Hearing Deserves To Produce Reasons Rather Than Circus Air

A Senate Judiciary subcommittee which is holding televised hearings in Washington may not achieve the attention-compelling status of the original Kefauver crime investigation, but it tackles a subject that very much needs local and national attention. The subcommittee's object is to inquire into juvenile delinquency and the part underworld characters play and share in it. The aim is to bring about coordination of federal, state and local bodies fighting teen-age crime. Some of the statistics on the problem are shocking. Last year, the FBI reported, youngsters under 15 committed 53 per cent of all auto thefts, 48 per cent of all burglaries, 37 per cent of the larcenies, 19 per cent of all robberies. Of more violent crimes, 10 per cent of all persons charged with criminal homicide in 233 of the nation's larger cities were under 21 years of age, and four per cent of all arrests for murder were of persons under 17. More than one million youngsters every year become involved with the police...

year become involved with the police one way or another, and 350,000 with juvenile courts as delinquents. Around three in every four minors referred to juvenile courts are boys of an average age of 16, the other fourth are girls of an average age of 15.5. The rise in the incidence of so-called juvenile delinquency has been little short of cataclysmic in the last few years. We are so-called for want of a more accurate term to describe how children get to be delinquent. Many factors enter into it, all the way from the home through the school to the methods of handling juvenile problems. Environment plays a part, and the social and economic state of the family seems to figure less and less in the difficulty. Many of today's delinquents come from what are considered the "best" homes. Whatever the causes, it will be the responsibility of the subcommittee to weigh and assess all the factors involved, and not simply to make a television spectacle of the nation's very real problem in youthful misbehavior.

Fair Traders Are Putting Their Eggs Into Incubation Currently

Not all legislative mischief is made during sessions. Groundwork for a lot of it is laid in advance of the meeting dates, and some of the most effective in advance of elections. The latter type, generally, is in feeling the pulse of prospective candidates and in encouraging some sleepers to slip in with well ground axes. While we judge there is little to fear in our own bailiwick on this score, we need to be part of a general alertness. One of the innocent little seeds which are being distributed around is that of the so-called "fair traders" plan. Having failed in previous sessions of the Legislature to achieve their aim of fixing some price shackles, the fair traders are laying a new crop of eggs for incubation. Reduced to its simplest terms, the fair-trades legislation is designed to prohibit the sale of certain brand merchandise below prices set by the manufacturer. One after another, states have yielded to pressure to repeal their anti-trust laws insofar as they would conflict with the fair-trades legislation. Texas solons have staunchly resisted this pressure, and we hope that those who offer for places in the Senate and House next year are of similar mettle. Why should it be less odious to fix prices on toothpaste than on automobiles? Why should a uniform structure be imposed on one manufacturer or group of manufacturers and not on others? The argument is that it will protect the small man or independent. Actually, that businessman is swamping a basic right for a mess of watered down monopoly.

Washington Calling - Marquis Childs Problems In New York May Be Motive For Brownell's Action

WASHINGTON - The bombshell that Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. exploded in his Chicago speech is now seen to have been part of a carefully calculated plot. Some able reporting out of Washington has documented the ramifications of that plot from the Department of Justice to the White House, the Republican National Committee and the Senate Internal Security Sub-Committee. But many pieces are still missing and in the present fiercely partisan atmosphere they probably will never come to light. One big question has to do with the timing of the explosion. It came in the aftermath of the Republican defeats in Wisconsin and New Jersey and on the eve of the Congressional contest in California's 24th District. The Republicans were scared to death that they would lose that election. So it has become widely assumed that Brownell had an immediate political motive in setting off the powder mine. But some observers now incline to the view that there was another motive at least as strong. Brownell's mentor in politics, Governor Thomas E. Dewey, is in the middle of a messy situation in New York State with leaders in the Dewey organization involved in major scandal of corruption and racketeering in harness racing. J. Russell Sprague, Republican boss of Long Island, resigned as national committeeman after it developed he had a $300,000 interest in one of the raceways for which the records show he put up $24,000. Much of this scandal was forced into the open by the crusading newspaper Newsday and Newsday's crusading publisher, Alicia Patterson. It is headline stuff. But now as it approaches a crisis, with Dewey compelled to force out others tarred with the same brush, Brownell's charge that former President Truman knowingly appointed a Soviet spy blanket everything else including the mess in New York State. If a smoke screen had been knowingly planned it could not have been more expertly laid down.

Working in a small office with a battery of telephones in the Conrad Hilton Hotel, he was credited with carrying out the propaganda drive. A last-minute hastily printed broadside distributed to the delegates, attributed to Taft's manager David Ingalls but repudiated by him, said, "Tom Dewey . . . stops at nothing to enforce his will." Someday all the facts on the latest propaganda maneuver may be known. But meanwhile, as representative Harold Velde discovered in his bumbling way, this knife-throwing contest is no place for amateurs.

Eisenhower Isn't Necessarily Differing From Party Pros Over Reds As Issue. WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower, who calls himself a political novice, isn't necessarily in conflict with his party's pros over communism as a 1954 election issue. At first glance he might seem to be riding off in an opposite direction from two of the Republican party's highest-ranking political generals, Leonard W. Hall, and Atty. Gen. Brownell. Hall, Republican national chairman and therefore a guiding spirit in the Republicans' efforts to win next year's congressional elections said last Sunday: "Communism is going to be one of the main issues in the election. He added: "We'll see to it that all Communists and left-wingers who came into the government under the former administrations are going to be put out." Two days later Brownell, a real political pro after managing the presidential campaigns of Eisenhower and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, gave Congress a message, practically a push, to dig into the Communist issue. When he testified Tuesday about Harry Dexter White before the Senate's subcommittee on internal security, he had a prepared statement. So he wasn't talking at random when he told the senators: "This subcommittee, I am sure, will want to examine with great care the claim that there was a plan to keep White and others in the espionage ring in government employment in the hope of catching them." And then he said: "You will also want to investigate, I believe, what care was used to protect the national security. These are grave questions to which the public is entitled to complete answers." The kind of investigation urged by Brownell could go on for months, right up to election time. The subcommittee yesterday began digging into the case of one of the people mentioned, along with White, by the FBI in its report to the White House in 1945 on Soviet spy suspects. This was Harold Glasser, who was later promoted by former Treasury Secretary John W. Snyder, an old-time friend of Truman. Since the kind of investigation

Television Booms Home Game Market Of Nation. NEW YORK (AP)—Everybody is looking for a simple, inexpensive way to get rich without raising a sweat. Well, we've stumbled across one possible way you can try that gold-plated Cadillac you've always yearned for. All you have to do is invent a new parlor game half as popular as checkers. There is a big boom under way now in home games. And guess what is helping it along? Television, no less. Robert B. M. Barton, president of the Toy Manufacturers of America, is happy to say a kind word for video, which has been denounced as a one-eyed viper responsible for everything wrong from the increase in adult delinquency to the rise in juvenile delinquency. At first we were afraid television would hurt us, but it has turned out to be a big help," said Barton. "Families stay at home more now. But they can't look at TV all the time—so they play more games." Playing games is hard work for Barton, a slender, scholarly-looking man who began his career as a lawyer. He heads Parker Brothers, Inc., which regularly publishes 250 to 300 different games and is the bellwether of the nation's 15-to-20-million-dollar a year industry. "We test up to 1,000 new games each year, of which only about two per cent are put on the market." The largest was an 8-point one he said, "most of them are invented by professionals, but some of the best are the work of amateurs. Sometimes the amateur is closer to the public mood." An example was Charles Darrow, an unemployed Philadelphia heating engineer, who in 1935 invented "Monopoly," one of the most popular new games of this century. It has sold by the millions and Barton feels it will go on forever. "Darrow retired and lived happily ever after," he said, "but what he did was roughly comparable to Margaret Mitchell's writing of 'Gone With The Wind.' He hit the jackpot. "But usually one game, like one song or one book, doesn't make you wealthy."

This Day In Texas

A hundred and sixty furious Lipans put an abrupt end to a treasure hunter's dreams of wealth on this day in 1830. The white man was Jim Bowie, the Louisiana adventurer and land speculator who had sometimes collaborated with Jean Lafitte in slavy smuggling. Soon after he came to Texas in 1828, Bowie started looking in the San Saba River area for what later became known as the "Lost Bowie Mine." To facilitate his search he got himself adopted into the Lipan tribe which claimed ownership of the rich vein and became the "son" of Kollie, the Lipan chieftain. When he thought he knew the whereabouts of the mine, Bowie returned to San Antonio and gathered a band of ten men to go back to the San Saba country with him and take over its huge wealth. But the Lipans had different ideas. They attacked the returning party with fury, killing four of them. The white men put up a pretty good battle themselves—they counted 82 Lipans killed or wounded before they fled back to San Antonio. By sheer luck, Bowie escaped with his life. From his next big fight, at the Alamo, he did not escape.

Women Folks Are Taking Over U. S. Business World Gradually

The opinions contained in this and other articles in this column are solely those of the writers who sign them. They are not to be interpreted as necessarily reflecting the opinions of The Herald-Editor's Note. Us abused and neglected men and boys may as well resign ourselves to a soap-and-water-marked future at the sink and under the clothesline. No question about it, the women folks are taking over. And now they have the school people on their side, along with the employers, the child psychologists who say it's all right to take a job, and a general trend in the direction of sharing the responsibilities of homemaking and earning a living. The school people are doing this. They're fixing it so the ladies can get a better education in their new role of part-time breadwinner and half-time homemaker. They recognize the trend away from the kitchen and toward the business and professional world, and figure that education, as well as husbands, better be adjusted to the new order. Already, 30 per cent of the nation's working population consists of women, and the flow of the fair sex into the labor market shows no sign of abating. So the American Council on Education, representing more than 1,000 colleges, has undertaken a study to evaluate what schools are doing toward the education of women for their roles in modern society. And a woman is head of a 13-member commission assigned to make the survey over a five-year period. The council worked up a big list of questions it wants answered. In hopes they'll help the males to better understand and adjust to their own new roles, we'll repeat some of them here. "What proportionate emphasis should be placed on liberal or general education, vocational training, child development and homemaking?" "What is the impact on society and family living patterns of women carrying increasing responsibilities outside the home?" "How can women best be educated for community leadership? What preparation should be given for the years between 40 and 70, as well as for the 20-to-40 span?" "What are the effects on the happiness and adjustment of men as women's activities expand?" Whatever answers the educators find, there's one glimmer of hope for the husband. Maybe, someday, he can expect an answer when he blusters, "How you think we gonna pay these bills?" -WAYLAND YATES

Spy Probes Should Be Directed Toward Suspects Still Living

I have been writing for so many years about the men who betrayed America, including Harry Dexter White, that the current furor surprises me only because it comes so late. To separate Harry Dexter White as a special case is to misunderstand the frightful decisions of obscure men which controlled the course of our history since 1934. White was one of a large group that originated in the Harold Ware cells in 1924. To emphasize White and to omit, in any analysis of the course of events, John Abt, Nathan Witt, Victor Perlo, Nathan Gregory Silvermaster, Lauchlin Currie, Harold Glasser, Charles Kramer, George Silverman, Michael Lee, Solomon Adler, Henry Collins Jr., Frank Coe, Michael Greenberg, and dozens of others whose names and records are known, is to miss the whole story. Harry Dexter White was not a top man in the great conspiracy to infiltrate the government. Because of his extraordinary ability, he rose to a high position in the United States Treasury. He was an abler man than the secretaries of the treasury under whom he served, Henry Morgenthau Jr., Fred Vinson and John Snyder, and therefore, as an expert, played so important a part in the fiscal affairs of this country. But he was only a secondary personality and a tool inside the conspiratorial group. On March 29, 1957, in commenting on the Russian Revolution and the effort in the years preceding 1937 of the Harold Ware cells to win the victories of revolution by infiltration, I wrote: "Revolutions are successful when an organized minority discovers that the majority is split, is confused, is without vigilance. Then it is revolutionary tactics to confound and confuse the majority by side issues, by speeches on humane subjects, by beating the drum of progress and liberalism. "Almost like vaudevillians repeating the jokes of a decade and a century ago, the revolutionists and the compromisers repeat the slogans and the adages of all the centuries and of all countries. They play upon distress; they create emergencies; they ridicule fundamentals. And all sorts of people are taken in by these tricks and they bow to the golden calf of humane proposals. Only too late do they learn that this emphatic humanity is only a veneer, only a sham in the rise to power. "The minority stand upon the shoulders of those whom they fool only as long as they need protection. When they want to come to earth, they destroy the props that supported them. . . . "The American people do not yet realize that they are in the first stage of a revolution. . . . It will be recalled that William A. Wirt, an educator of Gary, Indiana, exploded after a party in which the plans to make Roosevelt "the Kerensky" of the American revolution were discussed. This was in 1934. Wirt was ridiculed and literally hounded to death. It can be said without possibility of error that if an honest investigation of Wirt's data had been made at the time, neither Alger Hiss nor Harry Dexter White could have become so important in our affairs. No matter what Harry Truman says

Unwatch Dog

CRESCENT BEACH, S. C. (AP)—A burglar broke into Pope Hamilton's home here and Police Officer J. W. Perrin, who doubles as mayor, organized a searching party. He asked whether anybody in the crowd had a bloodhound. "Sure," someone replied, and produced a hound that soon slipped away from the posse. They found the dog peacefully snoring under a myrtle bush. Then it developed that it was Hamilton's dog. So Perrin asked where the dog was during the burglary. "Asleep under the house, I reckon," said Hamilton.

Smith Tells Of Golden Plates

Some persons suppose that Brigham Young founded the Mormon religion, but the actual founder was Joseph Smith. After the death of Smith, Young led the faithful across the western prairies, but a great deal had happened before that event. Joseph Smith was born at Sharon, Vermont, 148 years ago. He was the son of a backwoodsman who had found trouble in earning a living on the farms which he had cleared. When Joseph was nine years old, the family moved to the state of New York, settling in Palmyra, a town which then had 4,000 people. For two years Mrs. Smith operated a small store in which she sold eggs, root beer, gingerbread, oilcloth and other items. Her husband earned what he could by working on nearby farms. After saving enough money to make a down payment, the Smiths obtained a farm about two miles from Palmyra. Young Joseph helped in sowing grain, and also gathered sap from sugar maples and performed other tasks. Late in his teens he joined in hunting for buried treasure in lands around Palmyra, but failed to obtain wealth in that manner. Before his thirty-third birthday, Smith gave an account of visions which came to him, he said, a few months before his eighteenth birthday. He declared that an angel "called me by name, and said unto me that he had come from the presence of God, and that his name was Moroni." Smith went on to relate that, after being told by the angel where to look, he had discovered thin golden plates, each about eight inches square, with strange writing on the surface. Fearing to touch the plates because of a warning from the angel, Smith declared he left them for four years where they had been located, but then was allowed to take them home, along with two magical stones which could be used to translate the writing. Tomorrow: More About Smith.

The Thrill That Comes Once in a Lifetime

Another Honor For Droopy

Mrs. Terry Patterson painted this picture of the grand championship steer Sue White raised. Miss White had already sold Droopy so Mrs. Patterson used for her model another animal of the same family.

Painting Of Steer Is Artist's Pride

Droopy is a grand-championship steer who has had his portrait painted. That's an honor many people can't claim. His sad eyes look mournfully out from the life-sized painting hanging in Mrs. Terry Patterson's living room. Mrs. Patterson painted the steer that Sue White, local 4-H club member won a grand prize for at the 1933 Fat Stock Show in Fort Worth. What the local artist has done is the kind of achievement that American Art Week, now being observed, gives special recognition to. American art is not just the work of the masters. It's also the fruit of the creativity anyone could develop if he took the trouble.

Mary Margaret McBRIDE SAYS

Waiting for my dentist to finish drilling on the teeth of a reluctant little blonde girl and begin on reluctant me, I picked up two wonderfully helpful hints from the reading matter he has thoughtfully provided in his outer room. The first, discovered in a book on training the family dog, advised washing Rover with canned tomatoes if and when he meets up with a skunk. The second, in a more or less current magazine, suggested rubbing poison ivy spots with crushed mint leaves.

Dr. Chase knew everything and "Recipes or Information for Everybody" told about such odd matters as when to plant potatoes, how to detect counterfeit money, how to take off freckles, why green light is bad for ruddy complexions and how to make a rough and ready cake. I remember I was just rescued in time from trying the Chase ague cure, a drink made of soot scraped from the chimney, steeped in water, settled with an egg and served with sugar and cream: soot coffee, Dr. Chase called it. The ointment for strains, lame back and rheumatism that I always longed to try advised: Take four good-sized toads, plunge into boiling water and cook very soft. Lift them out and boil the water down to a half pint, then add one pound of fresh churned unsalted butter, and simmer together. Finally, put in two ounces of tincture of arnica. But the trouble was I never got rheumatism in those days.

I put down the magazine and suddenly saw, as clearly as if it stood on the table before me, a volume bound in black and gold called "Recipes or Information for Everybody," compiled around 1856 by Dr. Chase. When I was a child the book was kept on top of our wooden food safe in a corner of the kitchen. Dr. Chase was forbidden reading for children because it handled the facts of life rather starkly. But if nobody was around I could climb up on a chair and get it down, which I often did after I discovered the day Papa was looking up when he saw our cow Besse had the milk fever. He left it on the kitchen table and I was busily absorbing the part about babies when I heard Mama coming. By the time she got to the door, though, I was drying the dishes and humming "Jesus Wants Me for a Sunbeam."

Mama looked at me searchingly and put Dr. Chase firmly back on top of the safe, but I sneaked him out that very afternoon and went on reading about babies. More frightening even than the Facts of Life was the good doctor's admission that he had no remedy for cases of the Vapors or Low Spirits "where patients fancy themselves dumb, stupid, feeble, teapots or to have lost their legs..." I began to get, if not the Vapors, certainly fancies. But when I stopped churning to complain that my heart was beating too fast and I felt queer, my mother, busily mashing potatoes counter'd dryly: "What you need is a good dose of calomel." Just then, the little blonde girl clattered by, and I—back in the present—saw the dentist beckoning to me.

Woman's Forum To Have Art Program

Mrs. Emmett Miller and Mrs. R. A. Miller will present an American Art Week program for the Woman's Forum Friday in the home of Mrs. Omar Jones, 1009 E. 15th. Mrs. Arnold Marshall and Mrs. H. W. Kirby will be co-hostesses. Subjects to be discussed will be interior decorating and flower arranging. Each member may bring one guest.

Painting was prescribed as a "medicine" for Mrs. Patterson about five years ago. She was seriously ill at the time and the doctor told her she must find something to do with her hands while she recovered. She fell back on an old interest in art, in spite of the fact she had had no formal training. This is one medicine she is still taking even though she is well now. At first she experimented with pastels. In fact, she did Droopy first in pastels, just showing his head. When the picture was criticized in an art show for not showing enough of him, Mrs. Patterson embarked on the oil painting.

By that time Mrs. Patterson had taken some art lessons but because she wanted the painting to be all her own, she sought no criticism or help from anyone. "I painted him, pen in hand up and showed a feed box to indicate he was a show animal," she explains. "Mrs. Patterson's studio is a corner of her kitchen. She is taking portrait painting now "because my ambition is to paint the children and my husband."

Painting is still a hobby for her, she says, "but if I were ever to do it commercially, "I'd like to do murals." Probably that's because she likes to paint subjects large. She has decorated her kitchen with massive-sized flowers and is painting the bathroom wall with a swan and water lily motif. Mrs. Patterson has turned her pastels into personalized Christmas gifts. By selling paintings to friends and relatives she has been able to make the hobby pay for itself. Mrs. Patterson's accomplishments, including her own enjoyment, should make anyone who won't start painting because he hasn't had any lessons realize how much he may be missing.

International Beauty's Advice

Christiane Martel, the French beauty who won the "Miss Universe" title, gives a simple but useful beauty hint for keeping the hands soft. Christiane is now under contract to Universal-International.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Simple Plan For Care Of Hands Suggested

By LYDIA LANE. HOLLYWOOD—The first time I met Christiane Martel was shortly after she had been chosen "Miss Universe" in the contest of beauties from all over the world, which was held near Hollywood this summer. Though the room was filled with glamour girls, when the French "Miss Universe" arrived at the party everyone was attracted by her beauty. "I'm very lucky," Christiane told me in her faltering English at that time, "because winning this contest means I will have an opportunity to work in Hollywood." And this, she confessed, was a dream she had cherished ever since she was a little girl and had visited her father at the studio in Paris where he was a leading sound technician in the French movie industry. A few days ago I had lunch with Christiane at Universal-International where she is now under contract, and her English had improved noticeably. We chatted about the responsibility which went with being chosen the most beautiful girl in the world. We were sitting by the window and the warm sun made Miss Martel remark: "It is hard for me to realize Christmas is near when the weather is like spring." And the only complaint which she made of California was that she found the buildings and homes too hot. "Europeans are not used to central heating as you have it here," she commented. "It is not healthy to have rooms so hot." I asked Christiane, who is still in her teens, about her beauty habits. "I love the nylons you have here," she told me. "They are so, what you call it—sheer. But I find I have to keep my hands and nails very smooth or I ruin them." Christiane took from her purse a small bottle of hand lotion which she had bought in a dime store. "Everytime I wash my hands," she explained, "I put a little of this on my hands. This is a very simple beauty idea, but it is one of the most important ones." And I had to agree that Christiane's advice was good for all career girls who work all day. A bottle of hand lotion in the purse is a simple way of keeping the hands lovely to look at as well as soft enough to handle with safety the best pair of nylons.

Italy Stands Firm Upon Its Previous Trieste Proposals

ROME (U)—Italy stood firm today on its previous demands and proposals for settling the hot Yugoslav-Italian dispute over strategic Trieste.

Italian Premier Giuseppe Pella reiterated most of them—without even hinting at a compromise—in a half-hour speech last night before the Chamber of Deputies.

He assured the deputies, however, that he would continue to seek a solution of the dispute in conjunction with the West despite Italian displeasure with the American and British attitudes toward recent bloody Trieste rioting.

Pella reiterated this previous stand:

1. Italy considers a plebiscite among the residents of the Trieste territory the best means of reaching a solution.
2. The British-American declaration Oct. 8 that they would withdraw their troops from the territory's Zone A and turn it over to Italy must be carried out.
3. Even if Italy receives Zone A, it will not surrender its claims to Zone B, controlled by Yugoslav forces.

GOP Reassures Drought-Hit Areas Aid Will Be Continued

By The Associated Press

The Republican administration in Washington has sought to reassure in drought-stricken ranchmen and conservation-minded farmers that the federal government will see them through and not hamper conservation.

President Eisenhower Wednesday told a news conference that he is stretching funds available for drought relief by having the Commodity Credit Corp. make feed supplies available on the cuff until Congress comes back to vote more money.

And Secretary of Agriculture Benson said his recent controversial reorganization of the Soil Conservation Service is designed "to strengthen the soil conservation program."

The President said his action—which in effect makes 30 million dollars more available for drought relief—insures that aid to stockmen "shall go forward until Congress can review the program in January."

At the same time, Benson asked Western railroads to renew a 50 per cent freight rate which expired Monday on the emergency grain shipment. Already the nation's railroads have agreed to extend a similar cut rate on hay shipments to drought areas.

"If the rate reduction on feed is not extended," Benson said in a statement, "it will be necessary for the Department of Agriculture to pay full freight rates on the government shipments, since the department will continue to make feed available in the emergency area at the previously reduced prices for feed."

In a formal statement distributed at his news conference, Eisenhower said:

"Drought conditions in many parts of the country have continued to increase in severity. Portions of our livestock industry are facing virtual liquidation. Damage to the whole agricultural economy in these areas has been great. Hardship among thousands of farm families has been intense. The government, the statement said, has been working hard to ease these conditions, and "we intend to see this thing through."

Benson told a conference of soil conservation officials that his department is "determined to carry out a dynamic and more effective national program of soil and water conservation." He said key units in administering the program would be strengthened state offices of the Soil Conservation Service. The reorganization plan involved elimination of seven regional offices, one at Fort Worth, and brought protests from some conservation officials who said the service would be weakened. Regional administrator Louis Merrill at Fort Worth recently resigned with the statement he did not want to stand by and see "the Soil Conservation Service liquidated."

But Benson told the SCS men: "The Department of Agriculture recognizes a strong national program of soil and water conservation as one of the basic necessities of American Agriculture."

"The purpose of this reorganization," he continued, "is to strengthen the soil conservation program and the Soil Conservation Service and to bring the administration of the SCS technical program closer to the farmer."

Struck Dog Causes Chief Much Worry

XENIA Ohio (U)—Millard R. Dement, volunteer fire chief in nearby Clifton, hit a dog with his truck yesterday. He drove the truck into a ditch trying to avoid the animal.

While he was checking the dog's injuries, he heard the fire siren in Clifton. He jumped into his truck and sped into town, passing the village pumper on the way. In town he got an ambulance and started after the pumper.

He found it at the spot where he'd hit the dog. A neighbor, hearing the dog's howls and seeing the truck in the ditch, had called the fire department.

The dog suffered only minor injuries.

Knowledge Can Aid Business, Educator Says

What makes people want things? Knowledge and religion, Dr. Willis Sutton, superintendent emeritus of Atlanta, Ga. schools, told the Lions Club membership Wednesday.

"When you invest money in schools, you increase the capacity for desires," he asserted, "and when you invest in churches, you make people want the right things."

No community has ever gone all out in this field, but it didn't lessen Dr. Sutton's faith in his thesis. "I wish you would," he challenged.

Relating experiences in his wide travels and as an active educator, Dr. Sutton said that it had been proven beyond a peradventure that the culture of the masses of people is a barometer of business.

Raise the level of culture (schools, libraries, museums, music, etc.) and you increase business, he declared.

National surveys have shown that 75 per cent of the profit dollar of major businesses comes as the result of "trained intelligence," according to Dr. Sutton. "A General Electric executive told me that the figure was conservative—it was 94 per cent in their case."

In almost any case, there can be established a definite relation between business and education, Dr. Sutton continued. How many newspapers do the illiterate take? Who buys the more expensive cars and clothes, the better foods where profits are also better?

Not only is education of the mind and heart good for business and any community, but it actually is the distinguishing contributor to America's greatness, he added.

Dr. Sutton is to speak in a public meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, addressing himself to the greater need of bridging the gap between parents and children.

Seven Crewmen From Downed Plane Rescued

PEARL HARBOR (U)—Seven crewmen from a Navy Catalina flying boat which ditched in the Pacific yesterday have been picked up from a life raft by the transport Daniel I. Sultan, the Navy announced.

Navy officers said three of the men were injured, but none is in serious condition.

The Sultan is heading for Midway Island, about 240 miles south of the point where the airmen were rescued, and is due sometime today, the Navy said.

The flying boat ran out of fuel and crash-landed in the ocean while on a long distance flight from Alaska to Midway.

Five Arrested For Setting Forest Fires

ROME, Ga. (U)—Five persons have been arrested on charges of starting some of the forest fires raging in northwest Georgia.

E. H. Terry, chief fire investigator for the Georgia Forestry Commission, said two teen-agers arrested here yesterday told him they set three fires near Rome's Russell Airport "just to see them burn."

Three men arrested in a lonely shack near the Georgia-Alabama line admitted they started fires by throwing firecrackers into dry grass and underbrush, Terry reported. They were charged with setting 14 fires.

Thrill Maker from start to stop

(That's T.T. Dynaflo!)

SOMETIME soon—like this week—you ought to try a Buick with Twin-Turbine Dynaflo.*

You ought to try it just to be familiar with the great advance in this fully automatic transmission that Buick engineers have accomplished.

You ought to try it just for the fun of bossing a drive where you don't do a blessed thing but steer and press the gas or the brake pedal as you go.

But, pure and simple, you ought to try it for thrills.

We mean the thrill of instant getaway response—with two turbines doing the job that one did before.

We mean the thrill of whisper-quiet acceleration—where you barely hear the sound of power build-up, or of flowing oil at work.

And, most emphatically, we mean the thrill of perfect and sublime smoothness from start to stop—the thrill of moving from standstill to and through all travel ranges in one, progressive, infinitely smooth forward "carry" without a gear ever shifting or a clutch-pedal pushed—the thrill, rarely found elsewhere, of silky smoothness in deceleration, too.

Will you be our guest at a sampling of a Buick with TT Dynaflo?

Will you try the sweetest, the smoothest and the simplest-to-operate automatic transmission yet devised—and powered by the highest-compression engines in Buick history, including the world's newest V8 SUPER and ROADMASTER models?

Drop in on us this week and we'll be happy to accommodate you.

Cleburne-Brownwood Tilt Will Decide 2-AAA Representative

By The Associated Press
The ponderous Texas schoolboy football field will be cut to one-sixth its size this weekend with at least 73 of the 79 district champions to be known when the firing ceases Saturday night.

Class AA will have 31 district titlists, Class A 32 and Classes AAAA and AAA will have only about three each to determine. While the lower division will be leveling off for the start of state playoffs, major interest rests on the top division—AAAA—where highly ranked Lamar (Houston) tries to snap out of an alarming slump and win its district championship from San Jacinto (Houston) and Port Arthur faces the payoff with a resurging Baytown team that might bounce back into the state title picture.

District championships ride on both of these important games. Port Arthur plays at Baytown Friday night. Class AAA also has its headline games, the features being Cleburne at Brownwood and Temple at Corsicana, both Friday night. Brownwood can sack up the district title if it wins but a Cleburne victory would prolong the fight another week with Garland pushing back into the battle. The Temple-Corsicana game, however, is an absolute showdown.

Odesa, Bowie (El Paso) and Waco already have earned their way into the state playoff from Class AAAA. The Fort Worth district will wait another week to determine a champion but the Dallas district might be thrown into a three-way deadlock should Sunset beat Woodrow Wilson tonight. Sunset is virtually out of the championship race but Crozier Tech and North Dallas are still in it. In District 8 Ray of Corpus Christi could conceivably win the title should it beat Austin as it is favored to do and Miller (Corpus Christi) lose to Brackenridge (San Antonio) tonight.

There are eight districts in Class AAAA and the same in Class AAA. Big Spring, Edison (San Antonio) and Edinburg already have worked their way into the state playoff in Class AAA and at least four other places can be gained this week. This is providing Brownwood beats Cleburne and if certain things happen in two other districts. In District 4 Texarkana could make it by beating Longview at Longview Friday night while Kilgore lost to Nacogdoches at Kilgore. Otherwise, the title will go down to the Texarkana-Kilgore game Nov. 26 in District 6 Port Neches has only to beat or tie Texas City to win it. A loss by Port Neches, however, would throw the race into a triple tie, putting Freeport back into the thick of things. District 3, where Gainesville, Sherman and Paris are tied for the lead, can't be straightened out this week. Class AA already has 10 district representatives with 21 more to be named this week. In the playoff are Stamford, Comanche, Handley, Terrell, Atlanta, Huntsville, Gonzales, Wharton, Nederland and Weslaco. There are clear-cut issues in most of the other districts but some may wind up in triple ties, making the district committees decide which are to go into the playoff.

Bad Back May Bench Frosty

Joe Liberty, Don Reynolds and James Hollis were back in uniform for the Big Spring Steers Wednesday but the local club will have to use Carlisle (Frosty) Robison, star halfback, sparingly, if at all, in its Friday night game here with Yaleta. Robison experienced some back trouble in the Snyder game. The misery recurred Monday and yesterday he was forced to call it quits, when he was knocked to the ground during a punting drill against the B team. Coach Carl Coleman may take no chances on him and go with a patched-up lineup, as much as possible. Don Swinney continues to work out, but in a sweat suit. He probably won't get into action before the Sweetwater game Thanksgiving Day, if by then. Since Jerry Hughes is definitely out of tomorrow night's game, the team has defensive problems in the backfield. Swinney and Hughes are two of the finest defensive players in camp. Boys like Billy Martin, Brick Johnson, Hollis and Buddy Cozby will be called upon to do more of the ball juggling, if Robison sits this one out. The Steers are a big favorite in the game but the odds will continue to diminish, if the hospital list grows.

Terps' Defense May Set Record

NEW YORK, (AP)—Unbeaten Maryland goes into its final regular season football game Saturday against Alabama with a chance to turn in the nation's best defensive scoring record in six years.

Figures from the NCAA Service Bureau show that if the Terrapins hold Alabama to less than nine points they will have allowed the lowest total of points in major college competition since 1947; if they hold Alabama to less than 13 they'll have the lowest points-per-game mark since the same year. And if Alabama gains less than 80 yards on the ground, Maryland probably will win the 1953 rushing defense title.

Statistics released today showed Maryland is the only team that has held the opposition to less than the equivalent of a touchdown a game. It leads in ground defense and is third in total defense. The Terps have permitted 3.4 points, 82.6 rushing yards and 176.8 total yards per game.

Yearlings Host Colts Tonight

Dan Lewis' Big Spring Junior High School Yearlings wind up their season's play here tonight at which time they face the classy Sweetwater Colts. Game time is 7:30 p.m. Last week, the Sweetwater team came from behind to defeat the Yearlings, 60-21. The Colts trailed at half time, 19-21. Coach Lewis figures his club stands a good chance against the Colts, if they can stop Sweetwater's wide plays. The Colts, with Dickie Allen in the driver's seat scored most of their touchdowns on end runs in their game last week. The Yearlings have won only two games this season, both against Colorado City, but are much improved over the form they flashed in the early part of the season.

Allen shares the spotlight in the Sweetwater backfield, along with Charles Andrews. Tonight's game is a makeup battle. The two teams were to have originally met on Sept. 10, but that one was moved back following a conference of the coaches. Neither team was ready to play at the time.

Robison Leader In 3A-1 Scoring

Bill Dendy of Breckenridge remains the overall scoring leader in District 1-AAA but Big Spring's Carlisle (Frosty) Robison has done the most damage when it counts.

In five conference games, Robison has tallied 60 points, compared to only 42 for Dendy. Frank Smith of Sweetwater is third in conference scoring with 36 points, compared with 39 each for J. C. Armistead of Big Spring and Roger Hobson of Breckenridge.

Larry Doby of the Cleveland Indians holds the dubious distinction of tying a major league record for strikeouts in one game—5 in 1948.

Bruins, Terps Picked To Win

By HAROLD CLAASSEN
NEW YORK (AP)—There were more upsets than bargains in the basement of a department store last weekend with the result that this department's average skidded to .767 for the season from its rather lofty spot of .801. With absolutely no idea where the incorrect ones are this time: Notre Dame over Iowa; There was a time in the past when Iowa always troubled Notre Dame. Maybe those days have returned. But it doesn't seem possible that the Hawkeyes, despite two good lines, will more than frighten Lattner, Worden and company. Maryland over Alabama; Alabama was one of two teams to defeat Maryland last year. That's ancient history and won't happen again. UCLA over Southern California; This is your TV attraction of the day. These crosstown rivals will have at each other with a vengeance. The statistics show that Paul Cameron and his UCLA mates are slightly better than Aramis Dandoy and the rest of the Trojans. Georgia Tech over Duke; The Engineers to squeak through. Kentucky over Tennessee; The Kentucky Wildcats have scored only three touchdowns in eight years against Tennessee but this year they get revenge for the first time. Finishing the others in a hurry: East; Boston University over Temple; Columbia over Rutgers; Fordham over Holy Cross; Pittsburgh over Penn State; Dartmouth over Princeton; Syracuse over Villanova; Delaware over Bucknell; Lafayette over High; Yale over Harvard.

GAME MOVIE IS SLATED

Action films of the Big Spring-Snyder football game will be shown to members of the Big Spring Quarterback Club at their regular session this evening in the High School Cafeteria. The organization begins its session at 7 p.m. Plans for the Daily Herald-Quarterback Club's special train to Sweetwater Thanksgiving Day will also be discussed, along with other club business.

City Cage League Being Organized

Persons interested in entering teams in a city independent basketball league can contact Pete Cook, a member of the YMCA advisory staff. Cook's telephone number is 4-7476. Three teams have already been committed to play in the league and as many as seven or eight might be organized. Tennessee Milk, Webb Air Base and Martin's Service Station will probably enter the loop. The league will function about as it did last year, using both the Junior High and College gyms.

Cavazos Is Making Major Bid For All-Star Honors

By EDDIE LEE
ALBUQUERQUE (AP)—One of the leaders of Texas Tech's drive toward national football prominence—Halfback Bob Cavazos—has been singled out as the Border Conference's top candidate for The Associated Press All-America team. Cavazos, 5-foot, 190-pound runner from Kingsville, Tex., heads a list of 21 players from the Border area nominated by the three members of the AP's regional board for All-America selections. The board, made up of Sports Editors Bob Allison of the Phoenix Gazette, Chuch Whitlock of the El Paso Times and Joe Kelly of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, has named 12 backs and nine linemen as worthy of All-America consideration. Supported almost as strongly as Cavazos are Ken Cardella, hard-working halfback of Arizona; Dick Shinaut, Texas Western's clever quarterback, and Robert Wheelchel, fullback of the West Texas State Buffaloes. The other nominees: Quarterbacks—Jack Kirkpatrick, Texas Tech; Don Windsor, Hardin-Simmons; Bob Hendricks, Arizona State; Billy Bob Plumbley, Texas Western. Halfbacks—Clovie Riley, Texas Western; Art Luppino, Arizona. Fullbacks—Don Beasley, Arizona; James Slides, Texas Tech. Ends—Gene Odell, Texas Western; Chester Lyssy and D. C. Andrews, Hardin-Simmons; Vic Spooner, Texas Tech; John Allen, Arizona (Tempe). Tackles—Buddy Lewis, Arizona; Jerry Walker, Texas Tech; John Jankans, Arizona State. Centers—Glenn Bowers, Arizona.

Farm Woman Held Guilty Of Murder Of Blind Brother

TEXARKANA, Tex. (AP)—Slight, wrinkled Mrs. Agnes Watson faced life in prison today for the death of her 70-year-old blind brother. The 66-year-old farm woman was convicted of her brother's murder yesterday after she testified she had admitted killing their mother a decade ago. Defense Atty. William Harkness said he would file an appeal. Mrs. Watson testified that the night before James Albert Dray was slain he demanded to know where she had put his six-shooter. She said she could not sleep that night and next morning heard Dray muttering he would make her give him the gun. Then, she said, she picked up a stick of stove wood and hit the blind man "three licks." Earlier, she said, he had told her how he had put a rope around their mother's neck and "held her up."

Hughes Keeps Oil Rigs Going

Work is done at Hughes Oil Field Service Company of Big Spring that is essential to the continuation of oil operations in this area. That work is the repair of machinery and equipment used in the drilling for oil. At one time or another practically all of the drilling installations need some sort of repair to keep them going. The specialty at Hughes is getting that repair work done as good and as quick as possible. A crew of nine employees is on call for instant service. Both electric and acetylene welding jobs are tackled by Hughes employees who are specialists in their field. And any type machine work is done to specification. Work can be done in the field at the site of trouble or it can be done in the shop at 2207 Scurry Street. Portable and stationary equipment are owned by Hughes for both machine work and welding. Earl Hughes heads up the service company, and he stands behind all his jobs. He has a reputation for doing the job that has to be done in a minimum of time. Operations of the firm extend as far north as Snyder and south as far as San Angelo. Three trucks and portable welding machines can be moved at the time of call. Day phone is 4-8391, and the night phone is 4-7315. Machine work is done on swivels, gas-oil engines and other oil field equipment. Shaper work and thread cutting is a specialty.

Shooting Bear Goal Expensive To Achieve

HOUGHTON LAKE, Mich. (AP)—For five years R. C. Mulholland of Dayton, Ohio, had gone to the Michigan woods hoping to shoot a bear. Each year he returned empty-handed. Yesterday, driving along Route 27, he hit something that spun his car around. There, on the road, was a wounded bear. Grabbing his rifle, Mulholland killed it with one shot. He has his bear, but it will cost him $600—for repairs to the car.
