VOLUME 76 MCLEAN, GRAY COUNTY, TEXAS THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1979 PRICE 204 NUMBER 37

A 24-hour bug confined me to bed last week with a slight fever and other mild discomforts, so I used the chance to catch up on about six books that I had been intending to read.

My reading usually ranges from fiction to biographies to short story collections, but for some reason this time I found that I had five books whose basic theme was self-improvement.

Now, if you have had this nasty bug that's making the rounds in McLean, you know that the last thing you need is something that tells you how badly you are treating your body, or how your mental attitude is not right. But that's all I had to read.

After finishing one book on how to quit smoking (with gruesome details about the dangers of this lovely vice), I read one about the effect of nutrition on mental health!

Feeling totally depressed by that time. I turned to another book called FREEDOM FROM COMPULSION. I thought it was a nice safe choice since I certainly don't consider myself a compulsive person. And for the first few chapters

I was safe, until I came to a chapter about compulsive collecting. I didn't find myself in

The enthusiastic McLean tigers, itching to start their 10-game football horse race, were bumped coming out of the gate Friday night as the Chillicothe Eagles handed them an 8-0 defeat at Chillicothe.

The Tigers, playing their first contest under new head coach Jack Dorsett, were stung by an 87-yard touchdown on the opening kickoff, giving the Eagles a quick 6-0 lead. Vernell Fobbs took Wade Smith's kick and ran up the middle, then veered to the left and raced to McLean's end zone. Chillicothe's extra point attempt failed. Dorsett said, "We just didn't have anybody in the middle, and that's where he ran."

McLean gained only 88 yards in the defensive match of the Class B teams. Chillicothe added a safety in the fourth quarter to account for its final 8-0 margin. On a punt by the Eagles, McLean's deep man slipped down, allowing the

VANDALISM IS NOT A GAME

In the early hours Saturday morning, the McLean football team returned from a game at Chillicothe to find that their cars and pickups, left inside the locked football field, had been vandalized.

Several items were stolen. and the windows of several cars were covered by obscenities scrawled in white shoe polish.

While one group of boys was representing their school in a tough, physical contest, another group was showing their for their school and for "love" their town by committing an act of senseless vandalism.

Because, if the rumors around the school are correct, it was a group of McLean High School boys who spent their time Friday evening marking up their classmates' cars and stealing cameras, shells, and other items.

While some might excuse these acts by saying that "Boys will be boys", I believe that that is a bunch of hogwash! The majority of teenagers, boys and girls, do not commit criminal acts, nor do they vent their antagonism in such a cowardly

COVERED WITH PAPERWORK

If the American culture becomes extinct in the future, the cause will probably be that we have drowned in a sea of paperwork!

With increasing government control in every aspect of business, the amount of paperwork for the average businessman or citizen has taken on unbelievable proportions. A large percentage of every work day is devoted to paperwork to satisfy one or another government bureaucracy.

In the newspaper business, an editor is required to fill in forms (and write checks!) for sales tax, social security, unemployment compensation. In addition, the post office requires a triplicate form with detailed questions to be filed every week when the papers are mailed.

Last summer, we received a new pad of forms, similar to the form we had been using, but on a larger sheet of paper. We were told to destroy all the old forms and begin using the new one. Within THREE WEEKS, way as to deface someone's property If there is a conflict brewing between two groups at the school, I would hope that they will face each other and settle their problems in an adult

I am glad that the incident was reported to local law enfor cement officers, because apparently one group has stepped over the line into a criminal act. Let's not coddle these criminals; let's take action and see that they are punished, because theft and vandalism are not childish acts.

If you have proof, or some concrete piece of evidence concerning this incident, I urge you to contact Jimmy Shelton or J.D. Fish. For the sake of the boys who had their vehicles damaged, the culprits should be caught and punished. And for the sake of the boys who committed the act of vandalism, they should be caught and punished, because a relatively small criminal act which goes unpunished can lead to larger acts that can ruin a whole lifetime.

AUSTIN - Texas Attorney General Mark White said last week that important evidence for his investigation into the cause of history's largest oil spill was lost when a SEDCO drilling rig was scuttled by its owners White is investigating

Gov. Bill Clements' SEDCO drilling firm and other parties involved in the Campeche Bay oil spill to determine if negligence was the cause of the spill.

He told Austin reporters he was "shocked" to learn SEDCO had towed the rig into Gulf of Mexico international waters and sank it in between 6,000 and 10,000 feet-an irretrievable depth. "I couldn't understand why they would have taken this action. You know this (the drilling rig) was obviously going to be a piece of evidence that would be important in terms of an assessment of negligence, White said. Gil Clements, the governor's son who now runs SEDCO, said the decision to sink the rig was made after company and insurance officials determined the rig could not be salvaged.

Clements said that after the June 3 blowout, the rig was towed from the spill site and examined by insurance officials who settled with SEDCO for $20 million.

The rig was then scuttled after the first of July, according to Clements, who said he suspected "that White's staff was told early on that this rig had been sunk.' White was looking into reports that when SEDCO pulled the rig from the well, that action cracked a wellhead casing, which may have resulted in the uncontrolled flow of oil into the Gulf.

A staunch business supporter, Creighton chaired the economic development committee. Supporters of Gov. Bill Clements had tried in past weeks to get Creighton to switch parties, but he balked at that, saying he ran as a Democrat and would die a Democrat.

Creighton was the last "admitted" tobacco chewer in the Senate, and an adept pilot who once had to crash land his plane in an emergency while en route to a Colorado hunting trip.

SMART SHOPPERS SHOP HARDER:

Help cushion the impact of high prices by becoming an in-formed shopper. Consider the purchase of a new refrigerator or a microwave oven. This may seem simple until the search begins through the multicolored world of no-frost refrigerators and the variable power touch-control microwave appliances. Most consumers know little about refrigerators, much less microwave ovens, since they are bought only two or three times in a lifetime.

these products is the key to being a smart shopper. Before making a major purchase, consider the four types of infor-mation available--assistance from government agencies or consumer groups, casual infor-mation from friends and relatives, your own personal judgement and advertiser'a claims. Advertisers of name-brand goods can help if their ingor-mation is really informative, but advertising can be more persuasive than accurate. Work-of-mouth information can be revealing and is an important source of information, but may need further investigation. The most valuable and objective source of information is from government and consumer groups. Consult your local county Extension agent, Con-sumer Reports and Consumer's Research Magazine. The magazines are available in any public library, and your county Extension agent has a multitude of informative fact sheets on buying refrigerators and microwave ovens Informed personal judge-ment is probably the best guide in choosing a product. Search-ing for information is costly in erms of money, time and energy, but the consequences are rewarding. For example, you can increase your purchasing power, you may realize considerable savings and finally you may avoid making a costly nistake SPECIAL OFFERS ON FOOD

"DOUBLE BATCHING" "Double batching" enables homemakers to get two dinners from one recipe--provided extra freezer space is available. Simply cook a double amount of a favorite recipe. Serve one batch, and freeze the other for later use.

To freeze, prepare the food in the usual way except double the recipe and cook it until almost done. Frozen meats and vegetables easily become overcook ed when reheated if they were completely cooked before freezing. Season lightly during preparation, because pepper, cloves and synthetic vanilla tend to become strong and bitter when used in frozen foods. Add more seasoning just before serving. Add crumb and cheese toppings to the frozen food just before reheating. Use proper freezing containers and follow recommended freezing procedures.

Marathon Suit Settlement

The Texas Railroad Commission approved final settlement of the marathon natural gas contract dispute between Coastal States Gas Corp. and LoVaca Gathering Co. and some 400 customers.

The six-year legal battle is the longest and most complex in the commission's history

The $1.6 billion breach of contract suit began in 1970 when it became apparent Coastal LoVaca would be unable to meet long-term contract conditions to supply natural gas to Austin, San Antonio and other Texas cities.

Under the settlement, customers will drop their $1.6 billion damages suit, Lo-Vaca will be separated from Coastal States and transformed into a new company known as Valero Energy Co., Coastal States will spend $180 million minimum over the next 15 years exploring for gas for Valero, and Austin, San Antonio and the Lower Colorado River Authority will have the chance to buy extensive lignite leases now owned by Coastal in Bastrop, Fayette and Washington counties

Heading Off A School Health Problem By Lawrence C. Parish, M.D. University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine

When an outbreak of head lice occurs in a school, a letter is sent home to parents inviting them to meet with the school nurse and the school doctor. Parents can play an im-portant role in the control of pediculosis and in preventing its rapid spread to the community at large.

They should learn to recognize head lice and to suspect the possibility of their presence when a child persistently scratches his head or complains of persistent itching. In checking the scalp, particular atten-tion should be paid to the back of the head and the area behind the ears. Close inspection will reveal very small, pearly, oval-shaped eggs attached to individual hairs near the scalp. Several methods of treatment are available, but most physicians prescribe a medi-
