VOLUME 77 McLEAN, GRAY COUNTY, TEXAS THURSDAY, AUGUST 7, 1980

Did you know that passen ger buses like the Greyhound in McLean are not allowed to transport chemicals? The rule, I think, is a good one, because the lives of the passengers could be threatened if a chemical became unstable and exploded. The train wrecks in the last few weeks that have involved dangerous leaking chemicals and caused the evacuation of hundred of people are evidence that chemicals are not something to fool around with.

This rule, like many others, was apparently made to be broken, however. We received some chemicals from a supplier the other day.....on the Greyhound bus. The container had been wrapped so that the freight handlers on the bus could not have been aware of the contents of the package. When we called the supplier to inquire, a young boy laughingly said that he was aware that it was illegal, but "what they don't know won't hurt them."

Well, I beg to differ. The rule against chemicals being transported by bus is a good one and necessary to safeguard passengers. I think this boy's violation of that rule is just another example of "me-ism", or 'what I want is all that's important '

We intend to insist, the next time that we want chemicals. that they be shipped properly, or not at all.

Since the days that I spent every Saturday afternoon at the Ritz theatre in Altus watching Gene Autry, Bob Steele, Tim McCoy, Rex Allen, Tom Mix, and Roy Rogers in those good ol' shoot-em-ups, I have been a movie addict. I have felt very deprived since McLean's drivein theatre went out of business several years ago. To me, luxury would be living in a town that had a walk-in movie, that changed shows every week! However, since the Atlanta station has been on the cable system in McLean, I have almost satisfied my desire for a movie binge. Last Sunday afternoon, I watched Lauren Bacall and Humphrey Bogart in their first movie together "The Big Sleep." That was followed by a wonderful-horrible old western stairing Joel McCrae.

Now, that is what I call an afternoon well spent. Of course my husband was in the other room muttering about some stupid baseball game he was missing or some such nonsense, but my idea is ... if you've seen one baseball or football game, you've seen them all, but every old movie is a unique experience...right, ladies? Movie mania is, I think, a characteristic of the female sex. Lisa recently went to Amarillo for a real movie marathon. She went to two movies one afternoon, spent the night in Amarillo (and watched a few more on television, I'm sure) and ther went to three more the next day. Some of our friends seem to think that is strange behavior, but it seemed perfectly wonderful to me. Imagine...five movies within 24 hours...with five giant soft drinks and five giant bags of buttered pop corn...it might almost be

Health Official Pushes Animal Control For City

Approximately 30 residents attended a Rabies Alert meeting in the McLean High School auditorium Friday night where Dr. John Galbreaith, regional veterinarian for the Texas Department of Health. explained the problem with rabies in McLean. Dr. Galbreaith and Vic Whadford also of the Health department showed a film on rabies and answered residents' questions about the disease.

The Health spokesman emphasized that the city must begin an animal control program as one way of controlling rabies in the city, "With three rabid skunks found in the area, we feel that there are probably at least 27 more out there somewhere." Dr. Galbreaith said. "The link between wild animals to domestic animals to humans must be broken by picking up all stray dogs, penning all pets, and vaccinating all pets. Dr. Galbreaith also explained that penning domestic pets would also help eliminate "as many as 60 diseases which can be caused by dogs and cats which run lose," he said.

Members of the city council who attended the meeting talked briefly after the session and agreed to put the animal control problem on the agenda for the next city council meeting.

Two Truckers Die On Death Alley

"Death Alley", the twolane construction area on Interstate 40 west of Alanreed, claimed two more lives last week when Paul Eugene Carter, 57, of Yukon, Okla. and Edmund Mongroe Hughes, 47, of Horton, Ala. died following a head-on collision. The predawn collision Thursday occured about 5 a.m. when Hughes, driving a 1975 Interna-tional west-bound truck veered over the center line and hit the Roadway truck driven by Car-

Carter died at McLean Hospital shortly after the accident. Hughes was taken to Amarillo where he died at Northwest

Texas Hospital about 7:54 a.m. A passenger in the Hughes truck, Hughes 33-year-old halfbrother, Wayne Johnson, was taken to NWT hospital where he is listed in critical condition. One of the victims had to be the McLean Fire Department, a fire department spokesman Texas Highway Patrol Tro-oper R.C. Parker investigated the early-morning wreck.

The deaths of the two truckers bring the total killed on the construction stretch to 14 since May 1979. Most of the other fatal wrecks on the highway have been head-on collisions. The spot where Hughes truck trailer collided with the rig driven by Carter was the same point where two persons were killed Nov. 8, 1979 in a fiery three-vehicle crash. A man from Collingwood, Tenn., and a woman from British Columbia were killed in that accident.

DPS officers say certain circumstances are common to most of the Death Alley accidents. The victims usually are from out of state, most of the collisions are head-on, and

Over a one-week period in May, four people died in two separate accidents on the dangerous two-lane road.

Shortly after the two wrecks. DPS troopers began to patrol the area more heavily, slowing traffic and possibly contributing to the two-month lapse between fatal accidents.

Construction work on the $20 million project should be com-pleted in October, according to Texas Department of Highways and Transportation officials.

the accidents, a total of 136 signs have been posted along the 10-mile area.

Drivers are warned of the road construction, to slow down, to be careful when passing and to keep vehicle headlights on while driving through the two-lane stretch.

Jimmy Did One Thing Right!

Regardless of the goofs and gaffes of the Carter administration and his poor choice of friends and advisors and his terrible luck with Miss Lillian's other son, Jimmy has done one thing right!

He kept America and American athletes out of the Moscov Olympics. The flagrant cheating of the Soviet judges has brought a new meaning to the word "homer" sometimes used in reference to referees. The Russians have a terrific bunch of State-paid, State-fed. State-owned athletes who probably would have won many medals without any help from the judges, but the Soviets have never been known to leave much to chance. So, we have judges inventing new rules or new penalties just to insure that the Australian lan Campbell's gold-medal-winning triple jump was disallowed by the judges who said Campbell's foot had scraped the takeoff board even though Campbell swears he has film to prove that the jump was foul-free. A Soviet athlete took the gold, and Campbell came in fifth. The worst case was in the diving competition when Soviet judges ruled that the Russian diver Alexandre Portnov could repeat his dive because he had been distracted by a noisy crowd, even though similar complaints about crowd noise by the Mexican and East German divers had been disallowed. Portnov dived again, and this time won the gold.

Carter's decision to ban Americans from participating in the summer games was originally made to symbolically protest the invasion of Afghanistan, but imagine how relations between our country and the Soviet bear would have been affected if American athletes had been subjected to the kind of dishonesty that athletes from other countries have suffered through.

Perhaps President Carter will be bold enough to take the next step, and end some of the hypocrisy of the Olympics which has outgrown and perhaps outlived its original purpose. Maybe he will say that it is time for American athletes to compete against other amateurs from Free World countries, and let the quasi-professional athletes from the Soviet block have their own games. The western athletes could continue with the tradition of medals, but let the professionals compete for prize money since they get paid now based on their performance in the Olympics.

This summer's shameful performance by the Soviets will never be forgotten by sporting enthusiasts throughout the world. Let's hope that the Games planned for Los Angeles in 1984 set a better example of honesty and fair play than the Moscow ones have. Maybe if we're lucky the Soviets will decide to boycott the American Olympics and will keep both their athletes and their judges at home!

MICROWAVING FOR LOW-SODIUM DIETS:

Since the microwave steam-cooks foods, it is natural for preparing many special diet Also, the microwave is ideal for preparing small quantities and for reheating individual frozen portions. One frequent request is for low-sodium recipes. tistics show that over 15 percent of the American adult population suffers from hypertension or high blood pressure. And, research indicates a close link between hypertension and excessive, sodium in the diet. It is important to note that sodium is an essential mineral in maintaining normal good health. However, under certain conditions, the body is unable to excrete the excess sodium consumed, and then it becomes cessary to restrict the sodium Most of the sodium in our diet comes from table salt. One tablespoon of salt accounts for 6800 milligrams of sodium. So, by eliminating the salt added to foods, it is possible to greatly reduce the sodium level of the diet. Sodium is also present in Foods high in natural sodium content should be avoided by those on highly restricted sodium diets.

Since most of us are accustomed to the flavor salt adds to many foods, we may not immediately adjust to the change in flavor when it is omitted. It will be easier for you to make the change if you gradually reduce the salt, even in special recipes like these. Of course, we realize this gradual method is not an option if you are suddenly forced to restrict your sodium intake in a major way. Use these recipes for ways you can combine your microwave and the need for reduced sodium. Milligram and point counts are given with each recipe for those that need to calculate daily sodium intake. And, remember that only a doctor should prescribeyour diet for your particular needs. A doctor or dietitian is a good source for additional answers about foods and recipes to meet the needs of highly restricted

Gone Fishin by Jeanette Fish

Everybody needs a consuming interest, a special hobby, something you love to do, HAVE to do. A place inside your head, exclusively yours. It may be making your house pretty, cooking, fishing, work-ing old cars. Mine is making scrapbooks and picture albums.

Because of a continual nursing shortage, I found myself working long hours since last November. My hobby fell by the wayside. I missed it, felt kind of like a half me. Last month I had a three week vacation, a long enough time to catch up on whatever I had let go for a year. It worked out so well I had a whole week to sift through hundreds of pictures, letters, notes....remembering. Flipping through old pictures flipping through the years of your life. Seeing an old Christmas card--"Never a Christmas morning/ Never an old year eads/ That someone thinks of someone/ Old days, old times, old friends." Looking at a six-year-old me in a happy, laughing picture with my nine-year-old sister. Seeing the next page...her picture, encased in glass on her tombstone after a one week illness.

A picture of Mama's house in 1966 when we all came home for Christmas. Daddy took liqquid snow, painted a big "Welcome Home" on the window with all our names there.

The modern day family album is plagued with the "Here I am trying to catch up with this book which is 10 years in arrears and what in the world am I going to do with all these beautiful, expensive wedding pictures when everyone in them has gone and gotten divorced'

If you take albums lightly, it won't bother you. If it is your absolute passion, it gives you a bad stomach ache. Pictures of me pouring punch at the wedding of some long gone in law are the ones that are good. Pictures of me with family marrieds who are still slugging it out are those where I seem to be peering to a deep, dark well. I shoved those aside and went on to a nicer day.

So much for reminiscing. My current project is to be called "Family Divorce Album." Talk about good pictures....

The group is from McLean First Baptist Church and will return home Friday.

Attending the camp are ponsors Buell Wells, Tom and Charlotta Cole, Wilma Manglum, and Frank Simpson; and youth Brenda Wilson, Karen

Children's Gym Toys Recalled

Two pieces of children's play equipment have been recalled, according to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC), because they pose a stragulation hazard to wooden railings.

A space between the upper rung of the ladder and the platform is small enough to entrap the heads of children and strangle or asphyxiate them. CPSC reports two incidents have occurred, resulting in the strangulation of an 18-month-old girl and asphyx-iation of a 16-month-old-boy, resulting in irreversible brain damage.

Approximately 600 infant toys known as crib exercisers have been recalled by the toy's importer, Play Spaces International of Wattham, Mass. The toy consists of an elastic cord strung with 11 colored wooden rings and balls and is intended to be suspended over the crib from one railing to the other. It is possible for infants to become entangled in the elastic and thereby strangle.

Consumers should contact the manufacturers of these toys or call CPSC's toll-free hotline at 1-800-638-8326 for more in-infants and preschoolers. Some 400,000 Indoor Gym Houses are being recalled by their manufacturer, Creative Playthings. They gym house is a hollow, masonite-and-wood box 30 inches in height which supports a two-step wooden ladder on one side and a short slide on the opposite side. The top of the box serves as a bridge between the ladder and slide and is protected on two sides by

Loose Marbles by Lisa Patman

My brother likes his homemade chocolate chip cookjes crunchy. When I was young I thought this was a sign that his sense of right and wrong was warped. As I grew older and became more aware of the opposite sex, I began to realize that this was simply a typical symptomof maleness. I now understand that no matter what we women think is right, the nearest male will have enough contrary thoughts, words and deeds to drive us all crazy.

A man, for example, can successfully run a business, hire and fire employees, and fill out an income tax form, but cannot find his en socks in the morning.

Most men can make split-second decisions concerning stocks and bonds, can figure out how best to invest your savings, or where to find the best bargain in tractors, but will be unable to shop for a birthday or Christmas gift without carrying on as if his life were Men, for the most part, can give you the complete lineup of their favorite football team, the entire batting record of the 1957 Dodgers, and know who coached the first Rose Bowl game, but have not the faintest inkling of the wife's middle name. Sometimes they can get the initial right.

Perversely, a man will forget that you made his favorite dish yesterday, but will remember the time three years ago when you burned the Jello.

team loses, but will think you're a sissy if you whimper during a severe bout of typhoid fever.

A man can, while lying down, stare at you over his enormous po belly and tell you with a straight face that you are really letting yourself go. (This usually happens when you are cleaning the particular room in which he is reclining, watching television.) Best of all, a man will eat, at one sitting, dill pickles, ice cream bars, chocolate covered peanuts, enchiladas with hot sauce, and a bowl of pretzels, and then wonder why he has indigestion. Frankly, I sometimes wonder how they manage to walk without a book of instructions. But then, they probably wouldn't read it. I've yet to know a man who actually reads the directions before tackling

Some Texans May Now Apply For Food Stamps

Some Texans may now apply for food stamps through Social Security offices, according to the Texas Department of Human Resources, the state agency which administers the food stamp program.

An agreement between the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Social Security Admin-for a person to apply for food stamps at a Social Security office under the following conditions: 1. If you and your household (all the people who live and eat with you) are applying for Supple-mental Security Income (SSI),

2. If you and your household already receive Supplemental Security Income but are not receiving food stamps.

The arrangements is designed to allow the elderly and disabled to participate in the program without having to travel to a separate office to apply for benefits.

Applicants who have questions about this change or want more information may call the toll-free Food Stamp Hotline at 1-800-252-9330, or may contact local food stamp or Social ecurity office.
