Editor's Notebook

The flurry of construction and new business in McLean in the past few weeks brings to mind the seemingly age-old concern of many local business people about the future moving of the highway out of the center of town.

McLean residents have known the move of Highway 66 (now Interstate 40) was coming for at least 20 years. I remember hearing references to the feared event when I was small.

It seems that ever since the eventual highway shift was plotted in some smoke-filled room in Austin, or maybe even before that, as rumors of it were born, many McLean people have speculated on the consequences.

If the highway moved outside of town, the main argument was all the motorists on the big boulevard would pass right around Our Town without even knowing it was here. The gas stations, cafes, and other businesses which receive much of their income from travelers would go out of business immediately, and the rest of the town would die shortly thereafter.

Of course, there is some truth to that. Especially for the gas stations, which would lose some business when all those cars were transplanted to a far-removed thoroughfare.

But damaging ideas almost always have some truth in them. And that highway fear has been taken for years and years and used as a reason for not doing scores of things in this town.

It has scared many a local businessman away from expansion, from trying something new. It has dissuaded McLeantites from going ahead with new businesses that they at one time thought might be a good idea. And it has been used by our citizens to tell outside investors why they probably wouldn't really want to risk anything in McLean.

Dairy Queen Announced For McLean

James Finkenbinder announced this week that a Dairy Queen will be built in McLean. Finkenbinder, who has the Dairy Queen franchise for this area, has recently purchased land at the intersection of I-40 and the Pampa highway.

Finkenbinder said that construction will begin by Sept. 1, and completion is expected by Jan. 1. The Dairy Queen in McLean will feature menus similar to the Dairy Queen in Pampa.

Finkenbinder said he probably will employ eight or 10 people in the business.

City Receives Tax Check

A check for $833,75 has been mailed to the City of McLean by the state comptroller's office for the city's July share of the local-option one percent city sales tax.

McLean so far has received $10,129.02 as its share for the year. For the same period in 1977, McLean received a payment of $1,004.49 and had a total for the year at this point of $10,049.35.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock reported that his office has mailed checks totaling $19.8 million to 900 Texas cities as their July share of the tax.

The July allocation raises to $216.3 million the total received by the cities this year to date, a 13.4 percent increase over the same period last year.

Firm Completes City Seal-Coating

Approximately 25 city blocks in McLean were seal-coated by the Jake Diehl Co. of Hereford last week. The project, which was approved by the city council earlier, involved sweeping and patching the streets, and adding a layer of tar and gravel.

The $35,000 project took approximately 10 days to complete.

Jones To Speak At Meetings Here Aug. 6-11

The McLean church of Christ is sponsoring a series of meetings Aug. 6-11, with services on Sunday at 10 a.m. and 6 p.m., and services Monday through Friday at 8 p.m.

Jon Jones, minister of Richland Hills church of Christ in Fort Worth will conduct the meetings. The theme of the series is "God's Formula for the Dynamic Life".

Jones, the son of Robert C. Jones of Clarendon, is a 1963 graduate of Abilene Christian University. He received a master's degree from the University of Alabama.

In his ministry he has served congregations in Texas, Alabama, and Florida. In 1966 he traveled and spoke extensively throughout the Middle East, visiting Lebanon, Syria, Jordan, Israel, Turkey, and Greece.

In 1968 he was chosen to appear in the '68 edition of Who's Who in Texas Today. In 1970 he was extended a fellowship by the American-Israeli Cultural Foundation to study at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem, Israel.

This study gave primary emphasis to the Dead Sea Scrolls and archaeology in the Bible. See CHURCH, Page 2

Two Trucks Collide In Another Accident

Another traffic accident involving a vehicle turning from the wrong lane of Interstate 40 occurred Sunday night in McLean, this time with no injuries reported.

According to Department of Public Safety trooper R.C. Parler, a truck driven by George S. Burdick of Brinkley, Ark., allegedly attempted to turn left from the right lane of I-40 about 8:45 p.m. Sunday and was in collision with a semi-tractor-trailer driven by Albert Poutch of Union Springs, Ala., which was in the left lane. The two trucks were traveling east, and the accident was about 30 feet east of the Rowe Street intersection.

There was minor damage to both vehicles.

Parler said the rash of similar accidents can be partially attributed to the heavy summer vacation traffic. He said since most of the businesses in McLean are on the north side of the eastbound I-40 lane, many travelers suddenly try to turn into parking lots from the right lane when they notice a business.

Parler said the Texas Highway Department is considering ways to alleviate the problem. He said McLean DPS officers have made recommendations for study.

SWPS Withdraws Offer For Gas Breeder Reactor

Bert Springer, president of Southwestern Public Service, said this week that the electric company is withdrawing its offer to provide $100-million and a plant site for building the nation's first gas-cooled breeder reactor.

"This has been a hard decision for us to make. We have been hoping, for nearly four years, that the plant would be built in our service area. However, the program has met with unusual and continuing delays, and the time has come for us to make other plans to have plenty of electricity in the future," Springer said.

Southwestern announced in September of 1974, we made a commitment for a demonstration plant ready to turn out electricity on a daily basis, just like any of our other plants. At that time, it looked like we would get that kind of plant in the early 1980's. It now appears that it will be after 1990 before a plant can be built, and it will be a research project subject to shutdown and testing and not one on which we can depend for day-to-day operation.

"One of our problems is the big battle that continues over the Clinch River Breeder Reactor. The President is understandably opposed to Clinch River at the same time that he is vague about what breeder technology he would support. The Congress seems just as insistent that Clinch River be built and pays little attention to gas-cooled or other breeder alternatives. As a result, all the breeder debate is on Clinch River, although many of us are convinced the gas-cooled breeder is better. This has delayed the building of a demonstration plant, and it is not to the best interests of our customers to keep waiting around for this problem to be solved," Springer pointed out.

General Atomic has been working on the gas-cooled breeder since 1961. In 1968, a group of utilities representing about 20 states withdrew their offer. See SWPS, Page 2

Three Scouts Attend Area Summer Camp

Three McLean Boy Scouts attended Camp M.K. Brown summer camp July 23-29 with scout master Neil Middleton. The three boys, Allen Patman, David Gee, and Stephen McAnear, members of Scout Troop #425, won the Phantom Flag Award for finding the hidden flag the first night of the camp. They also won a first, second, and third for the best camp sight.

Individual merit badges won by the boys include Pioneering, Allen Patman; Pioneering and First Aid, David Gee; and Pioneering, First Aid, and Rifle and Shot Gun badges, Stephen McAnear.

Monday night, Middleton conducted a court of honor and presented advanced badges to the boys. Patman and Gee received second class badges, and Gee and McAnear received a forestry merit badge.

Patman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Patman; Gee is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Gee; and McAnear is the son of J.C. McAnear.

since it's only a matter of time before it will dry up, anyway. You might try Pampa. I don't have any statistics, but I don't think the fear ever should have been applied to many of the businesses in town. Grocery stores, drug stores, barber shops, and many other enterprises just are not that dependent on tourists. They might be helped some by travelers' money, but their bread-and-butter is right here with the local people. One reason the highway bugaboo has been such a shame is the length of time that it has been a barrier to growth. Although McLean residents never have been certain of when the dreaded move would occur, and still don't have a definite year, it was known from the first that it would be a long time.

I can't understand people being afraid to start a venture because something that is planned for 10, maybe 15 years in the future might hurt them at that far-off date. Those who were not afraid have done business for many years, and the road hasn't moved yet. Of course, the new highway is getting closer now, but the potential that already has been wasted is a tremendous loss.

Look at the convenience store that opened in McLean just this year. Now that's an enterprise which takes much of its income off the highway, even though it also relies on local people. Its owner certainly wasn't scared of the highway, and I would guess that he is going to have more than paid for his investment before the first vehicle ever passes by on the new I-40. And I doubt that he will close down when the move does come. Another thought: Even though the traffic will be at the edge of town instead of right down the middle (whenever the project is completed), I don't believe it will be the curse that many have predicted. Other towns have reported that, when a freeway first bypassed them, business did drop some, but then gradually built back up to its former level and beyond.

The same percentage of motorists are going to be running low on gas here after the change as before, and they're going to take the McLean exit to fill up. I don't think they're all going to wait until they reach another town, which will be just as bypassed as McLean is.

Maybe it's a little late for these comments; they may not be needed as much now as they were a few years back, because McLean is showing some definite signs of life. Maybe some of the new ventures and fresh ideas that are being planted now are nails in the coffin of a long-held fear.

The witty writings of Lem O'Leary which have appeared in The McLean News recently prompted me to try my hand at his art. This is no attempt to upstage the venerable poet, because I don't think I could come up with an imaginative limerick each week as he does, but here is my stab at it.

I've been in Houston lately, and the weather there is quite a bit more humid than ours is. This verse isn't so much a criticism of the Gulf Coast weather; it is simply a rebuttal to the remarks I hear occasionally rapping our West Texas climate:

The Panhandle's wind is a bother
Yet nothing to make people holler.
But this sticky, wet air
And no breeze through my hair
Sure make me hot under the collar.

Have a good day.

one-third of the generating capability in the country was formed to join General Atomic in support of the program. It also has had limited financial support from the federal government and some foreign nations.

Southwestern joined the industry group in 1974 when it made the offer of the plant site and the $100-million.

Helium Breeder Associates was formed in 1976 by some of the original members of the utility group. HBA was started to serve as the organization to contract with the federal government for research and development. When it was established, it was hoped that there would be a significant increase in the federal support of the gas-cooled technology which, in turn, would develop additional utility support.

Southwestern will continue to research nuclear fusion as a charter member of the Texas Atomic Energy Research Foundation in the fusion process, the atoms are joined, rather than split, and the hydrogen in seawater is the fuel for making electricity.

"We will continue on our plan to use coal as our base fuel. We will, also, look at other nuclear alternatives and continue our support of the fusion program. The decision we have reluctantly made about the gas-cooled breeder will not, in any way, interfere with our ability to serve our customers, either now or in the future," Springer concluded.

County Farmers Complete Survey

Farmers in Gray County have been doubling as statisticians in completing questionnaires which become essential links in the sophisticated economic structure of Texas agriculture, says Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

The county's producers were part of about 30,000 farmers across the state who recently responded to the mid-year survey on summer acreage and production conducted by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. The results of the survey will be issued in an Aug. 10 crop report which will be available free of charge.

"Without the availability of unbiased, accurate figures through cooperation between Texas farmers and the Reporting Service, business and government agents from one end of the state to the other would suffer in their ability to predict coming trends and act accordingly," Brown said.

He explained that farmers themselves use the estimates as working tools in determining upcoming production decisions. At the same time, the information is used by farm organizations and legislators in planning and administering programs, by extension economists and private farm management consultants in advising farmers, and by almost every link in the agricultural service industry in allocating resources.

Tumbleweed Times

By Marvin C. Morgenstern

When T. J. "Cottonwood" Scott settled in Jones county, Texas, he was known as one of the greatest hunters of the area. That statement becomes more outstanding when realized at that time, Jones county was a part of the famous Great American Desert.

Scott and his wife settled seven miles east of Anson in 1880. Mrs. Scott drove a wagon which carried the lumber they would build their house with. The first house was 16-by-16 and later a 6-by-16 room was added on with lumber hauled from Fort Worth. Other additions were built with lumber from Abilene and Weatherford, all hauled by wagons with iron axles.

Even the new sheriff of the county, J. P. Cole, did some of the carpenter work on the house.

When Mrs. Scott was still living, she used to recall how she and her husband carried buffalo bones to Abilene when it was a city of tents.

Mr. Scott was a great hunter and followed hunting largely as a means for sustenance. He always kept turkey, deer and antelope in the larder.

Scott had a career as an Indian fighter too. He was credited with being a fierce fighter in the last battle with Indians in Hood county.

In the fall of 1870, he and "Hog" Jennings killed the last two buffalo that roamed the plains of Jones county.

When the game began to thin out, Scott would join up with L. T. Tucker of Merkel and make trips to the Devil's River country to provide food for their families.

The Scotts were married in Travis county in 1856. The Adolph Hotel in Dallas awarded a "Loving Cup" to the couple in 1935 for being married the longest of any other couple in the state. The presentation was made at the Scotts home in Anson.

Mr. Scott died on August 14, 1927. Mrs. Scott was still living in 1933 being 97.

Hunting, Fishing Guide Ready

The 24-page "Guide to Texas Hunting and Sport Fishing Regulations" for 1978-79 is available at Texas Parks and Wildlife Department offices across the Panhandle and South Plains, with license vendors also furnishing copies for the general public.

These booklets are designed as a guide only, and specific questions about each county should be directed to local Texas game wardens or P&W offices. The new regulations will become effective Sept. 1, 1978, and will include changes in hunting and fishing rules county-by-county in the guide.

A locator map of the state listing all counties including those with special seasons on antelope, javelina, quail, sheep, prairie chicken, pheasant, mule deer, and chachalaca is presented in the center of the guide. Information on hunting and fishing licenses is included along with the correct method of attaching tags and permits to the various species of game that require these special tags.

Special sections on fur-bearing animals, lake regulations, general saltwater fishing information, protected species of wildlife and tropical fish and aquatic plants also are included.

On the back of the new hunting and fishing guide is a form to be used by persons who witness a game violation and want to report the violation to the P&W.

Wheat Farmers Meet Set

Texas wheat farmers reeling from the harvest of less than half of a 1978 crop but faced with declining prices due to the addition of 200 million bushels to the previous 1.1 billion bushel carryover stocks because of good yields throughout the rest of the nation, will meet to map strategy for next year in two area meetings.

Otis Harman, Tulsa, president of the Amarillo based Texas Wheat Producers Association said that High Plains area county association directors will meet in Amarillo, Aug. 2 at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center. A similar session will be held for the Rolling Plains area leadership Thursday, August 3 at the Research and Extension Center, Southwest of Vernon.

Mr. Scott died on August 14, 1927. Mrs. Scott was still living in 1933 being 97.

LOOSE MARBLES

BY LISA PATMAN

Lately we have been talking of starting a new feature in the paper - recipes from our local area cooks. Since there are so many good cooks around and since everyone likes to eat we think that this would be of interest to many of you.

Thinking along this line I thought you might be interested in a much sought after recipe which I serve to my family at least twice a year.

Now the secret to this darling game and fish regulations for a period of one year, ending Aug. 31, 1979.

These booklets are designed as a guide only, and specific questions about each county should be directed to local Texas game wardens or P&W offices. The new regulations will become effective Sept. 1, 1978, and will include changes in hunting and fishing rules county-by-county in the guide.

Special sections on fur-bearing animals, lake regulations, general saltwater fishing information, protected species of wildlife and tropical fish and aquatic plants also are included.

On the back of the new hunting and fishing guide is a form to be used by persons who witness a game violation and want to report the violation to the P&W.

It is necessary to take a large heavy spoon and throw the mixture onto a large plate or sturdy bowl. If you are uncertain about this procedure, watch any old prison camp or jail house movie, in which you will see surly cooks serving prisoners.

Surliness is a side effect of this dish, which serves an unknown number of people and several large dogs. Note: this dish may be hazardous to your hips.

PRUSSIC ACID POISONING IN LIVESTOCK

Extremely hot, dry weather could lead to prussic acid poisoning in livestock grazing certain pasture grasses and forages. The acid builds up in stressed plants that become particularly dangerous when new growth results after a rain.

Although many plants contain the toxic material that causes poisoning, those causing the highest mortality in livestock when new growth is grazed following drought conditions are Johnson and Sudan grasses and sorghum or hybrids of these.

The most dangerous time as far as the grazing is concerned is when wilted plants put forth new growth. Livestock should not be allowed access to the wilted plant or plants putting out new growth immediately after a rain. New plant growth usually becomes nontoxic and can be grazed within 10 days to two weeks following a rain.

As far as prussic acid poisoning is concerned, the poison acts rapidly and can kill animals within minutes. In most acute cases, animals become affected within 10-15 minutes after eating toxic material and can die in two to three minutes. Symptoms may include a brief period of stimulation followed by depression and paralysis. Signs of colic may be present. Stupor (loss of sensibility), difficult breathing and frequent convulsions may result. Death is caused by suffocation since oxygen remains in the blood and is not exchanged to the tissues.

Prussic acid poisoning in livestock can be prevented by following the steps listed below:

1. Hungry animals should not be turned in on suspected plants that may contain prussic acid. An animal well filled with hay before turning in a new pasture will be less affected by the plant material that may be toxic.
2. Remove all animals from the pasture if one in the herd shows any signs of poisoning. Keep in drylot and feed cured hay until suspected forage can be tested.
3. Call a veterinarian immediately if an animal appears to be poisoned. An antidote to treat affected animals is highly efficient if given early by intravenous injection. This product is available from veterinarians for ranchers who want to keep a supply on hand for emergency use.
4. Have suspect plant material checked by the Texas Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratories at College Station or Amarillo. Local veterinarians can assist in packaging and submitting samples.

PICKLED OKRA

Okra—a popular garden crop—makes a delightful gourmet item—pickled okra. Wash okra, leaving small amounts of stem on the pods, and drain. Make brine: 1/2 cup plain salt 2 quarts water 1/2 cup vinegar 1 tablespoon sugar This amount covers one gallon of okra. Place—in bottom of appropriate size jar—a layer of dill and two tablespoons of mixed pickling spices. Add okra, then another layer of dill and a like amount of spices. If desired, add a few cloves of garlic. Pour brine to top of jar. Keep okra under brine at all times. A stem of dill or some grape leaves added for color will keep okra from floating. Fermentation will begin within three days. Remove the scum that forms on top daily. If possible, keep the pickles at even room temperature (70 to 86 degrees F. is best for brining). Fermentation is faster in hot weather (10 days to two weeks). When fermentation stops, pickles are ready to eat. Seal airtight in brining liquid for storing, or rinse pickles and pack into sterilized jars and cover with fresh brine if desired. Commercial dill seeds do not give the flavor that fresh dill or dried dill heads with stems give. Note: Carrot strips, green beans, green tomatoes, black-eyed peas and other vegetables may be pickled by same method. PICKLED OKRA: 1 fresh okra 1/2 cup water 1 tablespoon salt 1 teaspoon dill seeds for each pint jar 2 cups vinegar 1 hot red pepper 1 hot green pepper 2 cloves garlic Place one-half teaspoon dill seeds in bottom of each sterilized jar. Wash okra and pack as tightly as possible in jars being careful not to bruise. Add one-half teaspoon dill seed, red and green peppers and garlic. Bring vinegar and salt to a boil and pour this hot mixture over the okra. Seal the jars and allow to stand two weeks. Serve icy cold. Makes approximately four pints. PROCESSING Process sealed jars of okra from either recipe for five minutes in boiling water bath while hot—immediately after putting it in the jar. Processing destroys any bacteria, yeast or molds which occur in the air and, therefore, can easily contaminate food in transfer from the jar to the jar and cause spoilage. PREPARE TROUT IN MICROWAVE OR CONVENTIONAL OVEN Prepare trout or other fish fillets, fresh or frozen, with equal success in either microwave or conventional oven. Trout are abundant and saucy for summer. And, when the sauce is a medley of almonds, white wine and ripe olives, seasoned with dill weed and garnished with fresh lemon. Trout

Olive-Amandine for four is worthy of note. In addition, fish is noted for its high protein content while boasting of a low in saturated fat. Bake the fish in a conventional oven in about 15 minutes, or in a microwave oven, the fish takes only about five minutes. Either way, fish and seafoods are fast, easy cooking. Microwave owners can cook and serve seafood in the same dish, saving dishwashing chores as well as energy and time. Plus, if any of the "Trout Olive-Amandine" is left for tomorrow, diners can be assured that there will be no warmed-over flavor—another advantage of the microwave. TROUT OLIVE-AMANDINE 1 pound trout fillets 1/3 cup sliced almonds 5 tablespoons margarine 2 tablespoons lemon juice 2 tablespoons white wine or sherry 1/2 cup pitted ripe olives, quartered lengthwise 1/4 teaspoon dill weed 1/2 teaspoon salt lemon slices MICROWAVE OVEN METHOD: In a two-quart baking dish, combine almonds and margarine. Cook, uncovered, two to three to three minutes or until butter and almonds are golden brown. Stir in lemon juice, wine, ripe olives, dill and salt. Arrange fillets in margarine mixture, turning under thinner end pieces to insure uniform cooking. Spoon sauce over fillets.

Cook, covered with wax paper or plastic wrap, five minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with fork. Let stand, covered, two minutes before serving. Garnish with lemon slices. MAKES FOUR SERVINGS. CONVENTIONAL OVEN METHOD: Sauté almonds in margarine over medium heat until margarine and almonds are golden brown. Combine and assemble according to above directions. Bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees F. for 12 to 15 minutes, or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serve "Garden Peas" to add color and compliment the trout. GARDEN PEAS 1/3 cup celery 3 green onions, sliced 1/4 cup chopped green pepper 1 tablespoon butter or margarine 1 can mushroom pieces, drained 1 can water chestnut, drained and sliced 1 package (10 oz.) frozen peas 1/2 teaspoon seasoned salt Combine celery, green onions, green pepper and butter in 1-quart glass casserole. Microwave, covered 5-6 minutes or until tender. Stir in remaining ingredients. Microwave, covered 7 to 9 minutes or until peas are tender.

Library Notes

McLean News Staff
FATHER FEELINGS
by Elliot A. Daley.

"Father Feelings" is an account of a year in the life of the Daley family. Daley writes of his feelings about his three children and about his wife. And through his account of his family the reader gets a good idea of his family's feelings about him. This book should probably be on every parent's reading list. It is not so much of a "how to parent" book, as it is an account of "how to love." It is so refreshing to find an author who admits that although he loves his children deeply, he is still filled with fear, doubt, frustration, and sometimes total helplessness. Through it all, Daley still makes parenting seem a wonderful experience. Somehow the way he copes makes sense, in a sometimes senseless world.

"Father Feelings" will have you nodding and saying, "Ah, yes, that's the way it is." It's just that kind of a loving account of the "joys and trials of being a father" -- or a mother, for the author writes in a manner that parallels many ideas most parents have about their families. "Father Feelings" is available at Lovett Memorial Library.

Texas Tech Football Workouts Scheduled

Texas Tech head football coach Rex Dockery has announced that the Red Raiders will report back for the fall, Aug.
19, and begin two-a-day work-outs Aug. 21. Dockery has scheduled Picture Day for the 19th.

Because of fall classes starting late at Tech, the Raiders will have only three weeks to get ready for their Sept. 9 opener against Southern Cal in Los Angeles.

"We've never had such a short time between the opening of practice and our first game," Dockery said. "It means we are going to have to get some things done in a hurry. We are not certain yet how many days of two-a-days we will have because of the short practice time.
We could have as many as 10
or 11 days, but that may be too many."

Dockery will have 30 returning lettermen at the opening of fall drills, including six full-time starters from last season and a couple of part-time starters.

The biggest areas of concern
for the first-year head coach
as he opens fall drills will be the lack of experience and depth at running back and in the defensive secondary. Three of last fall's starters in the offensive backfield are gone and the fourth, flanker Brian Nelson, has been moved to split end. The secondary is in similar shape with only three players with significant varsity experience listed on the two-deep following spring training.

At quarterback, Dockery plans to use both Tres Adams, a senior, and Mark Johnson, a junior. Adams is considered the better passer and Johnson
the better runner, although they both made good progress
in the spring.

Texas Tech will face one of its toughest early-season
schedules in several years
this fall. After opening against USC, the Raiders will play
Arizona, Texas and Texas
A&M in succession.

Gas Rationing Hearing Set

A public hearing on the federal government's proposed study plan for gasoline rationing is scheduled for Aug. 17-18
in Dallas. It was announced by Clyde E. Carlson, U.S. acting regional representative for the U.S. Department of Energy.

The hearing will begin each day at 9:30 a.m. in the Regency Room of the Adolphus Hotel at 1921 Commerce Street.
Persons wishing to speak
should write to Dennis Butler, Department of Energy, P.O.
box 35228, Dallas, 75235 or call Butler at (214) 749-7705.

Gina Layne and Ken Parker
were among students attending an early registration conference Monday and Tuesday
at Texas Tech University.

TEN YEARS AGO

The Almgred-McLean His-

the grade school cafeteria. Pres-

short business meeting.

Jennie Everett modeled a flapper suit worn by the first girls basketball team in McLean,
complete with a cap and long black stockings. Her grandmother, Verge (Lesley) Everett, was a member of the first team.

All the men from the first basketball team were present. Each one told a very interesting and sometimes amusing incident that happened to them. The team consisted of Ed Newton, Dolph
Suttons, Raymond Glass, Bryant
Leary, Johnny Bask and Andrew Jordan, who traveled 600 miles to be at the meeting. Thacker Layne modeled a suit depicting their suit.

VISITORS, ANIMALS BACK AT BANDELLER AFTER 1977 FIRE

A forest fire that blackened a large section of Bandeller National Monument in June, 1977,
hasn't put a damper on the outdoor experience that is available to visitors to the northern New Mexico area.

The fire burned 15,000 acres, including 10,200 acres within the monument, mostly wilderness backcountry. As a result of the blaze and its aftermath, the heavily used Frijoles Canyon area of Bandeller was closed for a few days and parts of the backcountry for several weeks.

But a park rehabilitation team went to work in the area even while the fire still smoldered.
As plumes of smoke rose around them, the team members cut dangerous snags and rebuilt trails that were washed away by flooding that followed on the heels of the fire.

Archeologists inspected prehistoric Indian sites, seeking ways to protect the newly-exposed ruins and biologists began studying the fire's effect on the flora and fauna. Reseeding with native grasses began immediately
to protect the denuded area
from damaging erosion.

Today, charred trees can still be seen, but signs of new life are everywhere. Almost immediately wildflowers sprang forth and birds began to rebuild their nests. Now some animal and plant species are more abundant than ever as the result of the renewal of the habitat.

Visitors are back, too. As always, most direct their attention to the developed area of Bandeller--Frijoles Canyon
where the visitor center, museum and the principal "apartment house" and cliff ruins are located. This area was untouched by the fire.

Others head for the backcountry to get a look at nature and some of the more remote, but equally exciting ruins, such as the Pueblo of the Stone Lions.
In Frijoles Canyon, a variety of interpretive programs are offered daily throughout the summer. Each evening at Juniper Campground Amphitheater
near the monument entrance,
campfire programs are presented and two to three hour guided nature walks are given each morning.

The campground, which will be open until Oct. 30, contains campsites with tables and fireplaces, but no utility hookups.
Cost is $3 per site. A picnic area is located near the visitor center and there is a snackbar.
Bandeller is located on State Route 4, 10 miles from Los Alamos, N.M.

If you are planning to visit a National Park Service area
on your vacation, write the agency at P.O. Box 728, Room
P-1, Santa Fe, N.M. 87501.
You'll be sent a free brochure
that lists NPS areas near you and charts the facilities and services available at each.
