New Shades in Siding For Home Repair Jobs

Warm weather means it's time for property owners to check the physical condition of their buildings. Hard weather damage must be located and repaired before the sun and rain compound a minor repair job into a major project.

And one of the first places to look in making repair plans is at your home's exterior, for a house's roof and side have much to do with the comfort and security of its occupants. That's why an exterior repair job is an investment for the future and a real enhancement in a building's value.

Of course, if a house is roofed and sided with asbestos-cement the inspection shouldn't take long. This material, a combination of asbestos fiber and Portland cement, is, by its very nature, a guarantee against damaging elements.

Marked as a "new" wonder product, asbestos-cement has been used for more than fifty years for both new home construction and old home modernization. New designs streamlining a horizontal window line in sidings has created such excitement that many new home owners think it is a brand new material.

Another advantage in the siding is paint and maintenance bills. Colored sealed into the shingles and siding itself ends paint worries. Thus, weatherproof and fireproof asbestos-cement can be the answer to many a home owners repair problems.

THE METHODIST MESSENGER

June 17, 1958

From the Pastor's Study:

It is good to be home!

We are happy to be your minister for another year. We have already had many interesting experiences in the short three weeks since our annual conference. We have an interesting Summer Schedule of activities for our church.

The Official Board of our church consented to "send" the preacher's family to a "National Youth Work Camp" at Harwood Girls School, Albuquerque, N. M. We will have boys and girls from the four corners of the United States and a few in-between at the camp. We will leave Monday, June 23, and return the last week in July.

I would like to thank the officials and members of the church for this experience. We will be cutting wood, making a patio, refinishing furniture, and painting rooms at the school.

I also wish to thank Mr. Freeman Melton and the Pastoral Relations Committee for helping plan and guide our "Summer for God" program.

Also Rev. H. A. Longino for acting as minister of visitation in my absence. Please feel free to call on either of these men as they will have contact with me by mail and phone. Set your mind now to hear the outstanding ministers during my absence. Attend Sunday School and Church both morning and evening. I will try to send a good report from camp. Will you send a good report to camp? Give God a chance—"Attend Church!"

Billy Graham says:
"The church itself is wrong," he declared. "The average church member is not living the Christian life and his church is not teaching him how to do it. The greatest need in America today is a revival within the church."

FOOD — FUN — WORSHIP

RECOMMENDATIONS TO PULPIT COMMITTEE

1. Pray often for your minister.
 2. Enlist others in the church to pray for him.
 3. Lift up the worthy, successful work the minister does.
 4. Remember that the minister and his family are human. Not many churches would want a perfect preacher.
 5. Before you ask for "a better" preacher, be sure you have done everything possible to help the one you have.
 6. Do unto your minister as you would have done to you.
- Rev. J. Dewey Muir

METHODIST MEN MEET

The Methodist Men had their initial meeting of the new conference year Monday night. A covered dish supper was enjoyed by the twelve members present. Tom Greenwood, president, conducted the business session. For a project the club decided to purchase a buffer for the floors.

Rev. H. A. Longino and Johnny Haynes led the group in the singing of favorite hymns.

The program was "The Measure of a Man," a filmstrip with discussion. In discovering how to overcome an "over stimulation of the ego gland," one needs to take some vitamin pills and read the story of "The Good Samaritan" (read Bible); second—discover and study needs within the community (others); third—talk often with the Lord.

THUS SPEAKETH CHRIST

(Engraved on an old slab in the Cathedral of Luebeck, Germany)

Ye call me Light and seek me not,
Ye call me Way and walk me not,
Ye call me Life and desire me not,
Ye call me wise and follow me not,
Ye call me fair and love me not,
Ye call me rich and ask me not,
Ye call me eternal and seek me not,
Ye call me gracious and trust me not,
Ye call me noble and serve me not,
Ye call me mighty and honor me not,
Ye call me just and fear me not,
If I condemn ye, blame me not.

Nancy Meacham and Marie Watson; also Fred Smith, Carlton Burr and Jack Burr.

Out-of-town presents were sent from Mrs. E. M. Bordens of Wheeler, Cora Hall of Groom, Alma and Hixie Shied of Hollis, Okla.

JUST a Newsstand? No.

It is a battleground.

In this tiny territory rival publications fight for the attention of the public. From left to right you can find all shades of political and social opinion, freely expressed. And because of this a newsstand is more than just a convenience in the life of an American town.

It is a front line.

There is another battle going on around a newsstand, more far-reaching than the competitive rivalry of paper against paper, magazine against magazine. For there are always people—yes, even here—who dislike to see opinions freely expressed... and who attempt to bring all sorts of restraining pressures on those who champion the Press's freedom.

But those who write and print and publish the free opinions of America, they see a threat to that freedom as a threat to all freedoms, and vigilantly hold back pressure-wielders from closing in on the newsstand.

For the newsstand is freedom's front line.

THE BIGGEST FLAW
 How do Russian and U. S. medicine compare? That question is a provocative one. And an answer has been supplied by Dr. Gunnar Gundersen, newly-elected president of the American Medical Association, who recently toured the Soviet Union.

His views appear in an extended interview in the May issue of Today's Health. All in all, what he has to say is highly reassuring. The Russians are not beating us in the race of medical progress. In some important fields, such as antibiotics and hormones, they've done little or nothing. For the most part, their hospitals and other facilities are crowded and the physical plants are below U. S. standards. Their medical schools seem to be about on a par with ours, and graduate work is also comparable. Doctors, if they have any instinct of self-preservation, must pretty well follow the Soviet political line, as must everyone else. To quote Dr. Gundersen directly, "Human life is not very precious in Russia. I believe medical care doesn't enjoy too high a priority."

Most significant of all, to many minds, is the last question asked of Dr. Gundersen: "What would you say would be the basic weakness of the Russian medical system as compared to ours?" He answered: "We place a great deal of emphasis on freedom in this country. I'm convinced this freedom just doesn't exist in that kind of economy. It doesn't exist under their system. That's the biggest flaw."
 Freedom is our greatest resource.

A TRANSPORTATION OBJECT LESSON

The oil industry, with 800 billion ton-miles of transportation involved yearly, has developed an amazingly efficient coordination between tankships, pipe lines, rails, trucks and coastal barges. Had oil men not taken the initiative to develop transportation conveyances suited to their industry, the element of transportation cost in the price the consumer pays for petroleum products today would be much greater than it is.

Each method of transportation is used according to its own ability to serve economically... each form is superior in its own, particular field.

We see a sharp contrast when we look at transportation from a national standpoint. There, because of the tendency of regulation to "equalize" competitive advantage, the over-all development of an efficient national transportation system along optimum economic lines is impossible.

If the history of oil transportation teaches us anything it is the basic lesson that competitive enterprise produces the maximum of worthwhile results for people—when it is permitted to operate. It shows that every interference with the dictum of economic law results in extra costs. It helps to illustrate how government regulations, imposed as the protector of the consumer, tends to become instead an equalizer of competitive ability in which the consumer's true interest is lost.

FARM SAFETY WEEK

There's one coming event which every farm family in this country should welcome with enthusiasm. It's Farm Safety Week, to be observed during the July 20-26 period.

Farmers face all the common hazards of modern living. In addition, in the pursuit of their calling, they encounter special accident hazards all their own.

For example, take tractors and other mechanized farm equipment. These machines are absolutely essential to successful modern farming. The machinery engineers never lose sight of the safety factor. New safety devices are incorporated in the designs as soon as they are proven. Careful instructions concerning safe operation are issued. But all the precautions on earth will do no good if the users violate common-sense rules.

Youngsters are permitted to operate machines—and every so often a tragic and totally unnecessary death or maiming results. Farmers drive unlighted or inadequately lighted equipment on public roads at night—and the immutable law of averages says that this practice must end in disaster at frequent intervals.

Mechanically minded farmers sometimes get ideas for making changes in their equipment, or in adding accessories of their own design and construction. More often than not, this creates new dangers to the operator. It's a rare farmer indeed who has the engineering knowledge, the skill, and the facilities to improve on what the factory has done.

HOW IS IT IN YOUR STATE?

During Farm Safety Week, authorities will deal with all manner of farm hazards and show how they can be eliminated or minimized. It's an opportunity that agricultural America can't afford to miss.

IT'S THE LAW In Texas

EVIDENCE
 A trial aims to settle a dispute when the parties fail to do it themselves. For this the court needs facts.

Simple? Well, no. For if the parties could agree on the facts, a settlement out of court would be easy. But as a rule each side has its own story, and the trial judge or jury must hear witnesses and view physical evidence to decide what took place. In doing this the court applies the rules of evidence.

It took centuries for the court to work out rules by which a judge can say what is proper or improper evidence.

1. In "hearsay," for example, someone who did not see the event reports what someone told him about it. Courts seldom allow such evidence, except in rare cases as where the dying words, say, of a murdered person may be vital.

2. Irrelevant testimony will also be barred by the judge. It is testimony which has no bearing on the case, even though it may be true enough.

Suppose in a battery case the jury has to find out whether Jones knocked Smith down or not. The judge would have to rule out any evidence that Jones, say, was rich and Smith poor. Such a fact, even if true, has nothing to do with the "issue." Moreover, such irrelevancies often confuse jurors or arouse prejudices.

3. Only an expert like a doctor, an appraiser, a chemist, a pharmacist, or an engineer can give opinions as evidence, and he must show his qualifications as an expert before the judge will let him express his views.

Lawyers keep inadmissible evidence out of court by making "objections." When the judge "sustains" an objection the jury may not hear the evidence. Or if he does, the judge may "instruct" the jury to ignore it. Should the judge "overrule" the objection, the jury may hear the evidence.

 A labor bill designed to drive racketeers and crooked officials out of the union movement and to protect the rights of workers, management, and the people generally has been reported to Senate by the Labor Committee.

The bill has the support of Senator John McClellan, the Arkansas Senator who has led the Senate investigation into labor racketeering. Senator McClellan is probably better informed about the evils growing out of dishonest labor leadership than any other man in the country. He has given close study to proposed labor legislation, and he suggested several strengthening amendments to the bill.

An analysis of the bill as reported by the committee, shows that it would have the following important effects:

The right of secret ballot would be guaranteed union members in selecting their officials. Crooked or rigged elections would be contested in federal courts under a system provided by the bill.

Fair standards to govern union trusteeships would be established, and a time limit would be placed on them so that no union would be under trusteeship for an indefinite period.

The spotlight of publicity would be focused on "middleman" deals that are against the best interests of the working man.

Effective reporting of union operations would be required. Union leaders and officials would be required to reveal any personal financial transactions having a bearing on the manner in which they conduct their responsibilities in order to disclose any conflict of interest.

Needed barriers against the control of unions by crooks—by unreformed, convicted thieves, embezzlers, and extortionists—would be erected.

Union treasuries and trust funds would be protected against misappropriation and embezzlement. Criminal penalties would be imposed against men who give bribes and men who take bribes in labor-management relations.

Union officials would be prevented from using union funds to perpetuate themselves in office.

Important financial records and election ballots would be required to be preserved. It would make ineligible for office convicted criminals and Applications submitted from the 173 Texas Soil Conservation Districts. From this list of nominations, the 25 directors of the Association of the Association of Texas Soil Conservation Districts then selected the one farmer or rancher that he considered most outstanding in his group of five to eight Soil Conservation Districts. Selections were based on progress made by each nominee in applying to promote soil and water conservation programs on their farms or ranches, and their other work to promote soil and water conservation.

Association President W. C. Howard and D. A. Childre, president of Great Southwest Life Insurance Company, both report that while this annual awards program is only in its second year, it has already attracted widespread interest and that it has done much to create interest in the conservation of soil and water throughout the state.

"I cook complete broiler meals for my family—thanks to my Electric Range!"

Broiler Recipe...

Here's the recipe Mrs. Wadley used when these pictures were taken. It's a complete, delicious broiler meal — one you'll want to try.

- 2 cans asparagus
- 1 can pimiento
- 2 cans Mexican Tomatoes
- Grated Cheese

Drain liquid from cans of vegetables and arrange in bottom of the broiler pan. Place asparagus down center of pan. Place pimiento strips down the center of asparagus. Arrange 1 can of Mexican on each side of asparagus. Season vegetables with salt and pepper.

Wipe steaks with damp cloth, score fat around edges to prevent curling. Place on rack of cold broiler pan, season, and place under broiler unit of electric range so the top of the steak is four or five inches from the broiler unit.

Turn oven control to Broil. Leave oven door ajar. Cook on one side until brown (about 12 minutes). Turn and brown other side (about 10 minutes).

Cut tomatoes in halves and put grated cheese on top. Arrange on broiler rack just before steaks are done.

says Mrs. Gary Wadley,
 GUYMON, OKLAHOMA

That's the nice thing about an electric range — you can cook complete meals — at one time. There are several ways, too. You may cook complete deep well meals, complete oven meals, complete surface unit meals or, as Mrs. Wadley favors, complete broiler meals. All come out tasty, tempting and nutritious.

We, the First Baptist Church of McLean, Texas, would have the general public to know that concerning the dance we believe the following:

Chicago Newsmen Welcome Nixon

At the conclusion of one of the largest press conferences ever held in Chicago—it required a hotel ball room to accommodate the press, television and radio reporters—Vice President Nixon became a member of the Chicago Press Club. CAUTION URGED TO FARMERS IN USE OF WEED KILLERS Extreme caution in the use of chemical weed killers on the farm or ranch was urged by Agriculture Commissioner John C. White.

Some 4,000 acres of cotton were recently damaged severely in the Coastal Bend, where 2,4-D and 2,4-5-T were used to kill weeds in nearby rice fields. The incident resulted in the banning of the chemicals in that area until crops are harvested.

Commissioner White reminded farmers and ranchers that hormone-type herbicides are excellent for weed control but they can be dangerous to surrounding broadleaf plants. The chemical spray can be carried long distances by wind, damaging and sometimes destroying cotton and other crops in the vicinity.

The recent ban on herbicides in an area of the Coastal Bend was the first time such action had been necessary there in five years. "We have had so few cases of mis-handling of the chemicals that people are apt to forget how potent they really are on susceptible crops," said White.

Even a small leak in spraying equipment being towed down the highway has been known to damage crops for miles down both sides of the road. The chemicals of hormone type spur the plant to such a rapid growth that it literally "grows itself to death" in a few days time.

White pointed out that many Texas counties are regulated by the state herbicide law which requires permits if more than 10 acres of land are sprayed during any one year. Those applying herbicides commercially must be bonded in addition to having a permit.

Some 161,000 acres were sprayed in the state last year, with a total of 196 licenses issued to dealers.

Proper use of the chemicals can achieve excellent results in weed control, said White. However, anyone who has not had previous experience with weed killers is advised to hire a reliable commercial firm to treat the land.

PANHANDLE OUTDOOR LIFE

By STARKEY WHITEHORN

It would be interesting to know just how much game is raised each year compared to how much there would be raised if each game bird and animal were 100% successful in their reproductive activities.

Each year there are countless turkey nests broken up. Many young turkeys, fawns and other wild life fall victims to predators. Last week Dick de Arment, wildlife biologist from Wheeler, said that he rode the hay mower on the Henry Young Ranch on the Washita River while a 40-acre field of alfalfa was being cut. There were exactly 18 turkey nests found and, as a result of hay mowing, all were broken up. Only two of these nests showed any signs of incubation. One of these two nests contained eggs that were about ready to hatch. There were two turkey hens killed by the mower and another was crippled. The 81 nests contained 118 eggs all together.

This fact isn't at all unusual but rather common place each year on alfalfa or grass hay meadows. Instead of setting turkey hens taking to flight when they hear the tractor and mower coming their way, they usually sit all the more close to the ground. Mr. Young has in time past made "flushing bars" to go ahead of the mower blades in an attempt to save the nesting hens but this didn't work up to any success.

Even though the amount of nests destroyed was large, it wasn't nearly so bad this year as last. Mr. de Arment said last year the nesting sites were in very short supply due to lack of vegetation. On the same alfalfa patch there were six hens killed and 300 eggs left to go unhatched. Considering this fact, there was still a higher population of turkeys on the Henry Young Ranch than almost any other in the same locality.

The alfalfa patch is almost an egg factory. As a result, many predators concentrate there. As the alfalfa was mowed there was noticed one adult coon with three half-grown young ones with her. Also, snakes were numerous. One seven-foot bull snake was examined that contained turkey eggs.

Bird Dog Pups
For months there haven't been many bird dog pups noticed for sale. However, Jack Woodford, game warden at Miami, has a litter of nine setters, about two weeks of age, that he will sell. These pups are as well bred as can be found. Also, Roy Brockman, Phillips Gasoline Plant, five miles southwest of Dumas, has a litter of setter pups that can be bought.

New Game Warden
Frank F. Ordener from Seymour, has been stationed in Canadian. Game Warden Ordener was assigned to work Hemphill, Ochiltree and Lipscomb counties. P. D. Moseley, veteran game warden, will continue to work the same counties in connection with Ordener. These two game wardens will be working under the supervision of Jim Maggard, game warden supervisor for the Panhandle.

Hatchery Remodeling
According to the May issue of "Texas Game and Fish," construction work has been started on a complete rehabilitation of the Dundee Fish Hatchery near Wichita Falls.

New ditches, water lines, and levees will be installed under the project. Work will be carried on without disturbing the present operation which will continue in approximately half of the hatchery. After the first half of the project has been completed, operations will be switched over to the new installation while the other half will be rehabilitated.

This hatchery provides fish for restocking in the hundreds of small lakes in the North Texas and Panhandle areas. Under the improvement program, a constant source of water is assured for the hatchery. Previously, propagation was seriously affected by drought conditions.

So this is HOUSEKEEPING

In the tricky business of trying to convince a balky husband, the all-important thing is The Approach. Whether you're trying to wheedle theatre tickets, a fur coat, or, as in my case, a new range. The Approach must be developed to a fine art. The art is in knowing which method will best apply to your particular brand of husband.

Take the case of the hoped-for range. Approach #1 (recommended in only a few cases where a favorite spouse loves to cook and is half-way convinced to begin with): "This old range is a wreck. Isn't it about time we got a new one?"

Approach #2 (for the man who takes pride in his technical know-how): "Will you explain something to me, dear? You're so clever about these things. Whirlpool has a new electric range with controls that pinpoint the right heat with a gliding light. Can you imagine? And it has infinite heat on all four burners plus the plug-in griddle. How can they possibly, etc., etc?"

Approach #3 (positively guaranteed for the gourmet). Some night after a dinner of wieners and beans draw mouth-watering word pictures of a standing rib, roasted to perfection, ducks, capons, barbecued ribs, shish-kebob, foods you never dared to try. Then deftly slip in the fact that the new electric range you have your eye on features an automatic rotisserie, an automatic barbecue-kewer, even an automatic toaster which combine to produce unheard-of delicacies.

Approach #4 (This is for die-hard who think a wood-burning stove is rather snappy. This method will take a little longer and may be hard on your reputation, but it's worth it). Over a period of time manage to burn a few favorite dishes, jump up and down so your cake will certainly fall, see to it that not everything finishes cooking at the same time. When the complaints begin coming in, you have him trapped. Throw yourself on his mercy and mention the new range with the built-in food guide which dials the right time and temperature for 82 main dishes! If none of the above works, try a combination of several. If he continues to be unmoved, either give up, study the approach problem more closely, or be philosophical and congratulate yourself on having a mate who cannot be swayed by fire or food!

MOVE MADE TO CONTINUE ROAD LAW

Officials of groups interested in preserving the present rural road building program will meet in Waco July 1 to plan strategy for heading off an expected move in the next Legislature to alter the Farm-to-Market road building laws.

The meeting, which was called by the Texas Farm Bureau, will begin at 10 a. m. at the Roosevelt Hotel. Some 13 agricultural and rural organizations have been invited to send representatives.

In a letter to the groups involved, TFB President J. H. West said that a movement is afoot to curtail the present rural road building program in Texas. He declared that if opponents of rural roads are successful in securing passage of their proposed changes it would be disastrous to the Farm-to-Market road building program as it would permanently halt the program.

The Texas Research League, in a study made for the Texas Highway Commission, advocated a change in the laws governing the construction of Farm-to-Market roads as a means of preventing the state from "becoming burdened" with a rural road program in excess of its needs. These roads are built under two separate state laws: (1) the Colson-Briscoe Act of 1949 which provides that $15 million a year be transferred from the general revenue to a Farm-to-Market road fund and to be used exclusively for construction, and (2) the Motor Fuels Tax Act which earmarks a specific portion of that tax (now about one-fifth of net collections) to be used for both construction and improvement of the Farm-to-Market roads. Neither of the acts provide for maintenance of the system.

Chevrolet Builds Its 39,000,000th

West said that only about 26,000 miles of rural roads have been paved while more than 100,000 miles of rural roads in the state remain unpaved. He added that school buses still travel over some 60,000 miles of unpaved roads during the school year.

The Texas Farm Bureau, which has a policy opposing any change in the present rural road building laws, is expected to lead the fight to save the Farm-to-Market road program at the 56th Legislature which will convene in January.

Organizations which have been invited to the Waco meeting include the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, Texas Electric Cooperatives, Texas Rural Letter Carriers Association, Texas Federation of Cooperatives, Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association, Texas State Grange, Texas Poultry Improvement Association, Texas Livestock Marketing Association, Texas Swine Breeders Association, Texas Dairy Association, Texas Angus Breeders Association, Texas Livestock Auction Association and Texas Hereford Breeders Association.

beginning at 11:30 a. m. on July 4. Last year some 5,000 people were fed on beef barbequed by H. M. (Flip) Breedlove, Donley County Agent. Another high point of the program will be an Old Settler's Reunion which will begin at 9:00 a. m. on the 4th. All o'd settlers in the surrounding communities are invited to this reunion.

Immediately following the free barbeque there will be a big parade with floats sponsored by business men and various organizations of Clarendon and surrounding communities.

The four rodeo performances will be Thursday night, Friday afternoon, Friday night, and Saturday night. Each night performance will begin at eight o'clock and the one afternoon performance will begin at 2:00 o'clock. Following each of the night performances there will be a big dance at the American Legion Hut in downtown Clarendon.

CARD OF THANKS

For your many cards, the flowers, and all the other gifts, also the visits, while in the hospital and since I've been home. I wish to say thanks—and most of all for every prayer in my behalf. You helped more than you know! Thanks again.

"A Texan and a Kentuckian were arguing.
 "Why we've got enough gold in Kentucky to build a fence of gold six feet high around the whole state of Texas."
 "You just do that, son," replied the Texan, "and if we like it . . . we'll buy it."
