Mr. John F. Meade Guest Speaker Lions Club Lunch Tuesday

John F. Meade, president of the Junior College, was guest speaker at the Lions luncheon Tuesday.

Meade spoke on "Democracy" and expressed the changing conditions of our country.

Our country is now undergoing a great shift in public opinion. Dr. Meade said. "We are now in the era of social and economic righteousness, changing from the financial and industrial life of the past to agriculture. We will learn to adjust ourselves more to changing conditions as various shifts are made."

Meade compared the working democracy to a pendulum. At its swings too far in one direction finally comes to rest in a position.

Dollnite of Amarillo and R. Thomas of Pampa were present as visitors. Twenty members present.

A meeting of the directors, called by Lion Hibler following the session, it was voted to allow $50 per plate extra on the charge the Lions 60c per head. It was also voted to be per plate for the use of program committee.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. BEESINGER

Funeral services were conducted at the Heald Methodist Church Tuesday for Mrs. Rebecca Mae Beesinger, aged 46 years, 9 months and 10 days, who died at her home in the Heald community August 4, 1941.

Services were conducted by Rev. Alton Vaughn of Alanreed, pastor of the Heald church.

Survivors are her husband, E. W. Beesinger; eight daughters, Mrs. Bonnie Deaton of Texola, Okla., Mrs. A. E. Stookstill and Mrs. A. A. Hardy of Shamrock, Misses Nora Lee, Ora, June, Betty Jo and Irene Beesinger; six grandchildren, three brothers and three sisters.

Fallbearers were J. W. Stauffer, W. L. Hinton, Geo. Renaau, Frank Bailey, Jack Bailey and K. S. Rippey.

Flower bearers were Mesdames Nida Green, Loula Ladd, Frank Bailey, J. W. Stauffer, Eva Rutledge and K. S. Rippey.

Interment was made in Hillcrest cemetery, Womack Funeral Home in charge.

Johnson Says Farmers Care for Shelterbelts

Ralph Johnson, district shelterbelt officer, of Shamrock, was in McLean one day last week and stated that farmers are taking better care of shelterbelts this season, evidencing some pride in the appearance of the belts.

Mr. Johnson said that a new set-up is being arranged for the shelterbelt operations the coming year due to smaller appropriations of funds and labor. The program will be more compact and more in line with regular forestry operations.

Mrs. Reep Landers left Saturday night for Fort Worth to visit her mother, who recently underwent an operation. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Horace Bozeman of Fort Worth, who had been visiting here.

The News editor acknowledges with thanks an invitation by the mayor of Perryton to attend the Lake Fryer celebration August 9 and 10.

Judge and Mrs. J. A. Mead, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Mead and little son of Miami visited in the T. A. Landers home Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Bodine and daughter, Barbara, of Borger visited the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bodine, over the week end.

Three Revivals Report Fine Crowds, Interest

Waldrop Wins Free Camp Scholarship

J. B. Waldrop, member of the McLean FFA Club, president of the Pampa district PFA, and vice president of the state organization, is one of four Texas boys to be awarded a free scholarship to the American Youth Foundation Danforth Leadership Training Camp, near Shelby, Michigan.

The Foundation is a non-profit service organization devoted to character building and leadership training of American youth.

The scholarship award is for the full summer term at Camp Minawanka which for the past 28 years has had around 600 young people and leaders in attendance each year.

Young Waldrop has earned many honors in judging contests while a member of the local FFA under the leadership of Prof. C. J. Magee, high school vocational director.

Wheeler Votes Dry in Large Majority

With an election called in the middle of the week, Wheeler county voters turned out in greater force than in any election held within the past seven years, voting against beer with a big majority.

In an effort to vote the county wet on May 3, beer and wine were voted out with a 29 vote majority but this time some 414 more voters registered a choice than in any previous election, the county remaining dry with a 369 vote majority.

The drys showed a 103 gain at Shamrock, one of the four wet boxes in the county; gained 35 at Wheeler 38 at Mobeetie, 25 at McBee, and 21 each at Twitty and Lela.

The vote showed a majority at Shamrock, Magic City, Pagan and Kellerville.

The heavy dry vote was attributed by some to the 13 traffic fatalities occurring in the vicinity of Shamrock before legal beer went out last June. Wheeler and Mobeetie have been dry as precincts all along, and the recent elections have not affected their status.

Mrs. Siler Hopkins and baby of Pampa visited their parents and grandparents Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Gallin, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler Carter and children of Pampa visited the lady's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Pettit, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Hodges and daughter were in Amarillo Monday.

J. B. Pettit returned Saturday from Temple.

Mrs. A. J. Worley has our thanks for a subscription renewal this week.

Dewey Campbell of Lubbock visited here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvan Alderson are on a vacation trip to Colorado.

CAR WRECK VICTIMS BURIED HERE MONDAY

G. E. Work and son, Lawrence, victims of the car wreck near Groton last week, were buried here Monday.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. C. O. Huber, pastor of the First Baptist Church.

Mrs. Work and two little girls, who are still in a Pampa hospital, are reported recovering.

G. E. Work, Jr., has been discharged from the hospital, and returned to St. Louis with his aunt, and two little girls who were here Monday for the funeral.

The remains of Mrs. Oldham, the third victim of the wreck, were shipped to Richmond, Ky., Saturday. Mr. Oldham and Mr. Dyer are still in an Amarillo hospital, and reported recovering.

All arrangements were in charge of Womack Funeral Home.

Car Crash Injures Shamrock People

Mr. and Mrs. Will Lovelace of Shamrock suffered skull fractures, Ed Lovelace and Robert Burrows, also of Shamrock, suffered cuts and bruises, and B. O. Smith of Hammond, Okla., was fatally injured when their car collided with one driven by Henry Scott, Elk City man, at a railroad underpass three miles west of Clinton, Okla., Sunday morning.

MAJOR FRANK EXUM DIES

Major Frank Exum, 79, pioneer Shamrock resident, died last Thursday. He was the first settler at Shamrock, the first postmaster and one of the first commissioners of the county.

Japanese Movements in Far East Bring Freezing of Assets by U. S. Plus Philippine Troop Mobilization; Nazis Claim Gains on Three Fronts

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—Japanese are shown intently reading "extra" news bulletins posted at a newsstand in Los Angeles' "Little Tokyo" telling of President Roosevelt's order freezing all Japanese assets in the United States.

JAPAN: Shows Hands

Dwarfing even the Russo-German war, with all its action, the Japanese situation because of its closeness to involvement of the United States, stole the world spotlight.

While there were indications that the Japanese were to continue the war with China, perhaps on even a more vigorous basis, and that Nippon was attempting to strengthen its hand on the Russian front, the main move was the military and naval occupation of French Indo-China.

While this had been foreseen as a major Japanese objective, and even regarded as a probable one during and after the period of the change in government in Tokyo, the actual occurrence fell with a sense of considerable shock on the United States.

For once the nation began to feel the hot breath of actual war blowing upon it, and the feeling that "all that" was far, far away began to be a distinctly shaky sort of thing.

For the action taken by this government was swift, drastic and met with complete collaboration by Great Britain, Canada and Australia. It consisted of this, as the first steps:

The freezing of Japanese assets. The limiting of all trade with Japan under special license.

The mobilization of the troops of the Philippines.

In addition to the British empire's collaboration with the first two plans, Britain's far eastern troops were on the qui vive for action and a request by Thailand for British aid in case her territory was violated was met with instant assent.

In fact, it seemed extremely likely that Britain would move into Thailand in order to create a buffer state that might prevent Japanese attempt to cut the Burma road, which lies only a short distance, relatively speaking, from Hanoi in the northern part of Indo-China.

REACTION: And Results

The immediate reaction of Japan was what amounted to a "sparring for time." Nippon was caught with several ships tied up at American wharves, automatically, by this government's declaration, prevented from moving.

Some 40 additional ships were en route here, and were here to at sea. And if the Pan-American republics were to take similar action to the United States they might find it hard to make a port where they would be able to unload. One of the vessels was carrying a $2,500,000 silk cargo and nearly 500 passengers bound for the U. S.

Most serious result, however, was seen as the immediate stoppage of oil exportation to Japan from American sources. Utterly dependent on foreign supplies of petroleum, and for much of her scrap metal as well, Japan was visualized as practically forced to move on the Netherlands East Indies for the former and for supplies of tin as well.

Most observers felt that if and when such a move was made, it would find the United States taking some sort of direct naval action of a preventive nature.

Tokyo, immediately after President Roosevelt's outline of American action with regard to the Indo-Chinese incident, broadcast an ap-

COINCIDENCE:

It so happened that the sudden move by Japan and the counter-moves by this government were timed exactly to coincide with congressional consideration of the measure to keep draftees, guardsmen and reservists in the armed forces for the duration.

There was no question but that the back of the opposition to this measure was badly bent if not broken by the quick change in the international situation.

Special Envoy

Harry Hopkins, administrator of the Lend-Lease bill, serving again as President Roosevelt's special envoy to London, is pictured here at the American embassy in London. In a speech broadcast to the British empire, Hopkins promised the British that the "tools" needed for victory are on the way from American production lines.

PAN-AMERICA: Having Troubles

While the governments of the Pan-American republics were standing firm on their solidarity pledges with the United States covering hemispheric defense, they were beset by many troubles, some of them reportedly generated by a Nazi diplomatic and fifth column offensive ordered from Berlin to occupy America's attention on this side of the Atlantic.

However, the close of hostilities between Peru and Ecuador, in which it was thought that the Nazi-Japanese hand could be seen, finally were halted, and neither the casualties nor the fighting apparently had been heavy.

Bolivia nipped an attempted Nazi coup d'etat in the bud and dealt drastically with the reputed author.

The Herald Tribune came out with a story from Buenos Aires telling of the seizure of some 400 pounds of packages of spy material, messages and the like uncovering a very definite Nazi plot against the government of Argentina.

One German embassy fled the capital by plane, carrying 440 pounds of excess baggage, presumably afraid of having it seized and examined. He finally got it all into safe-deposit vaults in Lima, Peru, after great difficulties en route and after arrival, but there was doubt whether the mysterious baggage would be permitted to remain there.

This doubt was quickly resolved by the Peruvian authorities ordering the whole baggage to be shipped back to Buenos Aires. There it fell into the hands of an investigating committee which found the baggage to contain a radio transmitter and a large number of walnuts, which, when opened contained the plot evidence in the form of messages.

RED: Defense Technique

Still another described the military technic near the front. The plan was somewhat similar to that of Weygand in his attempted halting of the Germans in France, except that it was implemented by better mechanized equipment.

The Russians give way before the German mechanized advance, which finally, however, meets a "wall of Russian tanks," which at least temporarily halt their advance.

Then the Russian artillery in the rear, already trained on the roads behind the advance German lines, batters away at the supporting columns. When these are sufficiently disrupted to prevent refueling of the tanks and motor-fighting-cars, these have to fall back and the attack is broken up.

The Russians, when this point is reached, military observers were reporting, then attempt to put the "pinners" on the German advance force. This, it was said, was the detail back of the three divisions destroyed, according to Russian claims.

Some felt their minds drop back to the Russo-Japanese war of 37 years ago and recalled that the modern Russian army was giving a very different account of itself today against sterner than Japanese opposition.

One of these stated, as a matter of course, that "five Nazi attempts to bomb Moscow had been frustrated in succession," told of seeing two Nazi bombers wrecked 38 and 52 miles west of Moscow, and of watching "peasants calmly tilling their fields" near the wreckage.

INVASION: By Stratosphere

Huge American-made Boeing "flying fortresses" yet not the largest ships soon to be sent overseas, made British aviation history by participating in the first "stratosphere" raids.

They were sent, with heavy cargoes of bombs, to a height of 33,000 feet, at which point, according to the British, they were practically invisible in the daytime, and apparently inaudible.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON (Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—The U.S.A. gets a quartette of political warriors on the job, to map and push forward a campaign of counter-espionage and aggressive propaganda.

Impetus Is Added To U. S. Attack on 'Spies and Lies'

They are Col. William J. Donovan, J. Edgar Hoover, Brig. Gen. Sherman Miles, head of the military intelligence division of the war department, and Capt. Alan G. Kirk, head of the office of naval intelligence. All of them have highly specialized and unique schooling for the job. They will work together, the flying wedge of a quickening attack on spies and lies.

Captain Kirk, a veteran of 35 years' service in the navy, eases quietly into the picture, which is his usual procedure. It just happened the captain, a discreet and highly personable officer, was sent to London, as naval attache, in May, 1939. His investigation and report on the sinking of the Athenia impressed the state department and, from his ringside seat, he was a keen observer of many important events of interest to this country. When the Germans were taunting the British about "Where is the Ark Royal?" Captain Kirk quietly reported that he had just had lunch aboard her.

WE MISS the garret inventor, but here's the penthouse inventor, doing just as well. Charles L. Lawrence, widening the bomber range by his tiny auxiliary aircraft engine, had what Elbert O. Hubbard might have put down as the handicap of wealth and social position, but he tinkered and schemed aviation over many a hump and now, crowding 60, he turns in another finished performance.

There are no loose ends or ravelings to anything he does. His "watch charm" engine is already in mass production for the navy. It is a supplementary power plant which will enable the bombers to venture high and far, as it takes care of the energy overhead of starting motors, feathering propellers, and powering heat, light, radio and instrument board.

Mr. Lawrence, the first man to adapt air-cooled engines to air navigation, also contributed much to wing design. His is the Wright Whirlwind motor and he was the designer of the engine that catapulted Charles Lindbergh to Paris—also the engines of the three Byrd polar flights, the Chamberlain flight and many other historic hops of airplane history.

When he was a Yale undergraduate, Phi Beta Kappa passed him by because he spent all his spare time scheming and dreaming about airplane engines. Out of Yale, he attended the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris, bringing through his first engine before he finished his three-year course. Returning home, he took up his profession of engineering and established the Lawrence Engineering corporation, of New York.

It was in 1917 that he perfected his first air-cooled engine. He is given to cautious understatement. When, in 1927, Adm. Richard E. Byrd said passenger planes would be flying the Atlantic in 10 years, he said we couldn't be too sure about that—mail possibly but not passengers, for a long time to come.

HARPER SIBLEY, newly elected president of the United Service Organizations, is the sign, symbol and substance of unifying, and never of disruptive forces. If agriculture and industry seem to have divided interests, he has farms scattered here and there and everywhere, and he also carries a nice line of lumber companies, banks, loan societies and coal companies.

When the government and business are at outs, Mr. Sibley is the man in between, counseling a bit of give and take here. He was the successful intermediary in the automobile strike of 1937, and while, as a conservative business man, he was shelling the New Deal, he was backing up Secretary Hull's trade treaties and the President's foreign policy.

He has held forth steadily against class animosities. His career is a refutation of the philosopher Berkeley. He can see both sides of any object at a given instant. As a former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Sibley is an authoritative voice in American business and he is never happy unless he has 8 or 10 highly diversified jobs, with plenty of time for tennis and golf. He is a former ROTON and Harvard schoolmate of President Roosevelt, and like the President an upstate country squire.

Strange Petfellows

Nearly everybody, with a few exceptions, likes a dog or a cat of their own. Others favor canaries or guppies or goldfish. Then there are still others who go in for the most unusual pets, and it is with these that the following series of photos deals. The animals and birds here shown are not out of the ordinary. All are natives of the United States, with the exception of the leopard. However, it is distinctly unusual to find them in pet roles.

FROM THE WEST

Don't sit down on a cactus. Well, you're going to do it, because automotive repairmen are going to use the cactus fibre for upholstering in seats and back rests. They've been looking for a material that wouldn't become brittle with heat and which would remain resilient throughout the life of the car. The cactus is tougher for its size than any other seen, so it is reported.

Combine 1 cup of granulated sugar and 1 1/2 cups of water in a saucepan and stir over low heat until the sugar is dissolved. Bring to a boil for five minutes. Add six tablespoons of lemon juice and 1 cup of bottled grape juice. Stir this well and then chill thoroughly. Next add one egg white beaten stiffly with a hand beater or an electric beater at high speed and pour into the freezing tray of an automatic refrigerator. Stir every 30 minutes until the mixture will hold its shape and is stiff enough to serve. This makes enough for six servings.

TRUTH

Today's scientific knowledge of Doan's Pills, after many years of wide use, surely has accepted evidence of satisfactory results. And favorable reports of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exact laboratory conditions.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the fact which is only to be expected. Doan's Pills is a good diuretic treatment for disease of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic action would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination, sometimes with disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging back ache, persistent headache, aching in the sides, getting up nights, swelling, and nose under the eyes—feel weak, nervous all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to take a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than one something less known. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS

Jackets! They Play Important Role in the Fashion Picture

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ACCORDING to fashion's say-so, you must be smartly jacketed everywhere you go. Your play suits, your daytime ensembles, evening dresses and afternoon frocks are all supposed to have complementary jackets, with a few "extras" to be held in readiness to report for duty at the beck and call of time and occasion. So no matter how many jackets you have they will be none too many to include in a fashionable wardrobe.

In a program of interchangeable jackets the secret's out, as to how to go victoriously through the mid-season stretch between summer and autumn fall with "flying colors" so far as keeping a well-dressed appearance is concerned. Every woman wants to maintain a refreshing up-to-the-moment look in summer hanger apparel until autumn styles are set. This is quite a "trick" in the art of dressing. Interchangeable jackets that flaunt "the latest" in styling details is an answer.

With the thought in mind that the attractiveness of the jacket fashions pictured might inspire you in a sewing spree venture, we are especially calling your attention to the several pen and ink sketches, selected because the numbers are really very easy to make. You can buy up such pretty remnants at this time of year, so reasonable and with the investment of a little time and effort you will find yourself the happy possessor of jackets that, ingeniously interchanged, will set new tempo for your frocks in keeping with every move of fashion.

Referring to the pen-and-ink sketches, the ones at top to right and left, are of the casual type for town and travel wear. For these remnants of tweed will work up to good advantage and if you want to give them a "last word" touch, embroider a big scroll monogram somewhere about them—on pocket or sleeve or some other strategic point.

Outstanding on the season's program is the sleeveless long-torso jacket, known as the jerkin. It is the schoolgirl's idol and adored by sportswomen. The jerkin sketched at lower right, is easy to make, easy to wear! Use bright corduroy or suede cloth. Jerkin patterns are available anywhere they sell patterns.

Coolie coats, the popular choice for evening wear, are ever so easy to make for they require little or no fitting. The "coolie" sketched at lower left, is a "perfect little treasure." The material used in this instance is prettily embroidered in quaint little posies. Handsome brocade or metal cloth yields beautifully to the coolie treatment. Women of discriminating taste love coolie wraps made of fine wool or silk crepe in subtle pastel greens, violet shades, or Chinese reds. The newest thing is to embellish them with a restricted amount of sequin or bead embroidery. Note the model in the lower oval inset. In this instance the sheer crepe is in a soft stone blue, the embroidery done in silver threads and beadwork.

Sun-Hat and Bag

Here is a practical sun-hat and that should interest beach strollers who want to protect their complexion from burning sun rays. The sun hat worn so appealingly by the young lady as she poses in picture at the top acts as a perfect "freckle fender."

In the pose below you see how huge brim folds to pancake size as it fits into the outer pocket of a made-to-match rubber-lined bag. This hat has a navy brim with red and white striped and the color combination is

Accent Is on Luxury Blouse Type for Fall

The blouse program as mapped out for fall and winter will use much luxurious fabric. Pastel metal cloth made up in classic simplicity is one of the happy outlooks. Matching the pastel of the metal weave with crepe in identical tone presents endless possibilities for achieving charming effect. In some instances a bit of the crepe used for the skirt is repeated in stylizing accents on the metal blouse.

Wide use will be made of deep-toned satins and they will be made up similar to the manner suggested above for metal weaves. Silk jersey is also a favored medium. Used in vivid reds, greens or blues to wear with black suits, the new jersey blouses are stunning.

Drastic Changes Seen In New Fall Silhouette

Here are changes you will find as the new silhouettes make their debut this fall. There will be very few if any set-in sleeves. The trend is to deep armhole effects in dolman sleeves, cut all in one with the bodice or blouse top. Bulk above the waistline and slimming of skirts is noted.

Everything is being done to accent lower waistlines, especially with inset belts. Beltless dresses are very new in style stressing sophisticated simplicity.

There will be hosts of pleated fashions that emerge from long-torso lines with pleats manipulated to retain slenderized lines.

Chiffon House Coats

Torrid days call for cool apparel, a need which is filled in very lovely house coats made of pastel chiffons. You can bring the summer to a very happy conclusion wearing one of the very lovely chiffon creations.

They Worship Frogs

China is the home of queer customs, but one of the most curious is the Chinese custom of worshipping the frogs. The headquarters of the frog-worshippers are at Chekiang, where elaborate temples are specially set aside for the use of the "holy" green frogs.

These creatures are allowed to hop around at will in the beautifully maintained temple gardens, and at the end of the day devotees carry their "gods" back to their quarters in the temples.

To the Chinese the green frog stands for wealth—no doubt they expect to be well rewarded for the hours they spend in worship.

Strangely enough, the brown frog, which is more common than the green variety, is treated with scant ceremony. Millions of them are caught and eaten every year, and their legs are regarded as a great delicacy in good-class Chinese circles!

HEALTH

How to Get It and How to Keep It

If the reading of this article teaches you only this one lesson about your own body it may be worth more than millions of dollars to you; for of what use is money without health, or after you are dead?

The lesson is this—Keep your system pure and you may have health and strength to gain and enjoy happiness, success and length of years. But you may ask—

How Can I Keep My System Pure?

That is not a hard question to answer, for Science plainly teaches you that your liver, which is larger than all of the other glands of the body combined, has the special work of purifying your blood and thereby your entire system and of keeping it pure.

How Does the Liver Purify?

Physicians tell us that the liver destroys, or renders harmless, poisons such as uric acid and other toxic waste matter that is normally formed in the tissues, and also prevents the formation of poisons in the bowels by manufacturing a greenish-yellow, bitter fluid called bile, which, between meals, is stored up in the gall-bladder, but after each meal is poured out into the intestine.

The bile is purgative and indirectly antiseptic or prophylactic. In health it is your bile that makes your bowels act regularly and freely every day.

—It is Nature's Purgative. It is your bile that keeps your bowels pure, clean and free from excessive fermentation (gas) and putrefaction. Remember that putrefactive germs do not thrive where there is fresh bile and there can therefore be no fermentation to cause gas, nor putrefaction to produce poisons, or toxins.

Also, as the liver is purgative, there can be no constipation if the bile is flowing naturally and freely from the gall-bladder into the bowels after each meal.

But when the bile becomes stagnant your bowels stop acting regularly and the contents become a breeding bed for the germs of fermentation (gas) and putrefaction. These poisons, (called toxins), are gradually absorbed into your blood and if the quantity be more than the liver can destroy, may circulate over your body, poisoning, irritating or inflaming your brain and nerves, your muscles and joints, your heart, skin, kidneys, and every vital organ of your body. Your doctor calls this "intestinal toxemia," and tells you that your system is "toxic," or, if mild, "bilious."

Functions of Gall-Bladder

In 24 hours your liver manufactures about 3 to 4 teaspoonfuls of bile, which flows through millions of minute canals, or ducts, uniting to make a large tube which empties into the gall-bladder, as creeks and rivulets unite to form a river that flows into a lake. Your gall-bladder is a hollow muscle that serves the double purpose of a reservoir and a pump. Its functions are similar to those of the urinary bladder. About three hours after eating, when the food is passing from the stomach into the intestines, your gall-bladder should begin its contractions, thus pumping the bile into the small intestine where it is mixed with your food. Bile is also an essential digestive fluid, aiding in the digestion and absorption of fats and oils.

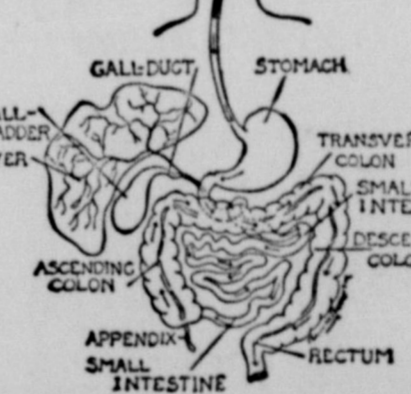

causes bilious indigestion, so common in hot climates.

Nature's Danger Signals

When the bile becomes stagnant in your gall-bladder and is dammed back into your liver instead of flowing freely into your bowels, you, sooner or later, begin to feel some of the following symptoms—Your breath may become unpleasant (halitosis), your tongue coated, a bad taste in your mouth, your coffee (and tobacco) lose their natural flavor, your food does not agree with you; you may have heart burn, gas, or fluttering around the heart, dizziness and bile ducts into the small intestine and thence through and out of the bowels. When you take Calotabs you know that you have taken what the doctors call a cholagogue or bile expelling medicine. It cleans you out thoroughly. Every inch of your twenty-five foot canal, including your stomach, small intestine and large intestine or colon is thoroughly cleared and washed clean and pure, and you can see and feel the bile in the stools. (Bile causes a slight burning sensation and a bright yellow or greenish yellow color.) Next morning your system feels purified and refreshed and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you wish and go about your work, or pleasure.

*NOTE—If the stagnation of bile is caused by the pressure of a tumor upon the gall duct, or by a permanently impacted gall stone, only a surgical operation can remove the cause. But the common cause of stagnation of bile is the accumulation of catarrhal mucus in the gall-bladder or gall-duct. This mucus may be expelled by Calotabs. The mucus is caused by engorgement of the liver, usually the result of over-indulgence in highly seasoned foods, or stimulating drinks. Calotabs help to relieve this engorgement.

Study the above drawing for a few minutes. Notice particularly how the bile flows from the liver into and out of the gall-bladder and thence into the small intestine which it enters at a point just below the stomach. A cut-off valve prevents the return of the bile from the intestine into the gall-bladder. The gall-bladder is the pump for the bile, acting like the bulb of an atomizer.

or blind spell; you may be troubled with belching or frequent passages of gas from the bowels; the gas "blows" your bowels and presses so hard on the kidneys that it gives you pain in the small of your back over your kidneys, making you think you have kidney trouble; at night the gas in your bowels presses upon your bladder making you get up frequently, thus breaking into your sleep.

In the morning you are tired and instead of refreshed. Gradually your health is injured. Your complexion becomes sallow or bilious; dark rings may appear under your eyes, you may feel laxy, dull and irritable or blue and melancholic. You may have frequent colds (catarrh) or dull headache; your bowels stop their free, full and natural action; you have constipation, gas, putrefaction and self-poisoning or "intestinal toxemia," as the doctors call it. This group of symptoms is referred to, in the South, as "Torpid Liver," but apparently a better expression might be Torpid Bile Flow.

NOTE—If the above symptoms are very mild, they are called bilious; if severe, "toxic." Some may be of nervous reflex origin.

How to Make the Bile Flow

But when the bile stops flowing freely, how can we help Nature start it again? The answer is: Take Calotabs at bedtime and drink water freely the next day. This formula is designed to increase the force and frequency of contraction of the gall-bladder and the upper intestine (duodenum), thus promoting the expulsion of bile from the gall-bladder

How Does the Liver Purify?

Physicians tell us that the liver destroys, or renders harmless, poisons such as uric acid and other toxic waste matter that is normally formed in the tissues, and also prevents the formation of poisons in the bowels by manufacturing a greenish-yellow, bitter fluid called bile, which, between meals, is stored up in the gall-bladder, but after each meal is poured out into the intestine.

The bile is purgative and indirectly antiseptic or prophylactic. In health it is your bile that makes your bowels act regularly and freely every day.

—It is Nature's Purgative. It is your bile that keeps your bowels pure, clean and free from excessive fermentation (gas) and putrefaction. Remember that putrefactive germs do not thrive where there is fresh bile and there can therefore be no fermentation to cause gas, nor putrefaction to produce poisons, or toxins.

Also, as the liver is purgative, there can be no constipation if the bile is flowing naturally and freely from the gall-bladder into the bowels after each meal.

But when the bile becomes stagnant your bowels stop acting regularly and the contents become a breeding bed for the germs of fermentation (gas) and putrefaction. These poisons, (called toxins), are gradually absorbed into your blood and if the quantity be more than the liver can destroy, may circulate over your body, poisoning, irritating or inflaming your brain and nerves, your muscles and joints, your heart, skin, kidneys, and every vital organ of your body. Your doctor calls this "intestinal toxemia," and tells you that your system is "toxic," or, if mild, "bilious."

Functions of Gall-Bladder

In 24 hours your liver manufactures about 3 to 4 teaspoonfuls of bile, which flows through millions of minute canals, or ducts, uniting to make a large tube which empties into the gall-bladder, as creeks and rivulets unite to form a river that flows into a lake. Your gall-bladder is a hollow muscle that serves the double purpose of a reservoir and a pump. Its functions are similar to those of the urinary bladder. About three hours after eating, when the food is passing from the stomach into the intestines, your gall-bladder should begin its contractions, thus pumping the bile into the small intestine where it is mixed with your food. Bile is also an essential digestive fluid, aiding in the digestion and absorption of fats and oils.

How to Make the Bile Flow

But when the bile stops flowing freely, how can we help Nature start it again? The answer is: Take Calotabs at bedtime and drink water freely the next day. This formula is designed to increase the force and frequency of contraction of the gall-bladder and the upper intestine (duodenum), thus promoting the expulsion of bile from the gall-bladder or bile-expeller; is diuretic to the kidneys; and antiseptic (prophylactic) to the bowels, discouraging the growth of putrefactive bacteria and gas formation. The assistants act like salts, washing the calomel out of the system, preventing its accumulation and any danger of salivation. The correctives settle the stomach and bowels, preventing nausea, sickening and griping effects. Calotabs (and water) therefore, give you the combined effects of calomel and salts without the nausea, sickening and griping effects.

When You Need Calotabs

Unwholesome foods and drinks, or over-indulgence in good foods and beverages, especially meats, alcohol, coffee, tea and tobacco, cause engorgement of the liver with stagnation of bile, and intestinal toxemia. Colds with their toxins, bring about a similar toxic condition. Hot summer weather, overwork, mental strain, irregular habits, and lack of sleep tend to make the system toxic. Whenever you need a thorough cleansing of the food canal, as in colds, constipation, bilious indigestion, sick headache, engorgement of the liver and its allied organs, the stomach and kidneys, you will find Calotabs a most dependable and effective stimulant. Millions of Calotabs have been used annually for twenty years. You need have no fear of using them as directed.

Calotabs are quite economical—only 25 cents for the family package! 10 cents for the trial package, at your druggist's. (Advertisement.)

Speed Causes Four Out of Ten Traffic Deaths

Exceeding the speed limit was again the greatest single cause of accidental death on the highways last year, according to "Here Today—" seventh annual highway safety booklet.

Pointing out that motorists exceeding the legal speed limit caused two deaths out of every five and that speed "too great for existing conditions" caused nine out of ten deaths, the booklet asserts that more drivers lose their lives in the lottery of speed than in any other gamble they take with an automobile.

Exactly 40% of all deaths in 1940 for which drivers were responsible were the result of illegal speed.

Other dangerous practices brought to light in the analysis are: Driving on the wrong side of the road (this killed 4,150 and injured 133,830); reckless driving (this killed 1,580 and injured 106,778); and failure to observe or grant the right of way (this killed 3,000 and injured 233,700).

NO LONE STAR

Jimmie Faller, famed Hollywood columnist, who came to Texas recently to make a speech before the Galveston convention of the Texas Press Association, opened in his daily column that "As far as the motion picture industry is concerned, Texans err when they call this the Lone Star State." And he explained:

"No other section of the country, in proportion to population, has contributed more tonight personalities to the screen. Joan Crawford, Ann Sheridan, the late Tom Mix, Linda Darnell, Guy Kibbee, Mary Brian, John Boles, Gene Autry, Constance Moore, Ann Harding—many more—were born between the Cimarron and the Rio Grande.

"After years of wondering why so many Texans have clicked in show business beyond the fact that Texas girls, as a rule, are breathtakingly beautiful, I've found the answer on this point to Galveston.

"These Texans, for all their rapid industrial growth, still find time to give every corner, be he stranger or friend, a cheery howdy, and to prove themselves good fellows. In other words, down here they've developed the friendly comradeship that is essential to the theatre and movies.

"On second thought, I don't think I've stressed the beauty of these Texas gals sufficiently. Were I a talent scout, I'd have been doing enthusiastic nip-ups all the way across the state—and if you know anything about distances in Texas, you'll have to admit that would be a lot of nip-ups."

When to "quit" advertising

A well-established journal requested a number of its largest advertisers to give their opinions concerning the best time to stop advertising, and the following replies were received:

The best time to stop advertising is—

"When the population ceases to multiply, and the generations that crowd on after you and never heard of you, stop coming on.

"When you have convinced everybody whose life will touch yours that you have better goods and lower prices than they can get anywhere else.

"When you can perceive it to be the rule that men who never advertise are outstripping their neighbors in the same line of business.

"When you can forget the words of the shrewdest and most successful men concerning the main cause of their prosperity.

"When every man has become so thoroughly a creature of habit that he will with certainty buy this year where he bought last year.

"When younger and fresher houses in your line cease starting up and using newspapers in telling the people how much better they can do for them than you can.

"When you would rather have your own way and fail than take advice and win."

Vanished Men

By GEORGE MARSH

THE STORY SO FAR: Bound for the Chibougamau gold country, six men lost their lives on the Nottaway river. Red Malone, Garrett Finlay, brother of one of the six, and Blaise, half-breed guide, arrive at Nottaway posing as surveyors.

INSTALLMENT TWO

Blaise quieted Flame as a figure appeared in the path leading down from the railroad fill.

"Bo-jo!" returned Blaise. The half-breed's eyes roved over the heaped bags; then he turned to Brassard. "You on survey?"

The thick muscles under Blaise's shirt tightened at the insolence of the other's manner. But his seamed face might have been carved from wood. "Ah-hah!" he said, easing a cloud of smoke from his mouth.

"My name is Joe Flambeau. I work for Jules Isadore!" announced the caller. "What your name?"

"I am Big Windigo from Devil Valley! I eat Nottaway Riviere man for supper!" The twinkle faded to a cold stare.

At the calculated affront the other sucked in his breath. "By gar! You eensult Joe Flambeau!" he choked. Then Flambeau's groping fingers found and closed on the bone handle of the knife under his coat.

"Don't pull dat knife!" Brassard's voice was as brittle as shell ice. "Look behin' you!" he said.

Flambeau turned his head. Feet bunched under him, the big air-raid crouched like a panther.

"You pull dat knife and dat dog land on your back and rip your t'roat!"

Flambeau's hand moved away from his knife handle. "I don't come here for troubl!" he said weakly. "I talk business wid you."

"Forget w'at I say!" appeased Blaise. "I don't mean no'ting. W'at you want, Flambeau?"

"W'y you take Nottaway Trail to de Bay?"

"We survey lower riviere."

Flambeau surprised Blaise with: "Dese engineer pay you small wages. I get you job wid big money."

"Who wid?"

"Isadore! You are stout man. Isadore pay big money for strong man on de riviere."

It was growing interesting. Blaise took the bait. "Ah-hah! W'at you say?"

"Double w'at you get! Leave dese men and dey will not make survey done."

Blaise threw back his head and laughed. "You notice dat redhead?"

"Ah-hah!"

"He is Injun in white water! Finlay will run any'ting. Dey go to de bay widout me."

Flambeau scowled. "Batoche will talk wid you at daylight, here."

"Ah-hah!"

"Isadore give you big pay. Shake hand!"

Blaise rose and extended a thick paw. Then he deliberately tossed his bombshell. "W'y do Isadore watch de Nottaway like a fox watch rabbit run? He strike gold on Waswanipi?"

Flambeau's jaw sagged as he stared at the cryptic face of the speaker. "Mebbe he got gold! Mebbe! You come wid us and fin' out! see you at daylight."

Shortly Finlay and Malone joined Blaise at the camp on the shore.

"This dump is sure stampered!" ported the giant, filling and lighting his pipe. "Can't get a soul to talk! from the way they shut up you'd think the bush north of here was all of cockeyed, man-eating Windigo."

"Who'd you talk with?" asked Blaise.

"Cotter the storekeeper's asered as a fox in deep snow with lynx on his trail. The rest are de same way. You see McLeod?"

"Yes. I showed him the last line the letter sent to the family and, ked if he recognized the writing, he look in his wife's face I beve he wrote it himself."

"Let's see that letter, again, Garry. When Cotter asked me to register, I saw in his book some writing a loose sheet signed by McLeod."

Finlay handed Malone the letter carried in his wallet and the latter read aloud:

to the family of Robert Finlay, North Bay, Ontario:

Last spring Robert Finlay and partner, Andrew Troup, left Nottaway bound for the Chibougamau country by way of the Waswanipi River. In the fall it was reported, here, that Montagnais Indians had found their smashed camp. This is the third party that has appeared on the Chibougamau in two years. There are people who have reasons why they don't prospectors traveling Waswanipi water.

I don't believe these six men were drowned.

"A Friend."

For some time Malone studied the writing of McLeod's I saw in the book," he said.

McLeod wrote that letter, Red."

He repeated his conversation at the station agent and his wife. McLeod's tied up here and there, I want trouble," he concluded. "Whom does he suspect and why?"

"You suppose someone's made a strike on the river and is going to hog it?"

Finlay receives an anonymous letter suggesting that the six men were not drowned as reported. Finlay and Malone find the people of the Nottaway settlement strangely averse to discussing the tragedy. Among themselves they speculate on the reports from the north that the bodies of the men were found by Indians. The name of Isadore, rich fur man, when brought by Finlay, causes an immediate cessation of further conversation along that line.

"I sure do. It looks to me as if we had run into the coldest attempt to control wild country I've ever heard of." Garry turned to Brassard. "What do you think of it, Blaise?"

"I tink nodding. I got new job."

"Cut the funny stuff, Blaise!" grunted Red. "What's your dope on the situation?"

"I work for Isadore, now!" announced Blaise, his eyes snapping like an otter's. "I leave dis outfit in de mornin'." Then he described his meeting with Flambeau.

"Good!" laughed Garry. "They're certainly worried about us. What are you going to tell Batoche?"

"Wal, you see, I was hit on de head, once. I leave me wid bad memory. I tell Batoche dere is some meestake. I navare talk wid Flambeau."

"And will that bird be wild!" chuckled Red. "Watch his right hand! Don't let him wing you."

Blaise inhaled until his chest resembled a barrel. He flexed his thick biceps and yawned. "I take good care dat fallar!" he said. Then he rose and his face sobered. "I like to have look at dis Isadore outfit on Waswanipi."

"Don't you realize that we've got to map the lower river?" demanded Garry. "What's the idea?"

"Tomorrow, I tink we get telegraph order from Ottawa to map Waswanipi Lake."

"You old fox! You've hit it!" cried Garry. "We'll give that telegram the air whether McLeod denies it or not. In the morning this city hears that we've been wired from headquarters to map Waswanipi. Will that be news?"

"I can't tell you! I'm afraid to talk."

Finlay rose. "I'm dropping in on those prospectors above here," he said, and left his friends.

"Hello, Mac!" greeted a voice as Finlay reached the tent above the bridge. "Sit down and light up!"

"Thanks, I will. Where you people heading?"

"Rouyn way! Plenty gold in them quartz veins if you can locate 'em!" said a grizzled veteran. "You're on the survey, they tell me."

"Yes, we pull out in the morning for Matagami."

"Well, you're on government business. That makes you safe. But, friend, if you was prospectin', I'd advise you to wet them paddies of yourn south of the steel."

"How's that?"

"Too many men who left here for Chibougamau ain't never been heard from."

Finlay finished his pipe and bade the prospectors good night. On his way back to Cotter's store he passed a lighted shack. From the shadows in the rear came a woman's voice: "Mr. Finlay!"

Finlay stopped. "Did somebody call me?" he asked.

"I'm Mrs. MacDonald," said the invisible speaker in a low tone. "You'll think it's strange for me to speak to you this way. But my husband, the section foreman, is down the line and I've got to talk."

"What is it, Mrs. MacDonald?" said the interested Finlay.

"You're going down river—on the survey?"

"Yes."

"Mr. Finlay, they don't believe you're on the survey. If you're headed for the Chibougamau Trail, I beg you to give it up!"

"This is interesting. Who doesn't believe we're a survey party?"

"I can't tell you! I'm afraid to talk. It's too dangerous."

"Just what are they afraid of? Why don't they talk to the police?"

"The police were here last year, the Provincials. They only laughed at us."

Finlay was both annoyed and interested. Annoyed that a government survey party should be suspected of being something else.

tion the reports from the north that the bodies of the men were found by Indians. The name of Isadore, rich fur man, when brought by Finlay, causes an immediate cessation of further conversation along that line.

"It's mighty good of you, Mrs. MacDonald, to warn us," Finlay said, "but we happen to be government surveyors under orders—not prospectors. No one's going to be crazy enough to monkey with a survey party."

"I know, but Mrs. McLeod said tonight that one of those boys lost last year was your brother—that you were making inquiries."

So it was all over the place? He had talked too much to the McLeods. And yet it had been necessary to learn who wrote that letter.

"Mrs. MacDonald," Finlay suddenly asked, "who is it you're afraid of—Isadore?"

Finlay heard the sudden intake of her breath. "Oh, no! You're wrong there! We don't even know him! He's a fur man and generally flies to Waswanipi from down below."

"Well, anyway, I'm grateful for your kindness. But as our job is to re-map the lower Nottaway I don't expect to have the pleasure of meeting Mr. Isadore. Good night!"

In the small bedroom at Cotter's Finlay found Malone and told him the story.

"Don't think we're surveyors, eh? Want to warn us off the Chibougamau Trail! Looks more and more, chief, as if that letter was right!"

"Yes, Red, that letter was right!"

"They've been through our bags," whispered Malone.

Shortly Red Malone was filling the room with gargantuan snores but Garry Finlay could not sleep. Later he heard the cautious tread of moccasined feet on the creaking stairway and someone entered the room adjoining. There was whispered conversation, that was inaudible, then, head against the partition of matched boards, he heard:

"Oua! Dey sleep soun! Leesten!"

"Ah-hah! Dey sleep hard!" one whispered.

There was the creak of bed springs and a grunt of disgust.

"Dat fallar who look like hawk wid his eye say he make map of de Nottaway. He lie. Dey take de Chibougamau Trail."

"Dey carry tool and map of engineer."

"Mebbe so. But I tink dey lie."

"Chibougamau! You tink dey hunt for gold, eh? We ofair dis Brassard big pay in de mornin' and get him drunk. Den we find out who dey are." There was a muffled chuckle. "If dey go to Waswanipi, Tete-Blanche show dem w'ere to find gold and bury dem in de hole."

Shortly the men in the next room slept, but Garry Finlay's brain was busy. Tete-Blanche! He's white-haired! And Tetu! What a pair of names! He'd not forget them. So these were the men who were blocking the Chibougamau Trail?

CHAPTER II

Before daylight Finlay heard the two men in the next room creep down the stairs. He waked Malone, told him what he had overheard and, later, found Cotter in the store.

"Much travel through here?" he threw out, casually.

"There's a couple of free traders south of here and all the Hudson's Bay and Isadore supplies go this way."

"Many hit for Chibougamau from here?"

"A few tried it but were drowned."

"What?"

"Yes, drowned in the Waswanipi! It's nasty water. Even the Indians are shy of it."

The muscles in Finlay's face suddenly tightened. Cotter slowly colored before the thrust of the agate eyes. "How do you know they were drowned?"

"Isadore says so."

"Oh, Isadore says so? Say, Cotter, where did this Isadore come from? How long has he been trading on Waswanipi Lake?"

The storekeeper was visibly uneasy. "He was here before the steel went through—before the Chibougamau gold strike."

"Don't know where he came from?"

Cotter's hand was noticeably unsteady as he filled his pipe. "Say, ain't you pretty curious? I thought you was a government surveyor but you talk like the police."

Garry smiled at the other's evasive nervousness. Then he suddenly shot the bald question: "How long has Tete-Blanche been working for him?"

Cotter's face was etched with fear. "I'm making it my business, Mr. Cotter! Finlay said! You're scared silly! What are you afraid of?"

Cotter swallowed hard. "You're right! I am scared! I bin threatened I'm trying to make a livin' here—tryin' to mind my own business. You can't blame me for keepin' my mouth shut!"

"Good!" thought Garry. "Now I'm getting somewhere! This fellow's going to talk!" Then he asked the uneasy man behind the counter: "Just what are you scared of?"

"Scared of being burned out at night in midwinter—scared of what might happen to my family!"

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for August 10

JAMES TEACHES CONSISTENT CHRISTIAN LIVING

LESSON TEXT—James 1:17-22; 2:14-17; 4:13-17; 5:12.

GOLDEN TEXT—Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this: To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world.—James 1:27.

Spiritually minded but very practical was James, an outstanding leader in the Church (Gal. 2:9; Acts 15) and the brother of our Lord. His epistle speaks little about Christ, but it reflects more of His teachings than any of the other epistles. It parallels the sermon on the mount and in that way, as well as other ways, greatly resembles the teachings of Jesus. It is a straightforward discussion of practical Christian living.

There is so much inconsistency among Christians in their daily walk that nothing could be more needed than a careful study of the exhortations of James.

I. Be Doers of the Word—Not Hearers Only (1:17-22).

Knowing God's will is important, but it amounts to little except to bring condemnation upon us, unless we do it. It is good to hear with swift apprehension, but there is no point in talking about what we have heard unless we practice it.

God is the "giver of every good and perfect gift" (that's literally and wonderfully true). Note that it is not withheld one blessing, even to the giving of His Son, who was sent down from heaven to redeem us.

His very goodness should prompt us to lay aside everything which dishonors His name. Wrath (v. 20), all uncleanness of speech or thought, pride (v. 21)—all these must go, and will go, as we permit the Word to take root (be "engrafted") in our hearts and lives. Note that it is not enough to read the Word, or even to memorize it. It must take root and grow in our life.

II. Believe—But Do Not Forget to Work (2:14-17).

Saved by faith? Yes, we are, and in no other way; but the man who says he has faith in Christ will inevitably show the results of that faith in his life.

James is not in any way contradicting the teaching of Paul's epistles regarding justification by faith, but is clearly stating what must be true. "That a faith which does not result in works, i. e., in a manifestation of a true Christian life, externally and visibly, is not the kind of faith commanded by God, and constantly revealed in the New Testament as the only instrument for the appropriation of the redemption that is in Jesus Christ our Lord. There is no such thing as real, genuine, vital, living, Christian faith, except it has its fruits in the works of faith" (Wilbur M. Smith).

How that faith will show itself in the practical dealings of daily life is graphically presented in verses 15 and 16. Pious talk has always been very cheap, and it certainly accomplishes nothing. Real Christianity works.

III. Trust—But Do Not Boast of Tomorrow (4:13-17).

There is a strange religious attitude which talks about faith as though it were something of which to boast, which encourages people not only to believe, but actually to presume. There is a radical difference between faith and presumption.

All Christians are subject to the temptation of talking about being "strangers and pilgrims" (Heb. 11:13) in this earth, and then planning their lives and their business as though everything will continue as it is through all eternity. It is right to plan, but every day we should plan subject to God's will, always realizing that this may be the day when we shall be called into His presence to give an account of the deeds done in the flesh.

Every hour of life should find us ready to meet the Lord, and with all in readiness, so that our going may leave behind a clear testimony of faith in God, and of consistent Christian living.

IV. Be Honest—Without the Need of an Oath (5:12).

A Christian should never need to give an oath in the ordinary affairs of daily life. His life should be so transparently honest and consistently aboveboard that his word ("yea, yes, or nay, nay") will be "as good as his bond."

The Jews were accustomed to use formulas for oaths such as those mentioned in Matthew 5:33-37. They would have felt much at home in our day when there is so much dishonesty that people are constantly calling on God to witness to their truthfulness. Those who have least to do with Him and the worst records for dishonesty are most prone to thus seek to bolster their word.

What a striking contrast is the simple "yes" or "no" of the true Christian. Let us make our word always good, because it is the expression of the integrity of our lives.

Benefits to Our Readers

THE PUBLIC nature of advertising benefits everyone it touches. It benefits the public by describing exactly the products that are offered. It benefits employees, because the advertiser must be more fair and just than the employer who has no obligation to the public. These benefits of advertising are quite apart from the obvious benefits which advertising confers—the lower prices, the higher quality, the better service that go with advertised goods and firms.

PIONEERS

A charming old lady who has lived in Le Grand over 40 years re-monstrated with me over the name of our community celebration. "Why call it Pioneer Day when the pioneers are all gone?" she asked. "The pioneers who first broke the soil around here were gone when we moved to Le Grand."

Her viewpoint interested me, because I, a newcomer, had considered her a pioneer. I am sure this gentle little woman had as much genuine pleasure in the activities of last year's Pioneer Day as did the dozens of other "Old Timers" who were honored.

The pioneers are not gone, they are always with us. For pioneering is not a fixture in time; it is a way of life. On this day of celebration we are honoring the oldest among us as a tribute to what they represent: the breaking of the wilderness, the building of homes and schools and roads, the struggle for and the acceptance of a better standard of living.

Forty years hence the youngest among us will be considered pioneers in a world much changed. We will have contributed something to what our ancestors have left. Out of the dreams and hopes and labors of many generations comes a better way of life. In a stable community such as ours, the youngsters will always look upon the oldsters as "pioneers," because the dictionary tells them that a pioneer is "one who goes before to prepare the way for others."

In this sense, we are still on the frontier. There are no more wildernesses to break but there are challenging problems of thinking and living to be mastered. Out of the chaos which may surround us in world conflict, we may have need of starting from the foundation to rebuild our civilization. If I were to see into the future, I would feel more secure in my rural home here than I would in the complex maze of city life. Because civilization sprang from the pastoral family, the unified group which took its strength from the soil, what hope is there in reality or eternity for those lost in the artificial shadow-boxing of urban life?

Yes, in Le Grand today we honor the pioneers of the past, the strong people who came and stayed. Yet we might well turn our eyes into tomorrow and honor the pioneers of the future, the youngsters who are growing strong in body, mind and spirit and will go forth from their country homes to challenge the intangible frontiers.—J. Wilson McKenney in the Le Grand (Calif.) Advocate.

TEXAS GAME LIMITS LIBERAL

"I'll take my hunting in Texas," exclaimed a sportsman recently after perusing a story issued by the Pennsylvania Game Commission which noted that the season and bag limits on most game in that state will be more liberal than usual.

The reason for the exclamation was that, while Pennsylvania has long been noted as the leading game state in the nation, its bag limits are far below those of Texas for almost every species of game. It was also found that Michigan, another of the leading game states in the nation, also had far more stringent regulations than does the Lone Star State. Michigan, for example, generally ranks second in deer, Texas fifth, and in all species of big game Michigan is generally second and Texas sixth.

Yet the sportsman read, to his amazement, that Pennsylvania allows the hunter only one buck deer during a two-week season. Michigan also gives the sportsman the privilege of killing but one deer. Texas bag limit is two per season and the season is six weeks long.

Hunters in Texas are allowed three turkey gobblers during a six-week season under the general state law, but the Pennsylvania hunter legally can take only one, and Michigan's nimrods do not even have that pleasure, there being no open season on the great American bird in that huge state.

Quail hunters who pursue their sport in Texas can take almost two and a half times as many birds in any week of the six-week season as Pennsylvania hunters can legally bag all season. The Keystone state allows its sportsmen to kill five quail per day and not more than 15 in a season. Should a Texan be lucky enough to get his limit of 36 birds each week during the season he could legally take 216 quail. Michigan has no open season on quail, but allows its grouse hunters to take 25 birds per season.

An even more liberal bag limit is allowed by Texas laws on squirrel. Pennsylvania nimrods can bag 20 of the little nut eaters during a season which extends from Nov. 1 to Sept. 30. Michigan is a bit more liberal, allowing the taking of 25 squirrels. Texans, believe it or not, could legally kill 1,800 squirrels under a state law which provides an open season for six months of the year. The daily bag limit is 10 and with 180 days in which to legally hunt the tree climbers, Texans can gorge on squirrels.

Want to hunt rabbits? You can do so, and legally, at any time of the year in the Lone Star State, but don't attempt it in Michigan or Pennsylvania more than three weeks in the year. Too, it is illegal in Pennsylvania to take more than four rabbits in a single day, or 20 in a season. If you are in Michigan you can do a bit better. That state's daily limit is five, and 50 may be killed during the season.

"Well," remarked the old-timer, after looking over the above figures, "Maybe these strict bag limits and shorter seasons are the reason Pennsylvania and Michigan can outrank Texas in game."

AT SET OF SUN

If we sit down at set of sun
And count the things that we have done,

And, counting, find
One self-denying act, one word
That eased the heart of him who heard—

One glance most kind,
That fell like sunshine where it went—
Then we may count the day well spent.

But if, through all the livelong day,
We've eased no heart by yea or nay,
If, through it all
We've nothing done that we can trace
Has brought the sunshine to a face—
No act most small

That helped some soul and nothing cost—
Then count that day as worse than lost.

PRETTY PICTURE

The "Billy the Kid" picture brought out that a friend of Caps had seen Billy once back in Coryell county in 1871. This friend also knew Pat Garrett and the Ford boys.

It seems that the country was really rough in those days and horse stealing and cattle thieving so bad that honest cattlemen rarely hesitated to apply the noose when the rustler was caught with the goods.

"Trouble was," he said, "it was sometimes hard to find a mesquite tree tall enough to keep a man's feet from dragging the ground. The cattlemen learned to tie a culprit's fet back against his thighs and hang him that way. It always looked funny because the man looked like he was praying."—CAPS and lower case.

Coke Stevenson has announced that after he becomes governor his office will be opened to newspaper correspondents. After O'Daniel was elected, too many embarrassing questions were asked by the reporters, and he discontinued press conferences. This was in line with his other famous policy of inviting all Texans to visit his office, and then removing all chairs so those who did call would have to stand in the corridor awaiting the pleasure of the governor. Most of his callers have had to stand for hours before being admitted.—If at all.—Canyon News.
