

Holiday Death Toll In Nation Now Up To 94

By The Associated Press
The Memorial Day holiday death toll lagged behind the National Safety Council predicted traffic toll of 240 Saturday, despite clogged highways and ideal motoring conditions.

DEATH TOLL IN TEXAS AT SIX

By The Associated Press
Texas Memorial Day holiday death toll crept to nine Saturday night, but only two deaths could be attributed to traffic.

Two persons committed suicide, two died in homicides and three persons were drowned.

the 54-hour holiday, from 6 p.m. (local time), Friday to Sunday midnight.

Ned H. Dearborn, president of the council, said the relatively low rate "can be reduced still further from the previous estimate if drivers remain careful on their home-ward trips."

He invited the public to "make a liar out of the safety council estimate by taking it easy on the way home at the tail end of the holiday. Motorists should leave early and drive carefully."

Six young Merchant Marine cadets were killed near South China, Me., Friday night when their car rounded a curve and slammed head-on against a 10-ton power shovel.

The highest overall Memorial Day toll was the 211 deaths recorded in 1950, including 347 traffic deaths.

Reviewing The Big Spring Week With Joe Pickle

The calendar may not say so, but Summer actually is here. Temperatures not only proclaimed this Saturday for the season, and schools are out. The Howard County Junior College graduation ceremony Monday marks the conclusion of formalities for the students.

Folks hereabouts were doing rather handsomely in aiding the tornado victims at San Angelo and Waco, with the local fund passing $3,500. A much sadder record was written this past week by the Bloodmobile, which received only 188 pints against a quota of 300. There'll come another time for us to make up for our failure.

Another good piece of humanitarian work is being carried on by the IOOF Mullen Lodge, which is helping defray expenses incurred by the long illness of little Lou Sullivan. She was badly burned some time ago, and her battle for health has been a desperate, but courageous one. Her father, C. J. Sullivan, has given her seven pints of blood, while carrying on his work. Local small fry (and a good sprinkling of adults, too) turned out gleefully Saturday afternoon when the swimming pool in City Park was opened for the season. Soaring temperatures and a Memorial Day holiday prompted city officials to open the pool a day earlier than usual, and it was a popular decision.

Queen's Social Whirl Ends As She Prepares For Coronation

By RELMAN MORIN
LONDON, May 30 (AP)—A night of joyous dancing behind her, young Queen Elizabeth II went into seclusion at Buckingham Palace today and prepared herself with rest and study for the solemn glory of the rites of coronation.

She will receive St. Edward's jeweled crown and the other symbols of sovereignty in Westminster Abbey Tuesday at the climax of centuries-old pageantry that is drawing hundreds of visitors to London hourly to swell the millions already on hand.

Until then, no engagements that would take her outside the palace have been announced. But a garden party to salute the memory of another English Queen, Elizabeth I, will be given tomorrow on the site of a vanished home in the country and she may attend.

The party will be given by the Marquess of Salisbury at Hatfield House, in Hertfordshire 30 miles from London, where the other Elizabeth's home once stood. Members of the royal family and 300 other guests will be present.

It was at another historic site, the old Hampton Court Palace where King Henry VIII held his revels 400 years ago, that Elizabeth danced late at a pre-coronation ball last night. The ball was given by the Brigade of Guards. Radiant in pink and white chiffon with a diamond tiara and necklace, Elizabeth didn't get home until 4 a.m.

Among those who will attend the Hatfield House festivities is Gen. George C. Marshall, President Eisenhower's representative at the coronation. The general and Mrs. Marshall arrived in London today.

Royalty, titled figures, heads of government and notables from many lands were coming by land, sea and air. The influx was so great that the Queen's husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, and other royal dukes, were stationed at various points in and around London to greet them.

London airport by the Duke of Gloucester. The Queen's husband assisted Crown Prince Olav, Crown Princess Martha and their daughter, Princess Astrid of Norway, from a launch that tied up at Westminster Pier on the Thames. He kissed the two princesses and shook hands with the crown prince. The pretender to the throne of Spain, Don Juan de Bourbon, Count of Barcelona, and his countess came in by boat train from Southampton. They were met by the Duke of Algeiras. It has been many years since the old city looked like this. It was not so lavishly adorned for the Festival of Britain two years ago. It was not so crowded for V-E day. It was not so impressive even for the coronation, 16 years ago, of the Queen's father, the late George VI.

Elizabeth was a child of 11 then. The motion pictures of that coronation show her in the abbey, a serious, wide-eyed little girl, watching intently. Even then, she seemed to know the day would come when she would be performing the same meaningful ritual that her father was then performing. That day is approaching now, and London is making a gay and

Mrs. Currie Funeral Is Set For Garden City

Funeral service has been set for 3 p.m. today in Garden City for Mrs. Heddy Maude Currie, 53, member of a prominent Glascock ranching family, who was killed in a traffic mishap Friday afternoon. Rites will be conducted at the First Methodist Church in Garden City, with the Rev. R. O. Browder of Abilene officiating. Burial will be in the Garden City cemetery, under direction of Nalley Funeral home of Big Spring.

Mrs. Currie was killed when two cars collided head-on at 4:15 p.m. Friday 18 miles south of Lubbock on US 87. Her husband, William James (Bill) Currie, was seriously injured. Mrs. Lonnie Williams, about 60, of Rt. 3, Taboka, a passenger in the other car, also was killed instantly, and her husband, who was driving, was hospitalized with serious injuries.

Currie suffered a broken ankle, severe cuts and bruises about the face and chest, and a possible broken back. He was transferred from Taboka to the Big Spring Hospital early Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Currie were returning from Lubbock where they had visited their daughter, Barbara Lu Currie, a senior at Texas Tech. Mr. and Mrs. Williams were driving north.

Mrs. Currie was born Feb. 7, 1900 on a ranch near Blackwell. She moved to Garden City from Blackwell in 1920 and was married to Mr. Currie on June 27, 1925. In addition to her husband and daughter, Mrs. Currie is survived by a son, Jerry Currie of Big Spring, her mother, Mrs. Barbara Zaid Sowell of Colorado City, two sisters, Mrs. R. H. Jordan of Blackwell and Ida Bell Richards of Big Spring; a granddaughter, Dana Lu Currie of Big Spring. The pallbearers will be Arlis Ratliff, Sam Ratliff, Dick Mitchell, Robert Lawson, John Lee Parker, Clyde Reynolds, all of Garden City, J. H. Crouch Jr., of Midland, and Billy Henry Haynes of Lubbock.

South Koreans Beat Off New Attacks By Enemy

Aim Of Drives Said For 'Bargain Power'

By FORREST EDWARDS

SEOUL, Sunday, May 31 (AP)—Chinese Reds threw fresh pre-dawn attacks at the Korean Central Front in cold, drizzling rain today. South Korean troops beat them off in two and one-half hours of heavy fighting.

Fight Rages

sector of the Central Front in a 6,500-man attack Wednesday night. The Republic of Korea troops quickly grabbed back all but a few of the positions. Hand-to-hand fighting has raged over the disputed outposts since.

Infantry fighting dwindled on the Western Front but Allied big guns and warplanes kept up their heavy blasting at three outposts hills captured by Reds from American and Turkish soldiers in the year's heaviest attacks Thursday and Friday nights.

Allied ground troops nevertheless braced for more of what some regard as "bargaining power" attacks in the west.

Many officers saw a close tie between the abruptly powerful Red assaults that captured Carson, Elko and Vegas outposts and the truce talks due to resume Monday at Panmunjom.

They believed the Reds might be showing military muscle in an effort to gain "face" and add bargaining power at the truce table. So there was an alert for more such savage attacks elsewhere along the 155-mile front.

The U. N. field commander, Lt. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, said there was no threat posed to the main line by Chinese Red seizure Thursday and Friday of five hill outposts in Central Korea and three in the west within 30 miles of Seoul.

Fifth Air Force fighter-bombers Saturday hit the three Western Front outposts with more than a quarter million pounds of bombs and flaming jetted gasoline.

Allied artillery and mortar pounded the smoking hilltops that Turkish soldiers held before the Chinese hit in waves Thursday night.

The Reds captured Carson early Friday morning and held it against three counter-attacks by Turk and American troops.

Close-quarter fighting, much of it at bayonet and clubbed-rifle range, raged on Elko and Vegas for more than 24 hours before the Turks and Americans withdrew just before midnight Friday.

Turkish officials estimated the Reds threw 8,000 men, in waves that advanced through artillery, mortar and tank fire, against the three outposts during the bloody fighting. They believed the Chinese had two divisions ready to pour into the battle.

Headquarters officers of the Turkish Brigade, attached to the 25th U. S. Infantry Division, estimated 3,000 Chinese were killed and wounded between the time the attacks started at 8 p.m. Thursday and the time the Allied soldiers withdrew at midnight Friday.

Allied casualties were not revealed.

Dulles To Report On Recent Tour

WASHINGTON, May 30 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles will make a radio report to the nation Monday at 8 p.m. (EST) on his precedent-setting tour of the Middle-East and South Asia.

The State Department, in announcing the broadcast today, said it would be a major foreign policy pronouncement. There was some indication that Dulles might discuss new policy developments of the Eisenhower administration toward critical Middle-East areas.

Wiley Lines Up With Ike View On UN Support

WASHINGTON, May 30 (AP)—Sen. Wiley (R-Wis) predicted today the Senate Foreign Relations Committee will reject any effort to tie up foreign aid funds of allies who may favor admission of Red China to the United Nations. The committee chairman, who struck indirectly at the "go it alone" views of Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) in a Memorial Day speech earlier, said he expects a move to be made to cut off aid to nations favoring Peiping's bid for a U. N. seat.

"I don't think the committee will approve any such proposal," he said in an interview. In his speech, Wiley lined up with President Eisenhower's opposition to Taft's proposal that the U. S. "forget the United Nations as far as the Korean War is concerned." The Wisconsin senator condemned those "who would divide us from our allies and who are blind to the consequences of the act."

Without mentioning the name of Taft, the Senate's Republican leader, Wiley called on Americans to "reaffirm our faith in the U. N.—not, of course, as a fetish—but as an instrument for working out the will of a sick world."

The U. S. isn't going to abandon its principles, he said, but neither is it "going it alone" any more than it did in World War II. "The danger to us is far greater now than it was then," he said. Wiley would make no predictions about what the Senate might do on a money bill rider approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee which would cut off all U. S. contributions to United Nations operating funds if Red China were given a seat in the Security Council.

Eisenhower was reported worried about the effect on U. S. allies of this amendment, approved with a solid vote of Appropriations Committee Republicans and opposed by only four Democrats—Senators Hill of Alabama, Ellender of Louisiana, Kilgore of West Virginia and Green of Rhode Island.

The effect of an amendment to the $2,216,000,000 foreign aid authorization bill to deny funds to nations supporting the Communists' bid for entry might be even broader.

It was pointed this would be interpreted as a direct advance threat to Britain and other nations which have indicated they would favor Peiping's appeal if a Saito factory truce is arranged in Korea.

Youth Leaders

Four men to fill key roles in the city-wide recreation program for the next two months met Saturday to talk over plans for their work. Left to right, around the table, are Grover Good, coordinator; M. R. Turner, northside director; Bill Robinson, city-wide supervisor; and John Hardy, westside director. Not present for the talks was Floyce Brown, who is to be in charge of girls' activities. The supervised recreation gets going at four centers in the morning.

Youth Program Here Starts On Monday

The co-operative youth program of Big Spring gets under way Monday with recreation directors on duty at four community centers.

And plans will be completed this week for opening a fifth phase of the program June 8 at the municipal swimming pool. Bill Robinson, supervisor, will get the city-wide recreational work going with a staff meeting at 7:30 a. m. tomorrow at the YMCA. To be present for the mapping of final plans will be John Hardy, westside director; M. R. Turner, northside playground supervisor, and Floyce Brown, who will have charge of girls activities to be centered at the YMCA.

Until another director is chosen, Robinson will be director of playground and gymnasium activities for south and east sections of the city, all to be conducted at the junior high school.

Also to be selected is a supervisor for the swimming program. Robinson said he expects to fill both positions this week. Already named swimming instructors are Nancy Smith, Pat Tidwell, Nan Farquhar, Lila Turner, Ann Richburg, Kenda McGibbon, Carolyn Whitefield, Glenn Rogers, David Reed, Betty Anderson, Tommy Joe Williamson.

All are experienced in water activities and will receive staff assignments this week.

The swimming classes will be started June 8 at the municipal swimming pool from 9 to 11 a. m. daily.

Playground and gym activities are to start at 10 a. m. Monday. Youths wishing to participate are advised to report to the center nearest their home at that hour.

Westside activities will center at the park on West Fourth Street. Salvation Army playground and other facilities will be utilized in a co-operative program which also is to benefit from services of a group of church women who already sponsor a youth program at the park.

Turner is to divide his time between North Ward and Lakeview Schools, in order that two northside programs may be conducted. All girls will congregate at the YMCA, Fifth and Scurry, for gym classes, games and other recreation.

Boys not in the areas served by the west and northside programs will meet at the junior high school gymnasium.

Every center is attempting to arrange for movies, handicraft work and other "indoors" programs for days when weather curbs outside games.

The co-operative, community-wide recreation program is made possible by a number of local organizations, including the City of Big Spring, and Big Spring School District, which underwrite expenditures amounting to $3,250. Grover Good, YMCA executive secretary, is to serve as coordinator of the program, representing a "Central Committee" set up for fund-raising and planning purposes several weeks ago.

The program is to continue through the months of June and July.

Ike May Get Watered Down Excess Profit Tax Measure

By CHARLES F. BARRETT
WASHINGTON, May 30 (AP)—President Eisenhower may have to accept a watered down version of an excess profits tax extension, if he gets one at all.

Interviews with each of the 25 committee members showed that a heavy majority of those willing to take a definite stand are still opposed to the President's plea to extend the tax, as it now stands, for six months beyond June 30.
The 15 committee Republicans lined up eight definitely against the administration proposal now, only one definitely for it, four probably for it, and two non-committal.
The 10 Democrats, by agreement, have decided to keep quiet

Coronation Rites Reflect Changes

Editor's Note: The writer, now the general executive of the Associated Press in the Southwest, was chief of bureau in London in 1937 and covered the coronation of that year.

By FRANK H. KING

The years between coronations have taken their toll of empires, including Britain's and the world now so greatly changed will be reflected in the ritual of young Elizabeth's crowning in Westminster Abbey on Tuesday.

Fifteen years ago I saw her father and mother crowned. It was necessary then, as it will be Tuesday, to remain for about eight hours in the Abbey. The lasting memory of a coronation is not the pomp and pageantry but the deep religious character of the long service.

Outside the Abbey the military spectacle, the bands, the flowing cockney crowds and country throngs, the tourists and the night revelry, all are side-shows. Inside the Abbey, there is deep and moving inspiration for the vast congregation witnessing the hallowing and consecration of a life.

Through acts of religious and historic symbolism, there are numerous high points as the service unfolds.

To churchmen the most sacred is the anointing. For this there will be special arrangements for Elizabeth.

When her father, George VI, was anointed, he stripped off his crimson mantle and outer coat. He walked from the coronation chair to the altar garbed in pure white—stockings, breeches and shirt.

For the moment he was the most simply dressed person in the Abbey.

The great and mighty congregation stands transfixed, with many heads bowed in prayer as the monarch is anointed on palms, head and breast in the form of a cross, and then, kneeling, blessed.

The anointing follows the oath, in which Britain's shorn empire is revealed as the great and solemn pledge is taken: wherein the queen promises and swears to govern the peoples ... according to their laws and customs.

The "Empire of India" has been deleted from the royal oath Elizabeth's father took in 1937.

Instead, there is reference only to "Pakistan and Ceylon."

Thus, the dropping of a phrase signifies the political changes of a continent.

"Ireland" has become "Northern Ireland" in the oath.

There are other changes.

But so hopeful are the British that a queen brings good fortune as in the past, even to another Elizabethan golden age, such changes of empire will go unnoticed on coronation day.

The singing of the old Hundredth Hymn, a coronation innovation, by the public wherever they are, joining voices with the Abbey choir, the queen and all the people, is more likely to be actively remembered than the dropping of India from her oath.

Scotland will play a new role in the presentation of the Bible to the queen.

After the Archbishop of Canterbury says: "We present you with this book, the most valuable thing this world affords," a Scottish churchman will intone:

"Here is wisdom."
"This is the royal law."
"These are the lively oracles of God."

In the actual crowning of the queen an ancient phrase is altered:

"And as thou dost this day set a crown of pure gold upon her head so enrich her royal heart with thine abundant grace."

The reference to "pure gold" has been struck out. In London the question has been asked, humorously, whether the crown has been assayed and found wanting.

The benediction has been greatly revised. The medieval wording which still was in use in 1937 has been modernized. The new wording covers social revolution of a hundred years and more.

No longer is there reference to the "nobility and gentry."

The "commonality" become "honest, peaceable and dutiful citizens." The word citizens is used for the first time.

The spirit of the prayer is the passage:

"... may wisdom and knowledge be the stability of your times and the fear of the Lord your treasure. Amen."

And the whole spirit of the coronation day is embodied in the new poem of the poet laureate, John Masefield, concluding:

"Now that we crown her as our queen,
"May love keep all the pathways green....
"May sunlight bless her days....
"May this old land revive and be "Again a star set in the sea,
"A kingdom fit for such as she
"With glories yet undreamt."

Picket Lines In Houston Strike Are Prohibited

HOUSTON, May 30 (AP)—District Judge Dan Jackson today signed a temporary restraining order prohibiting picket lines established by striking taxicab drivers.

Jackson set a hearing on a temporary injunction for Wednesday morning.

Today's order prohibits members of taxicab drivers local 348, AFL Teamsters Union, from picketing an address where three firms are operated by the owners of the Yellow and Checker Cab Company.

Approximately 48 per cent of Houston's taxicab drivers, all working for Yellow and Checker, began the strike Wednesday in dispute over weekly service charges. About 175 drivers are involved.

A special meeting of all members of the union local has been called for tomorrow afternoon. R. A. Malloy, president, declined to state the purpose of the meeting but said a statement will be issued tomorrow night.

The petition for the restraining order was filed by the company owners, Doyle McTigrit and W. C. Goss Jr.

It contended pickets had been established in front of three business establishments not involved in the dispute. The companies are the Taxi Equipment Rental Company, Communications Service Company and Associated Independent Wrecker Service, all owned by McTigrit and Goss.

World Honors Its War Dead

The dead of past wars—and those lying in fresh graves in Korea—were honored in Memorial Day ceremonies yesterday by the United States and other free world nations.

At home, President Eisenhower visited the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery and stood at attention as a bugler sounded taps.

At West Point, the young men destined for Korea or future fighting, conducted services in memory of their fallen predecessors.

New York and other cities observed the day with traditional parades and services.

A cheery note was added to the observance in Miami, Fla., by the return of Capt. Manuel J. (Little Pete) Fernandez Jr., a leading jet ace, from Korea.

As he alighted from an airplane, he was greeted tearfully by his mother but his Air Force father, Col. Manuel J. (Big Pete) Fernandez, gave him a firm handshake and declared:

"I think Little Pete should have had another chance at some more MIGs."

Although the day is traditionally American, friendly nations remembered, too.

British warships at Gibraltar lowered their flags to half staff.

Three hundred Italian orphans—some of whom lost their parents in the same fighting that cost the American lives—wore red, white and blue hair ribbons and placed flowers on the graves.

Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, NATO commander, standing bareheaded in the graveyard, called for Western unity to "see us and our world safely through this time of trouble."

At Manila, Americans and Filipinos paid homage to war dead in joint memorial rites.

High American officials spoke at ceremonies in American cemeteries in France.

Ambassador Fred L. Anderson, acting special representative in Europe, said at Fare en Tardanis that Soviet leaders were plotting destruction of Western countries with "a fifth column of vanity, greed and selfishness in our midst."

Ambassador Douglas Dillon declared at Suresnes that American dead helped to increase awareness that all possible "must be done to avoid the toll of another war."

U. S. Minister Henry S. Villard laid a wreath at Tripoli, Libya, on the graves of five American Marines who died on Tripoli's shores 149 years ago in the campaign against Barbary pirates.

Signs of past bitterness appeared to be easing as though the free world had drawn closer in the face of possible future conflict.

The American Legion at Battle Creek, Mich., placed German flags over the graves of 28 former enemies who died as prisoners of war at Ft. Custer during World War II.

The flags were obtained from the West German government.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer wrote that his government was "deeply moved by your intention to remember German soldiers' graves."

Confederate flags flew for the first time at Rock Island Arsenal in the Northern state of Illinois over graves of Southern soldiers who died there as prisoners of war.

Industrial Atomic Plants Suggested

WASHINGTON, May 30 (AP)—The first concrete ideas for building industrial atomic energy plants—some of them involving ingenious devices—were made public today by the Atomic Energy Commission.

The idea came not from the AEC but from eight nationally-known industrial firms. The companies all agreed that building and operating such plants within the next few years was technically feasible. But they were much less sure whether such plants could produce power at a cost competitive with power from conventional sources. And, no one announced any plans for actually building a plant.

In general, the economic side of the picture was couched in a lot of "ifs" and "provided that." One of them was that atomic fuel for the plants would be provided ready-to-use by the government, presumably on a sale or rental basis, and that atomic plutonium produced along with commercial power would be purchased by Uncle Sam. Capital costs of the plants themselves would be anywhere from 26 million to 118 million dollars.

Perhaps the most novel idea was one suggesting the construction of an atomic power plant on a ship or barge, then "anchoring" it offshore—presumably in Lake Erie. The aim would be to reduce costs by avoiding the need for purchasing a land area big enough to assure public safety.

Other unusual ideas called for: (1) use of uranium fuel in liquid or near-liquid form instead of the solid form now used; (2) use of molten sodium as a means of carrying heat from the heart of the atomic furnace to devices that would provide steam to operate power generators; (3) various arrangements for loading a furnace with fuel and extracting plutonium without any shutdown on the production of electrical energy.

Two of the companies mentioned six years as a time schedule for "putting a technically feasible" plant into operation.

Several said that the way they figured it, a plant could run for a year without refueling.

Despite the eight companies' caution on the economic side of the picture, the AEC evidently has reached the conclusion that this and other problems are not insurmountable.

Shortly after the AEC sent advance copies of the companies' reports to newspapers and wire services, AEC Chairman Gordon Dean told Congress "there is considerable optimism" that atomic energy for industrial nuclear power, backed by legislation to permit private industry to enter the now-restricted atomic field.

In releasing the reports by the eight companies—based on studies the firms made at their own expense, but with the cooperation of the AEC—the commission offered no comments on specific ideas proposed. The commission also said the released reports constituted only a portion of the complete reports "owing to security limitations."

But, in explaining that the studies were concerned with investigating the possibility of building "dual purpose" plants—which would produce atomic plutonium along with industrial electric power—the AEC said:

"All eight companies concur in the belief that dual purpose reactors are technically feasible and could be operated in such a fashion that the plutonium credit would reduce the cost of power."

"Conversely, all agree that no reactor could be constructed in the very near future which would be economic on the basis of power generation alone."

The eight firms made the studies in four separate groups: (1) Commonwealth Edison Company and Public Service Company of Illinois; (2) Monsanto Chemical Company and Union Electrical Company; (3) Pacific Gas & Electric Company and Bechtel Corp.; (4) Dow Chemical Company and Detroit Edison Company.

Northwest Texas Methodists To End Conference

ABILENE, May 30 (AP)—The annual Northwest Texas Methodist Conference closes tomorrow with reading of pastoral appointments.

Delegates already have voted unanimously to hold next year's session in Amarillo.

The conference declined to increase the minimum salary of pastors from $2,200 to $2,300.

Reports showed 1,569 infants and 2,231 adults were baptized last year in the conference and 5,082 additions were made to the church, making total membership 99,503. Money raised for all purposes last year totaled $5,291,135.

Other features of the conference included acceptance of 193 acres of land from Sam Butman Sr., Taylor County pioneer, for an encampment area; suppers of 10 ministers; admission of 12 young men on trial, ordination of 15 deacons and 10 elders. The Rev. Joe E. Boyd of Post was elected treasurer of the conference after the Rev. John Eldridge of Vernon retired after serving 31 years. The Rev. Eldridge was superannuated. Others retiring were the Revs. E. L. Yates, Albany; J. O. Quattlebaum, Tulsa; Clarence Bounds, Whiteface; J. Fred Cox, Seminole; A. D. Moore, Channing; E. H. Grandall, Lubbock; R. N. Hucklebee, Lubbock; Dr. E. A. Reed, Colorado City, and Ellis Todd, Hale Center.

Main speakers of the conference were Bishop William C. Martin, Dallas, and Dr. Pierce Harris, pastor of the Atlanta, Ga., First church.

Two bishops, Dr. Martin and Charles C. Selecman, will be on tomorrow's program. The ordination service for elders and deacons will precede the reading of appointments.

At least one new district superintendent will be appointed. He will succeed the Rev. W. E. Hamilton of the Childress District.

8 Clubs In Roundup

GRAHAM, May 30 (AP)—Eight riding clubs have accepted bids to take part in the opening of the Possum Kingdom roundup June 24. The clubs will be guests at a noon barbecue, then ride in a parade and in the rodeo grand entry that night.

Winter Wheat Is Seen As 60 Pct. Below Average

DALLAS, May 30 (AP)—The Federal Reserve Bank said today the winter wheat crop in the Southwest declined during the past month and forecast production 60 per cent below average.

The bank said cotton was retarded by too much rain in the east and too little rain and too much dust in the west.

Sales for April were less than 1 per cent above March and 3 per cent above sales in April, 1952.

Daily crude oil production rose in May, following four months of decline, and a further rise is expected in June. Crude stocks in early May were above those at the same time last year. April crude runs to refinery stills averaged 1 per cent lower than in March but 4 per cent higher than a year earlier.

Employment increased between Feb. 15 and mid-March to a level 4 per cent higher than in 1952.

Oil Import Problem To 'Ride' For While

By TEX EASLEY

WASHINGTON, May 30 (AP)—Domestic oil producers apparently are going to have to depend on "industrial statesmanship" to cut down imports of foreign crude.

Interior Secretary Douglas McKay, who also is petroleum administrator for defense, used that term in addressing the National Petroleum Council on the import problem.

McKay said he had discussed the situation with President Eisenhower and that the chief executive shared his views—that they should let the matter ride for a while longer in the hope and expectation that importers will voluntarily trim their shipments in line with cutbacks in domestic production.

Meanwhile, legislation still is pending to require quotas limiting imports to 10 per cent of domestic demand. The question is involved in the reciprocal trade extension bill on which the House Ways and Means committee says it plans to act "in the near future."

With McKay's restatement of President Eisenhower's position, the chances are the oil import quota sponsored by Rep. Simpson (R-Pa.) will be rejected.

The industry itself is divided. The Independent Petroleum Assn., representing a large segment of smaller domestic operators, is strongly against imports. The major importing companies have told the House Ways and Means Committee they have made voluntary cuts and quotas aren't needed.

Russell B. Brown, the IPAA's general counsel, said the administration has shown "a disturbing unconcern" about the problem.

Brown said the declaration of intentions of importing companies submitted to the Texas Railroad Commission—which also serves as an oil regulatory body—indicates they intend to bring foreign oil into this country in still larger quantities in the future.

"The token reductions made by some of the companies for the second quarter have had a negligible effect on total imports," Brown said.

"The revised estimate of 1,070,000 barrels daily shows no significant reduction from the original schedule of 1,077,000 barrels per day."

Frank M. Porter, president of the American Petroleum Institute and head of the Fain-Porter Drilling Co., Oklahoma City, disagrees with Brown.

"We in the petroleum industry pride ourselves in our belief that competitive enterprise can solve its own problems," he told a Boston meeting.

API figures show that oil imports during the week ended May 23 averaged 1,091,500 barrels a day, and for the four weeks ended that date averaged 1,081,000 barrels daily. Domestic production in the week ended May 23 averaged 6,339,050 barrels a day.

YMCA Gets New National Secretary

The Young Men's Christian Associations of the United States have appointed a new national general secretary, Grover C. Good, chief executive of the YMCA here, announced Saturday.

He is Dr. Jay A. Urice, since 1949 associate general secretary of the National Council of YMCAs. Dr. Urice will take office at the end of the year, following retirement of Dr. Eugene E. Barnett, who has held the office for the past 13 years.

Dr. Urice is a native of Iowa, and was graduated from Coe College there. He studied at the Union Theological Seminary and did graduate work in religious education at Columbia University. In 1937 he received an LL.D. degree from Coe.

Good pointed out that Dr. Urice has spent his entire professional career with the YMCA. The new national leader entered YMCA work in Honolulu. During World War I he served on the "Y" War Work Council. He then went to Europe to aid in post-war YMCA reconstruction there.

"One of Dr. Urice's major contributions to the YMCA," Good declared, "is in the field of professional training. Dr. Urice is responsible in no small degree for the high educational and professional requirements of YMCA staff people today."

Good also said that Dr. Urice organized the program and research section of the National Council. This section, he explained, is responsible for providing aid to the 1,726 YMCAs in the United States so they may deal expertly with problems of administration, and the development of programs for the 3,100,000 young people they serve.

Changes In T-H Law Given A New Setback

WASHINGTON, May 30 (AP)—Taft-Hartley law revision was pushed deeper into a legislative pigeonhole today as the House Labor Committee announced it was starting hearings on another subject—aid to schools in defense areas.

The action reinforced the belief of some committee members that no move will be made at this session to bring out a bill for changes in the labor-management relations law.

Chairman McConnell (R-Pa) is reported to have said his committee will not act until the Senate takes the initiative. This would leave it up to Senate Republican Leader Taft of Ohio to call the signals on any Taft-Hartley revision during this session.

Rep. Lucas (D-Tex), among those pressing for action, said he didn't "have kind thoughts toward those who are trying to defer this legislation." He said Secretary of Labor Darin is one of those who prefer to leave the labor laws as they are.

"Secretary Darin and labor's friends in the National Labor Relations Board," Lucas said, "are trying to preserve for them the liberties which they gained by reason of the emasculating of Taft-Hartley and the perversion of the intent of Congress which passed it."

Lucas apparently referred to reports that Darin has been recommending elimination of most of the Taft-Hartley law's injunction provisions as well as other sections to which organized labor has objected. The Labor and Commerce Departments have been trying to work out a compromise of administration recommendations.

Lucas, a member of the House Labor Committee, said he "devotedly hoped" to get out a labor law revision bill this session but intimated he thought it would be an uphill battle.

In charging Darin and organized labor with "emasculating" the law, Lucas also criticized what he called "the soft attitude of the Truman administration toward the demands of big labor leaders."

The labor committee recently completed more than two months of hearings on proposals for changing Taft-Hartley, but has made no move to produce a bill.

McConnell announced a labor subcommittee headed by himself will start hearings June 10 on the need for continuing financial assistance to local school districts suffering from the impact of federal defense activities.

These districts receive federal aid in proportion to the number of government workers' children they are required to educate, and in lieu of local taxes lost through establishment of non-taxpaying government installations.

Extension of aid to districts in these critical areas is part of the legislative program outlined by President Eisenhower at the start of his administration.

T&P Safety Rally Is Held Friday Night

Several hundred persons from approximately 10 cities along the T&P Railway between Dallas and El Paso attended a safety rally Friday night at the amphitheatre in City Park.

The rally was sponsored by the T&P Ladies Safety Council of Big Spring and featured talks by R. H. Parker, Dallas, T&P vice president; J. H. Williams, Dallas, superintendent of safety for the railroad; and W. C. Foster, Big Spring, Western Division superintendent.

T&P employes and members of their families from Big Spring, Dallas, Fort Worth, Cisco, Baird, Pecos and El Paso were welcomed by Mayor G. W. Dabney, also a railroad man.

Foster called attention to the fact that the Western Division has the best safety record on the T&P system for the first four months of 1953. There have been only eight injuries in the division during this period, and no one has been hurt in the past two months, he told the crowd.

The division superintendent called for development of an attitude of safety consciousness on the part of all workers, and urged the practice of both on-the-job and off-the-job safety habits.

Parker described carelessness as the company's worst enemy; at the same time, more accidents occur in the home than anywhere else, he said.

The railway official praised members of the safety council for their roles in promoting safety. He urged workers to "emulate the care given diesel locomotives in caring for your own health, safety and well being."

The best accident insurance is the policy of safe habits, Parker concluded.

Churchill Is Seeking Support For Parley

LONDON, May 30 (AP)—Winston Churchill will ask eight fellow prime ministers in the British Commonwealth here next week to back his project for an early East-West parley, British sources said today.

Churchill thus hopes to strengthen his hand, these informants said, at his June conference in Bermuda with President Eisenhower and the new, still unchosen premier of France.

The coronation of Queen Elizabeth II has brought the leaders of the Commonwealth Nations to London. They will meet immediately after the Queen is crowned Tuesday for a region-by-region survey of the world situation and a close discussion of their own defense, economic and constitutional relationships.

The British Prime Minister's campaign for a meeting of the Big Western chiefs with Russia's Premier Georgi Malenkov undoubtedly would be reinforced if it had the unqualified support of the spokesmen for the globe-girdling Commonwealth's 550 million people.

Their world survey will range from the strains and stresses in the British-American partnership, through Europe and the uneasy Middle East to Pacific defense and the Korean truce.

Britain's chancellor of the Exchequer, R. A. Butler, is expected to warn the Commonwealth hard times may come by next fall through a payments crisis in the sterling money system. In other words, Britain's dollar spending by then probably will have outstripped her dollar earning. He is also expected to tell the conferees that failure of his mission to Washington with a detailed "trade-not-aid" pro-

King said he was going back to Houston for business while Samia remains here three or four months to make movies. Samia said she would join King later.

Shipping Firm Forced To Carry Red-China Units

WASHINGTON, May 30 (AP)—Sen. Mundt (R-S.D.) said today "a whole new line of argument" against trade with Red China had been opened up by a Norwegian-British shipping firm's statement that one of its vessels was forced at gunpoint to carry Communist troops.

"This is terrific," exclaimed Mundt, acting chairman of the Senate investigations subcommittee. "It shows that ships going into Red China ports subject themselves to blackmail."

He also said it meant that ships engaging in such trade "make themselves part of an auxiliary fleet" of Communist China because, if the Reds need them to transport troops, "they can draw a gun and force them to do it."

The shipping firm, Wallem and Company, said in a statement in Hong Kong that one of its ships, the Perico, was chartered in June, 1951, to load 4,000 tons of rice at Canton for the Red port of Kwongchow and on the return trip was forced to carry 462 Red soldiers to Canton.

The firm's statement said the soldiers were unarmed, but were under the armed guard of 12 other soldiers. They were landed at Canton on June 22, 1951, the statement said, a year after the Korean War started.

On the Perico's return to the British crown colony of Hong Kong, the company said, the ship's master reported to police authorities that the Reds told him at Canton that if he did not sail immediately for Kwongchow "somebody would be shot."

The Perico was one of two ships owned by British firms in Hong Kong which the State Department said in a report Thursday had been used to transport Chinese Communist troops during the Korean War.

The report was submitted to the investigations subcommittee after one of its staff publicly presented evidence of such activity but withheld the names of the ships involved.

McCarthy On Way To Mexico On Mystery Tip

DALLAS, Tex., May 30 (AP)—The hush-hush atmosphere of Sen. Joseph McCarthy's mystery trip to Texas deepened today as the senator jumped into a private plane and headed for Mexico.

Several muscular aides, who carefully kept reporters from interviewing distance, intimidated McCarthy came to Dallas on "routine" business as head of the Senate investigations subcommittee.

His wealthy oil men hosts here called it a "pleasure jaunt."

McCarthy scowled and said nothing.

With McCarthy during a cat and mouse chase through the Dallas Airport were John Murchison and Clint Murchison Jr., sons of Clint Murchison, Dallas oil millionaire.

The Murchison brothers said the McCarthy's private plane was flying McCarthy and party to the Murchisons' Acuna ranch in the Sierra Madre Mountains of Mexico. They said he was expected to stay there a "couple of days" then go "somewhere."

With McCarthy and the Murchisons on the trip was Robert F. Thompson, Texas construction company executive and a special assistant to the treasurer of the Democratic National Committee in 1951.

McCarthy arrived in Dallas yesterday. He refused to pose for photographers or answer questions about his 10-day absence from Washington.

JUMP TRACKS, RETURNS

Freight Train Goes On Wrecking Spree

LANCASTER, Pa., May 30 (AP)—One of the weirdest accidents in railroad annals turned up here today. You wouldn't believe it if you saw it.

The tag end car of a local freight moving down Water St. jumped the tracks. It smashed 17 parked automobiles, damaged houses, fire escapes and parking meters in a two-block spree. Then the car hopped back onto the tracks.

Crewmen on the train didn't know anything about it until later.

They found out when they brought the train to a stop after encountering a citizen who had fallen asleep on the tracks in the middle of the street. He was pushed aside by the slow-chugging locomotive. He suffered brush burns and bruises.

This sequence of events was reconstructed today by city police and Sgt. J. R. Frantz of the Pennsylvania Railroad police.

The 13-car train was making local deliveries to plants and stores within six blocks of Penn Square, heart of this city of 60,000 in a famed Eastern Pennsylvania farming region. The freight was moving slowly on tracks that run down the center of Water Street. It was 12:45 a.m.

The end car left the tracks at a switch. Crewmen on the engine and in the caboose immediately behind the engine didn't notice it.

But back at the other end things were happening. The freight car careened crazily to the side, lashing at autos parked along the curb. Some were crushed almost flat. One total wreck was brand-new.

The smashing went on for three blocks until the freight car was dragged back onto the tracks. Residents were dashing from their homes at the clatter. Police telephones jangled and radio cars were sent to intercept the train.

At Water and Chestnut Sts., 38-year-old Melvin Schlossman, a resident of the section known locally as "shantytown," was lying on the street between the rails.

The engineer didn't see him and a bumper on the engine struck Schlossman and rolled him off the track. The train came to a halt and that's where the police caught up.

Amazed crewmen looked back at the trail of devastation, and the folks swarming from their homes.

Frantz said damage would total many thousands of dollars. He added his investigation showed indications that the switch which derailed the freight car had been tampered with.

Crews Clear Last Rubble At Waco

WACO, May 30 (AP)—Volunteer crews made a special effort today to clear the last debris of the May 11 tornado from Waco's residential sections today.

About 200 men with 60 trucks made rounds of the devastated areas.

The tedious task of cleaning up and rebuilding the downtown business section continued. Few stores closed for the Memorial Day holiday.

A clean up crew working on a partly demolished two-story building at 314 Austin Ave. had a narrow escape Friday when a wall and the roof caved in. All managed to jump to safety. James Chatman, Negro construction worker, received minor injuries from falling wreckage.

School Teacher To Face Murder Trial Starting Tuesday

LEVELLAND, Tex., May 30 (AP)—Lawyers will attempt Tuesday to choose a jury to try Jaek Killingsworth, 29, charged with killing a fellow school teacher he accused of forcing his wife to make love.

Officials admitted it would be difficult to find 12 unbiased men here.

The slaying occurred Feb. 27 in Sundown, 10 miles to the south.

Killingsworth called Richard McChristian, 37, a close friend, from rehearsal of a faculty murder play, "Meet the Body." Killingsworth shot McChristian 11 times with a rifle, then returned to the auditorium and told the cast to get the body.

Killingsworth went home alone and waited until an officer arrested him. The next day he said McChristian had forced Mrs. Killingsworth to have sexual relations with him. Killingsworth said "I just went crazy" when he heard about it, grabbed a rifle and went hunting for his friend, a farm teacher.

Aiken Expecting New Farm Surplus Plans

WASHINGTON, May 30 (AP)—Sen. Aiken (R-Vt.) said today he expects government agencies—possibly the White House itself—to "come up with some new proposals for handling our huge wheat and other farm surpluses."

Aiken, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said this country now has so much wheat in sight that "there is a danger of depressing not only our own but all world wheat prices."

"Even if the new proposals should cost a few hundred million dollars a year, it would be a wise investment," Aiken said.

Republican lawmakers from farm states fear declining wheat and other grain prices might cost them their present thin majorities in the House and Senate in next year's congressional elections.

Aiken said he believes the best way out of the increasing wheat surplus is some method for disposal, on a basis of grants, reduced prices or loans to friendly nations that need wheat.

He hinted that a new program under consideration would export millions of bushels to Pakistan and other importing nations that lack dollars to pay for it.

Agriculture Department officials have been hunting for additional storage space for wheat already acquired under government price-support operations, and another bumper crop is in prospect.

They have been using reserve ships tied up at docks and other unorthodox space for the surplus gain.

Possibility of a row over the question of crop controls also is worrying legislators. Existing law provides that when grain surpluses reach a certain level, the government must move to impose limits on a farmer's plantings and to establish a marketing quota system. Marketing quotas would be subject to a referendum of farmers. If they failed to approve them by a two-thirds vote, then government price supports would be lowered, from 90 per cent of parity, to 50 per cent.

Aiken said wheat and corn growers might defeat such controls if called upon to vote.

"That would mean wheat supports and prices could drop to about $1.20 a bushel," Aiken said. This would be about half recent market levels.

"And Western wheat growers believe that Eastern farmers, who usually plant small acreages, would defeat any controls," Aiken said.

He said a proposal to limit the vote to those producing 25 acres or more "might defeat itself because farmers excluded from controls then could increase plantings."

"There is no quick, easy solution for the wheat and farm surplus problem," he said. "The one bright spot is that many importing nations say they will need more wheat this season."

Stanton's Young Texans Knew Of Disaster Need

STANTON—When the Young Texans Club of Stanton this past week gave $6 to the tornado relief funds for Waco and San Angelo, it was just another expression of good citizenship.

The Young Texans Club, which functioned throughout the school year, was made up of fifth grade students of the Stanton school. Their teacher and sponsor is Mrs. L. H. Batton.

At the end of the school year they had $10.32 in the treasury, and many plans had been made for the use of this money. But when the children knew of the need in the storm-struck cities, they quickly decided where their money could do the most good.

The club also voted to buy a "dollar gift" for the Church of Christ, since they used the church auditorium as a class room during the rebuilding of the school building.

A sum of $3.32 was used by the club to help pay for club year-books. These were souvenir booklets given to members' mothers as Mother's Day gifts.

The Young Texans Club functioned with the usual slate of officers, also had such committees as the English committee, and a committee on Science and Health. The organization's motto has been "Make the Best Better."

President Gives Civilian Salute To Soldier Dead

WASHINGTON, May 30 (AP)—President Eisenhower gave a civilian salute this Memorial Day to the soldier dead of America's wars.

The former five-star general drove to Arlington National Cemetery to join in the national tribute there and listen to a Memorial Day address by Sen. Wiley (R-Wis.) chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Before the speech in the amphitheater, President Eisenhower visited the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. There, as the slow roll of a drum beat out and a bugler sounded taps for the dead, the President stood at attention, his grey hair held over his heart.

Mrs. Eisenhower, in black dress and black hat, was at his side.

The President stood rigidly, looking straight ahead at the white tomb a few feet in front of him, during the brief ceremony. Then he turned and his party went to the presidential box to hear Wiley's address.

The vast amphitheater was jammed with the crowd overflowing to the lawns outside. The weather was mild and skies sunny.

Over 1,200 Get Degrees At Texas U.

AUSTIN, May 30 (AP)—More than 1,200 students getting degrees at the University of Texas today were given a double warning of their international duties as individuals.

In the university's first attempt at packing all graduation exercises into one day, the two main speakers put heavy stress on problems of the "cold war."

Speaking at commencement exercises, Dr. Oliver C. Carmichael, New York, praised "the new form of internationalism based on giving rather than getting."

Carmichael, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, expressed fear that the current congressional probe of colleges and universities would curtail freedom of instruction.

Besides checking Communist ideas, he said, the public should guard against "the insinuation of Communist practices induced by over-zealous patriots."

Baccalaureate speaker Dr. Edwin Hughes Fritlen, Washington, D. C., laid out a second vocation for citizens—Christian statesmanship.

At morning services, he outlined three mistakes possible in world dealings: assuming war problems could be won by battles, treaties and conferences; transferring responsibility to others; and accepting a poor substitute for war's final solution.

"The supreme problem of mankind is man," he said.

A record number of 142 doctorates were conferred today. The total awards included approximately 300 graduate degrees and 900 bachelor's degrees.

Ike May Be Forced To Restore Cuts In VA Program; Legislators Protest

By B. L. LIVINGSTONE
WASHINGTON, May 31 (AP)—Congressional alarm over proposed appropriation cuts for veterans hospital and medical care may force some backtracking by the Eisenhower administration on this phase of its economy program.

With pressure building up against the threatened closing of some hospitals, there were reports the House Appropriations Committee would restore some of the funds lopped off the Veterans Administration budget for this purpose.

Rep. Phillips (R-Calif.), chairman of the subcommittee handling VA funds, said the group hoped to meet next Friday for final action on the 1954 veterans appropriations.

He declined, however, to comment one way or another on reports coming from other House members that some medical care funds may be restored.

Approximately 290 million dollars was sheared off VA requests by the outgoing Truman administration. The Truman budget figures were reduced by an additional 279 million in the Eisenhower budget, and still further cuts have been reported in prospect at the hands of the Appropriations Committee.

The reduction which has stirred up strongest reaction is in hospital and medical care. The Eisenhower budget recommended 637 million dollars for this program—roughly 56 million less than the original budget.

The VA has said the cut, if allowed to stand, may force the closing of from six to 11 hospitals. No specific hospitals have been designated, however.

The Truman budget allowed 585 million dollars for hospital care. This was reduced by nearly 29 million dollars in the revised Eisenhower budget—the amount which reports say may be restored before the VA bill reaches the House floor.

requirements on who goes into the hospital and medical program will "cripple" it.

Accusing both political parties of violating campaign pledges, he called the cuts "dangerous economy" and in the end, "false economy."

Teague, appearing before the Phillips subcommittee earlier this week, said the revised budget would mean the loss of 4,800 beds in old VA hospitals in addition to 2,393 beds already vacant for lack of funds.

Rep. Yorty (D-Calif.) said the proposed 56 million dollar cut in the hospital and medical program will "cripple" it.

Teague is author of a proposal to require proof of inability to pay for hospital and medical care by veterans seeking such help.

Phillips contended the law is so loose that it permits ex-servicemen with five-figure incomes to get free hospital care. Under the law, the VA is not required to demand any proof other than a simple statement of inability to pay.

him "it will be absolutely impossible to continue all of the old hospitals presently operated and open the new ones on schedule with over 7,000 vacant beds scattered through the old hospitals."

Instead, Teague stated, VA said it "would be forced to meet the problem by closing a group of the old hospitals."

In addition to the old hospitals, 10 new hospitals with a total of 6,187 beds are scheduled for opening during the 12 months starting July 1.

Teague cited figures indicating there is a waiting list of 24,834 patients with non-service-connected ailments who have signed statements of inability to pay for hospital care.

What alarmed him, Teague said, was that 11,779 of the applicants were psychotic cases, and 2,378 tubercular patients—both requiring long-term hospitalization.

MIG Pilot Flees To Escape Red Horrors

By EIGIL ANDERSEN
COPENHAGEN, Denmark, May 30 (AP)—A round-faced, shy Polish pilot told tonight how he brought his Russian MIG15 fighter through the Iron Curtain to freedom at supersonic speeds. He said it was to escape from the "sufferings," threatening arrests and the Communist regime in my beloved homeland.

He is 22-year-old Zdzislaw Jazwenski, a lieutenant in the Communist Polish Air Force, who crash-landed his MIG on the Danish Baltic island of Bornholm 11 days ago as the second Polish pilot to escape there in less than three months.

The young Pole has been under close police guard since May 20 in Copenhagen's Venstre Faengsel Prison. Today, after he had been granted asylum in this country as a political refugee, he came out in the open and told reporters his story.

Jazwenski met the press at a downtown hotel in Copenhagen, through an interpreter, he told of his desire for three years to get out of Poland, of a Polish Air Force under command of Russian officers, of mistrust and resentment towards communism.

He told also of how a fellow-pilot was condemned to death when his attempt to go west in a MIG fighter failed.

Jazwenski said he knew Franciszek Jarecki, the Pole who brought the first undamaged sample of Russia's crack jet fighter to the West when he fled to Bornholm in early March.

He stressed, however, that he was not inspired to get away by Jarecki's example. He made his plans to flee in 1950 and he would have made his dash for freedom anyway, probably at the same time, independent of Jarecki, he said.

The young pilot told his story bashfully, looking at the carpet in front of him most of the time. His fingers drummed nervously on the arm of the chair. When he looked up, his round, youthful face was mostly stern. Occasionally, however, he flashed a broad grin. That was when he spoke about his newly gained freedom.

Strike Against Saloon Keeper Ends In Death

DUN LOAGHAIRE, Ireland, May 3 (AP)—A 14-year-old strike ended today when the saloon keeper, Saloon keeper Jim Downey was dead.

Union pickets, who had paraded before Jim's place in relays since 1939, packed up their walkouts and went home. They had walked about 100,000 miles, often braced by beer. Jim himself would send out to them.

Jim was a non-drinker who dispensed cheer over the bar for 61 of his 79 years.

One day in 1939 Jim fired his bartender and hired a pretty, buxom barmaid instead.

The union ordered the bartender reinstated. Jim got his Irish up and refused. The strike was on.

The story of Jim's strike spread and newspapers all over the world published it. Tourists began to pour into Dun Loaghair to have drinks at the pub.

"If the boys with the placards went, it would ruin my business," Jim once said.

If a picket failed to arrive on time, Jim would telephone union headquarters and say "your man is late this morning."

Summing up his views about the strike, Jim once said "tis the grandest ever happened. Strikes may come and strikes may go, but mine goes on forever."

'Chute Mystery Stays Unsolved

GRAND CANYON, Ariz., May 30 (AP)—The mystery of the parachutes which dropped into Grand Canyon's darkened depths apparently will remain unsolved.

Sheer cliffs and ledges forced back a rescue team of rangers today. And the Air Force refused to send a helicopter into the treacherous chasm, where air currents might cause a crash.

Air Force spokesmen said they had no evidence that the parachutes had held anyone, and that no planes were reported missing.

The helicopter was "the only thing that could have reached the 'chutes,'" said Dr. Harold Bryant, superintendent of Grand Canyon National Park. "There is nothing more we can do."

The rangers, veteran canyon explorers, abandoned their tortuous attempt to reach the two collapsed parachutes after working their way down precipitous ledges and outcroppings for a day and a half.

They could see one of the 'chutes on a broad ledge 3,000 feet below the canyon's south rim. But a sheer cliff cut them off.

Certain Bans Against Czechs Lifted By U.S.

WASHINGTON, May 30 (AP)—The United States was reported tonight to have lifted certain restrictions on trade with Communist Czechoslovakia, which were imposed at the time Associated Press Correspondent William Oatis was imprisoned by Czech authorities on a conviction of spying.

Oatis was released May 16 after two years of Czech imprisonment. His release came after a pardon by President Antonin Zapotocky. The reporter has since returned to this country.

State Department officials have been willing to say only that the freeing of Oatis had cleared the way for the United States to consider lifting sanctions imposed against the Red regime at Prague as a result of his imprisonment in early 1951.

However steps taken within the past two weeks to free certain normal trade procedures between Czechoslovakia and the United States apparently have had the effect of lifting two of the four sanctions imposed on Czechoslovakia specifically because of the Oatis case.

In one case it was understood that a ban had been removed against issuance of consular invoices at Prague. Such documents, attesting the value of Czech goods exported to the United States are necessary for import tax purposes when the goods reach American shores. The prohibition on consular invoices was estimated at the State Department some months ago to be costing the Czechs about 20 million dollars a year in exports to the United States. Under steps now taken the Czechs will be able to begin selling to the United States market again if, within the past few days they have not already done so.

In the second case it was understood that restrictions against U. S. exports to Czechoslovakia on account of Oatis' imprisonment have been removed. But within the past two years limitations on U. S. shipments to any Iron Curtain countries have grown so strict that this will in fact make little difference in American-Czech commerce.

Tornadoes Rip North Dakota; 2 People Dead

Tornadoes whirled across the southeastern section of North Dakota Saturday.

Two tornadoes formed south of Ypsilanti and whisked away in an east-northeast direction. Another twister whirled near Wimbledon.

Early reports indicated no communities had been struck, but there was some damage in rural areas near Ypsilanti.

Ypsilanti is about 18 miles south of Jamestown. Wimbledon is about 20 miles northeast of Jamestown.

Tornadoes dipped into South-Central North Dakota Friday night, and two women were killed.

Heat of the kind associated with the Fourth of July covered much of the nation Memorial Day.

The hot blanket extended across Texas, the South and most of the Midwest.

Chicago had a reading of 92 in mid-afternoon.

Temperatures were on the cool side in the northeastern quarter of the U. S. and in most of the states west of the Missouri River.

Rain put a damper on holiday fun in several areas.

Rain fell in New York State and Eastern Pennsylvania. Rainfall of more than two inches was recorded at some points in Montana after a 24-hour period that ended early Saturday.

Truce Team Awaits Red China's Answer

SEOUL, Sunday, May 31 (AP)—An atmosphere of crisis — accentuated by high-level talks in Washington and a South Korean threat of open revolt — prevailed as the U. N. truce team prepared to go to Panmunjom tomorrow. There it will hear what the Communists think about its new "now or never" truce plan.

In Washington Saturday, President Eisenhower held a sudden 20-minute conference on Korea with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson and Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army chief of staff. A White House source later declined to say whether the topic discussed was diplomatic, military, or both.

There were unconfirmed rumors circulating in Seoul that South Korean President Syngman Rhee had carried opposition of his government to the plan one step further by sending a personal appeal to Eisenhower.

A threat of bloodshed was raised by South Korea's setting Prime Minister Pyun Yung Tal. He said his war-ravaged country "would be willing to shed blood" in preventing the landing of troops of a five-nation neutral commission—Poland, Czechoslovakia, India, Sweden and Switzerland.

Although the plan has not been made public except through South Korean sources, it reportedly would call for such troops, predominantly Indians, to take custody of 48,500 Red prisoners who refuse to be returned home.

U. N. Command sources pointed out that the unusual silence maintained by Communist propaganda organs since the plan was presented last Monday at Panmunjom indicated that high Communist authorities are carefully considering the new offer.

South Korean sources say, however, that when the new plan was first submitted last Monday at Panmunjom, the chief Red delegate immediately opposed a suggestion that the U. N. General Assembly have the final say on disposition of the balking prisoners.

Pyun in an interview with Korean newsmen threatened to pull South Korean divisions from the U. N. Command to free them for independent military action if the new truce plan is signed.

Presumably tomorrow's session will be secret as was last Monday's.

The U. N. plan reportedly provided for Indian troops to take over policing the 34,000 North Korean and 14,500 Chinese prisoners who have said they will not go back to communism.

Brownsville and Matamoros, two of the larger cities along the boundary stream, are co-operating in a water rationing plan. Brownsville City Manager Emory Waters today was investigating a complaint from Matamoros Water Supt. Humberto Calderoni that pumps on the U. S. side above Brownsville were taking unauthorized water from the river.

At water-short Port Isabel, where water has been rationed drastically, milk trucks continued to haul in water through the city being getting some Rio Grande water through the Los Fresnos irrigation district.

Residents at Raymondville are estimated to be buying 10,000 gallons of bottled water weekly as a result of the shortage in that area. Despite water pumping allocations and the severe shortage, the International Boundary and Water Commission report issued today said Valley irrigation districts overpumped their quotas during the seven-month period from Sept. 1, 1952, to April 1.

Ex-Dem Aide Succumbs

WASHINGTON, May 30 (AP)—Emil Hurja, 61, who was executive director of the Democratic National Committee in the early New Deal days, collapsed and died unexpectedly today in the National Press Club.

Hurja was for many years a newspaperman, and won some measure of fame as a political analyst. He was editor and publisher of Pathfinder magazine from 1939 to 1945.

He held his Democratic committee post from 1932 to 1937, paralleling the election and first term of former President Franklin D. Roosevelt. He switched parties and in 1946 sought election to Congress as a Republican from the 12th Michigan District. He was defeated.

A native of Crystal Falls, Mich., he was graduated from the University of Washington and published newspapers in Iowa and in Breckenridge, Tex., until 1926.

For the next five years he was a financial and mining analyst in New York before taking over the Democratic committee post.

He is survived by his widow.

Prof. Paz Y Puente Heads 4th Group

Mexico Farmers Tour U. S. To See Modern Farming Methods

By RAYMOND HOLBROOK
DALLAS, May 30 (AP)—Professor Carlos Paz y Puente, a former schoolteacher who looks more like a diplomat than an agricultural expert, is back in Texas at the head of another educational tour to give Mexican farmers the chance to see first-hand modern American agricultural methods.

It is the fourth such tour that Paz y Puente has conducted through Texas. Traveling by special bus, the current party of 26 yesterday visited the Fort Worth stockyards. Today they toured dairy farms in the Dallas area and tomorrow they head for College Station where they will inspect agricultural and livestock demonstrations at A&M. Monday they will visit the state capital and tour turkeys and poultry farms before heading back for the border.

Main spring of the tour is Paz y Puente, who learned the rudiments of English in his native Mexico and then went to New York to complete his education and polish up his English. After teaching school in Mexico 27 years, he became secretary of the National Confederation of Small Land Owners when that organization was formed seven years ago.

In a land where agricultural methods had remained unchanged for centuries, he found that if his organization was to grow and if farming and livestock raising in Mexico were to be improved, education was needed. Agricultural schools, pamphlets and demonstrations were all valuable but Paz y Puente felt the opportunity for Mexican farmers to see for themselves advanced farming techniques in the U. S. would prove invaluable in spurring Mexico's progress.

The tours have served a double purpose. Paz y Puente points out. Not only have they enabled Mexican farmers to utilize new methods they have seen in the U. S., but the tours have also improved relations between the two nations at the "grassroots level."

In addition to the tours, Paz y Puente last year spent nearly two months as a guest of the U. S. government, during which he visited most of the important livestock and agricultural sections of this nation.

Big Spring suffered a great loss this past week, in the passing of Mrs. Bernard Lamun. She was one of those wonderful women, who labored whole-souled and completely unselfishly, for any worthwhile religious, civic or welfare program that came to her attention. The community is far, far richer for her years spent here.

Because of our long affiliation with the railroad, many Big Springers must have felt a touch of regret to get the news that the last of the T&P's steam locomotives has been scrapped. Time was when the big engines meant a lot to this community.

The town closed down pretty lightly for Memorial Day, and it was a real holiday. Seems that more should be done for the real observance of the day, with some sort of honor being paid, with formalities, to the men who have given their lives for their country.

The Country Club accepted resignation of its long-time manager, Shirley Robbins, and employed a new golf pro, C. A. DeWees of Mineral Wells. Actual operation of the club—which plans to buy the land it now leases and to expand its activities—will be handled under a different setup.

On the municipal front, the paving program was advanced another step, as paving assessments were approved to permit start of the big project. And a special study was authorized to see about business district extensions under the zoning program, to eliminate the troublesome "spot" zoning changes. And the Citizens Traffic Commission turned the switch on with the employment of George Oldham Jr. as its executive secretary. George should be a popular choice.

And on the state front, the Legislature terminated its session, and Rep. Ohio Britton had arrived home to be available for a report to his constituents. It might be added that Joe Pickle, customary author of this column, suffered injuries in an auto mishap on his way home from Austin at the end of the legislative session, now sweats out a broken-arm-in-traction in a hospital at Mason. The Week's Review by necessity falls to other hands. Pickle will be left-handed for some time.

IN JUDGING CONTESTS County 4-H Youths Score Area Honors

Howard County 4-H youths won top honors in area judging contests at Lubbock Saturday, scoring four first places, along with a third spot, a fifth and a seventh place.

In field crop judging, a three-man team composed of Woody Coffey, Knott; Royce Howard, R. Bar; and Robert Lomax of Lomax took first place. The trio judged grain sorghum, cotton, banded feed, peanuts and cow peas.

A grass judging three-some also won first place. Sixty types of grass were judged by Somy Choate, Big Spring, who was also second individual; Frank Williamson, Big Spring; and Mac Robinson, Coahoma.

The livestock judging team also grabbed top honors by successfully judging three classes of hogs, three classes of sheep, three classes of beef cattle and one class of quarter horses. The team was composed of Bennie Joe Blissard, Lomax, who was top individual; Darrell Robinson, Coahoma, second individual; Donald Denton, Richland; and Delbert Davidson, Center Point.

The first and second place winners will go to the state tournament at College Station on June 25. Saturday's winners from Howard County will also be joined by a local farm safety team which did not compete since only two teams were entered, therefore making both eligible for the state tourney.

Adult leaders accompanying the group to Lubbock were Durward Lewler, county agent; Jimmy Wrenn, assistant county agent; Floyd White, Big Spring; T. M. Robinson, H. K. Lloyd Robinson, Knott; L. J. Davidson, Center Point; and Donald Lay, Coahoma.

Bill Vukovich Is Winner In Race At Indianapolis

Champ Fails To Set Mark

By WILL GRIMSLEY. INDIANAPOLIS, May 30 (AP)—Bill Vukovich, a grim and nerveless Slovenian from Fresno, Calif., set a blistering pace through over-heat today to win the Indianapolis 500-mile Speedway championship, snatched from his hands a year ago in the final 25 miles.

The 200-lap grind over the motor speedway's seared brick and asphalt oval was staged in such sweltering conditions that one veteran driver, Carl Scarborough of Clarkston, Mich., died of heat exhaustion and a heart attack after relinquishing his wheel at 175 miles.

The track temperatures were 130 degrees with the reading officially 91 in the shade. Eight drivers were hospitalized because of the scorching heat.

The heat, however, didn't dim the enthusiasm of the crowd, unofficially estimated at about 175,000 perspiring persons.

One other driver, Pat Flaherty of Glendale, Calif., suffered cuts and bruises when he rammed the concrete wall on the north straightaway, but otherwise, this neck-risping race was without serious incident.

The husky 34-year-old Vukovich defied relief, the pole position, and every challenge as he gunned his sleek, mouse-gray racing machine in front on the mad opening lap and led for 198 of the 200 grinding sweeps around the course.

Setting a record early pace but slowed by minor track accidents which forced up the "take it easy" yellow light, Vukovich covered the 300 miles in three hours, 53 minutes, 1.69 seconds for an average of 128.740 m.p.h.

This was the second fastest winning time in the 37-year history of the race, topped only by the 128.992 set by Troy Ruttman in 1952 when Vukovich's car developed steering trouble and fell out within sight of home.

Ruttman, injured in an accident last summer, watched today's chase from the side lines.

It was the most smashing triumph since 1930 when Billy Arnold took command at the third lap and led the rest of the way.

Fulfilling a pre-race boast that "I'll take that lead—and stay there," Vukovich made it strictly a one-man show which paled the battle for place positions into insignificance.

Paul Russo of Hammond, Ind., who relieved Fred Agabashian of Albany, Calif., at the 263-mile point, won second place over Art Cross of Laporte, Ind., making his second start.

Russo was timed in 3:56:32.25—approximately three minutes behind the winner. Cross was a hard driving third at 3:56:32.54.

The tremendous crowd filled every available pew in the scattered stands and swarmed over the infield. It let out an ear-splitting roar as Vukovich received a 15-second kiss from movie actress Jane Greer—a traditional ritual.

Vukovich was much more enthused perhaps over his $29,700 lap money—$150 for each lap he led—and his over-all prize money which probably will amount to around $75,000.

The winner's exact winnings are never determined until the day after the race.

Vukovich's lap money, plus the $16,200 he won last year in the same fashion, makes him the biggest all-time lap winner in history.

Previously, Bill Holland, an also ran in today's grueling test, held that mark with $35,060.

Vukovich wrecked not only the hopes of his 32 adversaries, the greatest drivers in the business, but also defied the tradition that the man on the pole should never win the race.

He became the fifth man in 37 races to win from a pole start. The others were Jimmy Murphy in 1922, Tommy Milton in 1923, Arnold in 1930, and Floyd Roberts in 1938.

Only 14 cars were still on the track and only six of the original 33 finished the race, marked by minor cracks, harassing mechanical troubles and constant changing of drivers to fight the heat.

In the fourth position came the car driven by Sam Hanks of Burbank, Calif., next was Duane Carter of Indianapolis followed by the traditional pace setter, Jack McGrath of South Pasadena, Calif.

Among visitors who competed in the Women's Golf Tournament at the Big Spring Country Club Friday were Ann Evridge, Odessa, (left); Mary McMullan, Ozona, (center); and Vera Gilmore, Odessa, (right). Mrs. Gilmore shared in the prizes given away, taking the least number of putts on 18 holes.

Billie Dillon And Norma Jones Among Winners In Tourney

Despite high winds and sand, a surprisingly large field turned out for the one-day Women's Golf Tournament at the Big Spring Country Club Friday.

A total of 42 linksters, including nine from Ozona, five from Odessa and four from Sweetwater, registered.

In the 18-hole flight, Billie Dillon of Big Spring posted an 89, best among those playing without a handicap.

Norma Jones, Big Spring, had a 69 net. She finished in 123 strokes and had a 54-stroke handicap.

Among golfers in that division, Vera Gilmore of Odessa also qualified for a prize by taking the least number of putts. She had 30 putts on 19 holes.

In the nine-hole division, another out-of-town entry, Mildred Anderson of Sweetwater, posted a 47 to finish out front.

Jewell Bowen, Big Spring, had a 31 net. She made the round in 59 and benefitted from a 28-stroke handicap.

Mary Nell Hatch, Big Spring, used only 14 putts on the nine holes to qualify for a prize.

DALLAS, May 30 (AP)—At least two former champions plus many Dixie hotshots who would like to win will be in the field next week when the Southern Amateur Golf Tournament is played at Lakewood Country Club.

The United States Golf Association will be eyeing the tournament for Walker Cup material. Some top prospects, including Arnold Blum of Macon, Ga., the 1951 champion, already are here testing the course.

Tommy Barnes of Atlanta, who won in 1947 and 1949, is also in the tournament. Gay Brewer of Lexington, Ky., who prevailed in 1952, may not make it. He is a student at the University of Kentucky and may not be able to get away.

Brewer does not have to qualify and could wait until Thursday when match play starts.

More than 100 entries had been received.

Charles Coe of Oklahoma City, former National Amateur champion and a Walker Cupper, is defending champion and is passing up this tournament for that one.

David Goldman, the veteran Dallas amateur who has been playing top-flight golf this year, is a favorite.

The field has these names: Joe Conrad, Jimmy Powell, Stan Mosel and Marion Hickey of North Texas State College; Morton Bright of Atlanta; Hillman Robbins of Memphis, medalist in 1952; Eddie Merrins of Meridian, Miss.; 1951 National junior champion and Southern runner-up in 1951; Ed Hopkins of Abilene, former top college player at Texas; Jennings Gordon of Rome, Ga.; Beverley Nabers of St. Petersburg, Carling Sulzer of Atlanta; Ernie Vossler of Fort Worth, winner of many Texas tournaments; Don Cherry of Wichita Falls and New York, semi-finalist in last year's National Amateur; L. # Angelo Scores Late To Lick Broncs, 3-2

SAN ANGELO — The San Angelo Colts scored all their runs in the last two innings to defeat the Big Spring Broncs, 3-2, before a Ladies Night crowd of approximately 2,000 here Friday night.

Trailing 2-0, the Colts tied the game in the eighth and then Glenn Burns, leftfielder, dumped a one-out blooper into center field to score Charley Galina from second with the winning run.

Galina had reached first on an error by Big Spring's first baseman, George Murphy.

Andy Alonso, in losing his third game against one who is joining the Broncs, hooked up in a tight pitching duel with Ben Bonine, but in the sixth, the Broncs broke through for two runs on three hits. Armando Gallart opened with a single and moved to second on Joe Riney's one-baser. After Joe Niesdon had forced Riney at second for the second out, Wally Hanna tripped to left center, scoring Gallart and Niesdon.

The Colts tied it on three hits in the eighth, John Malgarini and Burns opened with singles and Rudy Briner walked to load the bases. John Jeandron forced Briner, Malgarini scoring. Burns scored a moment later when Dick Stone beat out a single to short.

With one out in the ninth, Galina was safe on an error and moved to second on Malgarini's single. Then came Burns' hit.

Hanna's triple and single paced the Big Springers at bat while Malgarini, Burns, Stone and Jeandron all had two hits for the Colts.

Irishman Joe Carr Licks Harvie Ward At Hoylake

HOYLAKE, England, May 30 (AP)—Irishman Joe Carr, followed by a cheering section of priests and thousands of Dublin golf worshippers, gathered the remnants of his game today to win the British Amateur Golf Championship with a two up victory over America's Harvie Ward.

Ward, defending champion from Atlanta, made a tremendous bid to snatch the lead on the final nine holes of his 36 holes championship round. He squared the match on the 29th hole, but Carr hung on by his teeth to win.

The victory for the Irish clothing merchant ended America's three-year monopoly of the title and ruined Ward's dream of being the first player to win it twice in succession since Lawson Little in 1934-35.

The great match ended on the 36th green after Carr, 31, had rolled up a 40-foot putt to within inches of the pin.

Ward, laying three about 14 feet away from the cup, picked up his ball, walked across the green to the underdog Irish power hitter, and shook hands, signifying the end of the match.

Ward, 27, one of the best amateurs in the last ten or 15 years, learned on the first hole this morning he was in for trouble. He was in a golf doldrum and continually found himself battling against odds. He hit good shots, but they were caught in sand traps.

He missed putts by less than the width of the ball, and he often found his ball bedded under heavy grass roots.

These misfortunes left Ward three down after 18 holes, and the match looked like a rout until the Atlanta started to rally.

Carr, a member of the British Walker Cup team, roared off to a two-hole lead on the first two holes. He never was headed and on the morning round he hardly could do anything wrong.

Usually Carr is the power hitter. Today, his tee shots weren't coming off well. But his chipping and hitting saved him.

Carr around the green was magnificent.

He chipped so well in the screeching winds that he one-putted six of his first-eight holes.

Four Of Steers' Football Foes To Have New Mentors

Four of the ten teams which will face Big Spring High School on the football field next fall will have new coaches, and for that reason new systems.

They are Brownwood, San Angelo, Plainview and Ysleta.

The Steers will be meeting Pampa, another non-conference foe, for the first time in many years.

Ysleta is seeking a new mentor after Roger McAdams submitted his resignation there this week. He quit to return to Texas A&M, where he will work on his Master's degree.

McAdams has been at Ysleta for the past two years. He guided Ysleta to a 12-7 victory over Big Spring last fall.

Bob Harrell will be San Angelo's new coach. He succeeds Pete Sikes, who resigned.

Don Mouser takes over at Plainview. When Big Spring played the Bulldogs last fall, Bob Russ was the coach. Good Graves took over on a temporary basis, following Russ' resignation. Joe Gibson later was hired but remained on the job only a month before resigning.

R. L. Warren has stepped into

Forrest Jacobs In Mace Lead

DALLAS, May 30 (AP)—Forrest Jacobs, Fort Worth second baseman, added 37 points to his batting average to take over first place in the Texas League.

While he was replacing the slumping George Lerchen of Tulsa, he was pulling his club into first place in batting at .264.

Jacobs got 17 hits in 33 times to move from tenth to first. His .254 gave him a three-point bulge on Joe Frazier of Oklahoma City. Jacobs leads the league in hits.

Bob Balena, fleet San Antonio outfielder, is ahead in runs with 41. Frazier tops in doubles with 19. Nino Escalera of Tulsa in triples with six and Ed Bailey of Tulsa in home runs with 12.

Russ Burns of Oklahoma City has driven in the most runs, 34. Eight pitchers haven't lost a game. The winningest pitcher is Don Fracchia of Beaumont, who has a 7-1 record. The leader in strike-outs is Rinald Duren of San Antonio, 46.

Oscar Reguera Picks Up Win

SAN ANGELO, May 30 - The Big Spring Broncs headed for Odessa and a two-game series with the Longhorn League cellar dwellers after defeating the San Angelo Colts, 7-6, here Saturday night.

The two teams were in the thick of the field at 3 p. m. today. Big Spring stays in Odessa for a Monday night engagement before returning home Tuesday to face Midland.

Shoddy fielding on the part of the Colts paved the way for the Big Spring victory. Dick Stone, an infielder subbing for the injured Right Fielder Steve Follett, had two errors and misplayed three more potential out-into-Bronc base hits.

Victim was Gil Guerra who suffered his third defeat against four wins as his former teammates pounded him for 13 safeties, including four doubles and two triples.

The Broncs opened with four runs in the initial inning with five hits and a Stone error. Jess Jacinto opened with a double and scored when Stone misplayed George Murphy's fly that fell for a triple. Joe Riney singled Murphy home and moved to second when Stone could not pick up the ball.

But Big Spring came back for two runs in the eighth on a single by Riney, a double by Niedson and Diaz's single. Two Guerra balks also advanced runners, Riney scoring on one of them.

Galina, Malgarini and Burns hit safely three times for the Colts. RHO SPRING AB R H PO A

Pat Stacey New Batting Leader

The Longhorn League has a new batting leader this week. He is Pat Stacey, ex-Big Spring manager and now field boss of the Roswell team.

Stacey pushed his average to .526 in games through last Monday, replacing Midland's Art Bowland at the top. Bowland has a .459 mark.

STANDINGS

Table with columns: TEAM, W, L, Pct., GB. Lists Longhorn League teams and their records.

As a team, Midland is hitting .367, so Barber has his work cut out for him. No starting hurler has been able to go the route against the Roughnecks this year.

Traylor, who played his college football, was generally believed from the start that he would go to Baylor but Traylor would make no public decision other than to say several weeks ago that it had him figured down to either Baylor or Rice.

Traylor is a devout Baptist and his mother wanted him to go to Baylor and those were two reasons for his choosing the Baptist university.

The schoolboy star has not signed a letter of intent with Baylor but said he would do so as soon as the baseball season is over.

Harrison Fires 70 To Assume Lead

ST. LOUIS, May 30 (AP) - Dutch Harrison, fast becoming a master of Bellevue Country Club's troublesome hills and tight fairways, gained a one-stroke lead in the annual Western Open Golf Tournament with a par-matching 70 in today's third round.

The Ardmore, Okla., pro carded a 209 for the 54 holes to edge a tightly packed group of leaders as the Western goes into the final 18 holes tomorrow.

Tulsa's Skeet Riegel, posting a 69 today, moved into the No. 2 spot with a 210 total. Ed Furlong, the 36-hole leader, slipped to a 73 on the third round for a third-place 211.

Defending Champion Lloyd Mangrum is fourth at 212 with his second 71 today. Johnny Palmer and Freddie Has are tied for fifth with 213.

Traylor will play football and baseball at Baylor. His first football game as a Baylor freshman will be Oct. 1 when the Baylor Cubs play the Texas freshmen at Temple.

There had been speculation that Roy Chapman, the major target for Traylor in his passing, would go where Traylor went. But Chapman said he would attend the University of Texas.

Traylor's high school football career he played in 37 games, with 32 victories and five losses, two each to Baytown and Breckenridge and one to Austin.

Gasoline Storage Tanks And Loading Racks

Legislature Snubs Petroleum Industry And Oil Men Like It

By MAX B. SKELTON
AUSTIN, May 30 (AP)—There was a lot of talk but no record of the 53rd Legislature all but amounts to a snub of the oil and gas industry. Industry spokesmen say it is the type of snub they like. Only one oil and gas measure of any significance drew approval. It modifies statutes on mineral leasing of public lands, particularly in offshore areas. Probably no Legislature, except during the war, has so thoroughly ignored the industry. There normally is at least one major action such as a new or revised tax or a change or addition to conservation statutes. The session received numerous tax proposals affecting oil and gas but they never got out of committee. Also revived was the controversial issue of authorizing the Railroad Commission to establish gas prices. It never reached the floor after receiving Senate committee approval. Oil and gas taxes still are the backbone of the state's financial structure. No legislation was needed to extend the permanent tax rates on crude oil and natural gas production, 4.6 per cent of market value on crude and 5.72 per cent on natural gas. Revenues from crude are expected to approximate 120 million dollars, natural gas 20 million. Still on the books is the court-challenged gas gathering tax of 9-20th of a cent per 1,000 cubic feet. Its revenues have been piling up in the state treasury since September of 1951. The state Supreme Court, in effect, upheld the legality of the tax by declining to hear an appeal. Gas company plaintiffs have filed a motion for a rehearing. The case is expected to reach the U. S. Supreme Court. Such action could prevent a special session of the Legislature next year to distribute revenues accumulated from tax. Gov. Shivers has estimated about 45 million dollars would be available. As of May 1, the tax was being paid at a rate of about $1,100,000 a month, with all but about $100,000 being paid under protest. The public lands mineral leasing changes were approved only two days before adjournment. The bill establishes procedures for extension of leases under specified conditions. Land Commissioner Bascom Giles said the bill is of tremendous importance, particularly to future offshore exploration and development. "Anything that doesn't hurt the state and at the same time is good for the lease holders is good for the state," he said. The three main provisions of the bill include: 1. Conditions under which a lease may be extended where production has ceased for any cause, provided a well is being reworked or more drilling is on. 2. Conditions under which extensions may be granted for leases on which gas wells have been shut-in because of lack of a suitable market. Such extensions may run as long as five years beyond the expiration of the original five-year lease but with operators paying an annual fee of not less than $12,000 for each shut-in well. 3. Conditions under which extensions not to exceed 180 days may be granted for non-productive leases on which drilling is in progress at the end of the original five years. Giles said he thinks the penalty to be imposed for such an extension is reasonable. It amounts to $100 a day on leases of 640 acres or less and $200 a day on leases exceeding 640 acres. All the $200 penalties will be on offshore leases beyond the three-mile limit. Giles and other officials are studying the status of offshore leases granted prior to the state ownership dispute. President Eisenhower signed a bill quieting claims to the state submerged areas claimed by Texas. Before the ownership dispute developed, Texas had leased 434,797 acres of Gulf submerged land.

Maryneal Field To Get Offset
Seaboard Oil Company of Delaware staked a three-eighths mile south offset to Stanolind Oil & Gas Company No. 1-E TXL, recently completed discovery for the Maryneal (Cisco Sand) field of Southeast Nolan County. The test will be drilled as No. 1 R. H. Jordan. Drilling is 467 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 29, block 8, T&P survey. It is slated for a 4,500-foot bottom.

Andrews Wildcat Encounters Shows
Texas Company No. 1-H J. E. Parker, a central Andrews wildcat, has encountered some shows of oil and gas in samples from the San Andres Permian lime. Current bottom is 4,550 feet, and operator is preparing a drillstem to check the value of the petroleum finds. This wildcat is three miles north of the Parker field and three east of the Deep Rock field. Both areas produced in the San Andres formation. Texas Company No. 1-H Parker is 3/4ths of a mile north of Andrews, staked at 660 north and 726 east of lines, section 15, block A-48, P&L survey. The well was originally started to drill to 13,500 feet to test the Ellenburger. Irregardless of finds in the San Andres and other formations, operator will continue to drill till the Ellenburger is tested.

Midland Test To Set Casing, Try For Final

Magnolia Petroleum Company is preparing to set casing to make a production test in the Strawn lime of the Pennsylvanian on its No. 1 Ida Mae Oldham, northeast Midland County wildcat. The project bottom is 10,589 feet in the Lower Strawn, and elevation is 3,694 feet. First shows of oil and gas was found in the Strawn zone between 10,220 and 10,276 feet. The test was three hours and gas came to surface in 8 1/2 minutes. The gas volume is estimated to have been at the rate of 75,000 cubic feet per day. Recovery was 100 feet of gas-cut drilling mud and 90 feet of oil cut-mud. Gravity of oil was 38 degrees. Open flowing bottom hole pressure was 185 pounds, and after 15 minutes shut-in was 1,950. The best show came in a test at 10,225 to 10,311 feet, with the tool open three hours and 45 minutes. Gas came to surface in five minutes, and gas volume was estimated at the rate of 350,000 cubic feet per day. Recovery was 3,460 feet of 41 gravity oil, 420 feet of heavily gas cut and slightly oil cut mud, and 180 feet of salt water. Open hole bottom hole pressure was between 1,405 and 1,980 pounds and shut-in pressure was 4,000. The operator has experienced some trouble in keeping well under control because of gas pressure. Drilling mud has kicked out at surface at frequent intervals, and operator decided to drill into lower Strawn and set casing so test could be carried on without taking any chance of developing trouble from kicking gas. If test in Strawn should fail for commercial production, the Devonian will be tested, or at least down to 11,000 feet. Located 10 miles east of Midland and three miles southeast of Paul, the well is staked 660 from north and west lines, section 38, block 37, T&P survey. The prospect is two miles north-west of the nearest production in the Germaniah section of the Spraberry.

Area Has Four Completions In The Past Week

Four area oil well completions were reported during the past week for a combined potential of 393.92 barrels of oil. One wildcat location was staked. Three of the completions were in Mitchell County and the other was in Dawson County. The wildcat venture is in Howard. The week was started off with pay from Sun No. 3 McCabe in the North Jameson (Strawn Sand) area of Mitchell County. Potential was 123.45 barrels of 44.1 gravity oil. Gas-oil ratio was 1,000-1, and choke was 13-64th of an inch. Flow was from 5,914 to 6,949 feet. Location is C NW SE, 225-1A-H&TC survey. The Dawson completion, Cities Production Corporation No. 3 Aynesworth, was announced next with a pumping potential of 70.50 barrels of 33 gravity oil from zone between 4,795 and 4,935 feet. The venture, C NW NW, 86-M-EL&RR, is in the Welch field. Humble No. 1 James Truock, C NW NW, 6-28-13-T&P survey, South Westbrock wildcat of Mitchell, pumped 115.71 barrels of 27 gravity oil in 24 hours from open hole between 3,041 and 3,107 feet. The fourth producer was Humble No. 2 Lucy Coleman, located in the North Coleman Ranch (Clear Fork) area. It pumped 84.26 barrels of 27 gravity oil from open hole between 3,049 and 3,104 feet. Gas-oil ratio was 65-1. Location is C SE NW, 78-97-H&TC survey. Howard County's new wildcat—Texas and Pacific Coal and Oil Company No. 1-A Tom Spence—is located 14 miles north of Big Spring. It is to drill by rotary to 9,500 feet. Location is C NE NW, 14-32-T&P survey.

Stanolind Spots Another Project In Winfield Area

Stanolind Oil & Gas Company spotted location for another project in the Winfield (Ellenburger) field of Northeast Borden County. Friday and changed lease designation for an active test in the area. The new project is No. 3-A R. H. Jordan, 2,006 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 579, block 97, H&TC survey and three miles northwest of the town of Fluvanna. It is slated for an 8,700-foot bottom. Stanolind changed lease designation on No. 2 R. H. Jordan to make it No. 2-A R. H. Jordan. Site is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 578, block 97, H&TC survey and three miles northwest of the town of Fluvanna.

Martin Venture Is Trying To Clear Pay Area Of Water

Pan American Production Company and associates No. 6 F. D. Bredelove and others, stepout from production in the Bredelove (Devonian) field of Northwest Martin County is trying to shut off water from below the pay section. This project drilled to a bottom of 12,180 feet. It found water in the lower section. A string of 5 1/2-inch casing was cemented on bottom. That pipe was then perforated at 12,153-156 feet. Some shows of oil were swabbed out and some water came from the lower zone. Operators are now preparing to perforate the pipe between 12,156 and 12,170 feet and squeeze cement into that zone to try to eliminate the water. If and when that is done the thin oil pay section above the water will be tested to try to develop commercial production. Location is 4,620 feet from south and 660 feet from east line of league 258, Briccone County School Land survey. The project is 1 3/4 miles northwest of Tarzan.

North Coleman Gets A Third Producer

Humble Oil & Refining Company No. 2 Lucy M. Coleman has been completed as the third producer in the North Coleman Ranch (Clear Fork) field. The new oiler was finished for a daily pumping potential of 84.26 barrels of oil plus 1.5 per cent water from open hole pay at 3,049-3,104 feet. Gravity of the oil is 27 and gas-oil ratio was 65-1. Location is 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 78, block 97, H&TC survey.

Gas, Free Oil Found On Test

Flowing gas and free oil have been developed on two drillstem tests in Plymouth Oil Company No. 2 Thomerson, south offset to the opener of the one-well Tom-nail (Strawn) field of Northeast Schleicher County. Latest test was from 5,309 to 5,320 feet. Tool was open 90 minutes. Gas surfaced in 11 minutes at the estimated rate of 100,000 cubic feet per day. Operator reversed out 18 barrels of oil and three barrels of mud-cut oil which was estimated to be 80 per cent oil. Flowing pressure was from 25 to 215 pounds and 15-minute shut-in pressure 1,795 pounds. Operator started taking electric logs after the above test. A previous drillstem test was taken from 5,296 to 5,309 feet. Tool was open 93 minutes. Gas surfaced in 19 minutes at the estimated rate of 150,000 cubic feet per day. Operator reversed out one-half barrel of free oil and three barrels of heavily oil and gas-cut mud. Recovery below sub was 30 feet of free oil. Flowing pressure was 185 pounds and 23-minute shut-in pressure was 1,820 pounds. The Strawn was topped by samples at 5,260 feet, elevation 2,441 feet. Operator plans to drill 10 feet from 5,320 feet, run pipe and test for completion.

Cosden No. 1 Lee Hunt, a step-out to the Durham field in Sterling County, is still testing zone between 688 and 698 feet. Operator is trying to make a producer from the zone, which has been identified as Yates sand. The Crawford well is two miles east of Big Spring between Lovers Lane and Cosden Refinery. It has had good shows around 7,000 feet, but is slated to drill to the Ellenburger around 9,700 feet. Location is C SW SW, 47-32-13-T&P survey. The Hunt venture, 990 from south and east of lines, section 2, block T, T&P survey, Sterling County, has casing set at 679 feet, and oil shows have been found in the freakish Yates sand.

Chamber Board To Talk Improvements

Dr. R. B. G. Cowper, Chamber of Commerce president, is slated to lead a discussion on proposed city-wide improvements when the Chamber directorate meets in regular session Monday at noon.

The Chamber leader is to open the talks with suggestion of what civil improvements the organization might incorporate in its 1953-54 program of work, according to agenda for the session announced
Saturday by J. H. Greene, C-C manager.

H. W. Whitney, a Chamber director and city manager, is to discuss the private aviation situation, as he sees it for Big Spring following a conference last week with Charlie Holderbaum, CAA airport engineer. Whitney, Airport Manager Barney Edens and Aviation Committee Chairman Jack Cook met with Holderbaum last week to discuss what the CAA considers minimum requirements for a commercial airport.

The city manager is expected to report on the conference as well as discuss other municipal airport problems and possibilities.
Date probably will be set for the Chamber's annual membership barbecue during the meeting. Roy Bruce, chairman of a committee named to study plans for the membership function, is to report to directors.

Sam A. McComb, chief of State Highway Department forces here and chairman of the Chamber Clean-Up Committee, will submit a report on the spring clean-up drive. Other reports and announcements are scheduled for the lunchcon meeting.
The first June session of the directorate will be held at the Settles Hotel.

Two City Court Cases Appealed

Two cases appealed from City
Court were filed in Howard County
Court just before closing time Friday. Both cases concerned charges of speeding.

Appealing were Ray Lewis Dabney, son of G. W. Dabney, and Christene Hoglund, 707 Johnson.
Dabney was fined $50 and Mrs.
Hoglund's fine was $25.

Dabney appealed his case when Judge W. E. Greenlees fined him
$50 for driving at excessive speed.
Although Dabney pleaded guilty in City Court, he appealed on grounds that the fine was too high.

Another man pleading guilty to speeding during the same day was fined $10. Dabney posted $200 bond until the trial is held in County Court. Clyde E. Thomas is his lawyer.

Mrs. Hoglund did not appear in court, but her attorney—G. J. Jones —pleaded not guilty in the city trial. Judge Greenlees found her guilty. She posted a $50 bond until trial in County Court.

Complaint was brought against
Mrs. Hoglund by Claude H. Montgomery, who alleges he chased the car after a rock had been thrown at him. He alleges Mrs. Hoglund's car was going so fast he could not catch it.

REFRESHMENTS, TOO—Could be that the sno-cone is more important to Brenda Jo Boggs, 5, than the activity on the diamond. But the game holds the interest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Van Boggs, sitting on either side of her. The woman next to Mrs. Boggs is unidentified.

DATE WITH GRANDPA—Little Susan Miller, 2½, makes a good date for her grandfather, Bart Wilkinson, at a Ladies' Night affair at the ball park. Susan's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Dean Miller of Albuquerque, but for now, she's a Big Spring fan.

The Great American Pastime...

Warm summer nights . . . a team that may "boot it away" one game and play like the New York Yankees the next . . . sensational catches and long homers . . . or ludicrous errors and strikeouts . . . arguments with the umpires . . . all these things contribute to the attraction of baseball, still the "great American pastime." Big Springers, too, find interest in the action of the Big Spring Broncs in the Longhorn League, and some of the fans on a typical game night are pictured on this page. Maybe their club is having misfortunes, but many of their followers remain loyal. After all, there is always hope for the next game. And that keeps a baseball fan a fan.

AFTER-HOURS' FUN—Betty Gulte, left, and Frieda Gappa both are hospital employees, and after strenuous duties they find relaxation and enjoyment at the ball game. Some experts of the game will tell you the women fans are more vociferously loyal to their favorite players than are the men.

Miss Harper Is Honored

Claudette Harper, bride-elect of Leonard Hartley, was honored Friday evening with a bridal shower in the home of Mrs. Bud Petty, 1809 Johnson.

Co-hostesses were Mrs. D. P. Day and Mrs. R. G. Burnett.

In the receiving line with the honoree were her mother, Mrs. Claude Harper, and the hostesses.

The refreshment table, laid with a white lace cloth, was centered with an arrangement of yellow daisies flanked by white candles in crystal holders. Mrs. Sovoy Kay and Mrs. Don Lockhart served.

Jeannette Petty presided at the guest register and Mrs. Jim Harper displayed the gifts. About 30 attended.

Ceil Chapman Designs For Queen Elizabeth

Ceil Chapman makes her curtsy to the Throne of England by presenting her "Coronation" dress to H. R. H. Queen Elizabeth II for whom it was exclusively designed. The inspiration for this dress was a B. G. E. Originals reproduction of an authentic Elizabethan button . . . an enamel flower motif bordered by diamonds and rubies. Simulated copies of this button have been manufactured for home sewers.

To match her Majesty's royal blue eyes, the material is of Windsor-blue peau de soie (similar to surrah silk). Inspired after the Queen's elegantly quiet taste, the top is completely plain . . . fit to form up to its high little stand-up collar; the back top is bloused full over a back-midriff waistline and the skirt is full. Please use the guide below which represents body measurements used by this designer:

Bust	Waist	Hips*	Size

CAMPUS CHATTER

By Darlene Sneed

This year's college term is over as all exams were completed Friday afternoon. Students will be returning to their homes in various cities. They will be getting jobs, going to summer school, or vacationing. Many instructors will be going to college to work toward higher degrees.

The school term was topped off by the annual sophomore-freshman prom Friday night. The prom given by the freshman class in honor of the sophomore class was in the college library. A good luck theme was carried out. Over the fireplace at the far end of the dance room were two big green clovers and a big horseshoe with a banner "Good Luck, Sophs" written in green. The French doors leading out on to the veranda were opened and green and white streamers fluttered in the breeze. Flowers decked all the windows and balloons hung from the ceiling. Two spot lights lit the floor. Refreshments were served during the intermission. An orchestra furnished dance music.

Some of the kids having a swell time were Sue Hill and Elvon DeVaney, Peggy Brooks and Ceil Gilstrap, Lou Ann Nall and Billy Wayne King, Sue Love and Ed Hartman, Marie Petty and Lonnie Muse, Darlene Sneed and Jerry Fowler, Minnie Ola Woods, and Johnny Johnson, Willie Dickson and John Hilary Brown, Jewel Jewel Stroud and J. D. Moore, Cysaether Wood and Gwendell White, Dallas Williams, Cassey Jones, Sam Dareshari, Vancell Scott, Diana Farquhar, Sue Lauderdale, Mary Stevens, Hector Long, Donald Wren, Harold Ross, Chop Van Pelt, Jerry Brooks, Jimmy Shoults, Charlie Creighton, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Holbert, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Thomas and B. M. Kesse.

A group of girls went to San Angelo last Sunday to swim. Although several girls were uncomfortably sunburned they had a very good time. Those who went were Nan McGahy, Voncill Rhon, Barbara Blair, Cecil Niblett, Beverly Jones, Mary Sue White, Darlene Sneed, Sue Love, Jonell West, Lynelle and Lynn Thomas.

Mary Sue White and Doyle Mason are on a fishing trip to Buchanan Lake. Mrs. Floyd White accompanied them.

Baccalaureate services for the sophomores of the college will be held tonight in the college auditorium. The college choir, under the direction of Elizabeth Cope, will give several musical selections. Dr. P. D. O'Brien will deliver the message.

The graduation and awards banquet will be tomorrow night in the high school cafeteria. Athletes will receive their letters and sophomores will receive their diplomas. This is the last column for this school term, and I would like to say that I certainly hope that I have brought you enough of the goings on at Howard County Junior College to keep you informed of our activities.

Ladies Are Guests At ABC Club Lunch

Members of the XYZ Club were special guests when the ABC Club met Friday at noon at the Settles Hotel.

Mrs. J. D. Jones, a member of the guest club, was in charge of the musical program given by students of Betty Farrar.

O. C. Shapland, a new member, was introduced by Coy Nalley.

The nominating committee, (past presidents), presented a slate of officers for the next six months. Election will be held the second Friday in June.

June has been set aside as New Member Month and L. D. Chrane, chairman of the membership committee, asked each member to bring a prospective member with him to the meetings during the month.

Mrs. Elton Gilliland won the door prize. Attending were 36 ABC Club members and 18 members of the XYZ Club.

BLESS HIS HEART!

Even Old Faithful . . . the Air Conditioner didn't bargain for the gosh-awful task of keeping folks cool this past week, and he swears he's going to pieces if we don't come through with a little help!

Our idea is to cool the inside of the house with lighter fabrics . . . SO down goes the heavy draperies . . . and up floats Chromspun's Sun-Fast sheers in filmy glass curtains!

Ice blue, rose haze and buttercup yellow are only a few of the cooler colors chosen for these fabrics that let the breezes in.

Regular Exercise For Development Of Bust

By LYDIA LANE

HOLLYWOOD — Hollywood has watched Terry Moore grow up. The list of stars she played with as a child actress is impressive. That she knew her job well no one questioned, but Hollywood was surprised to find a grown-up and sexy Terry in "Come Back Little Sheba."

"I had such a hard time getting away from being typed too young," Terry told me as we lunched at 62th Century-Fox. "It was awful to keep playing fifteen-year-olds. I wanted to read for the girl in 'Come Back Little Sheba' but my agent wouldn't take me over to Paramount. He told me, 'They don't want a sweet young thing like you, they want someone sexy.'"

Miss Moore smiled and added: "So I did it on my own and as soon as they saw my test they gave me the part."

Terry's blue linen dress which matched her eyes was cut to show such a well developed bust that I asked: "Have you ever done any exercises to build up your chest?"

Much to my surprise she answered: "Yes. In 'Man on a Tightrope' I had an act in the ring with trained horses and I had to work with a whip in each hand. I snapped one as a signal for the lead horse and the other for the last horse. I practiced this for two hours every day, and before the picture was over I had added two inches to my bust measurements."

Terry laughed, "I wondered why all my clothes were too tight."

"I am sure a lot of girls will want to give themselves a similar workout," I suggested.

"You can develop your pectoral muscles in a much easier way," Terry exclaimed. "The breast stroke will do it."

"If you don't have a pool you're out of luck," I commented.

"No, you can fake it," Terry explained, "if you lie across a bed with your arms and shoulders free and pretend to swim."

"There is another one which is awfully good—take a rope or a piece of garden hose, put it around and the main thing is to keep it natural-looking. When you can see what you are doing it's no good."

"I like to have flat sides on my eyebrow pencil instead of a round point because I can make a finer line this way. I draw one close to my upper lashes and extend it

MORE BEAUTY NEWS

Terry's advice will be helpful when you plan your beauty routine. For some additional tips on beauty and glamour, why not order the following leaflets by number:

a little at the end. The lower lashes I fill in with little dots."

Terry bent over to show me because across the table it was not evident.

"I hate to see eyebrows pencilled. If your eyebrows are too light, use mascara on them and if they are too thin fill them in with little strokes that look like hairs," she explained.

"Mine are naturally thick and the main problem is to keep them in line. I brush them every night with oil so that they stay soft."

"There should be a balance in your face between your eyes and mouth. I prefer pink lipsticks. And in the hot weather I keep mine in the icebox so they won't get too soft."

Lunch-Time Beauty Chat

Terry Moore, left, tells Lydia Lane how she added two inches to her bust measurements. The 20th Century-Fox star also talks about make-up and voice.

MRS. H. S. GWYN AND MARY PATRICIA

Gwyns Switch From Damp To Dry Climate

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Gwyn and Mary Patricia, 1414 Sycamore, have gone from one extreme to the other. At least as far as weather conditions are concerned, since the family moved from damp Houston to dry Big Spring.

Arriving here a short time ago, the group finds the climate change agreeable. Gwyn, a Houston native, is the new Gulf distributor here.

His wife, whom he married three years ago, is from Lockhart and the Gwyns lived in Beaumont one and a half years before moving to Houston.

Blood "Trish" is the apple of her parents' eye. She listens eagerly each afternoon for the ice cream man to come by. He drives according to her, a "nooney bus," which in a two-year-old's vocabulary simply means music bus.

The little girl hasn't figured out just yet what the man driving the "nooney bus" is doing moving slowly down the street, but it won't be long.

Mrs. Gwyn likes to play tennis when she has the time but since the arrival of her cute daughter, her time has definitely been limited. Her husband likes to hunt, fish and play golf. He also likes to build things. Perhaps the most professional job he's done is a hobby horse he made for his daughter. Painted a bright red, the horse is complete even to the name inscribed on the side.

MRS. JAMES Y. BUTTS

Pat Taylor, James Butts Are Wed In Double Ring Ceremony Saturday

Pat Taylor became the bride of James Y. Butts in a formal, double ring ceremony Saturday evening at 8 p.m.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Perry Taylor of Overton and Mrs. Violet Lindley, 902 Douglas.

The Rev. Ray Roach, pastor, officiated at the ceremony at the First Baptist Church in Overton. Greenery and pink tapers formed the background for the ceremony. The altar was decorated with baskets of white gladiolus, stock and Maroon daisies.

Mrs. Howard Dobbs of Dallas, organist, played the traditional wedding marches and "Clair de Lune," "Liebstrum," "Ave Maria," during the ceremony. "I Love You Truly" and Rubinstein's "Romance."

She also accompanied Perry Taylor of Fort Worth, brother of the bride, who sang "At Dawning" at the close of the ceremony as the couple knelt on a prie-dieu, lined with gardenias, he sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Entering on the arm of her father, the bride wore a frosty white Chantilly lace and nylon tulle gown. The deep round neckline featured a shallow yoke of sheer illusion and short capped sleeves. Long fitted lace gauntlets extended to petal points over her hands. The fitted bodice extended into floor length panels in front and back of the nylon tulle tiered bouffant skirt. Tiny lace covered buttons cascaded down the back on the dress and the lace swept into a chapel-length trail.

Her veil of two full tiers of imported bridal illusion was caught to a pointed lace half hat trimmed in rows of tiny seed pearls.

She carried an arrangement of lilies of the valley surrounding a white orchid on a Bible.

The bride's only jewelry was a strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Arnold Cohagen of Overton was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Bill Barton of Gladewater and Mrs. Perry Taylor of Fort Worth.

The attendants were identically attired in waltz-length gowns of pink imported embroidered organdy. The dresses were designed with rounded off-the-shoulder necklines. They wore pink necklaces, gifts of the bride, matching pink velvet headresses with single flowers over each ear. They carried arm bouquets of pink carnations tied with satin streamers.

Jack Crenshaw of Big Spring served as best man. Groomsmen were Ell McComb, Kelly McCormick and Robert Coffee, all of Big Spring.

Loyce and Boyce Odom of Overton, four-year-old twins, served as flower girl and ring bearer respectively. The little flower girl was attired in a white imported organdy dress designed similarly to the bride's. She carried a chenille and satin basket filled with white petals. The ring bearer carried the rings on a white satin pillow.

Nancy Brown and Betty Gauthreaux, in pink net evening dresses, lighted the candles.

When the couple left on a wedding trip to an undisclosed point, Mrs. Butts chose a black two-piece French cotton dress trimmed in white pique. She wore a white pique hat and carried matching gloves. Other accessories were in black patent and she had an orchid corsage.

Upon their return, the couple will make their home at 710 Edwards Blvd. in Big Spring.

The bride is a graduate of Kilgore Junior College, where she was a member of the Rangerettes, and vice president of Sans-Souci Sorority. She is a graduate of the University of Texas, where she was a Blue Bonnet Belle nominee. She also attended the University of Colorado, Boulder, and before her marriage taught in the New London Elementary School.

Her husband is a graduate of the University of Texas and attended Colorado College, Colorado Springs. He is employed by Cosden.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents.

Assisting the couple in receiving the guests were their parents. The refreshment table, laid with a white satin and net cloth, was centered with an arrangement of white snapdragons and white roses with satin streamers extending from the arrangement to the edge of the table. Two three-branched candelabra flanked the scene.

Mrs. Curtis Tate served the three-tiered wedding cake. Elizabeth McRay and Mrs. Ray Roach alternated at the punch bowl.

Other members of the house party were Mrs. R. L. McAdoo, Mrs. Ed Naul, Mrs. Albert Hurst, Florence Cone and Mrs. R. L. Dean.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding included Betty Dobbs of Dallas, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Hickman of Garland, Mr. and Mrs. John Riley of Baytown, Mr. and Mrs. Louie Reynolds of Longview, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Dean of Tyler and Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Porter of Kilgore.

The Eagles were kind enough to give the seniors use of the Eagle Lodge for a dance after graduation. Some of the couples seen at the dance were Janie Anderson, Frank Hunt, Shirley Wheat, Bobby Hayworth, Kay Richbourg, Robert Merworth, Rosemary Lawson, Dick Fort, and Sally Baber, Buddy McDaniel.

Another graduation party was held in the home of Junior Suter. Those attending the party were Doyle Mason, Mary Sue White, Charles Fox, Judy Douglass, Bill Dorsey, Nan Farquhar, John Lawrence, Libby Jones, and Junior Suter, Sandy Swartz.

Members of the senior class of Forsan High visited the famed Royal Gorge near Canon City, Colo., on their class trip to southern Colorado.

At the Royal Gorge, they crossed the world's highest bridge (1,100 feet above the Arkansas River and Rio Grande railroad) and rode the world's steepest incline railway (100 per cent grade). Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Monrovey and Merritt Romans were sponsors on the trip.

Birthdays Can Be Key To Colors

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

Today's women know how to groom themselves so that they look younger, smarter and prettier than ever before in history—but when it comes to decorating their homes, says Frances Lee, veteran New York decorator, many of them are dopes. She explains:

"Most women seem to get an attack of stage fright the minute they try to plan a color scheme for a room or a home. They can't remember what colors go together, where to use warm tones, why to use cool tones or what combinations will create a restful effect. As a result they accept blindly the advice of the furniture salesman, the drapery salesman, the carpet salesman and all their friends. The result usually is a hodge-podge that is due excuse for divorce."

Miss Lee, in private life the wife of William Walker Kennedy, Manhattan stock broker, has a solution. She calls it Colorscope, and she unveiled it at the annual show of American Institute of Decorators. Says she:

"It's all done by birthdays. The flower and the birthstone of each month in the year are used as color keys to form the basic scheme of decoration. Suppose your birthday comes in April. The April birthstone is the diamond and the flower is the sweet pea. A beautiful color scheme for a bedroom or living room could be worked out using pale "diamond blue" for walls and carpet, with accents of all the sweet pea tones, ranging from pale pink through flame to mauve, in draperies, upholstery and bric-a-brac."

Miss Lee plans to issue a "color scheme of the month" pamphlet series, showing how the birthstone and flower of each month may be utilized in home decoration. Color sketches of four possible room plans, with various combinations of the month's birth colors, will be included.

NEW COLUMN FOR THE TEEN-AGERS STARTS THIS WEEK IN THE HERALD

A new column for and about the teen-agers' will start in The Herald this week.

The new feature will be "Date Data," authored by Beverly Brandow, and will appear three times weekly.

It will have to do with those myriad items of interest to the young set, giving tips on proper social behavior, ways to have fun with the gang and at parties, discussion of various problems that beset the teen-ager.

Miss Brandow is a Texas girl, still young enough to be thoroughly familiar with what interests and troubles the teen-ager, and old enough to discuss with them on a mature basis. She writes just the way the young folks will like—no "preaching," but frank and honest discussions.

Young people are going to enjoy and appreciate "Date Data," and their parents are going to be interested in reading the column, too. They will find much basis for discussion in parent-child confabs.

"Date Data" will definitely be a help to the young folk. They are encouraged to be regular readers of it in The Herald.

Miss Churrol Smith and Mary Ann Goss are interested spectators as Will Berry, Cuthbert farmer, shows part of his collection of guns and other historic relics. Berry has one of the largest collections of pioneer and Indian lore in the area. (Photo by Goss).

Will Berry, Cuthbert Farmer, Has A Top Museum Of His Own

By TOM JAY GOSS II
 COLORADO CITY—Mitchell County's top museum is not in the Court House, or the Colorado City Hall—nor indeed in Colorado City at all. One of the best collections of pioneer lore and Indian artifacts in this end of West Texas is the private collection belonging to Will Berry, Cuthbert farmer.

Berry's farm lies about 10 miles northwest of Colorado City, a mile off of Farm-to-Market-Road 1229, and about two miles east of Cuthbert, Texas.

His collection includes everything from a 16th century Arab rifle to arms and ammunition of World War II vintage. It was acquired by purchase, barter (the Arab rifle was acquired from an exhibit in Dallas for a collection of rattlesnake rattles) and from friends.

He had hoped that someday his collection might be housed in a public museum in Colorado City, but if neither the city or county is interested, it may go to Texas Tech. Of course, if any of his grandchildren are interested in the project, it will probably remain in the Berry family.

Berry was born in Ludington, Michigan in 1883 and moved to Terrell, Texas in 1891. In 1900, the family moved to West Texas and lived in a house at the same spot where Berry lives now, though the old house is no longer standing and Berry built over the site in 1917.

Berry's father, W. E. Berry, was a globe-trotter and had lived in many countries of the world, but settled down in West Texas as a stockfarmer. He was an early day columnist of the Colorado Record. Berry says that he actively began collecting material for his museum in 1930, and he built "Hillcrest," a one room rock building to house it in 1934. Since that time, he has acquired thousands of items, ranging from points with which the Indians killed wild turkeys to a pair of the trucks from Colorado City's street car line, which operated in 1884. He acquired the latter from Lansing Rhodes who lived near Hillcrest many years ago.

A prize of his collection is a 44 caliber rimfire Henry rifle, which he believes to be Custer's gun.

"This was one of the finest guns ever made," he says "and was made and patented by Tyler Henry in 1858." Henry, a Scottish gunsmith, is said to have sold his patents to Winchester in 1860.

The rifle has a hardwood stock, is silver plated and beautifully hand carved, and was supposed to have been presented to Custer by friends.

After his death, the rifle was supposed to have passed into the hands of Wild Bill Hickok and was later owned by Old Joe Clark of Missouri. The rifle was purchased from Joe Clark Jr., in 1924, in San Angelo.

Another gun in his collection is a flintlock dating back to Pilgrim days, inscribed Damas Turr on top of the bellmouthed barrel.

Sold to Berry as a deer hunting rifle by a pawnbroker in Fort Worth is a Winchester '73.

Other guns in the Berry collection are the rifle with which J. Wright Moore killed an albino buffalo, near Seven Wells, and an old

Smith and Wesson with five notches on a worn ivory handle, found near an old Sam Bass hideout on the Trinity.

Berry also owns a picture, which once hung in Colorado City's first Courthouse. Mitchell County's first Courthouse lasted only a few years, and was torn down in 1884, supposedly because some early day merchant baron said it cut off his view to the northwest. At any rate, the Courthouse was moved from the middle of Oak Street to a corner of the block on which the third Courthouse now stands.

He also has hundreds of arrowheads, a 32 can gun, several sets of worn ox shoes, tusks and teeth of mastodons found in Morgan Creek, an old iron from an early day City Chinese Laundry, an album on frontier toughs, high topped shoes, rattlesnake hides and rattles, an object which is supposed to be a dinosaur egg, and hundreds of other articles.

People from all over the United States drop by to see his collections, and Hillcrest is frequently visited by groups of schoolchildren and Scouts from the Mitchell County area.

He enjoys showing them about Hillcrest, with its many interesting items, and his only admission charge is the interest of his visitors.

Astronomers discovered recently that all stellar systems beyond the earth's own galaxy, the Milky Way, are twice as far away as was previously supposed.

District Court Term Will Open In Stanton

STANTON—District Judge Charles Sullivan has called a meeting of the Martin County Grand Jury for 10 a.m. Monday.

Charges against five individuals will be considered by the grand jury. District Attorney Elton Gilliland said he is ready to present evidence against all five.

Cases to be considered by the grand jury will be that of Dewey L. West, charged with forgery; Andy Leonard, charged with passing hot checks; J. W. Barber, Negro, charged with burglary; and Ace Warren, Negro, charged with burglary.

Sheriff Dan Saunders has also gathered evidence to be presented against an individual charged with forgery, Gilliland said.

Judge Sullivan stated that all contested criminal cases will be tried during the week of June 8. Civil cases to come up will also be tried that week, he said. Docket will be called Monday.

West, who now lives in Hot Springs, Ark., is charged with giving Mrs. W. S. McDonald a $184.57 check on the First National Bank in Stanton. The check Mrs. McDonald received bounced when she tried to cash it.

Leonard, who now lives in Big Spring, is charged with passing a number of hot checks. Warren and Barber are charged jointly with breaking in Etheridge and Rhodes Motor Company in Stanton. Warren is also charged with burglarizing Webb Grocery, and Barber with breaking in the Co-op Gin. Both Warren and Barber have past records.

Candidates for degrees will include 37 for the Bachelor of Business Administration, 81 for the Bachelor of Science, 72 for the Bachelor of Arts, 9 for the Bachelor of Music, 10 for the Master of Education, 2 for the Master of Science, one Master of Music, five Masters of Arts, and three Honorary Doctorates.

Those receiving the honorary degrees will be E. Hagby Atwood, professor of English at Texas University, Lawrence Fitzgerald, director of youth publications for the American Baptist Publications Society, and William B. White, president of Baylor University.

The Master of Science degree is a new degree, granted for the first time at this commencement, according to Alton B. Lee, registrar.

Rev. Fitzgerald, who is to receive one of the honorary degrees, will be the baccalaureate speaker. A graduate of HSU himself, Fitzgerald's son, Lawrence Jr., is in the 1953 graduating class.

Brig. General Robert J. Smith, the president of Pioneer Air Lines and former vice president of the National Security Resources, will give the commencement address Monday morning.

Among candidates for degrees from the Big Spring area are Gaynelle Holcomb, BA; Patsy John Edwards, BS; Zelta Ann Kelly, BS; and Daphni Janice King, BS; all of Lamesa. George Truett Rogers, BA; Roby Bert Scrivner, BA; Pauline Williams, BA; and Regina Dennis, BBA, all of Midland. Earl Henry Cook, BA, of Westhook.

District Court Term Will Open In Stanton

STANTON—District Judge Charles Sullivan has called a meeting of the Martin County Grand Jury for 10 a. m. Monday.

Charges against five individuals will be considered by the grand jury. District Attorney Elton Gilliland said he is ready to present evidence against all five.

Cases to be considered by the grand jury will be that of Dewey L. West, charged with forgery; Andy Leonard, charged with passing hot checks; J. W. Barber, Negro, charged with burglary; and Ace Warren, Negro, charged with burglary.

Sheriff Dan Saunders has also gathered evidence to be presented against an individual charged with forgery, Gilliland said.

Judge Sullivan stated that all contested criminal cases will be tried during the week of June 8. Civil cases to come up will also be tried that week, he said. Docket will be called Monday.

West, who now lives in Hot Springs, Ark., is charged with giving Mrs. W. S. McDonald a $184.37 check on the First National Bank in Stanton. The check Mrs. McDonald received bounced when she tried to cash it.

Leonard, who now lives in Big Spring, is charged with passing a number of hot checks. Warren and Barber are charged jointly with breaking in Etheridge and Rhodes Motor Company in Stanton. Warren is also charged with burglarizing Webb Grocery, and Barber with breaking in the Co-op Gin. Both Warren and Barber have past records.

Dr. Hunt Gets PHD At Texas

Dr. W. A. Hunt, Howard County Junior College president, received his Doctor of Philosophy degree Saturday during commencement ceremonies at the University of Texas Graduate School.

Dr. Hunt completed work on requirements for the degree last summer, shortly before assuming duties as HCJC president. The Ph.D. degree was not conferred until Saturday, however, because the school traditionally confers the doctorate only at spring commencement.

The HCJC president majored in junior college administration and his dissertation dealt with a phase of that field.

The son of the founder of McMurry College in Abilene, Dr. Hunt received his Bachelor's degree from McMurry and his Master's from the University of Texas. He served on the faculty at Texas University last summer.

A total of 142 doctoral degrees were conferred by the Texas Graduate School Saturday. The class was the largest in the school's history.

Additional Diseases Reported In Week

Communicable diseases report of the Big Spring-Howard County Health Unit for the past week was expanded to include scarlet fever, infectious hepatitis, and virus infection, diseases not listed on other recent reports.

There were three cases of hepatitis, one of scarlet fever, and two of virus infection.

Measles remained at the top of the list with 38 cases. Second was diarrhea with 27.

Also diagnosed by local physicians during the week were 12 cases of mumps, 13 of chicken pox, three of influenza, 22 of strep throat, 16 of tonsillitis and pharyngitis, two of gonorrhea, one of tuberculosis, two of pneumonia, and eight cases of bronchitis.

Will Berry, Cuthbert Farmer, Has A Top Museum Of His Own

By TOM JAY GOSS II

COLORADO CITY—Mitchell County's top museum is not in the Court House, or the Colorado City Hall—nor indeed in Colorado City at all. One of the best collections of pioneer lore and Indian artifacts in this end of West Texas is the private collection belonging to Will Berry, Cuthbert farmer.

Berry's farm lies about 10 miles northwest of Colorado City, a mile off of Farm-to-Market-Road 1229 and about two miles east of Cuthbert, Texas.

His collection includes everything from a 18th century Arab rifle to arms and ammunition of World War II vintage. It was acquired by purchase, barter (the Arab rifle was acquired from an exhibit in Dallas for a collection of rattlesnake rattles) and from friends.

He had hoped that someday his collection might be housed in a public museum in Colorado City, but if neither the city or county is interested, it may go to Texas Tech. Of course, if any of his grandchildren are interested in the project, it will probably remain in the Berry family.

Berry was born in Ludington, Michigan in 1883 and moved to Terrell, Texas in 1901. In 1906, the family moved to West Texas and lived in a house at the same spot where Berry lives now, though the old house is no longer standing and Berry built over the site in 1917.

Berry's father, W. E. Berry, was a globetrotter and had lived in many countries of the world, but settled down in West Texas as a stockfarmer. He was an early day columnist of the Colorado Record. Berry says that he actively began collecting material for his museum in 1930, and he built "Hillcrest," a one room rock building to house it in 1934. Since that time, he has acquired thousands of items, ranging from points with which the Indians killed wild turkeys to a pair of the trucks from Colorado City's street car line, which operated in 1884. He acquired the latter from Lansing Rhodes who lived near Hillcrest many years ago.

A prize of his collection is a 44-caliber rimfire Henry rifle, which he believes to be Custer's gun.

"This was one of the finest guns ever made," he says "and was made and patented by Tyler Henry in 1858." Henry, a Scottish gunsmith, is said to have sold his patents to Winchester in 1867.

The rifle has a hardwood stock, is silver plated and beautifully hand carved, and was supposed to have been presented to Custer by friends. After his death, the rifle was supposed to have passed into the hands of Wild Bill Hickok and was later owned by Old Joe Clark of Missouri. The rifle was purchased from Joe Clark Jr., in 1934, in San Angelo.

Another gun in his collection is a flintlock dating back to Pilgrim days, inscribed Damas Tur on top of the bellmouthed barrel.

Sold to Berry as a deer hunting rifle by a pawnbroker in Fort Worth is a Winchester '73.

Other guns in the Berry collection are the rifle with which J. Wright Moore killed an albino buffalo near Seven Wells, and an old

Smith and Wesson with five notches on a worn ivory handle, found near an old Sam Bass hideout on the Trinity.

Berry also owns a picture, which once hung in Colorado City's first Courthouse, Mitchell County's first Courthouse lasted only a few years, and was torn down in 1884, supposedly because some early day merchant baron said it cut off his view to the northwest. At any rate, the Courthouse was moved from the middle of Oak Street to a corner of the block on which the third Courthouse now stands.

He also has hundreds of arrowheads, a 32 cal gun, several sets of worn ox shoes, tusks and teeth of mastodons found in Morgan Creek, an old iron from an early day Cee City Chinese Laundry, an album on frontier toughs, high topped shoes, rattlesnake hides and rattles, an object which is supposed to be a dinosaur egg, and hundreds of other articles.

People from all over the United States drop by to see his collections, and Hillcrest is frequently visited by groups of schoolchildren and Scouts from the Mitchell County area.

He enjoys showing them about Hillcrest, with its many interesting items, and his only admission charge is the interest of his visitors.

Astronomers discovered recently that all stellar systems beyond the earth's own galaxy, the Milky Way, are twice as far away as was previously supposed.

A Bible Thought For Today —

Don't build a house of folly. Build on a rock and use sound material and workmanship. There are too many wrecked houses in life already. "The floods came and the winds blew upon that house and it fell." — Matt. 7:27.

Some Clarification Essential On Size Of The Defense Budget

One of the great complexities before the nation now is that of maintaining sufficient military strength and at the same time reduce some government expenditures.

The administration seems to think this can be done, but Republicans and Democrats alike think President Eisenhower should explain in greater detail the method of getting more defense for less money. The Republicans undoubtedly want the President to show how cutbacks in defense really are to be desired. The Democrats, for the most part, don't believe that the President or anybody else can demonstrate that $5 billion less expenditure on the Air Force next year would improve the Air Force's ability to fend off any Russian attack.

Democratic antagonism over the cut in Air Force funds is shaping into action. Rep. Price (D-Ind.) has termed President Eisenhower's military budget "an invitation for an enemy attack." He pointed out that in addition to the $5 billion cut in Air Force funds, over $900 million for naval aviation has been trimmed from the Navy budget. Thus air power expenditures would be reduced by nearly $6 billion.

That the Democrats in the Senate intend to make a showdown issue of air power cuts was made clear by Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas, the Senate minority leader. Many Republicans are being along with the administration but some — including Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine — are taking an opposite stand.

Probably the budget faces rugged going. Until now Congress has always kept a jealous eye on air power, and the citizenship in general has been educated to the acceptance of more and more strength in aviation — both for defense and attack. The difficult task before Mr. Eisenhower is to show that the nation will have a better defense by providing 120 Air Wings by 1955 instead of 143 Wings by the same date, as envisioned by the previous administration.

There has been fault found with the prior administration's approach. Roger M. Kyes, No. 2 man in the Defense Department, said that Truman tried to do too much too fast, and thereby choked the military and industry both. Production fell below goals because the military was asking for more money than could be used effectively.

This may be a point. In any case, an airing of this and all other items pertinent to our defense is in the cards. There must be a clear presentation of what actually can be done most effectively and at the same time most economically.

Business Outlook — J. A. Livingston

6-Cent Pattern In Auto Wages Sets Minimum Goal For Steel

The strategy of the automobile industry in giving Walter P. Reuther more than he was entitled to is this:

The steel industry is having a go with the United Steelworkers of America on wages. If the steel workers get a big wage settlement—say 8, 10 or 12 cents or more an hour—Reuther and the United Auto Workers would be disappointed with their five-year contract which still has two years to run. So General Motors Corp. decided to give Reuther something and reward the old agreement. Ford followed, tipping the G. M. ante on pensions.

Reuther had no legal bargaining strength with G. M. The UAW contract was not renegotiable on wages. But the end of the old cost-of-living index gave Reuther a pretext. The contract doesn't permit the union to call a company-wide strike for a wage adjustment. But local stoppages over seniority rights, job classification, and work standards are within the bounds of the contract. So the union can apply economic force locally.

Ford had a taste of such force at its Canton Ohio, forging plant, which was down for six weeks. A condition of the Ford agreement was that the strike end immediately. Thus, a five-year contract is only as good as the will of the man operating with it. It must live with the times and the pressures on labor leaders.

When the Bureau of Labor Statistics changed its cost-of-living index, Reuther decided to "reopen" the contract. He wanted it tailored to changed conditions. After numerous meetings, he persuaded General Motors to increase the annual improvement factor from four to five cents a year. In addition, G. M. agreed to include in the base pay scale 19 of the 24 cents realized under cost-of-living escalation.

If the cost of living drops sharply and steadily, wages of General Motors workers won't go back to where they were three years ago, obviously inequitable and impracticable. Under the Wage Stabilization Board's cost-of-living wage increases in other industries were incorporated in the workers' base pay. This change brings the auto industry in line with national custom.

Moreover, it would be foolhardy for G. M., Ford, Chrysler, or other auto companies to lower wage rates sharply when companies in other industries held to fixed pay scales. The better workers would try for jobs elsewhere. That explains why in the present contract change, Ford upped the pay of tool and die workers and G. M. granted a 10-cent-an-hour increase to 40,000 skilled workers. The purpose is to meet competition in a sellers' market for labor.

Perhaps the change at G. M.'s top helped Reuther Harlow H. Curtice will not want to start off his career as G. M. president (succeeding Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson) with a drawn-out dispute.

Reuther was just as anxious to reach an agreement as Curtice. The shift from the old cost-of-living index to the new index was based on December, 1952. By shifting to the new index now, under the formula originally proposed by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, Reuther saved a two-cent cut in pay. That's because the new index hasn't gone down as much this year as the old.

So Reuther's net readjustment was three cents—two cents from the switch in the cost-of-living index and one cent from the increase in the annual improvement factor.

Auto workers will start the new contract year six cents better off. Five cents comes from the annual improvement and one cent from the rise in the cost of living since April, 1952. That suggests a minimum for steel. If the steel industry insists on much less, a strike seems likely. David J. McDonald, head of United Steelworkers, must demonstrate to workers that he is a worthy successor to revered Philip Murray.

A strike-level settlement seems likely. Neither the union nor the industry can expect help from the government. The industry is free of wage and price controls. If the companies raise wages, they can raise prices, assuming that seems like good business.

Uncle Ray's Corner

Sunday Talk: Lot Of Ancestors

Yesterday I spoke about the genealogy tables, which show that the line of descent of the British royal family goes back to William the Conqueror, and farther.

While writing about that, I kept thinking of the vast number of ancestors of every human being. If we figure it out, the number goes beyond belief. You had two parents, and each of their parents had two parents, your four grandparents. We must double the number of ancestors as we go back to each generation of the past.

How many ancestors did you have at the time of William the Conqueror? Counting three generations to the century, each person may figure that he has had 25 generations of ancestors during that period—before his own "new generation."

The next problem is to double our figures 25 times, like this: 2, 4, 8, 16, 32, 64, 128 and so on.

If you like arithmetic, and wish to amuse yourself you may keep on doubling to the 25th time. The way I figure it, my ancestors would number more than 33 and a half million back in the eleventh century!

Common sense seems to say that there must be a mistake somewhere. The figures seem to be correct but how could I have had as many ancestors in the eleventh century as there were people in England, Scotland, Ireland and the German states together?

Among the ancestors of every person, there must have been marriages of cousins. Perhaps there were few, if any, marriages of first cousins, but we can assume that marriages of third cousins, fourth cousins, fifth cousins and so on were frequent. Even a marriage of "20th cousins" would tend to hold down the number of ancestors.

Even though many marriages of cousins have taken place, each of us can be sure of a vast number of ancestors. In view of this fact, it is plain that we must be related, in a distant way, to millions of other persons. All records of distant relatives may be lost, but we must have "a drop of blood" in common with countless people.

Taft's Surprising Outburst Against UN Not In Line With Democratic Way

By FRED GREENE

President Eisenhower, this week took issue with his Senate majority leader, Robert Taft of Ohio, over the question of American support for United Nations aims in Korea.

The very marked foreign policy split presages another possible "Great Debate" and its seriousness cannot be underestimated.

Precisely, Sen. Taft said if armistice negotiations in Korea fail, the U.S. should tell England and other Allied nations "we are withdrawing from all further peace negotiations."

The Senator tempered his strong remarks with a confusing note when he added: "I believe in the United Nations myself, but not as an effective means to prevent aggression. I think we should call a conference for amendment of the charter and work out a plan which would have a reasonable chance of preventing aggression and eliminating the veto power."

The President wasted little time in stating that he disagreed with Taft. He did so as a mounting furor arose over the Ohioan's suggestion that the U.S. "go it alone" in Korea.

Taft's utterances are surprising since he carries considerable prestige, not only in Congress, but throughout the world. The senator has very definitely shaken world confidence in the free world in the U.S. and the United Nations. Diplomatic reaction was prompt and caused widespread worry in foreign capitals.

In his repudiation of Taft's remarks, the President said: "If you are going to go it alone one place, you of course have to go it alone everywhere. . . no single free nation can live alone in the world. We have to have friends."

President Eisenhower must have vividly recalled how failure of the U. S. to take a formal role in League of Nations affairs kept this country on the outside when that body made decisions which in many cases were responsible for World War II.

There are some who feel that had the League, with U.S. support, intervened during the Italian invasion of Ethiopia (like the UN is doing in Korea), then perhaps Germany and Italy would have refrained from starting a war.

What makes Taft's outburst so surprising is that he forgets that he would advocate democratic processes in the U.S. Congress for reaching decisions, but wouldn't do it in regards our international relations. For instance, if the Democrats and the Republicans are at odds over an issue, Taft doesn't jump up to tell his fellow GOP-ers to forget the Democrats and do what they (Republicans) want to do.

No, the senator would try to persuade the Democrats, call a Senate vote and if defeated, the GOP leader would abide by the majority decision.

What makes UN deliberations any different?

Queen Elizabeth II of Great Britain is nearing the day of her coronation as queen of the realm. The ceremony is scheduled for Tuesday, but all week long the young Queen was kept busy with rehearsals and other last minute preparations. Too, she had to attend Coronation Week luncheons and ceremonies.

Meanwhile, crowds continue to pour into London and that city's facilities are badly strained as a result of the jammed situation. Along with the tourists are visiting royally, and some of them, especially African big-wigs, are creating interesting sidelights. Representatives of over 50 Empire parliaments have also converged on London.

Coronation of the lovely queen will continue a colorful and historic pageant that has been carried on for over nine centuries by the British.

Russia replaced its military control group in East Germany with a civilian high commissioner along the lines of what the U. S., Britain and France already have done in West Germany.

Diplomatic experts saw the change to civilian rule as an initial move before eventual granting of sovereignty to the East Germans, making them a satellite state instead of a conquered land.

Another point of view expressed was that the change may have strengthened the power of Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov. He will now have direct control over German affairs, whereas previously the Defense Ministry had the most to say about German matters.

The new civilian boss is V. S. Semyonov. He is taking over for Gen. Vasily Chuikov, who will be limited to command of Red occupation troops.

In Korea, the war broke its quiet calm and fierce fighting developed. The Reds launched their heaviest attacks of the year, and by Friday afternoon had over-run U.N. outposts of Vegas and Elko along the ancient invasion route to Seoul. A third hill, Carson, just east of truce town of Panmunjom also fell.

Bearing the brunt of the attack on Vegas and Elko were U. S. and Turkish troops, while British troops were rocked on The Hook.

about 12 miles east of Panmunjom. British forces reported they inflicted a "crushing defeat" on the Communists.

Earlier in the week, air fighting took the headlines. On Tuesday, 12 Red MIG-15 jet fighters were shot down, one under the single day record bag of 13 scored on July 4, 1952.

Other MIGs were reported downed in varying numbers during the week as Allied fighter-bombers continued to wreak havoc up and down North Korea. Supply and troop concentrations were the major targets, but some pilots reported bagging trains.

On the sea, Allied naval vessels, led by the Hattleship New Jersey, pounded Red shore installations.

While nobody has officially revealed the contents of the U. N. truce proposal, South Korean officials are roaring mad at the plan, claiming it is a "sellout" of South Korea. The plan reportedly would have the U. N. Assembly determine the fate of balking prisoners who don't want to return to Red rule.

The South Koreans are also irate over the fact that no mention is made of a unified Korea, something they insist upon.

The ROKs are proving to be a troublesome and sore spot in U. N. attempts to secure a peace, but they aren't the only ones. It was reported the Reds have rejected part of the U. N. plan.

OTHER NEWS IN THE SPOTLIGHT:

Russia refused to give concrete proof of its desire for peace and as a result rejected a U. S. move to talk over an Austrian peace treaty.

The world heard about the first firing of an atomic cannon. Pictures taken at the demonstration showed an atomic cloud similar to that which resulted from a bomb dropped from the air or set off from the usual 300-foot tower.

The furor over an Air Force budget continued. Democrats generally rapped the President's slashing of AF funds, but the Chief Executive again asserted the cuts still gave us a defense well beyond minimum needs.

Around The Rim — The Herald Staff

If You Want A Sensible Answer Take Your Problem To An Expert

The opinions contained in this and other articles in this column are solely those of the writers who sign them. They are not to be interpreted as necessarily reflecting the opinions of The Herald-Editor's Note.

Things are mighty confusing these days. War or peace; defense or economy, drought or floods—these things give you the screaming meemies if you think about them enough.

And, if you're just an ordinary sort of a person, the more you ponder the vital issues of the day the more frustrated, the more helpless you feel.

About the only thing to do when you've worn out the tires spinning your wheels is to turn to some expert for advice. This is a human thing to do, and is encouraged by the experts, who usually are willing to dish out advice, for a fee.

But I've contacted some of the experts and persuaded them to use this column to help clear up some of the more pressing complexities, at no extra cost to the reader.

The experts will help with a few of them today:

For instance, this question: "We have been taught to use the plural-attorneys-general, rather than attorney-generals and we agree that it is correct to say mother-in-law and not mother-in-laws—but, would you say pick-me-ups or pick-me-up, if you're needing more than one of these?"

We engaged a fellow by the name of Simon B. Sot to answer this one, and he opined:

"People with any discretion shy at mentioning an attorney at all, especially an attorney-general. And if there were more than one attorney-general involved, you probably would have interests in two different states, so that both of them would be clamoring for a part of your estate taxes when you are gone. So do not even mention them. The same goes for a mother-in-law."

"As for a pick-me-up. Best researchers agree that one half of the dog that bit you is advisable under certain circumstances, but to get into the plural is asking for additional trouble. We engaged a fellow by the name of Simon B. Sot to answer this one, and he opined:

Riding THE GRUB LINE

With Franklin Reynolds

Chairman Clifford R. Hope of the House Agriculture Committee has told the Nation's farmers that they will have more to do with shaping the new farm program than anyone else.

Writing in the June issue of Country Gentleman, the Kansas Republican said that while farm organizations, agricultural colleges, the Department of Agriculture and Congress will all make useful contributions to the program to be written next year, the most important will be made by the farmers themselves. He added:

"This is because no farm program can succeed that does not have the enlisted and active support of those who live and work on the land."

The House Agriculture Committee will visit all the principal agricultural sections of the country to hear farmers' views, and he urged them to begin thinking about the kind of program they wanted.

It is because we feel that the same general principle is involved in the matter of soil conservation, that we believe every farmer who can do so should attend the meeting at Stanton at 2 p. m. Friday, June 5, when business men from this area plan to assemble with the supervisors of the Martin-Howard Soil Conservation District to discuss the economical problems this area faces by reason of the drought and the severe blowing.

To paraphrase Hope's words: "This is because no soil conservation program can succeed that does not have the enlisted and active support of those who live and work on the land."

Whenever a fellow starts suggesting or recommending summer legumes for soil improvement, the widely adapted cowpea should not be overlooked, says Fainter Wylie, SCS-work unit conservationist Colorado City.

"These cowpeas are natives of Africa," Wylie explains, "but they have been grown so long in the South that most folks look upon them as being natives of this country. There are a number of varieties of cowpeas but the most common are the blackeye, the purple hull, creole peas, Crowder, whippoorwill, brabham and Chinese red. Cowpeas are summer growing annual legumes adaptable to warm climates and used as cultivated plants. They will grow in a wide variety of soil types from the sands to the heavy clays. This is one legume that probably every farmer in this area has planted at one time or another during his farming career. The planting may have been just a few rows across his garden or it may have been a 100-acre field."

Wylie says cowpeas should be planted in a well prepared seedbed in standard width rows, spaced so as to have a plant every four or five inches in the row. The usual planting rate in rows is from seven to eight pounds to the acre. He says that to get the maximum benefit from cowpeas they should be inoculated with the proper bacteria culture before planting. "But," he adds, "they do some cross-inoculating with a large number of legumes and may not need inoculation if the land has been planted in a legume in prior years."

Cowpeas are described as an excellent land conditioner, and will always leave their mark on the following crops. Most every farmer who has ever grown cowpeas and then observed his following crops will always state they have improved the yield of the following crops. Some farmers have even said they could tell to the row just where the peas had been planted the year before. Cowpeas also make excellent hay when cut as the pods are filling and before the lower leaves turn yellow. The protein content of cowpeas in the blooming stage may run as high as 25 per cent which is considered very high quality grazing or hay. Their best use, however, and according to Wylie, is for soil improvement and this is the use that is so greatly needed in West Texas these days.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Greaves, who with their small son and baby daughter, Tony and Marcia, operate the Greaves Pony Farm (Shetland ponies) south of Lamesa and north and west of Ackerly, have just returned from Missouri and Arkansas where they found things "green and wet."

They took three of their good registered Shetland mares to a Missouri show and sale and these three mares turned out to be among the five best there. One of the Greaves mares, a two-year-old, topped the sale at more than $1,500, and each of the others sold above the $1,000 mark.

The Greaves Pony Farm has established the reputation of being one of the top Shetland breeding establishments in the country, while at the same time they have grade Shetlands selling at grade prices as companions for the kids. Many a West Texas automobile has pulled away from the Greaves Farm with a Shetland colt in it behind the front seat with the kids. Whether or not a person is interested in buying a Shetland the Greaves Farm is a most interesting place to visit and visitors are always welcome. The farm is about two miles west of Highway 87 between Ackerly and Lamesa and there is a sign up on the side on Highway 87 showing you where to turn. It may also be reached from the Stanton-Lamesa road by traveling east. The proper road intersecting the Stanton-Lamesa road is also marked with an appropriate sign.

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson will be the principal speaker at the 14th annual session of the American Cotton Congress which will be held at the Caprock Hotel in Lubbock, June 25, 26 and 27.

A part of the program will be held at Texas Tech. The Congress will be open at 9:30 a. m. Thursday, June 25, and Benson is on that day's program.

Other important speakers scheduled to appear before the Congress include Rhea Blake, executive vice president of the National Cotton Council and B. T. Shaw, administrator of the Agricultural Research Administration.

Among the entertainment features will be a dinner given by the Lubbock Cotton Exchange and a barbecue by the Cotton Oil Mill of Lubbock.

Everybody in any way interested in cotton is invited to attend the sessions of the Congress and the other events. Hotel reservations may be gotten by writing W. J. Reidy, manager of the Caprock Hotel.

The theme of the Congress will be "Cotton's New Frontiers" and other speakers will include Don L. Jones, director of the Texas Farm Experiment Station at Lubbock; Sam W. Anderson, assistant Secretary of Commerce; Lamar Fleming, president of Anderson, Clayton and Co.; Dr. Laconia Hance, president of the Institute of Textile Technology at Charlottesville, Va.; Dr. M. K. Horne, chief economist of the National Cotton Council, and A. L. Durand, president of the Chickasha Cotton Oil Co. at Chickasha, Okla.

Much of the convention program will be devoted to tours that will take the visitors to the Texas Experiment Farm Station, the Textiles Research Laboratories of Texas Technological College and to irrigated farms on that portion of the South Plains.

This column isn't in the insurance business, but if the rains finally come and farmers get a good stand of cotton, or prospects for a good stand, they will probably do well to talk over the matter of hail insurance with their favorite insurance agents.

Hail can nearly always be calculated to accompany such peculiar weather as that this year.

During the week torrential rains in Reeves County, accompanied by hail, destroyed approximately 3,000 acres of cotton north of Pecos. Insurance companies estimate the damage at $650,000. These rains ranged from a quarter-inch at Pecos to four inches at a point eight miles north of Pecos.

Upon his return from Tucson, where he checked on the "hens-in-cages" method of egg production, J. H. Greene, manager of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, is more enthusiastic about this program contributing heavily to the stability of the agricultural economy of this area than he has ever been before.

Greene was accompanied by John Davis, Frank Lovelace and Edward Fisher. They visited, among others, a farm with 10,000 hens-in-cage units another with 6,000 egg producers, and another with only 1,450. They also visited a farm where there they saw 35,000 birds, mostly chickens (replacement pullets for the "hens-in-cages" operators, but also some turkeys and geese. This particular poultry grower raises the geese as cotton hands. He sells the goslings to cotton farmers to keep their cotton fields free of weeds.

"He told us," Greene said, "that while geese will eat both the weeds and cotton, and goslings will eat the weeds only. Farmers who have used this method of keeping their cotton free of weeds, while raising and fattening the goslings at the same time, are mighty well pleased with the idea."

Greene said he also observed that the operators of the "hens-in-cages" egg-production plants were using feed of different brands manufactured by different feed mills, and that he learned the cages are available from several different makers and can be supplied by almost any local merchant dealing in similar merchandise, or from the large mail order houses.

"Apparently nobody has a monopoly on either the production of the proper feed for the hens or on the manufacture of the cages," Greene commented.

The Big Spring Chamber of Commerce manager expects to make a report on his trip to the directors of the organization at a very early date.

Pointing out that only a very small percentage of the eggs consumed in the Big Spring area are produced here; and that drouth has little or no effect on this method of egg production which can be calculated to aid materially in stabilizing the farm economy, Greene is expected to ask the directors to officially endorse the program.

Any person, either a city dweller or farmer, who is interested in entering this activity on either a small or large scale can get additional information from Greene.

Top Comedians Will Appear Here In 'Kiss Me Kate'

The opening of "Kiss Me Kate" will give the people of Big Spring a rare opportunity to see a first-class Broadway musical comedy hit with a dazzling string of beautiful girls and crack comedians. In sponsoring the Big Spring performance, Webb Air Force Base has given local people a chance to hear a red-letter list of sparkling Cole Porter tunes as well as top-notch entertainment.

And throughout the entire performance, the audience will hear the talented fingers of Edwin Ardread at the Hammond Electric Organ.

"Kate" ran for three years, from 1948 to 1951, on Broadway. Critics have highly acclaimed this scintillating musical. After the opening, Life Magazine's drama critics proclaimed the show, "musical comedy at its glittering best."

In a merry and melodious fashion, the show describes the Baltimore opening of Shakespeare's play, "The Taming of the Shrew." The provocative songs of Cole Porter and the crackling wit of Bella and Samuel Spewack unfold the story.

As "Kiss Me Kate" opens, the cast of the Shakespearean revival is on stage for final instructions before the show. In the cast, with actor-producer Fred Graham, are his former wife, Lilli Vanasti, and Lois Lane, in whom he is deeply interested. Also there is Bill Calhoun, who is Lois' current heart-throb.

The irrepressible Bill informs Lois that he has signed Graham's IOU to pay a gambling debt. Meanwhile, Graham and Lilli patch up their differences and a reconciliation seems in the offing. Then a bouquet which Graham had sent to Lois is delivered to Lilli by mistake. Lilli is overcome with joy.

The scene changes from backstage to an actual performance of the "Taming of the Shrew." Graham is seen as Petrucia, Lilli Vanasti as Katherine, Bill as Lucentio, and Lois as Bianca.

At Lilli's first entrance, Graham learns that she has discovered for whom the little bouquet was intended. Lilli thereafter plays the Shrew both on and off the stage. She threatens to quit the show, but she is dissuaded by two gangsters who are dead-set on collecting Graham's $1,000.

By the final curtain, the conflict has been resolved. Lilli and Graham are reunited and Lois and Bill reach a workable understanding. But the methods by which the reconciliations are accomplished will split your sides with mirth.

The score and lyrics to "Kate" are considered by many to be Cole Porter's finest. Nearly all the numbers have made the hit parade. Included are "Too Darn Hot", "Wonderbar", "Always True to You in My Fashion", "So 'n' Love With You", and "Why Can't You Behave?"

Seats for the show, which will be shown only on the night of June 4, may be bought at the Record Shop, Dibrig's Sporting Goods Store, the Elliott Drug Store, Cunningham and Phillips Drug Store on Johnson, and at each Webb squadron headquarters.

Tickets, which cost as much as $7.20 in New York, are on sale at $1.50, $2, $2.50, and $3. Curtain time is at 8:30 p. m.

Funds from the sale of tickets will go to build a swimming pool for Webb'sirmen.

Costly Coaches Are Ready For The Coronation Ride

By ALVIN STEINKOPF
Associated Press Newsfeatures
LONDON—Well the buggy is ready. Let the coronation start, said craftsmen on completion of a three-year job of refurbishing the British coach of state in which Queen Elizabeth will ride to Westminster Abbey on June 2.

Coronation Spares Divorced Lords

LONDON—Divorced lords needn't worry—they won't sit next to their former wives at Queen Elizabeth's coronation.

The Duke of Norfolk, who as Earl Marshal runs the coronation, has ruled that divorced peeresses who gained noble rank by marriage are barred from the Westminster Abbey ceremony. His reasoning is that since they are no longer married to noblemen they are no longer noble.

But any lord can go, even though divorced, because a lord's rank is not affected by marriage or divorce.

difficult job of his career. The general public was unaware that the showiest of the royal coaches was being repaired. The work was undertaken on orders of the late King George VI, who didn't realize at the time how soon his eldest daughter would be needing the coach.

The vehicle, made for George III, is almost 200 years old. It is 24 feet long, more than eight feet wide, and weighs four tons. It is drawn on ceremonial occasions by eight horses.

The gilt and crimson coach is elaborately carved. Four golden Tritons, demigods of the sea, support the body. The eight panels, painted by the Italian artist Giovanni Cipriani, depict many mythological characters and insignia of the royal house.

The panels, some curved, were originally walnut wood. They were replaced completely by plywood treated to stand up to moisture and heat.

Peeling a thin layer of Cipriani's paint and transferring it to the new plywood was the most delicate task, and Craftsman Drows confessed that often his heart was in his throat. But the job was accomplished, hairline cracks obliterated and the varnish of earlier restorers removed. Sky backgrounds which had turned green with age are, again, their original blue, and the restoration brought out delicate pastel shades which recent generations of Englishmen were not able to appreciate.

The coach when first delivered to George III, cost 7,518 pounds four shillings three and a half pence, which in those days was about $38,000. The odd shillings and the fraction of a penny were the result of the painstaking reckoning of a persnickety draper who supplied the ribbon for the cushions. He measured to the precise inch, and he wouldn't knock off a half penny for the king.

Specialists To Handle First Aid In Abbey

LONDON—Some of Britain's best medical brains will be in Westminster Abbey for Queen Elizabeth's June 2 coronation, just in case anyone faints.

The doctors, some of them famous specialists, will help man 25 medical posts in the Abbey. They expect to be busy. They believe heavily-robbed peers and peeresses may find the eight hours on packed benches a big physical strain.

Guards Now Protect The Coronation Chair

By ANNE KRAMER

LONDON—Twenty-eight English monarchs and a naughty schoolboy have sat on the Coronation Chair on which Queen Elizabeth II will be crowned in Westminster Abbey June 2.

All through the centuries, the Coronation Chair has intrigued would-be carvers, most of them pupils at Westminster School adjoining the abbey.

The best craftsmen in the kingdom have just polished and refurbished the old oak relic, but neither they nor the woodworkers before them succeeded in erasing the schoolboys' initials.

The lad who sat in the chair, Peter Abbot, also slept in it all night. He did it on a dare. Before he left, he took his knife to the chair and dug out the words: "P. Abbot slept in this chair July, 1800."

That gave him a certain niche in history and probably a sound whacking as well.

One big carved signature—"N. Curzon"—is believed to be that of George Nathaniel Curzon 1859-1925, British foreign secretary and leader of the House of Lords, who married Mary Victoria Leiter, daughter of a Chicago millionaire, in 1895.

Among scores of initials, three other signatures, those of N. Lister, T. Pelham and R. Assheton, are scrawled into the wood. Very little is known of them except that they were educated at Westminster School more than 200 years ago.

Westminster schoolboys today don't practice on the Coronation Chair. A night and day security guard is posted. A police officer checks everyone in and out of the abbey. As a further precaution, an invisible ray is connected by warning signal to Scotland Yard. Anyone who gets too near the chair unknowingly touches off the alarm.

Back in 1887, some eager beavers of the Ministry of Works wanted to make the chair nice and shiny and ordered the woodwork stained and varnished. The country was appalled at the "mutilation." Shortly after, the chair was devarnished.

All the sovereigns of England since 1307 were crowned on the chair with the exception of Mary, wife of William of Orange. It was designed in 1300 by Master Adams, goldsmith to Edward I.

Only twice has the chair left the abbey. Once, was when Oliver Cromwell was inaugurated lord protector in Westminster Hall in 1657. The second time was during World War II, when it was taken for safety to Gloucester Hall.

The chair made of well-seasoned oak and decorated with gold leaf, is still in pretty good shape for its 650 years. It is handled like a vintage cognac. The crypt where it is housed is kept at an even temperature and insulated against dampness. The chair stands on thick layers of soft, warm felt.

Political feeling ran high in many coronations. When George I succeeded the last of the Stuarts, a peeress was overheard to remark, as the Archbishop of Canterbury asked if all agreed to the enthronement: "Does the old fool think that anyone here would say 'no' when there are so many drawn swords?"

It has long been the custom of sovereigns to make an offering. The first Elizabeth gave red silk. Usually, however, it has been money. When William of Orange was being crowned, he discovered he had forgotten to take any money and borrowed 20 guineas from an aide. William IV, also caught penniless, whispered to the presiding archbishop: "I have not got anything; I will send it to you tomorrow."

All sorts of omens, good and bad are read into coronation happenings.

An earthquake, for instance, is supposed to have disturbed the coronation of Charles I in 1626. He went down into history, incidentally, as "the white king," simply because no coronation robe of purple was available, and he substituted a white one. This, too, was supposed to be an omen, and was remembered when he died. As they carried his body to its burial place, snow fell and covered the corpse with white, and so he went, the "white king," into his niche in history.

A bat fluttered around the head of Richard Coeur de Lion during his coronation, and the people were unhappy about what it presaged.

One of the pieces of regalia with which the sovereign is invariably invested is a ring, signifying the marriage of the sovereign to the nation. Sometimes it has sentimental value—Queen Mary's was set with a ruby her husband, William of Orange, had presented to her.

Usually, it is placed by the Archbishop of Canterbury on the ring finger of the right hand, once the finger used for the marriage ring. Queen Victoria, however, had her own ideas on the subject and had a sapphire ring made to fit the little finger of that hand.

When the time came for the ring ceremony, she and the Archbishop, apparently, had a little struggle. The Archbishop won, and forced the ring on her ring finger. The queen was forced to soak her finger in ice water to get it off. In her diary, she related:

Coronation Rites Date Back More Than 900 Years

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

Associated Press Newsfeatures Writer

Through more than nine centuries, 39 kings and 26 queens have been anointed, crowned and enthroned in Westminster Abbey.

The coronation ceremony was hewn out of stormy British history. Its form is rigid, set and splendid. Yet within the centuries-old framework of the rites, all manner of strange things have happened, from tragedy to comedy.

During recent generations, coronations have been held mostly in May or June—the most pleasant months in the English calendar. But coronations historically know no season. Queen Elizabeth I, for instance, was crowned on Jan. 15—because her personal astrologer, Dr. Dee, picked the date as the Virgin Queen's "lucky day." Henry V and his queen were crowned during Lent and the lavish banquet which once concluded the day of pagantry performance had endless courses of fish dishes.

Sometimes sovereigns delayed their coronations. Charles I was held up 10 months by an outbreak of plague in London. Charles II had to wait 11 months so that new regalia could be made—historic coronation trappings including the golden crown of Edward had been destroyed.

The actual ceremonies involved in a coronation have changed little through the years. Most sovereigns have reached Westminster on a time schedule written by the pen of tradition. Victoria hit the Abbey right on time: 11:30 a.m. But George II was a half-hour late.

Richard II, son of the Black Prince, was a child when crowned. After attending divine service, the little king was carried back to his palace by his knights, fed and permitted a nap before going to the abbey for the lengthy ceremony.

Symbolic heart of the coronation is the anointment of the sovereign. The formula for the oil used to anoint Charles I has come down to modern times. In careful compound, it contained oils of orange flowers, jasmine, roses and cinnamon, extract of white flower of benzoin, ambergris, musk and civet. This was mixed in a jar of porphyry which was placed in a porcelain jar over warm ashes and spirit of roses added.

This perfumed oil came long after that forthright sovereign complained rather bitterly that the "grease smelt ill."

Special garments are traditionally worn by sovereigns for the anointment ceremonies—fine lawn undergarments and other raiment rich in historical significance. That is why Queen Victoria's uncle, William IV, brought forth startled gasps from ecclesiastical dignitaries around him when, disrobing for the serious ceremony it was found that he wore, beneath his kingly robes, the uniform of an admiral, complete to trousers.

Everything about the ceremony supposedly is well rehearsed. But when William's queen, Adelaide, arrived in the abbey's "theatre," the churchmen discovered they weren't sure which chair she should be seated in. The embarrassed queen, in all her trappings, was forced to make a couple of nervous tours around the area while the bishops argued out the point.

Political feeling ran high in many coronations. When George I succeeded the last of the Stuarts, a peeress was overheard to remark, as the Archbishop of Canterbury asked if all agreed to the enthronement: "Does the old fool think that anyone here would say 'no' when there are so many drawn swords?"

It has long been the custom of sovereigns to make an offering. The first Elizabeth gave red silk. Usually, however, it has been money. When William of Orange was being crowned, he discovered he had forgotten to take any money and borrowed 20 guineas from an aide. William IV, also caught penniless, whispered to the presiding archbishop: "I have not got anything; I will send it to you tomorrow."

All sorts of omens, good and bad are read into coronation happenings.

An earthquake, for instance, is supposed to have disturbed the coronation of Charles I in 1626. He went down into history, incidentally, as "the white king," simply because no coronation robe of purple was available, and he substituted a white one. This, too, was supposed to be an omen, and was remembered when he died. As they carried his body to its burial place, snow fell and covered the corpse with white, and so he went, the "white king," into his niche in history.

A bat fluttered around the head of Richard Coeur de Lion during his coronation, and the people were unhappy about what it presaged.

One of the pieces of regalia with which the sovereign is invariably invested is a ring, signifying the marriage of the sovereign to the nation. Sometimes it has sentimental value—Queen Mary's was set with a ruby her husband, William of Orange, had presented to her.

Usually, it is placed by the Archbishop of Canterbury on the ring finger of the right hand, once the finger used for the marriage ring. Queen Victoria, however, had her own ideas on the subject and had a sapphire ring made to fit the little finger of that hand.

When the time came for the ring ceremony, she and the Archbishop, apparently, had a little struggle. The Archbishop won, and forced the ring on her ring finger. The queen was forced to soak her finger in ice water to get it off. In her diary, she related:

QUEEN ELIZABETH II

QUEEN ELIZABETH II

"The Archbishop had most awkwardly put the ring on the wrong finger and the consequence was that I had the greatest difficulty to take it off again, which I at last did with great pain."

Queen Elizabeth I used the ring of her coronation as an excuse when pressures were brought to bear on her to marry. She invariably pointed to her ring and remarked that "England is my husband, and all Englishmen my children."

The actual crowning of the sovereign is the climax of the rites. For centuries, sovereigns were crowned with a replica of St. Edward's gold circlet. It is very heavy, however, and usually sovereigns would wear the lighter Crown Imperial or Crown of State through ceremonies the rest of the day.

Richard Coeur de Lion's crown was so heavy that it was supported on his head by two of his ears. At George IV's coronation, the Lord High Steward was carrying the crown to the altar when it slipped from his hands. Fortunately he managed to catch it before it hit the stone floor.

The crown was too small for James II's head. His queen, Mary Beatrix of Modena, reported later that "they could not make the crown keep firm on the king's head; it appeared always on the point of falling and it required some care to hold it steady."

Henry Sidney put out his hand to hold James' wobbly crown, remarking that "this is not the first time, your Majesty, that my family has supported the crown."

This was a nice bit of irony, for history reveals that as Sidney spoke he was neck-deep in conspiracy with the Prince of Orange—Mary's husband—to get rid of James.

Queen Adelaide, William IV's consort, also had some trouble with her crown. It seems that Archbishop Howley of Canterbury (who later had trouble with Victoria's ring) found "some difficulty in getting the crown on the Queen's head. There was a large cushion of hair at the top of her head, and the agony of the Bishop of Chichester was great at seeing how very tottering it was."

But Queen Charlotte, George III's wife, had the worst time. Her crown was set so firmly on her head that after the ceremonies she couldn't get it off. The King, however, told her to leave it on, that it would be considered as part of her regal attire—not as "a mark of greatness." Incidentally, during that coronation, a large diamond dropped out of its setting in George III's crown. Later superstitious folk maintained it symbolized the loss of the American colonies which came in his reign.

Occasionally there have been mishaps during coronations. An account of William IV's coronation says that several aged peers, retiring backwards after swearing fealty, fell down. And when Queen Victoria was being crowned, "poor old Lord Rolle," she wrote, started to mount the steps to pay her homage, fell and rolled down to the bottom. He didn't hurt himself, and started up again, so Victoria arose from her throne and came to the top of the stairs to meet him.

Queen Caroline, consort of George II, found her coronation a trying one. Her father-in-law, George I, had distributed the royal jewels among German favorites, leaving Caroline only a string of pearls.

She turned up for the coronation covered with borrowed finery—gems belonging to friends and loaned by jewelers.

However, the most distressing activities at any coronation undoubtedly occurred when George IV was crowned. George had been having considerable marital trouble with his queen, also named Caroline. Things had reached such a pass that he barred her from the coronation, instructing guards not to let anyone in without a ticket. Queen Caroline, with a few supporters, attempted to crash the abbey. Finally she gave up and returned to London. She died three weeks later—uncrowned.

Special Prayers For New Queen

LONDON—Women's church organizations throughout Britain are offering special prayers for Queen Elizabeth, to be crowned June 2.

One of the newly-authorized prayers reads: "Almighty God, give to Elizabeth our Queen and to us her people wisdom and strength that together we may serve Thee and help each other all the days of our life."

The idea grew from the Queen's broadcast just Christmas when she said: "I want to ask you all to pray for me that God may give me wisdom and strength that I may faithfully serve Him and you all the days of my life."

Workers have to erect forms only one more time to complete concrete framework of the Permian Building, six-story structure at Second and Scurry. Forms here are in place for sixth floor and supporting members. As soon as the latest batch of concrete dries, the forms will be put up for roof. Structural part of the building will be completed in about two weeks. Brickwork is about 35 per cent complete.

THE MOMENT OF ACHIEVEMENT

Four minutes to four by the Chapel clock. Four years of effort now crowned with success. This is the moment of achievement.

Three minutes to four. The illusion begins to fade. Here, outside the ivy-covered walls the future looms more important than the past.

Two minutes to four. A sense of fear. Can a diploma guarantee happiness through all the years to come?

One minute to four. Futility! Education can't insure happiness. Life is a succession of uncertainties.

Four solemn strokes of the Chapel clock. The Chapel clock! There is life's one Certainty... God! And with divine Love rewarding human faith, who need fear the uncertainties of life or doubt to find happiness under God.

Years of education are no substitute for minutes of spiritual searching. Diplomas are important, but the discovery of Faith is the real moment of achievement.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

16 Register For Red Cross Class At HCJC

Only 16 people have registered for the Red Cross first aid course to be held at Howard County Junior College starting June 2.

F. L. G. Snow, Howard-Glasscock Red Cross first aid chairman, stated that the number falls far short of expectations. "We expected at least 60 people to register," he said.

Registration is open from now until the course begins. Snow pointed out that Class reservations can be made with Mrs. Moore Sawtelle at the local Red Cross office, 4th and Scurry.

Mrs. Sawtelle stated that reservations will be accepted by telephone. Her office number is 256. Regular first aid practice plus atomic and tornado disaster work will be included in the month class. Instruction will consist of one hour lecture and one hour practical work each class period. Movies will be shown on atomic attack and first aid procedures.

Instructors will be headed by Otto Peters Sr. Others include W. S. Goulet Jr., G. P. Morrison, James Croom, F. D. Williams, J. A. Jolly, Fred Beckham and Oscar Glickman. A meeting was held Thursday evening to map out plans for the course.

"We have everything ready to go," Snow said. "All we lack now are people to teach. We're pretty well alarmed about the small number, but the class will be taught anyway."

Snow said he had sent out 30 letters to various business concerns about the city "advertising" the class. He thinks it would be especially good for business people. "The course offers things everyone needs to know," he added.

Class sessions will be held each Monday and Thursday at the HCJC gymnasium. Tests and handgases can be obtained at the first meeting for cost. Snow said.

The first meeting will be held Tuesday evening, which is irregular so far as the regular schedule is concerned. Other dates are June 4-11-18-25-29 and July 2. Upon completion of the 20-hour course certificates for the standard course will be issued.

Parade To Open Midland Rodeo On Wednesday

MIDLAND — A downtown parade at 4 p.m. Wednesday, June 3, will officially open Midland's 19th annual Championship Rodeo.

This year's parade features twenty-seven beautifully decorated floats plus hundreds of cowboys, cowgirls, rodeo contestants, clowns, mounted drill teams, Sheriff Posse units and specialty acts. Of particular interest to young and old alike will be the parade of Shetland ponies, from Lazy N Stables in Winters. The ponies will be hitched to pony sized buckboards, surreys, rigs, carriages, English buggies and hacks.

The first of five night performances gets underway Wednesday night at 8 o'clock with 300 riders taking part in the grand entry.

The arena gate is hardly closed on the grand entry when the first bucking horse makes his appearance out of chute 1. From there on, through two thrill packed hours, rodeo fans are treated to the best there is in rodeo entertainment.

A new clown in the rodeo world makes his appearance at the Midland show this year. Billy Keen from Sandpoint, Idaho joins old timer George Mills from Tifford, S. D. to make the bull riding hilarious as well as thrilling. Keen's barrel is on wheels and through some secret process he is able to get into the barrel and chase the bulls with it; an unusual twist to further baffle the already befuddled bull.

Specialty acts include the famous Hendricks family with new acts as well as the perennially popular Roman Ride on two bridleless thoroughbred jumpers.

Marion Flynn, sponsor of Midland Fair, Inc., sponsors of the show reports that everything is set for Midland's biggest show June 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7.

36 File Claims For Compensation During Past Month

During May 36 persons filed initial claims for unemployment compensation here, according to Leon M. Kinney, manager of the Big Spring office of the Texas Employment Commission.

Kinney said that during the month 1,248 office visits were recorded, and 124 new applications for jobs were filed. During the month, he said, 236 non-agricultural workers were referred to jobs and of these 163 were placed in employment. Twelve agricultural workers were also sent to prospective employers and 10 of these were hired, Kinney said.

Scenes From New Three Dimensional Movie

Warner Brother's "House of Wax," the first Natural Vision three-dimension picture from a major studio, stars Vincent Price, Frank Lovejoy and Phyllis Kirk. Filmed in Warner Color, "House of Wax" opens today at the State Theatre for a week's stand. The upper left shot shows director Andre de Toth guiding the action in one scene. The climactic fire scene is shown upper-right as Vincent Price sees his artistry, destroyed in flames. The can-can, a highlight of the 3-D film, is shown lower-right, and the monster strikes in the scene in the lower-left. The center-piece shows Phyllis Kirk as she flees in terror down a murky street with the monster in pursuit.

Mystery Thriller To Be Seen In 3-D Movie, 'House Of Wax'

The first feature-length film in three dimension produced by a major studio will be shown at the State Theatre for a week—beginning today.

It is "House of Wax," a mystery thriller story starring Vincent Price, Frank Lovejoy and Phyllis Kirk. The movie is in Warner Color.

Major studio producing "House of Wax" is Warner Brothers. It was the same studio that introduced sound to the motion picture.

Like Robb, manager of the theatres here, said that "House of Wax" is not to be compared with the previous 3-D production ("Swana Devil") shown here, an independent firm, and Robb frankly admitted that it was not up to standard quality. "House of Wax" is an entirely different type production, he said. He personally endorses it as "good entertainment."

Warner Brothers has employed the Natural Vision 3-D process in "House of Wax," and it is said to produce a true three dimensional effect.

Price plays the part of Professor Henry Jarrod, a sculptor whose face is mutilated by fire. Lovejoy plays a police lieutenant in charge of tracking down a maddened killer. Miss Kirk plays the girl who seeks to solve the mystery of the House of Wax.

Price, in the beginning a sensitive artist, is turned into a human monster by the fire which destroys his wax museum. He wanders about the city maddened beyond the point of murder, and his victims are those he blames for his troubles.

Since his face has been destroyed by fire, he wears a mask through most of the picture.

Lovejoy seeks the murderer in the show with little success until a new house of wax is opened. Then he suspects Price. In the new display are wax statues of all Price's victims—including Miss Kirk.

A can-can number in the movie

Errol Flynn Is In Pirate Movie

Technicolor adventure on the high seas will be seen at the Jet Theatre tonight and Monday night with the showing of "Against All Flags."

The movie stars Errol Flynn and Maureen O'Hara. The strong supporting roster is headed by Anthony Quinn, Alice Kelley and Mildred Natwick.

Flynn has the part of an 18th century British naval officer who masquerades as a deserter to capture pirate ships. He lands at an island stronghold of the pirates to carry out his plan.

They suspect him of being a spy, but Miss O'Hara, a pirate leader, spares his life. She also falls in love with him.

The pirate captain Quinn captures the Mogul of India's ship and takes the Mogul's daughter—Alice Kelley—prisoner. Flynn's life is further endangered when he attempts to conceal the identity of the Princess.

Despite his plans being found out, he successfully engineers a British naval unit's attack on the pirate stronghold. And he succeeds in obtaining a pardon for Miss O'Hara.

'My Six Convicts' Slated At Terrace

The private lives of six public enemies will be flashed across the screen of the Terrace Saturday night with the showing of "My Six Convicts."

The movie casts John Beal as a prison psychologist who has six of the inmates working for him. The "convicts" are Millard Mitchell, Gilbert Roland, Marshall Thompson, Henry Morgan, Jay Adler, and Alf Kjellin.

Cavalry, Indian Fight Seen In New Ritz Film

The U. S. cavalry and the Indians battle it out in "Last of the Comanches," a Technicolor movie scheduled at the Ritz Theatre Thursday through Saturday.

Broderick Crawford has the lead role in the production as a tough cavalry sergeant. Barbara Hale has the top feminine part. In lesser roles are Johnny Stewart, Lloyd Bridges and Hugh Sanders.

The story gets underway with a Comanche raid on a western village. All that is left is a charred ruin and six tattered cavalry men headed by Crawford.

Hoping to escape to a fort about 100 miles away, they set out across the hot desert. They meet a stagecoach with Miss Hale as a passenger. Later they run into a lone traveler—Sanders—and a young Indian boy—Stewart.

The Indians pick up their trail and chase them to the ruins of an old Spanish mansion. Here they make their stand against repeated attacks. The young Indian escapes to get help from the fort.

Meanwhile it develops that Sanders is a traitor who sold rifles to the Indians. Trooper Bridges shoots him. The cavalry arrives just as ammunition, water and plans have wasted away.

POLICE COME AND GET IT!

"Come and get it," a resident of the Monticello Addition urged police Thursday after reporting a snake in her yard. Sgt. C. L. Rogers and Patrolman Jack Shaffer killed the "prairie runner" which had taken refuge from the heat in a trailer.

Danny Thomas Stars In 'The Jazz Singer'

"The Jazz Singer," Technicolor production scheduled at the Ritz Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday, is a drama of show business complete with songs.

Musical renditions are furnished by Danny Thomas and Peggy Lee. Parts are held by Mildred Dunnock, Edward Franz and Tom Tuohy.

The production marks the second time "The Jazz Singer" has been filmed. The first time starred the late Al Jolson in one of the first talking parts on the screen. Thomas has the same part Jolson held. He plays the son of a cantor who is groomed to take his father's place in the synagogue. However, Thomas wants a career in show business.

Miss Lee, a singing star in the picture, and his mother—Miss Dunnock—encourage Thomas to go on the stage. The father-son relationship is alternately strained and eased during the course of the story.

The story is substantially the same as in the original Jolson version. Emotional scenes and musical renditions make up most of the production.

In the end of the movie, the father—Edward Franz—agrees with the son on the point that a parent shouldn't choose a child's profession for him.

O. Henry Stories Made Into Movie

A dozen top stars and five of O. Henry's best short stories have been combined in an omnibus-type movie scheduled for showing at the Jet Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday.

The movie is "O. Henry's Full House," and each of the stories is introduced, narrated and abridged by John Steinbeck, celebrated artist.

Jerry Colonna
To Appear At Odessa Show

ODESSA — The huge home show scheduled for June 11, 12, 13 and 14 at Odessa is gaining ground as exhibitors continue to contract for space.

The home-owned home show originally planned on a more modest scale now includes personal appearances by Ray Noble and his celebrated orchestra, Clyde "Sugar Blues" McCoy, Jerry Colonna, and others.

One exhibitor, Ray Britton, real estate agent, says, "It's the biggest opportunity we've had to date—both from the buyer's viewpoint and the seller's—to find out what people are thinking about. The exhibitor has a chance at last to show the buying public all the advantages of his product or his service. The buyer has a chance as never before to select exactly what he wants and compare competitive prices on the same ground. As an exhibitor I personally welcome the show with all my heart."

Paint dealers, decorators, home furnishings dealers, appliance dealers, landscape artists, exterminators, stationery, glaziers, lumbermen, electrical contractors, plumbing contractors and others have begun taking up the exhibit space. Some space remains and is available through the Home Show office in the lobby of the Lincoln Hotel in Odessa.

Reservations Being Taken For Scout
Camping Session

Reservations are now being accepted for the weekly camping sessions at the Buffalo Trail Scout Ranch.

Jimmie Hale, local field executive, stated that six weekly sessions will be held this summer, the first starting today.

Camping at the ranch will be done on a troop basis. Scouts wishing to attend must go under the leadership of the Scoutmaster with his complete troop, Hale said.

The ranch is located in the Davis Mountains near Balmorhea. Hale believes a summer outing there is "just what the doctor ordered" for the boys. He also said that a full time doctor resides at the ranch and that a hospital has been constructed there.

Meals are served three times daily at the dining hall on the ranch, and Scouts can purchase candy and soft drinks. For pack trips an adequate supply of food will be issued along with cooking instructions.

Hale said total cost for one six-day period is $14. This covers food, program, insurance and doctor services. Scouts from 17 counties will attend at various times during the summer, he said.

Prince Valiant
IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR
by Harold R. Foster

Synopsis: THE DEATH OF A GREAT ARMY IS A HORRIBLE THING. THE SAXONS, PROUD AND FIERCE, BEGAN THE INVASION OF BRITAIN BY TREACHERY, BUT TREACHERY IS A POOR STAFF TO LEAN UPON. PRINCE VALIANT DESTROYED THEIR FLEET AND THEIR SUPPLIES AND KING ARTHUR HELD THE ARMY BEFORE TINTAGEL IN BITTER STRUGGLE UNTIL THEIR FOOD WAS GONE. NO LONGER A CONQUERING ARMY, BUT A HORDE OF STARVING SCARECROWS, THEY FALL UPON PLYMOUTH AND BURN THE TOWN. WARNED IN TIME BY PRINCE VALIANT, THE CITIZENS TAKE REFUGE IN THE OLD ROMAN CITADEL AND DEFEND THEMSELVES STOUTLY.

LIKE A SWARM OF LOCUSTS, THE SAXONS ATTACK WITHOUT DIRECTION OR PLAN. THEN THEY MELT AWAY TO RAVAGE THE COUNTRYSIDE AND STARVE IN A WILDERNESS OF THEIR OWN MAKING.

THE FOUR SURVIVING KINGS OF CORNWALL, EAGER TO MAKE AMENDS FOR THEIR TREACHERY, ACCEPT THE TASK OF PREVENTING THE SAXONS FROM REORGANIZING.

FOR A LONG WHILE SMALL BANDS OF GAUNT AND HUNGRY MEN LIVE AS OUTLAWS, PILLAGING LONELY FARMAS.

THEN EVEN THESE SETTLE DOWN AND TILL THE SOIL THEY CAME TO DESPOIL.

IT WAS NOT JUST TO FIGHT IN CORNWALL THAT KING ARTHUR SUMMONED VAL OUT OF THULE. NOW THE BATTLE IS FINISHED AND ORDERS COME THAT WILL TAKE HIM ACROSS THE SEA TO—NEXT WEEK: Ireland.
