News Behind The News THE NATIONAL Whirligig

Senator Copeland (N. Y.) tossed his new food and drug bill into the hopper so early it drew the number '8.5' Those who oppose it say the New York doctor-legislator is determined to have his name attached to any pure food law that passes.

Manufacturers, etc., are shouting that Copeland's latest draft would make the secretary of agriculture a complete dictator over their business. They profess to see in its clauses the fine Italian hand of F. N. Schlink, former Food & Drug administration official, who now puts out "Consumers' Research Reports" which analyze standardly advertised products and others for the benefit of the consumer.

All concerned have demanded an early hearing. It is understood Chairman Edwin L. Davis, of the Federal Trade commission, has been prevailed upon to appear and demand that the advertising provisions be eliminated. Those who should know say Davis will contend that regulations of advertising is a function of the Trade commission and not the department of agriculture.

Copeland is in a much more strategic position this session to push his bill than he was in 1934. Last year Senator Hubert D. Stephens, was chairman of the Senate Commerce committee. Proponents of the food and drug bill suspected him of sitting on it and burying it in committee.

Stephens was beaten in last fall's elections. That made Copeland chairman of the committee. This year the M. D. senator will have his own way about piloting the bill.

Brother And Two Sisters Arrive Today

Aboard Liner Ile De France; Taken Immediately to Flemingington.

NEW YORK (AP)—Two sisters and a brother of Isador Fisch, from whom Bruno Richard Hauptmann claims to have received the Lindbergh ransom money found in his home, arrived Tuesday aboard the Ile De France to testify in Hauptmann's trial.

NEW YORK (AP)—Detective Arthur Johnson and three mystery witnesses in the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, landed in Brooklyn by a special cutter which met the liner Ile De France Tuesday, and were immediately speeded away in an automobile. Police said they were uninformed where the witnesses were being taken, but thought they would be taken directly to New Jersey.

Russell Washburn Laid To Rest Here

Funeral services for Russell Washburn, 25, killed in an automobile accident in the 1900 block on Scurry street early Monday morning when the car he was riding in with Monroe Ashley, overturned, will be held Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 from the Eberly Funeral Home chapel.

Rev. R. E. Day, pastor of the First Baptist church, will have charge of the services. Mrs. R. E. Stalcup will have charge of the music. Interment will be in New Mount Olive cemetery.

AUSTIN (AP)—James A. Allred, 36, attorney general of Texas for the past four years, Tuesday was inaugurated governor, succeeding Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson.

The sun, beclouded all morning, shined brightly two minutes before the governor was sworn.

AUSTIN (AP)—Governor James V. Allred in an inaugural address Tuesday pledged his administration to close cooperation with the national government in its recovery program and to rigid enforcement of state laws.

He asserted the proposed coordinated state relief program with that of the federal government by public works projects, old age pensions and soil erosion prevention, bespoke cooperation of the executive and legislature and all state departments to combat economic conditions.

He declared "gangsters, bandits, thugs and thieves" had no place "in the clean life and Texas needs," and would perform his duty under the constitution to cause laws to be faithfully executed.

B. C. Rix Is Laid To Rest

89-Year-Old Father Of Harvey L. Rix, Big Spring, Buried In Lubbock

LUBBOCK, (Special)—B. C. Rix, a pioneer born of pioneers, was buried here Tuesday afternoon beside the grave of his wife who died five years ago.

The 89 year old father of Mrs. Carl L. Svensen succumbed at the home of his daughter Monday morning after he had suffered a paralytic stroke while visiting his son, Harvey L. Rix in Big Spring.

Mr. Rix was the first of Jed A. Rix, assistant manager of West Texas Chamber of Commerce and W. W. Rix of Lubbock. Besides his children, he is survived by 7 grand children and 3 great-grand-children.

Reared amid hardships, made more acute by Indian raids, he was imbued with pioneer instinct. In 1876 he left with a brother for Texas. They traveled from Fort Worth, the railroad's end, to Fort Concho. He left his brother there and returned to Wisconsin, driving cattle to Dodge City, Kansas. In Wisconsin he married and four children were born to the union.

Eleven years after his first venture into Texas, he brought his family to Colorado where they engaged in sheep raising. Three years later the family moved to Big Spring where he set up a hardware business. He moved to Lubbock eight and a half years ago after having been retired from business for some time.

Services were conducted from the Svensen home with Bishop E. Cecil Seaman, Amarillo, in charge. Rev. Lyle S. Barnett, rector of the St. Paul's church, assisted.

Return Of Saar To Germany Is Asked By Body

GENEVA, (AP)—The Saar council committee of the league of nations Tuesday voted to ask the league council "in principle" the return of the Saar basin territory to Germany.

Application for Saar's return will be made Wednesday in a resolution recommending action in principle.

SAARBUECKEN, Saar Basin territory—Nazi, having swept the Saar plebiscite with a poll of 92 per cent of more than the half million votes cast Sunday, Tuesday assumed full command of the Saarbruecken police force.

The plebiscite announced the vote as: For return to Germany, 477,119; For status quo, 46,518. For annexation to France, 2,154. Nazis started rounding up 120 men, the Anti-Nazi members of the "blue coats."

Thirty of them, including some who fled to Germany, the Nazis said, were jailed before 1:30 p. m. Sixteen communists previously reported arrested were discovered to be policemen.

WHERE DOES YOUR GAS TAX MONEY GO?

No group bears so heavy a burden of class taxation as do motorists.

In 1933, for example, refineries produced gasoline valued at $750,000,000. The federal government taxed this gas $181,000,000.

This situation, as the San Antonio Express recently said, would be had enough if all gas-tax money were spent for building and maintaining roads.

It is an encouraging sign that aggressive opposition is developing in all parts of the country against the diversion of gas tax money from use on roads.

Led by J. W. Forrester, the Bakers jumped into the lead and managed to hold it throughout the game.

D. Wilson and Stenbridge were the only Cowhands to tally more than once, Wilson managing to account for six points while Stenbridge came through with four.

Forrester took high honors for the victors with ten points, followed by "Dopey" Dean, who tallied nine.

The defeat was the second straight suffered by the Cowhands and dimmed their chances at the City League crown.

The Bakers, with two victories in two starts, over the highly rated Radford Wholesalers, are riding at the top of the heap.

Dark Horses Nip Favored

Big Ten Basketball Race Burning Up The First Stretch

By ROBERT WALTON CHICAGO (AP)—The Big Ten basketball race is still in its first lap, but already the dark horses are overhauling the favorites and it looks like anybody's victory.

So far the season has produced two startling upsets in the 37-38 defeat of the championship Purdue five by Illinois, and Wisconsin's decisive licking 16-9 of Northwestern's Wildcats, rated as one of the strongest teams in the middle west on the basis of pre-season games.

As a result of all this Iowa, with two victories, over Chicago and Ohio State, finds itself out in the lead and determined to maintain its advantage.

Thanks to the schedule-makers the task of the Hawkeys does not appear so difficult now for they do not play Wisconsin, Illinois or Purdue, but have two game apices yet with Minnesota, Michigan, Indiana and Northwestern.

Both Wisconsin and Illinois lost their openers, the Badgers to Purdue by a single point and the Illini to Indiana, and rate no better than second place now unless Iowa falls by the wayside in early games with Minnesota and Northwestern.

The problem at Northwestern since the Wisconsin debacle has been one of morale, the 16-9 defeat having been such a complete reversal of form on the part of the Wildcats who had numbered Pittsburg and Notre Dame among their earlier victims.

At Indiana, home of many famous basketball stars of former days, things have not been going so well in recent years and the Hoosiers find little to comfort them in the situation to date this year.

They started off with a victory over Illinois, but now face one of the hardest schedules in the Big Ten with games against Wisconsin, Minnesota, Purdue, Northwestern, Iowa and another tussle with Illinois.

Elsewhere around the Big Ten the teams seem about evenly matched with the odds, if any, going to the quintets playing on their home floors.

Despite early season threats, Minnesota is not expected to cut any great figure, and Michigan will be lucky to finish in the first division while Chicago has adequately demonstrated already its inability to turn in victories.

Local Cage Teams To Play Tonight

The Cosden Oilers, recent conquerors of the Elita Park five of Angelo, will meet the Diltz Bakers in the High School gym tonight at 8 o'clock.

Only a few points separated the two teams in their initial meeting of the year, the Oilers winning out by some five or six points, and the Bakers should prove just as trou-

THE WEIGH OF A GRID COACH!

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—It isn't only the players on a football team who lose weight during the season—even the coach is affected.

Elmer Layden, coach of the Notre Dame team, admits now—though he wouldn't at the time—that his weight varied from 12 to 20 pounds from Saturday to Saturday during October and November.

At one time he says he was "down" 18 pounds—probably after a defeat—but he has gained most of it back and now tips the scales at 160 pounds, almost his playing weight when a member of the famous "Four Horsemen" team in 1924.

blosome in tonight's battle. The Bakers, kings of the Muncy league, will start Vaughn and Forrester at forwards, Dean at center, and McCullum and Smith at guards.

Henninger will use both his teams, but will probably start the combination of Morgan and "Jan-per Jack" Smith at forwards, West at the pivot position, and "Broad-way" Phil Smith and Houser at the guard positions.

Barackman, who has gained a lot of experience working with his bear, made his initial appearance here last week in a wild affair with Benny Wilson.

Gorman depends more or less on the O'Shea-Murphy tactics, and in his match here in the opening show several months ago, did about as much shugging as wrestling.

TENNIS HOT STOVE LEAGUE NOW IN FULL SWING

By BOB CAVAGNARO (Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK (AP)—The hot stove league of professional tennis was in season—not around a glowing base-burner with attendant sawdust-box, but around a mahogany desk in Sports Promoter Bill O'Brien's skyscraper office.

Bill Tilden, George Martin Lot, Jr., Lester Rollo Stofen, and Al Ennis—tennis professionals—and O'Brien were there.

Tilden's histrionic exploits qualified him for the role of master of ceremonies and he seized the opportunity.

"The question, gentlemen," said Tilden, "is amateurs versus professionals, but before we go into the discussion we must grade the opposing players."

Somebody started to give his views when Tilden took the floor again. Bill's World First Five

"Now let's get right down to the point. Matching their No. 1 man against ours and so on down the list we'd win at least four of the matches and probably all five.

"Vines would beat Perry—and I don't say that just because Perry has been having a little rough sledding in Austria lately; Nusslein would take Crawford and . . .

O'Brien broke in at this point to relieve him of any embarrassment and said: "You'd beat Von Cramm. You have in the past."

"Yes. Well, I mean, I guess so." Tilden said, picking up the thread of his discourse. "Kozeluh would account for Austin but I'm not so sure about Pias and Wood."

The consensus among the other four was that Wood would be the sole amateur to lower the pro colors.

"That's all, gentlemen, thank you," Tilden said with the wave of a hand. "The meeting's adjourned."

They removed their feet from the desk top and O'Brien called to his secretary to get out the bottle of furniture polish kept for such such occasions.

N. Y. SHOW CROWDS TEST FORD 'RIDE'

Crowds which thronged Grand Central Palace for the opening of the New York Automobile Show had an opportunity to demonstrate for themselves the riding qualities of the new Ford V-8 cars for 1935. Riding in a new Ford on a belted "highway" designed to simulate the bumps and ruts of an average country road, thousands of passengers in one of the most popular exhibits in the show were amazed at the way the new spring suspension system and shock absorbers smoothed out the road. Photo above shows a typical "test" on the belted road. At right, crowds inspecting the new Ford V-8 cars on the main floor of Grand Central Palace.

HOG NUMBERS FOLLOW CHANGES IN CORN PRODUCTION

HOG numbers in the United States follow closely the changes in corn production. Since 1920-21, as indicated by the bottom line in the graph above, there have been three peaks of heavy hog slaughter—the marketing years of 1923-24, 1928-29, and 1933-34. The increases in hog slaughter during these years can be traced to the big corn crops during the periods beginning in 1920, in 1928, and again in 1933, as shown by the top line above. Over a period of years, a change of one per cent in corn production has been followed by a corresponding change of about one per cent in the number of hogs slaughtered under Federal inspection. Moreover, changes in corn production are closely associated with changes in the weight per hog marketed through the following year. Because of this fundamental relationship, effective control of corn acreage is a vital factor in controlling hog production. The 1935 corn-hog contract now being offered farmers provides control of corn acreage and, therefore, will be doubly effective in preventing excessive hog production during the next year or so. Lack of adequate acreage control in 1935 not only would result in a large surplus of corn and low feed prices, but undoubtedly would be followed in 1936 and 1937 by heavy hog feeding and relatively low hog prices.

I did not kill Osborne

By VICTOR BRIDGES

Chapter 35
NEW SORTIE

"Well, Osborne wasn't the sort to waste a chance like that," Molly continued. "He'd start making love to her right away, and you can take it from me that that's just about what happened. I don't know how her husband found out, but he evidently did."

"I guess it knocked him clean off his balance, and since then he's been walking around half drunk and three parts crazy. Doesn't need much to send a man like that over the edge, and when Nick said he was a friend of Osborne's . . ."

Jerry looked at her with admiration. "The girl has brains," he remarked. "There's no doubt about it."

the hedge."

Jerry grinned. "I intend to be extremely wary. No one's more passionately fond of a whole skin than I am, and there's not going to be any charge of the Light Brigade about this business. I mean to hang around until I've seen Gowland safely off the premises. As for Fido, or whatever the brute's name is . . ."

He slipped his hand into his pocket and pulled out a dainty-looking six chamber revolver.

"Where did you get that?" I demanded.

"Borrowed it from Dawson," was the answer. "He sleeps with it under his pillow in case there's a communist rising."

"When do you propose to take the field?" I inquired.

"As soon as the rain stops. It's been hopeless up to now. No one would go out working on a day like this."

"I believe it is clearing up a little," remarked Molly.

"By jove, you're right!" Jerry heaved himself from the bunk and, pushing open the skylight, peered out through the crack.

"Wind's shifted a bit west," he announced, "and it's getting lighter all around. I wouldn't be surprised if we were in for a fine evening."

"Well, here's your chance," exclaimed Molly. "If Gowland's been shut up in the house all day he's sure to go out now!"

"Worth trying, anyhow," agreed Jerry. "What are you two going to do?"

"We're coming with you," said Molly. "I want to have a look round the factory, and so does Nick."

"There's not much to see."

Jerry reached up for his shoes, which he had placed on the rack to dry. "The most interesting part is the room I told you about, the one on the right, where I take it that Osborne used to work. Like a big prison cell with a steel door and all sorts of odd gadgets in the way of furnaces and sinks. If he's left any clues behind him that's where they ought to be."

"We'll have a good search, anyhow," I said. "By the way, I suppose it will be all right leaving Jimmy alone on the boat?"

"He won't be alone. I'm not taking George ashore. His foot's still sore where that brute bit him."

I leaned down and patted my rescuer, who with his paw in a bandage was anxiously contemplating our activities.

"Never mind, old man," I said consolingly. "When all this is over I'm going to buy you a large silver bowl to drink out of, with the date of the battle engraved round the rim."

Jerry chuckled. "You needn't waste your money. Fighting is one of George's two favorite hobbies."

He did up his remaining shoe lace, and pushing back the sliding door of the fo'c'sle, addressed himself to Jimmy. "We're all going for a walk, James, so you'll be left in command. Feel equal to the responsibility?"

"Quite, sir," came back the crisp answer.

"You should say 'aye, aye, aye' to be strictly nautical. By the way, the rain's stopping, so if you'd rather you can sit up on deck and admire the scenery. I don't suppose we shall be more than two hours."

He jumped up and, donning an old sou'-wester, edged his way along towards the cabin door. "Shove on your bibs and tuckers, children," he added. "and I'll get the dinghy round."

Five minutes later, with a thin drizzle still dapping the surface of the water, we were pulling in towards the small natural beach off which the Seagull was anchored.

We grounded a yard or two from our destination, but by standing up and using his oar as a pole, Jerry succeeded in forcing the boat's nose well up the bank, and scrambling ashore, I helped Molly disembark.

"Better get her a shade farther in," observed Jerry, following with the painter. "The tide will be up by the time we get back, and we don't want to have to wade out to her."

We dragged our little craft over the mud and made her fast before low high-water mark. Above where she lay the ground rose sharply in a steep, sandy bank on top of which straggled a few stunted goose bushes.

"Makes a nice bit of cover," remarked our skipper, eyeing the latter approvingly.

"You're not afraid of her being stolen?" inquired Molly.

He shook his head. "I was thinking of our friend Gowland. If he was taking a stroll in this direction and happened to spot her, it's quite likely he'd shove his foot through her side. Nothing makes people so spiteful as jealousy and bad whisky."

"Keep that well in your mind," I admonished him. "Unless you're quite sure . . ."

Hang!

The distant report of a gun rang out clearly across the saltings and, with a loud rustling of wings, one or two startled birds flew hastily from the surrounding grass.

"There you are!" I continued. "That's probably Gowland venting his spleen on some innocent rabbit. If you hurry up you may reach the farm before he gets back."

"I'll cut straight across from here," he replied. "There's a path of sorts that joins the lane about half-way along. It will save me at least ten minutes."

He paused. "I'm not around when you come out, don't bother to wait for me. Take Molly back to the boat, and when I show up I'll give you a shout from the shore. I don't want to tie myself down to any exact time."

Jumping up the bank, he set off quickly through the rough grass, and at a more leisurely pace Molly and I turned our steps in the direction of the factory.

A LETTER FROM THE GIRL AND THE REALIZATION OF THE YAWNING CHASM OF CULTURE THAT SEPARATES YOU

"It was Nick's idea in the first place," protested Molly modestly. "I've only worked it out."

"You've worked it out jolly convincingly, anyhow. Gad, I'm sorry for that wretched woman she must have been leading a ghastly life."

"We must get hold of her again alone, somehow or other," I said. "If she's Osborne's friend he may have told her quite a lot about himself. I'm certain she knows something or she wouldn't be so deadly scornful."

"Gowland and that brute of a dog are enough to scare anyone," objected Jerry. "All the same I'm entirely of your opinion. Another interview with the lady is distinctly indicated, and with the permission of the syndicate I'd like to handle the job myself."

"Well, you can't make a bigger mess of it than I did," I observed a trifle bitterly.

"It wasn't your fault, Nick," Molly put out her hand and squeezed me consolingly.

"I'm not blaming the lad," said Jerry. "Still the fact remains that as far as Mrs. G's concern he seems to have torn it pretty badly. If we want to get anything out of her we'll have to approach her from a different angle."

"What angle?"

"Bluff," returned Jerry. "It's my strong suit as a diplomatist. I shall tell her that we've found out all about her relations with Osborne, and that unless she's perfectly frank and answers our questions, we're going to hand on the information to the police. Seems a bit brutal, but that can't be helped."

We sat silent for a moment considering his suggestion.

"It sounds feasible," I admitted; "the chief objection is that after what happened yesterday, I'm not over keen on your going up there by yourself. If his dog's too sick for work that lunatic's quite capable of taking a pot shot at you through

Director Of Don-Russian Cossacks Here January 21st SERGE JAROFF, Conductor Serge Jaroff, conductor of the world famous Don Cossack Chorus can sometimes tell you when it is going to rain at least twelve hours ahead of time. Sometimes, even when he is talking to you he'll bend over suddenly and rub his knees. Maybe that comes from Serge Jaroff's rheumatism. And perhaps the rheumatism comes from a rather chilly and prolonged bath the Don Cossack leader was forced to take during the Russian Revolution.

SUNNY LIVING starts at the table How you feel and how you look depend largely on the foods you eat. The balanced menu provides the "bulk" to prevent common constipation—caused by lack of this essential fiber. Common constipation frequently causes headaches, loss of appetite and energy. Yet, in most cases, it can be overcome pleasantly and safely by eating a delicious cereal. Kellogg's All-Bran is a natural food for normal individuals. It furnishes "bulk" in convenient and concentrated form. All-Bran also provides vitamin B and iron.

Advance! Not Retreat! SINCE REPEAL To The Dallas News: Inasmuch as the question of retention or repeal of our Texas prohibition laws will, in all probability, come before the electorate of the State this year, I think it well to submit a few findings on the subject which were assembled by Thomas H. Steele of North Carolina. Notice that in each case the source of information is given. Arrests for drunkenness after repeal increased 113 per cent in twelve principal Southern cities (compiled from court records).

COURT UPHOLDS RIGHT OF ROOSTER TO CROW WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (AP)—The court has upheld a rooster's right to crow in this city, irrespective of its effect on a nervous neighbor. The nervous one appealed to Magistrate S. H. Adams to do something about the cock's noise-making every morning between the hours of 4 and 6. The rooster crowed with a crow like a tin tam rooster with a crow like a tin whistle," he complained. "I gave him $2 for the rooster just to get it out of the way. Then he bought a man-sized rooster with a voice like a fog horn. I can't stand it. I'm a nervous man."

FAMISHED COWS FILL OUT; CARS BECOME TOO SMALL COLUMBIA, S. C. (AP)—In moving famished cattle from the drought-stricken west to the south a serious mathematical problem arises as the beasts take on weight and size with each feeding and watering. Alfred G. Smith, FERA supervisor in charge of the movement found difficulties popping up after the cattle trains got under way. "We would start out with 45 to 50 cows in each car," he recalled. "But after we had stopped on route to unload, feed and water them, at least three would not be able to squeeze back into the car. They simply filled out."
