

CITATION BY PUBLICATION

THE STATE OF TEXAS. To: Fern McCalla, GREETING: You are commanded to appear and answer the plaintiff's petition at or before 10 o'clock a. m. of the first Monday after the expiration of 42 days from the date of issuance of this Citation, the same being Monday the 10 day of July, A. D. 1944, at or before 10 o'clock a. m. before the Honorable 31st District Court of Gray County, at the court house in Pampa, Texas.

Said plaintiff's petition was filed on the 17 day of March, 1944. The file number of said suit being No. 7541. The names of the parties in said suit are: N. O. McCalla as plaintiff, and Fern McCalla as defendant.

The nature of said suit being substantially as follows, to wit: That plaintiff and defendant were duly and legally married on or about May 9, 1942, and separated without fault on the part of plaintiff on December 1, 1942. That plaintiff has been a continuous, actual and bona fide resident and inhabitant of the State of Texas for more than twelve months, and of Gray County for more than six months immediately next preceding the filing of this petition; that the residence of the defendant is unknown to the plaintiff. That the defendant was never satisfied with her marriage to plaintiff, and that she continually nagged at him and quarreled with him, purposely and with intention of keeping him harassed and strained and embarrassed, and that her such conduct so purposely done was the cause of nervous indigestion suffered by the plaintiff. That at times they quarreled and the defendant would become enraged at the plaintiff, and slap and scratch him, forcing him to defend himself or leave the house to have any peace. That all of such conduct on the part of the defendant is alleged to constitute mental cruelty, and to constitute excesses, cruel and inhuman treatment and outrages of such a nature as renders their further living together insupportable. Plaintiff sues for divorce from defendant.

Issued this the 27th day of May, 1944. Given under my hand and seal of said Court, at office in Pampa, Texas, this the 27 day of May, A. D. 1944.

American storks (wood birds) are efficient and polite. When a flock descends on a shallow pond, these birds do a sort of dance to rile the water and force tadpoles and small fish to the surface. As these rise to the top, they are killed by the nearest birds. But only when enough food is floating on the water for the entire flock do the birds begin to feast.

Every man has wonderful ideas. The only trouble is to get others to accept them.

Children reared by the book very often do as well as those allowed to grow up naturally.

The News is glad to publish pictures of those in the armed services, if a cut is furnished. We will also be glad to order cuts for anyone. The cost may be as low as $1.50. This is to answer questions we have received lately.

And now some smart person has found a modern interpretation for the titles M. D., D. D. and L.L.D.—"Mairsey Doats, Dosey Doats and Little Lambsy Daisy." Since many titles can be bought, or are given outright, maybe we have something here.

Floods are a novelty here, but last week's rains produced flood effects in many parts of the community. Culverts and bridges were washed out and farm lands badly damaged by gullies. In some places even terraced land suffered loss. However, late planting is just right with such a fine bottom season.

Now that the invasion has become a reality, we can put aside that uncertain feeling and go all out for victory. Our community is faced right now with the largest war bond quota ever set and we should pitch in and buy the bonds, doing our part to back the attack. It is mighty little to ask when the part our boys at the front are doing is considered.

Invasion day saw McLean folks let down from the high tension being maintained, many of them saying, "I'm glad that's over." There was a general feeling of satisfaction that action has finally started, tempered with anxiety about the safety of the boys at the front. Right now, getting it over with is the thought of the home folks as well as the boys over there.

The majority rule was fine as long as the new dealers were in control of the Democratic party in Texas, but they just couldn't take it when they were sadly in the minority at the convention, and had to bolt. Some of us have seen the difference in the Democratic party and the new deal party for a long time. It is just as well that the division came now than farther along.

Roving reporters who attempt to get a cross-section of voters' opinions should take into consideration that most of the men who are usually to be found on the street are "retired" and do not of necessity reflect the majority of the community. However, we should worry; they have to have something to write about and it makes interesting reading with no effect on the election vote count.

According to an article in the current Reader's Digest, the Federal government "now carries more than 3,300,000 employees on the civil payroll." That many of them are in work essential to the war effort goes without saying, but there is a limit to the number that can live off the taxpayer's money. There must be a change in the attitude that the Federal government has unlimited funds. Every dollar spent must come from the taxpayer's pocket.

Another Black Market Case

Federal agents recently searched an accountant's apartment for counterfeit gasoline coupons that had been turning up in Baltimore, Md., filling stations and banks, the Office of Price Administration announced. There they found half a million gasoline coupons, stolen and counterfeit, a quantity of fuel oil and food coupons, and 50 boxes of "nylon" stockings. The stockings proved to be rayon, worth about 69c, dipped in a solution that gave them a nylon gloss, and packaged in cellophane bags stamped with a counterfeit "Du Pont Nylon" label.

Save Food-- Guard Health Make Full Use of the Many Advantages of Your Electric Refrigerator

As one of the "front-line troops" in the war on waste in the home, you are surely giving extra thought to the food budget and to the care of the family food supplies. Your Electric Refrigerator is a valuable ally. Here are a few hints for most efficient use:

1. After marketing, take time to store your supplies properly.
2. Keep main food compartment at the proper temperature—40° is best.
3. In most cases, food should be kept in covered containers. Uncooked meat, however, should be only lightly covered with waxed paper or similar light covering.
4. Chill fruit, instead of freezing it.
5. Avoid putting hot foods in your refrigerator; wait until they're cool.
6. It is not advisable to pack your refrigerator full of packages or cans except for chilling.
7. Try to plan meals at least two days ahead, making economical use of leftovers.
8. Save by buying certain foodstuffs in quantity, and by 'buying ahead' at special prices.

Efficient Feeding Gets Better Results

Careful Management Needed to Meet Goals

Increased efficiency can solve part of the 1944 livestock and poultry feeding problem, according to War Food Administration officials.

During 1942-43, about 28 per cent of feed concentrates was employed during 1941-42, but output of livestock products increased only 13 per cent.

Officials point out that if the rate of feeding can be held midway between the two-thirds of a ton of concentrates per livestock unit fed during 1941-42 and the three-fourths of a ton fed during 1942-43, production goals of 1944 should be achieved with only 140.7 million tons of feed concentrates. This would be about 7 million tons less than last year's feeding.

Suggestions made by department of agriculture officials with regard to feeding efficiency include: Light feeds can be produced with less feed per pound than heavy hogs; more eggs can be produced with less feed by culling out more of the non-layers and keeping a larger percentage of pullets; beef cattle should be fed shorter and lighter; and more dependence should be placed on roughage for cattle and sheep.

Experts urge elimination of crowded farm conditions wherever possible. With many farmers raising more corn and soybeans, for example, less pasture is available and resulting crowded conditions contribute to disease and to death loss among animals and poultry.

Farmers in feed surplus areas have been urged to produce the commodities they can produce best and to adjust their livestock operations to a level that will enable the shipment of some surplus feed to the farmers in deficit-feed areas.

"Have you noticed a difference in this clover since the boss started using phosphates and lime?"

Yearling Heifers Thrive on Plenty of Roughage

Heifers, like older cows, are capable of utilizing large amounts of roughage. Dr. George E. Taylor, extension dairyman at Rutgers U., says that feeding heifers all the roughage they will eat is a grain-saving practice worth considering.

"Yearling heifers can be successfully raised on roughage alone from one year of age to two months prior to freshening," Dr. Taylor reports. "During summer, heifers must be provided abundant pasture in order to make good gains on pasture alone. This can best be done by a system of rotation grazing. A large group of Holstein and Guernsey heifers at the New Jersey Dairy Research farm, Sussex county, averaged a gain of one and a fifth pounds per day on pasture alone. Holsteins gained an average of one and a half pounds and Guernseys one pound."

"In winter, the same group of heifers on hay and stlage alone gained from a fifth of a pound to one pound a day. During the entire period, the heifers were normal and carried plenty of flesh."

Heifers under one year of age must be fed some grain to grow normally. The required amount depends upon the quality of roughage fed. However, baby calves can be raised on a minimum amount of milk and changed to dry feed at five to six weeks of age, resulting in a saving of both milk and grain.

"Some dairymen may be tempted to discontinue raising heifers in order to conserve grain," Dr. Taylor says, "but this would be a short-sighted program from the standpoint of the future dairy industry. However, do not waste feed by raising poor heifers. Select only the best heifers for replacements."

Farm Notes

The best way of turning a cow dry is to reduce the amount of feed used, when necessary, limit the amount of water and simply stop milking.

Enough butter has been allocated by the War Food Administration to give civilians during 1944 slightly more than a pound a month per capita, a total of 76 pounds out of every 100 pounds of creamery and farm butter available.

Eyelet Pique's the Big News For Those Graduation Dresses

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

GRADUATION dresses are very important in the lives of the young and the fair. Never before in the history of fashion has so much emphasis been placed on high-style cottons for both the graduation dress and for bridesmaids' gowns as well, and most brides will be wearing lovely cottons this year.

Nearly every designer of any importance in the country has made sophisticated looking cottons the most eye-compelling feature of her or his collections. The play being made on handsome eyelet embroidered pique for the bride's attendants and for graduation day wear is tremendous.

It is not only that eyelet pique is lovely to the eye—it's wearing and laundering qualities are simply ideal. Then too, it makes up so easily, requiring no extra trimming details, for the more classically simple its styling, the more attractive it is, in that it is so prettily patterned in itself.

The long dress of eyelet pique herewith illustrated is just such as any fair graduate might covet. It can double as an evening gown too, or a wedding dress, and for a bridesmaid it's adorable. The young graduate pictured shows her loyalty to her alma mater by wearing a sash in her class colors. This prettily bow-knotted sash together with a lovely rose corsage adds just that dash of color which tunes into the joyousness of youth with its rose-colored dreams and ambitions for the future.

There has been much discussion as to whether graduation frocks should be short or floor-length. The answer is that it depends upon the formality of the occasion. The simple little frock shown to the left, made of eyelet lightweight pique (would be pretty in any embroidered sheer cotton) is very appropriate for a simple school affair. This gown demonstrates that embroidered cottons are so interesting in themselves they need very little dressing up with furbelows. It's just careful cutting and fitting and subtle details that is needed to give them the charm that adds to a young girl's "looks." The exquisitely simple styling of this naive shirt-waist model bespeaks youth in its collar ruffle around the U-neck and its pearl studs and various little accents that mean so much to a young girl graduate.

You'll love a dress made of heavy waffle pique that in the longer skirts has a "stand alone" way about it that is most imposing. At an especially smart wedding the bride's attendants wear floor-length gowns of waffle pique that were so outstandingly good-looking you could just tell from the murmur of admiration that swept through the fashionable gathering that a new vogue was in the making. The piece de resistance of these distinguished gowns of primly starched waffle pique were their simulated yoke tops (there were no actual set-in yokes as the quaint fitted bodices were cut in one piece) but the eyeleted embroidery was worked in yoke effect which together with the tiny brief embroidered sleeves was too attractive for words. The skirts fell in straight lines being slightly full in portrait fashion. What adorable party frocks these gowns will make this summer!

If you are making your own graduating frock be sure to save every little leftover scrap. You can make corsage flowers of these tidbits, you can make lace-edged bows (in sets of three) to wear down the front of your blouse and scraps of eyelet embroidery can be used as insets for gingham pinafore dresses and such.

Navy and White

About one of the most likable fashions ever devised is that of the navy bolero suit that takes on white or colorful accessories. This year or colorful accessories. This year a navy-with-white bolero costume stands at the top of the list as to what's what to wear during the active about-town hours of the day. The suit pictured was shown at a recent "Cover-Girl" luncheon fashion revue. The blouse worn with this bolero suit of navy blue sheer wool, is of white pique embroidered in blue. The belt is of red patent leather combined with navy suede.

Wardrobe of Denims For Home Gardeners

Victory gardeners are buying regular wardrobes all of denim. They learned from experience last season that it takes sturdy denim to see you through all the wear and tear that clothes must take when subjected to wind and weather and working the soil. The list includes overalls, shorts, slacks, pinafores and tool-pocket aprons, jackets and skirts. A winning dress of the season is made of denim cut in the new sleeveless manner and buttoning down each side from under the arm to the hem with spanking white flat, round buttons. The new models have enough decorative features to avoid any suggestion of oldtime denims. They are designed to please and to flatter as well as give service. A real "find" in the newer denim collections is a boxy fingertip-length coat, which can be paired with dresses, skirts, shorts and overalls, and it will also serve admirably as a beach coat.

Dainty Batiste 'Nightsies' With Eyelet Embroidery

Interest in lingerie of exquisitely fine cotton batiste is now being revived. The new showings of lovely nightgowns made of fine batiste fascinate women who love the daintiness of exquisite cottons trimmed with eyelet embroidery and dainty lace with a lavishness of fine hand-sewn tucks and ribbon-threaded beading and all the little accents that are so prettily feminine. You can get very attractive gowns moderately priced, or as much as you want to pay for the handmade types.

PAUL PLEADS FOR A RUN-AWAY SLAVE

LESSON TEXT—Philemon 4-21. GOLDEN TEXT—Be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving each other, even as God also in Christ forgave you.—Ephesians 4:32.

Brotherhood is one of those fine qualities or impulses of the soul of which men like to speak when all is fair and prosperous, and promptly forget in times of distress and struggle. That is just where Christianity shows forth at its best, for it is in the hour of need, sorrow, or affliction that real Christian brotherhood shows its depth and durability.

Paul was in prison when he wrote to Philemon. The one of whom he wrote, Onesimus, was a slave who had deserted his master and probably defrauded him (v. 18). He had been converted, and now was being sent back to his master. So we have three Christian men dealing with a very delicate matter, and providing us a picture of brotherhood in action. We learn that it is—

I. COURTEOUS (vv. 4-9).

After a fine spiritual salutation, Paul enters upon an appeal to Philemon which is a model of tact and courtesy. One could wish that those who think that being faithful to the Lord and true to His Word means being blunt and unkind, would learn of Paul.

First he lets Philemon know of his prayerful interest in him. Paul had been praying for him, that's why he could say such a helpful word. Praying for our fellow man prepares us for genuine brotherly love.

Then he recognizes Philemon's goodness, and his effective testimony for Christ. This is an excellent approach to the making of a request, but be sure that it was not empty or hypocritical flattery. We do well to recognize the fine qualities of our Christian brother, and we could profitably speak of them more than we do.

Then Paul was ready to make his request. See how nicely he does it. He skillfully reminds Philemon that he might make some demands, and especially in view of his age and his imprisonment. But he will not do so, rather he says, "I beseech thee." There is fine Christian courtesy.

II. CONSIDERATE (vv. 10-16).

Paul, the aged prisoner, had found in his new convert, Onesimus, a real helper. He would have liked to keep him. In fact, says he to Philemon, Onesimus could do for me the things you would want to do if you were here (v. 13).

Undoubtedly Paul could have been sure of the willingness of Philemon. He could have assumed that the request would be granted. And in any case, Philemon did not even know where Onesimus was, so why not keep him?

True Christian consideration respects the personal rights and the property rights of another. We must not assume, or demand, or put pressure on anyone (v. 14) to get what they have or to draw out their service.

Another expression of consideration is found in verses 15 and 16. Philemon had lost a heathen slave, now he is receiving back a Christian brother. No worker will give less in service, and no master will demand more, because the two are both Christians. We need to recognize that fact, for all too often men presume on their relationship as brethren. But the fact that they are Christians should make a great difference in their attitude toward one another.

III. COOPERATIVE (vv. 17-21).

Partners share the benefits and the burdens of their joint enterprise. Partners in the gospel, like Paul and Philemon, shared not only spiritual blessings, but also the responsibilities. Paul was presenting such an item to Philemon in the return of Onesimus. Something had to be done about the debt of Onesimus, his failure as a servant. Paul says, "Charge it to me, your partner."

It has been pointed out that there is here a blessed example of the important doctrine of imputation, which is the "act of God whereby He accounts righteousness to the believer in Christ," because He "has borne the believer's sins in vindication of the law." So we note that verses 17 and 18 perfectly illustrate imputation.

Paul's promise "I will repay it" (v. 19) was the legal phraseology of a promissory note in his day. It was a bona fide partnership transaction, yet it was coupled with a reminder of indebtedness. Everything Philemon had and was owed to Paul; but, says the latter, "I will not speak of that now." Consideration again, but opening the door wide for Philemon's cooperation.

No right thinking person is content always to be on the receiving hand. The humblest recipient of favor or the smallest child who feels the love of another wants to respond. The considerate friend will, therefore, not always insist on giving, but will graciously (like Paul) open the way for cooperation, for partnership.

Beneficial Lightning

Around the earth in an average day there are some 44,000 lightning flashes. Collectively they release from the air each year about 100 million tons of valuable fixed nitrogen which is deposited by rain in the soil. The value of this gift from the heavens goes far in offsetting the destructive damage of lightning.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Maintenance of our synthetic rubber plants after the war as "a rubber insurance policy" is advocated by leading rubber authorities. They hold that the U. S. cannot be adequately prepared at all times to defend its national interest unless it is free from the threat of a rubber shortage, a feeling subscribed to by most thinking Americans.

World capacities for producing natural and synthetic rubber after the war will aggregate nearly 2,800,000 tons yearly, predicts John L. Collier, president of I. F. Goodrich. This is more than twice as much as the world has ever used in any one year.
