A contract for construction of a new stadium stand, to replace the one which was destroyed by fire at Duncan Field in McLean last fall, was awarded to Kenneth Marrow of Clarendon at a meeting of the board of the McLean Independent School District Tuesday night.

Marrow's bid of $3,650 was the low of four bids submitted to the board. Spencer Sitter, board president, said. Next lowest bid was approximately $300 more than that of Marrow.

Wayne Moore Named to Go To Boys State

Wayne Moore, McLean High School junior, has been chosen as the representative of the Floyd-Corbin-Florey Post 315, American Legion, at the annual Boys State, to be held in Austin in June.

Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Moore, will represent the local post at the annual affair June 7 through June 13. His expenses are to be borne by the Legion post.

The representative is the third the post has sent to the Boys State. Last year, Wayne Smith was sent, and the previous year, the representative was David Grigsby.

Only members of the junior class of this year are eligible. In that way, the one who is sent is able to relate his experiences to other members of his senior class the following year.

Selections are made on the following basis: leadership, 50 per cent; character and integrity, 25 per cent; and scholarship, 25 per cent. Sponsors are usually American Legion posts, but may be civic clubs where the Legion is not active.

The objective of Boys State is to "educate our youth in the duties, privileges, rights, and responsibilities of American citizenship." It is wholly a plan of training in the practical aspects of government. It is functional in that applications of the principles of democratic government are made in every way possible.

At Boys State, the boys find themselves performing exactly the same functions as real officeholders in the every day world. They organize their own city, county, and state governments; they choose their own officials in accordance with regular election procedures.

Each year, one day is set aside for the "state officers" who are elected to go to the state capitol and actually "take over" duties of the various state officers.

Summer Band Program to Stress Private Instruction for Students

A concentrated summer band program, designed to retain the high standards set by the McLean High School band in the recent Interscholastic League regional contests, will be held under the direction of Bandmaster Gerald Smith this summer.

The program, with emphasis on private and individual instruction, will begin Monday, June 15. Superintendent Paul Kennedy said.

All students, particularly those finishing their 7th and 8th grade work this spring, who plan to play with the "A" band next year will be expected to take advantage of the instruction of the band director, it was emphasized.

The main purpose of the summer program, Kennedy said, is to aid in building a good band for next year. The high school band will lose nine of its regular members through graduation, and these must be replaced with capable musicians.

Smith will be here this summer to give the instruction. All sessions will be held in the high school auditorium, and the hours for the classes will depend upon the hours which the students will be able to attend, Smith said.

"We plan to stress the individual, private instruction," the bandmaster said, "but we will also have group and band instruction. The band will probably rehearse in a group once or twice weekly, depending on how often the students will be able to get together. If there is a desire, we will be able to play concert programs for the public."

The McLean band has been built by Smith into one of the outstanding bands in the entire Panhandle during the past three years. This year, the band won first division ratings in both concert and sight-reading at the league contests in Canyon. The band entered only in these two events.

Vandals Enter Bentley Home Damage Interior

A vandal, or vandals, entered the Fred Bentley home in McLean some time last week, and did considerable damage with water.

Officers have been unable to determine exactly how the house was entered, or just how the vandals, since the water has been cut off during the absence of the Bentleys.

No one was at home, since the Bentleys are now in California. The damage was discovered by Mrs. Bentley's parents, of Hugoton, Kans., who were in McLean last week-end. They had entered the house to get some of Mrs. Bentley's belongings to send to her, and found the water damage.

Several containers had been filled with water, including a large wastebasket. The kitchen stove had been flooded; a pillow and a chair were soaked; water had seeped under linoleum in two rooms; and some water had been sprayed on one wall and more than one door. In a brief check, nothing was missed, however.

McLean residents contributed about $200 as their portion of the money spent in having the sign made and erected.

So this is HOUSEKEEPING

I'd hate to have any unsympathetic husbands read this but, frankly, it's positively amazing the way the American woman has the business world standing on its ear to see that life for the homemaker is increasingly better and easier!

For instance: after the first flurry of excitement died down over the wonders of acetate, nylon, orlon, dacron, and other man-made fibers, Mrs. Homemaker found a hitch—these synthetic fabrics stubbornly resisted color removing in the process of home dyeing. She set up a howl, then settled back while scientists went to work.

One manufacturer, whose all-fabric dyes are a household byword, came back with a "miracle-formula" answer. It's a new "dual action" color remover that not only removes color effectively from synthetic fibers but produces faster results than ever on the natural "friendly" fabrics—and at the same time pays for ordinary (now outdated) color removers. As a result of milady's call for action, she'll enjoy the benefits henceforth of the most significant technical advance in fabric color-stripping for home dyers in many years.

Tintex Home Economics Bureau experts explain that the problem brought on by man-made fibers was solved by using in the same remover two types of stripping agents rather than one as in the past. One type is for the fabrics that lend themselves readily to color removal. The second type is a reserve power that steps in to do the job the moment the first agent meets resistance. Purely and simply it means that all guesswork is eliminated when removing color preliminary to re-dyeing unevenly faded material or changing from dark colors to light. Except for a very few fabrics—like the metal and glass-fibered ones, which can't be handled by any home process, all fabrics made for apparel and home furnishings can now be professionally tintexed in your own kitchen—and, mind you, no boiling necessary!

HOW'S YOUR BUYING POWER?

THIS IS AN ERA of big wages and big salaries. But, after the ravages of taxes and inflation are taken into account, our take-home pay and our buying power is, in many cases, much lower than it was in allegedly less prosperous times.

The Foundation for Economic Education recently publicized an interesting example of this. Back in 1950, baseball star Ted Williams was given the most lush contract in the game's history—an estimated $125,000 a season. The prior high was the $80,000 paid to the legendary Babe Ruth. So, on the face of it, Williams was earning more than half again as much as Ruth.

However, after the deduction of federal incomes taxes (and without making allowance for any other taxes) it turns out that Ruth's 1931 take-home pay was $68,535, while Williams' take-home pay was down to $62,028. And when a further computation is made, and that take-home pay is translated into actual buying power, it is found that Williams' real income was but a little more than half of Ruth's.

Some people will answer that they aren't concerned with the financial experience of people in $80,000 or $125,000 income brackets. But taxes bite deep into the medium and low income groups, too—after all, the federal income tax rate starts at 22.5 per cent and goes up very fast from that bottom. And certain kinds of indirect taxes, which constitute a large part of the selling cost of food, clothes, housing and everything else, often hit the man of moderate means harder than the man of large means.

The point is this: The current drive to cut government costs, balance the budget, and bring about tax reduction is in everybody's interest.

A truth that disheartens because it is true is of far more value than the most stimulating of falsehoods.—Maeterlinck.

LES

By LESTER

Daughter Chris has been spending much of her time lately out at "the ranch." She's got a new little friend now, too. Name's Freddy. Freddy Cottontail, that is. He's a brother of Peter, I think.

She and Freddy go out to the ranch and just ride and ride and ride. And Chris comes home so tired.

Went in at noon the other day, and she came in from the backyard just puffing and blowing. Been branding cattle all morning. She and Freddy.

One day at noon, we were trying to get her to take her nap. Will, just as soon as Freddy and I get back from the ranch, she replies.

Freddy, although invisible, of course, is quite a boy. He eats with us quite often. Doesn't sleep at our home, though. He spends his evenings at the ranch. One good thing about him is that he's quiet, very, very quiet.

Wish all of you could meet Freddy. Must be, for Chris to be so fond of him.

What vivid imaginations these four-year-olds do have!

Used to be, we were troubled with Harvey. Surely you remember Harvey, the invisible pink rabbit of stage and movie fame. Harvey used to be a regular guest at our house. Always at noon I had to knock on the back door, meaning that was Harvey knocking. Open the door. In would come Harvey. He's such a cut-up, too. Always climbing up on the ceiling, maybe the light fixture. Then falling. Falling right into the wastebasket. Try to sit on my favorite chair, and there Harvey would be. No telling how many times I have sat on the poor pink rabbit.

And now it's Freddy.

Wonder what Chris'll think up next.

Here's something we don't often receive—a thank-you note from the chairman of a drive. This one is from Fern Boyd and Isabel Cousins, co-chairmen of the recent Cancer Crusade in McLean. It says, "We want to thank you for helping us in our cancer drive by putting our articles in your paper. You were a great help to us and we appreciate it."

To the co-chairmen: We were most happy to be of some service. And by golly, we also appreciate your appreciating what little we did enough to thank us. So thank you for your thanks.

We lose a subscriber now and then, for different reasons. Foster Whaley, former Gray County agent and now holding a similar job at Claude, is dropping his subscription to the paper, but he is frank about why. Says Foster on a postcard he dropped to us, "After looking over my bank statement for last month, I turn a pale green color, and feel like I'd better drop my subscription. Trying to get within the wife's budget."

You'll notice Foster is real honest. He didn't say he was trying to "stay within" the wife's budget, but trying to "get within" it. The wording of the card from Foster reminds me of the financial condition of the person I know better than any other . . . me.

On the second day of the honeymoon, a bridegroom left the hotel room long enough to go out for a newspaper. When he came back, he found his wife in the arms of a bellboy.

She looked at her husband coyly and said, "I bet you think I'm an awful flirt."

Next week's issue of The News will be the annual senior edition. We will run pictures of the seniors, and a brief history of each, including some of their accomplishments.

We're always rather proud of the graduation edition, mainly because we're always proud of the graduates. It happens that I have been associated with many members of this class, and it is a fine class of boys and girls. One way we can all give them a boost for the future is to greet them with a warm smile, and friendly word. After all, "the thing that means the most and costs the least, is just a pleasant smile."

A sailor walked into a tennis match and sat down. "Whose game?" he asked.

A shy young thing looked up, hopefully, "I am."

A customer at the lunch counter was struggling valiantly with his not-so-choice club steak. Finally he put down his knife and said to the proprietor: "It's a shame to try a tire that still has so much tread on it."

Laundryman: But, madam, what's wrong with this lace tablecloth?
Housewife: Nothing, except that it was a bed sheet when you took it.

Health Talk— AT THE HOSPITAL

Persons entering a hospital are funneled through the admission office, but from there, pathways split until hardly any two patients will follow the same route. One may need extensive medical tests, another may take a surgical route, still another may give birth—and so it goes.

If the patient is too ill to register, someone must furnish certain information about him to the hospital, including his name, address, occupation, and next of kin. Also, the hospital usually will wish arrangements made to pay the bill through hospitalization insurance, cash, or installment payments; most institutions can provide medical care for the patient who is able to pay little or nothing.

In an emergency, much of the routine questioning is delayed until the patient's immediate needs are met. However, the doctor may need to question him closely to find out exactly what the trouble is before giving treatment. From the emergency room, the patient may be allowed to go home, sent directly to the operating room, laboratory, or X-ray department, or admitted to the hospital.

If assigned a bed, his history is taken and he is given an examination; also, routine laboratory studies of the blood and urine are done. If his doctor doesn't know he has been admitted, the hospital notifies him; at the patient's request, a minister of the patient's religious faith may also be notified.

Laboratory tests tell the doctor much about the patient; depending upon their results plus his own observations, he may decide that additional laboratory work or possibly X-ray examination is necessary.

For some laboratory and X-ray tests special preparation of the patient is necessary. Breakfast may be withheld or enemas or medicines may be given. In making X-ray pictures, the patient and the person handling the equipment are protected by the use of special screens and filters.

For a patient going to surgery or the delivery room the anesthetist and surgeon or obstetrician decide the best anesthetic, plus, perhaps, additional medication to make putting the patient to sleep easy. When the patient is given pre-operative medication, he is further prepared while still in his room. Any valuable jewelry or dentures are removed and either given to relatives or put in a safe place. A woman is asked to remove her make-up, and a towel may be placed around her head to protect the hair and keep it out of her face. The patient may be dressed in a hospital gown or provided with other forms of draping, depending upon the type of operation.

Friends and relatives of the patient are excluded from the operating room or delivery room as a rule, one reason being that every effort is made to maintain sterile conditions during surgery or birth. After surgery or delivery, the patient is lifted onto a stretcher, covered with blankets, and removed quickly to his room. After leaving the operating room, the anesthetist and surgeon check on the patient's condition and leave orders for medicine to relieve pain and take care of his other needs.

When the patient is ready to leave the hospital, his doctor notifies the hospital staff several hours in advance so that the office can plan how to accommodate new patients who are expected, final arrangements can be made to take care of the bill, the diet kitchen can be notified to stop the patient's meals, necessary drugs and equipment to take home can be secured from the pharmacy, and the patient or a relative can be taught how to take care of him. If he is unable to walk, a member of the staff takes him in a wheelchair to the car or calls an ambulance. After he leaves, his chart is completed and sent to the hospital record room to be filed for future reference.

A Surprise Party

Quite a crowd of young people enjoyed a few hours Monday evening by surprising Alvah Christian with a birthday party. Several nice gifts were presented. The evening was spent in games and some very nice music. At a late hour punch and cake were served. All say that the evening was enjoyed.

A Birthday Dinner

A party of relatives and friends spent Sunday with the C. J. Cash family and at noon enjoyed a fine birthday in honor of Mr. Cash's anniversary. In spite of his advanced age, C. J. mingled with the young folks and enjoyed several croquet games. Those who enjoyed the affair were Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bodine, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Cash and family, Thomas Bodine, Miss Willie Pearl Phillips, and Toad Cash.

42 Club Last Week

A most enjoyable afternoon was spent by the members of the 42 Club at the residence of Mrs. Chas. Hedrick on Tuesday, April 15.

Hand-painted place cards were given the players, who filled two tables for 42, and a trio who played 44.

At five a salad course and steaming hot coffee with whipped cream were served to the guests, who heartily enjoyed the goodies.

By acclamation Mrs. Hedrick was elected president of the club and meetings are to be had on Tuesday of each week, alphabetical order being decided upon in entertaining.

On adjourning, the guests readily agreed the meeting was one of the jolliest, and await the next club meeting at Mrs. J. H. Crabtree's.

Visits With Uncle

Miss Mary Hay of Godley, Texas, arrived in this city Saturday of last week for a visit with her uncle, T. J. D'Spain and family. And incidentally to make application for a place in the local high school.

The young lady is very well recommended and equipped for the place, and should there be a vacancy in the department mentioned, she will likely be given the place.

Oklahoma is a Choctaw Indian word for "red people."

Today, throughout the nation, 66 1/2 million persons have worked long enough to be fully insured under the social security program. This means that 66 1/2 million persons have worked at least 1 1/2 years or longer in employment or self-employment that counts toward old-age and survivors insurance. This gives at least temporary protection to themselves and their families. Those of the 66 1/2 million who become 65 or die before July 1, 1954, need have worked only six calendar quarters (about 1 1/2 years), at any time since 1937, to qualify for benefits. However, those who will not be 65 until after that date will need to have worked for a longer period in order to qualify. No person ever needs more than 40 calendar quarters (10 full years) of work. But continuous employment or self-employment is necessary to assure maximum protection and the highest possible benefits.

The Amarillo Social Security office has a booklet entitled "Your New Social Security." It will answer most, if not all, of your questions. It is free and a request on a post card or letter is all that is necessary.

No doubt about it...

Chevrolet trucks must be the best buy!

This year—for the 12th straight production year—truck users are buying more Chevrolet trucks than any other make. That couldn't be true unless Chevrolet trucks offered more of what you want.

Already, 1953's official sales figures tell a remarkable story of clear-cut and decisive preference for Chevrolet trucks. But, this is not surprising, for truck users everywhere are discovering how far ahead of all others Chevrolet trucks really are.

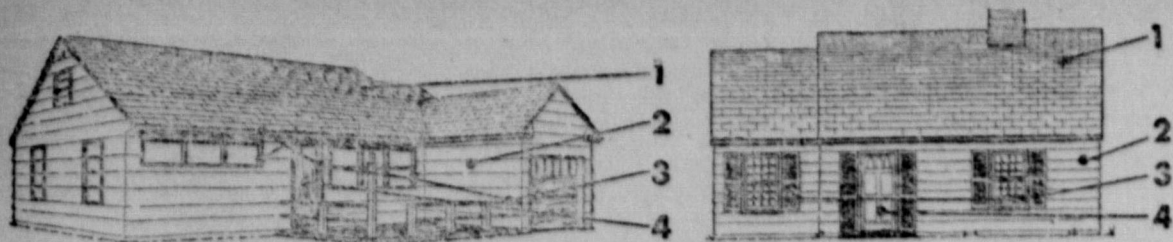

They are discovering things like the tremendous new power in advanced Loadmaster engines in heavy-duty models . . . the remarkable gasoline economy . . . the extra ruggedness and strength of heavier, more rigid frame construction. And, in addition to all these advantages, the Chevrolet line lists for less than any other trucks of comparable size and capacity. So, before you buy any truck, stop in and see us.

Here are color schemes suggested by Beatrice West, color consultant, for two popular styles of modern design. The numbers indicate where colors are used. For an expansion attic house, left, she suggests: 1—Dark green blend asphalt roof shingles. This color is only moderately dark and creates an illusion to make the house seem lower than it actually is. 2—Dark green siding. This matches the dominant green in the roof. 3—Off-white for trim, garage door and the fence. 4—Coral accent color for the door. For a Colonial style dwelling, right, her recommendations are: 1—Pastel blue roof. 2—Gray-blue siding. 3—White shutters and trim. 4—Blue accent for the door. Note that the usual color plan has been reversed. Siding is dark and shutters are light, instead of the reverse. This gives a color plan that is modern without sacrifice of traditional feeling.

So the People May Know

When the county tax collector intends to sell real property for taxes, it is his responsibility first to publish in a newspaper information about the sale. Texas law says:

"In making sales of real property for taxes, the collector shall advertise the same for sale in some newspaper published in the county where the land is to be sold, for three successive weeks, if there be one; and the publisher of such newspaper shall receive as compensation the legal rate of two (2) cents per word for the first insertion of such publication and one cent per word for each subsequent publication, or such newspaper shall be entitled to charge for such publication at a rate equal to but not in excess of the lowest published word or line rate of that newspaper for classified-advertising, and such fee shall be taxed as other costs of sale against such land, and the comptroller shall allow the collector such fee to be paid by the collector to the newspaper publisher in each case where the land is bid in and sold to the state. If there be no newspaper published in the county, or, there being a newspaper published in the county and the publisher thereof refuses to publish the advertisement at the price herein fixed, then the advertisement shall be made by posting the same for thirty (30) days previous to the day of sale, at the court house door and three other public places in the county where the land or lots are situated, giving in said advertisement such description as is given to the same on the tax rolls in his hands, stating the name of the owner if known, and if unknown say 'unknown,' together with the time, place, and terms of sale; said sale to be for cash, to the highest bidder, at public outcry, at the court house door, and between legal hours, on the first Tuesday of the month."

The Time Is Ripe— And So Are The Berries

Strawberries, strawberries, strawberries—they're here by the box-fuls. And every good meal planner wants to use the luscious fruit in as many delicious ways as possible. So, here's a fresh approach: Strawberry Coconut Cream Pie Glacé. You can make it "quick as a breeze" with a coconut cream pudding and pie filling mix, plus a fruit topping that's easy to make, too!

Strawberry Coconut Cream Pie Glacé

- 1 package coconut cream pudding and pie filling mix
 - 2 cups milk
 - 1 baked 9-inch pie shell
 - 1/2 package (3 1/2 tablespoons) strawberry-flavored gelatin
 - 1/2 cup hot water
 - 2 teaspoons lemon juice
 - 1/2 cup fruit juice and water
 - 1 cup drained sweetened sliced fresh strawberries
 - 1/2 cup cream, whipped and sweetened
- Combine pie filling mix and milk in saucepan. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a full boil. Remove from heat. Cool only about 5 minutes, stirring once or twice. Pour into pie shell. Place waxed paper on surface of filling. Chill.
- Meanwhile, dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add lemon juice and the fruit juice and water. Chill until slightly thickened. Then fold in strawberries.
- Remove waxed paper from top of chilled pie. Spread gelatin mixture over filling. Chill until firm. Garnish, if desired, with sweetened whipped cream.
