Modern Airport Is McLean Necessity

By Guy Hibler

As you may observe, the airport situation in McLean is now in the process of emerging from a dormant, dead stage to that of a young plant in need of cultivation.

Cities and towns that use foresight and grasp every occasion of "opening the door when opportunity knocks," are going to be the ones that will in a few short months begin cashing in on the private air borne traffic drawn into that vicinity by their available airports. Cities and towns having airports with good landing strips or runways and hangar facilities will in the near future be measured in many ways by the quality of their airports, just as communities we now know of are sought of in terms of the number and quality of the highways traversing their vicinity.

Could you imagine our plight here in McLean, in this modern time, without paved highways or even dirt roads fairly well maintained?

Almost before we know it that same situation will apply to us and other cities and towns, except for this: airports will be the "yardstick." Will the many thousands of pilots now being trained by the government C. P. T. programs, the Army and the Navy be air-minded after their release from service? How can they be otherwise with the aeroplane manufacturers selling them new and modern private aircraft for the same price of a new automobile, with the same installment plans and insurance rates?

The large aircraft factories have no other alternative, at the end of the present national emergency, but that of making and selling family-size airplanes to this immense group of government trained pilots.

In view of the exceptionally optimistic future aviation has created for itself, would it not be wise for McLean to make a determined effort for an airport?

Stranger Says Fine People at McLean

Columbia, Mo., Sept. 2, 1941.

Mayor of McLean, McLean, Texas.

Dear Sir:

This letter is no doubt unusual and a surprise to you. But we want you to know how much we appreciate the kindness of the people of McLean, Texas. On the 30th of July my brother and little nephew were killed in a head-on collision between Groom and McLean on Highway 66.

Mr. Womack of the Womack Funeral Home had their bodies. They were from California. My sister-in-law and two nieces were taken to Pampa to the hospital, where she and one daughter still are. My other nephew was taken to Amarillo to a hospital.

We were called to McLean and were heart broken strangers and felt so all alone. Our home is in Missouri. But when we got to McLean we soon found out no finer people were born than those of Texas. Everyone in McLean whom we met was so kind and good to us. The day of the funeral, people we had never seen before were there and our hearts were lighter and our burdens easier to bear when we found the people of McLean wanted to be our friends when at a time like that a friend is so in need. The minister of the Baptist Church and the singers were so consoling. We feel we buried them in God's country among people who are friends when we buried them at McLean, Texas.

So we know you must be proud to be mayor of McLean with people in the town who are real people. We want them to know, each and every one, that we appreciated every little thing that they did and said for us while we were there. It was like being with home folks. So if the editor of your paper feels he has a corner to spare to publish this letter of appreciation so that all the people of McLean may know that we Missouri folks can truly say no finer people live than those of Texas—we shall never forget them. We don't have their addresses, so the only way we have to let them know how much their kindness meant to us is to ask the editor to publish this letter if he has an extra corner to spare—and again, THANKS FOR EVERYTHING TO ALL OF YOU FROM ALL OF US.

I am the sister to Mr. George Work who was killed, and the aunt to Lawrence Work who was killed. Mrs. Geo. Work and younger daughter are still in Pampa in the hospital. The older daughter and son are here in Missouri with us. May I say thanks for my mother, Mrs. Geo. Burks, of RR 1, Harrisburg, Mo.; and my sister, Mrs. James Carr, 7333 Elm Ave., Maplewood, Mo. Sincerely,

MRS. E. F. EUART,
506 Wilkes Blvd.,
Columbia, Mo.

Coach McCollum of the Bucks has a fast team that should prove stiff competition, and a good game is expected.

Roosevelt Asserts Positive Stand Against Appeasement as Lindbergh Sees Trouble With Great Britain; Diplomats Try Their Hand in Far East

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

PEOPLE:

And Realization

President Roosevelt, realizing that he was faced with a determined anti-intervention bloc, both in press and congress, which was taking as its theme "pooh-pooh, there's no danger," had been making strides in his effort to bring about in the American public a realization of what he considered to be the real seriousness of the international situation. Coupled with this was an effort he was making to have Americans also make a more realistic evaluation of their own blessings. In recent utterances, particularly in one from Hyde Park, he quoted at length from a personal letter to him from an unnamed mother, in which she said, in part:

SEES PRESIDENT

"It is terrifying, coming from Europe, to realize that many of these people (in America) in their unruffled existence, seem to have no idea of what hangs over their heads today.

"They put themselves in a posture where they cannot squawk about what they don't see.

"They go about their 'daily dozens' ignoring the threatening heel of human beings who want to destroy the freedom, the normal life to which they have been accustomed.

"In Europe there is not a nation of those who have suffered abuse whose people are not aware of what America stands for. They pray daily that America will save itself by helping greatly to defeat Hitlerism."

The President, echoing her sentiments, said:

"That is a thought we all feel. We want to keep America so that in all the years to come, long after all of us here are gone, someone will be able to meet as we are doing, as we hope to meet next year."

And, later, in a message particularly to labor, along the line of urging America to consider its own blessings, he said:

"Only in a democracy could there be a day set aside for millions of workers, free men and women in a free country.

"Only in a democracy could they spend the day in free worship, enjoying the right to speak their minds, to read uncensored news and to hear uncensored radio programs.

"Today we in America are faced with the great task of preserving that democracy and we, too, will offer our utmost in labor and sacrifice just as our fathers and our fathers' fathers did." His Labor day talk declared unequivocally for the defeat of Hitlerism and his refusal to become "a Benedict Arnold" by accepting appeasement and "crumbs" from Hitler's "peace" table.

LINDBERGH:

Sees New Menace

Charles A. Lindbergh, chief administration critic, enlivened the discussion of extended aid to Britain and Russia by turning on England, and warning the American people in an address that if we banked too much on the British, we might find ourselves in the same company with Finland and France.

Pointing out that these two nations, like this country, started out in their participation of the war as allies of Britain, and now were finding themselves at least technical enemies of the British. Lindbergh's speech was headlined in many newspapers as "Lindbergh Says British May Fight U. S.," and given prominent position.

At about the same time Representative Cox of Georgia, bitterly denouncing the presidential shakeup of the defense production group, declared that the White House was letting the "left-wingers" take control of industry, and that the new alignment would "tie the hands" of William S. Knudsen, and "kick Stettinius out of the picture."

Yet on the same day Mr. Knudsen himself was quoted as saying:

"I feel that the new arrangement will achieve splendid results in increasing the rate of production."

It was a succession of incidents like these which enlivened the American war effort at the same time confusing newspaper readers as to the thought of leaders on controversial subjects of how the effort should be conducted.

VICHY:

In Limelight

The shooting of Pierre Laval and Marcel Deat by Paul Collette, a Norman youthful assassin who had to join the French Legion to fight the Soviet in order to get close to the Nazi collaborator with his pistol, turned eyes suddenly toward Vichy, and the double assassination attempt seemed confirmatory of previous reports of serious unrest.

At almost the same time that stories were coming across the wires telling of the sudden arousal of sympathy for Collette, a New York newspaper writer uncovered a story about the operations in the United States of a clique of Vichy agents, working under the direct control of Gaston Henry-Haye, French ambassador to the United States.

It was a romantic yarn, telling how advance plans of General DeGaulle's ill-fated expedition against

SHOT

The shooting of former Premier Pierre Laval, Nazi collaborator, is believed to be but one instance of widespread opposition in France to the Petain-Hitler program.

Dakar was smuggled into the U. S. in the gasoline tank of an automobile shipped to Hoboken from London and on a Greek steamer.

The plans presumably were turned over to the Vichy government by agents here. The story, evidently the result of long and careful investigation by the writer for his newspaper, named more than a dozen names, including that of the ambassador himself, and created a profound sensation, certain to bring repercussions.

It was charged, among other things, that a secret French police agent had been sent here and had established the undercover organization. At the same time that Laval and Deat were near death from their wounds as a sort of culmination of French unrest and sabotage against the pro-Nazis, it was reported from Stockholm, mine of information about conditions in Norway, that Quisling himself had tried suicide by taking sleeping pills.

The report stated that the nervous puppet Nazi leader in conquered Norway had been found unconscious and that prompt medical attention saved his life.

The Swedish sources stated in passing that their country, as well as Switzerland and Portugal, the only three European nations not engaged in the struggle one way or another, were being strongly propagandized by Germany on taking sides, with considerable "advice" as to which side to take.

Handsome Wools Are New Style For Town, Travel and School

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A "HONEY" of a jacket suit in deep honey-colored wool is pictured at right above. The round yoke of the dress ties in a bow under the chin. The all-over embroidered or braided effect is important news for fall. This jacket subscribes to the new technique in an all-over embroidering, in matching honey-colored yarn. Brass buttons artfully blend to the color scheme. The modish off-lace tailored brown felt hat has a corded brim.

Perfect for fall travels is the simple slim black wool dress topped by a plaid jacket in red, black and white as pictured to the right. We have never seen such gorgeous plaids as those out this season. The fashion edict is "plaids for everything," skirts, blouses, jackets, suits. Dresses also have plaid accessories with monotone costumes. Interesting clips fasten it, in line with the sentiment that prevails for spectacular buttons and gadget-clips of all sorts. The dashing up-swept hat of black felt has a colorful pheasant feather.

Soft two-toned wool makes the goodlooking dress to the left. Here is a model to delight any career girl. It is destined to be a campus favorite too. It flaunts several outstanding fashion trends that college girls adore. Huge patch pockets as shown, register in the list. Then there are the simple straight sleeves. The belt is studded with simple nailheads and there are more nailheads being used this season than you can count. Watch nailheads! Silver buttons fasten it and the big emphasis is on buttons for fall. Note the pheasant feather on the hat! Hats are being be-feathered as they have not been for years and years past.

Speaking in general, there is lots of jersey being used for everything, from jerseys to hats, daytime dresses and formal evening modes. Designers are trimming silks and wools with velvet also a vast amount of fringe is being used in versatile ways. Buttons are spectacular and look like handsome jewels. Leather trims abound on sports and travel togs.

Take a look at 1941 autumn fashion showings and you will find a new high in costume design. The play made on colors this season is simply fascinating and the big news is rich quality-kind materials, especially the new wool weaves that glorify the entire fashion picture. Most of all, there is that indescribable something about the new coats, suits and dresses, that is surpassingly goodlooking and assuring to women who dress with discriminating taste.

Seeing a prelude of fashions as recently staged by The Style Creators of Chicago, one is especially impressed with the exquisite finesse and workmanship. And the lavish yet subtle use of intriguing surface decoration that marked the styling of the hundred or more coats, dresses and ensembles presented at this gala occasion, by exhibiting members of this noteworthy organization. The foursome of fashions shown here were especially selected from this galaxy of smart fall costumes, selected because of their adaptability for smart town, travel, school and office wear.

You will be wanting a tweed costume suit, of course. If it has a full-length topcoat, as pictured to the left at the top in the group and it will prove a many-purpose outfit that will give you infinite wear. The new raglan shoulder and above-the-waist bulkiness is well portrayed in this toast brown rough tweed. The long coat is closed with large wooden buttons and belted in crushed brown kidskin. The dress beneath has a silk crepe top with draped neckline, interesting pockets and a gold clip.

Lipstick on Lapel

Your lipstick worn at your lapel! Here it is, swinging from a bar-pin on this perfect date dress for the teen age. No more rummaging about in your purse when you have that impulse to wield woman's most effective weapon. This adorable dress with the lipstick gadget attached is in deep peacock blue velvet, with bright wool embroidery, accenting the square neckline.

Feathers and Veilings Popular for Fall Hats

You will be in fashion whether you wear a very large hat or a provocative little confection that plunges forward in a saucy tilt. The little hat is keeping veils in the picture. The newest arrangements calling for veils that mass at the back so as to accent the new back-coverage treatments.

Most of the little hats have smoods to get that back-coverage look that milliners tell us is such an important style feature. If not smoods, then some other novelty that conceals the hair at the back. Larger brims are also shaped downward or curtained with ribbons so as to achieve the back-coverage look.

It is a season for fine feathers of every description. Entire feather hats will be worn and on most of the felts gay quills and pheasant feathers flaunt their bright colors.

'Little Black Dress'

Is Still One Favorite

The dressy afternoon black dress will be repeating its triumphs all over again this fall. Very charming types are fringe-trimmed. Others have wide bands of velvet as trimming. Then again very ultra types are made of fine fabric cut along the newest dolman-sleeve, loose-fitting blouse lines. They are classics in simplicity.

The dressier blacks are enhanced with lace trims or with jet embroidery. However be the styling dressy or conservatively practical, the big news is that black remains steadfastly in the new autumn style picture.

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

ice, a low square neckline, a taut wide waistband and a swirling skirt will do for the feminine figure! The basque silhouette is entirely new, different, quaint.

Another feature of the basque fashion which you'll appreciate is that it may be as brilliant in coloring and trimming as you care to make it. Pattern No. 1447-B is one you may make up in a bright plaid, a sprigged challis, a vivid tone in plain material. Selective—This letter from Bill says he got his nose broken in three places.

Service—Well, he should keep out of those places.

Fringe on Our Flag

There is no significance attached to the yellow fringe on the American flag. According to the war department it may be regarded as "fringe only, and is of no value or significance as a part of the flag."

The use of the fringe has long been a debated question, although the war department sanctions it, and the United States Flag association does not consider the use of the fringe as improper. Nevertheless, the first flag adopted by the Continental congress in 1777 bore no fringe, and many patriotic citizens feel the American flag needs no decoration.

On this question the war department says: "For a number of years there has been prescribed in army regulations a yellow fringe for the different colors and standards of organizations of the army. The war department, however, knows of no law or regulation which either requires or prohibits the placing of a yellow fringe on the flag of the United States."

These silly little things the instructors require of you, are they really as useless as they sound? Stop and think about some of them. You are asked to sign your name, class and the hour at a certain place on your paper. Don't you suppose some other line would do as well? Perhaps, but—if you were working for a man in a business or industry and he asked you to do some little tedious something that had no apparent rhyme or reason, would it be a good idea just to toss it off and not do it? You might get your next check, but chances are that if that happened many times you would also get a little slip stating that your services were no longer required.

So it is with school work. To be replaced by future bosses who will be much more exacting, your instructors are just preparing you for what is to come. They want you to get used to the discipline of being told what to do, and then you doing it. Now, instead of receiving an pay check, you get grades, and who wants to go bankrupt on a poverty-stricken "F"?

EVERY QUESTION HAS TWO SIDES

There are two sides to every question, or if there are not two sides then at least there is the long and short of it to be considered.

Your reporter, assigned to discover and remark upon the littlest freshman of this year's crop, found him, but found that he isn't a freshman at all, just a little fresh guy.

Jess Ledbetter, towering four feet and six inches with the aid of his highest heeled shoes, is the first to cheerfully admit that size doesn't matter too much in making a noise.

He makes much more racket than Robert Batson, who is undecided whether to stop growing after reaching six feet and three inches. Jess is a good sized chunk of the sophomore class while Robert is a senior. No, they aren't pals, but wouldn't that be a sight, they going down the hall together?

TOTAL ENROLLMENT 570, SAYS SUPERINTENDENT

Classes are running on schedule and approximately 570 students have started the familiar old round of reading, writing and wondering why they didn't study a little harder in the McLean schools, according to figures released by Superintendent C. A. Cryer. This includes 233 high school students and 340 in the grades.

There have been a few changes made in the curriculum of the high school. M. J. Newman, band director will also have charge of public school music and vocal music.

Journalism, formerly an affiliated subject here, has been added to the schedule after the lapse of a year. It is under the direction of Lloyd Whitfield, speech instructor.

Miss Shirley Johnston, graduate of McLean high school, is assisting in the office during the absence of Floyd Shawver, high school principal.

New members of the high school faculty this year are Sewell Cox, director of athletics and history instructor; Frank Wilson, mathematics; Miss Terrell, commerce; and Lloyd Whitfield, speech and English.

New members of the grade school faculty are Darrell Manney, principal; Mary Beth Johnson, Marthaly Willey and Marguerite Hutchinson.

TIGERS OPEN FOOTBALL SEASON FRIDAY NIGHT

Clad in new suits, playing a brand new type of football and under the guidance of a new coach, the McLean Tigers will take the field before the home folks Friday night against the White Deer Bucks in the first game of the season.

The team will be built around ten old hands who will be ably assisted by a group of very promising rookies. Although the local lads have been practicing a short while with Coach Sewell Cox, the general opinion of those who have been watching developments is that there is a very fine team in the making.

Cox comes to McLean from Claude, where last year he won a bi-district championship with his boys.

The White Deer game is a non-conference fray, as is the one Sept. 19 with Phillips, here, and the one following week-end, Sept. 26, with Parhandle there. Then the boys swing into the conference with the opening against Lakeview, Oct. 1; there; Oct. 10, Memphis, there; Oct. 17, Wellington, here; Oct. 24, there; Nov. 7, Wheeler, here; Oct. 14, Clarendon, here; and Nov.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for ailments of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic action would be more often employed. Burning, stinging or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging back-ache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous all played out. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK—It was quite by accident that little Dorothy Dale of Kansas became a sorceress and overthrew the Wicked Witch of the East and freed the enslaved Munchkins. We wondered why Lucy Monroe, the "star spangled soprano," kept reminding us of all this and now it is all clear. Miss Monroe's mother, Anna Laughlin, was the first Dorothy Dale, in "The Wizard of Oz," with Fred Stone, and when the daughter made her musical comedy debut in "Louie the Fourteenth," in 1923, old-timers in the audience, this one among them, were moved to poignant and all but tearful memories by the winsome daughter's resemblance to her mother. Little Dorothy Dale was forever young, still in a land of enchantment—that was all there was to it.

The sorcery of Miss Monroe, opera, concert and radio star, is, unlike that of Dorothy Dale, quite premeditated, and involves a somewhat wider outreach in world liberation, but at a time when people are hoping that somebody will pass a miracle. She has become our national patriotic songster and song-leader, here and there and everywhere, and at the convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars at the Philadelphia Municipal stadium recently, she led the second "community sing," in a series of great public invocations of old-time patriotism throughout the country. More than 30,000 persons attended the first one at Washington several weeks ago.

The "star spangled" phase of Miss Monroe's career began in 1937 when she was made official soloist for the American Legion. This stirred in her deep patriotic fervor which found a response in her audiences everywhere.

She is an eighth-generation American, trained as a singer entirely in this country. She made her Metropolitan debut in "La Boheme," in the spring season of 1937.

IN THE first World war, facing a hurry-up job of army morale-building, they slammed Irving Berlin into a corner and told him to dish up a few red hot morale songs, right away. Here are a couple of lines from the first one:

Broadway Is Out,
Osborn In, to Buck
Up Army Morale

"Don't you worry, mother darling, Although the skies are gray,
For there's always a little bit of sunshine,
In the Y—M—C—A."

This time they pick for the bucking-up job a eugenist, population expert, conservationist, business researcher, corporation executive, art connoisseur, banker, and traffic expert—all in the one distinguished person of Frederick Osborn, of New York. The war department names him as head of its morale branch, with the temporary rank of brigadier general.

The appointment may or may not have something to do with the recent disquieting magazine articles about unrest in the new army. General Osborn has been occupied, as a dollar-a-year man in Washington, as a consultant in various endeavors and has been chairman of the army and navy committee on joint recreation. Hence it is possible that his appointment to the army post had been decided upon before the recent flare-up about discontent among the National Guard and selectees.

Whatever the appointment may mean, the choice of a civilian for this office sets a precedent. General Osborn replaces Brig. Gen. James A. Ulie. Furthermore there is disclosed here a trend away from showmanship as an old-line, dependable morale builder. Billy Rose of Broadway was back in New York a few weeks ago, after a session with the army morale-builders. He was all fussed up.

"Nothing happened," he said. "They told me my blueprints were wonderful, the ideas were wonderful and I was wonderful. Then they said good-by. That's all I expect to happen."

General Osborn, never a hooper or spoofer, is 51, the son of W.C. Osborn, distinguished New York lawyer, and an alumnus of Princeton university who started a career of business management in 1912. His book, "Preface to Eugenics," published last March, reveals uneasiness about the falling birth rate and the urgency of nice people having more children. He has six. Always in deadly earnest, he's farthest north from Broadway, and Irving Berlin's little bit of sunshine in the Y.M.C.A. Possibly a highly technical war demands that kind of morale-builder.

Nazis Kept on the Alert

Guerrilla warfare is admittedly a thorn in the side of Germany's invading army. Top photo shows German troops in a village watching the windows of the houses in an effort to catch snipers. At bottom, German troops have dropped to the side of the road to flank an enemy patrol after learning the patrol was headed towards them.

Quick on the Trigger

The motorcycle scout shown in this photo demonstrates how he would act if an "enemy" plane attacked the truckload of supplies he was escorting during third maneuvers at Camp Polk, La. The soldier quickly dismounted and set his automatic rifle into play against the plane.

On Their Toes in the Desert

Daylight patrols in the western desert carried out daily by the South African infantry brigade quite naturally keeps the unit on its proverbial toes, and when the long journey is over those toes need a rest. The waves along the beach have a cooling effect, and shoes are piled neatly, military style, on the sand.

A Free Show for New Yorkers

Sightseers aboard the boat in the background of this photograph got a real free show as city firemen tested out fire pump trailers at Battery park, in New York. The test was given to determine just how much could be expected of the trailers and what they could do in the event of an emergency.

UNITED—for Life and Liberty

Even before that historic day in 1776 when America's independence was heralded to the world, the idea of life without liberty was inconceivable to those imbued with the American spirit. Liberty has formed the warp and woof of our lives. It is part of the very air we breathe.

Patrick Henry preferred death to life without it, and he spoke for Americans of all generations.

What is Liberty? What is it that was proclaimed by the historic bell in Independence Hall?

Liberty—it is everything. It is the soul of America. It is something with the clean, fresh air of God's great out-of-doors running through it. It is everything that goes to make up American life.

Thus everything that makes up American life must be brought into the defense of Liberty.

Against enemies from without and subversive influences from within, the defense of Liberty depends not alone upon great armaments and armies, ships and planes, essential as they are.

But Liberty, and its defense, waits, too, on the products of the soil, the factories, and the mills. The sinews of Liberty, and its defense, are also forged in the home, on the farm, in the office and in the church. Every part of American life is intertwined with Liberty and its defense. Let no part falter.

Life and Liberty! Liberty and Life! They are one. Imperil one and the other is imperiled. And when Liberty is challenged, Life is challenged. We must, we shall, ever meet that challenge as a UNITED States, as a UNITED people—as a nation indivisible.

This country was dedicated to "Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." May we keep it so!

Vanished Men

By GEORGE MARSH

W.N.U. Service

THE STORY SO FAR: Bound for the Chibougamau gold country, six men lost their lives on the Nottaway river. Red Malone, Garrett Finlay, brother of one of the six, and Blaise, half-breed guide, arrive at Nottaway posing as surveyors.

"Here's a piece of their canoe Wabistan found on the shore and buried with them. There's a bullet hole in it."

Garry took the shattered cedar. "We'll keep that for evidence," he said, then followed Malone. While the others stood with bared heads he gazed into the shallow grave at the havoc a year had wrought.

"Bobby!" Finlay dropped to his knees and gazed at what had once been the younger brother whom he had carried in his arms; with whom he had shared his bed. "It's Bob and Andrew!" he muttered. "They shot them through the head!" He swallowed repeatedly at the tightening in his throat but the eyes he lifted to his friends were dry and hard. "He wore a ring of hammered gold! His mother—would treasure it. It's on the little finger of the right hand, Red."

Malone leaned over the grave. "The finger is—gone!"

Wabistan caught Blaise's eye and nodded. "Tete-Blanche is a thief! When he kills he steals."

"Good-by, Bobby!" Finlay's grief was too deep for outward sign. "It may be weeks! It may be months! It may be years, Isadore! But some day you'll pay to me for that dead boy, there!"

The survey had been under way for two weeks. Two of Wabistan's sons were working for Finlay as canoe men and the old Indian often came to the camp with news of his secret search for Tete-Blanche, Tetu and Kinebik. But Isadore's private assassin and the medicine man had disappeared like river mist before the sun.

"Tete-Blanche is somewhere in the islands but none will say they have seen him. They have fear," announced Wabistan to Blaise as his canoe slid in to the beach one day in early July. "Your ears must be ever listening for he is waiting for a chance to strike."

"When he comes, we will fill him with lead," laughed Finlay.

The Indian scowled. "Like ottauk, the gray owl, he will move in the night and when he strikes there will be no sound."

Finlay had mapped the head of the great lake and was working westward the post.

It was two hours before dawn of a morning when Finlay had taken the watch. Stars and moon were blanketed by drift. With Flame sleeping beside him Garry sat, back against a birch, rifle across knees, in a dream so velvet thick that it seemed the man on guard it could be led with a knife.

"What a night for a stalk, Monsieur Tete-Blanche!" muttered Garry.

"If you know where we are, you're missing a trick, my friend. It'll be just too bad if this several pounds of dynamite smells one you out and hops on him. You see him but he'll reach you—by Eh, Flame, old partner!"

Flay reached a hand to the wire-mesh back of the sleeping dog behind him.

The alreadale grunted with contentment, and for a space, lay sprawled on Garry's legs while the man he had crooned into a hairy ear.

Of a sudden, the iron muscles tensed along his spine and the dog's back hair lifted.

"Is winded something!" Finlay muttered, with a quick tug on the dog's running to the sleeping alreadale.

The invisible shapes moved to the side the aroused dog split his side in silence with his brittle teeth.

"I'll worry 'em!" muttered Garry. "Pop 'em in their tracks! Hear that?"

"A thing! Flame winded you'd better stiffen up the back of the Blaise and I listen here." He moved silently away while the dog charged deeper into the night.

"We'll keep them guessing," muttered Finlay. "He'll be out of the first one he sees. They'll have no chance to use a knife on him tonight."

"The Red returned. 'The boys all right. They're hot for a night's working this way, now!'"

As the unmistakable sound of a boat moving through thick ice.

Some of them out and another in!" whispered Malone. "Don't worry and don't know what's straight for us!"

"Blaise?" asked Finlay. "He was not beside them. He can see in the dark! You'll meet Flame! You'll see the boys while I'm here!"

"The roaring alreadale cut the trail in the night," muttered Finlay. "They're so much noise! From any travel they must be near."

Shortly there was a flash in front of him. He saw a boat. Then a heavy body fell.

The cocked gun dropped to the side.

INSTALLMENT SEVEN

Finlay receives an anonymous letter suggesting that the six men were not drowned as reported. Suspicion prevails that Isadore, rich fur man, has made a gold strike and aims to keep prospectors out of the country at any cost. The three men start out on the Nottaway for the Hudson's Bay post. Finlay and Malone visit Isadore in his magnificent home. The three men located Bob Finlay's grave and found he had been shot through the head.

The beast plunged on, followed by the alreadale, and his hoofs clopped on the stones as he took the lake shore.

There was a laugh from the gloom. "By gar, Boss!" chuckled Blaise. "We need dat moose meat bad!"

CHAPTER VIII

The survey party were squatted on their heels around their supper fire screened from observation by shore alders and scrub. Young Moise Wabistan had just arrived with the rumor that Kinebik was secretly making medicine again and the Montagnais were growing restless.

"Were does he pitch his medicine tent?" asked Blaise.

"It is a secret for he fears my father."

"What are the spirits telling the Montagnais?"

"The spirits say that the 'Eye with Three Legs' you look through to make the picture of the lake is the eye of Matchi-Manitou, the Evil Spirit. Kinebik warns that the spirits tell him many Montagnais will die this Long Snows because the Eye has come to Waswanipi."

Blaise's face was shadowed with foreboding as he interpreted the reply to his friends. "Dat look bad for us! Kinebik make pientee troubl' wid dat story," he said ominously.

"The transi: an evil eye!" Garry exclaimed. "Don't see that Tete-Blanche is behind that?"

Blaise asked the question of the worried Moise, then turned to Finlay. "He say dat a child who watch you look through the 'Eye with Three Legs' has died. Kinebik tells them it was the Evil Eye that sickened him."

"Blaise," said Garry, nursing his chin with a hand, "I guess we'll have to put the fear of Matchi-Manitou into this medicine man or he'll soon have some of the Montagnais knifing us in our sleep. Isadore and Tete-Blanche are about all we can handle at present."

Brassard was doing some intensive thinking. At last he asked young Wabistan in Cree: "Have you heard when Kinebik makes his medicine again?"

"Some say when the moon is again round. My father will know when the secret word passes. His knife is already sharp."

Blaise nodded. "I will go with Chief Wabistan."

Moise and his brother, Michel, nervously found each other's eyes as Blaise repeated the conversation to the white men.

Later, they sat smoking inside the rim of the shore alders beside small smudge fires, for the mosquitoes were ravenous.

Blaise slowly removed his pipe and squinted into the west. At length he announced: "Cano' comin'!"

The others followed Brassard's pointing finger while Finlay went to the tent for his binoculars, returned and adjusted the focus. In the distance the dripping paddle of the canoe man flashed blood-red from the water.

Later, from the shifting course of the boat it was evident that the paddler was searching the shores. Twice he disappeared to enter bays, only to reappear and continue his course.

"He hunt for somet'ing," said Blaise, when finally the canoe turned abruptly and headed straight for the camp. "Dat somet'ing is us."

"Have a look, Moise," said Finlay handing over the glasses. "Do you recognize him?"

Young Wabistan looked through the binoculars and shook his head.

"He's coming from Isadore's," observed Red. "Now what?"

The canoe slid in to the beach and the swart paddler, little more than a boy, stepped out with a "Kek-

"Bo-jo!" returned Blaise, joining the young Indian whose nervous eyes watched Brassard's crag-like face as if he feared an assault.

"What's this, Red?" queried Garry as they followed Blaise to the beach. "A trick of Isadore's?"

"Sure! Wonder how he found us! We must be over forty miles from the post. Look! He's got a message wrapped in that skin he's handing to Blaise."

"He come from Isadore's place," explained Blaise. "Moise say, now, he see him at de trade. He carry dis leatir to you." Blaise handed Garry the skin wrapper the boy had given him.

"What do you suppose this is?" Garry asked Red. He opened the wrapper and stared in surprise at the folded sheets of blue note paper it contained. A faint fragrance met his nostrils.

Red grinned widely at the scowling Blaise. "Is this had a fast worker?" he chuckled. "I'll tell the world he is."

With mixed feelings of elation and suspicion Garry turned the closely written sheets and saw at the foot of the last page the name, Lise Demarais. Why had she written him? What was behind the sending of this boy forty miles to find the survey party? Again he saw her velvet-black eyes mock him, then furtively study him; later to fill with dread of the sinister face of Tete-Blanche peering through the doorway. He read:

"Dear Mr. Finlay: "Louis, whose Indian name is Mikisik, Little Eagle, is carrying this to you. He is absolutely trustworthy and devoted to me. I saved his life last year in the 'flu' epidemic. No one here knows that he is searching for your camp. He is supposed to be away sturgeon fishing."

"Of course, I know, after what you saw and did with my glass that night, that you suspect Jules Isadore. Just why you are here on the lake I do not know. Jules thinks you are prospectors who have heard that he has struck rich placer bars on the Waswanipi and are going to investigate under cover of a survey of the lake."

"However that may be, I have got to make you trust and believe in me for without your help I am lost. First, I believe in you—that you're a gentleman and a brave man. Behind your banter there was something in your eyes, something staunch and unafraid. That is why I'm sending this strange letter; for your life and my future are at stake. Jules Isadore fears that you may know and report to the authorities. He's playing a desperate game for high stakes. He has ordered Tete-Blanche, the half breed you saw that night in the doorway, to follow your party until the chance offers to murder you—every man. Then he will send word to the railroad that you were drowned. But he can't let the Montagnais see this—have any proof. What has saved you, thus far, is the presence, with you, of Wabistan's son. He doesn't wish to attack the treaty-chief's sons. He is waiting until the boys are away. Keep Wabistan's sons with you! But I beg of you if you value your lives, leave this country before August."

"I've got to go with you. It's my only chance. If you'll take me to the Hudson's Bay post at Matagami, I can get out from there. Jules doesn't dare make trouble with the Hudson's Bay people."

"I realize to the full that you will suspect treachery—think I'm doing this for Jules and am a callous creature who would lure you into an ambush. But I beg you to trust me—give me a chance to tell my story—just one chance. I know this sounds wild, but I'm desperate. Just tell Louis the reply is: 'Yes!' That will be sufficient. And I'll be at the white sand beach, behind the lopstick point, two miles east of the post, early Friday afternoon. I swear to you I'll not be followed for it is Corinne's and my private swimming beach. We go often and Isadore has told them he'd shoot any man who was caught following us."

"Bring your men as a guard if you doubt me but I implore you, Garry Finlay, to meet me for I'm in ghastly trouble and you are my only hope. What I know will aid you in getting out of this country alive."

"Corinne knows nothing of this letter. She hates Jules Isadore but I dare not trust her. Louis cannot read English so is ignorant of its contents. If you say, 'Yes' and anything prevents your reaching there Friday, leave a note under the white quartz rock on the edge of the beach stating when you will come and Louis will get it. For God's sake, Garry Finlay, don't think this note is an Isadore trick and I'm such a low beast. I'll kill myself rather than stay here through the summer. I've got to get out! I've got to get out! I've got to get out!"

"Lise Demarais."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

THE ETERNAL GOD, THE SOURCE OF HELP

LESSON TEXT—Revelation 7:9-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, which was, and is, and is to come.—Revelation 4:8.

A look into the future is something that would interest most of us, and we have it in this lesson. We agree with Dr. Wilbur Smith that "this is an excellent opportunity to bring to the hearts of our pupils some of these divinely revealed truths which the world, in its mad rush today, so easily and tragically puts aside."

The portion of Revelation, chapter seven, which is before us comes immediately after a section dealing with Israel. The Church is not mentioned. The ones spoken of have come out of "the great tribulation" (as the Revised Version rightly translates it) and are evidently Gentiles who have come to believe in Christ during that time of unparalleled tribulation described in later chapters of this book.

Our lesson therefore deals with a specific time and a certain people in connection with an event yet to take place. But we find in this passage the description of the experiences of those who, like Christians of our day, triumphed through their saving faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. We may therefore here learn something of the future blessedness of the redeemed.

I. Saved Forever and Ever (vv. 9-12).

Salvation is a reality, and we are never going to be more certain of it than when we, like this multitude, stand in God's presence to praise Him for what He has done in our lives. It is real. Praise God!

Notice that there was an unnumbered multitude from all nations. The good tidings at the time of Christ's birth were for all people (Luke 2:10), and some from all nations respond. Note too that the hosts of the Lord are greater than we might at first suppose.

These redeemed ones had immediate access to God's throne, offering their praise direct. They were clad in the white robes of God's own purity and bore in their hands the palms of victory. They, with the angels, the elders (possibly representing the Church already caught up into heaven), and the living creatures (not "beasts" as in A.V. They are divine beings of highest character), ascribed a seven-fold praise to God "forever and ever. Amen." It is a glorious picture of completed redemption.

II. Serving Day and Night (vv. 13-15a).

It should be observed that even those who came through the great tribulation did not look to their own deeds or faithfulness to save them. Their white robes of righteousness were washed in "the blood of the Lamb" (v. 14).

III. Satisfied Throughout Eternity (vv. 15b-17).

To be covered by the "tabernacle" of God (whatever it may mean) surely betokens the perfect and constant protection of His own presence. Everything destructive and disturbing will be gone. There will be no lack of any good thing needed to satisfy every desire. There will be no thirst unquenched and no hunger unsatisfied (see similar descriptive passage in Rev. 21:3, 4).

The redeemed are said to be under the tender care of the Good Shepherd Himself; the Lamb (our Redeemer) who is in the midst of God's throne shall lead them, not beside "the still waters" of the Twenty-third Psalm, but "unto living fountains of water." Thus in the beauty of figurative speech, we are assured that God's provision for His children, the redeemed in Christ Jesus, will perfectly satisfy every need of soul and spirit. There is no such satisfaction this side of eternity, but we shall find it there.

Then too, there is to be no sorrow. God Himself is the guarantee that there shall be nothing in that blessed land to cause anyone to shed a tear. Think what that means! Think of the weeping of boys and girls, men and women, who in this world of hatred, sin and suffering, shed bitter tears of pain or sorrow. Well, it were almost enough to know that heaven is a place where there shall be no tears.

Remember that the promises of joyous completed redemption for these, the Gentile believers of the great tribulation, will be for all God's children, for us who believe in Christ. Reader, will you not join us today if you are still an unbeliever? Take Christ now as your saviour.

Disadvantageous Tales
A man should be careful never to tell tales of himself to his own disadvantage; people may be amused, and laugh at the time, but they will be remembered, and brought up against him upon some subsequent occasion.—Johnson.

One Ship Arises as Another Goes Down

The "steel fish" shown above is rescuing survivors of the ship she has just sent to the bottom of the Atlantic. Popping up from beneath the waves, where she had sent a torpedo crashing into this neutral Portuguese vessel the German submarine was crasht from possible defense guns aboard her victim, for by then the muzzles were below the waves. The Nazis gave as their reason for the sinking, the fact that the ship was bound for England.

SCHOOL BUSES DEFECTIVE

Austin, Sept. 10.—With traffic fatalities on the increase and travel heavier than ever before, school bus drivers will feel the weight of tremendous responsibility in the coming school year, State Police Director Homer Garrison warned today.

Urging bus drivers to be sure their vehicles are in tip-top shape, Garrison said that a recent inspection revealed mechanical defects in every one of 26 buses tested. Twenty-three had defective brakes, thirteen defective lights, thirteen no fire extinguishers, sixteen no first aid kits.

Although the safety lane for inspection of private vehicles has been temporarily discontinued, Garrison said the Safety Division will continue to assist school authorities in inspecting buses.
