School Children Take Notice

To the girls and boys that buy school books, tablets, pencils, etc., at Arthur Erwin's drug store until Christmas, and who make the highest grades general average in the McLean public schools, I will give the girl a doll that is 26 inches tall and nicely dressed, and the boy a genuine leather egg-shaped football. Prof. O'Neal will be the sole judge. Now this does not mean the amount, but when you actually need anything for school you will come to my drug store to get it. Come to the store and see them. Yours for a good school, Arthur Erwin.

ANTI-TRUST

MANY OF YOU who have lived quite a number of years can easily recall the verbal battles which came at the time when the anti-trust laws were gradually taking shape.

These laws were designed to prevent one man, or group of men, from compiling so much power that he, or they, could control the very economy of the United States. From the greed of these few people came the real reason why some people are against the very word, "capitalism." Those greedy pioneers of business in the U. S. left a bad taste in the mouths of many thousands of people, simply because they wanted to gain more and more power and cared little how they gained that power.

So the anti-trust laws were set up to prevent this power which could be gained only by monopoly. And the anti-trust laws were undoubtedly, and still are, worth their salt.

Now, however, the "worm" is turning. The labor unions are, through the search for power by a few union leaders, doing more and more to gain more and more power. The unions started out in the right manner, seeking to help the working man who was being oppressed to a certain degree by the ruthless, greedy, pioneer "empire" builders. And the unions have accomplished that goal. But the union leaders were not satisfied. Now they are doing all they can to infiltrate the government with men whom they know will be as one-sided as those greedy pioneers were in the early days of our history. The union leaders have accomplished much in getting a control of a portion of the government, and apparently some of these leaders seek to socialize the government in its entirety—forgetting as they go along that the capitalistic system is almost wholly responsible for the high standard of living the working man of today enjoys in the U. S.

Some of the leaders in the government are going along with these union leaders, obeying the slightest whim of the union leaders in an attempt to gain more personal political power for themselves. As a result, more and more controls are placed on business, more and more land which was once privately owned is going into government possession, more and more taxes are being imposed on the people of the land (including the people who belong to the unions, too, by the way).

In other words, those gigantic monopolies which some of the early unscrupulous business men were able to create in years gone by, are beginning to look like dwarfs compared to the combination monopoly being built up by the union and power-hungry government officials.

Not all of our government leaders are bad; not all of the union leaders are bad. And neither were all of the early-day big businessmen. It does appear, however, the bad apples in the barrel are having a great effect on the good apples in such a way that the steamroller toward socialized government is getting harder and harder to slow down.

Actually, it seems that the combination-monopoly of these greedy government leaders and these greedy union leaders which is gradually taking shape, is going to do all of us more harm in the long run than those early-day monopolies. It is unfortunate, indeed, that the anti-trust laws cannot be applied at times to this combination.

TALK

By LESTER

To break the monotony, and to aid in taking your mind off any worries you might have, I am merely running a bunch of jokes and wisecracks in this column this week. Some of them are good, some bad, but none of them are too dirty for your children to read, too. If you don't like jokes, stop right here and go on to something else.

The year was 1862. A European ambassador on a visit to President Lincoln found "Honest Abe" cleaning his shoes. Somewhat taken aback, he remarked, "Oh!

We are not accustomed to cleaning our own shoes."

"And whose shoes do you clean?" asked Lincoln, with a twinkle in his eye.

Traffic Cop (putting book away): Well, don't let me catch you again.

Some years back, a family engaged a marriage broker to find a suitable bride for their son, preferably one with money. A few nights later the broker brought his candidate around to the house—a sway-back female with a face that could stop an eight-day clock.

"What are you trying to pull?" the son whispered angrily to the broker. "She's twice as old as I am, her teeth stick out, and she's got ears like a Missouri mule."

"You don't have to whisper," said the broker, "she's deaf, too."

Sometimes a man devotes all of his life to the development of one part of his body—the wishbone.

Two Marines were sitting in the public library, and one of them found a book that seemed to interest him a lot, for he sat for some time with his face buried in its pages. The other fighting man, wondering what could be so interesting, asked:

"What's the name of that book you're reading?"

"What Millions of Women Want," said the reader.

"Lemme see," said the first Marine. "Have they got my name spelled right?"

Mumble a few words in church and you're married. Mumble a few words in your sleep and you're divorced.

Nit: Marie can't get married without permission.

Wit: Why not?

Nit: She's a minor.

Wit: You mean she has to ask John L. Lewis?

An American woman visiting Paris before the war went to a bureau which provided men as escorts. When informed that she could engage a Northerner or Southerner, she asked the difference, and was told that the Southerner was gallant and debonair, while the Northerners were smooth talkers and romantic.

"Well, then," she said, "I'll take a Southerner from as far north as possible."

Some people argue over religion as stubbornly as though they had it.

He was shy, and after she had thrown her arms around him and kissed him for bringing her a bouquet, he got up and started to leave.

"I'm sorry I offended you," she said.

"Oh, I'm not offended," he replied. "I'm going for more flowers."

Bobby could hardly wait to tell his kindergarten teacher the news. He rushed up to her, his face alight. "I can dress myself!" he shouted.

"My, isn't that splendid!" she beamed enthusiastically.

As the morning wore on, Bobby raised his hand three different times and repeated the tidings. Finally teacher, exasperated, implied rather strongly that the news had lost its freshness. So after a fifth interruption and repetition, Bobby was summarily dispatched to sit in a corner behind the screen.

All was silent and serene for about five minutes. Then Bobby suddenly appeared, sans apparel, and proudly proclaimed, "Look! I can undress myself, too."

PRETTY HOSTESS ADDS FINISHING TOUCH

Putting the finishing touches on her party dinner, this attractive hostess does the last minute job of margarining her rolls to serve piping hot to her guests. Donley County—
SOIL NEWS

Frank White at the Clarendon Hatchery will handle the 3,000 bushels of rye seed recently purchased by the district for re-sale to local farmers for planting cover crops this fall.

The retail price is $2.85 per bushel. However, this price is limited to farmers who live in the Donley County Soil Conservation District.

Rye seed is extremely scarce, and this price is considerably lower than other quotations in this area.

Securing this rye seed by the district will make it possible for a number of farmers to plant cover crops, who otherwise would not be able because they could not find the seed.

This is just one of the many ways the district is helping the farmers with their soil conservation and soil improvement programs.

Windbreak Planting Material

Information has just been received by the local SCS office that the Texas Forest Service will have seedlings available for windbreak planting, winter and spring.

The prices will be $1.00 per hundred, f. o. b. shipping point, except it is probable that discounts will be allowed where individual orders are pooled and ordered in bulk by districts.

The seedlings available are as follows: Arizona cypress, red cedar, Rocky Mountain cedar, cottonwood, Chinese elm, parvifolia elm, honey locust, Russian mulberry, Osage orange, loblolly pine, shortleaf pine, western yellow pine, and sycamore.

District cooperators are encouraged to use these trees for any of the following types of plantings: Field windbreaks, livestock windbreaks or shelters, farmstead protection, snow traps and windbreaks for trench silos, any type of erosion control or land use planting such as wildlife shelter.

Application blanks may be obtained from the Texas Forest Service, College Station.

Water erosion has not been a problem so far this year for Donley County Soil Conservation District farmers.

Many farmers no doubt would not mind suffering a slight amount of water erosion if necessary to get some moisture. Wind erosion has been a different matter. In some parts of the district there was considerable damage by wind erosion last spring.

Due to the prolonged drought this summer, the amount of vegetative cover on our cultivated land has been greatly reduced. This will surely result in more severe wind erosion next spring unless precautionary measures are taken before then. Some of the things a farmer might do to help prevent his land from blowing next spring are as follows:

1. Seed winter cover crops on all land without sufficient residues to hold the soil next spring.
2. Leave ample residues on the land to protect the soil when feed crops are harvested.
3. Avoid grazing stalk fields to the extent that an adequate crop residue is not left on the land.
4. Deep plow sandy land, provided a clod-forming subsoil can be brought to the surface to aid in preventing wind erosion.

5. Spread manure, cotton burs, or other organic material on the land to hold the soil in place.

6. Chiseling is very effective on the heavier soils, but usually of little value on sandy land.

It is the duty of every farmer for his own sake as well as for his neighbors and the countless generations to follow to make every effort to conserve the soil on his farm.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Newberry of Keilerville were Sunday visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Dorsey and family.

GOOD HEALTH

Answer to Question No. 1:
The presence of stones in the gall bladder is not usually dangerous. When symptoms show the probability of gall bladder disease and the X-ray reveals gall stones, surgical removal of the gall bladder may be indicated. As a direct result of modern advances in surgery and the new drugs mortality from this operation has been reduced to almost nil.

Answer to Question No. 2:
In the United States more than 2 per cent of children under the age of 15 have some decay in their permanent teeth. Parents and school officials should watch the children's teeth much more carefully, and refer the children to the family dentist or existing dental clinics. This would definitely improve dental health.

Answer to Question No. 3:
Pittacosis or parrot fever is a serious disease easily transmitted to humans but rather rare in the United States. It is caused by a virus common in birds (mostly parrots), and shows itself with high fever which remains high for about three weeks. Mortality used to be about 20 per cent of those infected with the disease. Some of the newer drugs have greatly reduced the number of deaths.

Notice to Farmers

Under a new ruling by the commissioner of agriculture, you may now haul cotton burrs back to your land for distribution on your land without any treatment of the burrs.

However, you must haul these burrs off, since we cannot allow them to accumulate on the gin yards. If you do not haul them off, then we will be forced to burn the burrs—insurance coverage on our property is not allowed with the burrs present as a fire hazard.

Please keep this fact in mind if you want burrs for distributing on your land.

THE AMERICAN WAY

 tooth will see considerable action against the Rattlers. Reeves' knee was responding well to treatment this week.

Line-backers on the defense will likely be Duncan and Reeves, if the latter is able to play.

Wayne Moore will be the starting center. Moore is showing promise of making an outstanding center, and is one of the hardest-working members of the squad. In right guard position will probably be James Jolly, who saw much action last season; the other guard will be either Jack Hupp, veteran of last year, or Arthur Vineyard, a reserve in 1951.

Big Don Smith will fill one tackle slot. He was an outstanding tackle last year. In the other tackle position will be either Don Trew, who played end most of the time last year, or Joe Crockett. Crockett, injured in the Phillips game in 1951, was out for the remainder of the season. Then, a few weeks ago, he suffered a toe injury when a gun was accidentally discharged as he held the barrel on his shoe, and the injury is not completely healed. He did start working out this week, though.

On left end will be either Jimmy Farren, rangy sophomore who is showing up well, or George Railsback, a senior who is also doing well. On right end, the position will be filled either by Gale Plummer, veteran of last year at the same position, or Charlie Vineyard.

In the scrimmage session with Claude Saturday night, the team showed up fairly well. However, the pass defense was poor, and the Mustangs—who brought only 13 men to the practice—gained considerable yardage via the aerial route. Despite the small number of men on the squad, the Mustangs fielded a heavy team in the practice session. The Mustangs are coached by Wayne Mantooth, brother of Odell Mantooth of McLean, and have a squad total of only 17.

THE CHURCH POINTS THE WAY.
 Attend Regularly!

For fifty years the Methodist church in McLean has been pointing people to God and a better way of life. Along with the other churches of our town we have made McLean a fit place to live. Without the churches our community would not be a fit place to live. Fifty years ago we started worship in a home, then to a small church house and then a larger one, and now still a larger church building that is equipped to give our followers every advantage that a church can give. With a lovely sanctuary, a chapel, a parlor, a fellowship hall, a kitchen and a kitchenette, and an ample number of classrooms, we have only the best to offer you and your family.

If you do not attend church with one of the other good churches of our community, we invite you to come here. We teach the Bible and preach the Gospel. On Sunday, October 12th, we will observe our GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY with a homecoming and basket dinner in the church. We invite you then and all the time to attend the church of your choice, because the church points the only safe way in life.

Obese People Face Danger

Are you packing too much fatty beef for the size of your frame? If so, you're probably one of the 100,000 or so Texans contributing to what State Health Officer George W. Cox calls a "significant public health problem."

The number of obese (dangerously overweight) people in the state is growing, the doctor says, and they're laying themselves wide open to trouble.

For instance, if you are carrying too much fatty tissue you're twice as apt to get diabetes, and three times as likely to have heart trouble. Furthermore, if you get arthritis it will hurt you a great deal more because of your obese condition.

Many other conditions are made worse by a person's being too fat.

"Obesity is just as serious a form of malnutrition as starvation in the long run," the health officer will tell you. Ask why some people get fat while some don't and he'll tell you the plain and simple reason is that usually the fat ones eat more than their systems need or want.

"Obesity is exactly the opposite of starvation. Overweight people eat too much. Emaciated people don't get enough. Both types are malnourished."

But why do they eat too much? There may be many causes. The glands may not be working just right. They may be having emotional trouble.

"Dietary habits perhaps established in childhood. Part of the reason may be that an overly full stomach gives them a sense of emotional relief. They might be trying to satisfy an emotional hunger as well as a physical one."

The best way to fight obesity is to cut down the caloric intake, he says. But to do this you've got to have a real desire to have normal weight.

"This means," he explains, "the underlying emotional factors which created the obesity must be corrected by a greater urge, such as avoiding an early death."

When you get this desire you'll be willing to have your doctor prescribe a reducing diet and medicine if necessary, and you will follow his advice.

"If you don't," Dr. Cox cautioned, "you'll probably find an early grave."

Fat people should get a good physical examination by their doctor before they start on a rigid reducing diet.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Moore and family and Mrs. Tommy Plummer and children spent last week in Colorado.

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Jones were Sunday visitors in the home of her mother, Mrs. J. R. Ayers of Clarendon.
