for a cutting down on the amount of salt in the diet. In fact, since salt has received so much publicity in the past few years as one of the items not to eat at time of certain illnesses, many of you might get the idea that it would be better to cut out salt while you're in good health, too. Salt is essential to life. There is practically nothing living that doesn't contain salt. Because nearly all foods contain salt (or sodium, as it is called), it would be impossible to cut salt out of the diet completely, even if such a thing were desirable.

The aim of the body is to keep the salt level of the body fluids at 85 per cent. That is the amount of salt in the body fluids of healthy persons. When this level changes, it shows up in the blood. The kidneys are the chief regulator of the salt level, either retaining salt when the level gets too low or throwing off excess salt. Kidney disease, therefore, is likely to change the function of the kidneys to such an extent as to throw the salt level out of kilter, which in turn affects the whole body.

Other organs of the body also have an effect upon the kidneys, of course, so that with improper functioning of such organs as the adrenal cortex (the capsule that sits on top of the kidney), the heart, or the liver, usually there is a change in the salt level of the body.

When salt is retained in the body, water is retained with it, usually creating a swelling of the various parts of the body which is known as edema; dropsy is an example. To get the body back to normal, medical treatment is aimed at restoring that salt level by getting rid of the retained salt and water.

Along with other treatments, a diet which cuts down on the amount of salt eaten is usually prescribed because the body will use up the salt it has stored away if too little salt is taken in; as the stored salt is called into action, the water it dams is also removed from storage.

No one should undertake a restricted-salt diet without the advice of a physician. When such a diet is prescribed, however, it should be faithfully followed. Kidney trouble, heart trouble, and high blood pressure are usually thought of as the leading diseases which make a low-salt diet necessary, but many doctors will prescribe the diet for a number of other ailments, also.

Depending upon the amount of salt which must be cut from the diet, there are schedules of foods to eat which vary from highly restrictive to just adding no extra salt at the table. That is a matter between each patient and his doctor as to how much salt must be eliminated. There are, however, certain foods which are lower in salt content than others; they usually form the basis from which to work on eliminating items on a salt-restricted diet.

All salted foods, naturally, come off the list first—salted nuts, potato chips, and the like. Canned foods which have had salt added in the canning process are also often eliminated, but special saltless canned foods are available now in most grocery stores.

Meats and dairy products are nearly all high in sodium. Those which contain the least include lean beef, lean lamb, and lean pork (smoked pork is omitted); chicken breast, duck breast, and turkey breast; veal, venison, beef liver, pigeon, rabbit loin and foreleg, sweetbreads, tripe, and turkey leg. Butter (unsalted), cream, egg yolk, and milk are the least salty of dairy products.

Other foods which are basically low in sodium content include: Beverages—the cola drinks, cocoa, coffee, fruit juices, ginger ale, cereal drinks, tea and wines.

Fats and oils—unsalted beef drippings, unsalted butter, vegetable oils, olive oil, and salad oil.

Cereals and cereal products—arrowroot, pearl barley, cornflour, cracked wheat, cornmeal, farina, white flour, macaroni, malted oatmeal, puffed rice, puffed wheat, rice, sago, semolina, shredded wheat, soya flour, tapioca, and wheatena.

Fruits—all except those to which salt or sodium benzoate have been added.

Vegetables—same as for fruits, except that celery, beets, dandelion, kale, mustard greens, spinach and sauerkraut are often eliminated.

Sugar and preserves—plain chocolate, dry coconut, sugar, jam, honey, jelly, and marmalade.

Fish—all except shellfish and oysters. No salted fish or smoked fish are low, of course.

Nuts—any that haven't been salted.

Condiments—allspice, caraway, cinnamon, curry powder, garlic, mace, mustard powder, nutmeg, paprika, pepper, peppermint extract, sage, thyme, tumeric, vanilla extract, and vinegar. Prepared flavorings are not included, nor are onion salt, celery salt, and garlic salt.

George Terry and Paul Sutton attended a Hot Point service school in Amarillo last week.

Miss Irma Fulbright, who is teaching at Seminole, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Fulbright, over the week-end.

HOT FUDGE SHORTCAKE

If no one in your family is counting calories, here is a dish to delight everyone. It is an irresistible combination of ice cream, cake, and hot fudge sauce that will please any sweet tooth.

Cake
 1/2 cup sifted all-purpose flour
 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1 cup sugar
 1/2 cup margarine
 1/2 cup milk
 2 eggs
 1/2 teaspoon vanilla

Mix together the flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Add the margarine and about one-half of the milk. The margarine should be left out of the refrigerator long enough to reach room temperature. Beat for two minutes. If an electric mixer is used, set at medium speed. Now, add the remaining milk, unbroken eggs, and vanilla. Beat for two more minutes. Pour the batter into an 8" x 8" x 2" pan or a 11" x 1 1/2" x 2" pan which has been margarine and floured or lined with waxed paper. Bake in a moderate (350 to 375° F.) oven for about 25 to 30 minutes. Turn out on a cake rack to cool slightly.

Split layers of warm cake. Place a scoop of ice cream between pieces of the cake and top with hot fudge sauce.

Donley County—PMA NEWS

Winter Legumes and Rye

The winter cover crop practices have been approved for Texas under the 1952 Agricultural Conservation Program. Winter legume seed must be properly inoculated with fresh inoculants and seeded not later than December 1, 1951. Phosphate must be applied at a rate of not less than the equivalent of 200 pounds of 20% superphosphate per acre, except on land where there has been an application of phosphate to some prior crop within such time that the residual effects are still available. Rye should be seeded at the rate of not less than 60 pounds per acre. A stand and growth that would justify harvesting as a feed crop must be obtained. The crop must be left on the land or turned under. A volunteer crop will not qualify. The payment on the rye practice is $2.00 per acre.

Be sure to obtain a written approval before seeding the legumes or rye.

County-Wide Meeting

The county-wide meeting on the family farm policy review was held Friday, September 7. There were 30 present. This was the last meeting to be held on the farm policy review before making the report. The report is being compiled this week and will be mailed to the state office at the end of the week.

Deep Plowing

If you have not made your application for deep plowing, don't forget to do so before the end of September. This is applicable only to the farmers who have not had deep plowing assistance in the past.

ACP Provides Spark for Observation

Most farmers realize the need for soil and water conservation but often they can do little about it because the many calls on farm income leave little for investment in erosion control, soil-talking, and water-conserving practices.

The educational work of the Extension Service and the demonstration of the Soil Conservation Service have brought to the attention of most farmers the need for conservation. But too often the farmer is faced with a multitude of decisions on the use of the limited income from the farm. The machinery and equipment now in use on most farms have speeded up many farming operations, but they have also added materially to the expense of operating the farm. In addition, such items as taxes, labor, cost of marketing, seed, repairs, and replacement of fences, buildings, bins, granaries, and so on are formidable items that draw heavily on the available cash.

Many of these expenditures often are more urgent than building an erosion control dam or terracing a field. The farmer knows they are important and that his farm will be improved by them, but the other things come first.

The agricultural conservation program is of special importance to such farmers. By sharing the cost of conservation practices it often tips the decision in favor of carrying out needed practices. It is the most effective means so far discovered in this country to assure that food and fiber production will keep up with increasing needs.

Mr. and Mrs. Joy Masterson and daughters of Dallas are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bailey.

Lester Carter left this week for Abilene, where he will enroll in Hardin-Simmons University for the fall term.

Bath time can be fun for both mother and baby, but mother should take care to set the right note at the start. Most babies seem to take naturally to their baths, but at a time when everything is new and strange to them they need the feeling of security that only a confident, unharmed and cheerful mother can provide. Mother should talk gently and reassuringly to her little squirmers while she lathers him and rinses him off. If she laughs at his first tentative kicks and splashes he will be encouraged to laugh with her. She must hold him firmly to keep him from slipping down into the water, and to support his head and back, but a firm hold does not mean a tight clutch. Baby will struggle against a hold that is uncomfortable or that suggests tension on the part of the holder. If all tension has been avoided, and baby has been encouraged to laugh, gurgle and splash while he is being bathed, he will love the after-bath lotion routine, the over-all application of a pure oil-and-water emulsion with lanolin and antiseptic added, which helps protect his tender skin from chafing, prickles and diaper rash. Unhampered by clothing, he will be free to stretch, kick and squirm while mother uses a cotton ball moistened with the lotion, to pat the lotion into each tiny crease and fold. As baby gets older he will enjoy a floating toy in his bath. When he is old enough to graduate to the family bathtub some of the water can be let out after he has been bathed, and he can be allowed to play and splash about in the remaining five or six inches, while mother keeps a careful watch to see that all goes well.

GOOD HEALTH

Answer to Question No. 1:
 1. Yes, fat people have more falls and other accidents than persons of normal weight. But there are other dangers in excess weight, in addition to the tendency toward accidents. Fat kills in two ways, by promoting disease and by making various diseases more deadly. These factors add to the long list of reasons for maintaining reasonable weight, in addition to the factor of appearance.

Answer to Question No. 2:
 2. In comparison with 1930 there is very little smallpox in the United States today. Statistics show a total of 34 cases last year in comparison with 43,907 cases in 1930—a triumph for immunization and one of the great victories in public health.

Answer to Question No. 3:
 3. A stomach ulcer is a small area of the stomach wall where living tissue has been destroyed. The exact cause is unknown but there are several contributing factors common to many cases. There is a tendency in some families toward ulcers. If a person abuses his stomach constantly by eating his food too hot or too cold, by failing to chew it properly or by eating too highly seasoned foods he may develop an ulcer. Emotional pressure is blamed by many doctors. (Copyright 1951 by Health Information Foundation)

Child Labor Law for Agriculture To Be Enforced, Official Says

When the school bell rings this fall, federal officials are going to be making extra efforts to see that employment does not interfere with education.

Employment of children under 16 years of age in agriculture during school hours is unlawful under the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act. William J. Rogers, regional director of the Wage, Hour and Public Contracts Division of the U. S. Department of Labor in Dallas, says his staff plans to enforce the law this fall as it did last year. His region includes Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, and New Mexico.

He pointed out that the law applies directly to farmers whose crops or products, either directly or indirectly, go into interstate or foreign commerce. He illustrated the matter with the case of a farmer who sends his product outside the state or delivers his product to a gin, processor, canner, or dealer who will send it outside the state—either in its original form or as a part of another product.

The law does not apply to a farmer's own children working on their parents' farm, he said. But if farmers hire other under-age children during school hours, the farmers themselves are responsible, he declared.

By "school hours" is meant the hours when school is in session for the district where the employed children under 16 currently are living, he explained. That includes children hired either as individuals or as part of a family group directed by labor contractors, processors, others. It includes both own and alien children.

The federal law sets the minimum age for the employment of children in agriculture before after school hours on any day, or at any time on any holiday, or during school sessions. But most states have school attendance laws and, ever statute, federal or state, the higher standard governs matter in any given state, says.
