SHOWERS BRING HALF INCH MOISTURE HERE

Scattered showers fell in many parts of the Panhandle during the past week, bringing up to three inches in some localities.

The moisture total in McLean was .45 of an inch on the official weather gauge of Pete Fulbright, local weather observer.

The week-end moisture brought the month's total in McLean to 1.81 inches, and the year's total to 12.57 inches.

Heaviest rainfall reported over the week-end in nearby vicinities was a three-inch downpour at Groom, where it will be remembered, the Groom Lake filled and ran up into several houses earlier in the year.

Pampa got more than an inch last Saturday, indicating that the fall was fairly general between McLean and Pampa.

The showers are aiding area crops immensely, especially since the temperature has dropped considerably and allowed much of the moisture to soak into the ground.

Barring unforeseen trouble, such as insect destruction, farmers expect to make good yields in the local area.

MAGUIRE AND PARKER SEEK JUDGE'S POST

After Saturday, the general theme of the talk on the streets is due for a change.

For that's the date of the second (run-off) primary election; and among other things, the outcome of the hottest Texas gubernatorial battle in years will be settled come Saturday.

Governor Allan Shivers, seeking his third term in the governor's office, is being hotly contested by Ralph Yarborough, a man who ran a poor second against Shivers just two years ago.

Shivers led in the first primary, but two other candidates for the office, J. J. Holmes and Cyclone Davis, got enough scattered votes to force the run-off campaign.

There's hardly a charge left at this time that either of the candidates could make against the other.

The only other state race in which there is a run-off is that for the vacancy on the Texas Supreme Court.

The first meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the elementary school—planned as a get-acquainted affair—will be held Tuesday night, September 7, at 7:30 o'clock in the grade school cafeteria.

All parents and teachers (including parents of high school students and high school teachers) are urged to be present, officers said.

The group will meet in the cafeteria for a brief business session and introduction of teachers.

The P-T. A. plans a well-rounded program during the year, with several out-of-town speakers well versed in child problems scheduled to speak.

SELL THE LEGION BUILDING?

THE FEW VETERANS left in the McLean area who now evidence an interest in the Floyd-Corbin-Florey Post 315, of the American Legion, have only two choices remaining:

Either the post must have more membership, more active supporters, and more help from the present membership; or, the building might as well be disposed of and the organization disbanded.

To make some decision, a called meeting of the post members, all other veterans, and any others interested, will be held at the Legion Hall Wednesday night, September 1, at 8 o'clock.

It should be realized by all citizens of McLean that the Legion organization is worth much to the community.

All veterans, regardless of which war they participated in, should realize that the Legion is certainly worth much to them.

The meeting will be Wednesday night, September 1, at 8 o'clock at the American Legion Hall. Will you be there?

Boys Ranch Rodeo

Mayotte of Elgin, Ill., Larry Cantwell of Shamrock, and Smith of Littlefield clean and polish their saddles in preparation for the 10th annual Boys' Ranch rodeo to be held at the ranch on Labor Day. All 200 ranchers will participate in the big event.

Labor Day, September 6, will be the date of the 10th annual Boys' Ranch rodeo. This rodeo is one of the high spots of the year in this area because it is the only rodeo of its kind in the world. Scheduled to take place in the arena at Boys Ranch, the rodeo is an annual show promising to be fast, fancy and furious. Performance, at 2:30 o'clock, will show the boys in bronc riding, calf riding, trick riding and roping, trick riding and roping, and other events that guarantee a day of action. Featured attractions for the rodeo will be the noted all-girl rodeo square dance team and world-famous rodeo clown, Hefner. All other events will be handled by the boys themselves. Tickets will be available at the entrance to the ranch on the day of the rodeo. Admission for adults will be $1.25, and children's tickets will be 75 cents. The bridge across the Canadian River will be open for traffic, eliminating the necessity of fording the river. The boys plan on playing to capacity crowds and hope to see all their friends in this area at the 10th annual Boys' Ranch Labor Day, September 6, at Boys Ranch at 2:30 o'clock. Pencils of all kinds, for school students, at The McLean News. Mrs. Edna Hood and daughter of Fort Worth attended the Heald community reunion here Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Chaney Hood and children of Winters spent the week-end with Mrs. Pat Carmichael.

SCIENCE and your Health

OUR USELESS SINUSES

The body is called one of the most efficient machines but some of its parts could be done away with for they have no other function except to cause us trouble. The sinuses—cavities in bone or tissue—are the chief offenders. There are eight sinuses, set in pairs in the cheekbone, the forehead under the eyebrows, under the bridge of the nose and in back of the nasal passages. Lined with mucous membrane, they all have drainage holes into the nose. The trouble starts when the sinuses become irritated, infected and clogged up from colds, smoke, dust and emotional strains. City folk working in poorly ventilated rooms suffer more than country dwellers. Usually all the sinuses are affected and the slow sluggish discharge of mucus is blocked. The cavities fill up making a splendid breeding place for microbes and causing pressure that results in splitting headaches and a nasal and post-nasal discharge or "drip." The disease, called sinusitis, is recurring and antibiotics are used in the treatment. Dr. Pedro A. A. Caya conducted a series of tests in Lima, Peru, where terramycin was effectively used to kill the microbes lodged in the cavities. Doctors also alleviated some of the symptoms by opening and flushing the plugged-up passages, allowing the natural flow of mucus.

THE FOLKS AT HOME

Those Who Know Yarborough Best Prefer Shivers, 3 to 1

After the July 24 primary, many Texas voters suddenly realized that this man Ralph Yarborough—who polled such a high vote after running far behind two years before—was a virtual "stranger," unknown and unseen outside his home territory.

Texas have been asking questions: what sort of man is this Ralph Yarborough? How does he compare with Allan Shivers? The best answer to such questions is the answer given by folks who know both men, the men and women who watch them work day after day—not just during campaigns, the people who know what the men are made of.

There's a good measure of this in the election returns. Austin, our Capital City, is now Ralph Yarborough's home. He has lived there and worked there many years. Before World War II, he was even honored by the Travis County voters with public office. These people, who know Yarborough well, also know Allan Shivers—for five years, he and his family have lived in Austin. The Shivers children attend Austin public schools. Mr. and Mrs. Shivers participate daily in Austin religious and civic life. The comparison is altogether fair.

Everywhere Yarborough Has Lived in Texas, He Lost in Vote Returns

On July 24, when these people who know both men best went to the polls, what was their verdict?

Travis County—where Yarborough has lived nearly 20 years, where Shivers has lived and worked as Governor for 5 years—voted heavily in favor of Shivers.

In Yarborough's home precinct, where he has lived for most of his years in Austin, Yarborough's neighbors and friends, the Texans who know him best, gave Allan Shivers an overwhelming 3 to 1 majority.

In El Paso, where Yarborough lived for years, where he practiced law and where he actively campaigned, Shivers received nearly 60 per cent of the vote.

On the other hand, Shivers carried his own home box at Woodville, where he was raised and where his family home is located—by the overwhelming margin of 33 to 3. In the Rio Grande Valley, where the Governor practiced law and where most of his business operations have taken place, Shivers was the first primary choice by more than 2 to 1. Shivers also carried the city of Port Arthur, the city where he lived while serving the Senate, by a decisive margin.

Among those who know Yarborough best, it's Shivers 3 to 1.

Yarborough Gained His Strength in Negro Precincts Statewide

Where did Yarborough get his strength this time, strength he did not have two years ago?

The heaviest majorities, by far, came from the Negro boxes—sometimes 15 to 1, or even 20 to 1.

In Harris County, a study of the precincts with predominate Negro voting shows Yarborough received 5,246 votes to only 609 for Shivers.

In Jefferson County, the vote in Negro precincts was 1,270 for Yarborough, 117 for Shivers.

In Abilene, in a 99 per cent colored precinct, Yarborough won 136 to 6.

In Corpus Christi, in a box where the wife of the state president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People was the election judge, the vote was Yarborough 161, Shivers 9.

What Did He Promise? How Did He Change To Win These Votes?

Two years ago, Yarborough's strength on these same areas was not so strong. What did he say, what did he promise that caused these same voters to go so overwhelmingly for him this year?

Significantly, the voters in these precincts did not change materially. Obviously, Yarborough must have changed.

The people who know Yarborough best—his neighbors, the folks who have known him throughout his career in public life—realize what he has done, how he has changed in his relentless quest for political glory and power. Those people, who know the real Yarborough, voted 3 to 1 for Allan Shivers.

Saturday is the date for the second primary election. It appears that little urging will be necessary to draw out as many voters as cast their ballots in the first primary. The governor's campaign is taking care of that.

For whom you vote for governor, or for any other office, is of concern to me, but it's none of my business. Your vote is one truly democratic action which you have left in this country of ours, and you should be proud enough of it to use it. If this socialistic trend continues, you may not always have that vote—the next generation will certainly have to struggle to retain that privilege.

So please, don't fail to vote.

Tonight at 6:30 o'clock, the third session of the Dale Carnegie course in McLean will be held in the basement of the McLean Methodist Church. The class is not yet full, but tonight is the last night you will be able to enroll in it.

I sincerely wish that every adult citizen in the United States could avail himself of the opportunity of taking this course. What a wonderful place it would be if every person practiced the Carnegie rules for making friends, not worrying, etc.

If you are interested in further details before tonight's class takes up, see me or Hickman Brown or Larry Fuller or J. C. Claborn or W. W. Hughes.

The 1954 edition of Pigskin Parade, the Panhandle sports magazine which outlines prospects of all Panhandle teams, places the McLean Tigers on the spot in the District I-A football chase.

The magazine, now on sale at news stands, rates McLean as the top contender this year for the district crown.

Our chances are good. But so many things can happen. Knock out a few key players, and the chances are much, much lower.

It is my understanding that Canadian should have a good team, and that Lefors is supposed to have a good bunch. Frank Smith, the mail carrier, from Memphis, says the district champs of last year lost only a minimum of boys (one was Duke Frisbie, however).

The Tigers will have a good chance all right, but the breaks will likely have to be in our favor.

I am most optimistic, though. I hereby predict that we will win the first ten games of the season, the opener with Shamrock included. How far we will go in the play-offs after that I don't know.

You may or may not have been reading the articles entitled, "It Could Happen Here." I hope you have. They concern industries in small communities.

The articles are straight from the shoulder, and apparently are quite factual. At any rate, the author gives both the good points and the bad points of industrial development in a small community.

If you will read them all, however, you should be fairly well convinced that the good points outweigh the bad ones.

It is my sincere belief that McLean can land some industry or industries. I personally would prefer to have several smaller industries, in place of one large one, if the choice were mine. In that manner, the closing of one of several small industries would not wreck the economy of the town, as would the closing of one lone big plant.

In Canadian, for example, the people have long depended on the railway employees. It is my understanding there are about 150 to 200 employees of the railroad who live in Canadian. Now the threat of losing all these people at one time is facing the Canadian population. If Canadian does lose this big payroll, and it appears that the town will eventually do so, the blow will be hard to take. Look at it this way: Canadian has a population of about 2,500. If the railway workers and their families move, the loss in population will be approximately 500 people, young and old alike. One fifth will leave at one time. This means that some business houses will have to close up; it means that property values will drop abruptly, because of the vacant houses and buildings; it means that tax valuations will have to be raised to meet obligations assumed for a larger population; it means that churches with mortgages will either have to default payment, or else have the notes re-issued.

Yes, such a loss would be a drastic one.

That's why it appears to me that several smaller industries in a small community would be better for the community than one great big one.

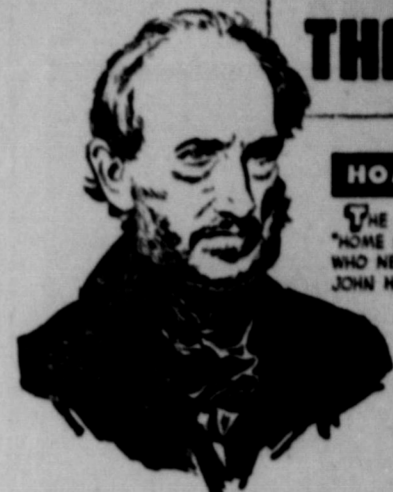

Some day we will be able to land a nice industry here to get us started. If only we can keep down the soreheads.

National new-car registration figures* for the first six months of 1954 prove that Ford leads the industry in sales! In fact, ever since car production has been free of restrictions, more and more new-car buyers have been swinging over to Ford. Dolls Go For It, Too!

Pat and Mike, perky as can be, are all dressed up in freshly starched clothes, awaiting the love and affection of some little girl. Down in Charleston, West Virginia, Mrs. Alice Morris' special hobby is making these and other delightful dolls in her "Alicecraft" studio. It is very important to Mrs. Morris that her dolls look just right, and so, right from the start of her career, she carefully starched all the beautifully made clothes, but as she says, "Doll clothes are even more difficult to iron than larger garments—they are so tiny! My easy way of solving this problem is simply this—I always add Satina, that little blue wax ironing aid, to my hot starch... using this fragrant starch, my iron always glides smoothly, and gives a truly lovely finish to the dolls' clothes."

"There's another fine thing about using this satin-smooth starch—it actually makes the clothes soil-resistant by giving them a special glossy, pliant finish."

Mrs. Morris, a charming white-haired lady, says her mother taught her about Satina and that she's never found any other method quite so good for making ironing results really satisfactory.

Yes, It Could Happen Here, Too!

(Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of articles by Donald S. Stroetzel, which have appeared recently in Town Journal. The articles concern the possibility of industry locating in smaller communities.)

There's a big argument these days, in Rotary Clubs and Lions Clubs, in the stores and homes of many an American town between two groups of people: those who would "encourage new factories to come to our town," and those who think "new factories would be bad for us."

You may have this fight in your town—soon, if not now. For there's a trend in industry to locate new factories outside the big population centers and it's gaining speed.

If you listen to the people who want new factories in town, you'll get the idea that this will solve all the town's problems. If you're a merchant, you're told that new payroll dollars will give you more trade, more incentive to spruce up your store. If you're a housewife, you hear that a factory job will bring that new range and refrigerator within your budget. You're told that young people will find job opportunities, and that farmers could get part-time factory work, especially when farm income is down. And, with all the new money, couldn't the town afford better schools and lots of other improvements?

Sounds rosy? Then listen to the people who don't want new factories. They see factory smoke turning white houses grey, industrial waste ruining the river. They talk of honky-tonks and slums. They see need for building new schools, and having overcrowded schools in the meantime. They anticipate noise and bustle disturbing their peaceful village; cheap new houses; traffic and parking problems; along with higher taxes made necessary by extension of utilities to the new factory. And what about the town's retired farmers and others on fixed incomes—wouldn't these people get all of the disadvantages and none of the advantages of a new-factory boom? And wouldn't the whole town suffer if, after expanding to meet the needs of industry, big lay-offs came—or the factory closed?

Who's right? For part of Town Journal's extensive research for this series, I put that question to some 400 industrial development specialists. Nearly all of them agree that some industries, in some towns, are liabilities; but that industries help far more towns than they hurt.

Several of the experts pointed to a study—a real eye-opener for the doubting town—which shows that a new industry employing 150 men could be expected to feed $400,000 in payroll money into a community each year; support 1,000 people and a dozen stores; make $2 million in new property available for taxation, and lead to sale and servicing of 200 cars.

How does such "statistic" stand up against actual experience? To find out, I went to Bath, N. Y. (pop. 5,416) where Westinghouse Corporation recently built a factory employing nearly 2,000 people. What happens, I wanted to know, when a large plant comes to a rural trading center? (Bath previously had only a ladder company employing 200 and a corrugated pipe factory with 45 employees.) Were the benefits really greater than the problems?

Here's the picture as I got it, talking to dozens of local residents and Westinghouse officials and workers:

Excitement had run high, three years ago when Westinghouse, seeking a site for an electronic-tube plant, picked one just outside Bath. Merchants foresaw quick spurts in business; local charities expected an end to fund-raising troubles; and lawyers, dentists and doctors got ready for a rush of new clients and patients. Nothing Westinghouse wanted seemed too much for the town to do.

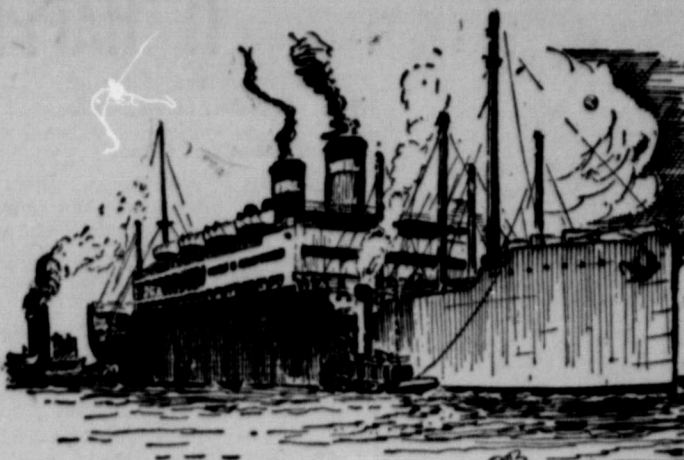

Sewer and water for the plant? "We'll bring our utilities to the village limits—if Westinghouse will take it from there." A labor survey to find out how many people in the area would work at the plant? Volunteers sent out 30,000 post cards in a fever of enthusiasm. And, without even being asked, a local committee offered to grade the plant's land without charge.

Gradually, as the new plant began to take shape and hiring began, the fever subsided. And Bath became acutely aware of growing pains. Rent went up, houses zoomed in price.

Like men awakened suddenly from a sound sleep and not yet able to meet the problems of the day, Bath's village fathers groped for answers to new and urgent municipal problems—and found trouble instead. Grading of Westinghouse's land, for instance, originally considered something "a manufacturer of earth-moving equipment would be glad to do free for the publicity," suddenly became an out-of-pocket expense for local boosters; it cost $20,000, had to be paid for in $100 donations—and when the kitty proved to be $4,000 short, the Chamber of Commerce had to go in hook for it.

You begin to hear grumbles, "this plant had better do all the

A Famous American Ship

The SANTA CLARA, sunk on D Day plus one off Normandy, is a good example of how vital the merchant marine is during war, according to the American Merchant Marine Institute. The SANTA CLARA was built by Grace Line for commercial service carrying passengers and freight between the United States and South America. A medium-sized luxury liner, she rapidly established a reputation for service on the route. As a World War II transport, renamed SUSAN B. ANTHONY, she saw service on virtually every sealtone until it came her time to play a part in the Normandy Invasion. Loaded with 2,000 troops, she was approaching shore under a hail of enemy fire. Struck a crippling blow, her captain, who had got his training as an officer of the merchant marine, moved his troops from side to side to keep her on an even keel. She slowly sank while heroic British and American destroyers came alongside to take off her men. Had it not been for the captain's presence of mind, the liner might have keeled over and taken half her troops to the bottom with her. As it was, not a soul was lost. Today's American passenger ship fleet is at a low ebb. There are under forty passenger ships in the entire merchant marine. Should war again strike we will be even less prepared from this standpoint than we were when we entered World War II.

The grumbles became louder. The well-meaning Board of Education, galvanized by "new-plant fever" into building a new $2.7 million dollar high school on a "crash" basis, stumbled into a pair of lawsuits involving the contractor and architect—a tangled mess yet to be unraveled.

Everywhere, it was "speed, speed, speed." The municipally owned utilities company suddenly had to dig a new well, build a new water storage tank, replace rotten heating coils in the sewage disposal plant and lay miles of sewer and water pipes. All this meant borrowing $429,000 and paying interest—a pinch each resident felt when a planned reduction in utility rates had to be ruled out. Similarly, growing expenses of the village government (for new roads, etc.) have meant higher taxes. "They're up about 20% in 3 years," estimates Arthur Hamilton, president of the Bath National Bank.

Has it been worth all the chaos, confusion and expense? Or was Bath better off before its quiet streets were shaken by the pulsating clatter of pneumatic hammers? (This article continued next week)

The young folks of Alanreed, comprising the Bow Knott Club, certainly deserve a great deal of credit for the good work they are doing. They have paid for the school bell and have made a nice payment on a piano for the school auditorium. They will give a play Friday night the 31st, entitled "A Southern Cinderella," the proceeds of which will be applied on the piano. Everybody should come out and encourage them in this laudable undertaking.

New Ford Low-Friction V-8 develops up to 16% more power... has 21% shorter piston stroke and 21% slower piston speed!

In every truck engine, there's the rub, rub, rub of piston rings against cylinder walls as pistons stroke up and down. "Piston Rub" means friction... friction that wears out your engine and cuts its usable power.

Ford reduces "Piston Rub" by shortening piston stroke. In the 130-h.p. Power King V-8, for instance, the piston stroke is 21% shorter than that of the other leading make. And, in 10,000 miles of truck travel, the Ford V-8 has the equivalent of 90 acres less "piston rub" per cylinder!

It stands to reason that Ford's reduction of "piston rub" and friction will mean gas savings, repair savings, and longer engine life.

WARNING!

TEXAS FARMERS-RANCHERS WARNED OF CIO LABOR PLANS

AUSTIN, Tex., Farmers and ranchers of Texas were warned this week that the CIO plans to organize the farm workers of Texas if its candidate wins the Governor's race.

This warning came from Governor Allan Shivers who charged that the backers of his opponents "want to turn the state government over to the same bunch that is trying to wreck Port Arthur."

"One of the first things they would do is put one of their red-hot organizers from Port Arthur in as labor commissioner. Then every time a farmer or rancher wanted to hire someone he would have to go through the CIO."

Governor Shivers said there was no doubt in his mind that the aim of the CIO after the job of organizing industry in Port Arthur and along the Gulf Coast is finished is to begin organizing farm labor in all parts of Texas.

"You can imagine what will happen when the CIO starts dictating how many laborers are needed to plow ten acres of land, refusing to allow a man to work more than thirty-five hours a week during the harvesting season and telling how much a farmer can charge for his crop," he said.

The Shivers administration, the Governor said, has worked hard to help preserve and protect the rights of the working man.

"But as long as I am Governor, the professional labor bosses who have been sent to Texas from the East — specifically those in the CIO and its Political Action Committee — are not going to run our State Government," Shivers promised.

Shivers said the average working man in Texas appreciated good government and that they were not going to let CIO bosses and professional organizers from the East do their thinking — and voting — for them.

WHAT HE STANDS FOR:
INSURANCE REFORMS—Judge Yarborough is pledged to clean up the insurance scandals that are fleecing the people of Texas—causing legitimate companies to suffer for the inconceivable acts of the "fixers" and "influence peddlers" now operating in Austin.
BETTER EDUCATION—Judge Yarborough believes that Texans deserve the best. "Texas can afford for her children the best public school and college systems in the world, and at the same time lessen the tax burden on homes, farms and small business men."
HIGHWAYS—Judge Yarborough strongly believes that Texas must continue to expand its farm-to-market road program, build more rural roads and construct more highways if the system of highways and roads is to keep pace with the remarkable growth of the state.
SOIL AND WATER CONSERVATION—Judge Yarborough stands for strengthening the soil conservation program and setting up a comprehensive program of water conservation.
HELP FOR THE AGED—Judge Yarborough stands for removal of the constitutional ceiling so as to permit payments large enough for our elder citizens to live decently.
INTELLIGENT HEALTH PROGRAM—Judge Yarborough believes that the entire public health program should be strengthened and expanded. We must provide better treatment for the sick people in state mental hospitals, special schools, and tuberculosis hospitals. Texas deserves to rate first—not 44th in the nation.

WATCH COTTON FOR INSECTS, AGENT WARNS

The rains this week have increased the danger of cotton insects, says Donley County Agent H. M. Breedlove. Farmers are urged to keep a daily watch of their cotton fields and at the very first sign of insects to start spraying. Breedlove says that every day when the cotton is inspected, to look around the shuck of the bolls for a worm about the size of a hair; this is the boll worm, and then is the time to spray before he gets to the boll. After the boll worm gets in the boll the poison will not reach him. Farmers in some parts of the county have already started a spray program, and this is especially true in irrigated cotton. The boll worm has only made his appearance in a few fields so far, but a constant watch must be kept because the hatch and the damage can be done in a very short time. The poisons being used are a 2-1 mix of toxaphene and DDT at the rate of two quarts per acre as a spray, and 3-5-40 dust at the rate of about ten pounds per acre. Breedlove says that this is just a warning to everyone that conditions are good for an insect hatch and the fields should be watched very closely. Anyone needing information should contact the county agent for help. Poison is available in the county and can be purchased at once.

Election—

G. L. Lunsford, Lunsford led in a field of three by a small margin in the July 24 election. Jess Finley is in the run-off against George Preston in the race for commissioner of precinct 4, Donley County. Finley led in the first primary voting, with Preston, the present commissioner, in second place. H. W. Burr was eliminated in the initial voting.

Residents of the McLean area are interested in another race, that in Wheeler County between Clois Hanner, known to most McLean residents, and Sam McMurtry. The two men are in the race for Wheeler commissioner of precinct 3.

Polls will open at 8 o'clock Saturday morning and close at 7 o'clock in the evening. In McLean, the City Hall will be the balloting place in voting precinct 5, and Dysart Motor company for precinct 17.

CERTAIN VETS GET FREE VOTE—NO POLL TAX

Former members of the armed forces, the U. S. Maritime Service, or the U. S. Merchant Marine who have seen active duty within the last 18 months are entitled to vote in the August 28 runoff primary without payment of the poll tax, according to a ruling by Attorney General John Ben Shepperd.

Shepperd said the waiver also applies to any person who is now on extended active duty as a member of any of the reserve components of the armed services, a selective service draftee, a member of the National Guard, the U. S. Maritime Service, or the U. S. Merchant Marine.

The Texas constitution prohibits members of the "regular" military establishments from voting.

ELECT
RALPH YARBOROUGH
 Your GOVERNOR
 Vote August 28

WHAT HE STANDS FOR:
INSURANCE REFORMS—Judge Yarborough is pledged to clean up the insurance scandals that are fleecing the people of Texas—causing legitimate companies to suffer for the inconceivable acts of the "fixers" and "influence peddlers" now operating in Austin.
BETTER EDUCATION—Judge Yarborough believes that Texans deserve the best. "Texas can afford for her children the best public school and college systems in the world, and at the same time lessen the tax burden on homes, farms and small business men."
HIGHWAYS—Judge Yarborough strongly believes that Texas must continue to expand its farm-to-market road program, build more rural roads and construct more highways if the system of highways and roads is to keep pace with the remarkable growth of the state.
SOIL AND WATER CONSERVATION—Judge Yarborough stands for strengthening the soil conservation program and setting up a comprehensive program of water conservation.
HELP FOR THE AGED—Judge Yarborough stands for removal of the constitutional ceiling so as to permit payments large enough for our elder citizens to live decently.
INTELLIGENT HEALTH PROGRAM—Judge Yarborough believes that the entire public health program should be strengthened and expanded. We must provide better treatment for the sick people in state mental hospitals, special schools, and tuberculosis hospitals. Texas deserves to rate first—not 44th in the nation.
