Fire Quotas Again Reduced

Passenger car tire quotas for the month of February have been cut by the Office of Price Administration to 1,600,000, the lowest since last October, and are 300,000 fewer than last month, and 400,000 tires below December. Quotas of tires for tractor-impement use, on the other hand, remain unchanged at 50,000. The February reduction, states Brig. Gen. Royal Lord, deputy chief of staff to Gen. Eisenhower, "can be summed up in two words—military necessity." He pointed out that tires on war equipment wear out at an "enormous rate" and that the military "simply doesn't have enough tires." And in the words of Max McCullough, deputy OPA administrator for rationing, "the reduced passenger car tire quotas again point up the vital importance of prompt recapping and tire repairs."

Conservation Is Watchword

Proper care of radios, refrigerators, washing machines, stoves and electrical and mechanical appliances is more important today than ever before, says the Office of Civilian Requirements of the War Production Board. The increased need for war production means a delay in resuming production of household appliances and equipment. This factor, combined with the acute shortage of repair shop facilities, makes it imperative that every effort be made to prolong the life of equipment now in use, OCR emphasized. Household-ers are urged to save and care for their equipment by keeping moving parts properly oiled, taking care not to overload motors, washers and wringers, keeping all types of equipment clean and avoid careless handling.

TROUBLES OF THE LIBRARIAN

By Mrs. Lady M. Bryant

If you were the lone librarian in a small library and some 25 students (typical American youth) should suddenly descend upon you, each with a different problem, and each wanting help immediately as the time (noon hour) is swiftly passing, what would you do? Honestly, what would you do?

I found myself in such a situation one morning recently, and though I managed to live through the storm, I haven't been the same since!

"I want four back copies of the Reader's Digest." "Please get me these magazines. You never find the magazine you want at the school library." (Hence, getting back copies requires a trek to the hall where the magazines are on file. You can well imagine the curve in my back after pulling out magazines—invariably the number wanted is for December, 1940, the last one, stacked with four years issues on top!) "Where can I find 'Doctors at Work'?" (I wish I knew! I could really use one.) "Can I check out one fiction and another book, too?" (This question has already been answered 500 times to date, more or less.) "I didn't know my book was overdue." (What a shame I forgot to look at the date due slip in the back of the book.) "You say I owe six cents on Rebecca, but I paid it the other day. I didn't know you could return a book unless you paid the dues." (A new one on me, but what a wonderful suggestion!) "Do you know who wrote the book 'Margaret Sutton wins her cap'?" (Woe is me! The book is Gail Gardner Wins Her Cap, by Margaret Sutton.) "Do you have 'The Thin Man'?" (No.) "Do you have 'Burma Surgeon'?" (Yes, we do.) "Well, I believe I'll read 'Random Harvest.' Is 'Random Harvest' a classic or best seller?" May I check it out and ask Mrs. Mazzotti if it is all right to read for English?"

On and on it goes—indeinitely! Won't somebody help me?

Wib Fowler was in Shamrock on business Friday.

Thurman Adkins of Shamrock was in McLean Friday.

Gilstrap, Simpson Speak at C. of C.

T. W. Gilstrap, former president of the McLean C. of C., and E. A. Simpson, both of Amarillo, were guest speakers at the chamber of commerce meeting held at Lions hall Monday evening.

President Emory Crockett asked Mayor Boyd Meador to present the speakers. Mr. Gilstrap made the first address, in which he pointed out that individual post war plans are more important than larger plans.

"We may not be able to attract large plants to the smaller towns, but there are many smaller projects that we who are here can operate," said Mr. Gilstrap. "The larger concerns have problems they have never faced before. A small concern may make a good living for the owner and several others. The trend is toward smaller businesses and factories."

Mr. Simpson spoke of the need for a chamber of commerce in every town. "The membership should not be restricted, but should take in every literally worth-while, progressive farmer, stockman, oil man, etc. The membership should be community-wide. Chambers of commerce have flourished for over 4000 years under the same name. Carthage, Rome, Phoenixia, and all ancient large cities maintained chambers of commerce."

Both speakers urged the benefits from small concerns that need encouragement. The idea is to see the benefits from small concerns already in business here and not look so much to what might be attracted from other places.

The chamber of commerce is a place to exchange ideas and get concerted action. Concerted action will get the job done where divided effort fails.

A trades day and livestock auction was discussed and W. W. Boyd, Frank Harlan and Buck Henley were appointed to study plans and report at a called meeting to be held at the same hour and place next Tuesday night.

J. T. Little led the discussion on a milk route and pasteurization plant. It appears that milk can be sold in a nearby town and enough pasteurized milk returned to McLean for the safety of the community, but at the present time it would not pay, as the raw milk can be sold locally for more money.

Mr. Simpson said that if the cows are here it will be no trouble after the war to sell milk to one of the most modern cheese factories and creameries in the country. However, he applauded the idea of insuring pasteurized milk to protect the children and families of McLean.

Harris King, Geo. Colebank and Bert Huggins were appointed to the finance committee.

J. T. Little, C. B. Batson and Frank Harlan were appointed to the membership committee.

Some 28 citizens were present, with a good proportion of ranchers and farmers.

Political plums grow only after careful grafting.

It's a wise woman who "noes" what she really wants.

The secret of producing a "best seller" is to write a rotten book and then get someone to say that it is too filthy to be read.

'S funny how the motorist behind you can always see the light turn green before you do. Sometimes his horn sounds a second or two before it turns.

The chamber of commerce is on the right track in trying to encourage local industry. In times past much time and money has been spent in trying to attract some large concern from far away, with no thought of a struggling local concern that could be developed into a community asset.

More ignorant motorists stop in McLean than anywhere, as a glance at them turning in the street, backing around corners, and double parking, most any day, will prove. A heavy truck making 60 miles an hour ran the red light on Main Street last week. Motorists need to brush up on traffic rules before a serious accident occurs.

Drug store cowboys are now being accepted in the Gray County Hereford Association, along with the real variety. The time has finally arrived when a pair of boots and a big hat is all it takes to make one a cowboy. Thus evolution gets in its work. The invention of barbed wire was the beginning of the end for the old time cowboy. Now the drug store and rodeo variety are about all we have left.

CHICKENS COME HOME

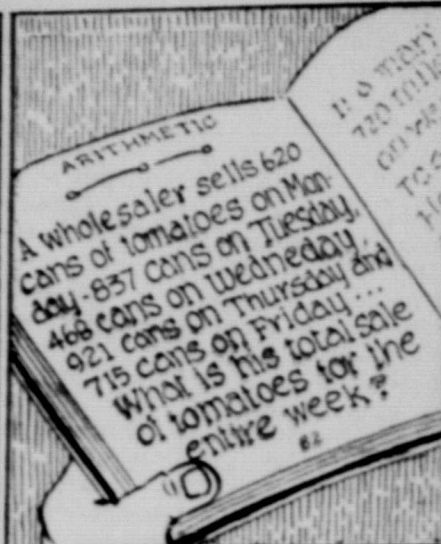

Chickens do come home to roost. As old as this saying is—and as apparent a meaning as it holds—we sometimes forget its sobering truthfulness. Once in a while someone frequently complains, "It's too bad so and so got by with that." For a moment the speaker has forgotten that no one really ever gets by with anything. I want to repeat that—"No one ever gets by with anything." There is nothing more true in this moral sphere of ours. For after all, we are moral beings related to an infinite moral Sovereign and there is no escape from the implications. Chickens always do come home to roost. Just in passing, remember this homely but living truth.

I have seen preachers seemingly momentarily yield to ulterior motives only to pay the price of their weakness later. I have watched, in spite of the desire not to do so, some persons take wrong attitudes only to see these same people "washed up" long before they ordinarily should have been. There is always a reason behind the sometimes inexplicable shifting of scenes on our human stage. The reason is because we are fundamentally moral creatures, and whenever the scene is thrown off moral balance it will swing back regardless of how ruthless the swing may seem.

Robert Louis Stevenson once said, "Sooner or later we all sit down to a banquet of consequences." There is nothing truer. Once in a great while a church has taken a wrong attitude toward a pastor only to have to pay the full price down the road. Church boards sometimes have reacted in a manner that has brought a price that had to be paid. Even districts have allowed political influences to bear too much weight, but the time always comes when the tide turns. Perhaps this is putting it too bluntly, but I am of the opinion we cannot afford to forget the inexorable fact that we live in a moral realm and chickens do always come home to roost! If we really believe this, it may be that in a moment of severe test our morale will be helped by an old-fashioned fear of the consequences. It has always seemed to me that a bit of old-fashioned fear of consequences is wholesome.

Let's keep in mind in these days of terrific strain, when pressures are sometimes tremendous, that after all it pays to be right regardless of what the immediate price may seem to be, because the price that will otherwise have to be paid later will be much greater. I am frank to confess there is one thing I do not want to forget—no one ever gets by with anything, and chickens do come home to roost!—H. V. Miller in Herald of Holiness, courtesy Rev. J. E. Perryman.

When the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice; but when the wicked beareth rule, the people mourn.—Proverbs 21:2.

He is only anxious about the future to whom the present is unprofitable.—Seneca.

In the middle of a dream

"We'll be there... some day... on the inside looking out... but our dream won't disappear. For it will be real—substantial—our dream home. Of course it will be All-Electric!

"Whether it be the marvelous all electric kitchen, with brand-new range, refrigerator, stove, toaster, and dishwasher—or the all-electric laundry—of other rooms with their wonderful new appliances and marvelous lighting—we'll love it all!

"When our hopes and plans become a reality, we'll make sure it's a dream of a home. We'll make sure it's designed so it can use all the electrical things that we can have. We'll make certain our dream will last!"

How are your post-war house plans? Ask your contractor to check the wiring to make sure you can take full advantage of tomorrow's electrical developments. Now is the time to plan—before you build.

BEGINNING OF A STUDENT COUNCIL

A cooperative spirit for the maintenance of quiet halls and respect for students wishing to study has been instigated by the placing of monitors in our halls to help promote order and a feeling of responsibility for school policies.

SENIOR PERSONALITIES

John Patterson, who was born at Beesimer, Ala., January 16, 1923, has been with our class since the first grade. John's hobby is fishing. He likes all sports and track meets; he has no particular dislike. After graduation, John plans to attend college. He is undecided which college to attend or what to major in.

Nettie Wetsel was born May 29, 1928, at Hameton. She has at-tended school at Alanreed and here. Nettie is fond of pretty clothes, good food, all kinds of music, dancing, and the navy.

She plans to attend Oklahoma Business College and become a stenographer after graduation.

STYLES FOR YOU

Sleeveless sweaters over shirts are a new fad for the boys. These sweaters are made up of assorted colors such as: dark blue worn by Dick Everett; John Rich-ards and Bill Ferguson like the tan ones; and olive drab is pre-ferred by Tuffy Sargent.

Gloria Gunn has started a new style for girls. She wears a rib-bon back of her pompadour and turned up on each side. It is a very becoming style for girls.

TIGER ROARS

Pete Hughes seems to be happy since Merlene Johnson came to see him. What does Melba say about this?

Tuffy Sargent and Virginia Chambers are having wonderful times before and after school.

Dick Everett and Maurine Har-kan are friends again.

A Double Life

By ELEANOR WALSH

WHEN Corinna Hastings, librarian of Postville, looked up from the desk one morning and saw Mrs. Angela Murdock sailing toward her angrily, she was reasonably certain something was amiss. She mustered a feeble smile and said an unconvincing "Good Morning."

"For me, Miss Hastings," snapped Mrs. Murdock, "this has been a very unpleasant morning." She tapped her finger on the desk. "I," she said, "have just read 'The Flaming Soul.'"

"Oh!" Into that syllable Corinna tried to put good cheer, friendship, everything that was amiable. But Mrs. Murdock's expression did not change.

"And what I should be interested to hear," the lady went on, "is just why that particular book was put in this library. This is," she declaimed, "an institution which endeavors to provide suitable reading matter for the young. I can only regard 'The Flaming Soul' as a work that will definitely be harmful."

"I am terribly sorry," Corinna apologized. "I'm afraid I haven't read the book." This was perfectly true. She had only glanced with some interest at the description of its contents on the paper jacket. "I heard from several people that it was quite good," she offered weakly. "And on the strength of that I ordered it."

"You're quite right, Miss Hastings. There was no mistaking the menace in Mrs. Murdock's tone. It was brought to my attention by Miss Keller, and I believe Mrs. Spellman mentioned it to her. Both were shocked. Miss Keller brought it to me this morning and I considered it my duty to read the whole thing. I wanted to see what was being placed in the hands of our young people."

"I don't know what to say," said Corinna.

"I've called a meeting of the Library Board at my house this evening at eight. I suggest you attend. Meanwhile, I'll leave this copy here, and you can make yourself familiar with its contents. You'll be asked for an explanation of your conduct."

Corinna groaned when the lady left. It was bad enough to face any member of the board singly, but to get her—horrors! For a few minutes she thought of cutting loose, resigning her position, going to New York. But this incident hardly seemed to warrant any such action. Not yet, anyway. And her family would hate to see her go. There was another reason for staying, too, and his name was Jack. No, there was nothing to do but face the music and hope it wouldn't be too unpleasant. She smiled. She could picture the three women reading with gasps of pleasurable horror, and then preventing others from enjoying the same privilege. The book itself she placed behind the desk until she learned what its fate was to be.

The board meeting was as she had expected, only worse. Mrs. Murdock still acted like a volcano undecided whether to erupt or hold its fire. Mrs. Spellman maintained a dignified silence, preferring to signify disapproval by a series of indignant snorts. Miss Keller flushed when the title was mentioned and let it be understood that she had martyred herself by reading it. "It was an experience," she said, "that I should have preferred to miss."

"Certainly," Mrs. Murdock said. "I, for one, felt I wanted to fumigate my mind after I had finished it." Corinna waited till she was spoken to.

"The point is," Mrs. Spellman said finally, "what are we going to do with the volume? It was your duty, Miss Hastings, to know something of it before sending an order."

Corinna spoke so contritely, thanking the ladies for discovering the nature of the book before it had a chance to harm young readers, that the three women were softened. "But of course it must be removed from the library at once," Mrs. Murdock said more pleasantly. "I think we must insist upon that."

The others murmured, "Of course." And Corinna agreed.

"That brings up another question," said Miss Keller. "It was bought with public funds allowed for the library. Have we the right to confiscate it without paying? I think not. I am willing to give what it cost simply to keep it off the shelves." She told Corinna that she would call for it in the morning, and pay at that time.

"I think we need say no more," Mrs. Murdock told Corinna. This suited Corinna. She thanked them and left.

In her room, after the rest of the family had retired, she opened a drawer and pulled a letter from its hiding place. With a smile she re-read it.

"Dear Miss Hastings:" (It began) "You will be pleased to know that it seems as if your novel, 'The Flaming Soul,' will sell like a house afire. Already we are justified in another printing. What name do you wish us to use on your first check? We will issue it with a financial statement as soon as possible, and meanwhile we trust you are hard at work on your next—"

Corinna smiled more brightly, she was.
