FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

C. O. Huber, Pastor Last Sunday was a day that rejoiced the hearts of many because of fine attendance at both morning and evening worship hours. The Sunday school attendance was advanced beyond the preceding few weeks and the Training Union was well attended. That isn't all, though. Last Sunday was State Mission Day throughout the south and our church observed the day with a goal of $35 as a special State Mission offering. We far exceeded that goal by making a $53 special offering to State Missions.

As pastor, may I say I like the spirit of our people and the determination to do even better always in all things at all times.

Next Sunday will conclude a series of four special evening messages on regeneration. Our message will be "The Proof of Redemption" as the culmination of all humanity might hope for in salvation. We invite your attendance.

Tigers Lose to Pirates Friday

The McLean Tigers lost for the first time this season, to the Lefors Pirates last Friday evening with a score of 9 to 6.

The game was played on a wet field and in fog that handicapped the speedy Tiger backs, but it was a good game from the fans' viewpoint and a large crowd was present.

The Pirates and the Shamrock Irishmen are now left at the top of the conference, and they will clash at Shamrock Friday night of this week.

The Tigers will not play this week, but will be at home against Wheeler next week.

School Carnival Friday and Saturday

A Halloween carnival will be staged by the McLean schools, with teachers in charge of the various attractions, Friday and Saturday nights at the Smith building next door south of the News office.

All funds received from the carnival will be used for school activities.

TREE BUTCHERS OVER PANHANDLE

Shamrock, Texas, Oct. 24, 1941. Mr. T. A. Landers, McLean, Texas.

Dear Mr. Landers: I have just read your editorial on "tree butchers" in the October 23rd issue of the McLean News. I think that this is a very timely editorial that expresses the views of all those that are familiar with the harm that these "butchers" are doing to the trees in this area.

It is discouraging to say the least, for home owners who have the pride to justify their homes with careful landscaping only to have their trees injured and sometimes even destroyed by these so-called experts. I believe that I can safely say that there have been more trees hurt or destroyed by these people than there have been trees helped or repaired. The number of trees that are now suffering from rot and decay caused by improper pruning alone is alarming, and is due, as you say, to the fact that these butchers are more interested in the money that they receive than the good that they are doing for the trees.

The Forest Service would like to collaborate with you and the McLean News in your crusade against these so-called "tree experts." We want to help in every way possible to protect the trees in the Plains areas, and we believe your edifying editorial is a big step forward in this good work.

Very truly yours,

RALPH V. JOHNSTON, District Forester.

COTTON GINNING REPORT

According to R. H. Wilson, special agent, there were 63 bales of cotton ginned in Gray county, prior to Oct. 18 as compared with 759 bales last year.

Mr and Mrs. E. J. Windom took their son, Johnny, to Amarillo Friday for medical treatment. They were accompanied by Mrs. Leo Gibson.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. H. E. Franks and Mrs. T. A. Massay.

PENTECOSTAL H. M. S.

The H. M. S. of the Pentecostal Holiness Church met Monday afternoon at 2:30 at the church.

The opening song was "Have Thine Own Way, Lord." Several requests were made for prayer. After prayer, the pastor, Mrs. Irene Wilson, read the 4th chapter of 1st Peter and spoke concerning the need of charity.

The quilt being made by the society is about ready to be set together, and Mrs. Gunkle is making a scarf for the piano.

Boy Scout Fund Drive Over Top

The drive for funds for the boy scouts went over the top Wednesday, starting with a kick-off breakfast and ending at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, when Murray Boston's teams who brought in 647 points, cut off the short tail of Emory Crockett, whose teams netted 195 points.

With several teams not reporting, there was a total of $532.50 reported pledged, with $67.27 in cash collected during the day.

With the round-up of those not seen Wednesday, the drive should total over $600 for the year.

This is the first drive for funds in McLean for some years, and Scout Executive J. Troy Israel stated that he was very well pleased with the response given the drive by McLean citizens.

Collections will be made monthly on the pledges.

Church Women to Meet Monday

SCHOOL TAX RENDITIONS LOWERED AT NEW RATE

School tax renditions have been lowered one-third under the new $1.50 rate recently voted at McLean, which will leave the total tax due from each property owner the same as formerly.

The school tax equalization board, composed of J. A. Ashby, Charles Cousins and Ercy Cubine, lowered some renditions in addition to raising a few, doing, it is said, one of the best equalization jobs seen here in years. There should be little cause for tax raises now for some time under the new set-up, it is claimed.

WELL! That's an English book being thrown in the locker. It may be face down or get caught between Mary's history and her algebra books, but she hasn't enough time to rearrange them.

The teacher has just told Tom to be busy, so he starts filling in the book in the textbook. When Tom gets his assignment for the next day, he turns the corner of the page and leaves it that way. It isn't just Mary and Tom that do these things. Most every student at McLean high school is guilty. Why don't we take more time to preserve the books dear of father Texas has provided us with?

Surely our lockers are not too small to hold four or five school books if they are arranged right.

Let's clean up our lockers, arrange our books, and keep them that way.

Fashion Review

The boys, God bless 'em, although somewhat of a nuisance at times, wouldn't this be a dreary place without them, Panny? must take their place in the fashion limelight as week.

Kenneth Dyer strolls down the hall with Joyce D. on his arm in team colored linen slacks, a blue shirt, brown shoes and anklets.

Khaki suits are perhaps the most regular and serviceable apparel for boys. Most all the boys, such as Don Montgomery, W. J. Hanner, Lester Wiley and Joe Cooke, wear khaki school.

Gayle Montgomery an individualist in the last, prefers his khaki not khaki at all, but green, which goes very well indeed with his flashy red tie.

School activities set some of the styles for our boys. For example, Jimmy Beck wears a royal blue F. A. shirt with khaki trousers and brown oxfords. (Thanks for the information, Pat).

J. B. Waldrop, on his return from Kansas City, wears a bright yellow shirt with F. P. A. in blue letters on it. He wears with this flashy tie, khaki trousers and gray shirt.

Reddie freshman

Boy, oh boy, do I get results. I dropped in to see those girls in Oklahoma City, and now I'm getting fan mail, and did I tell you, some came last week end. And do you know what I did? I just walked up to them and told them who I was.

At you all know my luck by now— they just said, "Isn't John Kelly handsome?"

I guess those Oklahoma Indians' habits are catching, for Kenneth McMillen is from down there and he is around giving one of those full-bodied war whoops.

Someone got spring fever and Alice and David mixed up, but I don't see how they could for this is October.

I thought I wanted Juanita Campbell to be one of my girls, but when I saw how she really looks, I think I changed my mind. Those girls really looked "iky" while being invited into some club, but I hear the best is yet to come. (They're kidding Tommy Nichols).

I think I will just be a hermit like Wayne Back. Me and him are really pals, and boy, is he smart. I mean in his books.

Did you see that senior picture? All those seniors have sore necks from standing and looking up at it. Guess I'll just have to wait my turn.

Margie got a letter. Margie got a letter. She really got one from B. while he was in Kansas City. Well, all you other kids, it's close my bed time, so I'll see you next week.

Senior Class Picture in Record Time

The senior class of '42 has made good start by being the first class in the history of McLean high to have their picture up by October 20.

The picture is attractive and at the same time different. Individual pictures fill a large V. Under the president, vice president, secretary and artist's pictures form three rows and a dash. The superintendent ent and the two class sponsors' pictures are placed within stars surrounding the V. With this picture arrangement and their motto, "V stands for Victory," the class expects to rise to a greater victory.

Home Ec Club Formed

The home economics III girls met last Tuesday morning for their club meeting.

They discussed ways of earning money and named their club the C. S. C. Afterwards they played Guess What, I Pass These Scissors, and Sailing My Ship.

The hostesses, Billie May Bailey and Jewel Lane, served cookies and cocoa with marshmallows.

Their next club meeting will be Tuesday.

FFA PROJECTS APPROVED

Thursday at the regular weekly FFA meeting, the boys will approve the objectives that have been set up for the following year during the first part of the period. During the last part of the period a movie picture of their last year's projects will be shown.

Tigers Lose to Lefors

The McLean Tigers went down in gallant defeat Friday night to the Lefors Pirates by a small margin of a 9 to 6 score. The two teams fought on somewhat even terms for all of the four quarters and it was anybody's ball game until the final whistle blew.

The Tigers opened the scoring in the second quarter when after a beautiful drive down field deep into Lefors territory Lee tossed a pass to Cooke, who stepped over the goal line for a touchdown. The try for conversion failed.

The Lefors aggregation came back strong in the second half, and in the latter part of the third quarter Ox Oldham, big 196-pound fullback for Lefors, went over from the eight yard line. The try for conversion failed.

Then in the latter part of the fourth quarter Lefors got deep into McLean territory, but there McLean held for three downs and on the fourth down Ralph Earhart place-kicked a field goal.

Then with only a minute and a half to go the Pirates kicked off and the Tigers took the ball on their own 40 yard line. Here the Tigers started a beautiful drive when Cooke faked back to pass, saw no receiver, so ran with the ball and was downed on about the Lefors 35 yard line. On the next play Lee passed to Dwight on the Lefors 12 yard line. Here McLean tried four passes that were batted down and Lefors took over on downs. They tried three running plays and the whistle sounded, ending the ball game.

The outstanding player of the game was big Ox Oldham, who was the difference between victory and defeat for the Pirates.

Waldrop Attends FFA Convention

J. B. Waldrop, McLean FFA member, attended the 13th national convention of the Future Farmers of America last week end at Kansas City, Mo. There were about 6,000 representatives there from 47 states, Hawaii and Porto Rico. While there, Waldrop went to the American Royal Livestock Show. There were five other state officers at the convention.

42 Students on First Six Weeks Honor Roll

There are 3 honor rolls this year in McLean high. One is for pupils that have grades better than B but still not quite as good as A. This is called the A and B honor roll. There is the A honor roll which consists of pupils with all A's on their report cards. The honor roll in which are the B students or the ones that have all B's on their report cards.

Being on one of these honor rolls does not mean, however, that the student can't be on the state honor roll, because there are more requirements than just being on the school honor roll, but there may be some lucky ones that will be on the state honor roll.

The pupils who are on the honor rolls are as follows:
 A—Joyce Fulbright, Marian Wilson, Virginia Blackerby.
 A and B—Betsy McCarty, Patsy Ruth Price, Harold Lee Meador, Lou Lee Rhea, Jim Carpenter, Mary Lou Jarrell, Kathryn Brooks, Pat Cobbs, Joe Cooke, Ercy Fulbright, Robert Gibson, Frances Sitter, Patty Smith, Duella Wood, Margie Price, Jeweelen Langham, Colleen Burrows, Nova Lee Beesinger, Jo Ann Campbell, Nadine Boyd, Mary Evelyn Foster, Ruth Humphreys, Ruth Strandberg, Cleo Jones, Carl Dwyer, Billy Rae Burdine, Frances Hardin, Loyce Thacker, Marjorie Gollightly, Iva Nora Simpson, Martha Howard, Zelda Marie West, John Kirby.

Loyce Thacker was elected president, Bobby O'Leary, secretary; Viola Appling, Patsy Ballard and Colleen Burrows, cheer leaders.

PEDAGOGICAL RUMINATIONS

By Professor Sylvester Horatio Guggenbimer

Remember me? I'm the little girl that used to try my best each Sadie Hawkins Day to catch you, but I never succeeded. Now, I may have another chance since you have come to work on the Tiger Post. And my, what a salary they do pay; at that rate it won't be long before you can buy a pair of those yellow shoes you have been wanting to wear on Sunday. Now, Sylvester, will you give me a little advice? What is the first thing that I should do when entering a church?

COLLEEN BURROWS.
 Dear Miss Burrows:

I hardly think a newspaper is the proper place to dig up old acquaintances. Here is my advice to you and all girls—when entering a church the first thing to do is look for the hymns which are there.

Dear Professor:
 My chosen vocation in life will carry me into the great deserts of Egypt. I don't want to give up my work, but I am afraid of starving to death while on the desert. What should I do?

EARL HUMPHREYS.
 Dear Earl:

Have no fear, and go on into the deserts of Egypt. You are in no danger of starving to death because of the sandwiches (sand which is) there.

SCHOOL CARNIVAL THIS WEEK END

No, Hallowe'en hasn't been invented within the last few centuries. It's an old, old festival that has been held in honor of several different gods and has come down to us as a night in which all door bells must be rung, ghosts must be brought out, and all that stuff.

This year Hallowe'en is going to receive a great boost. That's right, there is going to be a carnival! All the fun begins Friday evening and continues through Saturday afternoon and evening in the downtown building located between the Smith Bros. office and Franks Furniture store.

Hallowe'en motif will be carried out Hallowe'en night. The second night of the carnival will be culminated by the coronation of a carnival queen. The juniors and seniors of high school are running selectives for queen; the sophomores and freshmen are contesting for princesses. The losers will hold the honor of being attendants.

Various teachers will be in charge of the concession booths such as bingo, hopla, dart, fishing pond, ball booths and eats.

The purpose of the carnival is to raise funds for school activities.

Everybody reads newspapers.

U. S. Destroyer Torpedoed on Patrol

View in Brooklyn navy yard when the U. S. destroyer, Kearny, was commissioned, under command of Lieut. Commander A. L. Danis. The destroyer was torpedoed while on patrol duty, about 350 miles southwest of Iceland. The ship continued on its course, under its own power, to an unnamed port, with 11 members of the crew missing and 10 injured, two of them seriously. The navy department stated that the attack on the Kearny was undoubtedly made by a German submarine. The Kearny was launched in March, 1940, at Kearny, N. J., and had a complement of 13 officers and 177 men.

At Neutrality Hearing

Ruins of London Town

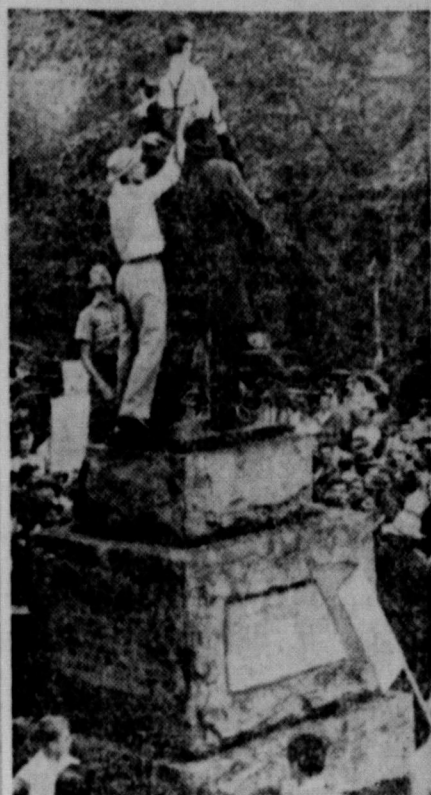

This photograph, just released by the British censor, shows some of the devastated sections in the center of London after air raid clearance work. An entire block of demolished buildings has been completely removed, leaving nothing but vacant lots, as shown in the picture.

Nazi Spy Ship Prisoners Brought Ashore

With their duffle bags, 22 Norwegian Nazis and Gestapo agents are being taken to the immigration station in East Boston, Mass., aboard a guard patrol boat, after the German radio supply ship, Busko, was brought to Boston, following its seizure in Greenland waters. The Busko was brought to establish a radio station in Greenland.

Loyal to School

Five hundred students of the Georgia university came to the capitol in Atlanta to protest to Governor Talmage because their school had been dropped from the Southern university conference. Governor Talmage was not in town at the time of the demonstration. Note students mounting bust of Talmage on capitol grounds.

New Fall Clothes Are Pretty But They Are Also Practical

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IF YOU are enrolled at college, if you are a debutante, if you are a full-fledged socialite, or if you are a career girl, you will be going places this fall and winter, and that means pretty clothes and many of 'em.

The "trick" is to assemble a wardrobe of costumes that have the style-correctness and indefinable charm that will make you the reigning glamour girl in the smartly alert stadium group, at the college "prom," at afternoon tea or bridge. The illustration herewith is designed to offer suggestions for costumes that will do just that.

Wherever smart crowds parade into the stadium this fall you will find fragrant fresh flowers posed romantically on muffs and cuffs as well as on coat collars and revers, and on canes, if you please. Here's hoping your far-away soldier, or a dotting parent at home will be wiring you one of the newest style corsages to wear to that football game.

If you are seeking ways to allot your clothes allowance wisely, we would suggest the purchase of a youthful-looking kidskin jacket such as that worn by the cheer-enthusiast seated to the left in the group. A flattering gray or beige fur like this will "go with everything," your sports frocks, your dresses for town wear and travel, or your new "date" dress.

It's simply perfect to wear to football games. As a background for a corsage of yellow chrysanthemums such as the girl pictured is wearing gray kidskin is the ideal answer. For an apropos ensemble, the streamers must carry out the college colors. Coach your florist beforehand to attach your college letter right in the heart of the flower as though it had grown there. The stunning hat that completes this costume is black with the new curtain drape that conceals the hair at the back in a soft line. The hunter's green frock of sheer wool, with tailored lines and nipped-in waist, as shown above to the right, is a smart choice to wear to the game and the tea dance afterward. A corsage of roses is matched to the rose petaled crown of the saucy pillbox hat. It is the very latest fashion to wear your flowers at the belt line, after the manner pictured.

One of the necessary luxuries of a debutante or fair college girl is a simple classic gown fashioned of a delectable pastel woolen. The styling of the pastel frock above to the left in the group is particularly attractive. There is restrained fullness at the front of the skirt. The bodice is beautifully detailed, with the new and popular slenderizing midriff effect. Pompadour hat and long suede gloves complete this charming "date" dress. Evidently, according to this picture, "he" wired "her" one of the extremely popular patriotic corsages of red roses, blue carnations and white carnation petals.

The fall and winter social whirl makes it almost imperative that every girl who goes places own a black velvet "date" dress. Black velvet is equal to any occasion. Below, to the right, you see a glamour dress on a glamour girl. The square-cut neck is extremely flattering. A stunning bracelet, a jeweled brooch, the new long gloves, a towering turban draped of cerise velvet done in the milliner's happiest manner, and an exotic corsage of rubrum lilies dramatize this "portrait of a lady" to the 'nth degree.

New Fall Bags

Long and narrow, beautifully appointed with the "last word" in contrivances to make life easier by safeguarding your valuables, and taking care of your "hanky," your lipstick and other make-up essentials, the new bags are everything you want them to be in convenience as well as esthetic appearance. An oriental influence is reflected in the initials which take a distinctly Chinese slant on the bag shown at the top. Bracelet, earclips, and twin lapel bowknot pins matching metal add a cosmopolitan touch. The new black suede bag shown below has a pocket and smart tucked detail.

Wear a Collection Of Pins and Clips

If you wear your fancy jewelry clips and pins as fashion dictates you will look like a military heroine displaying a collection of honor medals. The latest is to wear, not merely a single clip or pin but a whole bevy of them. It works somewhat like the charm bracelet idea. You collect versatile clips and display them on your blouse or lapel. You can get twin clips, triplet, quadruplet and even quintuplet groups. This is especially so in regard to butterfly motifs. A flock of jeweled wings is often seen fluttering on the new costumes. Some of the clip sets have, say, three units which are held in leash with delicate link chains. Makes a stunning effect.

Enormous glittering flower sprays will be worn on fur coats this winter, or will be worn with the simple basic dark dress to take the place of trimming or other ornamentation. The return of long necklaces is also important jewelry news.

Luxurious Fabrics May Soon Be Harder to Buy

Fabrics used in the fall collections almost overawe one with their elegance. Some merchants say this is the grand climax before we settle down to utilitarian weaves, and that lavish silks will be less and less available. However, the present handsome silks are setting the pace for rayon weaves produced in our own country that will reproduce handsome failles, satins, brocades, and so on.

Stiff silk weaves such as failles, taffetas, tie silks, lustrous, firm satins, and rich velvets are linked this season to the new slim silhouettes and are also being made up in stunning costume and evening blouses.

The siren song of the out-of-town promoter always sounds good, but the performance of his schemes is many times something else again, leaving only the recollection of money spent for nothing.

Most of us would welcome the man who can correct the business and moral wrongs of the world, but we would not want him to find any fault with the way we run our business or live our lives.

No best selling product ever owed its success to the fact that it is the cheapest to be had, nor have those who have been in business the longest the reputation of selling the cheapest. The matter of cheapness has been exploded long ago as far as price is concerned. Most people know that getting value for the price paid is of far more importance than the first cost of the article or service.

At midnight, Sept. 17, a strike put the lights out without warning in Kansas City, Mo. For five pitch-black hours not a trolley moved. Radios went dead, elevators stopped in their shafts, molten steel in the Sheffield Steel plant, working a 24-hour defense shift, caked and hardened to the molds. Five hundred and fifty thousand people faced a water shortage as only one small pumping station continued to operate. Hospitals were hardest hit. In one, doctors worked feverishly in giving artificial respiration to a paralyzed baby who had been kept alive in an iron lung. Cause of the strike was a ruling by the National Defense Mediation Board that a union dispute did not come within its jurisdiction. Two days later men went back to work. Said A. F. of L. Representative Albert Wright, who called the strike, "I didn't realize the hazards." -Life Magazine.

EVEN AT THE FINISH

And then there's the story about the golfing clergyman who had been badly defeated on the links by one of his parishioners who was 30 years his senior.

The clergyman returned to the club house in a rather disgruntled state of mind.

"Cheer up!" his elder opponent grinned. "Remember, you win at the finish. You will be burying me some day."

The clergyman sighed most dejectedly and replied: "Yes, but even then, it will be your hole!"

A NEGATIVE REACTION

The senior class had been photographed, and the teacher was urging her students to buy prints of the picture.

"Think how nice it will be to look at the picture in years to come, when you are grown up!" she said. "You'll be able to look at it and say: 'There's Alice—she's a nurse,' and 'There's Carl—he's a business man,' and—"

The bad boy of the class interrupted. "Yes," he said, "and there's teacher—she's dead!"

One of the greatest evils of modern life is exorbitant taxes, and it seems likely that they will be multiplied until we have liquidation of all real property or civil war. Many taxes are disguised as "emergency" or short-term levies for special uses; but rarely are taxes ever repealed. Politicians, elected to office, go after more money, because by spending they can be more spectacular, can build political machines, and can, of course, achieve worthwhile things if they have a mind to. No man in public office wants to spend less than his predecessor spent; he wants to spend more; and in one way or another he tries to convince us that fresh levies are necessary.—Vardis Fisher.

to investigate. Murder is suspected. It is thought that Isadore, rich fur man, has made a gold strike and aims to keep prospectors out. On the way to the Hudson's Bay post they visit Isadore in his palatial home, and meet Lise, his stepdaughter. Answering an appeal from Lise, Finlay is ambushed. It develops that they are Mounted Police officers. The party visits McNab, Hudson's Bay trader. Red falls in love with Thistle, McNab's daughter.

"I don't think you'll come back, Constable Malone, good man as you are! It's too bad—too bad! Poor Thistle!" McNab said.

"I wanted to be honest with you and tell you, myself."

Isadore's canoe was out of sight when Blaise and the fretting dog stood beside the loaded Peterboro. Near them Finlay talked with McNab of the message leaving for the steel in the morning. Then the stockade gate opened and Red and Thistle walked slowly toward the shore. McNab turned his head winking hard at the sudden moisture in his eyes.

"What a pair!" said Garry. "She's a lovely girl, McNab. I've worked with him for five years, now, and he's a man, every inch of that six feet three."

"What a pity, Sergeant! If you'd only wait for help—only wait!"

Finlay smiled and shook his head. Walking slowly Red and Thistle approached. She was laughing now, laughing up at him through misty eyes.

"Just like him!" thought Finlay. They stopped near the canoe and Red had her two hands. She flung back her red-gold head and gazed hungrily into his face while he talked.

"Come now!" they heard him say. "Chase the clouds out of those blue eyes! I want to see you smile again before I go. Show your dimples, Lady! Laugh just once more for Red!"

She caught her breath as she smiled up at him, oblivious of them all, then flung her arms about his neck. "I can't let you go, Red!" she sobbed. "You'll never come back! They'll never let you come back to me!"

The others turned away as she clung to him. Later, until the post buildings faded from the sight of those in the canoe, a flutter of white in the clearing marked where a girl waved her farewell.

CHAPTER XIV

Two days later the canoe had passed through Lake Olga of the chain of large lakes and was on the Quiet Water below the Montagnais camp on the island.

"There's the lop-stick spruce David told us to look for!" announced Finlay.

"Ah-hah! David say dat chain of lake lie a mile sout' of here," said Blaise. "We portage to de lake and pass round de Indian waitin' on de riviere, den follow outlet of las' lake to Waswanipi."

In the morning they started packing the canoe and provisions through the spruce, tamarack and Jack-pine, spotted with hardwood, to David's chain of lakes.

Blazing a trail as he traveled, Blaise had reached the first lake with a backload and was returning to pack the canoe through with Finlay when he met the sweating Red bowed under three bags of flour.

Red went on and shortly saw water shimmering through the trees. He was close to the shore when he heard a movement ahead of him in hardwood scrub.

Porcupine, likely, he thought, and kept on.

Then dry twigs snapped in front of him. He lifted his head and looked. Taking deliberate aim with his rifle stood an Indian. Malone pivoted on his heels. With a twist of his head and lift of his shoulders he dropped his backload as the Indian fired. There was a thud as the bullet struck the rolling top bag. With a lunge Red was buried deep in a clump of small fir.

The windless forest vibrated with silence. The Indian who had fired on him could not be far but the brush was so thick he could see nothing. So Red decided to stalk him. With his heavy pistol in his teeth he hunched foot by foot on his elbows until his range of vision had increased to twenty yards.

Around him lances of sunlight thrust through the treetops splashing the underbrush with gold. Still the bush was as soundless as a vacuum. Then a squirrel chattered from somewhere in front and Red smiled. "Ah, there you are!"

He wormed along in the direction of the sound. Then he stiffened suddenly where he lay. Back in the forest rose the guttural "craack-craack!" of the northern raven. Red's eyes snapped as he nodded his head. Shortly the croaking was followed by a dismal "kooer-kooer!"

"Montagnais, say your prayers!" chuckled Malone. "There's a carajou hunting you! That was no raven! That was Blaise's signal!"

Again Red inched his way through young fir and hardwood. But he saw nothing.

Once more the "kooer-kooer!" of the raven startled the forest—much nearer now and followed by a metallic "kunk!"

But Red could not answer. He was too close to deceive Indian ears. They're growing nervous! They don't like that old raven moving in on their rear. He's got them guessing. If I could only get a shot, I'd start a stampede." But Red's eyes, lancing the undergrowth, found no target.

Then, from deep in the forest drifted the familiar yelp of the airdale on a rabbit trail. Flame and Garry! Sweat burst from Red's brow. They must be warned!

There was a sudden movement in the bush. Red lifted his head to catch the fluttering of young fir tops as a dark shape moved through. Once, twice, the 45 roared. Two rifles crashed back in reply. Twigs flew from the saplings where Malone had knelt. But he was already yards away under new cover.

"Thank God! That will stop Garry!" he panted. "There're three of them, at least, but they're worried. When Flame shows up there'll be a circus."

Again the "craack-craack!" of the raven bludgeoned the silence. Nearer now. For a space the stillness beat painfully on Malone's eardrums as he lay nursing his pistol. Then, in the soundless forest lifted a scream that was cut off short as if steel jaws had clamped on a throat.

Red heard a movement in the brush and, rising, saw a disappearing shape. He fired; fired again. There was the "brang!" of a Lee-Enfield, the savage challenge of Flame, then the muffled snarl of a dog closing with his enemy, frightened cries mingling with Garry's commands: "No, Flame! Let him up! Let go, Flame!"

Malone thrashed back into the bush to find Finlay holding the maddened airdale away from a young Indian sprawled on the ground.

"I can't let you go, Red!"

"You're all right, Red? They did hit you?" cried Garry. "Flame had this boy down when I reached him!"

Nursing his bitten arm, the young Montagnais lifted frightened eyes to the giant who glared down at him. "It's all right!" soothed Garry. "We won't hurt you!"

"Where's Blaise?" demanded Red. "I didn't get a clean shot but I was afraid you'd walk into them, so fired anyway to warn you. How many were there?"

"This one and two others, I think," replied Finlay, lashing Flame to a tree and starting to examine the shaking boy who watched him with the eyes of a dog.

"Where are you, Blaise?" called Malone. "What was that yell?" Red found Blaise beside a limp shape in the brush.

"Ah-hah!" Brassard was studying the grimacing face from which glazed eyes stared at the sunlit tree tops.

"Recognize him?"

"Ah-hah! We see heem at de islan' at head of lake."

"He'll drink no more of Tete-Blanche's whiskey. What was that scream?"

Brassard opened and closed his steel fingers in a significant gesture. "Dat fallar run into de old raven." The slits of eyes in his granite face glittered. "De raven squeeze him wid his claw."

"Pity it wasn't Batoche or Tete-Blanche!"

"Some day, mebbe!"

bush the next man over the trail. Patamish had no gun. They had brought him to help carry the meat and the canoe. He had nothing against these white men and wanted to run away. But his companions had threatened to shoot him if he didn't stay. When the firing began he had started to run but the dog had pulled him down.

"Ask him if he believes we've sickened the children with the evil eye as Kinebik says," suggested Garry.

The boy's black eyes glanced at his carefully bandaged arm, then lifted to the faces of the white men and his keen face lighted in a smile. "No," he said to Blaise, "this white man saved me from his dog and bound my arm. He would not sicken children."

"That's the lad, Joe Patamish!" applauded Finlay. "There are brains under that mop of hair. Tell him, Blaise, he's going with us but until we're sure he won't run away, we'll have to tie him up. This kid is going to be useful."

"He'll be very useful," he added. "Now let's get the canoe and the rest of our stuff across this carry."

But the boy had not finished his story. As he talked the furrows cut deep into Blaise's face.

He made a clicking sound with his tongue as he gravely shook his head. "What does he say?" demanded Garry.

"Dere was big fight at de islan'! Chef Wabistan kech Kinebik and Tete-Blanche wid whiskey for Montagnais. Michel Wabistan and two odders was shot. Der is moch trouble' for Chief Wabistan."

"Poor Michel!" said Finlay. "He was a good boy! Well, Mr. Isadore, you're rolling up the score against yourself!"

"Joe Patamish say, al-so," continued Blaise, "dat Kinebik make big medicine w'en de August moon is round."

"Red, we'll be there! Now, men, let's get going!"

Through the following night three silent men pushed the Peterboro up Waswanipi bound for their rendezvous with Chief Wabistan.

Malone, whose invincible optimism tolerated no thought of defeat, was deep in dreams of a red-gold head and a pair of laughing eyes back at Matagami.

But as their maple blades put mile after mile of the sleeping lake behind them, in the harassed brains of Finlay and Blaise there was small hope of winning out as only through some miracle of chance could they hope to checkmate the red hunters inflamed by Tete-Blanche's whiskey and Kinebik's magic.

Joe Patamish had told them that most of the young men had left the fishing camps and joined Kinebik's crusade to save the children. Only a handful of Wabistan's relatives and friends had rallied around the chief. And Finlay realized, bitterly, that if he should manage to hang on until the arrival of the police plane, he would be no nearer his goal. He had come to find the men responsible for the disappearance of Bob Finlay and the others. He had found them but he still had no legal proof of their guilt. And how, with the Montagnais out of control, could he hope to arrest and hold Isadore and Tete-Blanche even for breach of the Indian whiskey law? They'd laugh at him, wipe out his party and disappear, as McNab said, into the musk of the Bitter Water. In his message to headquarters he had asked for a police plane by September first to carry his prisoners south. That plane would then be beyond need of help. And Lise! What would happen to the girl he had promised to see safe at Matagami—who had stormed into his heart that day on the beach? He shook back a groan as he thought of the love that had come so strangely into his life. What would become of Lise?

They slept all day hidden in the timber of the point where Wabistan was to meet them. That night a canoe slid into the beach. Finlay took the old man's bony hand.

"You have lost your son. I am sad," Garry said.

"My son and my people have left me! The heart of Wabistan is sick. Now his knife is sharp like an eagle's beak. His gun is loaded."

"You must eat first," said Finlay, "then let us talk over our pipes beside the fire which is hidden from the lake."

As they ate Moise Wabistan and his father gave to Blaise in their native tongue the story of their finding Tete-Blanche and Kinebik at a Montagnais camp and of the fight that followed.

"Dey say," interpreted Blaise, "de Montagnais was drunk and would not listen w'en dey tell dem Kinebik was a false shaman and work for Isadore. De ole chief start for Kinebik wid his knife! Tete-Blanche shoot Michel and dere was ver' bad time. Dere was too many man for Wabistan and his fre' to fight and dey leave."

SIN AND ITS CONSEQUENCES

LESSON TEXT—Galatians 6: 7, 8; 1 John 1: 5-7.
GOLDEN TEXT—If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.—1 John 1: 9.

Sin is an appalling reality, hideous and horrible in itself, and bearing with it the gravest consequences both in this life and in the life to come. Man does not find it pleasant to face that fact, and so he makes light of sin and even may go so far as to deny its existence. Obviously such an expedient does nothing to solve the difficulty or to meet the gnawing distress of a heart facing and fearing the judgment of God.

Far better to meet the reality of it, admit its awfulness, and seek God's way of full deliverance. Sin, which came into the world when man listened to Satan and disobeyed God in the Garden of Eden, has gone on to mar and to mark all mankind. We note that

I. Sin Brings Corruption (Gal. 6: 7, 8).
Seedtime is followed by harvest. This is the law of nature, the law of God. The farmer who sowed wheat in the spring looked for wheat when the harvest time came. The same principle holds in the spiritual realm. Just as the one who sows to the Spirit reaps eternal life, the one who sows to the flesh reaps corruption, and death.

A life of self-indulgence (which is sowing to the flesh) brings moral decay. The weakened will yields to desire, and it "bringeth forth sin, and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death" (James 1: 14, 15). This death is spiritual, bringing separation from God, a loss of fellowship and communion with Him. Spiritual death as well as physical death came upon mankind through Adam's sin.

II. Sin Loves Darkness (1 John 1: 5-7).
There is not a bit of darkness in God. He is light. When Jesus came into the world, He came as the Light of the World. But "men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil. For every one that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved" (John 3: 17-21).

The corollary of that truth is that a man who says he has fellowship with God, but continues to walk in darkness, brands himself a liar (v. 6). Compare Revelation 21: 27-28 for what God thinks of liars.

The light still shines, and the one who is walking in darkness has only to step over into the light (v. 7) where he will find fellowship with all God's people and know the cleansing of the blood of the Son of God.

III. Sin is an Undeniable Fact (1 John 1: 8-10).
It seems impossible that a man who knows himself and knows the life he lives would ever deny sin, for it is one of the most evident of all facts. Yet men have denied it, or sought to explain it away, calling it error, or a "fall upward," or a step in man's development, or the evidence of man's self-consciousness and desire to learn.

There is no hope for a man as long as he assumes such an attitude, for he not only lies himself, but he makes God a liar. He denies the truth of God's Word about sin, makes meaningless or wicked God's dealings with sin, and reveals that God's Word is not in him. Those who make such statements declare that they do not belong to God and do not accept His Word. It is evident that they ought never to be permitted to teach such things in the church, or in the name of Christianity.

IV. Sin Calls for a Saviour (1 John 2: 1-6).
Christ the propitiation, the mercy-seat covering for our sins, is the only Saviour. He paid the price, and made it possible for God to be just and at the same time a justifier of the ungodly. The sinner needs such a Saviour.

Sin in the life of the believer also calls for a Saviour, one who will cleanse us (1: 9) and who will in His own blessed name plead our cause ("If we sin." He is our Advocate (2: 1) pleading His righteousness in our behalf when we do fall.

This does not mean that we may then become indifferent or careless about sin. If we say we know Him and do not keep His commandments, we lie about our professed relationship to Him. The mark of a true child is a spirit of obedience.

God's children prove their love to Him by keeping His commandments. Talking about our devotion to Him, giving our service for Him, or sacrificing for His cause mean nothing if we do not obey Him. We only pile evidence upon evidence of our untruthfulness by making claims and doing things which are negated by our disobedience.

Hugo Had No Doubt

One evening a number of Victor Hugo devotees, dining at the poet's home, were trying to outdo each other in praising their host's genius. One of them thought the street in which Hugo lived should be named after him. Other streets were being suggested as more appropriate when an enthusiastic fellow declared that no one street was worthy of such distinction. The whole city should be named after the poet! Hugo merely nodded approval and said: "That will come, my friend, that will come!"

THIS IS NO JOKE

Nothing hits the hard-pressed college boy more than shaking out the envelope from home and finding nothing in it but news and love.

A MODERN FAMILY'S LOT

Aesop tells of a youth convicted of crime. On the way to the place of execution, his mother followed with the crowd, wailing and wringing her hands. The youth asked the officer to permit him to speak a confidential word to his mother. She put her face close to his to hear what he had to say. He seized her ear and bit it off, saying, "If you had given me the right sort of teaching and set me a good example, I would not be here."

If every mother who has failed to give the right sort of teaching and set the right example for her children had an ear bitten off, we would have a whole "cavayard" of "gotch-eared" women in Texas.

Of course, this Aesop story is fictitious. But if you will come to me I will give you case after case in actual Texas history and under my own observation where this principal is literally illustrated.

Here is one. A certain man by hard work, good business sense and a few lucky investments became what his neighbors called a rich man. Soon his wife became dissatisfied with the small home town. She began to call it a "hick town," and persistently besieged her husband to move to a city where, as she said, "the children would have the advantage of better society." At last he yielded, and to the city they went. Once in the big city they all quit going to church. The Sunday school was a back number, Sabbath observance a thing of the past. The library which seemed so important in the old home town was no longer needed. They found salacious magazines on every corner newsstand and had lost taste for the more substantial literature of former days.

All this was superseded by dancing card playing, cocktail parties, road house festivities and other debaucheries of which the denizens of the little "hick town" never dreamed. In 10 years his wife had danced herself into her grave, his children had gone to the bad and he became a financial bankrupt, took to drink and died, hopelessly insane.

Good women who are being tolled away from the old paths of the simple, God-fearing life into the faddy ways of high-rolling worldliness had better stop, look and listen. These good women, before it is too late, had better take the very concise but very sane warning of Jesus in Luke 17:32—"Remember Lot's wife." Lot with his wife and daughters grew tired of the simple life of the plains and in order to get into society "pitched their tents toward Sodom." And with what results? The girls were brought to everlasting disgrace, the mother turned to a pillar of salt, and the father in a drunken debauch cohabiting with his own daughters!

That story was not put into the Bible by accident. It was put in there under divine inspiration to warn women of every generation—including women of Texas who read my stories, against the folly and the sin of yielding to this silly superficial desire to "get into society." My dear sister, take an old man's advice and major on the business of bringing your children up in the "nurture and admonition of the Lord," seeking to make them honest, dependable, loyal citizens of our beloved land and faithful, earnest followers of our beloved Lord. When you have done that you have done a lot better than if you qualified them to shine in the superficial circles of a sodomized society.—Jeff D. Ray in Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

As Tommy was putting on a coat which had been cut down from his father's overcoat, he began to grumble. "What's the matter?" asked his father. "Why," said Tommy, "this pocket's got no bottom to it." "That's not a pocket," said his father, "that's a buttonhole."

A stranded actor went into a sordid hush house in New York to get a cheap meal. In the waiter, he was horrified to recognize a colleague who had once played the "big time" with him. "Great Scott!" he gasped. "You a waiter in this place?" "Yes, but I don't eat here," replied the other with some dignity.

Twenty-one carriers, drivers and firms, the second week in October, paid fines totaling $11,650 following convictions in various Texas Federal courts for violations of the Interstate Commerce Commission's regulations and the United States Motor Carriers Act.

WHAT'S THAT, JUDGE?

"You admit then," said the magistrate, "that you stole the pig?" "Yes, your honor," replied the defendant.

"Well, there's been a lot of pig-stealing lately, and I am going to make an example of you, or none of us will be safe."
