Serving McLean and the Area Since 1903

VOLUME 77 McLEAN, GRAY COUNTY, TEXAS THURSDAY, APRIL 3, 1980 PRICE 20¢ NUMBER 14

I'm sure the readers of the Canyon Sunday News got a big surprise Sunday when they read their paper. Big headlines on the first page say "Monster Ravages City, College!", and the front page features a picture of a huge lizard-like creature perched atop a building at West Texas State University. I began to realize that the staff of the Canyon paper was having some fun with an April Fool joke when I looked at the other picture on the front page which shows a Dracula-type monster, and the cutline identifies the monster as Angry Grand Jury which was caged after attacking two county commissioners.

The page is a gem of satire with other headlines like "Electric Company Asks New Rate Hike And Another, And Another And..." "It's SINS-US Day". One story even details the fact that Canyon city commissioners voted to secede from Randall County (and who could blame them if they did?).

In very small type at the bottom of the page, the staff acknowledges that the page is an April Fool joke.

We thought about trying a similar fun page, but I remember the experience of Lowell Carlson when he was the editor of the Clarendon Press. Carlson decided to do an April Fool story, and wrote about a monster, similar to the Loch Ness Monster in Scotland. Carlson had a mock picture of the creature, and wrote that the monster had been sighted at Greenbelt Lake near Clarendon.

Carlson thought he had made it clear that the story was all in fun, but he began getting excited calls from Clarendon residents who were terrified about the creature in the lake, and were ready to get out a search party to track down the monster and kill him.

Carlson swore to never again try an April Fool joke in the paper.

At the McLean News we have enough naive people on the staff that we are usually the ones who fall for the April Fool jokes, so we wouldn't dare try to perpetrate one on our readers.

Last week, I served as the pronouncer of the spelling words at the UIL contest in Canyon, and got quite an education. Spelling has never been my strong suit, but I thought I was fairly good at pronouncing words! However, the list for the contest contained 120 words which were real tongue twisters. How those kids ever learned to spell the words is beyond me.

It is part of the pronouncers job to give definitions for each word if a contestant requests it. I received the list about an hour before the contest, and frankly began looking up words, and sure enough there was one little girl who asked for the definition of almost every word...I think just to see if I knew them. But I had done my homework, and she only stumped me on two words: "simony" and "escarpment".

I enjoyed being around the youngsters again, and seeing some old friends from the teaching profession. You will be glad to know that the McLean See DISTAFF, Page 2

Melton, Rhine Qualify For Regional

McLean High School will send two literary contestants to University Interscholastic League regional competition in Levelland later this month, following the district contest in Amarillo last week.

Brad Melton won first in number sense to qualify for regional, and Joy Rhine won third in editorials to secure her regional berth.

Other contestants in the event were Jody Durham who placed sixth in spelling, David Day was fourth in editorials,

Donley County Voters Can Vote At McClellan Home

Voters of Donley County precinct #4 who ballot on the issue of whether or not to have a Donley County road supervisor will vote for their choice April 5 from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. in the Skillet Whitefish box in the home of Bernard McClellan. If it is more convenient to vote at the old courthouse in Clarendon, it is legal in this county-wide issue.

The proposal is whether to continue to let each precinct commissioner have control over the blading and maintenance of precinct roads or to hire a road supervisor (in addition to the commissioners) at a salary of from $12,000 to $20,000 per year and give this person complete control over all county road maintenance.

City Office To Close For Easter Holiday

The City office of McLean will be closed Friday for the Easter holidays, according to Stella Lee, city secretary. The office will reopen for business Monday morning.

Tennis Teams Finish Season

The boys and girls tennis teams at McLean High School have finished their pre-district season with a 4-1-1 record, according to Coach Jerry Cook. The girls will compete in district action April 8 and 9, and the boys will see district play April 14 and April 16.

McLean Hit By Spring Snow

Mother Nature pulled her April Fool's Day joke a few days early for McLean residents when she dumped two inches of snow on the area Saturday morning. After temperatures in the seventies earlier in the week, the weather suddenly changed and McLean residents found a blanket of snow on the ground March 29.

On Thursday, McLean received 1.40 inches of rain, the first significant moisture in several weeks. Thursday's rain was followed by 30 inches of moisture on Friday, with the snow coming Saturday.

The freak snow storm forced cancellation of the Groom Track Meet in which McLean High School athletes had planned to participate Saturday.

Temperatures climbed to the high fifties Sunday, but Monday brought high winds ranging from 40 to 60 miles per hour.

No damage was reported in the McLean area from the winds.

Four Minor Wrecks Occur In McLean

Four minor accidents last week kept Texas highway patrolmen busy around McLean.

At 9:25 a.m. March 22, a 1974 Mercury driven by Albert L. Kelley of Golden, Mo., pulling a camper turned left out of the center lane and was hit by a 1977 White truck driven by Stanford A. Ferguson of Newcastle, Okla. The accident occurred on Interstate 40 near the Pine Street intersection. Both vehicles were traveling east at the time of the accident.

Kelley received a citation for turning when unsafe.

At 12:01 the same day, in a replay of the first accident, Geraldine F. Shaw of Ponca City, Okla., driving a 1966 Dodge turned out of the center lane and was hit by Leslie Dian Cunningham, a former McLean resident, now of Amarillo. Miss Cunningham was driving a 1975 Oldsmobile. Both vehicles were traveling east, and the accident occurred on Interstate 40 near the Cedar Street intersection. Ms. Shaw was ticketed for turning when unsafe.

On March 26 at 7:30 p.m. on Waldron Street on the east side of the Baptist Church, Billy Dewayne Bybee driving a 1977 Chevrolet pickup was leaving the church when he backed into a parked car, owned by Cecil Reynolds of McLean.

On March 27, at 8 a.m. Collene Stewart of McLean was crossing Interstate 40 near Parsons Drug on a green light when her 1975 Chevrolet pickup was hit by a 1979 truck driven by Loren H. Johnson of Gabool, Mo. The truck driver was ticketed for failure to yield right of way. Mrs. Stewart was not injured in the wreck.

COMMUNITY PROFILE

By Carol Allison
James B. Davis is definitely a young man "doing his thing."
The Davis Ranch, northwest of McLean, is the location of Jim Davis' workshop and studio—and creating unique custom designed furniture is his thing.

The headquarters is located on a vast expanse of flat range where the "breaks" meet the "plains." A lone windmill visible from the front porch is creaking and pumping furiously in the March wind.

When asked if he felt isolated, Davis says, "The solitude is a pleasure...and the isolation is good for my artistic discipline."
Davis, who claims he's a "nature freak" and likes to be outdoors, was reared on the Ranch and enjoys the space and solitude. His faithful Irish Setter seems to agree—walking and hiking on the ranch with his dog is another hobby Davis enjoys.

"It's comforting out here...I can sit on my front porch and see for 30 miles in any direction."
Davis describes himself as an "off-and-on rancher and an off-and-on furniture maker" until 1975 when he got his first "real challenge piece."
"My customer was interested in something big...I realized it was my opportunity," said Davis.
After four months of tedious labor, he completed his first large piece—a Queen Anne dining room set—eight chairs, table and sideboard in walnut wood.
His unique craftsmanship and precision construction has made Davis well-known in this area for excellence.
Texas Monthly cited Davis as a master craftsman in the "creation of antique reproduction furniture."
His interest in woodworking started as a hobby and he attended a basic cabinet-making course at Amarillo College.
"I couldn't afford antiques, which I really liked. Store-bought furniture was out of my financial range...so it occurred to me that I could build my own furniture with time and effort."
A Sears tool sale started Davis on his way—"I picked up a few things and started tinkering."
The class normally met only once a week in Amarillo but Davis' enthusiasm for learning found him "working shop" all day every day for half a semester. His apparent interest and hard work paid off.
"I had some knowledge of hand tools but I learned all about power tools in this course—which is paramount in my business," said Davis.
Davis established his own workshop and studio on the ranch and accomplished his dream—"care and craftsmanship of the Old World with the precision of today's construction and finishing materials."
He is currently designing a grandfather clock and his penciled designs are scattered over his work table. His ranch cottage houses a large library which Davis claims has been his "teacher".
"All my training has been from my library. I've never taken any classes in woodworking. I take practically every publication that is printed..."

He is a man of wide and varied interest and points out, "I'm a nut for picking up something to read...I have six books going at one time."
He is a "self-taught" craftsman but admits that being artistic is somewhat different than being creative. He specializes in the Chippendale design and adds, "I think being artistic is instinctual...but an original design, a particular style that develops, takes years of work and study."
Davis spent a year traveling in Europe, visiting museums and studying the style of the Old World masters.
"In fact, my work reflects more of a European design, with a French influence."
"The cabriole curve is my favorite form of balancing a piece," said Davis.
A cabriole is a shaped or curved leg which is used a great deal on chairs and cabinets.
"Everything I have is involved in an S curve...it happens to be the stimulus of my art form."
Davis gets most of his wood from Kansas. Some wood he cuts himself—but a small sawmill west of Topeka furnishes most of his wood for carving.
"Walnut seems to be what I do most of my work in—you need large planks of wood for table and chair legs."
"All the large pieces are custom cut and sized to perfection, taking advantage of the graining so as to create maximum stability in the wood," explains Davis.
As the wood dries and matures, special care is taken to avoid warpage, shrinkage, and cracks. Davis stores his own wood planks in his workshop. The wood must cure and dry slowly.
"A year of drying per inch of wood," states Davis. "I have three and four inch slabs now that won't be ready for four years."
"The darker wood such as walnut is more regal. You think of lighter woods as being more contemporary and the darker woods as more traditional," Davis pointed out.
He works in pure natural oil finishes and hand-rubbed wax to "highlight the natural walnut."
"It makes for an absolutely gorgeous combination. The oil finish of my work lends to a superior end product."

All of Davis' pieces are signed, numbered, and dated. The JBD brand ("a carryover heritage of my cowboy days") is placed on each piece.
His future plans are as confident and energetic as the man himself.
"I just feel now that I'm beginning to get the grasp of the whole thing. I feel confident in what I'm doing."

"Eventually I want to build a house, shop, and studio combination," said Davis.
This major project he plans to design and build himself adding, "I need a place to show my furniture. It will be something I can live in but that I can also use for show."

Davis has accumulated an impressive portfolio and plans photo exhibits of his work nationwide.
His individuality and sensi-
