One Dies In Plane Crash

An Arizona man was killed in a plane crash north of Alanreed sometime Friday afternoon. Highway patrolman Ron Shank identified the pilot of the Cessna 195 as Michael J. Speshock, 56, of Chandler, Arizona. Authorities believe Speshock was flying low and following I-40 due to poor visibility when he hit one of the guy wires of the television tower located outside of Alanreed.

The wreckage was not discovered until late Monday evening when Randy Warner of the mobile communications department of KVII arrived to investigate the malfunction of the tower. Warner notified Gray County officials and Justice of the Peace, R. C. Parker pronounced Speshock dead at the scene at 7:45 Monday evening.

According to Dr. Ralph Erdman of Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo, who performed the autopsy, Speshock had been dead at least 36 hours.

Amid the scattered debris from the plane, lay Speshock's personal items - several camera cases, envelopes of pictures, clothing bags, flight charts, maps, and two large green trash bags. According to Sheriff Rufe Jordan, the contents of the bags had not yet been determined. "Approximately five pounds of a green substance were found in the ship," explained Jordan. "We have not run a field test to determine the contents."

The Gray County Sheriff's Department and the Federal Aeronautic Administration are investigating the fatal crash.

School Board Sets Banquet Policy Monday

Members of the McLean School Board accepted a resignation, nominated a board member for the Gray County Appraisal District, discussed the junior-senior banquet, and ordered a new bus Monday night. The brief meeting was in the school business office.

The board accepted the resignation, effective Nov. 1, of Jan Johnson, business teacher at McLean High School. Superintendent Jim Rutherford said that Mrs. Johnson had accepted a position with Clarendon College. High School principal Ron Cummings said that no replacement has been found.

Lloyd Hunt, who is a current member of the Gray County Appraisal

District, was renominated by the McLean School board. Five members from the county will be elected for a two-year term on the board. McLean school and the City of McLean each have a certain number of votes prorated by the amount of taxes levied in the entities last year.

In discussing the junior-senior banquet, Cummings told the board he would like to have a policy before the students begin planning for this year's banquet. The board voted to rescind an old policy requiring the banquet to be held in

New Management Named For McLean News

Beginning Oct. 17, Kathy Carter will be the managing editor of The McLean News, and Sam A. Haynes will be the publisher. The announcement was made this week by Linda Haynes, the current editor and publisher of the paper. Mrs. Haynes is resigning from the paper to accept a job as the director of public relations at Coronado Community Hospital in Pampa.

Mrs. Carter has worked at The News for five years as typesetter and as advertising manager. She is a 1975 graduate of McLean High School, and attended Delta State University in Cleveland, Miss., and Texas Tech University at Lubbock. She worked as a purchasing agent for Rexene Corporation in Odessa.

Haynes, a longtime resident of McLean, is a columnist at the paper. A graduate of McLean High School, he attended the University of Oklahoma in Norman, Okla., where he majored in journalism. He is a rancher, and served for 10 years as the mayor of McLean. His duties at the paper will include writing sports stories and writing another column. For five years, he has edited "Down Memory Lane", written a book review.

"Quotable Quotes", and "Lines by Lem O'Rick", and served as the "Peerless Prognosticator." He will continue with those duties.

The McLean News was purchased by Linda and Sam Haynes Aug. 1, 1978 from E. M. Bailey. The ownership of the paper will stay the same.

Cubs Lose District Game To Groom Thursday

The McLean Jr. High Cubs broke their winning streak Thursday night as the Cubs from Groom ran away with a victory. McLean lost the ballgame 34-6.

McLean was unable to reach touchdown territory during the first half, and went into the dressing rooms behind 14-0. McLean came back onto the field, determined to get into the game, but helplessly watched the Groom lead grow. In the fourth quarter, Matt Sanderson raced 50 yards for the only McLean touchdown, putting McLean on the board. The two-point conversion was no good, and the game ended with McLean losing.

The Cubs will play the Lefors Bandits here, Thursday (tonight) at 6:30. This will be the second meeting between the two teams. McLean won the first battle in a close match, 14-12.

"The only thing permanent about science is change" was inscribed on a giant banner which stretched across the science room in college. As a youngster in school I found it difficult to really understand that nothing about science, or life itself, is permanent.

It seems that each twist of my life convinces me that I have finally found some permanence, and that my routine, my job, my home, will remain the same. Having a house burn down should have taught me better than that.

Five years ago, when I bought The McLean News, I made a committ-ment to try the business for five years, and then I promised myself that if I could not make it pay, I would do something else.

Five years was up August 1, and I have partially failed in that goal. The paper is paying its own way, but I have never been able to draw a salary. When I computed the amount I would have made teaching over that five years, the loss of income was staggering.

In these tough economic times, I'm sure that we have all have had to make re-evaluations in our thinking and our lifestyles.

Two weeks ago, I learned that a public relations job was open in Pampa, and I decided to apply. Public relations is a field that has always fascinated me, and events moved in such a way, that the job looked like a chance I could not possibly refuse.

Last Wednesday, I accepted the job as director of public relations for Coronado Community Hospital. I officially begin my duties there Oct. 24.

Reports

Proposed Constitutional Amendments

AUSTIN — Texas voters will be going to the polls this November 8th to decide the fate of eleven constitutional amendments. Two of them are explained here.

AMENDMENT NO. 4
Current constitutional provisions authorize the Legislature to provide for a temporary succession to a state or local government office which had become vacant in the event of the incumbent's death or disability due to an enemy attack. These provisions are not applicable to the Legislature itself.

Proposed amendment No. 4 would authorize the Legislature to provide for a temporary succession to the office of state senator or state representative should it become vacant because of enemy attack. The primary list of successors would consist of former legislators who live in the legislative district represented by the vacant office.

Proponents of this amendment say that modern warfare could isolate the state from the remainder of the nation and interfere with federal government assistance. Providing for the continuation of the Legislature will help prevent chaos that could occur in the absence of a state government.

Opponents argue that the proposed amendment is unnecessary because if an enemy attack should occur, the federal government would assume control of all governmental functions, leaving the state with no option but to comply with federal mandates.

Currently, there is no provision in Texas law which allows for the garnishment of a person's wages for any purpose, although a person may voluntarily assign a portion of his or her wages for child support. Modern times have seen the rise of divorce in this state as well as a rise in court ordered child support payments.

Consequently, we have seen an increase in the number of divorced parents who refuse to obey court orders by failing to provide adequate financial support for their children. These parents could be held in contempt of court and be sent to jail.

Proposed amendment No. 6 would allow the garnishment of wages to enforce court ordered child support payments, but not for other debts or financial obligations.

Proponents of child support wage garnishment say this is an effective tool in requiring parents to fulfill their obligations and to reduce the number of welfare children in the state, saving taxpayers an estimated $3-4 million annually. Supporters note that the obligation to support one's child is the most important duty of parenthood and the child is entitled to such support.

Opponents argue that the garnishment of wages places the burden of collecting child support payments with the delinquent parent's employer, an unfair and expensive proposition. They also add that allowing the garnishment of wages for child support is merely the first step in proposing future amendments to allow garnishment for payment of legal fees, hospital bills, taxes, and a host of other debts.

If you would like to learn more about these or the other nine constitutional amendments, please feel free to write me at P.O. Box 12068, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711.

newstory in this paper, Kathy Carter will be the new editor of the paper, and Sam Haynes will assume the title of publisher. This is the first father-daughter combination to manage The McLean News during its 80 year history, and they may be the only father-daughter team in the state.

To thank all of you for your love and support and encouragement and your praise is an impossible task. Most of you have been overly generous with your compliments about our work, and I will always remember and appreciate that.

I know that you will continue to give the new management the same kind of support that you have given me during the last five years. You will not see any change in the quality of the coverage of the paper, but you will eventually begin to see some changes in style as Kathy and Sam try new ideas and new methods. Knowing their abilities as I do, I know that these will be improvements.

This is the last Distaff which I will write. In this week's paper, you will find a new publisher's column by Sam Haynes called "The Whittler's Bench."

Thanks for being a wonderful group of readers.

The seventh grade history class at McLean Junior High School is working to compile a history of McLean and the area. If you have information about the early days of our town, would you please give them a copy?

Some projects similar to this of students have become nationally famous...like the Foxfire books written by junior high students in Arkansas. So, who knows? Maybe our kids can put McLean on the map with their work. At any rate, it is a great idea, and they need your help.

If you have information that you will let them copy, call Carl Robertson or Marie Baker at 779-2671 or call Mrs. Baker at home at 779-2528.

McLean. The policy approved by the board says that the students may have the banquet in Pampa, subject to parental waiver and the availability of buses to transport students without waivers.

The board also approved ordering a 54 passenger bus for the school. Rutherford explained to the board that buses are ordered through the state purchasing agency, so that the local schools actually have no choice on the manufacturer of the bus. The bus should be delivered in one year.

Attending the meeting were board members Lloyd Hunt, John Holland, Joe Magee, James Hefley, Tony Smitherman, and Tommy Cole; business manager Shirley Johnson; superintendent Jim Rutherford; principals Ron Cummings and Dorman Thomas; and Linda Haynes.

take it for granted that none of us know a blasted thing about football or baseball and wouldn't recognize a cut on a fighter's eye if the blood was running all over the ring.

They maintain a constant haranque, informing us about what the second baseman had for supper night before last or what the split end told his wife he would do with the ball if he ever got it into the end zone.... We learn everything about all of the contestants such as how many times the shortstop struckout when his wife served oatmeal for breakfast, etc.

The likes of Tony Kubek and Joe Garagiola will overwhelm us with their knowledge of baseball by second-guessing the managers, and criticizing the players although Garagiola was never an outstanding major-leaguer and Kubek's only claim to fame was that he played briefly with a very potent Yankee team... Of course, we would be remiss if we did not mention the redoubtable Howard Cozell, who is the criticizer-complimenter and controversy-creator deluxe, who is turned on so he can be cursed more than any other announcer in history (yet we do watch him).

Some modern announcers, of course are capable and intelligent and do not assume the total ignorance of the viewer, (perhaps such as Vin Scully and Kurt Gowdy). But I am sincerely longing for the by-gone days of Red Barber on baseball and Kern Tipps (the greatest football announcer of all time), and I wouldn't even mind hearing "Dizzy" Dean sing the "Wabash Cannon Ball" or comment on some base runner who "slud" into second and dirtied his britches.....

Marbles Can't Find The Best Decorating Look

Home decorating has never been my forte. The few times when I have chanced upon what I thought were sensational decorating coups, I found later that somebody else had already utilized my brilliant ideas. When, for instance, I had finished covering my living room walls with a conglomeration of nifty baskets, I took a break and went to the nearest fast food restaurant, only to be confronted with a much more interestingly basketed wall. And when I tried the pastel and bamboo look, it turned up in 90 percent of the medium-priced hotels in America. The strange-but-true wood-shingled bathroom I did in order to cover up some impossible sheetrock, was duplicated the next week at a nearby liquor store.

Of course, on those occasions I had gone all out and spent more than $15.98 to redecorate my house, so you can imagine my disappointment at finding I was not unique in my choice of decor. Normally, I try to keep my spending more in line with my pocketbook, thereby enabling me to go for the doesn't-that-apple crate-look-quaint look.

The main problem with trying to decorate a home which houses not only a colorblind female, but several large, hulking males and a couple of surly animals, is that there has never, to my knowledge, been a decorator who could find the proper theme for the most essential items accumulated by the

LOOSE MARBLES

forementioned family.

For example, how in the world does one find the look which will unify eight school yearbooks and a couple of plaster impressions of four-year-olds' hands. And how does one make a beautiful dinner table arrangement using assorted chipped free with a $5 purchase dinner plates, and glassware imprinted with tornado warnings. My solution has been to accent them with torn paper towels as napkins, producing what I call the less than casual look.

I've seen lovely homes with picture walls which document the growth and accomplishments of the family offspring, but I have never been able to accumulate enough displayable photos to accomplish this. Those families obviously have children who never eat chocolate before school picture time, who regularly wipe their noses, and who look cute with missing teeth.

Surely there is a decorating wizard out there who could come to my rescue. I'm not asking for much. I don't want to be featured in the next issue of House Beautiful, but I would like to go home after a hard day at work and be able to relax in a comfortable atmosphere which does not include deflated footballs.

On the other hand, maybe House Beautiful would like a real challenge. I'll send them my collection of baby shoes to begin with, and perhaps they can figure out why I have three sets of shoes and only two offspring. If they can do that, decorating my hovel should be a snap.

In The Kitchen

by Linda Haynes

When I hear the men in my family raving about a dish, I know that I have found something that will become a favorite at our house. Sam returned from a meeting the other night telling me that I had to get Martha Parker's recipe for a bean-and-hamburger-meat dish. He said it was wonderful, so I obliged, and here it is.

Bean Chowder

Prepare 1 lb. pinto beans by soaking overnight, and cooking slowly until done. As beans cook, add 2 cloves of garlic, and lightly season the beans with salt.

Brown:

- 1 lb. hamburger
- 1 chopped onion
- 1 chopped green pepper

Cook until vegetables are tender. Drain off any excess grease. Add 1 can tomatoes. Cook until boiling. Add to cooked beans.

Mix together and simmer until serving time.

Where Are They Now?.....The Class Of '45

(Editor's Note: The following information was compiled for The McLean News by Freddie Pugh, who was a member of this class. We appreciate the time that she spent gathering these facts about her former classmates.)

The class of 1945 graduated on May 17, 1945, just a few days after the death of President Franklin Roosevelt, and shortly after V-E day.

The speaker at the commencement was Superintendent C.A. Cryer of Borger. H.A. Longino, Methodist minister, gave the invocation. Supt. Kimmins introduced the speaker and presented the class of '45. The girls' chorus and quartet sang, with Mrs. Longino playing the piano accompaniment. Mrs. Mazzotti presented the plaque award won by Kathryn Brooks. Dr. C.B. Batson presented the diplomas.

Harold Meador gave the valedictory address and Kathryn Brooks the salutatory. The piano accompaniment for the processional and recessional was played by Earlene Eustace.

Since that graduation, the lives of the graduates have changed drastically. The following is some information that was learned about the members of the class today.

BOBBY WAYNE BAILLEY was not located.

DORA MAE BAILEY lives in McLean.

VESTAL BAILEY joined the Merchant Marines following graduation. When he came back to McLean, he went to work for Getty Oil Company and has worked for that company since April, 1948. Vestal married Pat Ballard, and they have two children and four grandchildren.

JAMES BARKER went into the service in 1943. After he was discharged from the Navy, he came back and finished high school. He married Pat Eagleston in 1947. They have two children, a boy and a girl, and four grandchildren. James is an oil producer in McLean.

NORMA BATTEN was not located.

ANN BOGAN married U.F. Coker of Turkey. They have three children. Their son Kim graduated from Texas Tech. He is married and lives in Houston. Their twin daughters are now seniors at Tech. mined band on the entire Tiger defensive squad turned back all Blackhawk scoring attempts.

Kevin McDowell and Elson Rice furnished most of the Tiger offensive spark, and Scott Stubbs and Stephen McAnear turned in big defensive plays at crucial points in the contest.

The McLean squad will journey to Lefors this Friday for another conference game, and will do everything in the power to spoil the Pirates Homecoming festivities.

A large contingent of local fans is expected to be in Lefors for the 7:30 kickoff between these two old rivals.

The demands of modern living are so exacting that men and women everywhere must exercise deliberate selection to live wisely.

A rather unusual sight for our town was four wagon loads of baled broomcorn that were brought in Thursday. We have one of the best localities for raising broomcorn to be found, but for some reason it has never been planted here except in a small way. However, we understand that several farmers have good crops of broomcorn this year.

In a hotly contested football game last Friday, the McLean Tigers won from the husky Erick, Oklahoma team by a score of 20 to 14. The Erick bunch was considerably heavier than the locals and the game was one of the roughest yet played by our boys, but the score was very satisfactory and the game was enjoyed by a large crowd of fans.

J. W. Ivey of Northfork was a McLean visitor Friday.

W. C. Christopher, breeder of fine hogs at Miami, brought a load of hogs to the McLean market one day this week. McLean pays more for the farmer's products than any town near here, and as fast as people learn this fact, they take advantage of our markets.

Hunting America's Game Animals and Birds Edited by Robert Elman and George Peper

Here, in one volume, is an unprecedented treasury of know-how for the American hunter. Between the covers of this book are collected, for the first time, tips by forty of the world's greatest hunting experts, including tested techniques for taking all varieties of game on this continent.

Whether your favorite hunting is for rabbits or bear, woodcock or wild boar, geese or goats, turkeys or snipe or squirrels or mule deer, or any of the other great American game species, you'll find the best methods, times, and places for your sport clearly set forth by an all-star cast of authorities such as Pete Kuhlhoff, Jack O'Connor, Grits Gresham, Pete Brown and many, many more. Without a doubt, what these men have to say about the various game species will add to your success field. Sections on such subjects as shotgun ballistics, handloading, sighting-in, gun care, vehicles, boats, hunting knives, scopes and dogs will be indispensable to the avid nimrod.

Never have so many experienced hunting writers been gathered in an up-to-date treasury of this kind. And certainly, never will the American hunter find a better bargain. "Hunting America's Game Animals and Birds" is now available at Lovett Memorial Library.

The Scientists Tell Me...

Antibiotic Use Can Impair Development of Immune System

By Robert L. Haney
TAES Science Writer

A growing array of antibiotics has been used for more than three decades to treat, and sometimes prevent, disease in animals and humans.
But in recent years there has been increasing recognition that continued use of these potent drugs can create problems, according to Dr. Syed A.
Naqi, microbiologist at Texas
& M University.

"Antibiotics have been shown to affect various immune functions in animals and humans," Naqi says, "but widespread therapeutic and subtherapeutic use is made of antibiotics in food-animal production, particularly commercial poultry.

"Also, humans having chronic bacterial and fungal infections and those receiving immuno-suppressive reg-imens also receive antibiotics
for prolonged periods.

"While the beneficial effects of antibiotics under such situations have been widely accepted, the effects of the immune system were largely ignored."

Therefore, scientists with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, in the department of veterinary microbiology and parasitology, College of Veterinary Medicine, Texas
& M University, made a study of the effect of antibiotics on the development of the immune system in chickens and turkeys.

"The objective of the first study," Naqi says, "was to define the effects of a specific antibiotic regimen on the development of the immune system in chickens. This antibiotic regimen included pre-incubation dipping of fertile eggs in gentamicin solution (500 parts per million), injection of chicks with the same claimed in the past, their antibiotic (0.2 mg./chick, subcutaneously) and inclusion of chlorotetracycline in the diet (200 ppm)."

Antibiotic-treated chickens
generally carried lower densities of immunoglobulin (Ig)

bearing cells, than the respective controls, Naqi says.

However, statistically significant differences were apparent only with respect to Ig cell populations in the cecal tonsils and the large intestine. The treated chickens also had significantly lower serum IgM levels at 28 days of age.

How antibiotics effected suppression of the Ig bearing cells in the tissues and the Ig levels in the serum is unknown. A plausible mechanism is through suppression of the intestinal microflora by the antibiotics and resulting lack of stimulation of the gut associated lymphoid (immune) tissues.

Another question that logically arises is whether or not the immunodeficiency seen in the antibiotic-treated birds is likely to compromise their ability to counter infectious diseases.

Although these studies did not involve evaluation of immune competence of the treated birds, previous studies have shown antibiotic treatment to result in lower antibody production to various antigens and compromise in phagocytosis (engulfment and destruction of foreign substances) and chemotaxis (migration of injury-repairing cells).

Additional studies with turkey poult essentially confirmed the findings made with chickens, Naqi says.

"In food animals, antibiotics are used to reduce risk of infection and improve growth rate. If antibiotics are reducing infection risk on one hand and compromising host defenses on the other, the risk versus benefit situation should be carefully evaluated. This study is a step towards bringing about this awareness,"
Naqi concluded.

FROM HEAVEN. THEY MUST'VE
WANTED SOME PEACE
QUIET."

By Dr. George Purvis,
VP-Nutrition Sciences
Gerber Products Company
Q. My baby doesn't seem satisfied with the amount of formula I'm giving her. Shall I increase the amount?
A. During the first year, babies may need increasing amounts of nutrients and calories for energy to fuel
their tremendous growth.

Although formula provides adequate nutrition in the early months of life, soon a baby may need additional nutrients and calories from other sources.
The American Academy
of Pediatrics recommends that infants consume no more than one quart of formula per day. If your baby regularly consumes a quart
or more of formula per day,
and still shows signs of hunger, it could be time to introduce baby foods to fulfill increased caloric needs.

Also, the varieties of baby foods available provide taste, texture and visual interest for the young infant.
Iron-fortified infant cereals usually are the first baby foods introduced. They mix well with mother's milk or formula, and provide vitamins, protein and calories to satisfy baby's hunger. Cereals may also be prepared with strained fruit juices.

The vitamin C in the fruit juice helps the baby's body absorb the iron in the cereal.
