

MOTHERS' MARCH, BUCKET BRIGADE BOOST MOD TOTAL

Under the direction of Mrs. Guy Hester, the Mothers' March on polio Monday night netted a total of $306.50, according to Rev. Gerald Hill, March of Dimes chairman for McLean. The mothers conducted their fund drive in eight teams.

Including the sum of the Monday night campaign, the total for McLean has reached $1065.31. Through a combined effort of the McLean Lions Club and the Army Reserve, $501.37 came in Saturday through the bucket brigade. Members of the two organizations were on the main in-erections throughout the day collecting dimes.

Other additions to the total collected came through the McLean Grade School, individual and business donations.

Participating in the Mothers' March were Mesdames James Barker, Miro Pagan, J. Boyd Smith, Betty Sims, Johnnie Merte, Jim Morris, Creed Lamb, Jesse Leonard, Ted Simmons, Arthur Dwyer, Jim Hathaway, Joe Graham, Bob Ayers, E. J. Windom, Jr., Tom Greenwood, Freeman Melton, Ernest Watson, John D. Richards, David Fultz, Mesdames Troy Corbin, Harold Bunch, Jimmy Shelton, Henry Hicks, J. B. Roach, Guy Beasley, Sammy Haynes, Johnny Haynes, Harvey Taylor, Leslie Darsey, Don Blair, W. C. Simpson, Sid Lands, Chester Bohlar, Bill Earles, George Saunders, Truitt Johnson, Doug Groves, Harold Butrum.

With the drive in McLean to end Saturday, Rev. Hill stated that the figure is as yet under the total contributed last year, and that again an invitation is extended to give to the March of Dimes. Because of vast projects and heavy commitments, the MOD needs our fullest support.

Nine persons were killed and 77 were injured in this district during the previous month in highway accidents, it was reported this week by R. C. Parker, McLean patrolman.

In addition to the toll taken in lives, approximately $107,933 was done in property damage in a total of 177 accidents. In comparison to the previous month eight were killed and 67 injured.

Comparing 1958 with 1957 shows an increase in both highway fatalities and damage to personal property. During 1957

SATURDAY IS FINAL DAY FOR PAYMENT OF POLL TAX

There are, someone has said, just two classes of citizens: voters and non-voters, with convicted criminals and non-poll-tax-payers falling into the latter category. (Women, as a class, being excluded from the group by certain legalistic maneuvers.)

Saturday, January 31, is the deadline for eligible citizens to graduate into the upper echelon by planking down their $1.75 for poll tax receipts.

Although 1959 is an off-year in county, state and national elections, there will be city races in McLean and possibly some special elections elsewhere. At any rate, it is the duty of citizens enjoying the blessings of a democracy to maintain their voting privilege.

Much ado is constantly made in the newspapers, magazines and on television about America's great democratic system of government "of the people, by the people, and for the people," and yet to what do these lofty phrases amount if only a sprinkling of the populace votes? To nothing more than an aristocracy; to government of the many by the few—the very antithesis of democracy. It would be good to conserve the water lest the well go dry.

Saturday is the day. How are you fixed for poll tax receipts?

Everyone is invited, Simpson said, but those planning to attend are urged to get their tickets immediately in order to facilitate preparations. Tickets, on sale at Brown's Rexall Drug, are going for $1.50 each. Underwood Catering Service of Amarillo will serve the meal which will consist of bar-b-que beef and all the trimmings.

CENSUS FOR SCHOOL NOW BEING TAKEN

A school census for 1959-1960 has been taken during the month of January, according to Freeman Melton, Jr., superintendent of schools.

Mrs. Harold Bunch, census taker, has contacted all the persons she knows of; however, it is necessary that all children in the district who are eligible be enumerated, whether in school or not.

The age limit for children is six years of age by Sept. 1, 1959, and not over 18.

If any children in this age range have not been contacted by Mrs. Bunch or Melton, the family should contact one of these two persons immediately. A complete census is very beneficial to the school system.

PICTURES OF McLEAN CHILDREN TO BE PRINTED IN THE NEWS

It is an undisputed fact that the responsibilities of tomorrow's world, our nation, and community will rest upon the shoulders of the children of today. Since this is true, the publishers of this newspaper would like to give you a good look at these future "World Builders."

The only way we can do this is by publishing pictures of them in a feature series. To assure the latest and best reproduction pictures—they must all be of uniform size and quality.

An expert in children's photography with all the necessary equipment for this specialized work, will be here Tuesday, Feb. 10. Pictures will be taken at the American Legion Hall and will be open from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m.

No charge to Parents

There is no charge to the parents. There are absolutely no strings to this invitation. It is beneficial in every sense of the word. Parents do not have to be subscribers, nor even readers of this feature. Neither are they obligated to purchase pictures after they are taken. Those who want some additional prints may obtain a limited number by arrangement with the studio representative when they select the pose they want printed in the paper. It is entirely up to them.

The More Pictures, the Better

The News simply wants pictures of all the youngsters and the more, the better. So the mothers and fathers of the community in which this paper circulates should remember the date, Feb. 10, at the Legion Hall, and not fail to bring their chil-

Copper's Warm Gleam Is Easy to Maintain

BY EDNA MILES

More and more, we are returning to the notions held by our grandparents about gracious living. Women who have become weary of the so-called "dining-living area" and who want walls put back, are asking for kitchens, dining rooms, living rooms, and bedrooms larger than a postage stamp.

With this has come the idea that the kitchen should be a cozy place where the family can gather rather than a cold, impersonal factory that grinds out food. Color long ago came into the kitchen along with copper pots and pans, the copper chafing dish and copper mugs to brighten a kitchen mantelpiece.

(Oh, yes, the fireplace is returning to the kitchen, too.) Keeping copper bright and shiny, the way it should be, was a job in grandmother's day. She had to mix her own copper cleaner before she could even start in.

Today, you can buy a creamy, paste copper cleaner that cleans with a chemical action and therefore doesn't scratch.

It does the job easily, in mere minutes.

Polishing copper is a simple job if a creamy paste cleaner is used.

Editorial

HORN-TOOTING NEEDED

High school and college students are greatly underestimating the career opportunities which exist on the reporting and editing staffs of the nation's newspapers.

That is one major conclusion in a study sponsored by Dow Jones & Company, and made by Alvin E. Austin, head of North Dakota University's journalism department. And the study blames newspapers themselves for a widespread failure to inform young people of the opportunities that exist. As a consequence, over 67% of the newspapers surveyed regard shortage of manpower as a leading problem.

Newspaper pay has been rising, the report goes on. In addition, the work offers other rewards: Excitement, integrity, prestige, a way of life.

It looks as if this country's newspapers need to do a little more horn-tooting so far as career opportunity is concerned. And there is a big question of public interest involved, too. As the report says: "Newspapers have always needed the best minds available to perform their vital task of keeping the public informed. Never has this been truer than now, a time of scientific, social and economic breakthroughs."

STRONG OLD TIMER

"I am annoyed occasionally with friends of mine who come back from abroad to tell me what an enjoyable trip they had on the Swiss railroads, or the French railroads, or the German or Japanese railroads."

That annoyance is felt by Vice President J. Handy Wright of the Association of American Railroads—and he has good reason for it. He goes on: "With the exception of one railroad in the Dominion of Canada, the United States is the only spot left on earth where railroads are privately owned and operated. The French roads, German roads, Swiss roads, etc., are owned and operated by the governments of those countries who can and are pouring tax monies into the up-building, strengthening and modernization of their railroads. Here in the United States our railroads are built and operated by private capital, pay billions of dollars in taxes and we are suffering manifestly from over-regulation and competition which is financed in part by our own tax money."

New forms of commercial transportation have come into being. But, as Mr. Wright also points out, these private enterprise railroads of ours "are incomparably the most efficient and economic form of transportation available anywhere in the world." They transport a ton of goods one mile for an average of less than 1 1/2 cents—as compared with 6 cents for trucks and 22 cents for air. And their contribution to the economy is enormous.

ous. The railroad shopping list contains over 100,000 items, and purchases are made in some 12,000 American communities. In a single year, it takes about 3 billion railroad dollars—private dollars—to pay for the needed supplies and for plants and equipment.

The Iron Horse is an old timer. But his presence in the community is needed as never before.

PROFESSIONAL "ISSUE CLOUDERS"

The cards are now stacked against long-range growth of private business and industry. The dominant political disposition seems to be to stack them even more. Present depreciation and tax laws make modernization and replacement of facilities difficult. The labor supply of major industry is completely controlled by monopoly organizations which are totally exempt from the laws which properly restrict monopoly in business. Competition with government commercial projects which pay no taxes, and which are exempt from laws and regulations applied to private industry, is the unfair problem faced by hundreds of businesses.

If the people favor such discrimination how can it be that in different parts of the country, whenever they have a clear opportunity to express a choice between regulated private enterprise and tax-exempt government monopoly, socialism is thrown out the window by a majority vote? It has just happened again in Wisconsin. There a private electric company has been looking for a location on which to build a $27 million steam generating plant. The electric company has made no offers. Yet two towns have voted to sell their municipal plants if it would build its new generating facility in their communities.

In Kewaunee this action was taken by the city council in a unanimous decision. In Sturgeon Bay, 30 miles farther north, the proposal to sell was placed as a referendum on the ballot in the November 4 election. The result was 2,395 in favor of selling and 146 opposed. It's significant that the 2,541 votes cast in this referendum were only 219 less than the record vote for governor of 2,760 in 1956, a presidential election year.

A majority of people will not knowingly undermine essential freedoms and legitimate incentives which have built the strength of this country.

Many public officials could more properly be called "politically-inspired issue clouders" than representatives of the people.

Congressman Rogers Reports—

TO THE PEOPLE

Inflation: Number One Enemy

Communism cannot conquer this nation. Inflation can.

The preservation of a strong economy in any country requires of the people against inflation, a constant vigilance on the part. In our time we have seen the ravages of this economic disease in many countries throughout the world. It is now eating at the vitals of many nations. It has gained a foothold in this country, and unless it is checked, it could become the economic cancer that could disastrously soften us. Thus, we could become fair game for the Communists. We in our time have watched a number of countries that permitted inflation to go unchecked. In every instance an economic revolution was necessary and the result was a change in the form of government. Under the circumstances, we should recognize the fact that unless we are willing to pay the price to check inflation, we too are running the risk of losing our form of government as we have known it. This is not intended to be an alarmist statement, but it is simply for the purpose of facing up to the facts.

We heard our own President, in his recent State of the Union message, speak of a balanced federal budget. This remark resulted in extended applause, as it should have. Everyone is for a balanced budget, but somehow it never seems to get balanced. The question is, "what is going to be done about it?" We look at the estimates and figures of the Bureau of the Budget for the past several years and we see a claim that the budget for 1956 produced a surplus of 1.6 billions of dollars; that 1957 actually produced a surplus of 1.6 billions of dollars. It was estimated that the 1958 fiscal operations would result in a deficit of 400 million dollars, and that 1959 would result in a surplus of 500 million dollars. Adding all of these figures and subtracting the deficits from the surplus claimed by the administration, we find that we should have 3 billion dollars in extra cash. Yet, in 1958 the administration came to the Congress and said we have no money, we must have additional authority to borrow money. At that time the debt ceiling was 275 billion dollars. The Congress, in response to the pleas of the administration, authorized a temporary increase of the national debt to 288 billion dollars until June 30, 1959, and a permanent increase thereafter to the sum of 283 billion dollars. Now, according to one set of administration figures, the country should be 3 billion, 300 million dollars in the black on its operations since 1955; yet, by another set of figures, it is necessary for the federal government to have borrowing authority of an additional 13 billion dollars until June 30, 1959, in order to meet its financial requirements. I have been unable to find out what happened to the 3.3 billion dollar surplus. During this period of time between 1955 and the time that the authority to increase the public debt was allowed, we find that the American taxpayer was required to pay the sum of 1 billion living. The others are those on small, earned incomes who do not operate under a cost of living escalator clause, and who are also unable to absorb the impact of living increase. This illustration could go on and on until the entire government blows up which is exactly what will happen if the inflation is not checked.

Of course this does not mean that easy money and the issuance of more money by the government is the answer to inflation. It is not. It is one of the causes. The control of the medium of exchange of any country must be guarded to the economy of that country. This requires the constant maintenance of a very delicate balance.

LOCAL MEN ATTEND TV SALES MEET

Dale Glass, R. J. Turner and Truitt Stewart, Phillips 66 salesmen, were in Amarillo recently to attend the largest closed circuit telecast sales meeting ever held in the petroleum industry.

They were part of approximately 20,000 Phillips sales people who watched their company's sales meetings on TV screens in auditoriums, theaters and hotels located throughout Phillips' 35-state marketing area. Shown simultaneously in 37 major cities extending from Spokane, Wash., to Miami, Fla., the meeting was the biggest in Phillips 66 history.

K. S. Adams, Phillips chairman, had commented that the sales department's theme of the program, "The Best Years of Our Lives" was well chosen, stating "Your continued emphasis on the best for Phillips customers—unequaled service plus top quality product, backed by research—

Bible Comment:

We Must Learn How to Bear 'Gethsemane'

The cup that in Gethsemane Jesus prayed so earnestly might pass, did not pass.

We know how He drank it, and drank to the very lees of sacrifice and suffering.

It is the mystery of God and the universe that the life-giving powers, alike of nature and of grace, are intimately bound up with suffering and death.

It is one thing to recognize a general law of sacrifice, but how different when we are faced with a real, insistent danger, or demand for sacrifice ourselves.

Then comes the real testing. Many find the faith and power.

Out of Gethsemane the Master came with the serenity of a profound faith in the destiny that the Father had for Him, and with a quiet sublime courage.

That serenity and courage endured alike the buffetings of His aggressors, the taunts of the cowardly and the cynical contempt of the worldly minded Pilate.

From Gethsemane to Calvary! We must go with Jesus all the way, if we could get the inspiration of that divine tragedy and its fulfillment of blessing for mankind. Thus will the message of that divine tragedy come to us personally, pointing the way to triumph and glory.

It is the way of prayer, in discovering and obeying the will of God, and in finding the strength that God supplies.

will again pay off in 1959 and in the years ahead." To those present he cited the nation's increasing population and the growing number of automobiles traveling the country's spreading network of highways as adding up to a steadily increasing use of gasoline and oil and tires. Adams also referred to the new fields for petroleum products which are opening up because of increasing mechanization of farms and the use of more oil for power and fuel, as well as the rapidly expanding market for liquefied petroleum gas.

The telecast originated at Bartlesville, Okla., the company's headquarters, with Pres. Paul Endacott serving informally as moderator and coordinator for the group. Prior to the telecast portion, sales division personnel conducted sessions at each of the meetings.

A PLACE FOR THE LORD

By G. L. Cowart

Pastor, Assembly of God Church

I will not give sleep to mine eyes, or slumber to mine eyelids,
Until I find out a place for the Lord, an habitation for the mighty God of Jacob. Psalms 132:4, 5.

God had been good unto His people, the Israelites. He had heard their cry when under bondage, in the land of Egypt. He had loved them, delivered them and brought them into the land of "milk and honey." With His help they had driven out or exterminated the inhabitants of the land. Now King David "sat in his house, and the Lord had given him rest round about from all his enemies." II Samuel 7:1.

But in the next verse he speaks to Nathan the prophet, "See now, I dwell in an house of cedar, but the ark of God dwelleth within curtains." His spirit is stirred within him and he is conscience-stricken when he realizes that he lives in a beautiful and expensive home while the ark of God, a symbol of the Divine Presence, still rests within a tent. Therefore he gives vent to his feelings while writing our chosen text, and declares with determination in his voice that he will not sleep until he provides a shelter for the ark of God. He did not have the privilege of building the temple himself, but he paved the way so that his son, Solomon, could do so.

Today, God has shown us His love, mercy and compassion. His blessings have been without number. But how have we treated Him? Do we take the best in life and give God second best? Neighbor, let us "find out a place for the Lord" in our lives. Only then will we experience that satisfying peace that only He can give.

Thoughts For Thursday

A trader sold a mule to a farmer.

"This is a fine animal," said the trader. "He'll work good if you treat him gentle."

In a few days the farmer went back to the mule barn.

"You lied to me," he told the dealer. "I warmed the oats for that mule. I massaged him with a curry comb. I bedded him down at night. Yet he won't do a lick of work."

"Let me go out and have a look at him," said the dealer.

They went to the farm. The mule was standing there hitched to a plow. He wouldn't budge. The dealer picked up a two by four and promptly broke it over the mule's head.

"Now try him," the dealer said.

"C'ddap," said the farmer, whereupon the mule leaned into the harness and started off.

"I don't understand," the farmer said. "I thought you said you had to treat him gentle."

"You do," was the reply. "But first you got to get his attention."

Note for collectors of Texas stories, you all . . . Bob Johnson, owner of the cafe on the Lubbock-Amarillo highway, told officers he returned to the place with his wife from the Tech-Baylor basketball game and found that his two-tone blue 1956 Cadillac coupe was missing.

However Johnson said he noticed an identical car parked on the opposite side of the building from where he had left his vehicle.

Presuming that a dinner guest had made a mistake, he drove by the Roy Cooper Motel and located his own car.

At one of the motel suites, he awakened a man who discovered he had keys for both Cadillacs in his trousers pocket.

"He was so shook up he could not believe it," Johnson related. Johnson added he heard the man's aroused wife say: "See, I told you we were going the wrong way around the restaurant."

BAPTISTS BELIEVE

THE BIBLE IS GOD'S WORD TO MAN

Baptists believe in a supreme Book, one that presents the laws of God for man to follow. They believe that this Book is from God, and that it remains the same from one century to another. Though written long ago, it is just as supreme as when recorded.

It is not a book to be changed by congresses and courts, even if these are set up by churches or religious organizations. Nor is it a book for any single class.

This Book, of course, is the Bible. Written by many authors, it has sixty-six books that unfold real life stories. Their accuracy is supported by men of today who have explored the civilizations of nations that no longer exist.

Despite the various nationalities and languages of its writers, and the hundreds of years over which they lived, there is a remarkable unity in the Bible that indicates its inspiration by God, a truth that Baptists devoutly believe.

The Bible is a Book of history, telling how man and God have dealt with each other. It is a Book of law setting forth rules by which man must live in his relation both to God and his fellowman. It needs no supplement to bring its message to the twentieth century.

But the Bible's true significance is not measured by its historical accounts nor by its laws alone. The Bible is a Book about life. It tells us how we should live to bring happiness and justice to others and to ourselves.

No other book can match the Bible in telling us about death and how to secure everlasting life after death, or in describing a way for us to escape punishment for our wrong thoughts and actions.

The Bible has a life-giving quality as it centers about the person of Jesus Christ, the Son of God who became a human being to rescue us from sin and the punishment that follows sin. It tells how Jesus died on a cross for his teachings and for the way of life he demonstrated. The Bible shows us the place of death in the scheme of life; it says that death is not the end of things, because it tells how that same Jesus rose from a grave and was seen and recognized by people after death.

The Bible opens to us the opportunity to believe in this same Jesus and to receive life in heaven after the end of our earthly existence.

As our preachers often say, "All the Bible is the Word of God and all of it is for all mankind." Its message means most to those who read it with a desire to practice the way of life it prescribes.

All things were made by Him; and without Him was not anything made that was made.—(St. John 1:3.)

Almighty God made the limitless universe—our sun, and the millions of suns beyond it, and this tiny planet upon which we live. And He made each of us, in His image. Each of us is one with God, as each sunbeam is one with the sun.

Douglas Meador—Matador Tribune

After his return from church one Sunday, a Groom youngster said, "You know what, Mother? I'm going to be a preacher when I grow up."

"That's fine," said his mother. "But what made you decide to become a minister?"

"Well," said the boy pensively, "I'll have to go to church every Sunday anyway, and I think it would be more fun to stand up and yell than to sit still and listen."

And the Tula Country Editor quotes Philosopher Will Durant on man's inability to cope with his inner problems in a generation of missiles, A-bombs and tranquilizing pills:

"Every great civilization has begun close to the soil. When man lives close to the soil he has faith in a Higher Power as he observes the forces of nature and recognizes his own inadequacy and weakness. But when he abandons the soil for a more complex civilization, when he learns to create things with his own hands, his faith invariably is transferred from the Higher Power to himself."

The final chapter of the story of every great civilization is common knowledge, adds H. M. Baggarly, Tula Herald editor.

How Valuable

IS LOCAL NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING TO LOCAL BUSINESS PEOPLE?

Here's what the American Bankers Magazine, a publication which represents a traditionally conservative profession, has to say:

"No business man or woman in any town should allow a newspaper to go to press without his or her name and business being mentioned somewhere in its columns. A stranger picking up a newspaper should be able to tell what business is represented in a town . . . it's the best possible town adviser. The man or woman who does not advertise does an injustice to himself or herself and definitely to the town."

It's CONSISTENT advertising that counts and the best advertising medium in this area is

UP THE LAW IN TEXAS

Court Rules Necessary

Are you hopelessly confused by court room procedure? Words "sustained," "overruled," "irrelevant" and "opinion" are meaningless to many persons.

The purpose of a trial is to settle disputes that the parties cannot settle by themselves. Before these disputes can be settled, the facts which give rise to them must be established. This sounds simple, but on the contrary it is a difficult task. If the parties agreed on the facts the job would be easy, but each side has its own version. The trial court has the job of establishing the facts. This is accomplished by questioning witnesses and the introduction of physical evidence. This requires application of the rules of evidence.

Through the years the law of evidence has been established. The rules place restraints on what type of evidence is proper. They have the effect of protecting the rights of the parties by insuring a fair trial.

Hearsay is a word often heard during a trial. Hearsay may involve a statement by a third person of a conversation between two other persons. It would be hearsay if Jones were asked to tell the court what he overheard Smith tell Green. With certain exceptions, evidence of this type is excluded because it is not reliable, and might open the door to false testimony.

A lawyer objects to evidence he does not believe is proper. If a lawyer objects to evidence because it is irrelevant, he means that the evidence is of such little importance that it has no bearing on the case, and if admitted it would bog down the trial so that the time needed doesn't justify its admittance.

Opinion evidence of one not an expert is not admissible since such opinion carries no weight. When an objection is sustained by the judge the evidence is not received. Should the objection be overruled the evidence is allowed to be presented.

The rules of evidence have been built up through many years of court trials. These rules are not arbitrary but are designed to see that justice is done in our courts. The judge is seeking to have the truth established and insure that all parties and witnesses in the trial are given a full and fair opportunity to present the facts.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hauck and Mr. and Mrs. Leon Crockett were in Wheeler Saturday night.

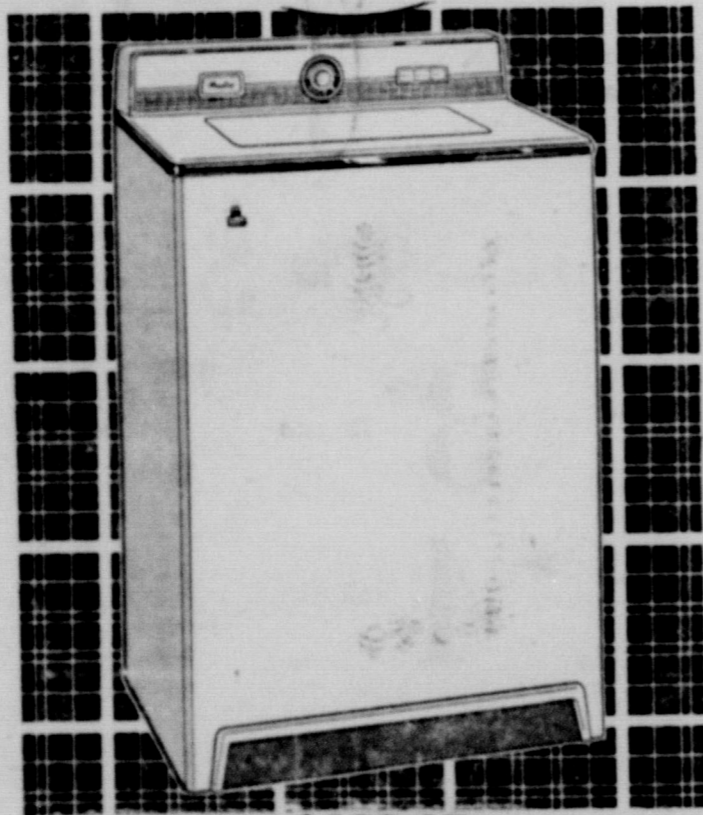

Among the spectators watching a famed Mexican matador perform in the bull ring was an outspoken Texan. The fight reached the stage where the matador, armed with only his cape, was taunting the bull to charge him. He avoided the animal's sharp horns only by inches, and flipped the cape aside as the bull roared past. He did this several times, until the Texas cowboy could stand it no longer. He got to his feet and shouted, "Bud, he ain't never going to run into that sack unless you hold it still!"

GRAY COUNTY SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

By James Smathers

It is time to seed grasses within the Gray County Soil Conservation District. A change in planting dates has been made for a number of grasses this year. Warm season grasses can be planted beginning Jan. 1 and ending June 1.

The district grass drills at McLean have been put in good shape. Also the drills have been repainted. It is hoped that with the new look on the drills that each cooperator using them will handle them with the care of a new drill. There are also drills at the Reed Humble Station on Highway 66 and at the Laketon Co-op store.

There are a number of places where grass seed may be obtained this year. Some of the local people within the Gray County

SCD have harvested grass seed and have them available. Others may have thought about harvesting grass seed. Now is the time to make a decision to harvest the seed. An old field that has been unproductive may produce good grass seed. There are a number of native ranges that could provide seed harvest. To get a seed harvest, plans have to be made now. For seed harvest, a pasture should not be grazed until after harvest. Deferred grazing will also help improve the range condition.

Grasses under irrigation can be profitable, also. Grass under irrigation can provide a good seed crop and their provide either a hay crop or can be used for grazing. Most places under irrigation have some areas that may be eroding or areas that are unproductive for row crops. Tail water may be used on some places to produce grass.

Free Debate Defended by Senator Robertson

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Proposals to change the rules of the United States Senate should be considered not from the standpoint of expediency but in the light of the background and traditions of this body and with an eye to the future, according to Senator A. Willis Robertson of Virginia.

In a speech prepared for delivery in the Senate, the Virginia said his purpose in 1959, as on several previous occasions during his twelve years in the Senate when he had discussed this subject was: "to defend the integrity of the United States Senate as a keystone in our system of constitutional government."

Robertson continued: "The United States of America became a constitutionally-bound political unit only through agreement of thirteen independent States on a compromise plan. An essential feature of that plan was a Senate in which the largest and smallest States would be equally represented and in which minority rights would be fully protected."

"Changing our rules to allow a mere majority to stifle open protest of a minority would be a repudiation of the 'great compromise' accepted by the founding fathers."

The Senator said he spoke not only for Virginia, "which never would have ratified the Constitution without its built-in checks and balances and the additional assurance of a Bill of Rights," but also for "all those who believe in the sacredness of individual rights and who realize that those rights must have certain safeguards beyond the simple principle of majority rule."

"The danger of a change in procedure which would erode and threaten to destroy the function of the Senate as a deliberative body should be recognized by all thinking persons as outweighing temporary advantages which partisans would gain in obtaining prompt action on a few items of politically expedient legislation."

Objections to the proposals which have been made to change the Senate rules limiting debate were outlined by Senator Robertson as:

"1. A material limitation on Senate debate—and permitting closure by majority vote would impose a material limitation—would be contrary to the basic philosophy of our plan of government. It would upset the carefully contrived balance among the branches of government. It would reduce the effectiveness of the Senate as a guardian of States rights and individual liberties.

"2. It is unnecessary to change the rules under which the Senate has functioned satisfactorily for a century and a half. No important legislation has been permanently blocked by filibusters.

"3. Allowing a majority to cut off Senate debate would be a dangerous expedient because the weapon forged against one area of the country and one viewpoint could readily be turned against any other section or minority interest. Those who call themselves liberals should be especially careful, because in the past they have been the chief beneficiaries of a system which allows untrammelled expression of unpopular views."

Senator Robertson said a delay resulting from prolonged Senate debate during which the people of the country are made aware of details of an issue can be used, and has been used, to help bring about reforms as well as to block passage of oppressive measures.

He recalled the extended debate in 1863 against efforts to suspend the writ of habeas corpus which insures a prompt hearing for those charged with offenses; a filibuster in 1876 against a rider on an appropriation bill which would have suspended election laws and a filibuster in 1880 against the "force bill" which would have provided for Federal supervision of elections.

The Senator also told of the part which extended Senate debate played in 1937 in preventing one President from packing the Supreme Court to obtain the kind of decisions he wanted and in 1946 in preventing another President from obtaining legislation which would have authorized him to draft striking railroad workers into military service.

"It matters not," Senator Robertson said, "whether the minority at any particular time represents a basically liberal or a basically conservative viewpoint—the group which does not have a majority of votes needs some protection against unreasonable impositions and the United States Senate was designed to provide that protection."
