HIGH WINDS, ICE ACCOMPANY FIRST SNOWFALL IN PANHANDLE

Winter made up for its overdue arrival in McLean last Monday as snow flurries accompanied by icy winds lashed across West Texas, carrying as far as the north central area of the state.

Throughout the area struck by high winds and ice, more than one million dollars in damage was estimated, although the destructive segments of the storms missed the Panhandle. The cold front was brought into the McLean area by light rains Sunday afternoon and night, plunging temperatures to the low 20's. Although snow flurries were reported in most of the area, for the most part it melted upon contact with the ground.

Following the early morning flurries of snow, violent winds moved on through Texas, hitting particularly the far west Texas area.

The cold weather came from a Canadian front and moved from the Panhandle toward the southeast. The violent winds at times were stronger than hurricane rating.

As of today, forecasters say

Each room had previously selected their nominee and a speaker to represent their room. When the nominations were completed the groups went into caucus and then the groups were polled. The two people receiving the highest number of votes were in the run-off election which was held Nov. 13.

The week from the primary to the run-off saw the campaign managers and committees working for the candidate of their choice, displaying posters, handing out cards and hand-shaking. The morning of the 13th the student body returned to the gym for the final campaign talks and demonstrations. The students then returned to their rooms to mark their ballots. All the races were very close, with these students receiving the most votes:

Easy Rules Focus Yule Photos

BY EDNA MILES

This is the best time—right now—to check on both your picture-taking technique and equipment for the Christmas holidays.

More than any other holiday of the year, Christmas is a family affair. And most families want to record their Christmas, either in movies or in stills, in color or black-and-white, or both.

But last year's pictures may serve as a guide to improving those for Christmas, 1958. Those blurred and fuzzy stills, those monotonous movies of the family mugging straight into the camera, would be a lot more fun to look at if more thought went into the composition of the pictures.

Remember, if you want natural and lifelike pictures, you must ask your subjects not to stare at the camera.

See to it that they're doing something, whether it's trimming the tree or sampling eggnog, and then catch them in action. Don't let them wave at the camera or grin self-consciously.

As for equipment, take it to your nearest camera shop if you're in doubt about its operating efficiency.

Or, treat yourself to a brand new, budget-priced movie maker in a gold-and-white case so that you can keep a full record of your family's Christmas.

THE "WHY" OF PERCENTAGE DEPLETION

One of the most controversial issues connected with the oil industry—and probably the most misunderstood—is that of percentage depletion—which allows oil producers to deduct 27½% of their gross income for tax purposes. Congress after Congress has approved percentage depletion. It is essential to keeping our oil supply geared to this country's enormous demand.

Oil production differs from other industrial operations in two important ways. It is risky far beyond normal, and, secondly, it involves the constant selling of a capital asset—every barrel taken out of a well reduces its value by that much. A manufacturer, by contrast, doesn't sell his assets, which consist of plant and machinery, in the normal course of business. He sells only the products he makes.

Factories, of course, depreciate in value. The income tax law allows for that through their depreciation provisions. If say, the manufacturer has capital assets worth $100,000, and is permitted an annual depreciation of $10,000, at the end of 10 years he'll have his $100,000 capital again, untaxed. Because of inflation, depreciation allowances are generally inadequate these days, but that is the theory behind the provision. But this system just won't work with oil production, for two reasons.

In oil, the market value of the capital assets has no real relationship to the cost of creating those assets. For instance, a well may be drilled at a cost of $2 million and turn out dry and totally worthless—while on the other hand, another well may be drilled for $30,000 and prove to be worth many times that figure.

Then, in oil, the cost of replacing the capital assets, once they're used up—that is, finding new oil—has no definite relationship to the cost of creating them in the first place. No one can possibly know how much it will cost to find a new field to take the place of one whose oil has been exhausted—or if the new field will be as valuable as the old.

Way back in 1926 Congress wrestled with these and other special problems—and the result was the equitable and workable percentage depletion formula which has been in effect ever since.

Summing up, there are four important things the public should know about depletion. First, it applies only to income from production of crude oil—not to income from other oil industry operations. Second, it is given because the producer who sells a barrel of oil is selling part of his capital. Third, it is in no sense a tax loophole. Fourth, thanks to it this nation has been able to build a vigorous, forward-going domestic oil industry.

TO FULFILL A PROMISE

The executive director of Congress' Joint Committee on Atomic Energy recently asked interested parties to comment on the "Proposed Expanded Civilian Nuclear Power Program." One was the Edison Electric Institute Committee on Atomic Power.

Elmer L. Lindseth, the committee's chairman, replied in detail. At the end of his long letter he offered this summary: "It seems to us to be particularly important that at each stage of the development of the new field, prime consideration be given to the maintenance of our normal business system. Whatever we have in the way of productive capacity in this country can be credited to that system, and as we enter this new field of energy, every effort should be made to protect and strengthen it."

Going on, Mr. Lindseth urged that the nuclear program "should be designed to create an environment in which the inventive and productive capacity of industry can most effectively be utilized to achieve the national and international objectives at the earliest practicable date. Detailed government controls and government ownership of nuclear power plants will not serve to create this environment and will be detrimental to the achievement of the program objectives. Maximum participation by industry on the other hand will achieve optimum progress at least cost to the taxpayer.

Utilities and other private enterprises in this country

Thanksgiving—First Things, First

are now engaged in an atoms-for-peace program which, in the view of the experts here and abroad, holds the greatest promise of progress of any in the world. The plain set of principles laid down by Mr. Lindseth will see to it that the promise is fulfilled.

IN PEACE AND IN WAR

Has incredibly fast international air travel, the prospect of space vehicles, and other such modern phenomena undermined the importance of the merchant ship?

A top authority, Admiral Arleigh A. Burke, Chief of Naval Operations, says NO.

In fact, Admiral Burke describes a ship as the most flexible, versatile and economical mode of transportation the world has ever known. He adds: "The sea reaches all islands and continents on earth, where people live, fight and do business. Ships can carry large quantities of people and goods over the homogenous surface of the oceans."

Noting that last year this country exported one-fifth of the world's total export trade of $100 billion, the admiral continued: "We are heavily dependent on the sea, and this demands that we not only control the sea but also that we have the means to use those seas. This means ships under effective American control."

"Both in peace and in war, a strong American Merchant Marine is essential to the strength and well-being of our country."

Government policy, as laid down by the legislative and administrative branches, is geared to building and maintaining that kind of U. S. flag Merchant Marine. It is a policy that the hard and inescapable facts of life in today's world make essential.

IT'S THE LAW IN TEXAS

"RIGHT OF WAY" RULES

Possibly the most mystifying of all traffic rules to the average driver are those relating to "Right of Way" at an intersection. In reality, however, these rules are quite simple.

In trying to understand the laws regulating intersecting traffic, it is best to start off with the premise that all streets are of equal dignity, legally speaking. Traffic signs and signals may vary this rule somewhat, but when in doubt, it is safest to assume that all drivers crossing your path have a claim to the right of way equal to your own.

Obviously, however, in many cases one driver or the other will be legally entitled to the right of way. When it becomes necessary to determine right of way in a particular situation, the driver who reaches the intersection first, or who is going to get there first, is ordinarily favored.

But when two automobiles are an equal distance from the intersection, that one approaching from the other driver's right normally has the right of way.

Some intersections are known as "courtesy corners," having a stop sign or a flashing red signal facing each direction of approach. The first driver reaching the corner and coming to a complete stop will normally have the right of way over other vehicles not already in the intersection. However, don't depend too much on the other fellow's courtesy, and be sure to keep a "proper lookout" and your car under "proper control."

At intersections involving one through street and another street having a stop sign, a driver approaching the stop sign and coming to a full stop is ordinarily said to have the right of way over vehicles approaching on the through street but not already in the intersection.

However, this last rule must be qualified by saying that you should not proceed, cross or turn onto the through street until you can do so without interfering with oncoming traffic. In other words, if an approaching car will arrive within the intersection before you are completely clear, wait just a little longer. The same rules apply to entering a highway from a side road containing a stop sign.

Many drivers violate the rules of right of way covering left-hand turns at intersections. When turning left, you should always be on the inside (or center) lane, displaying the proper hand signal. You must allow all cars coming from the opposite direction, already in the intersection, to pass through before completing your turn. Even when the intersection is cleared, do not proceed unless other oncoming traffic is far enough away to be able to see your signal and slow down to allow you to turn with safety to all concerned.

Stay in the inside lane until your left-hand turn is entirely completed, and only then move gradually over to the right-hand lane if you wish. When turning right, stay in the right-hand lane at all times. Do not swing wide into the center lane, as to do so is unnecessary, unlawful and dangerous.

Many detailed rules and suggestions for safe driving are included in the "Texas Driving Handbook" which is available to any person requesting same from the Texas Department of Public Safety, Drivers License Division, Austin, Texas.

COLD FEET...?

A generation ago some people thought rubbing the soles of the feet with grease would ward off a head cold. Today, we know better. Adequate rest and a well-balanced diet go a long way toward preventing colds. But, sometimes even the best precautions aren't good enough. When you are ill—whether you have a cold or something more serious—effective medications are important. They can be the difference between pain or comfort... slow or fast recovery. Let your physician decide the remedies you need. Then come to us for the prescribed medication.

Andrew H. Floyd Dies For His Country

On Nov. 17, 1918, Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Floyd of McLean received a message that their son, Andrew H. Floyd, had been killed in France.

Andrew was born Nov. 17, 1880, in Montague County. At the age of two he moved with his parents to Groer County, where he lived until he was 13 years old when he came to McLean, where he has lived ever since.

He was a member of the McLean Baptist church, and lived a devoted life. He was eloquent in prayer, and always had an encouraging word for those who were struggling in the Christian life.

He graduated from McLean High School in May, 1911, and in September, 1911, he entered West Texas Normal College. During the latter part of that year he won first prize on the declamation contest of the institution, for which he was awarded a nice gold watch. In 1912 he won a place in the inter-society debate, and later a place in the intercollegiate debate. He graduated in May, 1914.

He taught for a while and then came home to live.

Andrew Floyd was a patriotic man. In July, 1917, he enlisted in the army, and was stationed at Amarillo for about six weeks then he was removed to Camp Bowie, where he remained in training until July 17, 1918, when he left for France. He didn't want to go, he didn't believe in it, but he loved his country and his home, so he felt it his duty to do if need be for the sake of Democracy.

Mrs. Myrtle Fulton Dies

On Nov. 17 we laid to rest Mrs. Myrtle Fulton, wife of Drew

Fulton and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Blagge of Lamar County. She was 33 years of age.

Rev. Reagan, pastor of the Baptist church, conducted the funeral services. The hymn, "Jesus Lover of My Soul" was impressively sung, followed by prayer and scripture reading. The address was consoling to the relatives and friends present.

The husband and children were unable to attend the funeral service, all of them being sick with influenza. Warren Fulton of Alanreed, and Mrs. Walter Bailey, a sister-in-law, besides many friends, were present.

Deceased leaves a husband, five sons, two daughters, father, mother, five brothers and two sisters to mourn her loss.

We pray God's blessings upon this bereaved husband and children.

ATTEND CHURCH EACH SUNDAY

A STARTLING FACT

By David V. Fultz, Minister McLean Church of Christ

On my desk is a tract that has very few words in it, but these teach a wonderful lesson that all of us should take to heart. The front page has on it only the words "A Startling Fact" and on the inside are two pictures; one shows a child going to church and the other shows a child before a judge in court. Between these two pictures are the words, "A child brought up in Bible School is seldom brought up in court."

These words ought to cause us to ponder seriously, where the emphasis should be placed in helping to overcome, not only the juvenile problems of our society, but the problems of crime at every age. Juvenile delinquency and crime have been growing for a number of years in our country, and it is evident that laws and law enforcement are not the only answer to the problem. Christ taught us this when He taught the principle of the control of the thoughts before the act was committed. "For out of the heart come forth evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, thefts, false witness, railings, these are the things that defile the man; but to eat with unwashed hands defileth not the man." Matt. 15:19-20. Not only do we learn the principle of control of thoughts concerning things evil and bad when we attend Bible study and church, we also learn the many good things of God to fill our minds and occupy our time.

Judge Sam Davis Tatum said two years ago in a lecture at Abilene Christian College, "From parents, most of all, the children get their estimation of values, their ideals, and their conceptions of life. Since I became Judge of Juvenile Court of Davidson County on June 1, 1939, I have tried approximately 14,500 youngsters under the age of 17 for violating the law in that jurisdiction. Of that great host of children, in only two instances, did the father and mother go to Sunday School and church regularly with their children. The fathers and the mothers of Nashville and Davidson County that go to Sunday School and church regularly with their children, never had children in the Juvenile Court for violating the law with the exception of these two cases." This is something for us to consider seriously. Regular attendance did make a difference, however, as he goes on to bring out those who only attended occasionally did not have this record. There were 93 cases in the 14,500 who were brought to court, where the children attended regularly, but their parents did not. Think what it means to your child when you attend with him, as well as the good you, as a parent, will get from it.

A lady once asked an eminent psychologist when she should start training her child. He asked her how old the child was, and she replied, nearly five. He replied, "Lady, you have waited at least five years too long already!" Bring those babies, in mother's arms, to Bible study and church, and never quit attending until you are too feeble to walk from the car to the building. Remember the child brought up in attendance doesn't go wrong, and right now is the time to start attending if you are not already.

HIGHLIGHTS AND SIDELIGHTS

By VERN SANFORD
 Texas Press Association

Higher Education
 Texas state colleges and universities should concentrate on doing the best job possible of one thing—higher education.

To do this, some other things—like student medical services, intramural athletics and certain extension services—will have to be cut loose from tax support.

This is the gist of a report to be presented to the next legislature by the commission on higher education. Reached after prolonged study and discussion, the commission's recommendations, if adopted, would be a significant and far reaching step toward directing state spending on higher educational institutions toward "pure academic pursuits."

The commission will ask the Legislature for the largest appropriation in history, about $67,000,000 annually, for the state's 18 tax-supported colleges and universities. This would be $10,000,000 a year more than is presently provided. Extra money would be used to provide more teachers, better faculty salaries, improved library and research facilities.

On the other hand, the commission turned thumbs down on the conducting of a number of extra-curricular activities at state expense. Things which the commission recommended the Legislature NOT include in the higher education budget: (1) intra-mural athletics, (2) free or low-cost medical services for students, (3) the 17-year-old cotton research council and the rodent and predatory animal control service, (4)

Beginning of the 56th Legislature is a little more than seven weeks away. Each week brings forward more touchy problems the lawmakers will have to wrestle. Some are new; some have been chewed over in many previous sessions. Examples:

Cities vs. City Employees—Texas League of Municipalities recently voted to ask the Legislature to step out of the field of regulating city employees' salaries, hours and benefits. It's a purely local concern, said the league. State Association of Firefighters and Police Officers Association took a dim view of the proposal. Executives of the two groups met in Austin, promised a fight against "legislation which would erase all the progress of the past 20 years."

Farm Irrigation—Texas Farm Bureau delegates voted to ask the Legislature to make it a little easier for them to get a permit to use small ponds on their property for irrigation. At present, farmers may dam up to 200 acre feet and use it for household and domestic purposes. To use it for irrigation they must get a special permit, reportedly difficult and expensive. Irrigation from farm ponds brought a hot contest between city and rural forces during the water legislation debates in the first special session, in the fall of 1957.

Traffic Safety Laws—Texas Safety Association, plus other groups, is pushing for legislation aimed at reducing road fatalities. Points in the program: (1) allowing for the results of "drunk-meter" (chemical tests for alcohol) tests to be introduced in court as evidence in driving-while-intoxicated cases, (2) stronger traffic law enforcement, (3) provision for enough highway patrolmen to do the job, (4) changing speed laws to meet the standards of new roads, (5) improved traffic courts, (6) a uniform license law, and (7) universal driver education.

Medical Payments—People approved a constitutional amendment to allow for medical aid payments of persons who receive state welfare checks. Next Legislature will have to pass a new law to put this into effect. Question is, how big should payments be? Other states average $6 a month for adults, $3 for children. Such a scale in Texas would cost an estimated $8,000,000 a year.

Advertising—Voters also approved an amendment allowing for state-supported advertising of Texas' advantages. But margin of approval was narrow, fore-shadowing some wrangling over how big a thing the program should be.

More School Days
 Less fishing and more studying time may be in the offing for Texas school students.

State board of education voted to recommend to the Legislature that the present 9-month school year be extended to 10 months. Earlier this month the Hale-Aikin study committee decided to recommend 9 1/2 months of schooling.

A spokesman for the Texas State Teachers Association said he thought teachers were generally favorable to a longer year. More will be known after TSTA has its annual convention in Fort Worth over the Thanksgiving holidays.

Among other groups that already have expressed opposition are the operators of summer camps and resorts. A longer school year would mean less time for them to be in operation.

Other questions sure to be raised are the extra costs coming at a time of financial strain and the possible ineffectiveness of study during hot weather weeks.

But probably the sharpest division of thought will be between parents (for) and children (against).

Credit Rates Upheld
 State Insurance Department's drastically reduced credit insurance rates are back in effect again. Last spring the department issued an order which, in effect, cut in half the legal rate that could be charged for credit insurance. Cosmo Ins. Co., Amarillo, and others sued in an Austin district court and obtained a court order preventing the department from enforcing the new rule.

But the Fourth Court of Civil Appeals reversed this. It held that Cosmo was entitled to a court hearing as to whether the new rates were just and reasonable. Meanwhile, they're in effect.

ICT Suit Re-Filed
 A suit charging scores of well-known persons and financial institutions with a share of the blame for ICT's ill-fated history has been re-filed in an Austin district court.

It was originally filed last June when V. F. Taylor was receiver for the case. Then there was a complicated shake-up and turnover in the liquidator-receiver's office, bringing in an almost all-new team.

Now the suit has been filed again with the new of the new receiver substituted on the papers. This probably is the granddaddy of all damage suits. It asks $15,000,000 damages. Defendants include such renowned names as Lloyds of London and Republic National Bank of Dallas.
