Supporters Of Sterling Issue Call

Howard County Campaign To Be Launched Here Monday

Monday evening at 8 o'clock supporters of Governor Ross Sterling's candidacy for reelection will hold a rally to inaugurate a campaign in his behalf in Howard county.

The Herald Friday was presented for publication the following call signed by the voters whose names are listed:

"We, the undersigned citizens of Howard county hereby call a Sterling rally to meet at 8 p. m. Monday on the Court House lawn to discuss and further the candidacy of Ross S. Sterling for governor for reelection on August 27:

G. A. Woodward, Fox Stripling, Wilfred Pittman, A. G. Hall, W. D. Cornelison, John T. Dillard, S. H. Morrison, Thomas J. Coffee, Mrs. T. G. Graham, H. D. Cowden, S. H. Kelsey, J. E. Kuykendall, R. C. Coffee, E. O. Ellington, J. L. Wood, C. W. Cunningham, Shine Phillips, G. B. Cunningham, M. C. Stripling, Wm. B. Currie, F. W. Bettie, R. L. Stripling, G. S. Truss, J. W. Cook, Mrs. Fox Stripling, H. F. Stripling, E. Notestine, W. B. Younger.

George O. Wallace of Dallas, county chairman for Tom F. Hunter in his unsuccessful campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor in announcing his support of Governor Sterling in the run-off campaign made a sound statement when he said: "I would not vote for the best woman in Texas for governor if I knew her husband would be governor in fact."

Forget what Jim Ferguson is. Forget whether you believe he is "framed" into impeachment, or whether you believe he should have been impeached; forget whether you believe he did or did not take money for the breweries; forget whether you believe or disbelieve that he connived with a highway commission under his wife's administration that allowed fraud to be practiced in connection with highway contracts; forget whether you believe or disbelieve that he obtained money or other emolument in return for obtaining pardons of criminals during his wife's term in office.

Grant that Jim Ferguson's record in politics, that if he were governor himself the state would be no prosperous all the people could not find ways to spend their income; that if he were governor cotton would bring 20 cents, oil $1.50.

Grant all that for Jim Ferguson or any other man you wish, and you will do not have sufficient reason to select his wife for governor of Texas.

No one denies, whether he favors election of Mrs. Ferguson or Sterling, that Mr. Ferguson in fact would conduct the business of the governor's office either directly or through his wife, if she were elected.

Therefore, it is unwise, opposed to the basic principle of Democratic government to select any woman governor when another person which in this case would be her husband, would, as a practicing attorney, really carry on the state's business.

There are too many men in Texas who would make good governors and who would be, if elected, directly responsible to the people, to vote for a woman who had her name on the ballot for one season only.

In the case of Mrs. Ferguson that one reason is that her husband does not have the right to hold a state office in his own name, so that he could be held directly responsible for all his acts. That is not a very good recommendation, no matter why and how he lost that right through impeachment as governor of the largest state of the union.

There are many more reasons why it would be best not only for Texas but for Howard county directly and materially to name Mr. Sterling over Mrs. Ferguson. You need not attack Jim Ferguson's character to find plenty of reasons why his wife should not be selected.

The fact that Mrs. Ferguson would in fact not conduct the duties of the office in person, is good and sufficient reason.

Some of Mrs. Ferguson's "right or wrong" from hell to breakfast" supporters in Big Spring and vicinity may have been too "hard" to hunt in speaking our mind about Jim Ferguson.

Capt. Jim Cook, Who Saw Thousands Of Buffalo At Big Spring, Visits At Howard County Old-Settlers Picnic

CAPT. JIM COOK

Was Captured By Comanches; Married Daughter Of Chief

Captain Jim Cook, who roamed this country for two years while captive of Comanche Indians, in Big Spring for a few days' stay. The former Indian scout, Texas Ranger, and veteran frontiersman stopped here Thursday to attend the annual Old Settlers rally.

Mr. Cook remembers how he looked out from the rim of scenic mountain and saw nothing but Buffalo in every direction—more than ten thousand, he estimated—coming to the spring to drink. Antelope were so thick no one paid attention to them, he recalled.

During his life Mr. Cook has been rancher, Indian scout, in the United States Army, Texas Ranger, peace officer, on trail with the first Texas herd to Kansas, and foreman of the famous XIT ranch.

Events leading to his capture by Comanche were recalled by Mr. Cook. At the time, he was twelve years old, but running a ranch at the mouth of the Llano river left by his father.

Captured One morning his horses turned up missing. Cook trailed them to a big sink where Indians had left them while going after other herds. Being thirsty, he dismounted and quaffed from the clear waters of the sink running into the sink.

Suddenly his horse jumped, Cook sprang to his feet, jerked his cap and ball revolver, and whirled to see what had scared his horse. But two braves were already on him. While one held him, the other sliced all his lower garments from him signifying that the paleface was now a member of the Indian tribe.

"They didn't kill me because I was just the right age," he said. "At the time I was twelve, just old enough that I could live on their diet, and yet not so old but what I could absorb Indian ways."

However, all that saved his life, he recounted, was some old Indian bread an Indian squaw had picked up possibly years before. Dirt and grease were scraped off the slice of crust, and Cook ate them until his constitution became adjusted to the Indian all-meat diet.

On a feast He cooked and prepared his own menu. He baked his meat, then sliced it, hanging it on a raw hide line to dry. He then ate it at his leisure.

While foster son of the tribe he was forced to scalp a dead white man. Vividly he recalls how he cut around the back of the scalp, and then peeled and cut much as one skinning a beef. Once the scalp was removed, he cut a hole in the top, inserted a piece of rawhide, and strung it on his belt.

"The one that had the most scalps was the bravest," he declared. Sevelo, for that was Cook's Indian name gained by his aptitude at roping and sticking buffalo, was privileged to watch an encounter between his tribe and cowboys and rangers near Signal mountain.

"After a little sharp fighting, the Indians got the best of them, killing two and forcing the rest to retreat, he remembered.

So well did the Comanche chief like Cook that he gave his fifteen-year-old daughter to him in the most colorful wedding Sevelo ever saw. Then, further showing his love for his pale face son, the chief took Cook with him to Wisconsin to parley with the Sioux and to see Sitting Bull. And Cook remembers Sitting Bull, probably the most famous of Indian chiefs.

After two years, the life of an Indian became unbearable to Cook. So he told his bride of his ranch on the Llano.

She wanted to go away with him. So together they slipped away one evening about dusk and headed for white man's country. All night they rode and at noon the next day he and his wife pulled up to let their horses rest. It was near a little lake north of where Midland now stands.

Off in the distance they saw what had feared—Four Comanches searching for them. Cook knew it would be folly to mount and flee. Neither he nor his wife would stand a dog's chance that way.

Cook crawled out to the horses and unnailed them, dragging the saddles back into a gulley where his wife waited.

The Indians spied the bareback horses and naturally came to investigate. As they neared, Cook told his wife to single out two braves on the right, and he took the two on the left. The two outer braves were toppled from their horses before they knew what hit them. The other two were shot as they whirled to run.

This menace erased, Cook and his bride, White Swan took the Indians' horses and hit for Fort Chadbourne. Here the two joined rangers and went to his home on the Llano.

For four years the two lived happily on their ranch, but then his Indian wife was destined to go. She was bitten by a rattlesnake and died shortly after. This ended Cook's first romance.

It was later that he married again, but he does not discuss that wedding. He does, however, have

Buying Hikes Stock Issues Millions In Value Added During Impressive Demonstration

NEW YORK (UP)—Many millions of dollars in value were added to stocks Thursday in one of the most impressive buying demonstrations of the year.

With activity swelled close to the peak of the buying stream of water, the market marched into the highest ground it has attained in nearly three months. Gains were general throughout the list, ranging from one to five points among the active stocks.

The advance was carried along by the rising tide of public interest in the market rather than by any important outside news development. Markets observers believed the public at last had been coaxed into the proceedings with widely advertised stock "bargains."

Among the better gains at the American Telephone, 8 up 2 1/2; Union Pacific, 46 5/8 up 4 7/8; Allied Chemical, 56 5/8 up 4 1/8; Atchafalpa 3 3/8 up 1/8; American Can 29 7/8 up 2 5/8; Dupont 29 3/4 up 1 1/2; and United States Steel, 23 1/2 up 1 1/8. These levels were shaded somewhat near the close.

Other markets moved upward with stocks, bonds, especially the United States government issues, reaching new highs for the year. While cotton moved ahead moderately.

Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln Would Meet Defeat This Year In Texas, Voter Tells Gov. Sterling

SAN BENITO (UP)—Gov. Ross Sterling today was asked to withdraw from the governor's race in favor of Tom Hunter of Wichita Falls, third in the voting Saturday. In a telegram addressed to him by Col. Sam Robertson, pioneer settler and capitalist of this district.

"It is respectfully suggested by a very humble citizen who controls only one vote and cast that for you that you withdraw in favor of Hunter and throw your support to him thereby saving Texas from the horde... that will be swept into power with Ferguson," the wire read.

"If you do so you will give Texas as great a service as Sam Houston."

"You are an 'in.' You cannot win in such a time as this. "Thomas Jefferson, George Washington or Abe Lincoln if in office today would not be re-elected. The voters of 1932 are as rational as the mob who crucified Christ."

Robertson, a founder of this city, was one of the chief builders of the St. Louis, Brownsville, and Mexico railroad. He distinguished himself during a bandit outbreak here in 1918.

Hunter Chief Is 'Neutral' In Run-Off Race

One Other Leader In Tom's Campaign Neutral; Many For Sterling

B. F. Robbins, chairman of the Howard County Hunter-For-Governor club, which was responsible for the plurality polled by that candidate in Howard county over Mr. Sterling and Mrs. Ferguson as well as the heavy vote he received in adjoining counties, as well as in a number of more distant localities, Friday issued a statement in which he said that "I shall remain neutral" toward the run-off campaign of Governor Sterling and Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson.

Mr. Robbins and his co-workers had a major share in obtaining for Mr. Hunter a total of 25,374 votes in 41 West Texas counties, as compared with 25,671 for Mrs. Ferguson and 22,065 for Mr. Sterling.

Hunter leaders in all parts of the state are being besieged with appeals from supporters of both surviving candidates.

John C. Kay, spokesman for Hunter in a wide section of the state, will introduce Governor Sterling at a rally in Wichita Falls, Hunter's home town, Friday night.

Charles I. Francis, attorney, will preside at the Sterling rally. He supported Hunter in the first primary.

W. L. Scott, former law partner of Hunter and active in his campaign for the nomination, has announced he would switch his support to Mr. Sterling in the run-off.

Jerome C. Martin, Tarrant county campaign manager for Hunter, said he would be "strictly neutral."

George O. Wallace, Dallas county chairman for Hunter, announced his support of Mr. Sterling.

A. J. Schuhler, South Texas manager for Hunter, issued a statement announcing his support of the governor against Mr. Ferguson.

Mr. Robbins' statement follows: "As chairman of the Hunter-For-Governor club of Howard county I wish to express on behalf of the club its sincere appreciation for the wonderful support given Mr. Hunter in his race for governor of Texas."

"The club fought a hard battle, against numerous odds, and emerged victorious during the past two years in Howard county by a clear plurality over the two leading candidates, Sterling and Ferguson. Only natural it is that the club should feel the sting of defeat in not getting its man into the run-off, but it cherishes the fact that he polled the biggest vote ever given a candidate whose acquaintance at the beginning of the campaign was so meager over Texas. The principles for what he stood shall linger in the minds of the people of this state and will bear fruit in the future."

"Scores of Hunter supporters in this section of the state have sought to determine the attitude I will take in reference to the run-off between Mrs. Ferguson and Mr. Sterling and for their benefit I will state that I shall remain neutral in the matter, feeling that they should weigh well the issues in the coming campaign and vote the preference without malice but for the best interests of Texas as a whole."

The Schuhler statement said in part: "After careful consideration of what is offered the people by Mrs. Ferguson and Mr. Sterling, I have decided to give my support to our present governor, Ross S. Sterling."

"The Sterling vote was accused of many things during the campaign, just ended but no one has been able to assert any dishonesty in state affairs. His opponents have consistently pointed to his inability to successfully manage his personal affairs."

"Suppose Mr. Sterling did suffer financial losses during the past two years, would this prove him incompetent in view of the fact that he continued to give state affairs the time and effort which he promised when elected?"

"I have come to the conclusion that the people of Texas are deeply obligated to Mr. Sterling for the reason that he could probably have saved his personal fortune by neglecting the duties of the office to which the voters of Texas elected him. But this he did not do."

DALLAS—George O. Wallace, Dallas county chairman of the Hunter for governor campaign, announced that he would support Governor Sterling in the second primary. In a statement Wallace said:

"Believing that Tom Hunter would make Texas one of the best governed it ever had, I gave to him my full support. In doing so I think that I fully discharged my duty as a good citizen of my state."

Mr. Hunter having been eliminated, it now becomes my duty to make a choice between Governor Sterling and Mrs. Ferguson.

"I would not vote for the best woman in Texas for this high office if I thought her husband would be the governor in fact. I will not support a candidate who will be

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Hoover in a letter to the District of Columbia commissioners Friday charged them to "at once find the instigators of this attack upon the police and bring them to justice."

While band after band of harassed bonus-seeking veterans headed away from the capital, army officials decided to make a final sweeping movement against the demonstrators here Friday to get every straggler off government property.

No disorder was expected. The veterans almost unanimously said they were through with resistance. Comparatively few had returned to their shacks near the capitol. President Hoover directed that a federal grand jury investigate the disorders with the view of prosecution if it is warranted.

Mayor Eddie McCloskey of Johnston, Pennsylvania, invited leaders of the bonus army to set up headquarters there.

A group of 100 Texas and Tennessee veterans shouldered packs and headed for Johnston. Their shanties here somehow escaped destruction Friday and they were given until today to vacate.

Many veterans wore brasses and black eyes. Officials expressed confidence there would be no repetition of yesterday's happenings, regardless of rumors of further attempts to picket the White House.

Hearing On Interference Of Government In Business Moves St. Louis; Many To Testify

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP)—Congressman Joseph B. Shannon brought his congressional committee here today to investigate government competition or interference with private business.

Representatives of more than fifty St. Louis firms were scheduled to appear with complaints. The sessions will continue through tomorrow and then will revert to Kansas City.

At the outset of today's session four written statements prepared by St. Louis concerns were presented to the committee. Norwine Coffee Company protested against activities of the Federal Farm Board in disposing of coffee in competition with private interests.

F. E. Norwine, president of the company, characterized the trade of American farm board wheat to Brazil for coffee as "notorious." But, he said, the worst is yet to come.

A defense of co-operative marketing of farm products, which has been assailed in the hearings, was issued in a statement over the signature of J. R. Fulkerson, president of the Producers Live Stock Association.

"Agriculture differs from other industries in that the sales department, for years, has been handled by self-appointed agents entirely outside the industry," Fulkerson said.

"The handling charge has been so high," he said, "and the work so remunerative that this business has grown until the salesmen now far outnumber the actual buyers. In recent years the charge for a few minutes service in selling a consignment of live stock or grain has been more than the profit for many months labor of the feeder or grower to say nothing of his investment."

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MONA MORAN who supports mother, invalid father, little sister, and never-do-well brother, BUD, is determined to marry for wealth and position. She is a receptionist for a Wall Street law firm and in the office sees men of the world to which she aspires.

Mona's brother announces that her childhood sweetheart, STEVE SACABELLA, grandson of the ice and coal dealer, has returned home. Steve disappeared three years earlier and it was rumored he was in prison though Mona never believed this.

She meets him on her way to work one morning. Steve is handsome, well dressed and well mannered. Mona reluctantly agrees to dine with him that evening.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER III

Mona's day in Garretson, Lawton & Amesbury's exclusive office was filled with a sense of important deeds accomplished. It was a world in which success, like correct manners, was taken for granted; where men were warlords with brisk, confident, conquering steps.

Mona met few struggles inflamed by a glorious ambition that drove them toward ultimate success. These men had achieved where she still achieved. Failure was a word as little to be associated with them as the word poverty.

They came from that world to which Mona aspired—that cool, confident world from which fragrant, attractive women wearing costly furs now and then appeared to wrest their lords from the exacting affairs to attend tea, a polo game, or shopping tour.

Mona knew that nature had endowed her with as much real beauty as any of these women possessed. Often enough had she seen the eyelash flicker at her own loveliness, enhanced rather than subdued by her quiet gown. Frequently as she bent her head to announce Mrs. Thus-and-So's arrival she could sense the sharp intake of breath as the import of her own beauty struck home.

With callers, both men and women, Mona was aloof, businesslike, and soft-voiced. She was a part of the excellent Garretson, Lawton & Amesbury machinery, ever conscious of her effect as a human being.

These people, obviously possessing breeding, naturally were moved by Mona's attractiveness.

She had heard murmured references to Botticelli, Burne-Jones, and sea green velvet. Other offerings at her throne occasionally were less subtle. "Where did the old man find that beauty, anyway?"

The old man was Mr. Garretson. Though she sat at the reception desk some distance from his sanctum-sanctorum, Mona felt that she served him alone. Mr. Garretson had hired her. Mr. Garretson had recommended the raises in salary which had followed at regular intervals.

She sat in the softly lighted, thickly carpeted reception hall, her molten copper hair gleaming softly against paneled walls, her frills at wrist and throat pure and startling against the somber richness of the flat mahogany desk on which her tiny pad, blotter, and pencils, finely sharpened, rested beside a shining French telephone.

It was Mona's duty to interrogate visitors, separate the wheat from the chaff, send some away without offense, delay others, convey this and that message to this and that person with just the correct touch.

There was a switchboard operator within, safe in a frosted glass cage, but she transferred the most difficult of her applicants to Mona. Mona invariably answered all calls for Mr. Garretson and Mr. Amesbury. Mr. Lawton had unusual independence and frequently he answered his own.

"I am sorry, Mr. Amesbury sees no one without an appointment. I'll see if I can find Mr. Lawton for you. . . . Who is calling, please? . . . Mr. Garretson is in conference and cannot be disturbed. I'll see that he receives the message. . . . Yes, Mrs. Thayer, Mr. Lawton has a closing at 11. I can get you 15 minutes at 11:30."

That 15 minutes would begin at 12:15, with luck, and last an hour, topped by luncheon at the Savarin.

Mrs. Thayer was a charming widow.

"I'll let you know the moment he arrives, Mr. Garretson. . . . No, Mr. Lawton, the Bankers' Club luncheon is Wednesday. . . . Yes, Mr. Amesbury, I'll see that you do not miss your train. . . ."

The elevator clicked and the door swung open. The light faded as the door closed again behind it, outgoing passenger, and the caridron on its way.

Setting the telephone back in its place, Mona smiled mechanically at the newcomer. Her heart was in a tumult which he could have been pardoned for not sending, so controlled was her face.

It was Barry Townsend, the wild young man of the firm, nephew of one of their most lucrative clients, Tall, well set up, Coffee brown, Yale football team, 1927. Handsome, humorous.

Further than that Mona did not go in her thoughts. It was true, however, that Townsend was charming, wealthy, eligible, attractive—and attracted!

Mona's method in such instances was to reconnoiter, consider and capitulate later—if at all. And then it would be merely to the extent of a fimsy most conservative of invitations.

Though Mona had been with the firm for two years she had not laid eyes on Barry until a month ago. It was rumored that he had displeased his uncle who held the family purse strings until Barry became 30. He had dashed away to Mexico—or was it China?—soon after finishing college.

Here he was back again, confident, gay and the despair of that portion of the debutante list favoring older men. Twenty-eight seemed to many of them the beginning of the senile stage in manhood.

"As I live!" Barry Townsend announced in well simulated surprise. "Portrait of a Red-Headed Lady. Mona. . . . It is a portrait. . . . No, she starts, she moves. . . ."

Mona said dryly, "Burne-Jones. Botticelli, I've heard all that."

The young man dropped his bantering. "Miss Moran, I braved the elements and the hour ostensibly to ask old Stroud for an advance. Actually it was to ask you to dine with me. Any evening, any hour, any time. Only the sooner, why the quicker."

His eyes followed the movements of her hands about her desk straightening a few papers.

"I've been for heaven knows how long where there wasn't a soul to talk to except my partner. Of course there were a few other white men but they worked for me. When they weren't cheating me—or trying to—they yeased me. No white women at all."

"Think of it! Never sitting at a table with a woman. Never talking to one or dancing with one." His smile grew boyish. "Have pity on me! Dine with me somewhere and let's go places and do things!"

The sincerity in his voice touched Mona but she met it flippantly. "My mother told me never to trust men who asked me out to dine."

"Does that mean I am never to see you?"

Kitchen Hints

DOUBLE-DUTY KITCHEN TOOLS HALVE YOUR WORK

Your kitchen tools and utensils can do double-duty and save your time if you use your brain! Stop and consider them—in what other way will they be handy besides in their original capacity? For instance: your pastry bag can be used to squeeze out mashed potatoes for decoration, or to cover the top of a casserole dish; your flour sifter can be used to "dust" the sugar; doughnut- and cookie cutters fashion attractive canapes! Wet scissors are just the thing to slit those pasteurized dates. Turn inventor and find out new ways to use these kitchen friends for yourself.

CHERRIES ARE RIFE!

The fancy dark red cherries from the Pacific coast are in the market again. Clever cooks are taking a tip from the smart restaurants and serving them "au naturel" which merely means "as is." Wash without removing stems; drain on a towel and heap on a plate with glossy green leaves. For fruit cups, salads, and pies pit the cherries first—and if you haven't a pitter use a clean wire hairpin. Halved pitted cherries combine with canned grapefruit to make a particularly good fruit cup, and pitted cherries stuffed with slices of toasted almond make an effective garnish for grapefruit salad.

ALL GOOD COOKS SHOULD MIND THEIR P'S

Of all people, the cook should certainly pronounce culinary terms correctly. Marjorie M. Heeltine, well-known home economist, says that if they "mind their p's," the cook will take care of themselves, and suggests that if you learn to pronounce these five words with nonchalance, you can pass as a food expert even if you boil tea.

Peck-o: Peck-o: praline—praw-leeen; pocan—pee-cahn'; paprika—pap'-ri-ka; pimentosa—pim-ee-en'-toz.

WANT TO JOIN "CEREAL OF THE WEEK" CLUB?

People who eat hot cereal for breakfast are always sighing for new kinds to sample so that the familiar varieties won't appear too often. There are even weeks when no new brand appears on the market, but it is always possible to revive a favorite that is such an old-timer it seems brand new! As the "cereal of the week" nomination of old-fashioned Hominy Grits has been made. They are being hailed with glee by the breakfasters who serve them with sliced pasteurized dates, stirred in just before removing from the stove. The brown and white color scheme helps improve early-morning grouches, too!

DATE STRIPS

1 pkg (2 cups) pasteurized dates, 1-2 cup shortening, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 cup water, 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg, 1-4 tsp. allspice, 1-4 tsp. cloves, 1 cup nut meats, chopped, 1 teaspoon vanilla, and 1-2 teaspoon lemon extract.

Place dates, shortening, sugar and water in a large saucepan; bring slowly to boiling point; cook until thick or about five minutes. Cool. Sift flour, salt, baking powder and spices. Stir the sifted dry ingredients, nut meats and flavoring extracts into date mixture. Spread mixture in a layer at least two inches deep in a pan which has been greased and lined with heavy waxed paper. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 45 to 60 minutes. When cooled cut into bars and store in a tightly covered box. Frost, if desired, when ready to serve. 24 bars.

IS YOUR HUSBAND AS HELPFUL AS THE NEW YORK MATRONS?

Husbands still wipe the dishes! At least a survey recently completed in New York showed that 29 per cent of them wash or dry the dinner dishes for their wives. If that is the situation in Manhattan, surely local husbands will not be found wanting in this praiseworthy task.

Acc High Club Meets With Mrs. Al Collins

Mrs. Alfred Collins was hostess to the members of the Acc High Bridge Club Thursday afternoon for a very delightful party.

Mrs. Ed Pritchard, of Fort Worth, a former member, was the only guest of the club. She was presented with a bottle of perfume.

Miss Eddy made high score and was favored also with perfume.

An ice course was served to Mrs. Pritchard and the following members: Mmes. Glen D. Guilkey, Clarence Wear, Warner Neece, D. M. McKinney, Lindsey Marchbanks; Misses Mabel Eddy and Mayme Hair.

Mrs. Guilkey will be the next hostess.

J. & W. Fisher's Force Enjoy Picnic-Barbecue

Bernard and Joe Fisher were hosts to the entire force of J. and W. Fisher's for a chicken barbecue Thursday evening at the City Park.

In addition to Mrs. Bernard and Mrs. Joe Fisher, Julian and Betty Jean, the following were present: Messrs. and Mmes. W. A. Robertson and Martha Louise; C. D. Miller, Geo. Oldham and Geo. Jr., and Mr. Oldham, Sr., of Gorman, Dewey Phelan; Misses Gertrude McIntyre, Carrie Scholtz, Emily Bradley, Marie Schlesinger; Messrs. Wm. Fisher and T. J. Wheeler.

Fats-Leans Ready To Play

Sunday Contest Proceeds Go To Boy Scout Troop

All was quiet along the western battlefield Friday—but it was the lull before the storm as the Fats and Leans made ready to do battle Sunday afternoon. Proceeds of the game as well as the receipts from the sale of cold drinks and etc. on the grounds will go to the benefit of Troop 1 of the Boy Scouts, who have sponsored the seven inning contest.

Immediately after the hilarious duel Forsan will meet Big Spring in a nine inning clash. Lefty Potter has been named to do the hurrying for the locals.

Weight favored the Fats by a decisive margin as the two rosters were practically completed today, but youth stood heavily on the side of the Leans. The smallest player on the Heavyweights is Loy Acuff with a reported weight of 183 lbs., while the heaviest is Ben Allen Sr., who confesses that he tips the scales at 242. Buck Hall of the Leans carries off the prize for the smallest player with five feet five inches height and a weight of 125 pounds.

The average difference between players of the two teams is fifty one pounds.

The game will start at 2:30 o'clock in order that Forsan and Big Spring might take the field at 4:30. All spectators will be asked to drop coins in the hat to be passed around by members of the Boy Scouts.

Immorality Called Cause Of Trouble

Preacher Says Nations Not Judged By Civilizations

Cause of present world conditions is immoral living conditions, declared H. C. Goodman, pastor of the Missionary Baptist church, meeting at 205 Goidad street, in a sermon at the meeting being held at Third and Austin streets. He urged stricter divorce laws to remedy conditions in American homes.

His topic, he declared, was "Adultery in Big Spring." He said in part: "God never has judged a people upon their civilization, but upon their morality or immorality. The judgments of the flood, of Sodom and Gomorrah, of the Jew, the fall of the Gentile nations of the past history testify to the terrible penalty of adultery. America is nearing the breakers today because of the immorality. No nation can rise higher than its homes and the homes of America are being torn down by the sin of adultery. The divorce courts are largely to blame for this loose condition. We need stricter divorce laws.

"But, the real remedy is the gospel of Christ. Christ died for sinners and his blood will cleanse the most wicked of us. It matters not if it be adultery or some other sin. Christ's blood was shed that men might be pardoned from these things. Men must believe in an individual savior to receive forgiveness for these sins.

"The woman caught in adultery was given as an example. The Jews hoping to trap Jesus, brought to him a woman caught in the act of adultery and according to the law she was to be stoned to death. The Lord was asked, what say you we shall do unto her? Stooping down, He wrote in the sand and looking up, said 'He that is without sin among you let him cast the first stone, and they all left' the eldest first, then seeing the woman standing, and 'go and sin no more'."

Services at Third and Austin streets will continue through this week. Tonight's subject will be "The Biggest Lie in Big Spring." Saturday night Mr. Goodman will preach on "The Church of Christ." Sunday morning the topic will be "The Fullness of Christ" and Sunday evening "The Signs of the Times."

SPORTS ON PARADE

By CURTIS BISHOP

Figures compiled by Mr. C. L. Jackson of Midland show that Sweetwater captured the first half of the Sand Belt Golf play with a total of 192 as compared with 189 for Colorado. Lamesa was third and the local golfers are reading in fourth place ahead of Midland. Snyder is sixth, Texon seventh, and Odessa eighth.

The compilings come as a slight surprise. Two weeks ago Colorado was resting in first place ahead of Lamesa while Big Spring was third, or else Mr. Bob Scott of Colorado was very mistaken. Then the Mitchell County team defeated Big Spring by a decisive margin. Sweetwater met Texon in a postponed contest and crept up into third place and then went to top of the standings Sunday before last.

We are very glad that the secretary of the Sand Belt Association has released the official figures, and we cannot understand why it is not done each week instead of twice during the season.

Today the Mexican Tigers meet the Big Spring All-Stars on the north side diamond. The two clubs met Sunday on East Third Street, and the 4 to 1 victory aroused much protest from Julian Vega, Juan Garcia and cohorts. Of course Payne was protesting from the start. The Tiger right-hander is expected to take the mound today, while Lois Madison will probably name Mahoney, the Coahoma slim boy.

Securing a pitcher for today has given Manager Madison considerable trouble. Bob Potter, who is rapidly rounding into old time form and judging from his last two starts is the most effective pitcher in the county, will hurl against Forsan Sunday and was dismissed as a possible starter. We offered our services to Mr. Madison and verified our claims by hitting a telephone pole twenty yards away three times in succession but to no avail.

Quite a few of our Coahoma friends will be on the local roster this afternoon, we are informed. It is nice to see two neighboring towns display such friendly spirit.

Deputy Sheriff Dad Coming Here From Los Angeles To Return His Daughter, Eloping With Young Heir

The airstream of Jack Stahl and Margaret Eckerson came tumbling down here Thursday night when Policemen L. A. Coffee and J. M. Choate took the two Los Angeles runaways from a bus.

Margaret, brown eyed and fifteen, had promised to become the wife of a blond-haired Jack, reputed heir to a small fortune. So the two decided to elope. California officers could pick up no trace of them. At El Paso it was learned that the pair had taken a Greyhound stage.

Friday morning Jack Stahl and Margaret Stahl were held in jail, dreams blasted and waiting for Margaret's father, a deputy sheriff of Los Angeles, who was on his way here to return them to California.

Lawn Tennis officials. Wilmer Allison replaces Frank Shields as Vines' playing mate in the singles, and faces Henri Cochet in the first match of the Davis Cup matches. In the other pairing Vines draws the veteran Donora.

Allison once defeated Cochet in straight sets and is playing the best tennis of his career this year while the French ace has not yet attained his greatest form.

Negro Who Broke Jail Twice Caught On Return To City

Officers believe in the "third time's charm" axiom enough that they boast that Elvin Ellis, negro, will not break jail again. Taken in 1929 in Glancecock on a car theft charge, Ellis broke jail and fled to the Concho river. Sheriff Vern Davis rushed up steam and waited in underbrush until the fugitive stumbled into recapture.

Soon afterwards Ellis made his second break. This time he went to California, got lonesome for Texas, and returned to Pecos, Thursday evening when he came back to Big Spring officers seized him.

Panthers Win Over Indians

Steers Take Final At Galveston; Longview Right

SAN ANTONIO—Dick Whitworth halted the San Antonio Indian rampage Thursday night when the Ft. Worth Panthers won the final game of the series, 4 to 1, the tribe escaping a shutout when Fitzgerald scored in the ninth inning after putting the ball over the short right field fence for two bases and coming home on Mealeys single to center.

Whitworth limited the Indians to six hits while the Cats got seven off Bob House, but House issued two costly walks to Loopp, who scored each time.

Loopp figured in an unusual role by getting two walks and making three sacrifice hits, so that he was not charged with an official time at bat, yet he scored two runs.

Ruth Leader In Yank Win

Babe Ruth Two Homers; Tigers Beat Macks; Browns Win

CLEVELAND—They called on Babe Ruth in a pinch Thursday and he answered by hitting his 27th and 28th home runs of the season, driving in seven tallies and personally conducting the New York Yankees to a 10 to 1 victory over the Indians.

The first Ruthian homer came in the sixth after Joe Sewell had singled. In the same inning, Earl Averill hit his 24th circuit blow for Cleveland and deprived Charley Ruffing of a shutout. Ruth came back in the next frame after a walk and a single off Sarge Connally had put Combs and Sewell on base and lifted his second homer of the game far over the right field screen to finish the Yankee scoring.

Ruffing pitched a good game to stop the Indians. He gave only six hits and fanned ten.

The trade-at-home movement, sponsored by Westbrook merchants has been a success from a business standpoint. The two Saturdays past, large crowds had been present and a good time had been enjoyed of the events provided for the amusement and prizes awarded for the competitors.

Next Saturday there will be plenty of amusement for everyone present and a good time in general for everyone. Plenty of contests so that each one can show his skill in the accomplishment best suited to his purpose. All the way from a battle royal for real small boys, farmer's race, woman's nail-driving or the couple present with the largest family.

Federation Commission Says Case Is Now Closed

LOS ANGELES—The international amateur athletic federation late Thursday voted to bar Paavo Nurmi of Finland from the Olympic games. The federation rejected his entry after a hearing.

The action was taken by the commission of the I. A. A. F., which possesses sole authority to accept or reject entries to the track and field events of the Olympics. It so happens the personnel of the commission is identical with the executive council of the organization which previously suspended Nurmi last April on charges of accepting money in excess of his expenses.

The decision was announced by J. S. Edstrom, chairman, as unanimous, indicating the United States representative, Avery Brundage, cast his vote in favor of the rejection of the entry. Edstrom said the case is now closed, and will not be presented before the meeting of the I. A. A. F. congress here Friday.

The question of declaring Nurmi a professional did not enter into the action. The commission merely rejected his entry on what it considered "good and sufficient" grounds and closed the case.

Representatives of the Finnish A. A. were heard in a review of the case before the action was taken.

TODAY and TOMORROW

Crisis and Renewal

In the past ten years there has appeared a large literature prophesying the end of our civilization. Sometimes there is an accent of hope in the promise of a wholly new and infinitely better order of human life and at other times there is a dull foreboding of decadence and deterioration. Thus there are those to whom Russia has become what America was in the Nineteenth Century; the land of the future where the ancient pains of the world are to be cured. And there are also those who have no hope and who take a kind of pleasure in the grim jest that the last depression of this magnitude is known as the Dark Ages and persisted for five hundred years.

They are agreed, however, on the thesis that the chief characteristic of our time is the breakdown of established things. An overwhelming array of facts can be adduced in support. The Great War ended in the collapse of the European empires and of those remnants of the feudal system which had survived the revolutions since 1789. Since the war there has been a breakdown of a very large part of the financial obligations and of the economic organizations to which men have been accustomed. There has been a vast disillusionment not only with the existing order but with its idealism over liberty, democracy, nationalism, and progress. One could go on endlessly for here is endless material, pointing out the variety and the extent to which there have broken down, or been overthrown, or rejected, the things which the pre-war generations held to be most precious or most certain.

Yet I suspect that when enough time has passed to bring this present into perspective, the historians will see a renewal of energy where we see a breakdown of achievements, and that they will see continuity where we see abrupt change.

For what is the chief human fact behind all this liquidation of old arrangements, of old prestige, of old reputations and of old interests? Is it not the clearing away of rigid accumulations and of the hardened consequences of misjudgments that would, if they endured, block and constrict the enterprise of the generation which is now on the threshold of life? This is a hard time for those who are irrevocably committed to these establishments. It is a cruel and bitter time for those who are the present victims of disorder. But for the young and for those who are free in spirit it is a time of liberation and of opportunity. For them there remains, come what may, their own energy, and the richness of the earth, the heritage of invention and skill and the corpus of human wisdom. They need no more. Their paths will be more open, and what in one light is a vast breakdown of hopes is in another light the clearing away of debts and rigidities and pre-emptions that would choke them on their way.

In this large sense depression and crisis are not the collapse of our system, but a furious purge. Conceivably a system can be devised which would be stable without accumulating an insupportable burden of vested interests. But until such a system comes into being there is in every society as we know it a fatal tendency to accumulate too many obligations, to let arrangements become rigid, to let those who have retired from active life acquire too large claims to let the grip of the place holders become too strong, to let seniority and privilege block the advance of youth and enterprise. So there must come inevitably a time of liquidation.

The changes which ensue bring new faces and new formulae and sometimes new symbols, and there is for a while a great liberation of energies. But the new men in their turn began to accumulate and to become set, and so the enduring changes are far smaller than the apparent ones. The new men are less free than they thought, and they must compromise their wishes with the inexorable necessities of man's existence on this planet and

WASHINGTON, (AP)—President Hoover "pocket vetoed" the annual bill designed to extend to live stock owners, dairy farmers, poultry producers and farmers raising crops not maturing until 1933 loan under the $100,000,000 given the department of agriculture by the Reconstruction Corporation.

A White House official explained President Hoover felt every thing the bill provided already had been made available under the Reconstruction Corporation act.

his ancient constitution. So the permanent forms of human life and of national existence change less than it would seem that the must change when everything seems to be moving; for nothing in the deeper patterns of human relations is easily altered.

Thus no one springs into being very long, and no winter; although nothing endures, the arises again to renew mortality.
