LOCHRIDGE BACK FROM OVERSEAS

Iowa Park, April 7, 1944.
Dear Mr. Landers:
We thought that friends of ours in McLean would like to know that our husband and father, Oscar E. Lochridge, has returned from 16 months duty overseas.

He is in a Naval hospital in Shoemaker, Calif., at the present. He has a slight case of arthritis, but it's nothing that a trip home won't cure. He is a CM 1/c in the Naval Construction Battalion. We have communicated with him twice by telephone and it is hard to believe that he is really in the States again.

He has seen action on Guadalcanal, the Russells, Tulagi, New Hebrides, New Caledonia, and for the past four or five months has been in a Navy hospital in New Zealand. He certainly praises the people of New Zealand for their kindness and hospitality during the time that he was confined to the hospital.

While at Guadalcanal, he helped to reconstruct Henderson Field after the Japs had literally bombed it to ruins.

He hopes to be back in Texas in about two weeks and we are filled with anxiety to see him, and hope you will pass this news on to our friends in McLean.

Yours sincerely,
Mrs. O. E. Lochridge
Mrs. Margie Lochridge McDonald
Hugh Oscar Lochridge.

Chaudoin Resigns McLean Schools

Carl Chaudoin, superintendent of the McLean schools for the past two years, and who was recently re-elected for a three-year term, tendered his resignation to the school board at the regular meeting Monday night of this week.

Mr. Chaudoin's resignation will become effective at the close of this school year. Mrs. Chaudoin also resigned as band director and public school music instructor.

Mr. and Mrs. Chaudoin have recently purchased the Colonial Hotel at Norman, Okla., and will take over active management of it, July 1.

"We have enjoyed our work at McLean," stated Mr. Chaudoin, "but feel that we could not afford to turn down this opportunity to go into a business of our own."

Even in the face of war and shortage of teachers, the McLean schools have shown progress during the past two years. All local and teacher indebtedness has been paid off and the school is now operating on a cash basis. Teacher salaries have been increased from ten to twenty per cent. Additional affiliation has been added in choral music, boys' home-making, occupations and band. The school has maintained its southern Association standing and teachers and teaching standards have not been lowered. A new stage curtain, new commercial and science equipment, and filing cases have been added. Both school buildings have been painted inside, and the high school library has been rebuilt.

Mr. and Mrs. Chaudoin came to McLean from Quail consolidated schools, where they had been for seven years. They each have a master's degree and have a high rating in educational circles.

Although the United States Army has reached its planned peak strength of 7,700,000 persons, it will need 75,000 to 100,000 men monthly to maintain that strength according to the War Department, and the Navy Department said it would need 400,000 additional personnel by September 1 to get the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard up to peak strength of 3,500,000. Meanwhile, the National Selective Service System has abandoned the War Unit Plan for determining agricultural deferments. Provisions concerning a registrant's agricultural occupation or endeavor that will govern are whether he is necessary, whether he is regularly engaged in it, whether that occupation or endeavor is necessary to the war effort and whether a replacement can be obtained.

Jobs for Veterans

For men discharged from any of the United States Armed Services, a summary of job opportunities in 114 major industrial centers will be placed in nearly every local U. S. These job summaries give information on types of jobs, scheduled hours of work, hourly wage rates, availability of housing, cost of living, and the adequacy of community facilities such as schools, hospitals, and transportation. The summary will be revised bi-monthly and will indicate the expected labor demand six months in advance.

Penicillin, Latest Triumph of Medical Research, Marks Another Long Step Toward Distant Goal

'Magic' Germ Killer Was Discovered by Fortunate Accident

By AL JEDLIKA
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

It is back in 1929. Prof. Alexander Fleming of London discovers that a mold growing in a container which he is using in research has killed certain germs. Although Professor Fleming does not enter into a thorough investigation of the phenomenon, he takes the time to make a note of it, suggesting that maybe the mold could destroy germs in human infections.

Other English scientists go to work on the mold and in 1940 find it effective in human treatment. Penicillin, the magic drug, has been discovered, and like so many great other discoveries, by chance.

Penicillin is not the greatest nor the final discovery in medicine, but it is the latest and among the most effective, momentarily climaxing medicine's long, steady march forward on the path of alleviating man's pain.

Sought by king and commoner alike, penicillin has proven its usefulness in the treatment of streptococcus pyogenes, a germ that causes pus and promotes diseases like septic sore throat, childbed fever and erysipelas; of staphylococcus aureus, another pus-forming germ found in boils and in infections of the bone; of the pneumonia and diphtheria germs; of the organisms that cause gonorrhea, gas gangrene, meningitis and syphilis.

In Chicago's modern Museum of Science and Industry at the foot of Lake Michigan in Jackson Park, Dr. Milan Novak, head of the department of bacteriology and public health of University of Illinois college of medicine, has established a public exhibit demonstrating the processes in the present production of penicillin.

The penicillin exhibit is just one of many in the museum's medical section, which is under direction of Dr. E. J. Carey, dean of the Marquette university medical school, Milwaukee, Wis. In this section, we are given a graphic picture of man's gradual development of curative remedies from the early uses of vegetable and mineral substances.

Seven Benefactors. One exhibit pictures seven great men and their works which have given mankind boundless relief from its physical ills:

Karl Wilhelm Scheele (1742-'86), who discovered chlorine, the constituent of common compounds like salt; tartaric acids, which make fruits taste sour; manganese, the metallic element necessary for plant development, and oxygen, the most universal of all elements.

Pelletier and Caventou, who in 1820 extracted quinine, the active medicinal constituent of cinchona, the wrinkled brown bark found by the Spaniards in Peru in 1630, and most effective in treating malaria.

Louis Jacques Thenard (1777-1857) who found boric acid and hydrogen peroxide.

Frederick Belding Powder (1853-1927), who worked on development of oil of peppermint and wintergreen, and also oil of chaulmoogra, a ment of hormones for treatment of glandular deficiencies in 1901, with the introduction of coal-tar synthetic drugs in 1884 and thyroxin in 1893 grouped between.

The 'Magic' Drug. The climatic and currently most interesting exhibit, of course, is the one dealing with the growth of penicillin, from a mold to a refined liquid containing the drug which al-

Prof. Alexander Fleming, discoverer of penicillin, is shown with a bottle holding cultures of penicillium notatum, as he converses with two visiting Turkish doctors in his London laboratory, where he made the remarkable experiments.

source of certain chemical compounds for use in treating leprosy. Bernard Courtois (1777-1838), who isolated iodine in 1811, when he observed that washings from seaweed ashes gave off purple vapors when treated with sulphuric acid, and then turned into crystals which contained the element, now so useful in medicine.

Antoine Lavoisier (1783-'94), who discovered bromine in 1826.

Moderns as well as oldsters find the museum's replica of the 19th century American apothecary shop an interesting contrast to the present, streamlined drug store.

To say the least, the old apothecary shop ranked as a colorful spectacle as well as a popular medicinal center, what with its big, square jars of black zingiber, white zinc sulphide, reddish tincture of serpent and gold spirits odoratus. Drawers contained emery, talcum, manna, creta and iris.

Of interest is the 19th century doctor's bulky, varnished medicine case which he carried in his saddlebag as he made his rounds through the country. In the case, one can find quinine, turkey rhubarb, essence of peppermint, fire of magnesia, essence of ginger and tincture of orange peel.

On the counter of the apothecary shop stands a box of herbal smoking mixture for cure of catarrh, bronchitis, asthma, hay fever, lung disease, coughs, hoarseness, ulcerated throat and all pulmonary complaints, the customer merely being asked to smoke and inhale it.

Hard by the replica of the old apothecary shop, we find a drug exhibit depicting 19th century medicinal advances, from the discovery of alkaloids in 1816 to the develop-

The first time the rare drug was ever released for civilian use was in the case of Patricia Malone, two-year-old New York city girl, who was suffering from the staphylococci type of septicemia. The army gave enough penicillin to halt the disease, when appealed to by a New York newspaper.

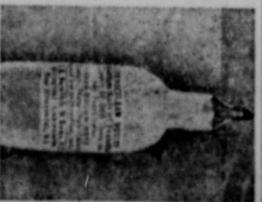

Until Synthetic Method Is Devised, Production Of Penicillin Will Remain Slow and Costly

Brought doubly into the limelight by frequent dramatic uses of the drug, penicillin has been made available in cases where the patient would respond to it, Dr. Austin E. Smith, secretary of the council on pharmacy and chemistry of the American Medical Association, said.

Because of its comparative scarcity, Dr. Smith stated, unlimited use of penicillin has not been permitted, and in cases where other drugs, like the sulfonamides for instance, are effective, authorities have insisted on employing them instead.

Until synthetic production of penicillin is developed, its manufacture will continue a costly and cumbersome process. At the start of the year, about eight firms were producing quantities of penicillin, and the total was expected to be expanded to 20.

This tiny sealed vial contains 10,000 Flory units of penicillin.

Checks Register High Style Throughout the Spring Mode

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Let no one think that the present mania for checks is restricted to dresses and suits and coats. In fact, there is no limitation to the use of checks this spring. Some of the smartest blouses brought out this season are of the long-torso type worn over the skirt, these being fashioned of taffeta patterned in bold checks in various color combinations with emphasis on black and white. The soft bow-tie blouse is also true chic in checks.

Perhaps it is in the accessory realm and in the millinery field of design that checks are demonstrating that something new has been added in way of hat, bag and glove sets, made of either checked surah or taffeta or gingham, which is accepted as topnotch fashion this spring. During the coming months we will see fetching hats both small of brim (especially tiny sailors) made of checked gingham, displayed side by side with gingham hats enormous of brim, such as the stunning high-crown model shown to the left in the margin below. This smart summer chapeau is done in brown and white checked gingham. The other two hats are also cunningly contrived of plaid-with-check cottons. A popular use of taffeta checks is also shown in bows and ruffles that animate many of the new basic black or navy gowns for spring wear.

Yellow Daisy Print

In the new spring color trends considerable stress is being placed on bright yellows, gold tones and especially on the new tangerine shades. In a recent style revue in the Merchandise Mart, Chicago, this yellow daisy print was shown that tunes to the spring song of fashion in its refreshing flower tones. The styling of the slenderizing skirt with a becoming soft easy-to-wear front drape is characteristic of the technique generally adopted in the fashioning of the newest daytime prints. Other distinctive features are the low V-neckline and self-covered buttons.

Soldier's Bride Wears Pastel Suit This Year

Here is a furlough wedding in a posy-bevelled hat, most likely a pastel suit and a frou-frou dickey in the new pastels to match her hat and gloves or maybe she chooses traditional white. Time was when hope chests gathered linens and lingerie, but the 1944 bride, who has been busy up to the last minute before her wedding, has an "accessory trousseau." One good suit or dress, two or three pretty hats (that's the way the men like 'em), a few pair of gloves, white and colored, which can be tubbed and kept immaculate, and an assortment of dickeries and suit collars. The latter pretty much on the lingerie side, confections of sheer and lace, rippling ruffles and new pastel shades or white, of course.

Headbands, Half-Hats

Just get a crochet instruction book and follow the directions and you can acquire a wardrobe of pretty accessories for yourself. It's a revelation what can be achieved in way of sensationally beautiful items. It adds to the lure of the new crochet headbands to crochet a matching drawstring bag.

Weskits Play Star Role

A gay weskit worn with your suit will bring a definitely "new" look to your costume. These waistcoats, styled after the types men wore in the long ago, look smart made of gingham, handsome brocade or gleaming white satin with rhinestone buttons.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for April 16

SAUL'S EARLY PREACHING

LESSON TEXT: Acts 9:19-30; 11:25, 26. GOLDEN TEXT: I am not ashamed of the gospel: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth.—Romans 1:16.

"A changed man"—that oft-used expression assumes real meaning as it is applied to one who has experienced the redeeming grace of God in Christ. In a special way this was true of Paul, whose transformed life amazed those who knew him before he had met Christ on the Damascus road.

In our lesson we find him in three different cities, serving his new-found Master and Lord.

I. At Damascus—Confounding the Jews (9:19-25).

"Straightway." What a good word to apply to the servant of the Lord. Paul did not hesitate to declare his faith in Christ, to proclaim that the One who had redeemed him was able also to save others.

It is the normal and proper expression of Christian faith to give testimony to others. That should be true of every believer. With Paul there was the added element of his call to preach, for God had ordained that he should be His chosen vessel for that purpose (Acts 9:15).

One is impressed by the prompt and unquestioning obedience of so many of Christ's followers of whom we read in the New Testament. No doubt that explains their power and wide usefulness. We could learn of them.

Paul's message was Christ. He proved to the Jews that Jesus was the Christ (v. 22), the One of whom their Old Testament Scriptures spoke and for whom they professed to be looking. He declared Him to be the Son of God (v. 20).

They were unwilling to accept the message. They were "amazed" at Paul and "confounded" by the truth he proclaimed, but they rejected both it and him, and he had to escape for his life. But another city must hear his witness, so we find him—

II. At Jerusalem—Disputing With the Grecians (9:26-30).

Knowing his violent persecution of the church, the disciples in Jerusalem were suspicious. Perhaps there was a measure of justification for such an attitude, but one is glad that there was present the generous, open-hearted Barnabas, ready to believe in his new brother in Christ and to sponsor him in the church.

A word of admonition to the church of our day is necessary, regarding the making of a new convert or a stranger at home in the fellowship of the saints. There is no need of putting such a one quickly into office or a place of honor, but let him know that he is accepted and believed in, and thus give him an opportunity to grow.

Paul remained in Jerusalem this time for two weeks (Gal. 1:18), going in and out, that is, in friendly fellowship. That is just what the young Christian needs, and should seek.

He also had something to make right. He had joined the Grecian Jews when they disputed with Stephen (6:9) and stoned him. Paul had agreed with and joined them on that occasion. Now by the miracle of regeneration he is a new creature and is on the exactly opposite side. Now he disputes with the Grecians, declaring that Jesus is the Christ. What a blessed change!

What he refused to tolerate that word, and prepared to kill him. But the servant of the Lord was kept by Him, and delivered through the good offices of Christian brethren. How often it is true that the minister must look to the brethren for that kindness which delivers him from distress and danger.

Paul returned for a time to his home city of Tarsus, but when a need of his services arose he was called out, and we find him—

III. At Antioch—Teaching the Christians (11:23, 26).

Persecution spread the believers abroad (Acts 11:19), and like the scattered brands of a beaten fire they carried the flame of Christianity far and wide. Thus the gospel came to Antioch, the third greatest city in the world of that day. A revival broke out, and Barnabas was sent from Jerusalem to be of help.

Good and spiritual man that he was (Acts 19:23, 24), Barnabas did nothing to hinder this work of God, but admonished the people to "cleave unto the Lord," that is, to follow Him closely. Would that all spiritual advisers had such a spirit and such sound judgment.

He was also wise in sensing his need of help. So he went after Paul, the very man to teach these young Christians, and to lead them out into a radiant and abundant life for the Lord.

Here it was that the beautiful name of "Christian" was first applied to believers. It is believed to have originally been a term of ridicule, but even then it was a testimony, for it declared that these believers were devoted to Christ and concerned only with pleasing and serving Him.

Wrap Overseas Supplies To Withstand All Climes

To the packaging industry goes the credit for wrappings which protect American food and supplies in shipment to the front lines through sub-zero temperatures, blazing heat, and penetrating humidity. Great quantities of war material are delivered in containers which can be immersed in water for days without damage.

Goods are often unloaded at remote points where there are no docks. It is simply dumped onto the surf to be carried ashore by the waves or the tide.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Planes fly in supplies and bring out crude rubber from Central American plantations. Weeks are saved by this method of transportation.

In building a battleship it takes 150,000 pounds of rubber. This is equivalent to the rubber used in the manufacture of more than 12,000 small passenger-car tires.

The first city omnibus lines, the forerunner of modern motor bus transportation, started operations over the streets of Paris in 1662.

Seventy-three per cent of the employees in 94 war plants depend upon their cars for transportation. Rubber is essential to their work.

NEWS FROM DENWORTH

Mrs. V. Dowell and her senior Sunday school class gave an Easter program Saturday night at the McLean U. S. O.

Miss Alice Billy Cortis played some musical numbers on the piano while the crowd was gathering. The program was opened by Mrs. Dowell giving a talk on Easter and a review of the life of Christ. Faye Baker led in prayer.

Billy Ferguson played an accordion solo and Alice Billy Cortis read the story of the crucifixion from Mark 15:22-39.

Mrs. Dowell made a flannel board picture of the crucifixion and Norma and Faye Baker sang "The Old Rugged Cross," after which Norma led the audience in singing "At Calvary."

Donald Dowell read the resurrection story from 1 Cor. 15:41-58 and Alice Billy Cortis led in prayer. Mrs. Dowell depicted the resurrection scene. The Baker girls sang "He Arose," and Mrs. Dowell opened the door of the tomb on the picture.

"He Lives on High" was sung by the audience with Norma Baker leading and Jean Rath playing the piano accompaniment.

The closing song was "My Redeemer," and Rev. C. O. Huber led the closing prayer.

On Sunday, Mrs. Dowell gave an Easter dinner for the class. Those present were Charlene Durham, Jean Rath, Patty Cochran, Faye and Norma Baker, Billy Ferguson and Donald Dowell. Jean, Charlene and Donald spent the week end in the Dowell home.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Cortis, Mr. and Mrs. John Lowe were in Pampa on business Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Baker were in Shamrock Monday on business.

IN TWO-PART TIME

He had been riding on a certain railroad for years and it was invariably late. One day to his surprise he saw it come in on time and he went to the conductor and said: "Here's a medal for you. I've traveled this road for over fifteen years and I'll be hanged if this isn't the first time I saw this train on time."
"Keep the medal," said the conductor dejectedly. "This is yesterday's train."

LINES ON READING ABOUT SOME FLYING ACES

"A hick-town guy" was the old time crack.
"He's fresh from the sticks, the boob;
You know what them small-town fellers lack—
Remember, a rube's a rube!"
But now the war it has changed all that—
Look up where the hot flak flies
Up there, with the aces who treat 'em rough
Behold all the small-town guys!

Lieutenant Ickard from Granite Falls . . .
Meroney from Pine Bluff Ark . . .
They're with the boys in the payoff brawl
With Murphy of Eastlake Park . . .
Captain Don Gentile of "Piqua O."
And Newman from Goose Creek, Tex.—
They're with the scrappers who blast the foe
And add to the Axis wrecks.

"Snowflake" — there's one that is new to you—
It's only a whistle-stop,
But from it Grant Lively is with a crew
That's making those Berlin hops;
Nicky Megura, Ansonia,
Joe Turner from Bartlettsville . . .
There's Stuffy O'Hare of Sidonia
And Newman from Rickett's Mill.

Ridgewood, old Newton and West-bury,
Verona and Stony Creek . . .
From Milford and Bethel and Big Oak Tree,
Corona and Owlhead Peak . . .
From old Williamantic and Beaver Dam,
North Canton and Lebanon,
Missoula and Bingville and Cedar-ham,
Deep River and Rising Sun.

Afoot, on the seas, in the flaming skies,
Fight lads from some little town,
And tall are feats of the hick-town guys
Whenever the chips are down;
The villages there by an old mill-stream—
The towns by the forest deep—
The hamlets so far from a spot-light's gleam—
They're THERE when the task is steep.

In foxholes, in crashboats, in bomb-ers great,
Wherever the fighting's hot
Are guys who have swung on a farm-yard gate
And fished in a wooded spot;
The Hicktowns, the Goosevilles and Spotted Cow,
East Birdville and Painted Sky—
They're up in the front with the big towns now
And writing their names up high

THE BOOK OF WAR ETIQUETTE
"Marvin Jones, war-food admin-istrator, urges Americans to sop the gravy, squeeze the grapefruit dry and pick bones up in the fingers to get the last morsel from them. He says 29 per cent of our food is wasted."—News Item.

Dear Mr. Jones:
I am a little girl anxious to do the right thing at the table. I read your appeal to sop up the gravy, and I think it is a fine idea. Is it all right for me to lick the platter? Some of my friends say it is not.

Kathie:
Platter-licking in a crisis like this is a definite contribution to the war effort and a proof of patriotism. Your friends are Axis agents. Be a good girl and lick every platter you can, remembering the slogan: "Lick a platter and help lick the Axis!"

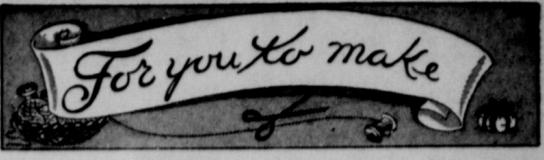

Dear Jonesy:
I have been wellbred, but am by nature a rebel. All my life I have picked up most bones with my fingers, and fought it out on that line if it took all summer. Lately I have been grabbing up the main bone in the steak, gnawing the edges to a fare-thee-well. I have been widely criticized. Is there any way you could back me up more substantially than by a rarer statement of policy?

J.B.J.:
The government is considering the adoption of a small tag for distinguished bone-picking. Any person picking bones in a resolute manner without regard for criticism or opposition will be eligible. In the meantime, keep picking away.

ENDS 5-YEAR SIEGE OF CONSTIPATION!

"Now as Regular as Anyone!" Says H. C. Durand

Here's a sincere, unsolicited letter every disappointed "doser" will want to read:
"I'm 82 years old, and have been constipated over 5 years, going as much as 5 days without a movement. Pills and laxatives would relieve me only for the day I took them. Next day I'd be as bad as ever. Then I tried KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. Am now on my second box, and as regular as anyone could want, thanks to regular use of your wonderful product!"

Mr. H. C. Durand, 221 N. Columbus Ave., Freeport, Long Island, N. Y.

Sounds like "magic," doesn't it? Yet, KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN really can, and does, get at a common cause of constipation—lack of certain dietary "cellulose" elements! That's because it is one of Nature's most effective sources of these elements—which help the friendly colonic flora fluff up and prepare the colonic wastes for easy, natural elimination. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a purgative! Doesn't work by "sweeping out"! It is simply a gentle-acting, "regulating" food!

If your constipation is of this type, eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN or several ALL-BRAN muffins daily. Drink plenty of water. See if you don't find welcome relief! Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

BURNET is trail boss of the herd, which is being driven from the Indian Agency at Ogallala. He is 1875. TOM ARNOLD, owner of the herd, was killed in a stampede. He was a boss and owner until the day he died, when STEVE and JOY took over his shares. After many years of hardships including an epidemic, they bring the herd to Dodge Here CLAY MANNING, Joy's disappears. Lew, accompanied by Ed Splann, enters the town and begins to look for the remainder of the trip, as Joy insists on coming to town, and thinks Clay "needs her."

CHAPTER XVII

By the time Lew had run back and into his own saddle there was only dust for him to follow. He had no order; the others had seen and had that lookout sign. They were behind him along the street. On the river's open shelf he saw the drum of hoofbeats and the rider turn suddenly north toward the whitewashed shipping house. He swung that way. For a moment the figure was clear against the plaza lights where this street crossed. But at the railroad tracks it faded once more and was out of sight.

Making a blind guess, he aimed across the track yard before reaching the depot himself and then was immediately sure which way the rider had gone. For the yard ended against the sprawling corrals of a Range livery. There was only one horse.

He stepped down from his saddle and saw Joe Wheat, Quarternight and the others following behind him, and saw first eight or ten men afoot near the office. Then Pete Rachal was coming toward him, swaying rapidly on his stubby legs. And at the same time, even as Rachal said, "I got your crew, Burnet," and nodded at the group, "but there's a bunch inside the barn's dark maw."

What he couldn't see in that moment was how many others might be watching him from the huge blackness behind the wide doorway. Then one other edged into the band of outlining light from the office, and close to his shoulder Joe Wheat's low voice said, "That's Stoddard, the boss."

He recognized Stoddard without showing that he did, a short, squat man who, at the mouth of Crazy Woman Creek, had made the mistake of offering him a job. He brought his glance back to Clay and Ed Splann, seeing the dulled heavy drunkenness of Clay's face. Splann was not drunk but stood with his long body poised a little forward, strongly like a man on tiptoe, his long arms loose at his sides.

These things he saw in a brief survey that could have lasted only a moment—with his own men and his new hands turned rigidly silent and Pete Rachal's face in front of him setting into a weary look.

Then he moved, hearing Joe Wheat's "Lew, for God's sake!" and paying no attention to it. He walked toward Clay Manning, feeling there was no recognition in Clay's heavy-lidded eyes. He reached him and took his arm. "Clay," he said, "come on."

His tug brought the big shape out a little from the support of the doorway past, stumbling against him. He jerked his right hand up to brace Clay's body . . . and someone must have mistaken that or an order was given that he didn't hear.

A gun's flame streaked from the black interior of the barn to become instantly blended into a crashing roar. He felt Clay jolt as if pushed. He was trying to pull his own gun and hold the big man up. But the suddenly dead weight threw him off balance. Something hot stabbed his arm. They went down together and a running wave of fire passed over their heads.

Rolling free and struggling up, he had a blurred knowledge of dust and frightened horses and a last rattle of shooting far back toward the livery's end; and all at once there was silence, a breathless hush in the way of these battles, until somewhere a man groaned and deep within the barn another called, "They got out here!" And from the office Pete Rachal's unmoved voice said, "Curly, you better get the doc."

The hospital was an abandoned army barracks standing on the prairie's grass beyond the freight yards east of town. The doc, too, was a leech from the army, a gaunted man with bloodshot alcoholic eyes. But watching him, Lew guessed he was capable enough even now; he must have been a top surgeon once.

He saw the long hands were steady, probing the slightly puffed blue holes which were all that showed of the wounds in Clay Manning's naked back. At such close range the bullets had entered straight.

It wasn't clear in his mind yet what had happened; perhaps he'd never know. But it seemed that all the Open A guns must have been pointed in his direction, willing to sacrifice Clay and even Ed Splann if they could blast through to him.

They hadn't. Clay's huge bulk saved him, taking that fire. He remembered Ed Splann turning and screaming at them before he fell and the way his new men had jumped instantly into the fight. Stoddard and the Open A hadn't expected that. He hadn't himself.

They were gone now with Joe Wheat and the others back to guard the Cross T camp. He was alone here, waiting for the doctor's verdict before he let Joy know.

Clay was face down, naked, on a cot directly in front of him, still drunk enough so the doctor had given no anesthetic before going to work. Ed Splann, covered with a blanket, was on the next cot, while beyond him another Open A hand lay thin and flat and wholly still, his face the color of gray ash.

As far as he knew this was all that had come out of the battle. There may have been some wounded. He had tied a handkerchief around a gash on his own right arm.

The doctor probed a hole and brought out something and ran in a swab like cleaning the barrel of a gun. He wiped the spot and tossed a blanket over Clay. "That's all." He went to the sink to wash his hands.

Lew followed. "What's the answer, Doc?"
"You Texans are tough. He'll pull through, but he shouldn't be moved."

"How long?"
"Say a month."
"All right." He started for the door. "I'll arrange to leave him here."

Riding back across the plaza and up the two blocks of Second Avenue, he felt an unreasonable irritation at the way things had turned out. But then all that was gone when Young Jim Hope was driving Joy's mules now. But he had stopped thinking about that. He had dropped back into an old habit, focusing all he had on working out one thing at a time. The one thing now was to get these longhorns north.

For the first days and nights out of Dodge he had kept close watch on Steve and had posted Rebel John and Joe Wheat to keep an eye on him. He had thought then that Steve might quit the herd and run back. But there had been no sign of that. Instead he felt Steve was thoroughly scared over what had happened in town or thoroughly whipped. It settled his first concern, and yet, remembering Clay's tameness before he made his break into Dodge, he would rather have Steve in some open rebellion. Quietness in his kind was never good.

On this last lap of the march he held again far west of the trail, beyond sight of the dust flags of any other herds. Even if the Open A had left Dodge soon after he did his long daily drives of twenty miles would keep him in the lead.

Beyond the Solomon they traveled a gently rising plateau that lifted them into a cooler air, and he rode these days feeling that nothing could stop them now. He was far enough west to avoid the trap of settlers' fences when they crossed the Republican on the fifteenth of August.

"Boy," Quarternight grinned that day. "I guess we've got her licked!"

He thought so himself. This was Nebraska. Only two weeks left and Ogallala with a little more than a week away he could see no hitch. If it came to a last-minute fight, now that he was bending east toward the trail, he had plenty of men. Each night he doubted the riders on guard and during the day kept a flank of scouts out a mile from the herd.

They were going through, and yet there was no exultant feeling in him, no uprush of a tremendous satisfaction that a man should have. It would be the end of the trail; that was all. There would be news for him in Ogallala. Perhaps she would be there herself with Clay. And afterward? He didn't know. He could still let the future wait a little longer before he made his plans.

Thirty miles south of Ogallala a high divide marked the Keith County line. Beyond that it would be like rolling down hill. On the same day that its straight ridge edged against the sky ahead of him he saw four mounted men come up from the southeast, circle his herd off at a distance and ride back the way they had come. And that night from his camp on a creek still south of the ridge he watched a chain of little fires break out along its crest.

"Indians, their somebody said, "waiting for their beef."

But it wasn't Indians. In the cool dawn next morning all of his men were having breakfast for an early start when a group of eight or ten riders trotted out of the north. The two crouched circles around the fire broke instantly and spread. Then the trotting figures swung wide of the longhorns. It wasn't an attack. In a moment he could make out the leader's headgear, a stiff rolled brim and center-creased crown, known this country over as a peace officer's hat.

He said, "It's the law, boys. All right, I guess." They took their hands from their guns. All except Steve. He saw Steve back away slowly, his gun fully out of the holster and rising in a guarded aim as the peace officer came on. He sprang across and stood in front of him. "Get out of sight!"

THE OLD GARDENER SAYS

Mamie was fighting mad today when she came home from the women's club. Seems that some of the members told her that their husbands weren't making victory gardens this year because they felt fresh vegetables could be bought at the store this summer. Men not now drafted are making more money, so they can buy more at the store and short-circuit all that hard work.

I told her to pity the ignorant rather than to condemn them. Chances are that such people won't be able to buy any fresh vegetables at all this summer since signs now point to fewer and not more victory garden plots this season.

Vegetable seed dealers say sales are off alarmingly this year. That might be traced to a late season, to gardeners who have been drafted, to people discouraged last season, or it may mean that a lot of folks figure on buying their vegetables this season.

Last season victory gardens furnished lots of the fresh vegetables on the early market, and if this is cut down there just won't be much chance for anyone to buy anything.

Mamie said the club meeting turned into a debate over what people should do this season, with most members siding in with our idea, namely, that it's both selfish and patriotic to grow vegetables this season. Patriotic because they are needed and selfish because that's the only way to be certain of getting some fresh vegetables.

Neighbor Brown preered himself when he heard us talking about what some of the women said about not growing gardens. He's one gardener who would never be discouraged, but then it's courage like this that makes garden production possible, even when the dry years or the wet years do make things sort of difficult.

For once Neighbor Brown forgot to lean on our garden fence. He was proud as a turkey gobbler, strutting back and forth, being proud of himself. But we had to admit that his garden this spring has miraculously escaped all of the things that ordinarily bedevil the gardener. Not spring thaws or freezes seemingly have had any effect on his plants, and they're growing so much every night that his garden looks radically changed almost every morning.

There's something peaceful, too, about a garden. Mamie often calls me to the window to watch Neighbor Brown at sunset, his lighted pipe in hand, a wreath of smoke curling upward, standing out looking at the growing things in his garden. No picture ever has been painted of contentment like his, but if one is it'll win international laurels hand down, we both predict.

"The Promise," by Pearl Buck, is not only of the recent past but of the near future, for it is that in which will be waged the coming battles to drive back the invaders, re-open the Burma Road and carry the war straight to Japan. The theme is the desperate need of the white men and the Chinese to understand one another, else how can either give the other the help promised?
John Roy Carlson's "Under Cover" is an absolute "must" for anybody interested in the post-war fate of America.
