THE LOW DOWN NEWS FROM KELLERVILLE

HICKORY GROVE

I just see where in Dakota the Govt. is busy as a bird-dog on another dam and which is costing another 100 million as a startin' ante. Also I see where it is on a Reservation and according to an old and legal treaty, the Indians living there cannot be up-rooted or moved off. They do not choose to leave. But that is not stopping the dam builders. When the waters start to rise and the Indians must be evicted—the Govt. will evict them. It may cost an extra 100 million to do so, but dams is what we must have—legal or not—Indians or no Indians. That is Sambo—in the dam business.

And when the power business is in the Govt. fist—Sambo will have more time to devote to takin' over other kinds of outfits like the barbers or the milliners, etc. But Uncle Samuel as a barber or a milliner, I reckon he should be as good there as over on the river, making kilowatts. Folks sittin' in the bleachers and watching the Govt. as it scuffles with electricity, they will not be so unruffled when some bureau Big Chief gets over on their side of the street and starts fumbling with their own door-bell.

Yours with the low down,
JO SERRA.

THEY VOTE DRY

According to the August report of the state liquor control board, precinct No. 6, Bowie county; precinct No. 6, Matagorda county, and Grayson county-wide all voted dry, in local option elections.

Baptist Revival Begins Friday

By Pastor Wm. R. Lawrence The Baptists of McLean planned to have a revival meeting earlier in the year, but because of the fire which destroyed the inside of the church building were forced to postpone the meeting until the necessary repairs were made. Now that the building is ready for use, we invite you to be with us each morning at ten and each evening at eight, from August 23 through September 1.

No community can grow beyond its spiritual development. Let us complete this summer with a strong finish. Your presence and prayers in these services will be appreciated.

Rev. Oliver D. Riley, pastor of the Lela Baptist Church, will lead song services and the pastor will preach.

RAINBOW GIRLS IN OUTING

Mesdames Daphne Morris and Ollie Headrick took the McLean Rainbow girls to Lake McCellan last week to join other Panhandle girls for a two day outing.

Girls attending were Jo Ann Grigsby, Bobbie Jean Headrick, Jo Alice Tubbs and Leta Mae Hughes.

The entertainment consisted of picnicking, swimming and boating. This is an annual affair for the Rainbow girls of the Panhandle assemblies, which are 14 in number.

RAINBOW GIRLS MEET

The McLean Rainbow girls met Monday night for initiatory work. They plan to go to White Deer Tuesday night to attend a special occasion.

Plans were also completed to go to Kellerville Friday night to the W. W. Hughes home for swimming and barbecue. The parents will come to provide a way of travel, and the girls will bring their escorts.

Maybe the cause of so much criticism is that it is so easy to do.

Anything that must be justified by excuses is questionable practice.

Merchants do not advertise because they like or dislike the editor. They advertise because it pays. Advertising is a cold business proposition and pays the man who uses it consistently, as anyone can prove at small cost.

Papers like The News endeavor to exemplify the better side of life. In this they are performing a community service along with the churches and schools. This service has played a large part in the development of home town communities where life is at its best.

There is no reason for our country to be in its present state of confusion a year after the war ended, but for the "planned economy" experiment by our politicians. If we continue to allow business to be punished by governmental bureaus, we may expect confusion and uncertainty to continue.

Men like to criticize women's dress, but the women show a lot more sense in summer dressing than the men. The less clothing one wears in summertime, the more comfortable and healthful for the wearer, but most men will continue to sweater in coats and ties, rather than be different.

Ordinarily a man with the small vote given Dr. Rainey in the first primary would not expect to win in the second, but he is evidently gambling on the thought that most people will take Mr. Jester's winning for granted and stay away from the polls. Everyone interested in the progress of Texas should vote Saturday.

There are people in every community who exemplify the basic principles of good citizenship by unselfish activities for the benefit of others. There are many more who live only for themselves. The former get little if any praise but the progress of the community depends entirely upon them. The latter probably enjoy life, but others are left out of their consideration.

Washington and Indiana are the only states technically American in name. Washington was christened after the first President. Indiana was so named because large tracts there were purchased and settled by the Indians.

SELFISH TELEPHONE CO.

The Southwestern Associated Telephone Co., as far as the company, not the individual employees, is concerned is a pretty poor citizen. Their record in Perryton, in so far as support of civic and community enterprise is concerned, is very poor. There are one-man hamburger stands in Perryton that do more civic work both in man power and cash donations than this big, rich, city owned public utility corporation. They are just the type of selfish money-grabbing business that Perryton can well do without.—Van Stewart in the Ochiltree County Herald.

Disability Review Board Alters Many Decisions

Organized by the secretary of war to review upon request the case of any officer retired or placed on inactive duty without pay for physical disability, the disability review board has reversed decisions of retiring or disposition boards in approximately 25 per cent of the 1,100 cases reviewed since September 1, 1944, the war department reports.

In each of the cases reversed by the disability review board, the officer was certified as entitled to receive the same retirement pay benefits now provided by law or regulation for officers of corresponding grade and length of service in the regular army. It was emphasized that retiring boards already have granted physical disability retirement pay to over 22,000 officers.

In many cases in which the disability review board reversed retiring boards' decisions, additional evidence and information was submitted which either had not been available or had not been presented at the time retiring boards took action.

Officers retired or on inactive duty without pay for physical disability and who desire review of retiring or disposition boards' findings should inform the adjutant general, Washington, D. C., in writing. Such applicants if entitled under the law to have their cases reviewed are sent formal application blanks. When these are returned, properly executed, the adjutant general's office assembles all pertinent records of the applicant, including clinical records of any hospital in which the applicant may have been treated, and any physical examinations made of the officer.

Assembled records are referred to the review board, which then sets the date and time for hearing of the case at least 30 days in advance, and so informs the applicant and his counsel, if he is to be represented by counsel.

Farmers Are Cautioned Against Land Purchases

It will pay many farmers to invest in the land they already own rather than to buy more acres. "With land prices at high levels in most areas, expenditures for improving or stabilizing the income prospects frequently will bring better returns than the purchase of unneeded additional land," is a word of caution offered by Norman J. Wall, department of agriculture specialist in Agricultural Finance.

"The significant increase in farm output during the war," Wall continues, "has taken heavy toll of soil resources. Expenditure for lime and fertilizer to restore and increase productive capacity of these farms will prove to be a sound investment. The practices that have been developed in recent years for building up the carrying capacity of pastures have demonstrated that expenditures for pasturage improvement can materially stabilize and increase the farm income."

Poultry Values Vary

Food value of poultry meat may vary among different cuts and among different birds, depending on age and degree of fattening. All lean poultry meat has been given an excellent rating in vitamins B and G, a good rating for the pellagra-preventing factor and a good source of copper. Like other lean meat it is a superior source of protein and is rich in phosphorus. The dark meat of poultry is rich in iron. A generous serving of poultry meat might supply all of the protein, phosphorus and iron necessary to meet the daily requirements of an adult man.

Radiate Atomic Light

Every element in nature radiates its own special atomic light when heated, which can be identified and analyzed by means of a special optical instrument known as a spectroscope. The light given off by any one of the 92 elements that make up the universe is different from the light of any one of the other elements.

"The spectroscope unquestionably is the most important scientific device yet invented to extend human vision and understanding," Better Vision institute declares.

Rich in History

Salonika, ancient and cosmopolitan "city of a thousand sails," is rich in history. An important Greek colony, it was a busy Roman port, and became the second city of the Byzantine empire. Sacked by the Saracens in 904 and by the Normans in 1185, it later fell into the hands of the Venetians. The Turks took the city in 1430 and ruled it for nearly 500 years. A beautiful white tower-fort, built by Suleiman the Magnificent at the height of Turkish power, still stands guard over Salonika.

Something From Nothing

When the feet of heavy wool socks become too worn for further wear but the tops still are in good condition, convert them to lounging socks or slippers to wear around the house in cold weather. To make the slippers, cut padded soles out of an old felt hat or scraps of leather or chamol; then sew the uppers of the socks to the soles. Finish the edge with colorful blanket stitches. And for a bit of decoration, embroider the front in gay colors.

"SILLY VOTERS"

We saw a newspaper article the other day on the "silly voters." The conclusion of the writer was that when we elect rich men to public office we are silly. The writer has not yet learned that not all rich (?) men are crooks; and he certainly would not maintain that all poor men are honest. There are probably more crooks among the poor than among the rich. But the matter of riches is a matter of surroundings. In the slum district the man with $5,000 is a rich man; in Canyon we gauge riches by a few hundred thousand; while in Wall Street it takes millions of dollars to be classed as a rich man. It's the man and not his wealth, that determines his fitness to be a precinct officer, or President of the United States. Sometimes we have "silly" writers instead of "silly voters."—Canyon News.

Have you ever thought of this? Most people think that the classified columns of your newspaper are useful only to those who have something to sell. The last war years have taught millions that little inexpensive wantads can also be extremely useful to people who want to buy. No matter what you and your family want to buy, run a classified ad of your own, telling exactly what you want and how much you are willing to pay for it.

A CHEAP VACATION

The papers are full of holiday suggestions these days.

We have our own recipe for the most satisfactory holiday possible. The recipe is this:

Go down to the office and pile a lot of work on your desk. Then put your feet up on the desk and dreamily contemplate the work without doing a thing about it.

This holiday is not only soul satisfying, but it is also inexpensive.

You have peace and rest—but also a slightly restless, guilty feeling that the deacon at his summer cottage feels when he stays away from church.

Not only does our kind of a holiday give all the best features of other holidays with none of their drawbacks—there is still another attraction.

Your boss thinks you are working.—Toronto Telegram.

DO YOU think it can't be done? How much says no?"

"Fifty bucks." Hunk Dawson dug his trousers' pocket and produced a roll of bills. "Fifty smack—say your boy don't stay 12 hands with Mike," agreed Grant.

"O. K. I'll take it," agreed Grant. "Joe Steck can hold it."

Logan the gym Logan watched the Hill dig his gloved fists into the canvas surface of the heavy canvas fight for you Friday night. "Got a fight for you Friday night with Red Mike Croseau," he announced in a matter-of-fact way.

"What do we get out of it?" "Peanuts," blandly said Logan, examining his nails.

"Then what're we takin' it for?" "Then through enough prelims and semi-finals to land something decent now. Maybe I need a new manager!"

"Hold it!" snapped Logan. "Red may be eight years older than you, but he's in good shape and he can last in your ears any day. And the smart money lads know it, especially since you lost that last one to Kennedy."

"I wasn't feelin' right for that one, but I'm in top shape now."

"Top shape, huh? Do you think you hours a day in the gym and the whole night in joints keeps you in shape?" Hill sucked in his breath as he took a long step toward his manager.

"Skip it and listen to me. We can bet this game if we use our heads. I've just bet 50 bucks on you to win, even money, with Red's manager."

"It's a cinch," assured Hill.

"That's what I want them to think—that I'm sure you can win. But we're going to bet our shirts on it. We know you're going to lose!"

"I'm going to what?" yelled Hill, closing the distance between them.

"Look, George," placated his manager. "Mary's a nice girl and a real looker, too. She won't wait forever. And, besides, there's that old shell wound in your shoulder. I'm really not sure that you can win. But I know that you can lose! I can raise about five grand and we should get better than even odds on it if we shop around a bit—on Red. I mean."

Hill searched Logan's face. Finally he nodded.

At the ringside Mary Varner watched the last preliminary bout. Blue-black curls looping from under a small hat contrasted oddly with the blue eyes.

At the opening bell for the main event both men came slowly from their corners. Croseau's chin was well hidden behind his upraised left shoulder. Hill circled his half-crouched opponent, blocked a left jab and countered lightly. Suddenly there was a sound like a wet dish rag slipping the flat surface of a wall. The blow had been short and vicious. Croseau teetered and fell. As the referee's arm came down for the 10th time he was still making awkward efforts to rise to his knees.

Logan stared in slack-jawed disbelief. As his right hand was being raised, Hill waved the other excitedly at Mary.

Logan thrust people savagely aside and entered the dressing room. He glared at the grinning boxer stretched on the rubbing table. "Hill," he ground out, "you're through—finished—washed up. Do you hear me? I thought that girl of yours would talk some sense into you! She crossed me," he fumed, his voice rising. "That simon-pure objection of hers about not wanting you to lay down, and then finally giving me the O. K. because she didn't want Red to flatten that pan of yours! I should have known better. But there is one thing I do know—you are through!"

Hill leaped off the dressing room table and seized both lapels of Logan's coat in his left hand. "I'm through, all right, Logan, because I'm quitting. I didn't know you propositioned Mary about your rotten deal or I'd have bashed you long ago. Fifty bucks guaranty of faith! That was a laugh. Since when have you cared what the fans think of your little deals so long as nobody can pin anything on you? You knew that I could whip Red. And after that spiel of yours I knew that you knew it. I bet on myself to win—and at better than three to one odds. And I'm goin' out like a man, not like a washed-out punk. Beat it while I'm feelin' good." His shove sent his ex-manager thumping into the closed door.

As they walked in the direction of Mary's home, Hill frowned.

"Mary, Logan tells me that he spoke to you about some dirty business that he wanted me to do."

"He did, darling, but I wanted you to decide for yourself. You may not have known it, but our future together was at stake."

"I did know it," came the equally sober reply. "One other thing. I can't see Logan tossing 50 dollars away to Dawson even to whitewash his crooked business."

"Remember where I work, darling! The county clerk's office. A month ago I filed an agreement about the management contract of a boxer—one Red Mike Croseau. It was signed by Logan and Dawson—a 50-50 arrangement. That 50 dollar bounced back to Logan like a rubber ball. But I'd like to see both their faces now."

THREAT TO SMALL BUSINESS

There is a war on between private business, which has to pay taxes, and co-ops which are tax free. At the end of 1944 the co-ops in the United States did more than six billion dollars worth of business, in competition with private enterprise, and had to pay no taxes.

There are 6078 purchasing co-ops operating stores, farm supply outlets and gas stations for 2½ million members; 7522 marketing co-ops with a business of 4½ billion dollars; 594 service co-ops running funeral parlors, hospitals, apartment houses, cold-storage plants, etc.; 18329 specialized co-ops, credit unions, telephone companies and insurance firms.

Besides these there are the wholesale co-ops, manufacturing and finance co-ops. The total business is estimated at 10 billion dollars, all tax free. The end is not in sight. Some of our leaders think that the cooperative movement will eventually lead to national socialism or to communism.

Be that as it may, right now there are seven million owners of small businesses who are protesting against supporting the government by paying high taxes, and at the same time having to compete against tax free co-ops—Hallettsville News Era.

Allan Shivers Runs For Lt. Governor On Qualifications

Senator Allan Shivers, leading candidate for lieutenant governor, is seeking election to that office solely on the basis of his qualifications.

Senator for a number of years, he established an excellent record of public service. A loyal Democrat and native Texan, he is a man of highest character and splendid personality. The majority of Texans believe he will renege credit and honor on the State of Texas.

Shivers, a war veteran of two campaigns of wide training and experience.

In every way, Allan Shivers, the legislator, lawyer, farmer and World War II combat veteran, is exceptionally qualified for the no. 2 state office. As a state years overseas, during which time he earned 5 battle stars, did his best to make this a free country for a free people. He will continue that course as lieutenant governor.

He has conducted a dignified campaign free of mud-slinging and personalities. His platform appeals to every Texan: Better farm-to-market roads, better salaries for school teachers, enlarged public safety facilities, a thorough public health program, redistricting of the state for legislative purposes, greater aid to the aged, real assistance to war veterans, reorganization of the pardon and parole system, a first class university for the colored, and equal responsibility from both labor and management. He is against a sales, income or any other form of new taxes.

Allan Shivers will be the lieutenant governor of all the people. In addition to integrity, sincerity and ability, he has a background of training and a record of public service already preformed which gives him the right to ask for promotion.

NO SENSE OF HUMOR

An incorrigible practical joker was hunting with a friend on a very hot day. The joker entered a farmhouse, while his friend waited outside, to get permission to hunt on the farmer's property. He received the farmer's permission, but was asked to shoot an ancient horse that lay in misery in the south pasture.

Making no mention of this to his friend, the joker complained of the heat and feigned dizziness as they reached the south pasture. Suddenly he stared hard, bared his teeth and raised his gun. "I think I'll kill that horse," he muttered. And before his horrified friend could stop him he had lodged a bullet in the horse's head. Then the marksman swung crazily and faced his friend. "Now," he said, "I guess I'll kill you."

Quickly the friend raised his rifle and shot the joker through the heart. Absolutely no sense of humor.—Variety.

THE Lane account was well worth going after. Mr. Hopkins told Mrs. Hopkins with him on the trip. A letter was sent ahead to the Lane office, so that he would be expected. Still, there was a disappointment.

"I'm so sorry that our buyer, Mr. Porterfield, was called out of town," the secretary told him. "But Mr. Porterfield recognized your name."

Mr. Hopkins broke in. "Don't tell me it's Roscoe Porterfield!"

"It is," she smiled. "He wants you at his home for dinner tonight. He'll arrive on an evening train. You know Mrs. Porterfield?"

"Oh, yes! And so does Mrs. Hopkins, who is with me."

"That's fine! I'll let you in on a secret," the woman said. "Mr. Porterfield is a great family man. A chatty evening with Mrs. Porterfield and the girls will just about catch the sale."

He went back to his hotel, and told Mrs. Hopkins. "It's a devoted family dear. We must be tactfully flattering. And—er—you'd better let me handle it." He laughed nervously. "After all, you're a housewife, with housewife's sense—lots of it. A good thing, but—er—different from business sense."

"Quite," said Mrs. Hopkins, who'd heard that speech many times. "And at that, Jenny Porterfield and I will have lots in common. Both housewives."

"Wait a minute," Mr. Hopkins was staring. "Did you say Jenny? Her name is Lorna."

"Lorna?" Mrs. Hopkins looked astonished.

"Lorna, certainly. Jenny was Roscoe's girl in Northville. A little dark girl. She was lame. Lorna was the tall beautiful blonde from Lake City."

They were perplexed. They did not know which one was Roscoe Porterfield's wife.

A tall blonde young girl met them at the Porterfield door. "Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins? Do come in. We're so sorry that Mother had to see a guest off. The train's a little late, and Daddy's coming on it so Mother's waiting."

When she disappeared to call her sisters Mrs. Hopkins whispered, "We're on a spot, dear. We've got to be careful."

"Nonsense," Mr. Hopkins laughed. "That tall blonde girl is surely Lorna's daughter."

"Suppose she introduces three or four little dark sisters?"

"She won't."

He was right. She returned with three tall blonde young girls, and Mr. Hopkins gave Mrs. Hopkins a triumphant glance. "Well, gals," he said, "I must say you take after your beautiful mother—"

"In many ways," Mrs. Hopkins broke in hastily. "We knew your father and mother when we weren't much older than you are now."

"Oh, do tell us about those days!" the girls begged. "You're the first old friends of Mom's and Daddy's we've met. Did you have fun?"

Sunburn Causes Many Ailments, Doctor Warns

Warning avid sun enthusiasts that sunburn may lead to a variety of skin diseases, Dr. George Clinton Andrews of New York, writing in Hygeia, health magazine of the American Medical Association, says: "Although sunburn is common it can be regarded in no other way than a severe injury to the skin. It is sometimes the forerunner of such diseases as piebald skin, tumors of the skin, chronic nontuberculous lesions of the skin and other skin disorders. Infection of the sunburn blisters may lead to impetigo and other infections of the hair follicles and boils."

"Sunburn prevention is accomplished by the application of creams, ointments, oils or lotions containing physical or chemical protective substances. These ingredients absorb ultraviolet radiation and although their action is insufficient to prevent completely the effects of prolonged exposure to the sun, they do materially diminish them."

The predisposition of certain types of skin to the development of skin cancer has been established by clinical observation. There is probably no fact regarding the cause of cancer better established beyond question or doubt than that habitual exposure to sunlight causes cancer in certain types of skin under certain conditions. Persons with fair skin are more prone to skin cancer than those with a brunette skin.

"One-third of all skin cancers occur on the nose and this may be due, at least in part, to the large amount of sunlight the nose receives. Cancer of the lower lip can be traced in practically all instances to habitual exposure to sunlight."

Egg Provides Variety Of High Food Values

"An egg offers an impressive lineup of food values," points out Miss Hazel Bartley, extension nutritionist. "It is in top class among proteins for tissue building and repair, along with foods like lean meat and milk. The egg yolk holds a rich store of iron for red blood cells, and phosphorus and other minerals besides. The fat of the yolk is of exceptional quality for good nutrition too. And in the vitamin alphabet, an egg offers three B vitamins—thiamine, riboflavin and niacin—plus vitamins A and D in varying amounts."

"Buy either white or brown eggs because they're equally good. Store eggs in a closed container in the refrigerator to keep them fresh and do not wash them before storing because washing removes the natural protective shell coating which helps to keep them fresh. There are many ways of preparing eggs and the secret of success is low cooking temperature. High temperature and overcooking toughen the protein, making the whites tough and the yolks less mealy."

Rhodes Scholarships

From the first award in 1904 until the wartime suspension in 1939, 1,126 students in 211 colleges of the U. S. won Rhodes scholarships to University of Oxford, England, according to a tabulation prepared by Frank Aydelotte, American secretary to Rhodes trustees and director of the Institute for Advanced Study of Princeton, N. J. The granting of Rhodes scholarships will be resumed next fall. Forty-one U. S. educational institutions had 10 or more of their students selected by the Rhodes award committees. Heading the list is Princeton university with 81 Rhodes scholarship winners. Other leaders, in order, are Harvard 46, Yale 43, Virginia 26, Brown 22, Dartmouth 20, Idaho 18 and Michigan 17. Arizona, Nevada, Washington (Seattle) and Wisconsin are bracketed with 15 each.

Missionaries, Traders

French penetration of Indo-China began in the 16th century, when various European missionaries and traders came into the region. Later, France gained special concessions by intervening in local struggles for power. But it was not until the 1850s and 1860s that occupation forces moved in on parts of the country. Cochinchina was the first area to be acquired, in 1862. Laos was the last, in 1893.

In the tropical jungles of French Indo-China, many a future military hero of France was trained and seasoned. Lyauté, empire builder of Northern Africa, and Gallieni, whose taxicab troops held back the Germans before Paris in the First World War, saw service there. So did Joffre, who was later to be made a marshal of France.

Lives on River

If the housing problem proves insurmountable, you always can follow the example of one Pittsburgh, Pa., resident—pack up your belongings and live on the river. Burton E. Squires, who has been a "resident of the Allegheny river" since 1942, doesn't even contemplate returning to land.

Squires' home—a 48-foot power cruiser—is anchored just above the "point" where the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers join in the heart of Pittsburgh. The "floating home" itself is equipped with the kind of modern conveniences most apartment dwellers dream of. They range from gas heat and electric refrigeration to a piano, and no taxes.

ROTTON BEST SELLERS

For much that I see and don't like in this modern day my younger friends apologize by blandly assuring me that "times have changed." They certainly have. Take for example the matter of obscenity and profanity. I had arrived at world war I, nearly 60 years old, before I ever heard a woman use profane language. It is true that from my childhood I have associated only with decent women. I maintain that practice still, but profanity of one form or another is not uncommon among women, especially younger women, with whom I am thrown.

Take another evidence that things have changed. When I worked in the Lockhart News-Echo 70 years ago if I had put an unexpurgated "cuss word" in the paper I would have lost my job. In making quotations from swearing men we were allowed to print "d—n" or "h—l" but nothing further. And to use the name of Diety in any form except that of reverence was absolutely taboo. There was no way by which you could camouflage it so as to get by.

In that day there was a salacious paper called the Police Gazette. (Whether it is still printed, I do not know). In its columns you could expect to find modified forms of obscenity, some times outspoken but usually implied. But today you do not need the Police Gazette for that sort of thing. In almost any secular newspaper or magazine you will find outright profanity and sometimes nasty obscenity, blatant and unashamed.

I am not running a newspaper but if I were, and gladly quoted big generals and other military heroes, I should delete all their "cuss words." I would do it for the sake of common literary propriety and for the sake of young boys and girls whom I would encourage to read my paper and whom I would not wish to familiarize with wicked words forbidden by both their mother and their Bible.

This article stems from a book I have just finished reading. Because I do not want to give it any free advertising, I shall not give its title or its author. But it is a novel widely advertised as a "book of extraordinary power, compassion and resolve." Allured by those words and other similar extravaganzas, I bought the book. The minute I finished reading it I wrote on the flyleaf these words: "I have read many books—good, bad and indifferent; but beyond all question this is the vilest book I ever read. It contains more bald, outright profanity and obscenity than all other books I have ever read examined. It contains over and over vile, obscene words that I had never seen in print and never heard used except by disreputable men in low dives."

I give this simply to illustrate the depths to which we have gone in this matter of censoring the mother tongue and revealing inner irreverence of attitude and impurity of thought. I am told that this undesirable condition is a hangover of the war. The war may have given an impetus to it but the war is not altogether to blame. This new tide of obscenity and profanity, both in conversation and in the press, was clearly evident before the war.

But whatever its source, am I wrong in feeling that good men and women should not indulge that sort of foolish, profitless, immoral putridity? Will not all who remember what is decent language join me in an effort to stem this sickening tide of vulgarity and profanity, whether in private conversation, on the platform, over the radio or in the press?—Jeff D. Ray in Star-Telegram.

A physician whose patients were mainly of the wealthier and idle class, was called to attend a society woman.

"Good morning, Mrs. New-wealth," he said in his usual courtly manner. "What can be the matter with you this morning?"

"Oh, doctor," she wailed, "I hardly know what to say. What is new?"

A young man once approached the Rev. S. Parks Cadman and asked him: "Would it be possible for me to lead a good Christian life in New York City on $20 a week?"

"My boy," said Cadman, "that's all you could do."

Uncle Sam Says

You are still at war one year after V-J Day. That's putting it bluntly, but I know from experience that you like straight-from-the-shoulder talk. Inflation at home has yet to surrender. United States Savings Bonds are still "War Bonds" in the battle for America's economic stability. You can combat rising prices by taking surplus dollars out of the market place. Your government has provided a safe, profitable vehicle for saving these extra dollars—United States Savings Bonds. By investing in Savings Bonds regularly you are building a better America and a better life for you personally. U. S. Treasury Department.

LACK OF SELF-DISCIPLINE

From observation, I'd say too much prosperity is bad for us. Money since is a golden mean between want for millions and the phoney dollar prosperity we now have.

I've never seen such spending and for such little returns. People literally throw their earnings away.

The more prosperity we have the more we waste on drinking and gambling, and the more greedy we grow. Thousands of veterans are forced to buy half-built houses for which they can never finish the payments. There's the kind of short sightedness that is sure to bring in a collapse. Nobody asks full value for his dollar. And it's this attitude, quite as much as what Washington does, that will cause inflation.

Also, there's less work done in our country than ever before; and more outright expressions of disinclination to work. Too many of us are calling on the government or OPA or the state to set up laws to regulate public behavior, without considering that the more laws we disobey, the more lawless we become.

I think we're just covering up for lack of self-discipline. Unless we get rid of the cheats, swindlers and chiselers by refusing to buy from them, we can't be saved from ultimate financial disaster by OPA or anything else. An economy not based on common sense will never work—and let's not forget that common sense in government is rooted in the people.—Mrs. Walter Ferguson in Fort Worth Press.

"CLEAR IT WITH SIDNEY"

Sidney Hillman (I don't know what his name was in asthma before he came to this country) was a big shot politician in the New Deal and the one man who was responsible for the rise of Harry Truman to the Presidency. But for "Clear it with Sidney Hillman, Truman would still be occupying his beloved Senate seat.

Mr. Truman said of him after his death, "He was more than a distinguished labor leader; he was a great humanitarian. His rise to eminence was a tribute to the democratic ideals for which he fought."

That is one man's opinion. Here is another, that of an editorial writer: "The fact is that he was trying to foist upon his adopted country a political ideology as foreign as it is distasteful. He loved the common man for the power that he could bring Hillman, and he used him to his full advantage. He was shrewd, crafty, persistent, and the blot he has left on American freedom, thought and action will not be easily removed."

Like that Great Humanitarian, his leader, FDR, he died at the climax of his career. Mr. Roosevelt could not have solved the problems of reconversion, and Sidney Hillman's CIO-PAC is on its way down and out.—Babee (Ariz.) Gazette.

The great big, beautiful car drew up to the curb where the cute little girl was waiting for a bus, and the gentleman stuck his head out the window and said: "Hello, I'm driving west."

"How wonderful," said the girl. "Bring me back an orange."

Are you making full use of your newspaper? No matter what you need and want—either goods or services, either customers or sources of supply, either new or used merchandise—merely running a little want-ad will soon get it for you. A want-ad in your newspaper is your personal representative, going right to so many homes and stores and offices and telling so many people exactly what you need or want, that the results are almost inevitable.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION

THE STATE OF TEXAS To: John L. Graham, GREETING: You are commanded to appear and answer the plaintiff's petition at or before 10 o'clock a. m. of the first Monday after the expiration of 42 days from the date of issuance of this Citation, the same being Monday the 7th day of October, A. D., 1946, at or before 10 o'clock a. m., before the Honorable District Court of Gray County, at the court house in Pampa, Texas.

Said plaintiff's petition was filed on the 30th day of July, 1946. The file number of said suit being No. 8376. The names of the parties in said suit are: Mrs. Mozelle Graham as plaintiff, and John L. Graham as defendant.

The nature of said suit being substantially as follows, to wit: Plaintiff alleges that she has resided in Texas more than twelve months immediately preceding the date of filing this petition and that she is now and had been for more than six months before the filing of said suit a bona fide resident and inhabitant of Gray County, Texas; that she and defendant were married on June 9, 1929; that there were born of said marriage four children, two of whom died in infancy, and two of whom are now living; that she was a dutiful wife but that defendant has been guilty of cruel and inhuman conduct toward plaintiff of such a nature as to render their further living together as husband and wife insupportable; that she seeks a decree of divorce giving her custody of said children.

If this Citation is not served within 90 days after the date of its issuance, it shall be returned unserved.

Issued this the 20th day of August, A. D., 1946. Given under my hand and seal of said Court, at office in Pampa, Texas, this the 20th day of August, A. D., 1946.
