NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 18. (#9-The Texans, used to playing golf in the teeth of a booming gale, viewed with satisfaction today the heavy weather descending upon the $5,000 New Orleans open tour nament.

Although they cared little the "occasional rains" predicted for today, they believed the disturbance which caused high winds here and gales in their native state yesterday would increase their chances of taking major prize money, if it continued.

"If the wind blows it's Jimmy Demaret against the field," declared P. G. A. Champion Byron Nelson, a Fort Worth boy won living in

"It wouldn't be much fun playing in a high wind but it would in-crease my chances of winning," admitted Demaret, a Houstonian who came from behind to win the event last year.

WASHINGTON-Down at Henderson, Ky., they him "Hubby"-"Hubby" Kimmel.

Of course they expected him to make some kind of a mark for himself. The Husbands and the Kimmels were in the habit of doing that in the army. The trait dated back to the revolution.

But Hubby muffed his valedictorian speech when he was graduated from high school. He is the smallest of the Kimmels, too, a bit on the dumpy side compared to the rest.

Today, short-spoken Hubby Kimmel is the new dmiral of all three of Uncle Sam's fleets, especially the real one out in the Pacific. He has given all the Husbands and Kimmels something to shoot at.

Down Henderson way, they tell me, folks are sembering things about him that pointed the way to his later success in the navy-things they hardly noticed when Hubby was a kid.

For instance, he got hold of some engineering instruments and surveyed a farm from outhouse to creek bank while he was still in high school.

"It was correct, too," says Singleton, Hubby's brother, who still holds forth at the old family homestend.

They will tell you "Hubby" denies that he forgot that high school speech. After the diplomas were given out and the family had gone home, "Hubby's" father took him to task for not shining more brightly. "To think," he snorted, "that a Kimmel would forget his speech!"

"Heck," the lad explained, "I didn't forget a word of it. I just talked so fast that I ran out of breath."

The last time he was home in Henderson, he confided to his brother that he was restive chained to a desk job in Washington.

"Hell's fire," said the admiral, "If they don't duty.

Hollywood Sights and Sounds-This New Sex Angle Is Getting Tiresome

By ROBBIN COONS.

HOLLYWOOD-Don't ask me what it is, but there ought to be some new way for the movies to . . sh-h-h . . . get in a little SEX.

Anybody who's been to the movies lately knows what the current method is-and also that it's wearing itself and audiences out.

It's a simple formula for evading the suspicions of Mesurs. Hays, Breen, and associate guardiana of the public morale. It's a good formula, too-it always has been.

Once, however, it wasn't necessary. Once the movies could be more direct. Once Gloria Swanson could curl up alluringly on a leopard skin and give He has to marry her now, though-in the first reel or thereabouts, leaving plenty of footage for old-time SEX to have a romp in the remainder of the film. . . .

quence later

In these things there's usually a symbol. In "Come Live With Me" it's the firefly. Jimmy Stewart, trying to persuade Hedy Lamarr that he would like her as his wife in more than name only, occupies the adjoining bedroom to hers at Grandma's farm. He comes in to see that she's comfortable for the night, and he remarks about the fireflies in the gloaming, with scientific facts about the meaning of the fires. Then he leaves her with a finshlight, and it's just too whimsical.

Hedy gets to be Clark Gable's bride in name only in "Comrade X," although the adventure angle steals the play from the romantic. Maybe the makers playing sale-marrying them off just in case the adventure bogged down, in which event they could fall back on sex and symbolism to finish the picture. Perhaps the answer looms in a new, threatening cycle-the return of the gangster film. "Tall, Dark and Handsome" (with Cesar Romero spotlighted) .together with "High Sierra" (Humphrey Bogart-Ida Lupino) are new films on a once favored movie subject. The Romero essay is comic, the Bogart seriously melodramatic-and both are good. Meanwhile, we're used to the "continental" approach to film narrative. The main difference between Hollywood and European movies, they used to say, was that Europe's began with a marriage and Hollywood's ended with one.

Man About Manhattan-Six-Foot-Six Man Buys Trailerhouse

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK-Nell Reid has solved the problem of sleeping imposed by his grotesque height by buying a trailer and living in it with his wife. They are parked in that trailer camp at Ft. Lee, New Jersey, just a hop and two skips across the George Washington bridge, and are now quite happy.

Nell's problem is this: he is six feet six inches tall. When you play trombone for an orchestra, as he does with Woody Herman's orchestra, you have a lot of cross-country touring to do.

When you tour the country you run into a lot of small hotels that just aren't equpped with beds long enough for a six-foot-six man to sleep in.

So they bought the trailer. Nell plays the trombone all night and then hits his trailer for a sleep, while his wife, Betty, (formerly of Des Moines) drives

It is, he says, quite a load off his mind. Those top-notch comedy dancers (probably the best in the country) Paul and Grace Hartman, got their start in the profession as a serious act. They began in Los Angeles with one of the Ruth St. Denis ballet troupes and for three years tried to make a go of it as a straight ballroom dance team. But Paul was too homely. His carrot-colored hair and peter-pumpkin pan just naturally made people

One night at Ben Marden's old Riviers they decided to heave dignity out the window and go comedy whole hog. Marden was so angry he sent word backstage they were fired. But when he saw them and heard the crowd guffawing he changed his mind. Since that night on the banks of the Hudson they have been the town's goofs plus ultra.

That phrase "Ben Marden's old Riviera" is a story within itself. . . . The new club, as this corner has often and loudly proclaimed, is the most beautiful nightclub in the world . . . the old one wasn't bad either. . . . But Ben got big hearted as he usually does around Thanksgiving, opened the place and prepared 500 turkey dinners for homeless men. That night the place caught fire and burned to the ground.

Pardon us for going academic, but you can win bets with this one . . . if you know how, to spell. The longest non-scientific word in the English language is said to be anti-disestablishmentarianism. ... Another poser: Where was the first White House situated? Answer: In New York at the tip of Manhattan. . . . It was where the Battery is today and where you will also find the Aquarium, s small park, and some ferry boat piers.

At the other end of Manhattan, where the Spuy ten Duyvil empties into the Hudson, you will find a wooded hill and on it the oldest tree in Manhattan-a tulip tree. It is said the Indians used to meet there, and, according to legend, Henry Hudson used the place as a camping site.
