

Jimmy Mattern Lands Safely In Omsk, Siberia

Moscow Hears He Will Spend Night In City

San Angelo Round-World Aviator Continues Piling Up Records

OMSK, Siberia (AP) — James Mattern decided after landing here early Tuesday that he needed rest, and went to bed, announcing he would continue his flight Wednesday morning.

OMSK, Siberia (AP) — James Mattern, San Angelo, Texas, flier, landed here at 5:35 a. m., eastern standard time, Tuesday, from Moscow, a distance of about 1,400 miles.

He negotiated the flight without stopping, averaging 120 miles per hour.

MOSCOW (AP) — Dispatches received here Tuesday said James Mattern plans to remain in Omsk until Wednesday. Reason for the decision was not given.

MOSCOW — James Mattern was racing into the black-clad east Tuesday toward Omsk, Siberia, after taking off from here at 1:14 a. m. on the fourth leg of his attempt to hang up a new world circling speed record.

The American aviator slept only two hours after his arrival yesterday afternoon from Oslo, Norway, but was forced to remain here nine hours and 17 minutes because of delays in servicing his plane.

Soviet officials refused him permission to fly the shorter route to Alaska via Yakutsk because of unfavorable conditions. He is following the same route taken by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, who established the world-girdling record of eight days, fifteen hours and 51 minutes in 1931.

Five Hour Ahead (Mattern left Moscow five and a quarter hours ahead of the standard set on the Post-Gatty flight. He was three hours ahead in reaching Moscow. Post and Gatty stayed there 11 hours and 30 minutes.)

Mattern's course will take him on two more long over-water hops—the sea of Okhotsk and the Bering sea—after leaving Khabarovsk. His immediate goal, Omsk is 1,465 miles east of Moscow.

By taking the longer route, he will have the advantage of traveling the regular air route through Siberia which affords more landing facilities and follows closely the trans-Siberian railway. This will give the aviator a better chance to stay on his course.

Asked his reaction to surmises aboard that he was lost when he was unreported for some time after landing in Norway Sunday, Mattern said: "I fooled them didn't I?"

He ended his trans-Atlantic hop from New York on Jonfruland off the east coast of Norway at 4:35 a. m. Eastern Standard Time Sunday. Sixteen hours and 43 minutes later he flew to Oslo, Norway. At 12:40 a. m. Eastern Standard Time he took off for Moscow, arriving here seven hours and 17 minutes later.

He was 60 hours and 54 minutes out of New York City when he lifted his red, white blue winged plane into the east early today.

He had intended flying to Novosibirsk from here but decided against it when he learned the landing field there might be too small.

The San Angelo, Texas, flier, describing his battle with the storm, he had been forced to break his only two vacuum bottles, shortly after the outset because he discovered they were magnetized.

That prevented him from having his sip of tea, which with fruit comprised his only ration during the flight to Norway.

Friends here contributed other vacuum jugs which permitted him to start off from Moscow with hot tea.

Asked whether he was able to sleep at the first round the world stop, Mattern answered affirmatively and then outlined an ingenious arrangement which permitted him to catch "forty winks" in the air at various times.

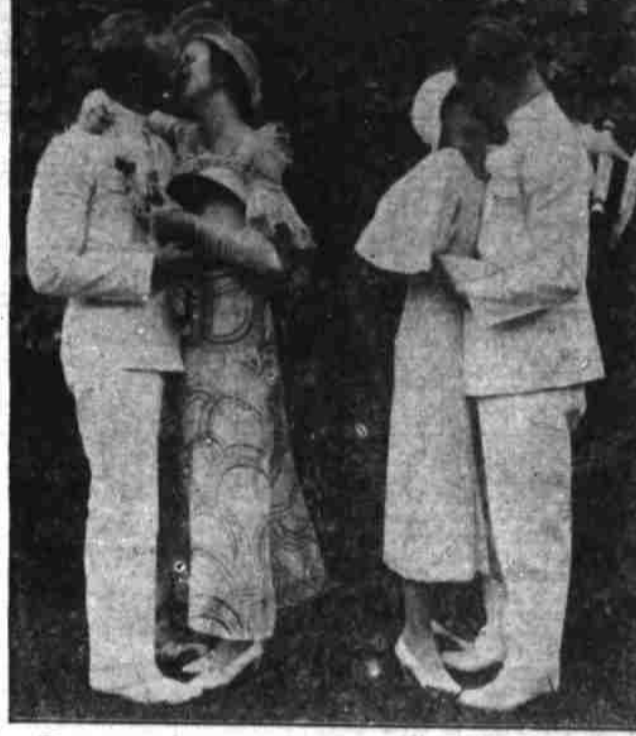

"I fixed rubber bands to my stick from the compass rose, allowing sufficient margin to provide for a slight drift in the right," he explained. "Then I crossed my legs and with my right foot put a slight pressure on the left foot, which equalized the drift and kept the plane on an even course. That's the way I got my compass."

Although his main purpose is to make the first round the world solo flight, he said he was nevertheless to do his best to beat Post and Gatty's mark.

Airport officials delivered a telegram to Mattern just before his departure.

Cosden Refinery Resumes Full Operations For Brief Period; Future Plans Still Undecided

Hundred And Two Men Now On Payroll—Cosden Abandons Hope Of Assistance From Big Spring

Cosden Oil Corporation now is operating all stills at its refining plant here. E. J. Mary, superintendent, said Tuesday. The activity at the refinery will continue for a short, but indefinite period, he said. Approximately 80 men were returned to work, bringing the total now employed in all departments of the refinery to 102.

No more definite information regarding J. S. Cosden's plans for rebuilding the refinery has been received. He reached New York Sunday night and was to confer there Monday and Tuesday with directors of the corporation. It was thought something definite might be announced late in the week. It also was stated that Mr. Cosden's appeal to local people to aid by buying company bonds in rehabilitating the company properties in order to resume normal operations had thus far fallen entirely upon deaf ears. Mr. Cosden had abandoned hope of any local assistance, it was learned.

Investment Representative Of Insurance Company Opening City Bonds Compliments Community

Big Spring's credit is entirely sound and the records of the city government "are the cleanest I have ever seen," said Bing Wolson of Fort Worth, city investment representative of the Bankers Life Insurance company, here Monday. Mr. Wolson stopped to meet City Manager E. V. Spence and City Secretary Merle J. Stewart at the suggestion of his company, which owns approximately $165,000 of City of Big Spring bonds. An account of the unusually sound financial condition of this city, recently carried on the Bond Buyers Bulletin, prompted Bankers Life officials to have him visit local officials. Confab Set On Highway Preparation

County Commissioners And Engineer Reported Disagreeing

Federal highway aid may be given Texas in July, enabling the state highway department to let many contracts for construction. However, it is now extremely doubtful if Howard will be among the fortunate counties.

It is a known fact that the highway department will be adverse to letting the contract for highway No. 9 in Howard without jointly letting contract for the same road through Glascock, linking the Sterling and Howard segments of the Glacier to Gulf highway.

Moreover, there exists a strong desire on the part of the highway commission to let a contract for construction of rerouted highway No. 1 through this county simultaneously with awarding of No. 9 contracts.

While there has been no official survey presented the county commissioners court, it is reported the court does not concur in the rerouted route understood to have been decided upon for Highway No. 1 from here to the eastern county border.

W. A. French, district highway engineer, is scheduled to appear before the commissioners court at 1 p. m. Thursday to ascertain attitude of the court on the proposed route. A nattempt will be made to straighten out all disagreements.

Should the commissioners court accept the route proposed, it will be a near impossibility to procure right of way in time for the July letting of contracts.

Mr. Neer, representative of the state highway department, was here Monday evening preparatory to making a final check on right of way on highway No. 9 through Glascock county. He will attempt to reach a satisfactory agreement with dissenting property owners before condemnation proceedings. Thus far it has been necessary to file proceedings against only two property owners.

First Lady In Tuscon, Ariz.

Flight Westward Completed Late Monday, After Eventful Stops

TUCSON, Ariz.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, smiling and graceful, dropped down here Monday for breakfast, greeted friends and relatives, then continued her airplane trip across the country to see her son, Elliott.

Her special plane streaked away from the municipal airport 1 hour and 20 minutes after she landed and it made good time toward El Paso, stopping, however, at Abilene and Big Spring. The first lady of the land planned to meet Elliott and Mrs. Greenway, a close friend, at Tucson, Ariz.

Among those who welcomed her to the Lone Star state were Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson and her husband, James E. Ferguson, a former governor. Amon G. Carter, Fort Worth publisher, introduced them.

House Due To Adopt Senate Vets Pay Plan

Substitute By President May, However, Be Passed

WASHINGTON (AP)—After an executive meeting of the Democratic steering committee, Speaker Rainey told reporters Tuesday the house would accept the Connally 25 per cent veterans amendment to the independent offices bill or a substitute proposition to be offered by the president.

The Connally amendment adopted by the senate provides allowances for service connected disabilities shall not be cut more than 25 per cent.

WASHINGTON — A widening breach between President Roosevelt and congress over veterans allowances threatened Monday to shatter the administration's legislative program and indefinitely prolong the extra session of congress.

While house leaders called a joint meeting of several committees for tomorrow to discuss the president's demand that new taxes be imposed to keep the budget in balance if veterans' compensations are to be increased, a protest was made in the senate against the speech of Louis Howe, one of the president's aides, in which he assailed last night the senate limitations upon veterans' cuts.

The senate amendment to the independent offices bill limited to 25 per cent the amount of reductions that may be made in service connected cases.

Senator Cutting (Rep., N. M.), one of those who supported the president in the campaign, said: "I feel that what Mr. Howe did transcend dispute and that no one feels that the president's secretary ought to be discussing with the people of the United States any action of congress."

"If the president feels he should oppose it, he has that constitutional privilege and constitutional duty. Whatever action — the president should take it on his own responsibility and name."

Howe said last night, while Mr. Roosevelt was giving his views to democratic house leaders, that the anticipated $170,000,000 outlay under the senate limitation would cost each individual in the country, directly or indirectly, $1.25 in taxes.

Speaker Rainey and Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, the democratic leader, said today a majority of the house favored the 25 per cent reduction amendment and expressed concern that the limitation might be further reduced to 15 per cent when the supply bill is brought up later in the week to be sent to conference for adjustment of differences between the senate and house.

The democratic leaders plan to discuss the entire situation at a joint meeting tomorrow of the steering committee, the special veterans committee and Chairman Buchanan (Dem., Tex.) of the house appropriations committee.

ON VACATION Ray Chambliss, chief clerk of Texas Electric Service company, leaves Wednesday for points in New Mexico and Colorado on his vacation. He will visit Century of Progress exposition in Chicago while on his vacation. He will be gone about three weeks.

Plans Being Pushed Here

Brief Being Prepared For Application To U. S. For Loan

Despite the president's public works proposal still pending in congress, plans for a self liquidating loan for a natatorium here are still progressing slowly.

In event the public works proposal supplants the self liquidating loan provision, it is understood this city will apply for the natatorium as a public work.

Pending receipt of completed plans for the project, brief is being prepared. Recommendations of two local banks have already been received.

Four Months May Be Used For Hearing

Allred's Action Directed At Fifteen Large Oil Companies

AUSTIN (UP) — J. D. Moore, Travis county district judge, Tuesday set the state's suits against fifteen oil companies and two petroleum marketing associations for October 2.

Attorney General Allred estimated it would require four to five months to try it. The state claimed the defendants had conspired together in promulgation of a code of business practices to defeat Texas anti-trust laws.

Morgan Probe Groups Seeks More Powers

Would Inquire Into Income Tax Returns Of Firm's Partners

WASHINGTON (AP) — The senate committee investigating J. P. Morgan and Company decided Tuesday to ask additional power to inquire into stock transactions of the firm partners affecting their income tax returns.

In a closed session the committee adopted a resolution expressing "sense" of the committee it should inquire into stock transactions affecting the taxing powers of the government.

WASHINGTON — A temporary indecision over whether to look into the income reducing stock sales of a Morgan partner and his wife Monday turned the senate's investigation of J. P. Morgan and company into a study of the part the banking concern had in the development of the Van Swearingen railroad empire.

After the committee had deferred until Tuesday a decision upon whether to have Thomas S. Lamont testify on stock sales he made late in 1930—sales that were reflected in his income tax return for that year. O. P. Van Swearingen related the story of the development of the railroad holdings of himself and his brother, M. J. Van Swearingen.

Two Million Loan His testimony given in response to questions by Ferdinand Pecora, the committee counsel, related how the vast Van Swearingen railroad holdings had grown up from a $2,000,000 cash loan obtained in 1915.

After an hour's debate in closed session between John W. Davis, counsel for Morgan, and Pecora, a committee decision on the income tax question was put over until Tuesday.

Committee members said no claim of illegality was raised by Pecora. Davis was said to have cited the law against publication of income tax returns in challenging the committee's authority to pursue the matter.

Veterans

Mr. Roosevelt scared the senate into compromising on its Veterans revolt. That seems like a harsh charge to make because nothing was said openly. What happened behind the scenes is subject to no milder interpretation.

The President heard the boys were organizing against him. His leaders told him he was scheduled to get to one licking. They told him that they could not possibly stop an amendment limiting him to a 15 per cent Veterans reduction.

Mr. Roosevelt said: "Fine, fine. I shall take the radio Sunday night and lay my case before the people."

The senator to whom Mr. Roosevelt told that, spread the word around the senate chamber. Members of the House heard about it and drifted over. At no time this session were legislators more excited on the inside. They were in a tight place.

Veterans back home had been writing them for weeks complaining of injustices wrought by the Roosevelt economy program. There was no question about the injustices. One veteran with both legs off was cut 45 per cent.

The American Legion lobby as usual had organized its fight skillfully. Two-thirds of Congress was aroused.

The Roosevelt threat made them stop and think. The Democrats had to choose between fighting their own President and doing what they really wanted to do.

Enough weakened to permit Mr. Roosevelt 25 per cent reductions.

The country generally did not realize what a personal triumph it was for the President. It showed clearly his power has not waned. No one other pending questions except war debts will he have such a close call.

Inquiry— J. P. Morgan has not had so much fun since he played marbles. He whispered to his friends that he was tickled the way the Senate investigation went. He certainly looked like it. He listened eagerly to every word of testimony. Each time one of his witnesses made a point, the ex-maximodum of finance leaned back his head and cackled.

Morgan said privately he considered the legal presentation of his case 100 per cent perfect. He believed the senate produced nothing on him and will not. He thinks his business will not suffer. That remains to be seen.

The general consensus of opinion backstage in Washington is that the Morgan dynamo is already over. The Glass Bill will make it hard for them to come back. It deprives them of the special privileges they have enjoyed over commercial banks for years.

The firm has traveled a long way down the ladder since the happy days of war and post-war financing. It still has holdings vaster than anyone else. It also has some of the smartest men in the business. Those two factors will maintain it as a leading power.

However, there will be others, notably the Rockefeller's.

The senate lost interest in the inquiry at the last. Only two senators were present at adjournment last week.

The reason for that is the result of the investigation came before it started. The private banking provision of the Glass Bill is the only immediate thing which will come out of the hearing.

Other legislation may be recommended by the investigators later. It will not be considered until next year.

The coming senate investigation of Mr. Rockefeller's Chase Securities Company will not be so warm. The only witness so far called is the ex-president of that outfit—Albert H. Wiggin. The testimony will deal with conditions before Mr. Rockefeller put his son-in-law in as president.

No one will be surprised if the senate treads softly with this matter. The hearing is due July 14.

Curtis— The phantom behind the Helvering confirmation appears to have been your old pal Charlie Curtis.

Some may not remember but he was Vice President under the Hoover regime. Republican Senators remembered it. He circulated among them quietly in Helvering's behalf. He influenced at least some of the seven Republican votes cast for the Internal Revenue Commission.

What caused a Republican Kansan to take so much interest in a

FLYING MOLLISONS PLAN NEW AIR ADVENTURE

Great Britain's famous flying couple, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Mollison, plan to zoom over a 12,000 mile triangular section of the world's surface in a rapid series of attempts to set three new air records. The first step in the program calls for a non-stop flight from Croydon to New York. They count on a day's rest in New York, then a flight without stop to Bagdad and thence back to England. If they accomplish their purpose it would be the first London-New York flight, the first round trip north Atlantic crossing and a new long distance record. (Associated Press Photos)

Now their efforts are bearing fruit.

DON'T TRIFLE WITH COMMON CONSTIPATION

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brings Relief

Constipation gets its grip on a person almost unawares. It often starts with such little things. Headaches. Listlessness. Bad complexion. Unpleasant breath. If unchecked, it may seriously impair your health.

Fortunately, you can avoid this danger by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides two things needed to overcome common constipation: "bulk" and vitamin B. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of iron for the blood.

Biological tests demonstrate that the "bulk" in bran is similar to that in leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears out the intestinal wastes.

How much better than taking unpleasant patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. Serious cases, with every meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

The Mexican Tigers blanked Coahoma 6-0 Sunday in the up with the local Cowboys in second place in the Tri-County league.

Pap Payne pitched a good game for the Tigers, allowing only nine scattered hits. In the second inning Coahoma failed to score with three singles in succession. With one out Mahoney singled to right, Davney singled to the right and Mahoney was thrown out at third by H. Cruz. Jones singled and Stevens fouled out to Fierro.

The Tigers scored four runs the first inning with out a hit. E. Cruz, the lead off man was hit by a pitched ball. Cruz went to third on Hernandez bunt and then scored on Fierro's bunt. Fierro was safe. Hutto dropped the throw from Stevens. A. Garcia grounded to E. Reid who threw wild to first. Fierro advanced to third and Garcia to second. Farras grounded to E. Reid who juggled the ball, allowing Fierro and A. Garcia to score. J. Garcia was out Davney to Hutto. Vega and E. Farras walked to fill the bases and Payne was out Davney to Hutto.

In the third E. Cruz singled and Hernandez bunted. Fierro followed with an infield hit to fill the bags. A. Garcia walked forcing Cruz to second. Farras singled to score Hernandez. J. Garcia forced Fierro at the plate for a double play. Stevens to Cook to Hutto. Vega popped out to Bishop to end the stanza.

Stevens, rookie southpaw of the Bulldogs, pitched a fair game, allowing only four hits. Coahoma out

Lefty Grove Leaves Relief Role And Wins

Tigers Pull Sox Game Out Of Fire In Ninth Inning

PHILADELPHIA—Lefty Grove deserting his role as a relief hurler to start his first game since May 6, Monday pitched the Athletics out of their four-game losing streak, defeating the Washington Senators 7 to 4.

Grove was hit hard, but he was effective in the pinches except in the first, sixth and seventh innings when the Senators bunched nine of their eleven hits to score all of their runs.

In winning his fifth straight and his eighth game of the season, Grove struck out four men and did not issue a base on balls. He also contributed a home run to the Athletics 14 hits.

Fred Schutte accounted for three of the Senators runs. His double in the first inning scored Myer and his home runs in the sixth sent Goltin, who had tripped, across the plate.

CLEVELAND—The Detroit Tigers pulled a close game with the Cleveland Indians out of the fire in the ninth inning Monday and won, 8 to 7.

Vic Frazier, making his first start on the mound with his Detroit mates, failed to hold fast to an early lead the Tigers' bat had earned in the first five innings off Wes Ferrell, who was replaced by Vic Sorrell, who received credit for the victory. Sarge Connolly, who succeeded Ferrell, was the loser.

Gehring, whose day's work included hitting two doubles, blasting out a home run in the seventh and driving in four runs, started Detroit's winning onslaught in the ninth with a single.

Every White Sox got at least two hits. Wyatt, making his first start for Chicago since he was received from Detroit in a trade, allowed the Browns ten hits, but he kept them fairly well scattered except in the ninth when the locals made three runs.

LOW PRICE CARS VS. CHEAP CARS

We do not build a low-price car: the cost to us of building our car is pretty high.

But we do sell a high quality car at a low price.

Almost every new Ford V-8 car we have built so far this year, has cost more to manufacture than its selling price was. As you buy them at only $490 to $510, we have to depend on increasing volume to make up the difference.

The reason for this is simple: — a manufacturer who gives good value must expect to lose money on the first cars he sells because he cannot charge all his costs to the people who are first to buy.

But with the purchaser it is different — he cannot afford to lose anything on a car. It must give him full value from the first, and keep on giving him full value for years.

Two things make possible our combination of low prices and high cost quality:

1. Volume Production
2. Taking only one profit

First, we set our price at what would be fair to the public on the basis of economies we enjoy in volume production. Then, in order to justify and maintain our low price we must get volume sales.

Thus it comes that a car which is really high-cost to make, is also low-cost to buy.

There is a difference between a cheap car and a low-priced high quality car.

Ford prices are always fixed at a point which makes it profitable for a customer to buy.

Good and lasting business must produce profit to the buyer as well as to the seller. And of the two, the buyer's profit must be, comparatively, the larger one.

It pays us to sell the Ford V-8 because it pays you to buy it.

THESE puzzles we have married! How disturbingly efficient they are. Patiently they sit across the dinner table from us and listen to our evening complaints—short-handed at the office, chief cranky, customer spoiled golf date, stenographer late, letters misfiled—women have all the best of it! Then they smile riddles.

If you could see the little woman in the morning after you leave for the office! Children to bundle off to school, meals to plan, marketing to do, laundry to send buttons to put on, tears to mend, dozens of trips to the front and back doors, lunch, squabbles to settle, a cut finger to bandage.

FLIRTING FOOL

By FRANK McELROY

CHAPTER XXX

He had been raining when Dan reached Chicago. Hard, cold, unfeeling rain beating down on streets like black glass, making dazzling reflections in all the puddles. He sat moodily in the taxi which was hurrying him across town from one station to another. He'd been a fool to write that letter to Monnie. He told himself when he was in that black mood two weeks ago. His mother had been "working on him" as she often did, whispering that he was to keep up the good work, devoting himself to Sandra because of Mr. Lawrence's approval. It depended all their future. After the talk with his father Dan was inclined to take her word for it. Dan knew as well as the next fellow how precarious business conditions were. He felt a slacker anyway, off there enjoying himself while his father awaited at home over the bill.

Well, it hadn't been his own idea. He'd done it to please the family. Then, all hot and bothered, discouraged too, he had written to Monnie, telling her he thought they'd better not plan to be married in January. It was just a mood and moods pass. Person oughtn't to write letters when he felt that way. Dan would have sworn that Monnie would give you a comeback on a letter like that. Once she would have. He wondered what would have happened. Deep down he had a sneaking suspicion that one reason he'd written it was to get Monnie's answer, hurt, loving, assuring him she'd wait, asking what the trouble was. Didn't he care any more?

But he hadn't had a line—not a word. Dan hated to write letters, himself. Somehow he never knew quite what to say—but he'd been sure she would write him often. All this fortnight he had watched for mail, expecting every day to have a line from her. Then when the month had been up and she had still remained silent he had told his mother he was going to run on home ahead of the rest of them. He had been, all of a sudden, impatient to see Monnie. Mother hadn't wanted him to do it, had complained that Sandra would think it queer. Dan swore softly to himself. What did he care what Sandra thought? Sure, she was good looking, smart but she left him cold. Whereas Monnie—and here Dan's deep set eyes glowed—he was crazy about Monnie. There was something about her that caught at his heart, squeezed it. Maybe she was sick. Oh no, he assured himself, lighting a cigarette in the cab's stuffy darkness, no, she was just sore. She'd been like this before about something he'd done.

He might write. He might phone her long distance. Then he decided against that. In a small place like old fellow.

Yes, the west was great, Dan said. Fine country—wonderful people—but it was good to get home. He grinned at old Nate as if sharing a secret. Maybe Nate would be driving his—Dan's—children some day, he reflected. Little girls with bronze curls blowing and sturdy little boys with blue eyes. Nate would call to take them to dancing school. "Or maybe Monnie will have a little car of her own," Dan day-dreamed. "By that time, maybe I can swing it."

Because of course, when they married he wouldn't have the roadster the family supplied him with. No, they'd be sore at his marriage—especially his mother. She'd say he'd double crossed her and he hadn't at all. He'd just had to keep it quiet because of the way she felt about everything. Well, she'd come around. She'd have to. Dan set his lips grimly.

The maid who opened the door to him told him his father was at breakfast. The older man looked up, surprised, as Dan breezed in. "Where'd you drop from, son?" Dan grinned. "Thought I'd lasted too long. The rest of them will be back day after tomorrow. I got restless."

"Well, well!" Dan thought his father looked older, more tired. There were two deep lines between his eyes.

"How're things?"

"Oh, fair," Mr. Cardigan drank his coffee. The bank renewed that note of mine—90 days. Hope to see my way clear after January first. Good of you, son, to do as I asked about this trip. It meant a lot to me."

Dan smiled. "I had a fine time. Dad. Only I thought I ought to be back here with you."

"It's going to be all right. I feel sure of it now." And yet his father didn't look as if he meant it. He got up heavily. Dan thought he'd aged in the past few weeks.

"How are your mother and the girls?"

"Oh, rarin' to go! They're fine," Dan said lightly.

"Sandra better?"

"She's great. She snapped out of it and had a good time."

"I'm glad to hear it. Lawrence was anxious about her."

Dan was impatient now to be up and away. "Guess I'll clean up and be down at the office later."

His father put his arm across his shoulders. "Fine. We can have lunch together."

"Yes, Oh—maybe."

He broke away. He had an irresistible temptation to telephone to Monnie. Let's see—it was nine o'clock. She would be at the store by this time.

He gave the number, sat drumming on the table, waiting. "Miss O'Dare?" His face went blank. "Where'd you say? Oh, I see. I see!"

He stood up, looking dazed. There was something queer here. That boy had said Monnie had gone away. It sounded like "abroad." But that was crazy. She was right here in town. Somebody was playing a practical joke on him. After he'd washed up he'd run around and see her mother, ask her what it was all about.

Kay O'Dare met him at the door, smartly dressed in blue. She stared when she saw him. "Oh, hello."

"Some idiot down at the store said Monnie'd gone away," Dan blurted out. "It isn't true, is it?"

Kay gave him a cool glance. "She's sailing for Europe with Miss Corey tomorrow," she told him. "They left for New York this morning on the 8:30."

MATTERN—

departure from fellow townsmen in San Angelo, it said:

"Jimmy Mattern, round world flier, Moscow, Attaboy Jimmie. (Signed) San Angelo."

During servicing of his plane, Russian mechanics mended two slight tears in the wing fabric which—doubtless resulted from trans-Atlantic ice formation.

"I feel fine but I would like to have about an hour sleep," Mattern said after his arrival here. He was provided with a sumptuous meal, shower bath and a bed for his much needed rest. He finally insisted upon being awakened in a couple of hours.

His red, white and blue "Century of Progress" plane came down out of a darkened sky and alighted on a muddy airfield. As soon as he had taxied to a stop his ship was surrounded by a half dozen Soviet aviators who gathered him up and tossed him into the air several times to show him he was welcome.

Despite his obvious weariness— he had had only three hours sleep since leaving New York Saturday morning—the flier looked extremely fit.

He had not intended to reach Moscow via Oslo but was given out of his path by bad weather. About 400 miles out over the Atlantic, he explained, he encountered a low pressure area which coated his plane with ice and forced him finally to turn north. He had fuel for several hours more flying when he landed in Norway but he decided he had best get some rest.

Russian air officials advised him to fly eastward via Kazan, Sverdlovsk, Omsk, Novosibirsk, Irkutsk, and Khabarovsk. For several hundred kilometers the east weather conditions were extremely unfavorable. There were strong head winds and clouds, which promised to retard his progress.

SAN ANGELO.—"Fine, I knew he'd do it," that is the phrase most often repeated by the thousands of San Angelenos who are keeping the telephones of the Standard-Times swamped with inquiries concerning the progress of Jimmie Mattern on his round the world flight. So heavily have these calls been that it has been necessary to detail a special operator to answer routine questions.

Perhaps the most interested group was troop No. 1 of the San Angelo Boy Scouts, now in camp in Irion county. One of the prized possessions of the troop is a photo of Mattern beside his ship. It was presented by the flier personally here in March for the best cabin in efficiently also. That is why many of these names appeared on the "preferred list." Judicious but informal questioning of beneficiaries often yielded vital advance information on business and politics.

The finest-tooth comb Pecora can devise won't rake out any tolls from who had the house for a client took no chances whatsoever on that. The answer was "No" on any action where there was the remotest shadow of doubt.

George Whitney was correct in stating that the Morgans had no direct interest in Commonwealth and Southern other than the 5 per cent of the company's stock held by United Corporation. Yet Commonwealth is legitimately called a Morgan company. No one is asking yet what the Bonbright interest in Commonwealth was and the Morgan and Bonbright firms were closer than brothers in utility matters. Also B. C. Cobb of Commonwealth was cut a lavish slice of United Corp. cake. It wouldn't have taken 15 minutes to find out who was boss if there had been a show-down.

Issues—

There are many tricks to the trade of issuing securities. One of the neatest was the method of handling issues whose public reception was in doubt.

In that case the stunt was to cut down early applications to perhaps one-tenth the amount asked for and if possible to refuse entirely the application of someone who could be counted on to spread the news. Those tactics usually created all the demand a sponsoring house could wish.

There was always a gentleman's agreement with the friends who were cut in under the public market that they would not take their profits immediately. Anyone who violated this agreement was likely to be blacklisted. This was necessary to protect a budding young security firm from having to withstand the pressure of early sales. There is no record of any Morgan client ever taking such a chance of getting in wrong.

Investigation—

Officials of the Chase Bank were originally directed to appear before the senate committee in the middle of July. Now their hearing has been postponed till fall and may not come off at all. A snappy inside selling job was put across to the tune of "What's the use of raking up dead ashes?"

The sword of Damocles still hangs over the Stock Exchange, which includes T. C. Thomas, G. C. Barnett, Mr. Hicks and Joe Hount. At Monday evening's meeting after the meeting with Mr. Goldman the following were appointed to work with him in organizing rehearsals and with other details: T. C. Thomas, chairman, Allen Hull, Dr. C. C. Carter, G. C. Dunham, H. L. Bohannon.

Utilities—

The Edison Electric Institute has invited all the old members of the National Electric Light association to its Chicago convention. It's a sort of "let's forget the past—all for one and one for all" affair. The institute has disappointed its sponsors by failing to convince the public (or the administration) that the utilities have really turned over a new leaf. Now it's a case of a united defensive pact.

The first lady of the land extended her plan of making this a "personal—not political" trip to activities of photographers and she did not pose for a picture with Mrs. Ferguson.

"I've been photographed enough," she said, indicating that there would be no more group pictures. She was snapped many times when her plane rolled to a stop. One of the poses was with Mr. and Mrs. Carter and Mr. and Mrs. Waterbury.

Mrs. Roosevelt was whisked away to another part of the airport under police escort. She met Governor Ferguson and her husband, talked with everyone and then had breakfast. Goldman To Direct Band Sponsored By Veterans

Widely-Known Bandmaster And Oil Man Offers To Organize And Direct Local Musicians—V. F. W.'s Months Of Planning Bearing Fruit

The hopes of the local organization of Veterans of Foreign Wars to organize a municipal band to represent the city came nearer realization Monday evening when the F.F.W. band committee proposed and the organization voted to name Sam Goldman, widely-known bandmaster who now resides here, leader of the local band.

G. A. Hartman, who has directed a band here and in Garden City more than two years, was at Monday night's meeting and declared that he would support Mr. Goldman and cooperate with him in every possible manner.

The V.F.W. has been seeking a bandmaster since February, when a special committee consisting of Hill Long, chairman, E. G. Bethel and U. G. Powell was named to handle the matter. An additional committee was named March 6, Pecora's current and declared that he would support Mr. Goldman.

Mr. Goldman is one of the best known V.F.W. men in Texas. He now is a deputy inspector for the state department. J. H. Kirkpatrick, assistant district commander, and W. H. Dugan, state councilman, are actively helping to get the band started.

Mr. Goldman and V.F.W. members issued an invitation to all bandmen to attend a rehearsal and business meeting at the district court room at 8 o'clock this evening.

Sam Goldman is one of the best-known and most popular figures in West Texas. His business is oil operations. He recently sold his handsome home in San Angelo and moved his wife and daughter to Big Spring. They have taken the "Glascow" home in Edwards Heights. He is associated with Lee C. Harrison, well-known local oil operator.

Mr. Goldman is of a family of musicians. / brother, Capt. Meyer U. Goldman, is a widely-known bandmaster of Washington and Philadelphia. Sam Goldman was director of the band of Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Va., from 1912 to 1913. / February 1918 he joined the Naval air service and served through the World War. He became director of Kazim Shrine band, Roanoke, Va., in 1919 and held that position until 1921.

In Oil Business

In 1922 he came to West Texas and entered the oil business. He directed the Sweetwater band in 1922 and 1923 and from 1923 to 1926 was master of the Colorado band, directing organizations in Lorraine and Roscoe also.

During his stay in Colorado his band won the state championship in a state-wide band contest at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention at Mineral Wells in 1924. The winning of the gold medal prize earned for the Colorado band the title of the Gold Medal Band. On his return from the Mineral Wells contest Mr. Goldman was accorded one of the most rousing receptions ever staged for a Colorado citizen.

During the recent W.T.C.C. convention here Mr. Goldman, complying with an invitation from Fort Worth, was a member of the Mosiah Temple band which visited Big Spring. He also was a member of the renowned Old Gray Mare band of Brownwood.

The Big Spring band being sponsored by the V.F.W. will be a military band and it is planned to use "Blue Devil" uniforms, patterned after those of the famous "Blue Devil" division of the French army on the western front during the world war.

In 1928 Mr. Goldman was forced to give up active band work in order to devote all his time to the oil business. His position as "right hand man" to the late George A. Henshaw, Jr., and the accomplishments he made in that position are well-known throughout the oil country.

Mr. Goldman said that he was glad that he has become a resident of Big Spring and that he will devote every bit of time possible to organizing and developing here one of the finest bands in the country.

Enforcement, Not Repeal

Many noble men are making the mistake of talking defeatism. We are not defeated. There is no need of many years of debauchery from whom to bring us to our senses again. What we need is courage, determination, a will to work, the spirit of victory, the spirit you see out in the football stadium when the opposing team is down near your goal line! Hold That Line! Hold That Line! Fight 'em! Fight 'em! In many a game that support on the benches has stiffened the line and prevented a touchdown. It has turned seeming defeat into victory. Carry into this crusade that spirit of youth. It knows no defeat until the final whistle!

Hold thirteen states until we are out of the depression! Then more education and more effective enforcement will insure us forever against the return of the legal debauchery of mankind. Give up now and liquor propaganda, on a scale never before known, will come to us in newspapers, magazines, bill boards, radio!

God forbid that we fall for this madness of some poor deluded discouraged souls who say we must see the saloon again for ten years to know what it was! We know! See the skull and cross bones on the sweaters of those on the liquor gang. "They Shall Not Pass." Hold That Line! Hold That Line! If we can do that for a college, if boys can "die for dear old Rutgers," we can work and fight together for a redeemed American which has, in spite of the hostile press and willful malicious propaganda of misinformation of those who would again damn millions redeemed from alcoholic poison, enjoyed untold blessings from fifteen years of prohibition during which time a legal traffic has become an outlaw, not dead, not buried, but fighting with his back to the wall until the depression came as a smoke screen to blind us to blur our vision, to confuse and bewilder us and to make more difficult the careful thinking so much needed in this hour.

Can we be idle while the forces of license and drunken debauchery and greed and avarice and blighted childhood and dissipated parenthood fight to tear down our victory won after a century and a half? If defeat must come, let it come while we are out working with banners flying, fighting to hold that line for God and Home and Country! But defeat, need not come! Victory may be spelled with four letters—W O R K.

Awake, Awake, O Church of God! "We will vote August 26 for the safety of our homes, and the health and happiness of our children. We will not be silent and passive. The apathy of many well meaning DEBTS is more to be feared than what Opposition. Only the VOTES that are cast count." "We talk about Dry States and Wet States. There are no Wet States. That is provided the loyal Christian vote of the commonwealth is CAST. There are cities but no wet commonwealths." We will sound out a trumpet call loud enough to arouse the sleeping disciples of our Lord! (Contributed by W. C. T. U.)

Wind Adds Damage To Lack of Rain

Blistering heat is adding to woes of this section. Already suffering from a scarcity of moisture the first five months of this year, Howard county now faces a new menace. Recently showers enabled many farmers to plant but lacked sufficient moisture necessary to grow the stuff after it germinated. Especially in the northeast part of the county young feed stuff and cotton are dying rapidly Sunday under sweltering rays. A stiff, burning wind also attack the young plants with devastating results.

Controversy Over Irrigation District Before Grand Jury

HIDALGO, (UP)— Bitter controversy over control of the Hidalgo irrigation district, echoed here again as a specially convened grand jury investigated allegations of conspiracy to murder.

District Attorney Sid Hardin convened the jury after gaining access to reports of an investigation made last week by Texas Ranger Jim Shown, Austin, into charges of Harry Ridgway, manager of the irrigation district, that group of farmers had conspired to murder him.

The grand jury examined 25 witnesses Saturday.

In October, 1932, four of eight persons charged in a plot to murder six persons prominent in management of the irrigation district were sentenced to two years each in the state penitentiary. The others were acquitted. Ridgway was one of the six alleged intended victims of the plot.

Control of the irrigation district long has been an object of bitter political warfare in Hidalgo county.

Hardin said state authorities at first refused to give him Shown's reports, according to his demands only when he threatened to subpoena them.

"We'll either indict somebody for conspiracy to kill Ridgway, or we'll publicly announce that no evidence of a conspiracy exists," Hardin declared.

"Hidalgo county already has had too much publicity of this nature."

Harrison Stafford May Be West Point Student

AUSTIN (UP)— Harrison Stafford, capable half-back of last year's University of Texas football eleven, considered a tentative appointment to West Point.

Congressman Joseph W. Bailey wired Stafford: "Just been advised unofficially that one of my appointees has been rejected physically. If this is confirmed, I give you appointment for this June."

Stafford, only 20, was voted the most valuable player in the Southwest conference last fall. He starred in the annual east-west football game in San Francisco, and this spring was voted the North trophy, awarded annually to the most popular athlete on the university campus here.

Dallas Officers Look Into 3.2 Beer Hi-Jacking

DALLAS (UP)— Officers investigated the first known case of 3.2 beer hi-jacking in Dallas.

Two men were under arrest and a third was sought after two Shreveport, La., truckers were hi-jacked of 52 cases of 3.2 beer they said was brewed in St. Louis and Milwaukee and destined for Dallas. The Louisianaans were robbed of $30 by the three armed men, impersonating officers, who stopped them east of here and pretended to place them under arrest. The truckers were released shortly afterward by the hijackers.

Dallas officers arrested two men in a coupe which answered the description given by the victims.

The truckers identified the prisoners as the hijackers.

A small cache of 3.2 beer, believed to be part of the hijackers' loot, was found on a farm north of Dallas.

Illinois Joins States Opposed To Prohibition

Indiana Votes Tuesday—Result There Expected To Have Important Effect On National Outcome

CHICAGO— Illinois Monday joined the parade of eight other states opposed to national prohibition, by the overwhelming majority of approximately 800,000 votes.

Even downstate counties, once regarded the prop of the dry movement in the state, contributed in the main along with industrial centers to the maelstrom of votes for repeal.

The vote from 4,865 precincts out of the state's 7,249 stood: for repeal 881,211; against 190,503.

The heaviest repeal vote was recorded in metropolitan areas, Cook county and Chicago, with 3,125 precincts out of 3,553 counted, voted: for repeal 610,693; against 60,575.

The downstate counties, however, failed to give repeallists such a majority. The vote outside of Cook county in 1,855 precincts of 3,696, was: for repeal 270,518; against 129,929.

INDIANAPOLIS— Indiana, which legislation this year changed from a drastically dry to a most liberal state, was to vote Tuesday on repeal of the 18th amendment with some prohibitionists believing the result will show the true trend of the nation.

"If we can win in Indiana we can prevent repeal," Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, declared. Others, accepting that viewpoint, said a real expression of the country's feeling on the 18th amendment could not be obtained from the states that already have voted.

L. E. York, superintendent of the Indiana Anti-Saloon league which for years wielded great power in the state legislature, said there is a "fifty-fifty chance" that the state will reject repeal of the 18th amendment.

William Stokes, executive director of the United Repeal Council of Indiana, predicted a three to one vote in favor of repeal.

Miss Lena Smith of Colorado is visiting with Miss Margaret Wade.

At 9:30 a. m. contestants will report to the Settles, where they will be served breakfast.
