Violent Storms Deliver Over One Inch Moisture

Twister Wrecks Line Poles, House

During a violent wind and rain storm Sunday afternoon, a twister hurtled within three miles of McLean about 5 p. m., ripping out five telephone poles and demolishing an unoccupied house. In nearby homes the high winds shattered windows and scattered fragments of lumber across an estimated five-mile path.

The structure, belonging to Boyd Meador, was completely destroyed. Both ends were ripped away and parts of the roof were scattered 300 yards from the foundation.

Homes feeling the high winds belonged to Charles Cousins, two miles north on the Lefors highway, and Earl Eustace, a mile east of Cousins'. The main damage in the homes consisted of shattered windows, with hail and rain driven in by the wind.

The poles which were snapped by the twister were replaced Monday. They were in a line of newly-installed poles.

Due to the blowing rain, the twister was not seen by residents, but the path was visibly marked by the debris. As evidence of the power of the wind, many of the loose boards were driven into the ground near by the broken poles.

Characteristic of twisters, a windmill near the destroyed house was undamaged, and older poles across the highway from the broken ones were untouched. The first of the violent weather during the past week came Friday afternoon as a line of thunder clouds swept across the Panhandle and South Plains.

The Panhandle got an estimated .75 of an inch of rain in a hard shower that pounded down for about 20 minutes before moving on. In the McLean area the shower was accompanied by a flurry of hail, but little damage was done by stones.

All circles of the W. M. U. of the First Baptist Church met at the church Tuesday afternoon for a Royal Service program. Mrs. Homer Abbott president, was in charge.

Mrs. Joe Taylor gave the devotional. An interesting program on Hawaii was given by Mrs. Howard Williams and two guests, Mrs. Kid McCoy and Mrs. Evan Sitter. Mrs. McCoy showed films which she had made on her recent trip to Hawaii.

There were 28 members and three guests, Mrs. T. E. Crisp, Mrs. McCoy and Mrs. Sitter, in attendance.

McLEAN BOY INJURED IN CAR WRECK

Wendell Knutson, a McLean High School senior, was seriously injured last Friday evening at 10:00 when the car he was driving was involved in an accident in Shamrock. A Shamrock girl, Edith Vick, was riding with Knutson at the time of the accident and both were hospitalized in the Shamrock Hospital. Although both are still in the hospital, neither is now considered critical.

According to Dave Croslin, investigating highway patrolman, the 1949 Ford that Knutson was driving was struck from behind by a 1954 Buick one mile east of Shamrock. The cars were traveling west.

Croslin reported that the two occupants of the Buick were both listed as in serious condition, and one in Amarillo listed as critical.

RESIGNATION OF HEAD GRID COACH JACK RILEY ANNOUNCED

Announcement was made this week that the McLean school board had accepted with regret the resignation of Jack R. Riley as head football coach for McLean High School.

The resignation was given at a meeting of the board held last Thursday evening.

Coach Riley has been with the McLean schools for the past three years. He served his first year as assistant football coach and the past two years as head coach. He has also worked as girls' basketball coach.

During the past season Riley guided one of the more outstanding teams that McLean has fielded for the past several years. The Tigers tied in District 2-A for second place, the district that later produced the state champions in the Class A division.

Along with his resignation came the resignation of his wife, who has also taught in the McLean schools for the past three years. She has served as commercial teacher.

It was also announced that in the April board meeting the res-

Review Of Council Meeting:

New Garbage Truck Purchased By City

A decision for the purchase of a new garbage truck for McLean highlighted the action taken in the regular city council meeting held Tuesday night in the city hall. The group voted unanimously to purchase the new piece of equipment which will be delivered in approximately 60 days.

The purchase of the truck was made on a bid basis, accepting the lowest offered. The present garbage truck is old and inadequate for the present need.

Another move by the council approved the request of Dale Greenhouse to put a small antenna on the water tower in an effort to establish a cable system of television reception. If the test proves successful, the cable will be run, and citizens in McLean will have access to better reception without private antennae.

The approval for Greenhouse to begin the project is pending the city attorney's examination of the waiver of liability involved. When this has been done, the antenna will be mounted.

Other business of the council included a resolution that persons could have asphalt black topping done by the city on their property for the expense of the actual cost plus 10%.

In furnishing a request, the council voted to sell five lots in the northwest part of McLean, with the stipulation that residential building must be done on the lots.

The council also wished to announce that all the picking up of trash after clean-up week had not been completed, so persons should not think they had been skipped if theirs has not yet been cleared away.

KELLERVILLE MAN DIES IN CAR OVERTURN

Alonzo Earl Wilson, 31, of Kellerville died Saturday from injuries received when his auto overturned six miles south of Pampa on the Lefors highway.

Wilson lived several minutes after the tragedy but died as an ambulance from Pampa approached the scene. The body was taken to the Duenkel-Carmichael Funeral Home, Pampa, where it was later identified by friends from Kellerville.

Wilson had resided in Kellerville several months, having moved there from California. His mother, Mrs. Linnie Gowans of Armona, Calif., was contacted on her son's death.

HIGHWAY TRAGEDY—Pictured above is the wreckage of the car in which Alonzo Earl Wilson, of Kellerville, was killed Saturday on the Lefors highway. Authorities surmised the accident was caused when a front tire blew out, causing the car to swerve off the highway and overturn.

SENIORS SCHEDULED TO LEAVE ON ANNUAL TRIP SATURDAY

Tuesday morning.

Area Observations

Ed Eakin of the Quannah Tribune-Chief makes this observation about a matter in Austin: "They say that in spring the sap rises, but we never expected it to rise in such prolific proportions as it did in Austin recently."

"Sen. Dorsey Hardeman introduced a bill in the Senate to require a full year of Texas history in high school and another full year in college."

"In a rash of unprecedented egotism, the Senate rose to the occasion and passed the bill. Dogwash!"

"As great as our Lone Star state is, and as illustrious as were our predecessors, Texas' brief 23-year history hardly merits 90 years of any student's time."

Switching to the federal government, Don Earney of the Wheeler Times relates this story: "Continued operation of the federal government on borrowed capital and the false sense of prosperity it generates is brought into proper perspective by the story of the elderly colored man down South who had a taste of 'high living' before he died."

"Rastus had been rewarded by his master for his years of faithful service with a sleek long Cadillac, but became ill shortly thereafter and was told by his doctor that he had one week to live."

"Rastus' dying request was that he be buried in his shiny new car. As he was being lowered into his final resting place attired in the linen duster, black gauntlet gloves and goggles he had purchased to go with his new car—his body stiff and erect behind the steering wheel—a small colored boy peering awestruck at Rastus' brave pose, was heard to exclaim: 'Boy, ain't dat livin!'"

From Max Wade's "Facts and Otherwise" comes this story on stewardship: "Last week at the revival meeting at the Baptist church Bro. Walter Davis asked the congregation to 'give as generously as you have indicated on your income tax report that you have donated to the church.'"

A lesson in diplomacy was pointed out in H. M. Baggerly's "Country Editor" column. He wrote: "Rex Newkirk, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, has more guts than any minister in Tulia. Or perhaps he just has better luck than most people."

Sunday night two women from Child Evangelism Fellowship were in the service. Their names apparently evading him for the moment, he asked the 'older' woman to lead in prayer.

"Everyone waited breathlessly to see if either would speak up. 'One did—but Rex could have used better psychology. He should have called on the 'younger' one even though both probably would have responded simultaneously.'"

And more thoughts for the week from Douglas Meador's "Trail Dust":

Many a nest has been feathered by picking a goose too old to escape young hands; too satisfied with having laid golden eggs.

Roses that bloom while cold spring winds beat the buds with savage hands, are pioneers in the land of a new season. They are the vanguard of beauty that pursue the dismal retreat of winter.

Courtesy is the first requirement in the fraternity of true greatness. Without it all other attributes are no more than apparel hanging on a post.

Experience grades her students more on endurance than on individual subjects. They never graduate but usually qualify sufficiently to accept new subjects with a guarded respect.

The storehouse of all that is known is operated like a bank to the extent that loans are repaid with interest of knowledge which in turn becomes a part of its resources.

STRICTLY FRESH

Enthusiasm for the home team is, very often, directly proportionate to the box score at the end of a ball game.

The boss is a true baseball fan. He revolves rapidly and gives off quantities of hot air when anyone suggests taking an afternoon off to go to the ball park.

Relatively few girls play baseball, but many pitch a nice curve.

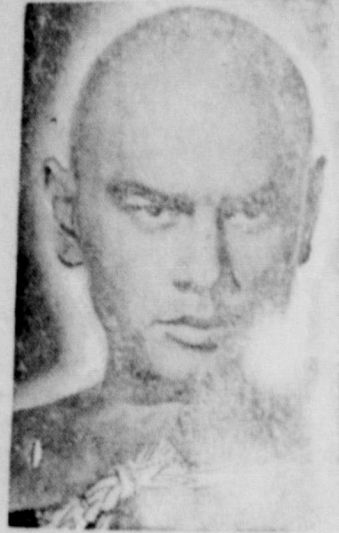

All devotees of the doubleheader aren't necessarily baseball fans.

It's amazing how wrong an umpire can be when he rules against your team.

CARD OF THANKS
 I want to thank all my friends, neighbors and friends for their lovely flowers, cards, phone calls and other acts of kindness during my recent illness and stay in the hospital. May God bless each of you.

HEALTHIER LIVES

Members of fine organizations are working quietly and effectively in the many-faceted field of public health. These are the Health Information Foundation, which was organized 10 years ago by a group of leaders in medicine, pharmaceutical, chemical and allied industries. It is based on the belief that private methods of medical care should be the prevailing force in the development of our health services.

The Health Information Foundation has conducted studies to encourage the development of voluntary health insurance and to improve public enrollment in this voluntary plan which has grown from 60 million to a dramatic 120 million in 10 years. Other studies are designed to provide the up-to-date information as to how much money for medical care and how they meet their bills. The significant research currently sponsored by the Health Information Foundation includes a study into the health problems of the aged, and an inquiry into the medical, social, and economic reasons why one out of every eight people in the United States is admitted to a hospital each year. These and other such activities may rarely come to the attention of the public at large. But, in the long run, they will benefit from them, in the rare coin of fuller, healthier lives.

* * * * *

REALISM BY INDIRECTION

There has never been a successful, open-and-above-the-ground socialist movement in this country! Yet we have been subjected to massive doses of socialism. They come by indirection so subtly that most people do not even know what was happening.

Take, for instance, the Tennessee Valley Authority. President J. W. McAfee of the Union Electric Company said: "As finally passed in 1933, the TVA act did not mention electric power in its preamble, but laid stress on flood control and improved navigation of the Tennessee River. . . ."

When power did come into the limelight, it was regarded as purely an incidental by-product of TVA's flood control and other non-commercial activities. It was hydro power and was supposed to be of relatively small importance.

What happened? Today TVA is the largest producer of electric power in the nation. Some 82% of the $1 billion investment in TVA is devoted to the production of electric power, leaving a mere 18% for other purposes for which TVA was allegedly established. And only 73% of TVA's electric power comes from steam plants, not hydroelectric dams.

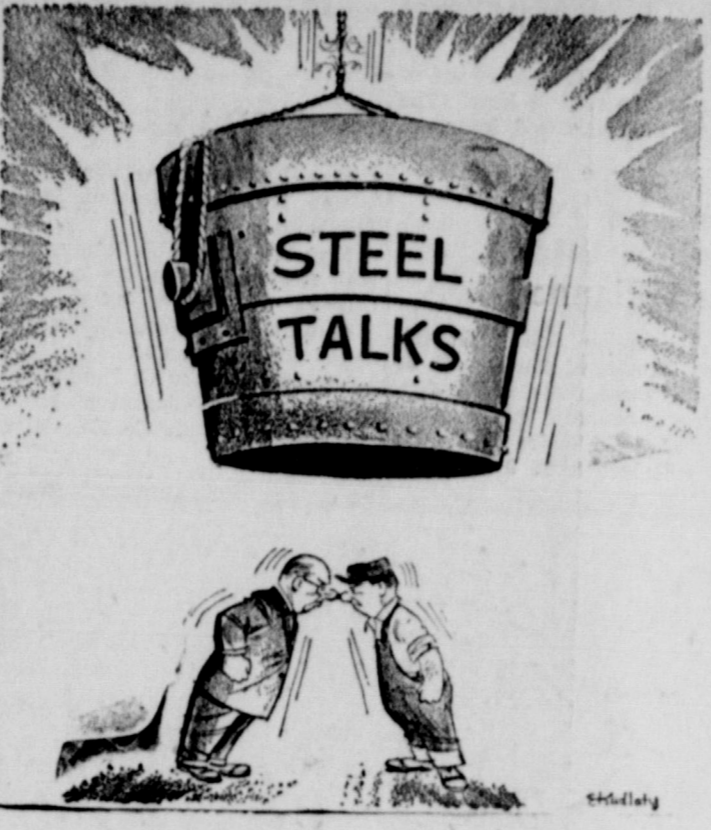

There is the inevitable result when the socialist gets his nose into the tent. Slowly but surely, he works his way along until he fills it. And, as Mr. McAfee points out: "TVA is by no means the only instance of something being other than it seemed where government and electric power are concerned." The Federal Electrification Administration is in the same boat. The job for which it was created—bringing power to farmers who lacked it—is virtually complete. So REA is trying to get authority to move into urban centers. Needless to say, TVA, REA and the other comparable agencies, escape most or all of the taxes paid by private enterprise, and escape many other important costs borne by private business and citizens. Therefore, all taxpayers must chip in to make up the lost taxes.

OF TRADE

An editorial in the Portland Oregonian recalls the ancient maxim that "competition is the life of trade." It applies it to a significant controversy that will have to be resolved by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Two airlines, Northwest and Pan American, now provide service between Portland-Seattle and Honolulu. Northwest says that there isn't enough business for the two, that operations are being conducted at a loss, and that this will prevent putting the fast new jet airliners on the run. However, Northwest goes on, if the board will cancel Pan American's franchise, Northwest will provide Honolulu-Portland-Seattle jet service in 1961. The Oregonian finds this argument "not quite convincing." It says: "Pan Am wants to keep on flying this route. It has confidence that air travel from the Pacific Northwest to the new state of Hawaii will increase in years to come with both jetliners and prop planes. It is for two carriers. Anyone who has faith in the bright future of the Pacific Northwest hardly can fail to agree.

"As for the appearance of jets on this run, the public knows all major airlines will be operating for several years to come with both jetliners and prop planes. It is logical to suppose the jets will be placed on those routes where the competition is stiffest, while older planes are allowed to serve out their useful lives on lightly-patronized runs where an airline faces fewer rivals, or has the business all to itself. That's the way the free enterprise system works in other kinds of business, and we fail to see why the same old-fashioned principles shouldn't apply in the new age of jet air travel."

It would be a tough job to find any situation where the public interest is served by arbitrarily eliminating competition.

Congressman Rogers Reports— TO THE PEOPLE

WORLD HEALTH

Since this seems to be an age of fear, and each of us lives from day to day wondering what the morrow will bring for us to be more scared of than we were of the stark tragedy that was to befall us yesterday, it occurred to me that the people of this country might be interested in the present health of the world. I must confess I have never been too deeply concerned about our chances of being ripped apart or destroyed by some hobgoblin that is the creature of the mind of some fellow human being. Usually these unworlly creatures of destruction are born because of the desire of some scare artist to capture the attention of the American people. I do not mean to say I am not concerned by the many problems which daily confront human beings in the battle for existence. I look upon these daily difficulties as problems to be solved by human beings, rather than as catastrophes against which there can be no defense. I do not believe that man can destroy the earth hard as he has tried since God placed us here. I do believe that each year brings man closer to the realization that a proper utilization of the faculties with which God has endowed him will bring greater benefits to future generations, and avoid the necessity of periodic intervention by God to prevent man from destroying himself.

I feel that the proof of this theory lies in the advance which has been made in health matters during our lifetime. Although there is much to be done and the future will require much more to be done, the progress to date is remarkable. More than 25% of the people of the world can now expect to attain an age of 65 years. Strange to say, the highest life expectancy rate is in Norway. There it is 73 years. Others enjoying a rate of 70 years or more include the United States, Australia, the United Kingdom, Sweden, and Japan. These are all highly developed countries from an industrial standpoint. Russia has a reported life expectancy rate of 66 years at the present time. Those having a rate of above 50 years include the southern portion of South America, Spain, some central European countries, the Philippine Islands, the Sudan in Africa, Mexico and others. The lowest rates of expectancy are in central and northern South America, southwest Asia, India, Egypt, and others. It is also noteworthy that very few of the countries enjoying high expectancy rates are located near the Equator, yet most of the countries with the lowest life expectancy rates are located at, on, or near the Equator. Whether or not this geographical location has any effect on the situation, I do not know, but it would seem that such is the case. Also to be considered is the fact that most of the countries having the low expectancy rates have a high percentage of poverty. In summarizing the world data, we find that 801.3 million or 28.7% of the world population have an estimated average life expectancy of between 50 and 64 years; 713.9 million or 25.6% enjoy a life expectancy of 65 years or more. It should also be said that approximately one-third of the world's population, 906.3 million, cannot be the subject of such information because there is not sufficient data from which to make an estimate.

AIRBORNE GROUND VEHICLE—"Levacar" is the name of the strange-looking device being examined by House space committee chairman, Rep. Overton Brooks (D-La.), in Washington. One of several vehicles-of-the-future shown in model form to the space committee members, it rides on a thin cushion of air instead of conventional wheels. Predicted top speed: 500 m.p.h. Hose attached to vehicle at extreme left supplies compressed air to the working model. Self-contained blowers would do the job in the actual machine.

In 1957, it was estimated there were 2,700 million people living in the world. More than half, or approximately 1,400 million, live in Asia, 204 million live in Russia, and 174 million in the United States. This population is increasing at an accelerating rate, due primarily to the declining death rate, rather than an increased birth rate. The fastest rate of increase occurs in Middle America where it is 2.7%. It is 2.5% in southwest Asia, and 2.4% in South America. The smallest rate of change occurs in Europe, where it is 0.6%. The fact that America is ahead of the other countries in the increase of population is due primarily to the great strides which we have made in the solution of health problems and the splendid contributions to medical science by our medical profession.

The federal government began printing its own currency in 1862.
