Whatever the weatherman may say, indisputable proof that spring is truly here and summer is on the way comes from the ever-faithful circus, most reliable harbinger of fair weather to come. Farm Income Up for 1947

Farm cash income in Texas almost reached the $300,000,000 mark in the first four months of 1947 in spite of the fact that April income was 6 per cent below the 1946 April total. The seasonally-adjusted index computed by the University of Texas bureau of business research dipped to 296, since the March-to-April gain failed to come up to expectations. (Base: 1935-39=100).

April income reached $81,469,000 bringing the total for the year to date up to $277,277,000, or 11 per cent above the figure for the same months last year.

The 5 per cent March-to-April hike in farm cash income was a result of increases throughout the state, with the exception of declines in the northern high plains and in the lower Rio Grande Valley. The monthly reduction in the northern high plains was due to the sharp upswing in farm cash income in March, naturally followed by a decline. Greatest monthly per cent gains were in the Trans-Pecos district (156 per cent), south Texas plains (153 per cent), and Edwards plateau (86 per cent).

Cumulative totals for the period ending April 30 reflect different trends. Only declines were in the Trans-Pecos (44 per cent), southern Texas prairies (9 per cent), and the lower Rio Grande Valley (27 per cent). Gains ranged upward to the 91 per cent hike turned in by the northern high plains as a result of the heavy flow of livestock during March. Other significant increases were recorded in the western cross timbers district, the east Texas timbered plains and the coastal prairies.

The northern high plains logged up the greatest monthly total for April despite the per cent drop below the March level and came in first in total farm cash income for the period, with $49,971,000. The lower Rio Grande Valley was second with a total of $42,799,999 for the first four months of the year.

Gives You Texas

Some cynic said he'd rather know less than to know so many things that aren't so. I spent 12 years in school learning things and a good deal of the time since un-learning them. I was taught that the way to pronounce Nevada was "Ne-vah-duh," Colorado, "Col-o-rah-duh" and "Hel-ran-uh" for Helena, Montana. But talking to folks who come from those places, I find they are called "Ne-vad-uh," "Col-o-ray-do" and "Hel-enuh," respectively.

Patience, persistence, proportion, plus perspective, produce peace, personality, power and purpose.

Bike Riders Given Advice

With summer vacations here, boys and girls with bikes can help save lives if they observe traffic regulations and use common sense, reminds Dr. DeWitt Hunt, Oklahoma A. and M. College safety specialist.

Rules which Dr. Hunt believes will be helpful for the bicyclist to heed include:

1. Always keep your bicycle under control.
2. Carry only one person—the rider—on a regular bike and only two on a tandem with two seats.
3. Use the foot pedals for motive power and do not "hitch" rides on cars, trucks, or other such vehicles.
4. Ride single file or not more than two abreast.
5. If riding at night, always have a white light on the front of the bike and a red lamp and red reflector on the back.
6. Stop, as automobiles do, before coming from an alleyway into a street.
7. Look sharp before dashing out from behind parked cars or from behind objects which obstruct the vision.
8. Walk through badly congested traffic; it is better to be late than to not arrive at all.
9. Know and obey the traffic regulations in your town or city. It's smart to set the pace in good citizenship and you live longer, too.
10. Park your bike in a rack when one is available rather than letting it tie up sidewalk traffic. And if there are no racks downtown, maybe you can stir up a move to have one or more provided.
11. Keep your bike in good condition. Pride of ownership is a good quality to cultivate.
12. Do your trick riding well away from traffic, and then remember that you are inviting accidents that can be summer-long or lifelong in their effects.

Lazy Child May Be Fault of Parents

There are ways to get the adolescent child to help with the duties about the home without arguments, says Ruth Hoeflin, home life specialist at Oklahoma A. and M. College.

Adolescents are undergoing a good many physical changes, they develop dangling arms and big feet and often feel very ill at ease in a group. Growing so quickly they tire more easily so perhaps one reason they object to work is that they are too tired.

Sometimes a lazy child is the fault of the adult. When a parent suddenly says Saturday morning that dad wants the basement cleaned today or that there must be help with the waxing of floors, perhaps the child has already made other plans for the day. The adult has completely wrecked the plans of the child, has shown no interest or respect for the plans and has issued orders expecting immediate obedience. Some attention and respect should be given to the mental ability of the adolescent. The family can sit down and discuss the daily and weekly tasks that make up the housework. Together they can work out a schedule of when and how he can accomplish his share. More help with the work can be received with the use of this method, the home life specialist states.

THE FUN NITES

CONGRATULATIONS to those who are starting the "Fun Nites" for the teen-agers. The first one attracted a nice crowd and all the boys and girls seemed to enjoy it.

Most towns have some sort of summer recreation program, some of which are for the younger people only, some of which offer recreation for people of all ages.

Unfortunately, McLean has no such program. But the fun nites will take care of the teen-age crowd—at least one night a week. The other nights will not be so interesting, perhaps, but they can be spent by the teen-agers in anticipation of the next fun nite.

There will be some objections, of course, to the teen-agers fun nites, and this objection will come mainly from the fact that some people object to dancing. In the opinion of most people, dancing is a pleasant and un-harmful pastime, if properly supervised, but some people still do not believe it is wholesome entertainment. Those who object, naturally, are allowed their opinions, but since they are not very numerous, it is expected that this objection will not interfere greatly with the project.

Dancing, however, will not be the only type of recreation the teen-agers will have at the parties. There will be ping pong and other games of a similar nature, and those teen-agers who do not care for dancing, and there are many of them, can enjoy the other games.

All in all, the teen-ager fun nites should be well worth the time and effort spent in making them a success. Now we should look to some other type of recreation to take care of other groups. Because nearly everybody likes fun.

LES TALK

By LESTER

Last Friday morning at 11 o'clock those who died in battles in past wars were honored in memorial services held at the McLean High School auditorium. The services were very befitting of the occasion, not too long, but not well attended. Strangely enough, only about 80 people were present. It might be pointed out that World War II was over less than two years ago, but many people who suffered little by the war are already forgetting it—and forgetting those who did not come back. Personally, I did not expect many to attend the memorial services, but I had hoped a large crowd would. My hopes were to no avail. I was disappointed.

The citizens of Alameda are, and justly so, doing their best to get the new Highway 66 routing through town. Nothing definite on the location of the highway through Alameda, or through McLean either for that matter, has been announced but it appears on the surface that the highway will go north of the main street of Alameda several hundred yards. If this happens, one of two things will happen to Alameda—either the town will die out almost completely, or practically all business houses will be forced to move to the new highway.

People of McLean should not want Alameda to die out—I certainly do not. That community is home to many fine people. I haven't met them all, of course, but the ones I have met are very fine people, and they depend on the Alameda trade for their living. Many of them depend a great deal on tourist trade. We who live in McLean should do all we can to keep the town from dying out, if for no other reason than the fact that a large percentage of the Alameda people trade here. The second alternative is for the business houses there to move to the new highway, if it does not go through town. It isn't so simple to move that many businesses. The expense would be great, too great for many of them to bear. Should the highway miss the town, some of the business would move, but some wouldn't. Many of the business men there would be forced to close their doors, and their loss would be high. I'm no highway engineer. I don't know anything about what a highway should be, as far as specifications are concerned. But I am hoping that some way can be worked out to let the highway continue through Alameda. And it's my opinion that if we in McLean should do all we can to help get the routing of the Alameda citizens want. Not only would we be helping them in a humanitarian sense, but we would also be helping ourselves. Wisecrack: A bull's-eye is usually about the last part of a target to get worn out. And then someone recently made this remark: It's pretty hard to tell about prosperity—when the hog's the fattest it goes to the butcher. Another: You can usually manage to say the right thing at the right time if you'll keep your mouth shut most of the time. Mrs. Jim Back, who with Frank Wilson sponsored the McLean seniors this past year and who accompanied them on the trip to Galveston and other points south, insists that the mission which the group saw in San Antonio was not a mission but a beautiful cathedral. She also insists that the frequent night entertainment at spots were not carnivals but city playgrounds. Now I don't know about the mission, but I imagine that Coach Larry Sanders and I were wrong, for the missions I have seen in San Antonio were definitely not cathedrals and not very beautiful but drab instead. So I guess that Mrs. Back gets a mark ahead of the coach and me there. About this carnival thing, I haven't been to carnivals all over the state, nor city playgrounds either; but I did live in Galveston for a couple of months, and I always considered that seawall boulevard stuff a carnival. But I just looked up carnival in the dictionary and Webster defines it as a time of merrymaking, feasting, etc. Now I don't know. Maybe you're right, Mrs. Back, maybe it was a city playground. Maybe it was.

In lieu of the state ad valorem tax on property of Seven (7c) Cents on the One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars valuation heretofore permitted to be levied by Section 31 of Article 3, as amended, there is hereby levied, in addition to all other taxes permitted by the Constitution of Texas, a state ad valorem tax on property of Two (2c) Cents on the One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars valuation for the purpose of creating a special fund for the payment of pensions for services in the Confederate army and navy, frontier organizations, and the militia of the State of Texas, and for the widows of such soldiers servicing in said armies, navies, organizations or militia; provided that the Legislature may reduce the tax rate hereinabove levied.

"Also, there is hereby levied, in addition to all other taxes permitted by the constitution of Texas, a state ad valorem tax on property of Five (5c) Cents on the One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars valuation for the purpose of creating a special fund for the purpose of acquiring, constructing and initially equipping buildings, or other permanent improvements at the designated institutions of higher learning; and the governing board of each of such institutions of higher learning is fully authorized to pledge all or any part of said funds allotted to such institution as hereinafter provided, to secure bonds or notes issued for the purpose of acquiring, constructing and initially equipping such buildings or other permanent improvements at said respective institutions. Such bonds or notes shall be issued in such amounts as may be determined by the governing boards of said respective institutions, shall bear interest not to exceed three (3%) per cent per annum and shall mature serially or otherwise not to exceed ten (10) years from the first (1st) day of January of each year in which such funds are allocated or re-allocated to said respective institutions; provided, the power to issue bonds or notes hereunder is expressly limited to a period of thirty (30) years from the date of the adoption of this amendment; and provided further, that the Five (5c) Cent tax hereby levied shall expire finally upon payment of all bonds hereby authorized; provided further, that the state tax on property as heretofore permitted to be levied by Section 9 of Article VIII, as amended, exclusive of the tax necessary to pay the public debt, and of the taxes provided for the benefit of the public free schools, shall never exceed Thirty (30c) Cents on the One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars valuation. All bonds shall be examined and approved by the Attorney General of the State of Texas, and when so approved shall be incontestable; and all approved bonds shall be registered in the office of the Comptroller of Public Accounts of the State of Texas. Said bonds shall be sold only through competitive bids and shall never be sold for less than their par value and accrued interest.

"For the amendment to Article VII of the Constitution of the State of TEXAS, adding Sections 17 and 18 providing for the levying of a state ad valorem tax on property in lieu of the present state ad valorem tax of Seven (7c) Cents for Confederate pensions in order to create special funds necessary for the payment of Confederate pensions and for the financing of the construction and equipment of buildings and other permanent improvements at state institutions of higher learning, in the amounts of Two (2c) Cents and Five (5c) Cents respectively; providing for a Five (5c) Cent reduction of the maximum allowable state tax on property, making such tax not to exceed Thirty (30c) Cents on the One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars valuation; providing a method of payment for the construction and equipment of improvements and buildings at the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas and The University of Texas."

Dream On

Dream on, young lady. Dream of what tomorrow holds in store for you and those you love. Dream of the home and family that will be yours . . . of the happiness the years so richly promise.

But wait! Are day-dreams enough!

They merely give us visions of things hoped for—as yet unseen. Like the sculptor, who brings from rough-hewn rock the graceful lines of his once-untried dreams, we must shape and mold the character which will measure up to ours.

And even this is not enough!

To find the tools and skills with which to fashion the fullness of our dreams we must sit at the feet of the Master Sculptor, and learn from Him the art of fashioning life.

The Church reveals these priceless truths of God. The Church shows us how to use them . . . how to bring the real beauty out of life's roughness . . . how to improve each all-important detail until our dreams come true. Make the Church your workshop for molding a great tomorrow!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend and support the church of his choice. They are: (1) For his own sake, (2) For his children's sake, (3) For the sake of his community and nation, (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church on Sunday and read your Bible daily.

Food Pills Okay, But Fried Chicken Is Here to Stay

Vitamin pills, mineral extracts and other forms of concentrated food capsules will probably never replace the present more conventional human diet, according to Dr. R. C. Goodwin, arts and sciences dean and chemistry department head at Texas Technological College. And he gave numerous reasons to substantiate his theory.

In the first place, science has not yet learned to manufacture all of man's complex food needs synthetically, and probably never will. Even if this were possible, the synthetics would probably be too expensive to be practical.

Also, man's stomach could not function efficiently on a diet of thumb-sized pills—it needs to be literally full before digestive juices will flow.

Now if successive generations of man should choose to live exclusively on these concentrated capsules—if they were available—and finish filling their stomachs with hay to start the digestive process, the possibility exists that in a thousand years a man might evolve with a very small stomach capable of handling the food pellets alone.

But meanwhile little girls had best go right on learning to cook. It isn't very likely that men will pass up beefsteaks and French fries in favor of fodder.

So, professor, please pass the strawberries.

Doctor Warns Of Polio Cause

Dr. Geo. W. Cox, state health officer, has issued the following statements and suggestions concerning the control and prevention of poliomyelitis which is now occurring in certain sections of the state.

At one time it was generally believed that this infection was transmitted primarily by discharges from the respiratory tract. It is now believed that poliomyelitis may be another of the several gastrointestinal infections. Therefore, control measures must include clean-up campaigns and improvements in sanitation.

Stringent efforts should be made to eliminate house-flies, mosquitos and rodents, and destroy their breeding places. Every effort should be made to institute approved garbage collection systems, and secure safe water supplies. Where adequate municipal sewage disposal systems are not in operation, it is necessary to install and maintain sanitary septic tanks and outdoor privies.

All swimming pools should maintain those standards approved by the Texas state department of health. This includes maintenance of proper chlorine level. Where such standards are not maintained, those pools should be closed to the public.

All raw foods and vegetables should be washed thoroughly before use and protected from filth and insects. All food handling establishments should adhere strictly to the state law concerning the sterilization of dishes and utensils. Those restaurants with insufficient personnel to maintain proper sanitation, should close one or two hours a day so that employees can assist in maintaining cleanliness and high sanitation standards.

Approved milk supplies, rodent control measures, high sanitation standards, and strict personal hygiene are all important. Polio cases should be quarantined for 14 days and excreta from cases and contacts should be handled and disinfected with the same scrupulous care as in typhoid fever or bacillary dysentery.

Over-excitement in children should be avoided. Children should not visit homes where there is illness. It is advisable to reduce to a minimum all human contacts, especially in children during an outbreak of this disease. It is not advocated that schools, churches, and theaters be closed.

Early symptoms of infantile paralysis are headache, fever, vomiting, drowsiness, followed by stiffness in the neck and back. When suspicious symptoms appear, a physician should be called immediately.
