"Is there anything you'd like to eat before your execution?" inquired the warden.

"Yes, I'd like some mushrooms, please," replied the condemned prisoner. "I've always been afraid to try them before."

Daddy: And what did you see while you were in the country, dear?

Little Peggy: We saw a lot of little piggy-banks robbing a big piggy-bank.

Said the one deer to the other: "I wish I had your doe."

What You Should Know About Health Insurance

By Jhan and June Robbins

This is the final article in a series based on a recent national survey—sponsored by Health Information Foundation a public service organization supported by 165 drug, pharmaceutical, chemical and allied companies—which provides facts about family medical costs and how they are being met.

No. 6—Paying The Price of Illness

Meeting the cost of getting sick—the doctor's fees, hospital charges, drugstore bills—is certainly one of the most puzzling problems in pro-rating the family budget. According to the current Health Information Foundation report, it costs about $200 per year per family to keep the U.S. population at its present level of utilization, but you never really know how much to set aside for there is no way to guarantee that your family medical costs will be on the good side of that $200.

Analyzing a nation-wide survey on health costs conducted by the University of Chicago's National Opinion Research Center, the Foundation concludes that voluntary health insurance—spreading the risk among many—is the most sensible method of paying for the cost of illness. Certainly this method now has universal acceptance. The present survey seeks to present information about how well health insurance is working and how we can make it better.

Many Types of Protection
Some 89 million of our population are currently holders of our various voluntary health insurance policies. Some have insurance against hospital charges, others against surgical fees, others against the more commonplace home visits of the family doctor or simply against loss of income while ill.

The idea of spreading the risk of medical costs through voluntary health insurance began 25 years ago. A small group of schoolteachers in Dallas, Texas, chipped in and made regular monthly payments to the hospital attached to Baylor University, in return for which the hospital agreed to provide three weeks of care for any one of them when the need arose. This was the beginning of the voluntary non-profit hospital insurance plan now known as Blue Cross. Since then, the pre-payment idea has spread until, according to the recent Health Information Foundation report, three out of every five Americans are protected in some degree by health insurance.

Care When Needed
When we are ill, and it may be a matter of life or death, we all want the best medical care we can get. We should be glad that advances in medical science make it possible for us to regain good health more quickly and generally at less cost in loss of time and income than in the past. And most important of all, many of us can now recover from illnesses which would once have meant almost certain death.

We cannot escape the fact that, like death and taxes, illness is inevitable. Some time, sooner or later, we are bound to incur some heavy medical expenses. We don't want to be crippled financially when that time comes. Health insurance is our protection against such a hardship. Health insurance policy holders can avoid unpleasant surprises by reading their policies carefully. It is important to know not only what is provided but what is excluded. Don't, for example, assume that hospital insurance covers the fees of the doctor who will take care of you while you are there—they seldom do. Expenses above and beyond the usual hospital routine such as laboratory service, x-rays or special nursing are often excluded.

Generally speaking, there are two kinds of policies available for health protection. One is the service benefit plan in which the doctor or the hospital contracts with the insurance agency to provide certain services whenever needed in return for a yearly guaranteed sum of money. You are told, item by item, exactly what these services are. The contract tells exactly what kinds of operations and surgical procedures are covered. It also specifies the extent of nursing care you can ask for, which types of medicines and laboratory services are included and what kind of hospital room you'll occupy.

The second type of medical care insurance contract calls for benefits paid in cash rather than in service, and certain set sums are provided for each specific medical contingency. If you have your appendix removed, for example, you get an amount which you will, presumably, use to pay your medical bills. On an arrangement of this kind, you may, of course, actually have some money left over. Considering today's cost scale, however, it may be that the cash benefit won't quite cover the bills.

Extending Coverage
A new kind of health insurance coverage is developing in the area of "catastrophic" illness—one which results in a severe drain of the family pocketbook over a considerable length of time. Usually, these have a deductible feature, like auto collision insurance, requiring you to make a certain initial payment on your medical bills before the insurance takes over. Health Information Foundation analysts say that the number of persons carrying catastrophic insurance is about a million and increasing steadily. Maximum benefits under this kind of arrangement usually run from $2500 to $10,000. The first step to take in planning your own health protection program is to take a look at the various places your medical bills can reasonably be expected to come from. Try to provide for coverage where you think you'll need it. Nearly all insurance companies have experts who will analyze your personal situation and help you decide how much and what kind of health insurance to buy.

In selecting your insurance company, it is perfectly ethical to shop around. Compare policies, decide which one seems to offer the best all-around coverage for yourself and your family. And, finally, check the performance and reliability of the company itself with your employer, your Better Business Bureau, your County Medical Society or your local hospital.

Presbyterian Ladies Meet

The Ladies Aid of the Presbyterian church met in regular session Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Arthur Erwin. Among old business to be settled was the paying of the $50 endowment to university fund which had already been allowed and had been drawing interest for the past several months, and also $25 was paid on the minister's salary. Plans for new work were discussed and much enthusiasm expressed for a good year's work.

Methodist Pounding

Quite a crowd of members and friends of the Methodist church met at the home of Mrs. J. M. Noel Thursday night of last week and proceeded to the home of Rev. and Mrs. J. T. Howell laden with pounds of useful articles. After a song and prayer, Mrs. Cousins, president of the Woman's Auxiliary of the church, made an interesting talk outlining just how they proposed to help the minister this year. This was followed by short talks from R. N. Ashby and Rev. Howell. A delightful social hour was enjoyed, and chocolate and cake were served by the Woman's Auxiliary.

Hearn Reception

One of the many social events of the past week was the splendid reception tendered by Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Hearn in honor of their son Neville and his bride, who was Miss Enod Grundy, at the Hearn home Saturday evening. Mr. Hearn and Miss Grundy were quietly married in Amarillo on Sunday the tenth instant, but no one was apprised of the fact until Friday when the announcements and invitations to the reception were mailed.

The happy marriage is the culmination of a courtship that has lasted over a period of several years, having its beginning during their school days here, and the sincere wish of their hosts of friends both here and at Canyon City is that their future may be as bright and joyful as have been these past years of their courtship.

Neville has resided here since early childhood and was a member of the high school graduating class of 1913. He is a splendid young man, known and admired by friends and acquaintances for his many sterling qualities. Miss Grundy is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Grundy of Canyon City and for several years resided with her parents here, her father being engaged in the

A MATTER OF SCIENCE

The management of your insurance coverage is a science, just as precise in its way as any other. Most important is the proper planning of your insurance, whether it be life, endowment, casualty, fire, theft, or any other type. Haphazard insurance coverage is not adequate. We will be glad to discuss with you the careful planning of your insurance protection, for we sincerely believe you will some day wish that you had planned your insurance more thoroughly. IT COULD BE

IMAGINE, if you can, that the year is 1960 . . . that you are a child of 12 years of age . . . that you are still crippled as a result of having suffered from an attack of polio at the age of six in 1954.

Imagine that you are lying in bed at home, and only occasionally you are able to get out of bed and into a wheelchair . . . that no treatment is available to you because there is no longer a National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis to look after the cases left over following the discovery of a vaccine to stamp out polio . . . that you are one of the thousands stricken before the vaccine was perfected and manufactured in sufficient quantity to meet the demands of the public . . . that your family has spent all the money it had, has borrowed all the money it can, has exhausted all resources to attempt to bring your withered limbs back to normal . . . that now all hope is gone because there is nothing left for you to do but grow to adulthood as a cripple, to go through the remainder of your life with no hope of having your physical assets restored.

Yes, that would be a terrible picture to see, when the year 1960 rolls around.

But it may be seen. Many, many people are of the opinion that, if the Salk vaccine proves to be the answer in the fight against polio, there will be no further need for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. But there are many reasons, very good reasons, for continuing to give all you can to the annual March of Dimes drive.

First, the Salk vaccine has not been officially proved as the preventative against polio. And even if it is, doctors and medical companies estimate that it will be five years before a sufficient quantity of the vaccine can be produced to satisfy the expected demand from the public market.

Secondly, there are more than 70,000 men, women, and children who are receiving treatment with the help of the national foundation for recuperation from the dreaded disease of polio. Many of these cases will have to have treatment for years to come, before they can ever have any hope of getting better, of returning to a normal life.

Third, the national foundation is gambling that the Salk vaccine will prove itself; the foundation is stockpiling some nine million dollars worth of the vaccine, even before this year's drive started, so that further, more conclusive tests may be made.

This is the last week of the March of Dimes drive. Remember the picture of what could be in 1950, and give, give all you can.

LES TALK By LESTER

Larry Fuller told me some time ago about an informal organization he belonged to when he lived in Lefors. It seems that in Lefors, as in McLean and practically everywhere else, something pertaining to politics or the way various governments are being run is frequently discussed.

Occasionally the discussions, as we all know, become rather heated; and the first thing you know, somebody is running down—in no uncertain terms—a particular officeholder or a branch of the government, whether it be federal, state, county, or city.

So in Lefors, every time a man started to run down some officeholder, the other men would ask to see his poll tax receipt. The club members always carried their poll tax receipts, and the receipts were marked when they voted. If this griper didn't have his poll tax receipt, or if it didn't indicate that he had voted, then the coffee was on the griper.

Sounds like a pretty good little club, doesn't it? Which brings me around to what I have to say. And that pertains to the payment of your poll tax.

If you care to vote in any election this year, it would be advisable to pay that poll tax not later than January 31. After that date, it will be too late; and you won't have a vote coming unless you are exempt for some reason.

This is what is known as an off-election year. Every two years, only about half the people pay their poll taxes, simply because the primaries are not being held.

But we will have, for sure and a certainty, a school election this year, and a city election. And there may be others.

Perhaps the most important election every year is the school election. The persons who are elected to the school board are the persons to whom you give the authority to actually set the policies of the organization to which your children go about eight hours per day. When you do not vote in a school election, you are merely saying that you don't care who runs the schools. Actually, you do care, but you're not doing much about it.

Frankly, I doubt seriously if the school election this year even has a contest. It so happens that we have an excellent bunch of men on the board at the present time; if those whose terms expire are willing to serve another term, it isn't likely that there will be much of a contest.

But that is no reason for you not to pay your poll tax.

We may have an opportunity to vote on whether to join in with the other nearby towns on the construction of the dam across Salt Fork. Don't know for sure that such an election will be held, but it is probable. You can't vote in that election without a poll tax receipt.

As a final threat, I will say that there is always the possibility of having a beer and/or liquor election. If such an election should be called, I'll venture you'll want to vote in that election, whichever side you may be on.

So pay your poll tax not later than January 31.

A couple of jokes and I'll quit: On the first day of school, the teacher explained that if anyone had to go to the washroom he should hold up two fingers. One puzzled little boy plaintively asked: "How's that going to help?"

A fellow we know had a battle with the little woman. Trying to square himself, he bought a dozen roses, a box of candy, and a bottle of perfume at 20 bucks an ounce. Reaching home, he presented his wife with the gifts without a word, rushed out and mowed the lawn, washed the windows, then came in and started preparing supper. His wife burst into tears.

"What's wrong?" he asked. She answered between sobs, "It's just too much; the children fought all day, the washing machine broke down, the dog bit the mailman, and now you come home drunk!"

Mrs. M. H. Patterson had as luncheon guests last Thursday Mesdames Lee Banks, Willis White, J. H. Lewis, O. E. Chenoweth, and B. E. McKinney, of Pampa.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Ford and children, and Mrs. Betty Ince of Amarillo, and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Howard and son Dale of Borger attended funeral services for T. A. Crockett here Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Forsdick and children of Lubbock spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Clawson.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lloyd and children of Friona spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Claborn and family.

Bonita Bailey of Midland spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bailey. Other visitors in the Bailey home were Mrs. Frank Bailey and Mrs. Carl

H. Longan was in the News office late Tuesday, and made a remark about what might happen when the "eggs" started dropping between the U. S. and Russia. And then he produced a whopper of an egg to prove that some large ones were already being dropped. This egg, laid by a hen, and neither the U. S. or Russia, weighed one-half pound, and measured seven and one-half inches around one way and eight and one-half the other. Longan said he figured the egg would have three yolks.

Three McLean teams won three games over the Memphis Cyclone cagers in the Municipal Building here Tuesday night. The "B" girls team won 35-30; the "A" team won 69-37; and the "A" boys team won 61-45. The two "A" games were District 1-A contests, and the victories kept the McLean boys' and girls' records in district play clean with three wins and no losses.

Friday night of last week, the "A" and "B" boys journeyed to Phillips and dropped both games. Saturday night, in the local gym, the same teams won a pair of tilts over the Silverton Owls. Friday night, the girls and boys go to Clarendon for district matches, and Tuesday night the Lefors boys and girls come here for games with the Tigers and Tigerettes.

Members of the Hillcrest Cemetery Association will meet Monday night at 7:30 o'clock in the City Hall for the annual election of officers, and to discuss other business. President Peb Everett said this week.

Everyone is invited, regardless of whether they are members of the association at the present time, Everett explained.

In addition to electing officers to serve during the coming year, further improvements to the cemetery grounds are to be discussed. The association has been instrumental in many improvements at the cemetery during the past three years, and other improvements are still in the planning stage.

 al, state, or local problems. Cost of entering the group is nothing. Reading materials and/or films, are furnished through Texas Tech by the American Library Association. The association receives its funds from the Ford Foundation. However, it was pointed out, the foundation has no voice in the subjects to be discussed, or in the manner in which the group governs itself. Mrs. Lady Bryant, local librarian, was instrumental in getting the two representatives to appear here for the meeting. It is likely that the discussion group will not be formed until about September, since the meetings are to be held during the fall and winter months only. Those local persons who might be interested are invited to inquire of Mrs. Bryant for further details.

 WORK TO HIKE
 ATTENDANCE

Members of the First Baptist Church will begin a loyalty and enlargement campaign next Sunday morning, to continue through Easter Sunday, April 10. Dr. Buell T. Wells, pastor, has announced.

During the campaign, special emphasis will be placed on church attendance. The church roll will be called at the morning services, and absentees at Sunday School and Training Union will be contacted during the following week.

Each Sunday morning service during the campaign will be dedicated to one or more members who are shut-ins. A recording of the service will be made and taken to the honorees. To be honored next Sunday will be Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Connell, and Mrs. Pearl Curry the following Sunday.

Wednesday night services have been designated as "family nights," and members are urged to bring the entire family to the services.

The annual spring revival of the church will be held March 25 through April 3.

How easy is it for one benevolent being to diffuse pleasure around him, and how truly is a kind heart a fountain of gladness, making everything in its vicinity to freshen into smiles.—Washington Irving.

The best portion of a good man's life is his little, nameless, unremembered acts of kindness and of love.—William Wordsworth.

What the best and wisest parent wants for his own child that must the community want for all its children.—John Dewey.

The 1954 amendments to the Social Security Act provide that a worker's earning record can be "frozen" if he becomes totally and permanently disabled. This does not mean that payments will be made to the disabled person before he is 65 years of age. It simply means that when he is 65, or in the case of his death, the period of his proven disability will not be counted against him in computing the amount of his own or his survivors' payments. In some cases it can mean an increase in payments already being received by retired workers and their families.

- Any presently disabled person who can answer "yes" to each question below should do so and mail this form to the Amarillo social security office.
1. Are you now under a disability which is expected to last at least six months, which began before you became 65 years of age, and which prevents you from doing any substantially gainful work?
 2. Did you work in employment covered by the Social Security Act for at least 5 of 10 years just before this disability occurred?
 3. Did you do such work for at least 1 1/2 years out of the 3 years just before you became disabled?
- Mr. and Mrs. Luther Petty were in Pampa on business Wednesday.

The holidays may be past and gone for another season, but here is one "Christmas tree" which is a year-round decoration in many parts of the Southwest, where most of the country's natural gas supply originates. "Christmas trees" are the array of valves and pipes on top of gas wells. Through them this clean dependable fuel flows steadily from underground pools to furnaces, hot water heaters and kitchen ranges in millions of American homes. Yet the costs of finding and producing gas amount for only 10 per cent of your household gas bill.

Few housewives who cook with natural gas probably realize the risks, the expense, the technical processes and the constant vigilance that make possible an uninterrupted, day-and-night, winter-and-summer delivery of gas from well to burner tip.

There are three steps in this delivery process. The gas consumer buys his fuel from a local gas company, or distributor, who in turn buys it from an interstate pipeline (except in cases where the consumer lives in one of the gas-producing states). The pipeline receives its gas from an independent producer, who first must explore for and find gas deposits before he can gather and deliver his product.

Not every one of the producer's wells is decorated with the "Christmas tree" shown above. For the producer is somewhat like the prospector of a century ago—and gas, like gold, is where you find it. Today the combined knowledge and experience of geologist and explorer can only indicate where gas ought to be found. There is no guarantee that a deposit is actually present. The only way to find out is to drill an exploratory well. And the average today is eight unsuccessful drillings — costing about $100,000 each — for every one that yields gas. Yet the producer's total share of the consumer's gas bill is only about a dime out of every dollar — with the balance going to pipeline and distributor.

Children are God's apostles, of love, and hope, and peace.—sent forth, day by day, to preach James Russell Lowell.
