The so-called "African" bermuda grass, sold for a high price in this section, has not lived up to its claims in most cases. The color is not as pleasing as the common bermuda and it does not stand drouth nearly as well. The broad-leaved variety of the common bermuda is hard to beat for lawn planting in this section. Where a green lawn for winter is desired. annual Italian rye grass can be sown each fall right on the bermuda lawn.

Everybody likes to read the home paper. If there is any doubt as to this statement, let any subscriber leave his paper in sight of a nonsubscriber for a few minutes and see what happens. A few years ago a minister in McLean subscribed for a second copy to be sent to him because a neighbor always came over to borrow his copy before his family had time to read it. In another case we learned of five families reading one subscriber's copy each week. A lot of papers are raising both subscription and advertising rates to offset the rising costs of operation. Our readers can protect themselves by renewing at the present rates.

The Invisible Ingredient IN YOUR PRESCRIPTION

Do you know the meaning of the symbol Rx, on your doctor's prescription blank?

It stands for the Latin word "recipe" ... and means "take." To the pharmacist who fills your prescription, it means "take . . . the ingredients written on this paper, in amounts specified and compound a medicine."

But to the men in our store it means far more. To them, it stands for all the important invisible ingredients which must be added to every prescription we fill. To them, it means:

"Take the finest ingredients which have been supplied to our store by the world's greatest pharmaceutical manufacturers . . . put these in the prescription. Take the knowledge, skill and accuracy that your university training and years of experience have given you. Use them in compounding this prescripton. Take care to doublecheck . . . for there must be no error. Take the least amount of time . . . for a human life may depend on your speed."

I was the principle of the thing. Vir ginia thought it unfair, just because she had been transferred from her home town to the Trust company here and consequently knew very few people, that she should be deprived of the opportunity of meeting eligible men like other girls her age.

"Oh, well," Virginia sighed to "What's the difference?" As she turned away from the winlost in thought, she didn't even see the car that rounded the corner. The driver slammed on the brakes but not before Virginia had stepped off the curb and been splashed from head to foot with dirty, slushy wa- emateur. ter. It was all she needed at the

His laugh was exciting and Virginia didn't know when she had ever heard such a pleasing voice. 'That's better-perhaps another time you'll drive under more pleasant circumstances?"

"Heaven knows; who can say?" For many days following. Virginia watched for the man who had splashed her but there was no sign of him.

One day Mrs. Baker called and invited Virginia to a cocktail party on the following Friday and the same day she was asked to again all in at the bridge club. As she expected, the conversation kept reverting to Jack Marshall every time one of the girls was dummy.

"It's too bad you haven't even met him, Virginia. He's really

THE LOW DOWN HICKORY GROVE

I see where OPA is battlingsweatin' and dying-to keep ladies skints short. Save cloth, that i. the slogan.

Anywody-bronze, white or black who up to now, have had a sneakin' idea or notion, or any kind of idea or notion that OPA knew what it was talking about, can now abandon same. The Paris dressmakers say skirts are to be longer. So, they will be longer. The dressmakers don't say why. Maybe folks have tired of dimpled knees or maybe thick calves, or maybe thin ones, or bowed ones I don't know. I am not researchdow and started to cross the street, in' that subject. I am saying that OPA, if it is so opaquethick, for short-as to think it can combat styles, it is just proving 100 per cent that it is an

And if it is an amateur on such a simple idea as styles for mama, what is the chance of it knowing beans about how many pounds of feed to allow per hen so as to get the most eggs. Or the least eggs, if we happen to be in a cycle where the Gov says to eat more oatmeal versus eggs, to clean up a surplus of oatmeal that we paid a subsidy to get.

MIDDLE-ROADERS

"I've become so open-minded," said a friend the other day, "that I am afraid I'll soon be out of opinions."

Don't you often feel the same? As Dr. Emerson Fosdick recently reminded his radio audience, 'Modern life is not for neutrals.' The time is here when we must choose between two schools of political thought-which is the chief reason why I think talk about a middle-of-the-road policy is dangerous.

The people who built this nation didn't take a middle-of-theroad attitude. They stepped bravely on one side or the other and let themselves be counted. The staunch old abolitionists, for example, gave up every chance of political preferment and worldly gain to uphold an honest conviction against slavery. They scorned middle-of-the-roaders.

patters decided the issue. Whether on the left or the right, they stood-and the compromisers found themselves washed over by the resultant tidal wave.

It seems to me it may be just as dangerous to talk about compromise today as it was in other high moments in history. Our people face a great decision, Shall at News office. we turn to Socialism, or shall we uphold the traditions of our republic? There is no middle course. I fail to see how we can compromise much longer. For every time we move, we must go in one direction or the other-further toward collectivism and government control or further away from it.

Millions of sincere Americans are torn asunder in spirit trying goods, see Mrs. S. R. Jones, phone to decide. They sense, even when they do not admit, that it will be a momentous choice, and that in this kind of struggle no compro- News office. mise is justified.

The same is equally true of moral issues. We live in a state of spiritual chaos because we've Mrs. Bob Black. 1c accepted the idea that right can compromise with wrong.

As middle-of-the-roaders have straddled it so long we often do not recognize the difference between honor and dishonor, truth and falsehood, good and evil.-Mrs. Walter Perguson in Fort Worth Press.

Perhaps this is not the time to discuss prohibition, but take it from us, either the present advertising practices of the liquor industry will change or the whole industry will go down once again under a storm of wrath. The manufacturers of beer ought to be paying money to stay off the radio instead of paying money to get on. The makers of whiskey insult the intelligence of the American people in such displays as the Calvert liquor ads.-Clip-
