Lubbock Christian College Is Seeking Donations of Cotton

LUBBOCK-(Special) - Lubbock Christian College is conducting a distinctively different campaign among farmers to obtain 2,000 bales of cotton as gifts to meet the financial needs of the expanding college.

F. W. Mattox, president of LCC, said: "Cotton, rather than cash, is being solicited from farmers under a 'commodity giving' provision of the Farmer's Tax Guide (1961 edition) Publication No. 225 published by the Internal Revenue Service which allows a farmer to save on his income tax by donating a commodity directly to an educational or charitable institution.

"The government has made extra ncome tax benefits possible for persons who contribute to educational, as well as benevolent, institutions.

The college president explained that in cases where the farmer is in a high tax bracket he can actually make more money (within his 30 per cent limitation on conributions) by "giving" his commodity than by "selling" it for cash and paying his income tax on the sale.

When a commodity is given instead of cash." Mattox explained, "the farmer does not declare the gift as income, yet he has the benefit of deducting the fair market value (less the raising cost) as a contribution on his income tax re turn. This enables him either to give more or to save on his income tax by making his charitable contributions with commodities.
