Loss Means A 'New Dark Age' He Asserts

Voices Hope France Will Find A Way To Continue Fight LONDON, June 18 (AP) Winston Churchill proclaimed today to his parliament and people the beginning of "the battle for Britain" and declared direly that its loss would plunge even the United States "in the abyss of a new dark age."

MUNICH, June 18 (AP)—Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini agreed tonight on the terms on which they propose to grant peace to France and left Munich immediately after conclusion of their conference in the famed Fuehrerhaus.

MUNICH, June 18 (AP)—Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini agreed tonight on the terms on which they propose to grant peace to France and left Munich immediately after conclusion of their conference in the famed Fuehrerhaus.

In a sudden dramatic turn of events—possibly hinting the collapse of peace efforts—Premier Marshal Pétain and Generalissimo Weygand appealed tonight to all French forces to keep on fighting until an armistice is actually signed.

There was no immediate indication of what the terms would be—Berlin newspapers said confidently they would be "harsh"—or whether they would be acceptable under France's insistence on "an honorable peace."

The German radio reported from Munich that Hitler and Mussolini have agreed "upon the attitude of both governments toward the French demand for an armistice."

An indication that the axis powers' price may prove too stiff for French honor was seen in a French radio report that the republic's cabinet met today to consider not only diplomacy but also the problem of supplies.

The Pétain-Weygand order told the battle-weary French Polus not to lay down their arms until an armistice is signed and sealed.

In London, Prime Minister Churchill told a cheering house of commons that any German invasion of England would likely be "drowned in the sea or blown to pieces attempting to land."

In effect, Churchill challenged Hitler to try to storm the British Isles, declaring: "Hitler knows he will have to break us in this island or lose the war."

In Rome, authoritative fascists said Hitler and Mussolini plan a separate peace for France on terms that would break British influence forever on continental Europe.

Hitler arrived first at Munich, riding through dense crowds shouting "Heil, Hitler!"—a triumphant fuhrer whose conquests already rival the exploits of Alexander the Great and Napoleon.

It seemed likely that Munich—as it was on another occasion now more than a year ago when Britain and France decided not to fight for Czechoslovakia—would be only a place for action, and that what was done might be announced not here but in Berlin and Rome.

LONDON, June 18 (AP) — The French interior minister, Charles Fomaret, in a broadcast tonight by French radio, urged citizens to stay at home to keep the roads free for troops who are "still fighting."

ROME, June 18 (AP)—The French generalissimo dictated to a heroic foe which lost honorably conditions of an armistice more brutal than anything since the destruction of Carthage.

Terms of the axis-dictated peace requested by France were not expected to be disclosed until after France's new soldier-premier, the aged Marshal Pétain, has accepted or rejected them.

It was made emphatically clear that France, wounded though she may be, stood ready to fight on unless granted an "honorable peace."

Thus Foreign Minister Paul Baudouin declared: "If we are given the choice between resistance and honor, the French army and the whole French people will know what to do."

Permian Basin Oil Show To Be A Big Affair

ODESSA, June 18—Fifty major oil field supply and equipment companies of the United States are installing exhibits valued at more than a quarter of a million dollars in the oil show building and on the grounds surrounding the building for the Permian Basin convention and oil show on June 21 and 23.

Every type of equipment used in the petroleum industry ranging from the smallest valve and washer up to portable drilling rigs, powerful industrial gas engines, oil well shooting trucks, acidizing units, and Christmas trees, completely decorated, will be on display and demonstrated during the two-day celebration, said M. L. Atkinson, head of the oil exhibits and production superintendent of the Phillips Petroleum Co., Odessa, Texas, district.

The fact that Odessa is centrally located in the Permian Basin, world's largest proven oil reserve, and that it is the location of the greatest number of supply and equipment firms in the Southwest, makes this city the ideal spot for such an oil exposition.

A feature of the Permian Basin oil show will be the parade on Saturday, June 22, at one o'clock, of oil field equipment and paraphernalia. The Odessa senior high school band, official musical organization of the convention and also chosen as official band of the West Texas chamber of commerce this year, will lead the parade that will be more than two miles long.

Featured speakers for the PBA convention include Elliott Roosevelt, distinguished son of the Full Schedule Of Sessions For Home Agent

A busy schedule confronts Lora Farnsworth, county home demonstration agent, this week. Monday she met with the Hiway 4-H girls club and the women's home demonstration club. Tuesday she was to meet with the B-Bar demonstration unit. Wednesday called for sessions with Center Point girls and 4-H club sponsors here during the afternoon. Thursday she was to be with Fairview women and Friday with the Demonstration club at Midway.

A reporters association meeting and a session by the radio committee were on top. In the meantime Miss Farnsworth was helping to develop plans for the mattress construction program, for arranging transportation to the annual farmers' short course at College Station starting July 8, and in planning for the county 4-H girls encampment July 23.

U. S. Raises Rubber Indians' Way, But It Takes Machines And Years

By SAM JACKSON
AP Feature Service Writer

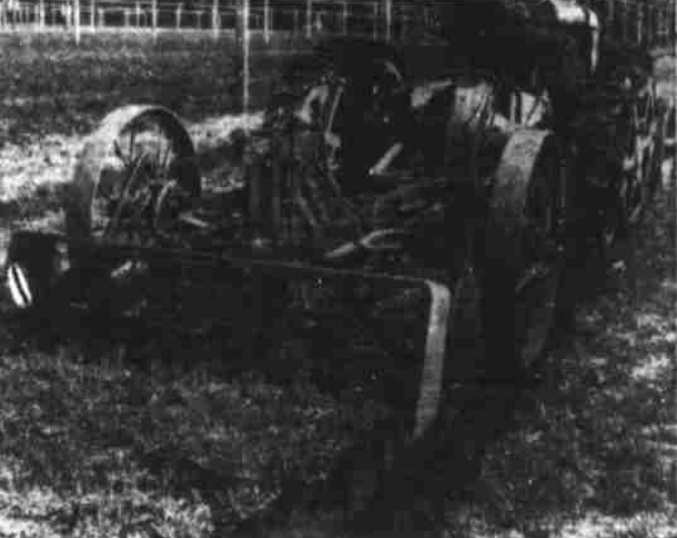

SALINAS, Calif. — If war cuts off his supply of rubber from the East Indies, Uncle Sam probably will turn his attention to a little shrub of the southwestern deserts known as guayule.

For generations Indian children have been chewing on guayule to extract its rubber and make rubber balls. Commercial production has been going on since 1904 and an estimated 200,000,000 pounds has been sold to tire manufacturers.

Three guayule mills in Mexico operate on wild bushes, gathered by native labor, but here at Salinas the situation is being attacked with scientific, mechanized farming. The firm that is doing it is American Rubber Producers, Inc., a subsidiary of the big Continental Rubber company of New York.

American went into action in the 1920's when rubber was selling at 40 cents a pound. Prices crashed to 3 cents a pound, and only gradually have they climbed back to around 20 cents, but the company continued its experiments.

Today, according to Dr. W. B.

A subterranean knife dislodges guayule seedlings from their nursery bed preparatory to transplanting in the field.

McCallum, botanist in charge, designed to handle the crop and the milling operation perfected so that the final product is identical with tree rubber imported from the tropics. Guayule does not produce a "rubber substitute, it yields real rubber.

Today there are about 900 acres in guayule here, aside from the nursery where seedlings are grown for transplanting in the field. The shrub grows slowly and at maturity is only knee high. Harvested at the age of four years, it yields an average of 1,800 pounds of rubber an acre, while plants that have been left in the ground ten years have yielded at the rate of 3,400 pounds an acre.

Farmers Shy at Gamble
The entire plant is plowed up, pulverized in a pebble mill in water, and the rubber drawn off when it floats. Cost of the finished product locally is given at 16 1/2 cents a pound.

Files of Fred S. McCarger, secretary of the Salinas chamber of commerce, contain much correspondence with congressmen and cabinet officers regarding the possibility of the United States becoming self-sufficient as to rubber. Italy has experimented with guayule and has called Dr. McCallum to its aid several times.

A native of Mexico and Texas, the guayule shrub requires about 10 inches of rainfall annually and a dry dormant summer.

"Rush rubber can be produced in this country at a profit at present prices, but remember it takes four years to mature," McCarger says. "The American farmer hates to take a chance on the price four years hence."

He advocates government assistance for farmers willing to put in the slow-growing guayule.

This harvesting machine digs up the plant, root and all, and chops it up preparatory to crushing in the pebble mill.

THE LITTLE MERCHANT PLAN HELPS THE BOYS
The Big Spring Herald has adopted the "Little Merchant Plan" of delivering papers to subscribers in the city of Big Spring. TWENTY BOYS are engaged in the business of delivering this newspaper to the homes in Big Spring. These boys' earnings and success depend on how efficiently they serve YOU. Give them a welcome when they call!
By this new plan, the earning power of the boys is limited only by their energy and ability. The more subscribers the boy obtains, the greater will be his income. He passes YOUR home every day.
Many of these boys are working their way through school, or helping to support families, or building up a fund with which to attend college. These boys come from all walks of life. It will surprise you to know how many of them are helping to take care of a widowed mother and several children. ALL OF THEM ARE WORTHY BOYS. By offering them the chance to increase their earnings, the Herald hopes to enlarge the boys' opportunities—teach them honesty, salesmanship, efficiency, courtesy and help them to become REAL MEN and appreciate the value of a dollar.
