VOLUME 77 McLEAN, GRAY COUNTY, TEXAS THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1980 PRICE 25¢ NUMBER 37

Some of you dear readers are convinced that I am a yellow-dog Democrat, even though I have protested that while I am a registered Democrat, I always vote for the man, not the party. However, my favorite historical political figures was the great Adlai E. Stevenson. If I had been old enough, I certainly would have voted for him for President because he was, without a doubt the most literate, humorous, intelligent man to run for President in recent memory.

One of my favorite quotations from Stevenson, who uttered some real gems, is this one from the 1952 Presidential campaign: "I will make a bargain with the Republicans; if they will stop telling lies about the Democrats, we will stop telling the truth about them!"

When Stevenson left the political scene, it was the end of great orators. No, I don't even believe that JFK was as good a speaker as Stevenson. And since Nixon's day, we have all become so cynical that it is difficult to listen to any of them speak...and believe what they say.

In the interests of fair-play, I will tell you two stories that I heard this week about our Presidential contenders.

On the Tonight Show the other night, Johnny Carson was introducing Tom Bradley, the mayor of Los Angeles, and said that Bradley had the second hardest job in the United States. The most difficult job in the whole country, Carson said, belonged to the man who had to write Reagan's apologies every day!

And then one of my anti-Carter friends, Bob Holwick, couldn't wait to tell me this joke about Carter.

It seems that Jimmy Carter died and went to the Democrat's heaven and was greeted on his arrival by the great Harry S. Truman. Truman asked Carter for a report on his administration.

Carter said "Well, Harry, you know things were tough when I was in office. I had promised that I would never lie to the American people, so I had to tell the truth about my brother Billie takin' money from a terrorist group. We didn't come to the rescue of the Shah of Iran, and his government was overthrown and they took 50 of our people hostage, and Russia invaded Afghanistan, and we put a 60 percent tax on American oil producers and bought most of our oil from the Arabs and..."

The horrified Truman held up his hand and said "That's enough, don't tell me anymore...next thing you know, you'll tell me you gave away the Panama Canal!"

School Board Hires Aide, Raises Auxiliary Salaries

The McLean School Board met Monday night in the school business office for its regular monthly meeting and hired a teacher's aide, increased auxiliary personnel's salary, and approved bids.

Hired as an aide for the first grade was Opal Altman. Mrs. Altman has been an aide in the Amarillo schools for six years. The board approved third-grade teacher Tom Adamson to drive one of the bus routes.

The board approved an across the board raise of 65 cents per hour for auxiliary personnel, which includes cooks and custodians. Earl Riley, bus foreman and custodian, received a $1 per hour raise. The pay for the various positions now ranges from $3.75 per hour to $4.50 per hour. The board also approved a $100 per month raise for bus drivers, bringing their wages to $250 per month, and raised substitute pay from $20 per day to $25 per day.

Two companies presented bids to replace the double steel doors on the gymnasium. Memphis Paint and Supply submitted a bid for $3721, and Hambricht Building Supply submitted a bid for $3564. The board accepted the bid from Hambricht.

The board also approved a new grading and exemption policy for the McLean schools.

The new policy eliminates exemptions for semester tests, but provides a type of exemption for six weeks tests. The policy says: "All students will be required to be present and to take each of the six weeks test this year. The six weeks tests can not lower your grade, provided the test is taken in good faith and if the following grades and attendance is attained:

- a. Have at least an average of 75 and no absences.
 - b. Have at least an average of 85 and one absence.
 - c. Have at least an average of 95 and two absences.
- All students will take the semester tests, and the grade earned will determine your final grade. All students will remain at school for the entire time school is in session."

Under the policy, grading will be based on the following: "SIX WEEKS GRADE: Add all grades up, divide by number of grades no matter how many. There should be a minimum of two test grades and a minimum of eight daily grades."

Attending the meeting were board members Tony Smitherman, Jim Allison, Darryl Herndon, J.C. McAnear, and June Suggs; superintendent Carl Dwyer, business manager Shirley Johnson, principals Ron Cummings and Dorman Thomas.

McLean May Have A Railroad Again

The railroad track through McLean may be busy again if negotiations between the Fort Worth and Denver railroad and the Ashland Chemical plant east of Shamrock are successful.

The Panhandle Regional Planning Commission announced last week plans were close to being finalized for the operation of 160 miles of track of the defunct Rock Island Railroad.

The PRPC has joined the Llan-Estacado Water District in negotiating for the purchase of the track from the Rock Island bankruptcy trustee in Chicago.

According to the PRPC, the commission and water district are attempting to either "rail-bank" or purchase outright the one-time Rock Island track extending from the Texas-New Mexico border to Bushland and from Amarillo eastward to Texola.

Gray County Commissioner Ted Simmons, a member of the board of directors of the PRPC, has been working for a replacement for the Rock Island through McLean for several months.

"The Burlington Northern (the parent company of the FW & D) is an excellent company and we're very pleased with their interest in the section of track through McLean," Simmons said. "If the final plans are as good as they look now, McLean may have better rail service than we had before, and there might be a possibility of several families moving here," Simmons said.

The PRPC is attempting to purchase the remaining 105 miles of track extending from Amarillo eastward. Part of that purchase-a section running from Groom to just east of Shamrock-is contingent on the FW&D's ability to work out a shipping agreement with the Ashland Chemical plant.

Vicki Jacobs, economic development administrator for the PRPC, said FW&D will operate the lines on a lease-agreement basis, which is still being worked out among the railroad, the water district and the PRPC.

Before the rail lines can become a viable rail operation again, the trustee and the would-be purchasers must come to terms on a sale price for the lines and funding must be obtained.

Several applications aimed at securing funding have been forwarded to the Economic Development Administration and the Federal Railroad Administration, Simmons told The McLean News.

He said that the deal could still "fall through" but that he was optimistic that something could be worked out.

Simmons may accompany several members of the PRPC staff to Chicago to work out an agreement with the RI trustee on the purchase price for the track.

B.R. Barfield, who had hopes of establishing the "I Think I Can" railroad on this area of track earlier this year, had to scrap his plans when the trustee in Chicago would not name a price for the line.

Shamrock had a 4-5-1 record last season. The Irish have 10 starters returning on their squad.

The Shamrock coaches are head coach Terry Smith, and assistant coaches Randy Pool, Barry Miller, John Bond, and Ed Richardson.

OPINIONS

What Is 'Basic' In Education?

Every so often a catch phrase comes along and enchants the American people, and to be against whatever the current craze is, is considered terribly un-American, un-Christian, sometimes even unintelligent.

One of those over-worked phrases that many are afraid to challenge is the new move of "back to basics" in education.

Just exactly what do the proponents of "back to basics" in education mean? Do they mean we should go back to the wood-heated one-room school, where students used slates? Or do they mean that only readin', writin', and 'rithmetic should be taught?

Which "basic" is it that these people want to go back to? I was involved with education, either as a student or as a teacher, from 1946 until 1976, and I don't remember a time when someone, somewhere was not urging the American public to "get back to the basics."

If "back to basics" means:

- learning only by teacher lecture, memorization, and rote
- that learning only takes place when students are sitting straight in their seats with their hands folded neatly and a blank look on their quiet faces
- that teachers become totally authoritarian, perhaps using the good ol' hickory stick on the youngsters'
- that vocational courses, languages, computer science, health, drug education are taken out of the curriculum
- that children are expected to be subservient little robots who mouth answers to questions they don't understand...

Then I'm agin' it!

The schools in Texas, at least in this area, have never wandered too far away from what I consider a good, basic education. A strong emphasis is put on learning to read well, on learning concepts and facts in mathematics, on spelling, or basic science.

It is other parts of the country that have been plagued with such wild curriculum enrichment courses that the children have gotten through school as functional illiterates.

So before you jump on the phrase "back to basics in education," be sure you know exactly what that means.

question of the MX missile system being installed in the Texas Panhandle is one that we should all be concerned about.

According to the PRPC release, here are some frightening facts:

If the U.S. Air Force decided to put its controversial missile in the Texas Panhandle-Eastern New Mexico border area, it will have the most dramatic impact of any government project in the area or the nation's history.

The $33 billion price tag on the project means little until the local impact is taken into account. Air Force officials say about $12 billion will be spent in the target area for construction costs. It is difficult to gauge the impact of that money, but here is one way of looking at it:

The development cost which will include preparing the 6,000 miles of roadbed and launch sites equipping the missile carriers, putting the deadly projectiles in place, will be equal to 20 percent of the entire cost of World War II to the allied forces.

In more current terms, it would mean an expenditure of approximately $2.414 for each person in the United States. In that perspective, it will be the most costly single U.S. government construction program ever attempted.

To get the project ready by the target date of 1989, the contractors will have to construct and have access to 6,000 miles of roadbed, of which at least 1700 miles of new asphalt will have to be constructed.

They will need a total of 25 square miles for the administrative complex and associated missile shelters. That real estate will be occupied by 12,000 to 13,000 airmen who will comprise the complex's permanent party.

During construction, over 16,000 workers will be involved. Their paychecks, which comprise a large share of total project expenditure, will turn over three times before leaving the area.

You must judge a man's greatness by how much he will be missed.

WISE-UP, TIGHTEN-UP HOME--AND SAVE ENERGY:

One of the easiest energy-saving measures a homeowner can take is the installation of weatherstripping and the application of caulking--to tighten up the house. At least that's what the experts say. Install weatherstripping and apply caulking to prevent heat loss in the winter and heat infiltration during summer months.

First, find the "trouble spots" in your home where air moves in and out--wasting as much as 37 percent of your heating or cooling money. Usually these unwanted openings are found around doors and windows, electrical and plumbing connections, and where different materials are joined together.

Weatherstripping and sealing materials can be applied easily and economically by the homeowner. Only a few common tools are required. For the job, you'll need a hammer, scissors, a screwdriver, caulking gun, steel measuring tape, weatherstripping and sealing material.

Weatherstripping is available by the foot--or in handy kits complete with the seal and suitable fasteners for a single door or window. Weather seals may be made of a variety of materials.

Band Boosters Meet To Plan Year's Activities

By Davie Gipson

Mrs. Francis Adamson, band director, called a meeting of band parents Sept. 2 in the band hall to meet parents of band students. Money-making projects were discussed as well as obligations to our bands. New officers for Band Boosters were tentatively nominated to be voted on at the first meeting of Band Booster Sept. 15. Nominated were Paula Wilson for president, Davie Gipson for vice-president, and Anita Hook for secretary-treasurer.

By-laws will be updated to include benefits for fifth grade and junior high bands as well as jackets bought for 4-year band students, award banquets and any trips within reason.

The financial statement is open at all times to anyone interested. We begin this year with a balance of $900 after paying more than $1800 dollars in debts incurred in the 1978-79 school year.

We wish to express our appreciation and thanks to last year's hard-working officers and members that made this possible.

Next meeting will be Sept. 15 at 4:30 in the band hall. All parents of band children are urged to come. If everyone contributes a little effort the band will benefit a lot. Membership fees are $1 per person. Come join in Sept. 15.

Gone Fishin

by Jeanette Fish

We don't need Women's Liberation. This whole problem can be solved if every woman has eight husbands.

Husband Number One would go out and make the living, come home at night, eat, watch TV and go to bed. He works all day, brings home his paycheck and is to be left alone.

Number Two, the chauffeur, is responsible for taking kids to school, church, the doctor, optometrist and to visit grandma. Included in his duties is being cussed out by the dentist on account of the kids eating candy. He can take it. After all, he has a nice job-driving, checking oil, airing up tires, maybe occasionally having somebody throw up down his neck on the way to somewhere and settling a hundred or so back seat squabbles a week. He should wear a black uniform marked Chauffeur. He will deliver Number One to his daily job and pick him up at night. (Be on time)

Three is your Baby Sitter. His job starts after school, basketball practice and Three's Company. The man chosen for this job should have a written and oral interview. During the oral session you should scream (loud) in his ear three times. If he looks you straight in the eye--HIRE HIM--he is probably a retired Marine Drill Instructor. He will need four-10 milligram Valium daily--to be picked up at the drugstore by the chauffeur.

Househusband (number four) --Hours 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. seven days a week--no vacation--will possibly get some rest when relatives come to visit in the summertime. They may help him cook and clean. They may not. He is not to have the Drill Instructor's Valium. It will make him lethargic. This man needs a high energy level.

Number Five, the Bookkeeper, sets up the budget, pays bills and doles out grocery money to Househusband. It is o.k. for him to gripe, complain and wall his eyes around with a "This is the last fresh rose off little Herman's grave" look. He will be depressed most of the time. Too bad. Do not hire anyone who has ever worked on a Federal budget. You can run your household in the red without government help.

Movie man (Number Six) does nothing except take "Wife" to movies. He is to like those movies, laugh loudly, weep at the appropriate intervals and upon leaving the theater will clap her on the back with "Gosh honey, that was one darn good movie." The candidate for this job must be a man who thinks the Houston Oilers is a well-servicing company, lest he slip into irreversible coma after five minutes at the movies.

Laundry man--Lucky Seven--is charged with gathering, sorting, removing stains, washing, drying, folding and putting away clothes. He is to call the repair man to get gym socks out the pump. He is allowed to rant and rave at breakfast, lunch, supper and prayertime and may burst into the bathroom unannounced to see how many towels per body are being used. He may go to the movies with Number Six and Wife provided all the socks are matched up before he leaves home and if it is o.k. with the bookkeeper. He and the Chauffeur may substitute for each other in case of illness or other emergencies. Do not bother other Husbands for Crisis Situations. They do not have free time.

Last is the "I never could stand your Uncle Harry" husband--for wife to have big dirty fights with. This is to be out of the earshot of Househusband and Bookkeeper. They are nervous. Movie man may participate in B.D. fights. He knows all the good lines--"YOU'RE ROTTEN! ROTTEN TO THE CORE!" (Bette Davis) and "Get out of town by midnight. You killed my brother!" (John Wayne)--For this one, hire a fellow who taught high school English for ten years. This man needs to scream and holler. If unavailable--try to get a circus fire eater.

Everybody in the household is to take his own phone calls. Most of them will be for the Bookkeeper and Chauffeur.

Hydrogen peroxide can be used to restore original colors to paintings that have darkened through the conversion of white lead used in paints to lead sulfide.

COWBOY DRIVE IN

Notes From Your County Agricultural Agent

by Joe Van Zandt

WOODWARD FIELD DAY PLANNED:

Regional ranchers, farmers and agri-businessmen, in conjunction with USDA scientists at the Southern Plains Range Research Station, Woodward, Oklahoma have scheduled a Field Day on September 18.

The field day will start with registration between 9-10 a.m. Between 10 a.m. and 12 noon, participants will review plant materials research at the Field Station in Woodward and see an array of useful grasses called the Old World Bluestems. These grasses have produced over 200 pounds of beef to the acre in dryland conditions as compared to 50 pounds on native range.

Visitors will be able to view and discuss Eastern gamagrass which has produced as much as 10 tons dry matter per acre under irrigation at the Woodward research station. This tall grass has great future potential for grazing as well as a green chop forage when scientists develop planting and grazing management techniques, says Mr. Chet Dewald, Research Agronomist for the research station.

Dr. William Berg, Soil Scientist, will outline the potential usefulness of legumes in improved grass stands "natural nitrogen fertilization" of productive new forage species.

Also on the morning program, Dr. Patrick Coyne, Plant Physiologist, will discuss and demonstrate new efforts in the selection of plant materials for the semi-arid regions. He will describe ways to determine drought tolerance, winter hardiness and how much qualities contribute to productivity and persistence of the improved Old World bluestems and Eastern gamagrass plant materials.

After a noon barbeque, sponsored and served by area and regional businessmen and ranchers, the Field Day will continue with a tour of the Southern Plains Experimental Range near Fort Supply.

Participants will see pastures of Old World Bluestems and hear a discussion of beef production. These pastures of Plains, Caucasian, H. L. and LL Old World Bluestems have been grazed for at least three years, and beef production on them as approached or exceeded 200 pounds per acre. This is four times more than well-managed native range.

The visitors will also see a new herd of Angus-Hereford and Brahman-Hereford and females. These cattle are a part of a national study on the relationship of beef cow type to regional climate, vegetation and management practices. Phillip Sims, Research Leader at the Southern Plains Range Research Station will report on results of past research with Angus-Hereford cows and Brangus bulls. During the previous seven years, calves have been weaned averaging 710 pounds on a native-complementary annual forage program. Under this system--fall calving and weaning at 10 months with wheat and rye winter pasture and sudan or pearl millet summer pasture to complement native range--an extra 250-300 pounds of weaned calf is produced per cow-calf unit with only $20-30 of additional operating costs.

Other topics to be discussed include sagebrush control, management and use of weeping lovegrass, winter supplementation programs, and the use of ruminants, and grazing systems.

During the afternoon, visitors will have an opportunity to tour the historic tree and shrub plantings on the Woodward Station. The Field Station was the hub of windbreak and ornamental plantings in the 19230's and 1940's. Dr. Paul Mitchell, Oklahoma State University horticulturalist, will direct this tour.

This program offers some very interesting information that cattlemen in our area should find beneficial. I plan to attend and would be glad to hear from anyone else desiring a ride to the Field Day at

DROUGHT COULD CAUSE HERBICIDE RESIDUE

Herbicide residues in fields treated with Milogard, atrazine, Treflan, or Tolban could be unusually high this fall. Producers who plan to sow wheat on fields that were treated with these herbicides last spring should be made aware of potential problems.

Soil microorganisms which are responsible for herbicide degradation, are much less active during prolonged dry periods. The type summer we have experienced almost assures that microbial degradation has been minimal; therefore, herbicide residues will be higher than normal. Adequate precautions are spelled out on herbicide labels, but after a few years of "getting away with" planting wheat following sorghum that was treated with Milogard, producers sometimes neglect the label.

Because the amount of herbicide that will carry over depends upon rate, soil type, rainfall, temperature, and number of tillage operations, it is difficult to predict if the residue will be high enough to damage small grains.

A simple bioassay can be conducted by the producer to give an indication if it is safe to plant small grains following sorghum, soybeans, or cotton.

1) Collect representative soil samples from several locations in the field. Sample 3-inches deep.
 2) Place samples in a clean bucket and mix thoroughly.
 3) Collect soil in the same type that did not receive the herbicide (fence row or adjacent field.)
 4) Place the two lots of soil in 4 or 5 suitable containers (cottage cheese containers, milk cartons, plastic cups). Label each container either treated or untreated.
 5) After 7 to 10 days, observe and compare the plants in the two lots of soil. If plants in the soil from the treated field are stunted or yellow compared to the untreated containers, it would be best to plant small grains on other fields and defer the treated field to a spring planted crop. If plants from both lots of soil appear normal, it should be safe to plant small grains.

If dry conditions continue throughout the fall, a similar bioassay should be conducted next spring before planting sorghum on fields that were treated with Treflan or Tolban last spring, especially if more than the normally recommended rate was applied. Of course, grain sorghum would be used as the test crop.

Brochure tells what to do during a hurricane

COLLEGE STATION — During an approaching hurricane, people should be told specifically what to do, where to go and how much time it will take to evacuate, a Texas A&M University study concludes.

Project director Dr. Carlton Ruch and psychologist Dr. Larry Christensen found that persons should also be told about the difference in hurricane intensity.

A Force One storm with winds less than 95 mph may only damage trees or small boats and require limited evacuation while any hurricane over Force Three (111 to 130 mph winds) could result in mass evacuation and widespread destruction.

The pair's findings are summarized in a brochure now being distributed by the Sea Grant office here to news media, Civil Defense offices and weather forecasters along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

LIBRARY NOTES

THE TEXAS GULF COAST
Interpretations by nine artists

"The Texas Gulf Coast" is the fourth in a series of "The Joe and Betty Moore Art Series" which consists of "Old Ranches of the Texas Plains," "Impressions of the Texas Panhandle," "Buch Schiwetz Memories," and "The Texas Gulf Coast," which has just now become available at Lovett Memorial Library.

This most recent addition to the series contains paintings by Al Barnes, Herb Booth, John P. Cowan, Michael Frary, John Guerin, Harold Phenix, E.M. "Buck" Schiwetz, Everett Spruce, and Dan Wingren, and is composed of 47 color plates revealing the Texas coast as interpreted by these artists.

All who have seen the Texas coast will delight in the scenes of beaches, marshes, bays and estuaries and recognize its birds, plant life, fish and game, as well as the fishermen, boats, and changing weather scenes represented in these paintings.

The entire series mentioned earlier is available at Lovett Memorial Library, and Texans and interested others are sure to enjoy each of the volumes, particularly "Old Ranches of the Texas Plains," and "Impressions of the Texas Panhandle."

In The Kitchen

by Linda Haynes

A few peach trees in the area escaped our terrible summer drought and have produced some delicious, sweet peaches. If you are lucky enough to have some peaches, or want to buy inexpensive fruit, you might want to try this recipe from Wichita Falls.

PEACH DUMPLINGS

- 2 to 2 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
- 2 tsp. baking powder
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/2 c. shortening
- 1/2 c. milk
- 4 medium peaches, peeled and halved
- sugar
- ground cinnamon

SCHOOL MENU

- THURSDAY, Sept. 11
Burritos, salad, Pinto beans, sopillas with honey
- FRIDAY, Sept. 12
Chicken fried steak, mashed potatoes, salad, gravy, bread
- MONDAY, Sept. 15
Hamburgers with cheese, french fries, lettuce, tomatoes, pickles, onions, dessert
- TUESDAY, Sept. 16
Tacos, ranch style beans, tossed salad, chocolate cookies
- WEDNESDAY, Sept. 17
Weiners with cheese, mashed potatoes, fried okra, hot rolls with butter, jelly
- THURSDAY, Sept. 18
Pinto beans, french fries, Mexican corn bread, spinach, onions, ice cream

- 1/2 c. sugar
- 1 1/2 c. water
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1/4 tsp. ground cinnamon
- dash of ground nutmeg
- whipping cream

Combine flour, baking powder, and salt; cut in shortening with pastry blender until mixture resembles coarse meal. Gradually add milk, stirring to make a soft dough. Roll dough into a 14-inch square on a lightly floured surface; then cut dough into four 7 inch squares.

Place 2 peach halves on each square. Sprinkle each with 2 tsp. sugar and 1/8 tsp. cinnamon. Moisten edges of each dumpling with water; bring corners to center, pinching edges to seal.

Place dumplings 1 inch apart in a lightly greased shallow baking pan.

Combine remaining ingredients except whipping cream in a medium sauce pan; place over low heat, stirring until butter melts and sugar dissolves. Pour syrup over dumplings. Bake at 425 degrees for 40 to 45 minutes or until golden brown. Serve with cream.

Loose Marbles
by Lisa Patman

The other day I was walking back to the news office from a trip to the drugstore. I sauntered along, thinking how I had begun to mature gracefully, how with each passing year I became more sophisticated and worldly. Then I tripped on a puff of diesel smoke. That got me to thinking of inner images and how wrong they can be, for not only am I not aging with grace, I haven't even reached the chew gum and walk at the same time stage.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if we could look into the mirror and see exactly what we thought we were going to see. For example, when I get all fixed up--new pair of pantyhose, clean underwear, maybe even earrings, I just know that I'm going to see reflected in the mirror an image of a gorgeous woman. Imagine my surprise when all I see is a lady with gray stains on her third chin.

Or about the time I became used to my weight and decide that maybe I don't look as big as I thought, some fool with a camera catches my backside in living color and has it blown up to poster size and it still is smaller than the original.

Then there are those times when I am talking to a group of people and they begin laughing uproariously at everything I say. I assume it's because they are appreciative of my tremendous wit, when all along it's been that I have a piece of spinach caught in my front teeth.

There is a bright side to all of this. You see, when I begin thinking that I'm full of natural beauty and charm, that I have a flat stomach and firm thighs, that I am unusually perceptive and sensitive, it drives me crazy to look in the mirror and see a fat lady with gas. And therein lies the silver lining around a large and rather flabby cloud--I have an excuse for being crazy.

I pity all the decent-looking women out there who are unable to look in their mirrors every morning and instantly come up with a reason for being wacky. Think of the poor darts drifting gracefully from beauty shop to exercise class, from art show to Broadway play, from the beaches of Hawaii to the firesides of ski resorts in Colorado. Poor, pitiful things, wandering around in their tiny bikinis and size 5 ski pants, plagued with flawless skin and hair with natural body. How they must worry about their sanity. All over the world women of this type are crying "Why was I cursed with this beauty. Why couldn't I have been born ugly and fat so I could excuse my insanity? Woe is me."

While I certainly pity these creatures, they are going to have to find their own excuses for craziness. After all, I've spent years developing this special flabby muscle tone, this network of wrinkles, and these cells of cellulite. I've worked hard to develop this rationalization for my idiosyncrasy. So eat your heart out Miss America, you just don't have what it takes.
