contrast-top vogue is that it goes easy on the clothes budget. You can collect a whole bevy of "tops" without spending a fortune, and with judicious interchanging you can dress up or down to any occasion. One of the neatest tricks brought out in way of contrast tops is the new waist-depth pinafore top that you slip jumper-fashion over a simple blouse. It has wide shoulder straps that are brought down to the back where they tie at the waist in a pert bow exactly as a little girl's pinafore ties.

You can buy these little pinafore tops made of plaid taffeta at most stores. For the school-going girl who must keep a date they are a real "find." Slip it in your school-bag or brief case so you can dash it on in a jiffy and look dressed up quick as a flash of lightning.

You will also be wanting one of the new gay suede vests. With your jacket suit they are "tops" in fashion. Wear it with the new velveteen suit, add a matching suede hat, and it will surely make a "hit" in any grandstand spectator group.

And here is a style hint that any girl of fashion aspirations cannot afford to let go unheeded. It's in regard to the clever new blouses that are made like shirts. They are made of all sorts of fabrics, and are cut like boys' and men's shirts. Gabardine is the safest choice for active sports wear, although washable broadcloth is a close second.

You can get these shirts in wool, tailored as manlike as your heart desires. The idea is to choose a wool in color to blend or match your tweed suit, or, if you prefer, play up a contrast. You will surely be wanting a white jersey shirt. A wool homespun also will not come amiss, for the new homespuns are delightfully soft. They are "comfy" on very first cool days and ever so good-looking. Sheer wool with drawn threadwork is just beginning to be shown in the shirt and blouse sections.

Smart Black Felt

Novelty Jewelry Is Made of 'Anything'

Mannish Influence In New Fashions

Here you see a smart fall felt hat in all its glory. Huge cartwheels of this type are worn with chic afternoon tailcoats as well as with dress-up frocks and they are especially good-looking with the new all-black dressmaker coats. No matter how many small hats you may be acquiring, your fall headgear wardrobe simply must include a wide-brimmed black felt. Cartwheel types shown here vie with the pompadour-flare types that you wear as far back on the head as possible to reveal and give accent to the new off-forehead hair-do.

The fashion for gold accents on black costumes persists. The jewelry wrought in gold this season is exquisitely detailed. The emphasis is on good taste rather than bizarre effects.

Novelty jewelry is fashioned of any and every medium that happens to come to hand. Some of the smartest jewelry items in the novelty class have apparently "gone nuts." They are made of actual nuts linked together in ingenious ways. The now-so-popular jewelry of carved wood tunes beautifully to the new costumes in autumn colorings. Cork and felt are also new media used in the jewelry realm.

And now what! It's men's coats for women. For fashion declares that suits must take on a mannish look and the edict has been accepted as literally by members of the younger smart set. Debutantes and sub-debs, college girls and career girls are actually going into men's stores to purchase socks and blouse shirts, and to look up details as to man-tailored coats, so as to give orders to their tailor to borrow ideas from their brothers' and father's tweed suits.

Panama Tolls Cut $2,516,346 by War

Further Decline in the Gross Operations Expected.

BALBOA, C. Z.—The war reduced the tolls of the Panama canal during the fiscal year ending June 30 by $2,516,346, and cargo handled by 567,611 tons, according to the current issue of the Canal Record, though cargo carried by United States vessels increased 3,475,237 tons to a total of 12,384,617 tons. The total tolls for the year was $21,144,675, and of cargo 27,299,016 tons.

British traffic was reduced 429 ships and 1,619,205 tons of cargo. Nevertheless, 1,073 ships carried 5,182,351 tons through the canal.

No German ships have used the canal since the war started and their traffic was reduced by 306 ships and 1,339,501 tons of cargo.

Italian traffic, also stopped since the declaration of war, was reduced by only 7,956 tons of cargo, because of the use of larger ships, like the 25,000-ton Conte de Biancamano, now tied up at Cristobal.

Norway's total cut as a result of ships sunk by submarines or tied up in home ports since the German invasion, was down 147 in ships and 502,306 tons in cargo.

Although ships flying the flag of the Netherlands increased 23 for a total of 340, the average size was smaller and they carried only 617,948 tons of cargo, as compared with 675,105 in the 1939 fiscal year.

A further decline both of ships and cargo is expected for the duration of the war.

General Grant's Summer Home Is Being Restored

ST. LOUIS.—White Haven, the home to which Ulysses S. Grant dreamed of retiring to lead the life of a country squire but in the end was forced to give up, is undergoing restoration to its original state by its present occupants.

Grant did come back to the old home for a time. In front of the house he planted two linden saplings from the Unter den Linden in Berlin and a ginkgo tree from Japan. On the land he built a stable with 20 box stalls for the horses he planned to breed.

The tired soldier never achieved his desired retirement, however, and saw his well-laid plans smashed. He had been on the estate only a short time when the crash of a brokerage firm in which he was interested in New York caused him to go there in an attempt to salvage whatever he could from the ruins. White Haven, built in 1809, he gave up to creditors.

Albert Wenzlick, who acquired the house through foreclosure, has made White Haven his home and is directing the restoration. Meanwhile, the historic American buildings survey is doing research with the view of making a permanent record of the old home.

Conventional Meetings Are Found Best in Love

STATE COLLEGE, PA.—Girls who meet their fiancés at college or at home have a better chance for a happy married life than those who meet their prospective husbands while away on vacation, results of tests conducted by the psycho-educational clinic of Pennsylvania State college indicate.

The tests, conducted by Dr. Robert G. Bernreuter, head of the clinic, showed that "more happy marriages result from meetings under circumstances that are 'socially approved' than from unconventional meetings."

Philadelphia Renovates 83-Year-Old Music Hall

PHILADELPHIA.—The Academy of Music, home of the Philadelphia orchestra and scene of many famous social, civic and artistic gatherings, is getting a new staircase for the first time in its 83-year existence.

Harold T. Mason, general manager, explained that the renovation would be only of the "more obvious necessities" such as the new stairways, new stage lights and modern chairs in the boxes.

Workers tearing out the old treads found they were built without bolt, screw or nail.

U. S. Man in Toronto Robbed by Fake Officers

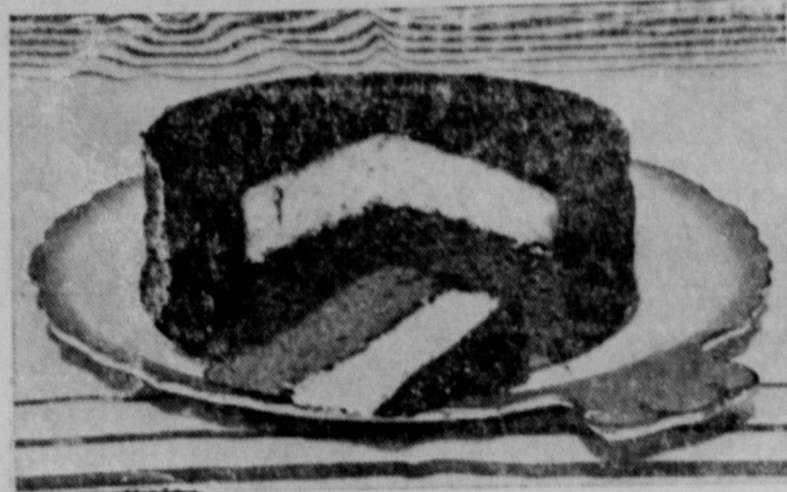

TORONTO.—Edgar Dedenback of Detroit reported to the police today that two men posing as police officers accused him of being a spy, confiscated his camera and binoculars and, examining his wallet, took out a $10 bill.

They told him he could put in a claim for his possessions at the United States consulate, he said, and it was not until he tried to find the consulate at the address the men gave him that he realized he had been robbed.

Costa Rica Raises Bar To Europe's Emigrants

SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA.—The Costa Rican government has decided to prohibit all immigration from Europe and has notified its consulates in Europe to that effect. The newspaper La Hora announced that Italian residents here who belong to mobilized classes of the Italian army had been notified to be ready for orders to go home.

1/2 cup butter
1 1/2 cups sugar
4 egg yolks
3 cups flour
3 teaspoons K. C. Baking Powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
4 egg whites

METHOD:
Sift together five times the flour.

baking powder and salt. Cream butter, add sugar slowly, add eggs yolks carefully beaten, then milk and flour alternately. Divide in two parts.

To part 1, add 2 egg whites, beaten stiff.

To part 2, add chocolate (melt over hot water, not boiling). Let cool, then fold in the whites of 2 eggs, beaten stiff.

Bake in separate pans at 350 to 375 degrees, 20 to 30 minutes.

BLESSINGS OF ADVERTISING

In spite of continued depression, the people of the United States are blessed with the highest living standard that civilization has ever known.

We use two-thirds of the world's automobiles, half of its telephones and 40% of its railroads. We consume a third of the world's coffee, sugar and electric energy, better than half of its rubber and silk.

The mechanical labor saving devices in the homes of American workers are the envy of even the wealthy people abroad.

All this had to be sold to us.

It is the job of advertising to quicken the exchange of goods in the nation's market places. To fulfill its mission, advertising not only tells you about these goods but tries to excite your desire for them. It pictures them as a means toward lightening your burdens, increasing your leisure, enhancing your attractiveness, building your health, protecting your home and family, putting more satisfaction into your life.—ribune, New Albany, Indiana.

"Why, Bridget, how did you make such beautiful scallops in the edge of the mince pie?"

"'Twas aisy to do. I just runs me false uppers around it."

A handful of good life is worth a bushfull of learning.—George Herbert.

News stories of Clark Gable floundering in the Ranger mud at Hollywood during the filming of a story of Texas oil brings to mind a story of that time. Many oil men swear they know the two men about whom the story is told.

There being no P.H.A. in Ranger in those days, rooms were scarce and two young collegians working as roughnecks were forced to room together. They got along all right, working on different tours, until one of them lost his extra suit of clothes. He blamed the other and they parted, each in bitterness that the other would do such a thing.

Shortly after the separation, the man with the missing suit went to Fort Worth to get a new one. Still on file in the Western Union archives is this telegram sent to his former roommate: "Took hot shower today and discovered missing suit. Can you ever forgive me?"

GERMAN "DECENCY"

We are told that in Germany and other totalitarian governments, it is expected that young women will do their part to raise sons for the government. Fulton Oussler, in Liberty, puts it while speaking of Hitler rule in Germany: "It is all right to have children out of wedlock unless the father or mother is Jewish. Hitler has always maintained that in a totalitarian state morality is a matter of propaganda. On this principle, strange things are happening in Germany, and the German women are being told to resign themselves to becoming human incubators for future parachute jumpers or steam-rolling suicide army squads." Only one form of illegitimacy, according to report, is frowned upon by the Hitler set-up—impurity of race, and that is directed against the Jews. It is desired that all other birth rate be increased—and decency is considered to be nothing but false propaganda.—Cosmos-Monitor, St. Charles, Mo.

Opportunity and duty are twins—shirk either and you have neither.

NARROW ESCAPE

"Gosh," said the reckless driver as he slowed down the automobile 70 to 10 miles an hour, "that wonderful scenery down in the valley. Ain't you glad you are a Nervous Passenger—I certainly am!"

"Tell me, papa," asked the child, "what is a consulting physician?" "He is a doctor who is called at the last minute to share the blame."

E. J. Windom made a business trip to Pampa Thursday.

THE NEW DEAL IN FRANCE

The failure of France has been largely the failure of the French experiment.

When Leon Blum, heading up the popular front government in France, was elected and installed in office as Premier of France, he immediately boasted that he would overthrow the social order, that he would dispossess factory management, tolerate the seizure of public utilities, and encourage strikes against the government. Aircraft production fell off 40%. Demagogues told the people to work less, produce less and divide more. All this with the blessing and approval of the Blum government.

France tried to teach youth that the government owed them a living. In a word, the New Deal failed in France.

If the United States is to profit by the military and tactical mistakes of Europe, wouldn't it be wise to profit by the economic blunders of France also?—Etna, Bradford, Pa.

ARMY TRANSPORTATION

No other nation in the world has made such strides in civilian motor transportation as ours, yet military chieftans report that most of the American army is tied to the ground. And this despite the tremendous sums recently spent on modernization.

From the automobile industry comes word that enough trucks could be turned out in two months to provide complete transportation for a protective army of 250,000. Yet it is apparent that this will not be done.

The main reason seems to be that the American army has no genius for making use of the things which private industry uses. Each truck has to be a model specially designed for military purposes. Thus, they are high in price and production is slow.

For some uses special designs doubtless are necessary, but surely this is not true of all purposes for which the army uses transportation.—Tribune, Bismark, N. D.

Ernest Kramer and family attended the Amarillo fair Friday.

SUPER SALESMAN

The store proprietor was hiring a clerk. "Suppose," he said, "a lady customer were to remark, while you were trying to fit her, 'Don't you think one of my feet is bigger than the other?' what would you say?" "I should say, 'On the contrary, madam, one is smaller than the other.'"

"The job is yours."

"And has your baby learned to talk yet?"

"Oh, yes. We're teaching him to keep quiet now."

Norman Trimble of Canyon visited home folks here over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cousins were in Pampa Saturday night.

TALCUM FROM FLOWER SEED

A new and valuable produce emerged from the Romayor (Liberty county) Chemistry Laboratory. It is a fine-textured, snowy-white talcum powder. The powder was made by chemistry students from pulverized four o'clock seed and is very similar to commercially sold powder.—Liberty Vindicator.

The ability to speak several languages is valuable, but the ability to keep your mouth shut in one language is priceless.

Editor and Mrs. Deskins Wells of Wellington were pleasant callers at the News office one day last week.

Thurman Adkins of Shamrock was in McLean on business Saturday.

"What would your husband say if he knew you were necking like this?" "I really don't know. He doesn't know I can neck like this."

Henry Biggers of Hereford was in town Friday. Mr. Biggers was an early settler in McLean, leaving here in 1917.

It's a queer world. Remains and others suspect that you're ignorant. Talk, and you'll have no doubt of it.

"FIRST BECAUSE IT'S FINEST"

MEET the new Chevrolet for '41, and we are confident you'll say, "It's first because it's finest—Again Chevrolet's the leader!"

For this car is the result and the reward of almost ten solid years of Chevrolet leadership in motor car sales... leadership that has brought with it unequalled manufacturing economies and unequalled value-giving powers... leadership that now makes it possible for Chevrolet to offer you a motor car which surpasses all previous levels of luxury in the lowest price field.

This new Chevrolet for '41 is a much bigger in all ways—with a longer wheelbase and over-all length—with longer, larger, wider Bodies—with exceptionally comfortable interior giving "3-couple roominess," or ample space for six passengers, in the sedan models.

Your Chevrolet dealer cordially invites you and your family to visit his showroom... invites you to make a thoroughgoing test of the finest car Chevrolet has ever built... invites you to try it, buy it—today!

Food Disguised
Even Popeye wouldn't know he was eating his favorite food under this appetizing disguise. Assemble three eggs, one cup finely chopped spinach, one-half cup thick white sauce, one-half cup grated cheese and one teaspoon chopped onion. Beat the egg yolks until thick, then stir in the thick white sauce (with cheese added). Next add the spinach and onion, and fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn the mixture into a greased casserole, set in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven about 50 minutes. Serve with tomato sauce.

Memphis Has Boys' Town
Because a judge thought that the reformatory was not the place for two boys who were in trouble, Memphis, Tenn., today boasts of a "Boys' Town." He was Judge Camille Kelley. He interested the Rev. Vernon W. Lane, rector of the Church of Good Shepherd in assuming responsibility. Since that day, Gailor Hall, named in honor of a bishop, has been known as "Boys' Town." Persons interested in youth welfare have assisted in providing clothes and food for the residents of Gailor Hall.

Cold Baths to Reduce
Fat people take Turkish baths, thinking they will reduce that way, but according to some authorities, a Turkish bath will make you sweat, but what one loses here, he makes up almost immediately by his great thirst and hunger. As a matter of fact, cold baths are best to reduce, say these experts. The reason, they say, is that cold causes a loss of body energy which repairs itself by consuming some of the surplus fat.

Endowment Funds
In a study of U. S. college endowments, the Financial Advisory Service of the American Council on Education reports that in the two years (1938-39), the endowment funds of 110 institutions increased by $20,000,000. Despite this increase in total endowment, however, the income from principal fell by $1,616,964 from 1938 to 1939, a decrease of one-fifth of one per cent in the rate of return.

Mechanized Coal
Charles O'Neill of the United Eastern Coal Sales corporation has said that without mechanized mining, coal would be more expensive, that less would be sold, and even fewer miners employed. He suggested that the government should "equalize" taxes on products that compete with coal.

Virgin Islands
When Columbus sighted the Virgin islands, on his second voyage, he was so amazed at their beauty and overcome by their numbers that he was not able to think of sufficient saints in whose honor to name them, so he solved the problem aptly by calling them the Virgin islands.

Eases Her Conscience
A 60-cent payment to the city "conscience fund" eased the mind of a middle-aged former Pittsburgh woman. She appeared at the health bureau and paid for two bottles of hand lotion taken more than two years ago when employed at the municipal hospital.

Removing Wallpaper
Old wallpaper may be removed by simply wetting it with cold or tepid water, using a brush. Repeat the wetting until the paper and paste are soaked through, then the paper may be pulled off without much scraping.

Beaver Built Dams
Beavers have been planted in several Nevada streams, in hopes they will build dams that will benefit irrigationists. The animals have gone to work promptly and already have thrown barricades up in several places.

Chick Sexing
Peeping loudly from their ventilated boxes, the vanguard of America's annual 800,000,000 chick population was being rushed by mail and express from hatcheries to poultry men.

Jelly Caution
To prevent mold or fermentation of jelly, the glasses must be sterilized, the jelly must have a perfect paraffin seal and the jelly must be stored in a cool, dry place.

Varnishing Furniture
To get the best results in varnishing furniture, the varnish must be kept at an even, warm temperature, and put on neither too plentifully nor too gingerly.

Electric Service
About 1,700,000 farms, or one-quarter of all farms in the country, now enjoy electric service. This is more than twice the number served in 1935.

Names of Swans
Terms for swans are as follows: A male swan is a cob, female swan is a pen, and a small swan is a cygnet.

Journalism
There are 13,995 students enrolled in journalism courses in more than 450 American colleges and universities.

Wrong Tube
Pasteur picked up the wrong test tube—and thus discovered the effects of vaccination.

One-Man Town
Billy Rahn is the only resident of Millican, Ore.

Microscopic Eyes
One of the strange cases of unusual eye development in a human being is that of John Hertop, who lived about half a century ago in Birmingham, England. He suffered an affliction which impaired his eyesight. Nature, in attempting to overcome the handicap, caused the cornea of the eye to become greatly enlarged, with the result that he had almost microscopic vision. Possibly his eyes grew to be somewhat similar to those of birds, whose well-developed corneas are chiefly responsible for a sharpness of vision 100 times greater than the visual acuity of human beings, comments the Better Vision institute.

Night Life Banned
Three years of war with China has just about resulted in the end of night life in Tokyo, once as gay as "Gay Paree." Amusement centers close at 11 p. m., under a recent order, in an effort to save electricity, while restaurants are closing even at an earlier hour. Moving picture houses close around 10 p. m. and taxicabs cannot ply their trade after midnight. All, in an effort to conserve a shortage in electricity caused by a drouth in Japan the past winter.

Seven Years Bad Luck
The curious and widespread notion that to break a mirror brings seven years of bad luck originated with the Romans about the First century of the Christian era. They believed that the health of a person changed every seven years, and since the mirror reflected the health, or appearance, of the person, to break it meant to break the health appearance for seven years. Hence grew the belief in seven years of bad luck.

'Blue Blood' Pedigree
Those with "blue blood," who boast of their Norman pedigrees, are with few exceptions wrong, as there is hardly a family in England whose pedigree goes back to the Norman conquest. Most of the pedigree faking, according to science, dates back to the time of Queen Elizabeth when many newly rich persons wished to prove how noble their families were. To meet this demand fake trees were compiled.

Russian Illiteracy
Partially completed Russian census figures reveal that 81 per cent of the Soviet population, above the age of nine, is literate, an increase of 30 per cent since 1926. Educationally, 8.86 per cent of the population have secondary school training and 0.64 per cent university background. According to the Russian second five-year plan, illiteracy should have disappeared at the end of January, 1938.

More Man Hours
Henry Ford recently denied that machinery created unemployment, pointing out that while industry cuts costs whenever possible by taking men off jobs, which are better done by machine, it means an actual increase in jobs. The Detroit manufacturer disclosed that there are many more man hours of work in the Ford factory than at the time of the Model T.

Men Talk More
Men talk more than women, according to a University of Minnesota professor. Not only that, he states, but men are more ready with answers and usually speak up first. The research further disclosed that women enjoy giving advice better than men. It was discovered, however, though men answer first, they are more apt to be bluffing.

Group Birds
Words used to signify a "group" of each of the following birds, quail, pheasants, ducks, geese, snipe, plover, doves, grouse and partridge, are: Bevy of quail, nide of pheasants, plump of ducks, flock of geese, wisp of snipe, stand of plover, flight of doves, brood of grouse and covey of partridge.

Live Wireworms
The Imperial Chemical Industries of London, largest concern of its kind in the world, has offered to pay half-cent a head for live wireworms. Large numbers are needed so that a cheap, effective way of killing them can be found and thus save farmers thousands of dollars a year in crops.

Milkleg
Following childbirth a condition sometimes develops known as "milk leg." This is nothing but acute phlebitis complicated by an inflammation of the connective tissue between the muscles and the skin.

Maelstrom
The maelstrom is not a whirlpool which sucks ships down into the depths of the ocean. It is an eddy which in fair weather can be crossed in safety by any vessel.

Indians Originated Lacrosse
Lacrosse was originated by the American Indians who played the game with whole tribes on a side and goals one mile apart.

Archeozoic Era
The Archeozoic era is the oldest in geological history; rocks dating back to that time yield no fossils.
