Mrs. Wade Gives Club Demonstration

To prepare dinner for Eastside members, Mrs. J. H. Wade gave demonstration on vegetable cookery at the home of Mrs. H. L. Wade.

Mrs. Wade's first statement was that a complete vegetable dinner can be prepared and cooked in thirty minutes using the pressure cooker.

Members prepared the following vegetables for cooking by any method—fresh Irish potatoes, cabbage, peas, turnips, English peas and green squash. Vegetables were prepared separately in the cooker and separately in the pressure cooker.

Meat of bacon was used for seasoning, salt and pepper were added, and one cup of water was added. Let steam exhaust 7 minutes, let pressure come up to 10 lbs., out fire and let pressure run to almost zero, then exhaust. Open cooker, and vegetables be tender and flavors are not lost.

Mrs. Wade said that the purpose of the steaming was to prevent food from having a "pressure cooker" taste.

After the complete meal, 4-H girls prepared salads from vegetables grown in their own gardens.

Kelley Gives Demonstration

The afternoon Mrs. Julia E. Kelley gave a demonstration on repairing furniture. Two pieces of furniture, a breakfast table and a chair, were refinished. The wood was removed and the pieces sanded to smoothness. Clear varnish was used on the table, and linseed oil on the smoking chair. Mrs. Kelley said: "Let furniture shine in sunshine. Apply three dryings each in sunshine, then clear varnish." She said that the newest method of finishing furniture is pickling wood.

Those attending the meeting were Mrs. C. A. Myatt, Olen Davis, Stakes, T. H. Hardin, Floyd Ruby Dorsey, Elton Johnston, Pettie, B. L. Stokes, and the Strators.

Girls were: Nora Isabel Petty, Mae Wade, Norma Lee Myatt, Lee Hardin, Eulema Lively, Johnston; and one visitor, Ola Tate.

Vacation Bible School Grows in Attendance

The vacation Bible school in session through this week and next at the First Baptist Church reports a total enrollment of 61 on the opening day of activities with 97 in attendance. Since that time the enrollment has reached more than 100 and the attendance Tuesday morning was even 100, with a fine spirit of cooperation among both faculty and pupils.

The school will continue through Friday morning this week and all next week, with a demonstration of the work and departmental programs on Sunday evening, July 27th. Departmental pictures and also a picture of the entire school will be taken next Monday morning, and a large attendance is urged as the picture will be a part of permanent records.

All children of the community are extended a special invitation by the church to attend, and parents desiring to see the plan of work are invited to visit the school at any session. Periods of from 9 to 11 each morning, Monday through Friday. Children may be enrolled any day.

TEXAS AIDS DEFENSE

Austin, July 16.—While the eyes of America are focused on the tense situation in Europe, Texas is bending every effort to aid in national defense. Daily this state becomes of greater importance to the whole national defense program.

Bombers, of the type most needed by England, are being built at Dallas and Fort Worth. Ammunition will soon be turned out in large volume by the plant now under construction at Texarkana; other articles of vital importance are being turned out daily by Texas industries. Large numbers of ships will soon be constructed in the new yards at Orange and Houston. American soldiers are being trained in modern warfare at Brownwood, Abilene, Mineral Wells, Palacios, San Antonio, El Paso and other cities. American Air Corps pilots are being taught flying, bombing and aerial warfare at Randolph Field, the huge Naval Air Base at Corpus Christi, Victoria, Cuero, Brady, Corsicana, and Stamford. Soon new air schools will be completed at Lubbock, Midland, Coleman, Grayson county, and several other points in our state. Mechanics to service American planes will be trained in large numbers at Wichita Falls within the very near future.

Citizens of Texas are thinking in terms of defense bonds and savings stamps. They are anxious to help. They know that the Canadian people were asked recently to subscribe $600,000,000 to put over Canada's Victory loan and that these friends on our north went over the top by buying $710,958,950 of these securities.

The Secretary of the Treasury, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., said: "Defense savings bonds and stamps give us all a way to take a direct part in building the defense of our country—an American way to find the billions needed for national defense."

"The United States is today, as it has always been, the best investment in the world. This is an opportunity for each citizen to buy a share in America."

WITH THE CHURCHES

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

C. O. Huber, Pastor
We announce the reorganization of the Junior and Intermediate departments of our Sunday school on next Sunday morning. Murray Boston is superintendent of the junior department, and with a full faculty a class will be provided for each age group with a division of sexes. The same will be true in the intermediate department with Miss Margaret Glass as superintendent. Each department will be provided with separate departments of assembly with their own piano, hymn books and other necessary supplies for the most efficient work possible.

Our Sunday school officers and teachers have suggested a goal of 150 in attendance through all departments, and a special invitation is extended to the city populace, where not enrolled in some other school, to attend our services. To reach our goal of attendance, Be One and Bring One.

Our Sunday school superintendent, Reep Landers, will be our lay speaker Sunday morning, on the subject, "What a Vacation Costs Our Church in General Organization."

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

Landing of U. S. Forces in Iceland Is New Move in Hemisphere Defense; Germany's Campaign Against Russia Gives British Chance for Air Attacks

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

During the Iraq rebellion and war, Americans stationed at the Iraq capital city of Baghdad prepared to defend themselves. As Old Glory is raised in the background men of the American legation staff start training drill with weapons furnished by British military mission commander. But the British won this war before the Americans were called upon to defend themselves.

ICELAND: Occupied by U. S.

American naval forces have occupied Iceland to supplement and eventually to replace British forces there. This information was given Congress by President Roosevelt, who explained that the move was taken "to forestall any pincers movement undertaken by Germany against the Western hemisphere."

The occupation was accomplished with the full permission of the new Iceland republic which had declared its independence from Denmark in May.

ON RUN: Or Defending?

Crucial questions of the Russo-German war were these: Did the Nazis actually have the Russians in a wild-disorganized retreat?

Were the Russians, instead, falling back to the Stalin line in good order considering the magnitude of their army?

Was the finish to be another defeat for the defenders as soon as the large cities were taken, as had happened in Norway, Belgium, Holland, France?

Or were the Russians willing, like the Chinese, to move back across vast territory and let space and winter hardships swallow up the Nazi effort?

None of these questions could be answered accurately through the muddle of rival claims, yet there were hints here and there that tended to show trends in attack and defense that might furnish a partial answer.

The onslaught was terrific and news pictures released by the Germans showed the advance across battlefields filled with backgrounds of smoke, flame and destruction. The speed could be counted at about 350 miles in two weeks—the very distance not only pointing to the terrific power of the attack, but also to the difficulty of maintaining a service of supply and "mopping up" over so many thousands of square miles.

So much tended to show the Nazis swift and easy victors. Yet there were other indications, entirely aside from the official and biased communiques which bore on the eventual result and the theory of the Red defense.

There were reports from Nazi-friendly Vichy and Rome. The former reported half the troops of occupation withdrawn to the eastern front; the latter warned against expecting a swift and easy victory.

The reports from Scandinavian sources of the evacuation of civilians from Leningrad and Moscow and Kiev; the speech of Stalin in which he urged the "scorched earth" defense; the plans of Hitler to put Louis Ferdinand on the Russian throne—all indicated that there might be a chance that the Russians were willing to drop back as slowly as might be, cede what cities and territory must be given up, and let the Russian wastes and the impending Russian fall and winter eat up the strength of the attacker.

Few believed that the "Stalin line" would be anything but a stormy way-station for the German advance. But many believed that the "Chinese plan" would not only stem the Hitlerian attack—but eventually defeat it.

The navy developed dive-bombing to hit fast-moving ships which were difficult targets for high flying bombers.

ARMY: Dive Bombing

The army, which has relied on lofty bombers with an efficient bomb-sight, and low-flying attack planes to machine-gun infantry positions, finally decided it was unwise to let the navy do all the dive-bombing and was reported about to get some dive-bombers of its own and start practicing the art.

The navy developed dive-bombing to hit fast-moving ships which were difficult targets for high flying bombers.

BRITAIN: Her Chance

The British were apparently keenly aware that the preoccupation of the Nazis with the Reds on the East furnished them with their great chance of the war.

Hardly had the attack against Russia been on for a week than the R.A.F. leaders announced mastery of the daytime air over the occupied regions and western Germany.

Hardly did a day pass without large-scale daytime bombing raids, and the British plane losses did not appear great if, as the claim was made, they were using several squadrons of upward of 100 bombers each every day.

There was a silence from German sources about the accomplishments of the raids, but the British, judging from their own losses from German air attacks, figured that their chosen objectives must soon be reduced to hopeless ruins.

They felt that the Coventries on Europe's soil must be numerous. Heavy night attacks followed those by day, with only occasional and very light German reprisals—and all of these under cover of darkness.

On the sea, also, the British seemed to be making some headway against the U-boat menace, and the probability was felt that many submarines must have been diverted to the Baltic, to serve against Russian vessels.

MARSHALL: And Draffees

Two vital questions on the home front were brought to the fore by General Marshall, chief of staff of the U. S. army:

The keeping of selective service men past their 12-month training period.

The question of sending them beyond the United States and her possessions as "task troops."

The chief of staff made his case plain. The army, he said, was composed of three elements—regulars, national guardsmen, and draffees. These, instead of having been kept separate, were all melted into one military whole, and to remove a part of these, the draffees, at the end of 12 months, would be to create utter confusion in the whole organization, he said.

He asked that the part of the selective service law which limited the time and place of the soldier's service be taken away.

Otherwise, he pointed out, the power of the commander-in-chief would become a meaningless thing, and detachments needed at certain points would be forced to lose their manpower.

But the chief of staffs request, couched in such a way that it seemed an official request of Congress by the war department, found considerable opposition. Senator McNary of Oregon, Republican leader, stating that he was not only in opposition to the removal of the geographical restrictions in the draft act, but also was against the removal of the 12-month restriction as well.

It was evident that Marshall's hope for an army of 2,500,000 trained men, able to move wherever the congress and the commander-in-chief deemed expedient, was not going to be won without overcoming serious opposition.

MISCELLANY:

Ottawa: There was evidence of a new political outcry in Canada for some form of draft or selective service to take the place of voluntary enlistment, still in force in the Dominion.

Washington: The White House confirmed the fact that Colonel Donovan, after two unofficial tours of inspection of Europe's war centers, would be given a post of importance in the defense set-up.

Russian Throne?

Above photo is of Prince Louis Ferdinand, grandson of the late Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany, and his wife, Grand Duchess Kyra, daughter of Grand Duke Kyril of Russia. Prince Louis is reported to be Hitler's choice for Coardom over Russia, if and when the Nazi legions complete the conquest of that vast land.

SYRIA: And Ethiopia

Britain also seemed on the threshold of success in Syria and Ethiopia, and resolved to do something about North Africa, because General Sir Archibald Wavell was relieved, a new commander, General Auchinleck sent out from England, and the whole African and Middle Eastern campaign seemed on the upgrade.

The final crumb of Italian resistance in Ethiopia melted away before the rains and the relentless British follow-up of victory after victory, and another menace to Britain's Red sea and Suez position was removed.

In Africa the situation was no worse than it had been, still apparently a stalemate on the Egyptian border, with the Tobruk defenders still holding out. There were some indications that the British forces, strengthened by U. S. tanks and lend-lease airplanes, were beginning to lay the groundwork of a new advance against Cyrenaica—not only to relieve the Tobruk garrison, but to attempt to win a major victory against the Italo-Nazi forces.

As to Syria, there were reports of an imminent Franco-British peace there, following in the wake of a continuous series of English victories and the steady fall-back of the Vichy defenders around the vital Beirut sector.

All in all, the British seemed to be making what use they could of the Russo-German battle on all their various fronts, and with varying success.

There was a strong demand in London for an invasion attempt on the continent, but the apparent verdict of the powers that seemed to be "thumbs down."

Britain was unwilling to risk further shipments of men and armaments to the continent until a far more drastic preparatory air bombardment had been carried out.

LOST: U. S. Nurses

Added to the Zamzam and the Robin Moor incidents was the torpedoing of the Dutch steamer Maasden, the survivors including a number of U. S. marines, bound for London to do guard duty at the American Embassy, and American nurses, 15 of whom were saved, but two feared lost at sea.

The young women were a group of Red Cross nurses who volunteered to cross the dangerous Atlantic to "man" a Red Cross hospital in London.

The vessel was torpedoed on a Sunday, and nearly a week later a rescue vessel brought all but two of the nurses safely to London.

The Dutch freighter was part of a large convoy bound for Britain, and what the fate of the rest of the convoy was could not be learned, but one of the nurses said:

"The captain of the ship that rescued us looked scared to death when he saw his vessel boarded by a bunch of women."

"The marines were wonderful."

AMERICA: A Round Trip

The luxury liner America was designated by the state department to make a round trip on the Atlantic from New York to Lisbon and return, carrying deported diplomats both ways.

At Lisbon will be gathered the American consular officials from Italy and Germany, and they will be brought back to New York.

The German and Italian consuls, under a July 15 deadline to quit the country, were to be taken to Lisbon aboard the America with members of their families.

There are 86 of the Americans, and with their families will swell the America's passenger list to a somewhat respectable amount.

Prior to the eastward sailing there were at least two suicides among members of the German consular staff. One was ascribed to ill health, the other to despair at leaving this country after 20 years' residence.

sheer for the redingote with matching crepe for the under slip. Shirred heart-shaped pockets add interest to the flaring skirt.

THIS is a day and age that demands style-perfection throughout every detail of general makeup and apparel. One may be ever so glamorously groomed in matter of complexion, hair-do and fingertips, one's costume may be of fine fabric in colors delectable, stylized "to the queen's taste," but if one's figure is not expertly and scientifically brought under subjection into lines of smooth contour and grace via faultless foundation-garment technique, all is lost in matter of style-right and charming appearance.

Note how slim, svelte and graciously satisfying the fashions pictured are to the eye. They demonstrate the efficacy of corset wizardry in giving the much-to-be-coveted smooth silhouette that modern fashion demands. In the foreground the "portrait of a lady" demonstrates how distinctive a smartly conservative graceful sheer print redingote costume looks when the wearer is nicely fitted in the correct foundation garment. In this instance the simple styling of the redingote with its accent of tiny white buttons down the front calls for a well-constructed corset in order to show to advantage the slender-waisted figure. Diminutive quill pens darting from tiny inkwells make the attractive white-print patterning on fine dark

Slip through the waist and hips, smartly bulky through the blouse and shoulder, the lumberjacket slacks costume shown is beautifully tailored in cool spun rayon for active summer wear. For a slim, chic line and comfortable action freedom, the fashion-wise vacationist will wear this trim costume over a sleek panty girle correctly fitted to her special needs.

Fresh and cool for summer the patterned jacket suit pictured to the left uses fine printed sheer and crepe in a clear white scroll and a leaf patterning. A self-back softly styled jacket at the bodice front gives subtle accent to this sheer-with-crepe frock, with its all-around pleated skirt. The season's important lingerie touch appears on the collar of the nipped-in jacket.

The influence of the new long-torso line is seen in the attractive spectator costume shown to the right in the group. Here a smartly striped one-piece frock is teamed with a trim short-sleeved jacket in solid white. The broad collar of the frock is worn over the jacket collar to heighten the ensemble effect. Worn over a well-fitting foundation garment, this figure-revealing costume has a slender trim line of grace and beauty.

Hat to Match

It is a treasureable little hat and dress of cunning pique, patterned with pink rosebuds that this darling little girl is wearing. The gay posy pique is just the thing for the making of this little sun suit. A matching bonnet completes the vision.

City Cottons Go 'Tops' In Summer Fashions

Ladies who "know their fashions" dress in gingham, seersucker, chambray, tissue-crinkle organdy, dark boucles and other smart "city cottons." It is a picture that fashion paints for summer, most refreshing and one that goes keen on chic and charm. For downright practicality the jacket suit tailored to a nicety of dark check crinkle seersucker, of plaid gingham or striped chambray takes first prize this summer. Women of discriminating tastes have yielded wholeheartedly to the new cotton vogue, a fact impressed on one throughout the summer style parade all along the highways and byways of fashion.

Sweaters for Evening Wear Are Very Popular

Evening sweaters continue to be a smart fashion. The latest arrival in formal sweaters reflects the bra influence in a most attractive way. It is knitted of pastel wool, comes just below the bust neckline where it ties with the velvet neckline where it is deep scalloped V-neckline. Sleeves are short and for an evening fantasy this is one of the prettiest sweaters imaginable.

Dye White Venise Lace To Match Your Fabrics

The use of stark white stiffened Venise lace is outstanding in the summer mode. So successful has this adventure in lace proved, designers are planning to trim monotonous frocks this fall in handsome Venise lace dyed to match the fabric that teams with it.

Gay Handkerchiefs

Carry out a summer note for your costume by flirtatiously flaunting a gaily flowered handkerchief. You can get perfectly fascinating "hankies" with realistically colorful life-size roses printed to look as if they were artfully hand-painted. Others are patterned with huge poppies, and the ones with big clusters of natural looking violets are lovely with the new and now-fashionable costumes in purple tones.

One of the reactions to the vogue for long-torso lines is the revival of the middy blouse. The latest types accent the lowered V-line neck. Middy sweaters are very smart worn with pleated skirts. White wash-fabric middies are also good style.

HAVE FAITH

By Edw. Worcester
And Jesus said unto the centurion, "thy way; and as thou hast believed, so be it unto thee." Matt.
Great is the mystery of faith. We have its power and effects, but we never understand it fully. Does the energy of faith come out of some divine reservoir, or is it directly from the great Central Broadcasting Station in the heart of the universe? No one knows, but we know that faith always brings an increase of power according to its use. We believe, so we receive. What we hold in mind tends to manifest itself in some material form. We heard a lady remark: "I have found that when I want something much, and keep on wanting it, it always gets it sooner or later." The secret was to "keep on wanting" holding it in mind. If the thing is held in mind with confidence, then the manifestation is created just according to the degree of faith. Though faith will work miracles just as it did in the days gone by. In fact, miracles are being wrought by faith every day. By the time we come to God, and by faith we receive eternal life. By faith difficulties are overcome, problems solved, diseases won, and disease healed. According to thy faith be it unto thee is the law. Surely we need faith. We gain more as we trust with the disciples of old let us "increase our faith." "All things whatsoever ye shall ask in believing, ye shall receive." 21:22.

ROAD KILLS 43-INCH SNAKE

Skills of the efficient manner in road runners, or chaparrals, without killing snakes, was contained in a report of a game warden to the Game Department recently. The snake got in the start of the road and remained until the close of an hour and 21 minutes.

The roadrunner was jogging down the path through the brush when he stopped suddenly and started circling a bunch of cord grass. The warden approached to within twenty feet of the bird and remained there while the chaparral proceeded to kill a 43-inch rattlesnake down to the fangs of the six-button snake and then to dispatch it. The roadrunner in and out, the roadrunner was continuously at the rattler time and each time managed to get the fangs of the six-button snake. After 81 minutes the rattler was dead. The chaparral took two vicious stabs at it, cocked his head and nonchalantly stepped off into the brush. The warden examining the snake, the roadrunner found a hole completely in the center of its head, three inches on its belly, and the rattler was missing both its eyes.

They were slowly starving to death". The famous explorer at the table. "But we cut our boots and made soup of that and that sustained life." "Hush! Not so loud!" whispered one of the boarders. "The might hear you."

Charley the Chain is a good, reliable fellow. He's a good man to have around in an emergency. You'd be surprised at the number of holes he'll pull you out of and the number of skids he'll prevent. But even Charley warns against over-confidence. He makes it clear that drivers should exercise as much care while he's with them as when he's at home in the garage. Charley says that according to The Travelers' latest highway safety booklet "Here Today—" there were almost 1,500 accidents in 1940 which wouldn't have happened if drivers had used chains when road conditions clearly indicated their need.

"PREHISTORIC MONSTER"

Catching of a 25 pound paddlefish, commonly, but erroneously called a shovelbill catfish, by H. P. Sims, an interior decorator of Electra, in Diversion Lake near Wichita Falls, not only created much comment in that part of the state, but caused considerable interesting data to be unearthed concerning this strange-looking fish.

The paddle, or snout, of the paddlefish is shaped exactly like a duck's bill. The snout on the fish caught by Mr. Sims was 14 inches long. The mouth was about six inches in diameter and the hooded gills made the head appear almost a foot wide.

Paddlefish formerly were common, but due to the fact that their eggs were used as domestic caviar and that their flesh brings the highest premium on the eastern markets the species is becoming more rare each year, the executive secretary of the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission points out. The flesh of the paddlefish, when smoked, tastes much like sturgeon. Too, the fish have no bones in their bodies, cartilage replacing bones.

Paddlefish, along with gar, sturgeon and grindle, have survived all stages of evolution. Each is still shaped exactly as it was during prehistoric days when mastodons and saber-toothed tigers roamed the world.

The unusual-appearing fish have been recorded as weighing as much as 162 pounds. One that size was caught in Indiana. It was six feet, two inches long and had a circumference of four feet.

Vanished Men
BY GEORGE MARSH

Around the campfires in the Canadian wilderness men began muttering over the mysterious disappearance of six frontiersmen who had hit the Chibougamau Trail and never returned. They were in terror of Jules Isadore and his right-hand man, Tete Blanche.

But Garry Finlay, brother of one of the missing men, marched into the forbidden country with two others and Flame, his giant airedale. Neither bullets nor poison could hold them back. At last, scorched by the leaping flames of a forest fire, they solved the mystery of the missing men and brought retribution upon the murderers.

Anyway, our sympathies and admiration lie with the little fellow who drove into the big one. The big one took one look at the ball rolling at his feet, stopped it with his toe and knocked it over a hundred yards into the woods without ever looking back. He was still fuming when the little guy walked up to him at the next tee and asked, "Are you the man who knocked my ball into the woods?" "Yeah," answered the two-hundred pounder.

"Well, I want to apologize for driving into you," said the little fellow, who suddenly seemed to grow in stature.—CAPS and lower case.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—A few years ago, Anita Loos' maid used to deliver to her every day a dash of gopher dust from Harlem. We haven't heard whether she still goes on, but the charm seems to be still working. All goes well as "Blossoms in the Dust" gets warm, almost fulsome from the critics. Miss Loos did the screen play for Ralph Wheelwright's story. It taps deep founts of tears and ranges far from Miss Loos' "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," and its Lorelei Lee, the alluring and unabashed gold digger of 1925. It's one of those "where are they now?" stories, with Miss Loos sitting pretty, literally and figuratively, as a deft, swift, workmanlike story adapter, scenarist and remodeler in Hollywood—one of the best.

The pint-size girl with bangs—weight 87 pounds, height four feet, eleven inches—was riding on the train from California to New York in 1925, considerably bored. She started writing up this gold digger Lorelei, with a soft-stub pencil, in big, round letters. The manuscript strung along clear through Kansas and Indiana and on to New York, and was almost as big as Miss Loos, what with those big rosette letters, when she landed here.

It brought her something over $600,000. It was translated into virtually every language except Eskimo and pigeon-talk, and in England its sales passed those of another American book. She later wrote "But Gentlemen Marry Bruettes."

Her talent for humor may have been inherited from her father, a country newspaper publisher and humorist of the Bill Nye school, of Sissons, Calif., where Miss Loos was born. She was a shy, quaint little thing, hanging around the newspaper shop, helping polish up a gag or feed the flatbed. When she was 14, she sent a story to the New York Morning Telegraph. They printed it. A year later David Griffith sent for a girl who had sent a scenario which had set his assistants to whooping joyously.

"What can I do for you, my child?" he asked when the tiny girl with bangs and pigtailed came in. The Loos girl showed him her summations to Hollywood. There she was and is. In the years between she had become a pretty good actress appearing in San Francisco and other California cities.

JUST a year ago, Roger L. Putnam, go-getting mayor of Springfield, Mass., was much in the news with the Putnam plan to break bottlenecks in industry. He caught the nation's attention by his success in achieving co-operation among the city, industry and labor, the most important detail of the formula being the training of labor by the city, to fit specific needs. He is in the news as Springfield's defense director with some snappy suggestions about the swift and effective integration of civilians and officials, and private and public facilities. His successful battle with two floods and a hurricane gives insight to his words.

He's Harvard, 1915, did a P.G. stretch at M.I.T., worked at engineering and was in the navy in the World war. In the navy he learned to crochet cord belts, an art which he still practices. Putnam-made belts are in great demand among his friends. He is the father of three boys and three girls, 48 years old, stocky in build, but quick-moving both in person and speech. He is president of the Package Machinery Co.

More and more management, a move, is coming to the top, a main finance. Note James Burnham's new book, "The Managerial Revolution,"—malign over there benign over here.

WIZARD in electrometallurgy is Dr. Francis C. Frary, who explains the exact uses to which aluminum pots and pans may be in expediting defense. Since he has been director of the research laboratories of the Aluminum Company of America at Keystone His work made possible over 100 uses of aluminum. He was schooled at the University of Minnesota and the University of Illinois. He then taught for several years and became an industrial research worker in 1915.

Lt. Governor Stevenson, who should be governor within a short time, is a believer in constitutional law, according to his speech of acceptance of his present office. He also does not believe too strongly that the government should support the people. It is to be hoped that Mr. Stevenson may make us the best governor we have had in some time.

Most cities have an ordinance requiring all trees overhanging sidewalks to be trimmed to a height of eight feet above the sidewalk. A group of citizens in Dalhart recently called on the city council asking that their ordinance be enforced. McLean needs the enforcement of such an ordinance, as there are many violations on several streets. The ordinance against too low overhead signs is also violated in some instances.

Governor O'Daniel's portrait in oil now hangs at the state capitol building, the first one to be so hung before the governor left the office. The portrait is also the only one to be protected by a glass case. It cost the state $500, and it is said that the governor had to pay some extra to the out-of-state artist, a former Austrian. We will venture to guess that the most pleasant part of the governor's political experience is probably behind him. The new job as senator will not be all hill billy music and radio chats.

While the newspaper is interested in the success of all other businesses, very few other businesses are interested in the success of the newspaper; yet a little thought would convince any merchant that a successful newspaper is one of the best assets a town can have. The newspaper works every week for the whole community. It decries buying from peddlers, and boosts the home merchant. Why shouldn't the local merchant turn down the printing peddler and speak a good word for the home paper occasionally? It is only cooperation of this kind that pays and that builds towns.

Around midnight, the doctor's telephone rang, awakening him from a sound sleep. It was one of his regular patients, in a very excited state. "My wife, doctor. It's her appendix. Better come at once!" The doctor sighed and grunted: "She hasn't got appendicitis. Just give her some bicarbonate and forget about it. I'll see her tomorrow." The husband pleaded that she did have appendicitis.

"She can't have," shouted the doctor disgustedly. "I took her appendix out three years ago. I never heard of anyone having two appendices."

"Ever hear of a man having two wives?" the man asked bitterly.

"Was your husband kind to you during your last illness?"
 "Kind? Ah, indeed, mum. Pat was more loike a neighbor than a husband."

WHAT WE SAY

If all that we say in a single day, with never a word left out, were printed each sight in a clear black and white, 'twould prove queer reading, no doubt.

And then, just suppose, ere our eyes we could close, we must read the whole record through, then wouldn't we sigh, and wouldn't we try a great deal less talking to do?

And I more than half think that many a kink would be smoother in life's tangled thread, if half that we say in a single day were forever unaid—Author Unknown.

"But, my dear," exclaimed the peace-loving husband, "you've been talking for an hour, and I have not said a word."

"No, snapped his eight-day clock, "you haven't said anything, but you've been listening in a sassy way and I'm not going to stand for it."

OUT IN THE FIELDS WITH GOD

The little cares that fretted me, I lost them yesterday Among the fields above the sea, Among the winds at play, Among the lowing of the herds, The rustling of the trees, Among the singing of the birds, The humming of the bees.

The fears of what may come to pass, I cast them all away Among the clover-scented grass, Among the new-mown hay, Among the husking of the corn, Where drowsy poppies nod, Where ill thoughts die and good are born, Out in the fields with God.

INSTALLMENT IS THE STORY SO FAR

Dusty King and Lew Gordon had built up a vast string of ranches. King was killed by his powerful and unscrupulous competitor, Ben Thorpe. Bill Roper, King's adopted son, was determined to avenge his death in spite of the opposition of his sweetheart.

Jody stood up. She felt suddenly tired and numb. "I still think a world can be made where decency can live," she said. "Some day, decent things will live on this prairie, whatever happens to us. But meantime—I guess he belongs to you."

She held Marquita's stare for a moment, then turned and walked to the door. Opening it, she saw that the first forlorn cold gray of the winter dawn was coming into the sky east of Montana.

The black hulk of the horse whose neck she had broken lay at her feet. She pulled from under it the coat with which she had blinded it when she charged the door, and pulled it on; the bitter cold of the dawn was enough to penetrate to the bones.

CHAPTER XXIV

Bill Roper and Bob Stokes—the King-Gordon cowboy whom Roper had not known—had finished their makeshift dressing of Old Joe's wound, and were working on Jim Leathers. Jim Leathers lay perfectly still; only his eyes seemed alive.

"How's she feeling?" Bill Roper asked. "The Gordon girl? She's all right. She went out to look over the horses or something."

"Bob, you better go see nothing's happened to Jody." "I'll go in a minute, soon as we're through here."

But Jody came in of her own accord, before that. She went straight to Old Joe. "Are you terribly uncomfortable, Joe?"

"I feel great," Joe said with spirit. "I been hunting for a vacation for fifteen years, and this is my first excuse!"

"I'm sorry, Joe. You'll never know how sorry I am. I tangled things up pretty badly, I guess." "You done wonderful," Joe told her. "You saved Bill's neck, all right. They had him hog-tied like a moshorn, and the girl, too, when we busted in."

Jody shot Marquita a glance in which the only light was a faint contempt, but she did not comment. "I'm riding back to Miles," she told Joe. "On the way I'll send help back, and everything you'll need. And I'll see that you're moved in a spring wagon, soon as you feel like moving. I appreciate what you've done, Joe."

"Hey, look," Bob Stokes began. "You can't be riding off like this in the middle of the night!" "It's coming daylight, fast. I'll be all right."

Outside, in the gray light that seemed colder than the air, Jody Gordon had mounted as Bill Roper came to her stirrup. "You mustn't go yet," he told her. "These boys are fixed as comfortable as they can be; there's a hurry to get help. You'll be wanting some coffee; and I have to talk to you, Jody."

"I'm not interested in talking to you," Jody said without expression. "Why, Jody—look here—"

"I got you into this," Jody said. "I got you into this because I was a fool. So I had to get you out. That's over now. I don't want to talk to you, now, or any time."

She whirled her horse sharply, so that its hoofs sent up a scurry of snow; then she was gone, her great covered by the cabin as she lunged toward the trail.

Jody Gordon, and her father Roper conducted a great raid upon Thorpe's vast herds in Montana. He was captured by Leathers and Kane, two of Thorpe's men. Leathers' girl, pretty Marquita, loved Roper and made a desperate but vain attempt to save him. Thorpe's men were attacked by some of Roper's cowboys, led by Jody. Her joy at finding him was short lived, because Marquita, a saloon hostess, told her that she, and not Jody, was Roper's girl.

pony which knows that it has come to the end of the long trail. He drew a last drag from his cigarette, and strapped on the gunbelt which he had laid aside. Unhurriedly, he three or four times drew the iron from its leather, to be sure that it was running free. Then, with a purely unconscious motion, he cocked his hat over one eye and went down into the street.

CHAPTER XXV

It was very early; the sun was only just breaking over the winter-starved prairie, that Sunday morning as Bill Roper splashed through the creek that runs by Sundance, and rode into the little town.

Overhead the sky was such a clear crystalline blue as Bill Roper had not seen since he left Texas, and underfoot his tired pony was sinking fetlock deep in thawed mud. The mud itself was predicting a spring which Roper believed now he would never see.

Without sign from the rider, Roper's pony drew up before the Palace Hotel and Livery.

With some difficulty Bill Roper roused a sleepy and resentful individual. "Feed this pony, and feed him well."

Casually Roper strolled along the corral where stood the loose horses which were being boarded here. He was chewing a straw as he came back to the sleepy man who was now shaking down hay.

"I see you have a 9B horse there—a good one." "Yeah?" "I figure Lew Gordon rode that horse in?"

"And supposin' he did?" "Where is he stopping?" "How should I know? This dump is good enough for his horse, but it ain't good enough for him. He went to sleep with some friend or something, out at the edge of town."

"I'll take a room facing on this street," he said. A little while later Roper sat at last with his heels caught in the window sill, resting as he regarded the empty street.

That Ben Thorpe was here was known to every cattleman in the north country. Ben Thorpe had been here many weeks; it was to Thorpe that Bill Roper was to have been delivered, here, if a kid horse wrangler following Jody Gordon had not shot Jim Leathers down. But, by the fine, hard-riden 9B horse which Lew Gordon had ridden in, Bill Roper knew that Gordon had not been here long. He judged that he had got here in time.

Bill Roper sat there a long time. Seven o'clock passed, and eight, and nine, while he smoked and waited. Ten o'clock passed, and ten-thirty. Then upon the quiet main street of Sundance appeared a figure—the one he had been waiting for.

It seemed to Bill Roper that Lew Gordon walked like a younger man than Roper had remembered. Bill Roper knew Lew Gordon by the flash of silver in his short beard, by the old hat, curiously like Dusty King's, which Lew Gordon had never changed. But he had to look twice to be sure that this man with the springy stride and erect bearing was the Lew Gordon he had known.

When he was sure, Bill Roper stood up and stretched; he filled his lungs with air, and at last let it go again, with a whoof like that of a

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE CHURCH REGARDING BEVERAGE ALCOHOL

LESSON TEXT—I Corinthians 5:9-13; Titus 2:1-8. GOLDEN TEXT—Ye are the salt of the earth.—Matthew 5:13.

The church has a grave responsibility regarding alcoholic beverages, but in recent years it has largely failed to meet it with intelligence and enthusiasm. Let us never forget that the first business of the Christian and of the church is to preach the gospel, winning men to Christ. It is not our calling to attempt by social or economic methods to right the wrongs of this world. Nor is ours a "social gospel" with the emphasis on "social." But we have forgotten that it is a gospel with serious social implications and responsibilities.

The man, and the church, who follows Christ should be vitally concerned about every influence in American life which is destructive to character, and right at the top of that list stands alcohol. To meet this gigantic (and growing) problem effectively the church must be:

I. Separated From Sin (I Cor. 5:9, 10). A church living in careless worldliness has no testimony against the sin round about it. In fact, its influence is definitely on the wrong side. The Christian is to be in the world, but not of it. He must live with the sinners, but he must never by word or deed, or even by his presence in the wrong place, seem to condone their sin nor fellowship with them in it.

Here we have one of the horrible weaknesses of our day. Men and women who profess to follow Christ (whether they really do, only He can judge) indulge in a social glass of wine, or sip a cocktail "for the sake of courtesy," or attend gatherings which are obviously non-Christian or anti-Christian. If there is to be effective dealing with any problem—with the liquor problem—we must have separated Christian living.

II. Cleansed of Wicked Persons (I Cor. 5:11-13). Even a "man that is called a brother" (v. 11) may not be one at all, but may be a "wicked person" (v. 13). We are not able to judge any man's spiritual experience. His relationship to God is a matter between him and God, but if, in his life, he shows himself persistently to be on the side of wickedness, it is the duty of the church to have him "put away from among" them (v. 13).

We can only judge a man by his actions, but we are required to do that for the sake of the purity of the church and the effectiveness of its teaching. This is not to be done in self-righteousness, but in humility and with the constant effort to restore such a one (Gal. 6:1). But it should be done. We are woefully weak in the matter of church discipline, and it shows in the inability of the church to do valiant service for God and country.

III. Intelligent in Doctrine (Titus 2:1-8; esp. 1, 7, 8). To be informed is to be wise, able to plan properly, balanced in judgment and action, useful and effective. Fundamentally every problem of life finds its solution in a proper knowledge of the doctrines of the Christian faith. It is of great importance that we have information about the liquor traffic, about the dreadful results of the use of alcohol, etc. Helpful material on such subjects is available, and the sources are known to ministers and Christian workers. However, we must hold and use this information in relation to Christian truth if it is to be fully useful. A temperance worker without Christ in his own life and in his labors against liquor is weak, lacking the real solution and the dynamics to proclaim it effectively.

IV. Consistent in Life (Titus 2:1-8, esp. 2, 5, 7). It is what we are that speaks so loudly that folk do not pay any attention to what we say. This passage clearly states the fact that both young and old, both men and women—yes, even the preacher (v. 7)—are to present before the world the undeniable teaching of a consistent Christian life.

Read the exhortations of these verses again with great care and apply them first to your own life, and then to your own church. What great Christian graces we have here! Note that again and again there is the admonition to temperance. No user of intoxicants can be sober, temperate, discreet, chaste, sound in faith, and so on.

The writer of these notes is convinced that the only consistent position for the Christian (individually or in the church) to take regarding alcoholic beverages is that of total abstinence for himself and the legal elimination of temptation from others.

Traffic Accidents Hit Peak During Weekends

IT'S ALWAYS THOSE WEEK-END KIDS!

Beware of Sunday! It is an unholy day, a day of sinister happenings, a day when Death reaps its heaviest harvest, according to "Hero Today," eleventh annual booklet published in the interest of street and highway safety.

From an analysis of America's highway accident record for 1940 can be drawn the following conclusions: Saturday and Sunday vie for distinction as the most dangerous days for automobile drivers. Of 35,000 people who met their death in traffic accidents, 13,860 or nearly 40% were killed on week ends. When the days were divided into hours, it was discovered that the evening hours from six to midnight accounted for 14,180 or 40.5% of those who died in automobile accidents last year.

Thus the booklet reveals to the layman unacquainted with accident facts that the worst driving hours and the most dangerous driving days are the very hours and days he most frequently chooses for pleasure trips.

Sunday has long been considered the most dangerous day of the week, but last year Saturday crept up until they now are running almost neck and neck as to fatalities. Most dangerous single hour of the 24 is between 7 and 8 p. m., according to the booklet. Fewest accidents occurred on Tuesday last year, although the year before (1939) Wednesday was statistically safer. Unexplainable is the fact that although there are more persons killed on Sundays, there are more persons injured on Saturday.

Fatal accidents rise steadily all afternoon, reaching a peak between 7 and 8 p. m., then taper off, only to jump sharply about midnight—the hour when parties break up.
