1968 constitutional amendment did not affect the amount that should be paid county assessors-collectors for assessing and collecting county taxes, but it limits the amount that may be paid by the state.

Atty. Gen. Crawford recently (State cannot require to pay more than 10 percent of state taxes assessed which are actually collected.)

Other recent opinion, Mar. concluded that: State Department of Public Health is authorized to spend money to refurbish the interior of the building which is leased by county on a long term basis furnished the welfare agency.

Both the State and Federal Departments of Agriculture are warning ranchers to be careful of hog cholera during winter. They report that hog cholera struck 16 Texas herds during October. A total of 1,684 animals in 19 infected and 23 exposed herds were disposed of during the month at a cost of $46,900.

Every outbreak that is located and eliminated this winter reduces the chance for spread next spring when movements of pigs will increase again.

TEXAS SENIOR COLLEGE REGENTS State Senior Colleges endorsed the suspension of 10 Southwest Texas State University students by the school's president for participating in an unauthorized demonstration. Students were suspended by Dr. Billy M. Jones after they failed to break up a demonstration on campus.

THE HONOR ROLL system in the elementary school and junior high school has been changed for this school year. Since most honors are based on a 90 or better grade, the honor roll for the elementary and junior high school is based on the same. In order for a student to make the honor roll each six weeks he or she must have a grade of 90 or better in every subject on the report card.

THE HONOR ROLL for the first six weeks report period (no grade on the report card below 90) was:

Dramatic changes in fashions and telephones have evolved over the past 90 years. Users of the first commercial telephone in 1878 employed the single opening in the wooden box to both talk and listen. Southwestern Bell employee Carmel Allison shows a much easier way with the telephone of today. There are now 10 million telephones operating in Southwestern Bell's territory, a milestone reached by only two other companies in the country.

Southwestern Bell Reach Milestone

Every McLean resident having a telephone installed today was helping Southwestern Bell celebrate an important milestone. "Somewhere in the telephone company's five-state area, the 10 millionth telephone was installed today," said George Newberry, manager for Southwestern Bell.

"It's impossible to pinpoint the specific 10 millionth installation," he said, "so we have designated each telephone installed today symbolic of the 10 millionth."

He said a special commemorative number plate has been placed on each newly installed phone, and the customers were presented a commemorative message signed by Richard A. Goodson, president of the telephone company.

"We expect to have added about 620,000 telephones in our company's territory this year," Newberry said. "This increase amounts to more phones than we have in metropolitan Austin and San Antonio combined."

He said McLean will contribute an increase of about 22 telephones to the company's total this year.

Southwestern Bell's first million telephones were installed over a period of 48 years. The five million mark was reached 30 years later, and 12 years after that -- just 20 months ago -- the nine millionth milestone was reached.

The next millionth telephone is expected to be installed in about 18 months.

Mayor Asks Residents To Not Remove Traffic Signs

Boyd Meador, mayor of McLean reported to the News office and requested that we ask the people of McLean to please stop removing the traffic signs from the city streets.

A number of yield and stop signs are missing and this is hazardous to the traffic and drivers and may result in a serious or fatal accident.

Removing these signs is not only dangerous but is also against the law and could lead to a prison term.

The Old Timer

"Opened by mistake applies more often to mouths than it does to mail."

LOOKIN' BACK

by Vera Featherston Back

On Friday, October 21, at about 3:00 p.m. our 300th visitor registered at our museum and received three surprise gift certificates; one each from Veral Lynn's Gift Shop, Corinne's Style Shop, and Master Cleaners. The lucky young man was Bryon Close whose mailing address is Shamrock but McLean adopted him a number of years ago when he married one of our home town girls June Stubblefield. With their three children, Bryon and June live 12 miles east of McLean and 8 miles west of Shamrock, closer by four miles to the Irish town.

There's another lucky number coming up in the future. It's always interesting waiting to see who the lucky person will be.

There are four grandparents in McLean that are feeling mighty proud of a grandson these days, and who could blame them? Don and Ruby Alexander and Bill and Ruth Ferguson are the happy ones, for their grandson, Kenneth Ferguson of Baytown has been honored by the Baytown Optimist Club during Youth Appreciation Week. Young Kenneth, a senior in Sterling High School in his home town, received a plaque on which read: "Youth Appreciation Citation on behalf of Optimist Club International to Kenneth Ferguson for upholding the dignity of youth. For a sincere devotion to our welfare and for generous and unselfish contribution to society."

Congratulations, Kent! Also to the Alexanders and Fergusons, as well as to your parents, Pat and Bill who after all spent their youth in McLean and finished high school here. Since they belong to us, we reveal in the achievements of their offspring.

Friday and Saturday afternoons were busy times at the museum. So many of the visitors came in to see us. Among those were Phyllis Dawson who brought along her young daughter Elizabeth—a darling baby for us to see. Mrs. Dawson the former Phyllis Flowers, now lives in Norman, Oklahoma. Sorry, Phyllis, that I missed you on Saturday for the guided tour. Forget that I and been invited out to dinner Saturday when I talked with you. Come back when we have our mannequins dressed and claim that tour. I'll not let you down then.

If your family is one of the old-timers and you have a dress which your mother or grandmother wore, please get in touch with us. We need a dress from each of the early mothers to put on those mannequins. Would like to get some of them dressed this week.

If you have a picture of any of the former superintendents of McLean Public School, please let Laverne Carter or Supt. Jack Riley know. They would like to borrow the picture to have one made from it. Then yours would be returned. Likewise a picture of any of the former mayors would be greatly appreciated. Call the museum or let Boyd Meador know if you have such a picture.

In the mean time, come to see us at the museum. Bring your friends and relatives when they come for a visit.

Mail Your Christmas Parcels and Cards

Gift parcels going to distant states should be mailed not later than December 13.

The name and address of both the sender and addressee should be enclosed in each gift parcel to permit identity in case of damage or loss of the outside address label. The outside label should be placed on only one side of each parcel.

Greeting cards going to distant states should be mailed not later than December 10. Cards going to local and nearby areas should be in the mail by December 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Barnes of Ponca City, Okla., visited here recently with Mrs. Barnes sister and niece, Mrs. W. E. Kennedy and Lucille Tucker. They also visited with Mrs. Barnes brothers and families, Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Hommel of Alameda and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hommel and family of Clarendon.

Children Describe The Telephone

"Telephones are a lot easier to answer than to tell what makes them go humm, buzz and rrrr."

For a fifth grade student, this was a whale of an answer to the question put before the class: Tell what you know about the telephone.

Harold Dunn, fifth grade teacher at Kirkwood, Missouri, has compiled selected essays of his young students during the process of learning about pro-tons, whales and telephones, and has come to the conclusion that children view technology differently than do adults.

Here are some imaginative thoughts on how the telephones work, scrawled on tablet paper by the grade school youngsters: "Get a drum. Beat on it. Notice how it vibrates. Then yippee, because now you understand how the insides of a telephone work."

Historical comments on the telephone:

"Communication has not always been by phone. For many years ships had to send messages by flashing mirrors. But it is not good to do so now. Once my brother was spanked for flashing a mirror in the eyes of passerby people."

"The Romans did not have telephones. They used smoke signals, but I forget whether they did it in A.C. or D.C. times." "I was thinking the telephone was invented before the telegraph. When I learned different, all the thoughts I was going to say went in a swallow down my throat."

Once they know a fact for certain they hang on to it tenaciously: "Another name for the mouthpiece is the transmitter, but I think I will just stick with the first word and learn it good."

Confusion sometimes takes over completely: "One good way I figured out how to tell between the receiver and the transmitter is that one of them starts the sound when I can ever think which it is."

Some mind-boggers on the vastness of the telephone industry: "The telephone has a plural known as mass communication." "There are something like 80 million telephones in America today. Eighty million is bigger than the largest known whale." "The diaphragm is where the carbon grains struggle and hugle together."

Notes for a biography of Alexander Graham Bell:

"It took much hard work for Mr. Bell to think out how to get everything worked out so people could talk on the telephone. He had to keep thinking around the clock, twelve days a week."

In Time of Emergency

First Aid, Self Help Seen Essential to Meet U.S. Post-Nuclear Attack Medical Needs

A large-scale nuclear attack on the United States would cause great numbers of casualties, and there would be fewer doctors, nurses and hospitals available to care for them. Even in areas where no nuclear weapons exploded, radioactive fallout could prevent doctors and nurses from reaching injured or sick persons for a considerable period of time.

People would have to help each other during the emergency. Those in a stocked public fallout shelter would have available the basic medical kit stored there, and perhaps one or more shelter occupants might be a doctor, nurse, or someone trained in first-aid. But persons in a home shelter would have only medical supplies available at home, and would have to depend on their own knowledge of first aid and emergency medical care.

Both adults and teenagers can acquire these valuable skills by taking free courses that are offered in many communities, such as the Medical Self-Help course or a Red Cross First Aid course.

The information given in this and the second article of this series is no substitute for one of these courses.

However, it may save lives during a nuclear emergency by helping untrained persons take care of the sick and injured when professional medical assistance may not be immediately available. The second article will discuss specifically treatments for shock, broken bones, burns and radiation sickness.

First of 2 Parts

General Rules for Medical Emergencies

1. First of all, do no harm. Well-meaning, but untrained, persons often worsen the injury or illness in their attempts to help. Get competent medical assistance, if possible. Do not assume responsibility for a patient if help is available from a doctor, nurse, or experienced first-aid worker. But if no one better qualified is available, untrained persons must do the job.

2. Look for stoppage of breathing, and for serious bleeding. These are the two most life-threatening conditions that anyone can do something about. They demand immediate treatment.

3. Prevent shock, or treat it. Shock, a serious condition of acute circulatory failure, usually accompanies a severe or painful injury, a serious loss of blood, or a severe emotional upset. If shock is anticipated, prompt action can prevent it or lessen its severity. This may save the patient's life.

4. Don't move the patient immediately. Unless there is real danger of the patient receiving further injury where he is, he should not be moved until breathing is restored, bleeding is stopped, and suspected broken bones are splinted.

5. Keep calm, and reassure the patient. Keep him lying down and comfortably warm, but do not apply heat to his body, or make him sweat.

6. Never attempt to give liquids to an unconscious person. If he is not able to swallow, he may choke to death or drown. Also, don't give him any liquids to drink if he has an abdominal injury.

If Breathing Stops . . .

Quick action is required to restore breathing to avoid death. The best and simplest way of getting air into the victim's lungs is to use mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration. Here is how to do it:

1. Place the patient on his back. Loosen his collar.

2. Open his mouth and remove any food or foreign matter. If he has false teeth or removable dental bridges, take them out.

3. Tilt the patient's head back so that his chin points upward. Lift his lower jaw from beneath and behind so that it juts out. This will move his tongue away from the back of his throat, so it does not block the air passage to his lungs. Placing a pillow or something else under his shoulders will help get his head into the right position. Some patients will start breathing as soon as these steps are taken, and no further help is necessary.

4. The person administering artificial respiration should first open his mouth as wide as possible and place it tightly over the patient's mouth, so breathed into him. The exhaled breath may also be felt by placing the cheek close to the patient's mouth, or by observing his chest sink as he exhales.

7. Continue breathing for the patient. If he is an adult, blow a good breath into his mouth every 5 seconds, or 12 times a minute, and listen for him to breathe it back out again.

(Caution: If the patient is an infant or small child, blow small puffs of air into him about 20 times a minute. It is possible to rupture his lungs if too much air is blown in at one time. Watch his chest rise to make sure he is getting the right amount of air with each puff.)

8. If air is not getting into the patient's lungs, or if he is not breathing out the air blown into him, first make sure that his head is tilted back and his jaw is jutting out in the proper position. Then feel in his mouth or throat to make sure nothing is obstructing the air passage to his lungs.

If this does not help, turn him on his side and strike him sharply with the palm of your hand several times between his shoulder blades. This should dislodge any obstruction in the air passage. Then place him again on his back, with his head tilted back and his jaw jutting out, and resume blowing air into his mouth. If this doesn't work, try closing his mouth and blowing air through his nose into his lungs.

9. To avoid placing your mouth directly on the patient's face, it is possible to hold a cloth (handkerchief, gauze or other porous material) over his mouth and breathe through the cloth. But don't waste precious time looking for a cloth if one isn't handy.

10. Important: Even if the patient does not respond, continue efforts for one hour or longer, or until completely sure he is dead. If possible, have this confirmed by at least

How To Check For Termites

Termites have expensive diets. They eat wood and other materials such as plaster, cement wall boards, books, leather, plastic and rubber insulation.

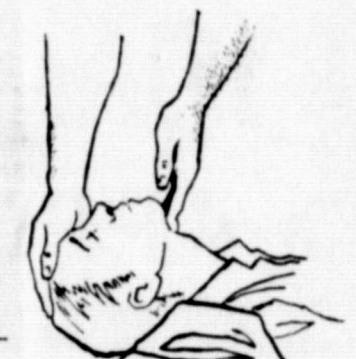

To check your house for these destructive insects, here are some suggestions from Jimmie Lou Waincott, county home demonstration agent.

*Inspect the inside of the foundation wall and each supporting pier.

*Look for small tunnels about the size of a kitchen match stem which the termites have built from the ground level up the inside of the foundation wall.

*Pay particular attention to concrete porches, garages, patio, steps and any wooden sills or beams in contact with the ground. These are ideal places for termites.

The E. M. Bailey family visited relatives in Oklahoma City, over the Thanksgiving holidays.

the patient's mouth is completely covered by that of his benefactor. With one hand, pinch his nostrils shut. With the other hand, hold his lower jaw in a thrust-forward position and keep his head tilted back. With a baby or small child, one should place his mouth over both the child's nose and mouth, making a tight seal.

"Breathing" for the Patient

5. Blow a good lungful of air into an adult patient's mouth, continuing to keep his head tilted back and his jaw jutting out so that the air passage is kept open. (Air can be blown through an unconscious person's teeth, even though they may be clenched tightly together.) As air is blown in, watch the patient's chest. If it rises, air is getting into his lungs.

6. Remove your mouth from the patient's mouth, and listen for him to breathe out the air

(even temporarily, or even though the bleeding has stopped) by anyone except a physician, who can control the bleeding by other methods and replace the blood that the patient has lost.

The information in this story, the first of two parts, was furnished by the U.S. Department of Defense, Office of Civil Defense, to help people prepare for a nuclear attack and learn what actions to take in case an attack should occur. The second article will discuss specifically treatment for shock, broken bones, burns and radiation sickness.
