Austin Court Civil Appeals Is Overruled

Oil Company Ouster Suit Brought By Allred As Attorney General

AUSTIN, June 16 (AP)—The supreme court today upheld validity of the Texas anti-trust laws, thereby overruling the Austin court of civil appeals.

The decision was in the famous oil company ouster suit brought by Gov. James V. Allred during his first term as attorney general. The civil appeals court had dismissed the suit on grounds the anti-trust laws were unconstitutional because farmers and stockmen were exempted from their provisions.

"We have concluded," the supreme tribunal said, "that the court of civil appeals was in error in holding the anti-trust laws void, and we also are of the opinion that the insistence that the existence of the co-operative marketing act renders the anti-trust laws invalid is without merit."

Modern Restaurant Keeper And Story Of Poet Are Compared

STANTON, June 16—The poet who lived in a house by the side of the road and watched the rest of the world go by had nothing on the modern restaurant keeper when it comes to learning about the foibles of his fellow man.

The cafe proprietor knows what you—and your next-door neighbor—like to eat for breakfast, lunch and dinner—what kind of pie you order most often, whether you scornfully reject salads, what type of cereal you want.

But these are not the extent of his knowledge of you. He also knows if you are cranky about your food and fussy about the service or pleasant and willing to be halfway decent to those who wait upon you. In other words, he can tell you more about yourself than you would learn if you went to a crystal gazer.

And what is true of the man who keeps a restaurant is true also of the woman who help manage it and the smiling girls who serve the tables.

Mrs. E. H. Underwood who, with her husband, manages the City cafe in Stanton, tells interesting facts that she has learned during her career as restaurant-keeper.

She knows, for example, that it is neither apple pie nor the more high-bat cocoanut custard that men order most often, various surveys to the contrary. Apricot leads the batting average in the pie field, she has found, and she sells more apricot pies than all other kinds put together.

She does not agree with the theory that toast-and-coffee is fast becoming the national breakfast, since her customers still call for the good old ham-and-eggs type of morning meal. Men, however, prefer toast to breakfast rolls.

It is women who eat most of the salads, with lettuce and tomato and chicken salad as the favored ones. Women, also are the ones who call oftenest for cereal with the uncooked kinds possibly leading in popularity.

So many tourists dine at the Underwood restaurant that odd variations in food likes and dislikes crop out.

Beans cooked in ranch style are mostly ordered by local diners, while cornbread, that much-publicized southern favorite, is the choice of tourists more often than of hometown customers.

Chicken-fried steak brings a broad smile to the faces of West Texans but travelers from other sections of the country often have never heard of the dish.

Mrs. Underwood recalls with amusement the classic ignorance of the out-of-state tourists who ate candied sweet potatoes with relish and then asked, "What are those yellow vegetables?"

The continual coming and going of people from all parts of the nation put the hometown diners "on the spot" so far as courtesy is concerned, for their manners are compared daily with those from other states. Mrs. Underwood and her assistant loyally insist that West Texans rank high in this respect.

Californians were classified, in general, as easy to please, but easterners as difficult to serve.

"I can almost always tell, when customers come in the door whether they will be hard to please or not," Mrs. Underwood says. And she sums up the results of her varied experiences with humans as they eat by a "philosophy of the restaurateur"—you do the best you can and overlook a lot of things.

Which, come to think of it, might do very well as a philosophy of life.

Mrs. Lewis Rix and Miss Helen Snell left today for Cisco, where they will be accompanied home by their mother, Mrs. Clayton Stewart and daughter, LaVerne. Mrs. Stewart has been undergoing treatment in Brown's Sanatorium in Cisco.

READING AND WRITING

By John Seibly

"CAPITAL KALEIDOSCOPE," by Frances Parkinson Keyes; (Harper: $3.50).

"Capital Kaleidoscope" is one of the best volumes of Washington reminiscences this jaded department has read in years. This is so because Frances Parkinson Keyes, writer and wife of Senator Keyes from New Hampshire, has not felt it necessary to be clever all the time.

Mrs. Keyes has sprinkled her book with spice, and there is even a little gentle malice—particularly her eloquent appreciation of Mrs. Calvin Coolidge. This eulogy (and it is one) closes with a recitation of the circumstances under which an intimacy between the ladies ended; not far away is another gentle dig which says in effect that the Dawses might have had an intimate time in Washington had the Coolidges not frowned on their "western" ways.

Mrs. Keyes is not nasty about her likes and dislikes, however. She may tell of Mrs. Samuel Graham's nickname before her marriage, but she credits Mrs. Graham with numerous attempts to persuade Mrs. Dawes to sit down after a certain dinner, so that the other guests might also be seated. Mrs. Dawes did not sit, by the way.

There is a lot about the Coolidges; it seems Mrs. Coolidge can mimic the former president quite as well as the late Will Rogers could. There is much also about the Hardings, and Mrs. Robert Lansing is called "one of the most distinguished hostesses that Washington has ever produced." It was Miss Mabel Boardman who gave the Duke of Windsor that famous "turn"—you remember, the night he looked up, saw a woman advancing under a tiara, and said "My God, it's Mama."

Lots of odd little detail creeps into the narrative. One cannot miss a chill of horror when reading that all the Coolidges served at official receptions was ice water, and it is a relief to know that the Roosevelts do better. The discussion of Mrs. Hoover is perhaps the most frank that has been printed, and quite worth reading.

Court

Right of the state's allegations, do not furnish a basis for an acceptable charge against the defendants. Indeed, some of the rules on their face are strongly suggestive of a violation of anti-trust statutes.

"This is plainly true of rule 1, of group 1, in which the defendants undertake to restrict or prohibit the installation and loaning of filling station equipment free of charge and agree among themselves as to what charges should be made for certain units of installation.

"Rule 7, group 2, is equally suggestive as being a restriction of trade in violation of anti-trust laws of the state. Briefly, the effect of the rule was to prohibit the use of the least and license plan by which a refining company or wholesaler would lease filling stations and sublet them to its retailer for a smaller rental. It is a fair reduction of the purpose of this rule was to create a common practice among all companies so as to avoid competition.

"Other rules which the court said were suggestive of violations of the anti-trust laws prohibited the donation of money or other things of value in connection with the purchase of petroleum products and forbade refineries and wholesalers from assisting retailers in the construction of stations.

"The defendants had argued that the federal trade commission approved the code, but the court said the commission had no authority to undertake to regulate intrastate business in petroleum and its products in Texas, and any such attempt, if made, was ineffective to suspend or void the anti-trust laws.

"The provision exempting farm and stockmen from operations of the anti-trust laws was contained in the penal code but not in the civil. Reviewing the history of anti-trust legislation, the court asserted the codes, with respect to the anti-trust statutes, bore no relation to each other, and the legislature had intended them to be separate.

"Therefore, as the highest state court in the civil matters, it upheld the civil law. The court of criminal appeals is the last resort in criminal law.

"The opinion further said there was nothing in the cooperative warehouse marketing act to back the contention of defendants it invalidated the anti-trust laws.

"Justice Cureton expressed the personal opinion, however (with the majority of the court, not passing on the matters, that a section of the marketing act exempting cooperative associations from the anti-trust laws was itself unconstitutional. Corporations organized under the act, he said, were subject to anti-trust laws.

"The court overruled arguments of defendants that the state could not file suit to enjoin foreign corporations doing business in Texas until it first had brought suit to prove they had violated the anti-trust laws. It also said the state could move against all the defendants in one suit and separate actions were not necessary. Contention that the Sinclair Refining company, having entered the state after the others, was not properly a party to the suit likewise was overruled.

"It held, however, that writs attaching stock held by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, Standard Vacuum company and Standard Oil company of California, respectively, in the Humble Oil and Refining company, the Magnolia Petroleum company and the Paco-Petroleum company, had been served without statutory authority because they were foreign corporations and had no permits to do business in Texas.

Tom Girdler, president of Republic Steel, reaffirmed "our determination not to sign the C.I.O. contract" in a telegram to Gov. Martin L. Davey of Ohio.

Girdler sent his "regrets" to Governor Davey on his inability to attend a peace conference called by the governor for tomorrow.

In Washington, Phillip Murray, chairman of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, said he would not determine whether John L. Lewis' steel union will represent the employees in collective bargaining.

Pittsburgh headquarters of the union announced a telegram had been sent to Eugene Grace, president of Bethlehem, making the proposal.

The union stipulated that if the union wins the election, the company should agree to a written labor contract—the prime point at which independent steel companies have balked.

Frank Burnell, president of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube, vetoed—for the moment, at least—the back-to-work plan submitted by Ray L. Thomas, who said he was a spokesman for 10,000 non-striking steel workers in the Mahoning valley.

Furnell declined to give the

He would not attempt a reopening, he said, until he had received such assurances.

The mills have been idle for three weeks.

At Warren, Ohio, tense point in the Mahoning valley steel area, Judge Lynn B. Griffith ordered the Republic Steel company to bring into court any records showing how much had been spent for machine guns, tear gas bombs, labor "spies" and company unions.

The judge made his ruling at the start of the third day's hearing on Republic's petition for an injunction to curtail picketing.

Protest Against C.I.O. At Ambridge, Pa., a spokesman for an American Federation of Labor union asserted in a protest to President Roosevelt and Attorney General Homer Cummings that C.I.O. pickets prevented A. F. of L. workers from returning to their jobs.

The protest followed yesterday's clash at Ambridge when scores were beaten in a free-for-all between 500 C.I.O. pickets and 50 A. F. of L. members attempting a back-to-work movement.

Here in the Mahoning valley—where the long "pencil" stacks of the mills have remained smokeless against the industrial skyline since May 26—more than 30,000 men are idle.

About 20,000 have been out of work in Youngstown alone, with the huge Republic Steel corporation and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company standing adamant against C.I.O. demands for a signed labor contract.

Explosion On the eastern front of the strike "war" an explosion at Johnstown, Pa., sent scores of terror-stricken residents tumbling from their beds into the streets before dawn today.

The explosion—police believe it was caused by a bomb—shattered the temporary calm outside the gates of the Bethlehem Steel plant at Johnstown, Pa., just before dawn.

Just 24 hours before, there had been fierce fighting at the same strike-bound plant, and there had been dynamiting at Warren, Ohio.

Today's blast was near the Gaultier plant of Bethlehem's sprawling Cambria works. Little damage was done.

No police were on duty there.

The explosion came on the heels of a volley of words from two Big Guns of Steel. Only a few hours earlier there had been oral blasts from Tom Girdler of Republic Steel and Frank Furnell of Youngstown Sheet and Tube—two generals in the fight against the C.I.O. strike.

"Communist" was the way Girdler labelled John L. Lewis' C.I.O. Furnell, president of Sheet and Tube, was not as outspoken. Both reiterated their determination not to sign C.I.O. contracts—the crux of the situation under which more than 100,000 workers are idle.

The "back-to-work" movement picked up momentum here as spokesmen for non-striking workers estimate at 10,000 prepared to confer today with President Furnell about reopening Sheet and Tube company plants, closed three weeks ago by the strike.

"The men are ready to go back to work at any time," said their spokesman, Ray L. Thomas. "We hope to have them back by tomorrow."

Spokesmen for non-striking Republic Steel workers said their men "felt the same way" and that they had "back-to-work" signatures from 70 per cent of Republic's 8,000 employees in Youngstown.

But C.I.O. leaders made ready to meet the challenge. They hurriedly arranged a series of mass meetings today. C.I.O.'s director for Ohio, John Owens, was called in to take personal charge.

Gov. Martin L. Davey, undimmed by the failure of his peace conference yesterday, called upon Girdler and Furnell to meet with him tomorrow. He hopes in a conference at which union men are not present he may be able to learn from the steel executives just what terms would be acceptable.

Republic Steel plants at Buffalo, Chicago, Canton, Warren and Niles, Ohio, Girdler said, "are operating in spite of armed pickets," and "the sixth open hearth furnace and the wire mill have been started at Chicago."

(It was at Republic's South Chicago plant on Memorial Sunday that nine persons died in consequence of a mass march on the plant. The ninth death occurred yesterday.)

Explaining his refusal to sign a contract as demanded by C.I.O., Girdler said C.I.O. has "broken numerous contracts, adding: "Would you yourself sign a contract with a man who clubs his neighbor over the head, kicks the postman out of your yard, throws bricks through your parlor window, and has already broken a contract with the man across the street?"

Girdler said that the C.I.O. strike has already cost Republic Steel workers nearly $3,000,000 in wages—wages, Girdler said, which the

Girl Rider To Take Part In Rodeo Here

'Curley' Seale Signed For 4th Annual Cowboy Reunion And Rodeo

The program for Big Spring's Fourth Annual Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo was completed Wednesday morning with the contracting of "Curley" Seale, dare-devil girl rider from Blair.

Miss Seale, who is well-known trick rider in spite of her good looks and small stature, will ride her horse "Joy" through a hoop of blazing fire and over an ignited automobile. The two stunts will feature each performance of the July 4, 5 and 6 frontier spectacle.

T. J. Goode, president of the Rodeo Association, said this morning that his group was satisfied with the present program.

"We open with a wild mule race, four cowboys on unbroken mules," he summed up the show. "We have an educated horse, 'Silver King' with Bud Spillbury as the trainer; we have trick and fancy riding with Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Richards; and Miss Seale's two death defying stunts."

Gratifying the sentiment of local patrons, officials have made no effort to contract trick riders. "People around here want riding and good riding," Goode stated. "We're going to give it to 'em on July 4, 5 and 6."

The wild mules will be furnished by John Masters from his New Mexico ranch.

school call for creation of classroom space. Officials assert that repairs to the building are necessary, since defects in the gymnasium wing have made that section hazardous. The board recently declared that portion of the building unsafe and condemned it against further use.

In connection with proposed changes at the South Ward, Blankenship said the board has proposed converting it into a six-grade unit. Instead of the present four grades—and that a similar change is contemplated for all ward schools in the city. The present junior high school would be made into a six-grade unit. The changes would call for a redistricting of the city to reduce congestion in the east, west and south wards, the superintendent said. The program is designed to segregate younger pupils from the older group. Seventh graders would be housed in one section of the renovated high school building.

Crowded conditions and the bad state of repair of the high school building make the improvement and construction work essential. Blankenship asserted, and the work can be financed only by the bond issue. An increase in teachers' salaries is needed to put teachers' salaries on a plane with those in other cities of this size and to provide more adequate maintenance and operation.

Voting on the 28th will be done at the courthouse. W. R. Pursler was named as judge.

Highway 9 Designated 'VFW Memorial Hiway'

State highway No. 9, a major link traffic artery of West Texas and the highway which serves Big Spring north and south, has a new distinction.

The road has been designated by the state highway commission as "The Veterans of Foreign Wars Memorial Highway," dedicated to all Texans who were killed or died in any way in the nation's wars. Designation was at the request of the Texas department of the F.V.W.

A letter from Max C. Wals, department commander of the veterans organization, to the local chamber of commerce said "This is destined to be the greatest memorial highway in America, because it is the longest and runs through more historic and romantic territory connecting as it does, the historic San Jacinto battlefield and the Alamo; then connects all of this with the great empire of the plains country and the Panhandle and the great Rocky Mountain region.

The memorial designation applies to several highways, State highway No. 3 from Orange to San Antonio and state highways 9, 178 and 5 from San Antonio to Texline on the Texas-New Mexico border.

GARNER VISITS IN AMARILLO

AMARILLO, June 16 (AP)—Vice President John N. Garner, en route to Uvalde for a vacation, was having a "good time just visiting around" today that he said he might not leave for his home until Friday.

In Amarillo he is a guest in the home of his son, Tully Garner, bank president. The vice president spent the morning chatting with down-town groups and receiving a number of young boys who called at his son's office. He gave them a bit of advice.

"Be honest, boys," he said, "and always tell the truth and you'll grow up to be honorable men."

Meeting W. P. Hopkins, boyhood friend of 40 years ago, the vice president ejaculated: "I couldn't forget a mug like that." Garner once boarded in the home of the Hopkins family at Detroit, Texas.

Originally planning to leave Thursday morning for Uvalde, Mr. Garner said he might rest up another day. He was not certain as to what route he would take to his home town. The vice president and Mrs. Garner made the 1,700-mile automobile trip to Amarillo in three days.

Whether Vice President and Mrs. Garner will pass through Big Spring on their motor trip to Uvalde remained indefinite today. The No. 2 man in the federal government remained in Amarillo and had not decided when he would leave there. His route from Amarillo to Uvalde also was undisclosed, but it was considered probable he would follow highway 9 through Lubbock to Big Spring and San Angelo.

A preliminary session was held last week, Bond reported, and farmers voted to organize a unit of the Texas Agricultural association. R. D. Gregston was elected temporary chairman and Joe Bayes was named temporary secretary-treasurer. Permanent organization plans and future policies are to be mapped at the Thursday night session.

Magic Stick May Locate Water Wells

Mesquite Beans Used In Water Survey By Mack Sundry

Penn Livingston, member of the United States Geological survey, a fellow who is following all manner of scientific principles and studies in his efforts to supply detailed information on the water supply in the Howard county area, had profered help from a new source today.

The offer came from Mack Sundry, Howard resident who has been locating water wells for years and claims a good record.

Sundry what he calls the "magic stick" method, and approached city officials on the proposition of using his magic stick in locating wells for municipal use. He and Livingston discussed the intricacies of finding water and Sundry demonstrated his magic stick in picking a spot for a well at the city cemetery.

The magic stick is a forked branch of a fruit-bearing tree. In the demonstration, Sundry used a slender branch of mesquite—the mesquite bears beans, you know—grasping an end of the fork in each hand. If there's water below the joining end of the branch turns downward. It's a method long known in locating of water, and Sundry says it works for him. He explained it by an "electrical" connection.

Livingston and city authorities made no commitment as to adopting the method in the current water survey.

Checks Area Southeast Livingston at present is continuing surveys in the area southeast of Big Spring, checking wells and formations in an effort to determine the course of underground water flow. His work, a comprehensive project designed to furnish complete information as to underground water supplies in the area, is being financed jointly by the city and the federal government, with the state board of water engineers participating.

Jeanette MacDonald, Gene Raymond To Wed

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., June 16 (AP)—Smiling but serious, Jeanette MacDonald refused today to disclose a single detail of the arrangements for the wedding tonight which will make her the bride of Gene Raymond, yellow-haired movie actor.

"I'm superstitious," she said. "It's bad luck to tell those things." She meant it. Officials at M-G-M Studios, where the actress is under contract, said they didn't know. Her friends professed ignorance. The 11 bridal attendants said they were sworn to secrecy.

Holly knows it will be a lavish affair, and a big church wedding, scheduled to start at 9 p. m. (PST).

Jeanette MacDonald and Gene Raymond have been Hollywood's "pet" couple for more than a year. Neither has been married before.

The actress' name was often linked with that of her business manager, Robert Ritchie, but both insisted they were merely good friends. Raymond never was known to evince more than passing interest in any of the Hollywood beauties—until he met his fiancée.

"Don't ask me about the wedding," he said today. "I'm not only superstitious, but nervous!"

Ranking Team Noted For Its Former Stars

By HANK HART

Local baseball fans will have the privilege of seeing the best brand of baseball being played today next month when the Halliburton Cementers come to town for a single game with the Cosden Oilers.

The strong Oklahoma team survived competition in their home state in 1936 and then took the national honors in the semi-pro tourney at Wichita, Kas.

The Wichita meeting yearly attracts teams from every state in the union.

Included on the Halliburton club are players from both the major leagues and many from the Texas league. Tom Holley, who performed for Fort Worth several years ago, is an infielder on the club.

Manager Martin can thank Cotton Clover for the chance at the Cementers. It was the Amerada manager who helped arrange the deal.

Following his extended Texas trip, Jack Reynolds, who last night defeated Tarzan Krause in the main event at the local A. C., will go to the European continent for a lengthy tour.

Included on the champion's itinerary are stops in Germany, France, Ireland, Scotland and Italy.

His first opponent will probably be Harold Angus, a Briton strong boy.

Only once during the past 17 years has Reynolds been without a crown. He lost it several years ago to a "Lunnoner," Lansdowne Finegan, but regained it in his first try.

Big Spring, incidentally, was the first stop the champ made in Texas.

From the West coast we learn that Benny Wilson, who wrestled here when Furrer first opened his arena, is wrestling in San Francisco, Benny, at one time was touted as a junior champion.

Also in California is Danny McShain who recently lost to Paul Orth in Los Angeles.

Tony Piluso, a good looking Italian already well known to local fans, is returning for a brawl with Vic Webber on next week's card.

Railroads To Hang Out 'Men Wanted' Signs Soon

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—Labor leaders said today they expected the nation's railroads soon to be hanging out "men wanted" signs that would bring employment to at least 40,000 new workers within a year.

They said the campaign awaits enactment of the Wagner-Crowder railroad retirement bill, approved yesterday by the house interstate and foreign committee.

ONE SURE WAY TO LICK RISING COSTS

Business men are becoming more exacting in truck purchases because operating costs in all departments of business are rapidly mounting. To pre-measure a truck's operating expenses is now good judgment and often avoids unnecessary losses. GMC, priced low at the outset, designed and built for long life at low cost upkeep, and famous for gas and oil economy, fits the careful business budget. We publish these facts because thousands of owners have proved them in every kind of haulage service. Another reason for GMC savings is that GMC's are fitted right to every trucking operation before they are delivered. The "GMC Truck Selector" assures that—and GMC's complete line of 1/2 to 12 tons makes available the unit prescribed for your service. GMC prices are now crowding the lowest!

NATIONAL SEMI-PRO CHAMPS FOR GAME HERE WITH COSDEN

CEMENTERS PREPARING FOR MEET

Cosden's Oilers will step into big time baseball next month if plans underway are completed by Manager Pepper Martin.

The powerful Halliburton, Okla., Cementers are making a tour of the southwest before the national semi-pro tournament begins at Wichita, Kas., in August and have contacted Martin for a game here.

The Halliburtons, managed by Ed Lowell, former Fort Worth first sacker, boast one of the strongest teams, professional or otherwise, in the country. Lowell has retained most of the stars that carried the Cementers to national semi-pro honors at Wichita last year.

Cotton Clover, manager of the Amerada ball team, Monument, N. M., has completed arrangements for a game with the Cementers following the Oklahomaans' appearance here.

In 1936 the Cementers took first place honors in the national meet by defeating Macon, Ga., in the final game.

Parker had won the first set, 6-3, and was leading 4-1 in the second when he changed his tactics. The young Californian proved far sturdier and more enduring and won, 6-3, 7-5, 6-2.

SPORTS ROUNDUP by EDDIE BRIEZE

Reynolds Displays Craft In Beating Silent One

By HANK HART Demonstrating what he could do in a pinch, sagacious Jack Reynolds, recognized throughout the wrestling world as the champion of his weight, transformed Tarzan Krause from a strutting offensive "musclehead" to a beggily, badly-beaten youngster that still has a lot to learn in one short series of painful leg splits and walked away with victory in the main event of Herman Furrer's Tuesday night wrestling card before a capacity crowd of 2,000.

It was a champion the thousands came to witness. For a half hour or more the fanfare got the idea of the kingpin's father was substituting for him but the champion is an old man who, long ago, learned the art of keeping his strength in reserve. So he fought off the repeated charges of the willing challenger and crossed so many of Krause's holds until the mute looked awkward.

Once the Iowan slipped and Krause fashioned a reverse Russian cradle on him. Jackie stood it for several moments and then motioned to Referee Clements that he'd like to try it again. Tarzan was awarded the first fall but it did him little good.

The silent one tried it again when the two returned to the ring but Reynolds wasn't to be fooled twice by the same trick. He wriggled out of that one and suddenly clamped a tantalizing split on his opponent and Krause signaled he'd had enough.

A dash to the ropes by the challenger and that same split a moment later ended the bout for once and for all.

Buck Lipscomb and Joe Bauer satisfied the faithful's craze for blood in the semi-go by tossing each other in and out the ropes for 20 minutes or more.

After Bauer had finished his posing for the bleacherites and "Lippy" had had his say with the referee the bout ended with Buck pinning the Dutchman's shoulders to the mat.

Jack Hagen and Tex Hager went to a draw in the curtain raiser but Hagen had all the better of it. The Louisiana lad clipped the arbitrator on the chin once for intervening while he was tormenting Hager. That punch supplied the action.

Renewal Of Title Games Up Tonight

Fincher And Cosden Tangle In Play-Off Series First in a series of the best two out of three games will be played on the Mundy diamond tonight between the Fincher Roadrunners and the Cosden Octanes to determine the title bearers of the first half of the association's schedule.

The Octanes will go into the playoffs the decided favorites due to the fact they have beaten the roadrunners twice this season.

Manager Matt Harrington will probably send Horace Wallin, who outpawped the Chaparrals into defeat both of the times he has faced them, while Fincher will depend either on Buck Tyres or Grovella Makors for twirling duties.

Game time is 8:15 p. m. All managers have been requested to attend a called meeting in The Herald office at 7 p. m.

MEYER UNDER KNIFE

FORT WORTH, May 16 (AP)—Coach Dutch Meyer of the T. C. U. Horned Frogs underwent an appendicitis operation at Arlington this morning. He is reported "doing well."

SPORT SPARKS

By FELIX B. McKNIGHT DALLAS, June 16 (AP)—Business Man Wilmer Allison, who sneaked out of retirement long enough to sack the state tennis title, believes his old Davis cup erasies had better bring back the goblet this year or sit back and swallow, for years to come, a German monopoly on tennis.

"The Germans are the ones to fear," said Allison. "Baron Von Cramm is the greatest player in the world today. Once the Germans get hold of the Davis cup they're liable to hold on to it for 20 years."

Allison, in the cotton business at Austin with his famous dobbie partner, John Van Ryn, believes Don Budge is better than ever and would beat Von Cramm on one of his best days.

Odd's and ends: Leo (Dutch) Meyer, peppery little T. C. U. grid coach, goes under the knife today at Fort Worth to rid himself of a troublesome appendix. Tommy Fine, who did considerable twirling for the Baylors of the South-west conference, tossed a no-bitter for the Mount Pleasant Cubs the other evening.

Johnny Munro, the University of Texas' crack first sacker, hopped a bus after graduation and headed for the St. Louis Brown camp and a major league tryout. In this instance, the Browns waited until Munro had completed his education. Howls arose from the Pacific Coast recently when a southern California player was signed before his college career had ended.

They said around Beaumont that "Boots" Poffenberger, the clever young righthander who tossed nothing but victories for the Exporters before being called in by Detroit, had incurred no less than six fines for violating club rules before he left the league. Al Schacht is clowning his way around the Texas League, putting on his antics before games. He had "em in the aisles at Houston recently.

Little more than a year ago Ralph Guldash, his trousers baggy at the knees, was professional at the Kilgore golf course, a nine-hole, sand green layout in deep East Texas. Four of Texas' top-ranking amateurs, Harry Todd, Reynolds Smith, Don Schumacher and Bill Bob Coffey, will go after the Trans-Mississippi title at Denver next week. Todd, with six victories in five tournaments this year, is gunning for a Walker cup berth and will play in all the big time events to press his bid.

One of basketball's keenest students, Chuck Taylor, is some shakes as a golfer. Right now a Dallas resident, Taylor has qualified in the championship flight of a couple of classy tournaments. Only two weeks remain before the state's best municipal course players start the 72-hole test over Meadowbrook's stiff course at Fort Worth. Charlie Reasor, last year's winner, will defend his title. The winner gets his freight paid to the national public links tourney at San Francisco. Horse racing is doomed in Texas, say you haven't heard, the Pampa Downs Jockey club is putting on a real meet out on the West Texas plains right now—and packing 'em in.

Sullivan Leads Hens To Win Over Millers

CHICAGO, June 16 (AP)—Joe Sullivan, young Toledo hurler, sent down by Detroit with his own game yesterday as Toledo defeated Millers, 2 to 1. Sullivan singled in the tenth to score Frank Croucher with the winning marker.

St. Paul defeated the Columbus Red Birds, 8 to 6. Louisville defeated Milwaukee, 4 to 2.

Indianapolis won a night double header from Kansas City, making it four out of five against the Blues. The ten inning first game score was 8 to 7 and that of the seven-inning afterpiece was 6-1.

LEWIS BATTERS ETORRE

PHILADELPHIA, June 16 (AP)—John Henry Lewis, Phoenix, Ariz., light heavyweight champion, betted Al Ettore, Philadelphia, for a decisive 15-round decision last night in a non-title bout before 15,000 at the Phillies ball park. Lewis weighed 178, Ettore, 192.

WORTH CROWING ABOUT

TEXAS HORSE FAVORITE CHICAGO, June 16 (AP)—The three-year-old filly championship of the country may be decided Saturday in the $25,000 added American derby at Washington park.

Two fillies which will strive for national supremacy will be Mary Blake from Mrs. Ethel Y. Mann Milky Way Farm stable and Dawn Play, owned by the King Ranch of Texas. Dawn Play is coming after victories in the Acorn stakes and the American Coaching club Oaks in New York.

STRIKERS SMASH WINDOWS KANSAS CITY, June 16 (AP)—A brick-throwing crowd of hotel strike sympathizers smashed windows in three major hotels here late last night and was dispersed only after 15 automobile loads of policemen resorted to tear gas.

Ships Shake Off Slump, Rap Tulsa

(By the Associated Press) Anyone who thinks Beaumont's youthful entry in the Texas League has shot its bolt will wind up far down in the standings as a shade premature in his calculations.

The record does not show the Shippers have lost all their snap. The last three weeks have been disastrous but the flub as of today is not farther than four games behind Oklahoma City's league leaders.

Against clubs which suddenly have spurted into contention the Exporters have managed to cling to a second-place tie, the co-holder being San Antonio.

To prove that the kick has not entirely left their bats, the Beaumonters spent an hour and 35 minutes last night cutting three Tulsa pitchers for 15 hits and an 8-1 victory. Quinn Lee, meanwhile was setting the Oilers down with four hits.

San Antonio's always-dangerous Missions also used force to overcome Oklahoma City, smashing out 13 hits for a 14-to-6 win over the pace-setters. Sam Harshany and Stanley Keyes, the Missions' foremost maulers, outcrooked their work, each getting a homer, double and a single to drive in nine runs.

Galveston found itself already tilting Lefty Barnes, who made his debut with the Corsairs by whipping the hard-hitting Fort Worth club 5 to 1. He allowed six hits at judgmental intervals and fanned seven men.

The cellar-neeting Houston Buffers rose up in the seventh inning to overpower Dallas 7 to 4. The South Texans ranned across four runs in that frame and added another in the eighth to hold the up-and-coming Steers even in the four-game series.

JOE LOUIS STILL IDOL OF NEGROES

CHICAGO, June 16 (AP)—Joe Louis slipping? Don't you believe it. That's the solemn faced advice you can get on most every corner of Chicago's great South Side negro section today as the Brown Bomber makes ready for his world heavyweight title fight Tuesday night with Jim Braddock.

Joe the barber shop pater, Sam the shoe-shine man, and Duke the chauffeur—he's already got the night off after deliverin' the boss—will be in the $6960 seats at Comiskey park Tuesday night. There'll be from 17,000 to 20,000 Sams, Joes, and Dukes watching their idol, Joe. At the present time their ticket purchases represent between 7 and 10 per cent of the advance sales.

"Sure, Joe was knocked out by Schmeling," agreed Sam, whose shine emporium is only a block from Comiskey park. "But he was just a boy. No disgrace to be licked by Schmeling, was there? An' he can hit jus' as hard as ever."

It's the same thing down at Joe's barber shop on 35th street. Special trains will bring thousands of Louis' race to the fight. Two will come from Washington, while one each will come from Nashville, Tenn., Detroit, Washington, Cleveland and St. Louis. But most of Joe's loyal followers won't travel in such style. Within the week thousands of flippers will do the roads leading toward Chicago's Harlem.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By the Associated Press) Clay Bryant, Cubs—His five inning one-hit relief job for fifth win of year, stopped Beas, 5-4, and put Chicago in first place.

Joe DiMaggio and Red Ruffing, Yankees—Former hit safely in 16th straight game with triple and single; latter hurled four hit, 3-0 shut out of Indians.

Johnny Mize, Cardinals—Three-bagger and two singles paced 14 hit attack that swamped Phillies, 13-4.

Gus Suhr, Pirates—His two hits one a homer with two on, drove in four runs; Beas topped Hubbell and Giants, 7-5.

Al Hollingsworth, Reds—Checked Dodgers' rally in ninth for 4-3 victory.

Billy Knickerbocker, Browns—Smashed out two doubles and handled eight chances at short as Athletics bowed, 6-1.

Cletus Follenberger, Tigers—Held Senators to three hits in 6 1/2 innings as Detroit won in 15 innings, 9-8.

Lefty Grove, Red Sox—Scattered seven hits and gave up one unearned run in 5 1/2 setback of White Sox.

RUFUS MAIN FACTOR IN YANX DRIVE

(By BILL BONI (Associated Press Sports Writer) Perhaps Charley Ruffing knew what he was doing when he held out until May 5. Perhaps Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, knew what he was doing when he let his prize right hander suik in Nookoms, Ill.

Certainly a late start and missing the Yanks spring training maneuvers appear not to have had any harmful effect on Ruffing's pitching craft. For today the Ruppert Rifles are a full game ahead of the American League pursuers on the strength of Ruffing's sixth victory and second straight hitout, a 3-0 blanking of the Cleveland Indians.

In that position, they are a great deal better off than the Gian's. Manager Bill Terry led his troops into Pittsburgh as National League pace-setters but the Bucs won 7-5; sent Carl Hubbell to the showers for the fifth straight time, and dropped the New Yorkers into the second slot, half a game away from the Cubs.

Shortly after that defeat, Terry announced he had sent Frank Gabriel and cash, estimated at $25,000 to the Boston Bess in exchange for outfielder Wally Berger.

Ruffing was the day's outstanding individual performer. He required relief in the eighth and again in the ninth in winning his first two games, but since then has gone the route in five starts. He has won four of them, allowing a shade less than six hits a game, with yesterday's four as a new low.

While Ruffing has been winning complete games for the Yanks, another big right hander, Clay Bryant, has been saving games for the Cubs. Clay pulled another out of the fire yesterday to defeat Boston, 6-4 and put Chicago on top for the first time this year. Four of his five triumphs have come in relief roles and he hasn't lost one yet.

The Giants' defeat by the Pirates marked another episode in the mysterious malady that has beset Hubbell since the Dodgers ended his two-year winning streak at 24 games. He lasted less than two innings and lost his third in a row. While the Yanks were shipping the fourth place Indians, the Tigers won a 15-inning marathon from the Senators, 9-8, and moved into second ahead of the White Sox. The latter lost to Lefty Grove and the Red Sox, 5-1, the game score by which the Browns whipped the Athletics.

The Cardinals blasted 14 hits off Phil Pitchers to win their ninth in ten starts, and Waite Hoyt lost his first game in a Brooklyn uniform, 4-3, as the Dodgers' ninth inning rally fell a run shy of tying the Reds.

FDR TO THROW STARS INVADE WEST

BERKELEY, Calif., June 16 (AP)—The cream of America's track and field talent converged on Edward's Field today as nearly half the 300 entrants worked out for the national collegiate A.A. championships Friday and Saturday. Among arrivals were entries from Rice.

WHAT IS A HOSPITAL WORTH?

How much would the West Texas hospital for the insane be worth to Big Spring?

Well, to put it on a dollars-and-cents basis, the initial outlay by the state of Texas would be well in excess of $800,000. That much will be spent for construction, and it is a reasonable estimate that the greater part of this sum will go into the community that gets the institution, for materials, labor and associated items. An $800,000 building program is not something to be tossed overboard.

The matter of operating appropriations will represent a healthy allotment; one that Big Spring, as well as any other West Texas town, could well use. What a hospital for the insane is worth to a community can be seen by the appropriations which were made by the last session of the legislature for the five hospitals and the tubercular sanatorium at Carlsbad for the two years 1937-38 and 1938-39:

Institution	Salaries 1st Year	Salaries 2nd Year	Gr. Ttl. 1st Year	Gr. Ttl. 2nd Year
Austin State Hospital	$200,978	$206,309	$713,282	$834,859
Rusk State Hospital
San Antonio State Hospital	207,596	211,442	933,046	554,142
Terrell State Hospital	249,903	251,826	784,103	635,576
Wichita Falls State Hospital	211,476	213,399	771,726	616,349
State Tuberculosis Sanatorium	201,507	207,315	675,607	686,815
Sanatorium	146,181	150,111	556,881	621,161

These figures show an average appropriation of nearly $750,000 per year for each institution. The West Texas hospital, in time, will receive as large an allotment. Not all that sum will go directly into the city in which the hospital is located, of course; but that city will share heavily in the total.

The salary item alone for each of the above institutions is more than $200,000 per year. A monthly payroll—and most of that spent in the "home" city—of $15,000 or so is something else any ambitious city covets.

The item of expenditure of those who visit patients at the hospital in one that cannot be accurately estimated. It would be, however, a source of income that would have wide benefit.

From the money point of view, the hospital is a thing to go after. San Angelo, a competitive city in this matter, raised more than $15,000 in one day to finance purchase of a proffered site; Colorado already has contracted options on 930 acres of land. Other West Texas towns have stepped up with attractive offers. If the institution is worth that to these towns, isn't it worth as much to Big Spring?

Citizens of this city ought to be at the mass meeting Thursday evening, ready to take decisive action to back up this city's application.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—It was with a great deal of enthusiasm that New York greeted Paul Draper's opening at the Plaza. There was an immense show of interest, as there naturally would be in this artist who achieves an "1850 family album" mood, by tapping to minuet, and then exhibits it against a background of modern Gershwin.

And, it was this trick of changing fancy, all in tap, that made his audience clamor for more long after his weary dogs and tingling hamstrings advised him that he was a tired young man.

"What were your reactions to all this applause?" I asked him over a minor refreshment the next afternoon. "I thought my performance was only fair," he replied seriously. "Three of the numbers I had never tried before."

In a measure, this gives you a fair picture of the sort of person Paul Draper is. Withal his success, he is a contradiction to the belief that egotism is a component part of affluence, and it is with surprising candor that he lashes such observations as "The only clippings in my press book are those which pan me," and, "The rave reviews which I haven't deserved far outnumber the uncomplimentary ones, which I have well merited. I never forget a criticism because frequently one points a flaw which should be corrected, and then again I try to improve my work so that those who have found me less than satisfying will eventually come over to my side. . . . When I was in 'Thumbs Up' one reviewer referred to me as 'the hand-waving, pseudo-artist, Paul Draper.' I have never forgotten that. Some day I hope to meet the writer, but more than that I hope to alter her opinion of me."

An interesting discovery about Paul Draper, especially to one talking with him for the first time, is his almost unconscious flair for epigrams. You sit down and begin talking and such observations as this come glittering to the surface: "The most successful artists are those persons in whom everybody can see some new truth and also something of themselves."

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

SHARE CROPPING—TAXATION RELIEF—CURRENCY—DEPRECIATION—FASCISM, AND BOLSHIEVISM IN ANCIENT ROME.

... Finding the burden of taxes unbearable, most of the small farmers gave up the struggle. . . . such a man would often enter upon an arrangement which made him the colonus of a wealthy villa owner. . . . not actually slaves. . . . without any prospects for bettering themselves or any opportunity for their children ever to possess lands, these men lost energy and independence. . . .

were very different from the hearty farmers of earlier days. "The great lands once worked by slaves were now worked by these coloni. Multitudes of country people, unwilling to become coloni, foresook their fields and turned to the city for relief. Many did this because neglect of fertilization and long continued cultivation had exhausted the land, and it would no longer produce crops. Great stretches of unworked and weed grown fields were no uncommon sight. As a result the amount of land under cultivation decreased, and the ancient world was no longer raising enough to feed itself properly. The scarcity was felt in the cities. . . . where prices had gone up.

"Offers of the emperor to give land to any one who would undertake to cultivate it failed. . . . the destruction of the small farmers and the inability to restore them formed the leading cause among a whole group of causes which brought about the decline and fall of the empire. . . .

"The country people who moved to Rome. . . brought about their own extermination as a class. The large families which country life favored were no longer reared, the number of marriages decreased, and the population of the empire began to decline. . . . Debased by the life of the city, the former sturdy yeomen lost his independence in an eager scramble for a place in the waiting line of the city poor, to whom the government distributed free grain, wine and meat. The time which should have been spent in bread winning was worse than wasted upon the chasing multitudes at the chariot races, bloody games and barbarous spectacles. Notwithstanding the fine families who moved to Rome from the provinces under the liberal emperor of the second century, the city became a hive of shiftless population supported by the state with money from the taxing agriculture which was taxed to provide. The same situation was to be found in all the leading cities. . . .

"In spite of outward splendor these cities were also declining. They had now learned to depend on Rome to care for them in their own local affairs, and their citizens had rapidly lost all sense of public responsibility. . . . Everywhere the leading men were indifferently turning away from public life. Moreover, Rome was beginning to lay financial obligations upon the leading men of such cities, and it became increasingly difficult for men willing to assume these burdens. . . . At the same time the business and financial life was also declining. The country communities no longer possessed a numerous purchasing population. Hence, the country market for goods manufactured in the city could no longer dispose of their products. They rapidly declined. The industrial classes were thrown out of work and went to increase the multitudes of the city's poor. . . .

"The Roman coin collectors in the European museum show us that the coins of Augustus were pure; two generations after Marcus Aurelius there was only five per cent of silver in a government coin. A denarius, the common small coin, worth nearly 20 cents under Augustus, a century after the death of Marcus Aurelius was worth half a cent. . . .

"These forces of decline were swiftly bringing on a century of revolution which was to shipwreck the civilization of the early empire. The assassination of the unworthy son of Marcus Aurelius gave the opportunity for a struggle among a group of military usurpers. From this struggle a rough but successful soldier, Septimius Severus, emerged triumphant. . . . he systematically filled the posts of the government with military leaders of low origin. Thus, both in the army and the government the ignorant, and often foreign masses were gaining control. Nevertheless, the energy of Severus was such that he led his forces with success against the Parthians in the east and even recovered Mesopotamia. But the arch which he erected to commemorate his victory. . . reveals in its barbarous sculpture the fearful decline of culture in Italy. . . . When the life of Severus ended, storm broke. . . .

"From the leaders of the barbaric soldier class the Roman empire received 90 rulers in 90 years. One of these went through the mockery of celebrating the thousand year jubilee of the traditional founding of Rome. Most of these so-called emperors were not unlike revolutionary bandits. . . . For 50 years there was no public order. . . . In the temple of anarchy the civilization of the ancient world suffered final collapse. The supremacy of mind and scientific knowledge won by the Greeks in the third century

CHAPTER XXIX
Duke didn't speak. He couldn't. Always quick of tongue, never failing to better any emergency, jauntily taking any loss—now he was silent. This was, he knew, the crucial moment in his life. It wasn't only that he had been so confident a moment before that he would win enough on the Hopeful Stakes to leave the tracks behind him forever. It was more than that. Even to himself he had not admitted that he was almost flat broke—he had used the euphemism that he was desperately in need of money. But Carol's words had shattered his optimism. If Madison did not bet on Moon Ray, Duke knew he was finished. There was no cranny in his mind change in him and her heart had sung with joy. She had taken a desperate chance in telling him she loved him, but she could do nothing else. All the barriers between them had to be broken down and she alone could break them. Now they were down. She waited, unafraid, for him to speak. She thought it only natural that he should not find words at once, when she had made it clear that she had meant all she had said. All her love was written in her face, as she held out her hands to him. The letter was in them. It was the symbol that she had broken with the past, that the future belonged to Duke. "Did you hear me, dear?" she asked softly, as he stared at her. "Do you understand that I'm with two glasses of orange juice on it. "Here I am," she announced. "I brought—" She stopped suddenly. This was not what she had expected to find. Neither of them looked at her. They were glaring at each other like strange unfriendly animals, waiting to claw each other to pieces. "I can't do this to YOU?" Carol spat the words out at Duke. Her eyes were hostile as she started to rise from the bed. He had sunk in the rumpled bed, and she stood above him, glaring down at him. "I can't do this to YOU?" she repeated. "What can't I do to YOU?" "Lose Madison now," he cried. "Why I've waited five whole months for this. I've counted on him for hte Hopeful! He's my one chance to get even! You can't do this to me!" There was another silence, shattering only by her violent breathing. Again she felt that murderous desire in her heart. Then suddenly, she threw back her head and a loud, bitter laugh, hideous with hatred, rattled through the little room. "So I can't do this to you! Well, how do you like that!" "What's the matter?" he cried stupidly. "So, all along, I've been a come-on—a steer-broad, that's all." "What do you think I am?" he shouted. "Someone you can stall for a whole year and then leave holding the bag?" "A come-on!" repeated Carol, her fury increasing with every word. "I, Carol Clayton—I—a steer-broad." She broke off as another paroxysm of coughing tore through her. "Get back into bed," commanded Duke. "Get out of my room!" shrieked Carol between coughs. "She won't do nothing for nobody, Mr. Duke," said Rosetta helplessly. "Oh yes, she will," said Duke. "She's getting back into bed and right away." He took her by the shoulders and tried to force her into the bed. Her fury gave her strength and she struggled to shake his hands off. For a moment they fought furiously, but she could not hold out long, and he pushed her under the covers, holding her down with one powerful hand. "D'you want to get pneumonia?" he said. "You stay in bed and take your castor oil. Here, Rosetta, while I've got her down, push that tray a little nearer." "I won't," cried Carol. "For answer, Duke put out his free hand and took one of the glasses. "Mr. Duke," cried Rosetta, "that's not the—" "Take it," Duke, white with anger, said to Carol. She took the glass, after a second of hesitation. "Get out of the way, Rosetta," she said as she flung the glass with all her strength across the room. "So much for your taking care of me!" she said in a sneering voice. "I'll look after myself, thank you." "What you want—" he began. "I only want is of no possible interest to me," she said. "I know what you want. What I want is that you get out of my room and stay out." "Honey," said Rosetta pleadingly. "I took care of you when you were toddling around and—" "Keep still," snapped Carol. "I promise you, you can do me no harm if you're content, once we get this intruder out of here. And year ago still are holding them."

heard what I said. I meant it. She pointed toward the door. Duke did not move. He did not speak. "A come-on—a steer-broad," Carol said through clenched teeth. "You dare to give me that rating, and to think I nearly broke with Hartley! I must have been mad! To consider giving up Hartley—a man, a real man!" How many words were there in the English language? Duke did not know the answer to that question which ran through his mind, but he knew of all the thousands, there were none which at the moment, could have seemed so golden to him. He could have cried aloud his thanks that she was so wild with anger. He knew she would do exactly what he wanted her to do. "Of course, he's a man, a real man," he repeated her phrase. "That's what I've been trying to tell you. In fact, appraising him in sober-fashion, I'd say he is a wonderful man." Carol's face was white, all the color drained from it. She reached for the letter which she had dropped. Savagely she ripped it to tiny bits. "I'll get him for you," she cried hoarsely. "Never doubt that." "You will?" Duke almost sang the words in his relief and delight. "Now you're talking. I knew you didn't mean that crazy talk, any of the time. He let out a low whistle of delight, sank into a chair, reached for an empty glass on the remaining glass on the tray. "Mr. Duke," said Rosetta. "That's the one with the castor—" But Duke, listening to the satisfying echoes of Carol's anger, was deaf to her anxious warning. He tossed off half the contents. After what he had been through, he needed a cooling drink. "You can bet your last copper I'll get Hartley for you," Carol said, flinging the bits of the letter full in his face. "I'll bring him to Saratoga. You'll get that much. But from then on—" she stopped. Duke chuckled. He patted her shoulder. She angrily jerked away from him. "Honey! Do I love you?" he said gaily. "Do I?" Her eyes had narrowed so the long lashes almost met. "Yes," she said slowly. "I'll get Hartley for you. But there is one thing you'll have to get for yourself. I'll tell you what it is. A tin cup! You'll be needing it, standing out on a street corner." Duke rose. He gave her a smart salute, a low mocking bow and picked up the half-empty glass. He held it high as if he were drinking a toast to her. "Again—I love you," he said. "Here's luck."

What will Carol's retaliation be for this new humiliation? She's not the kind of girl to let such a blow pass. Tomorrow's installment throws a new light on both Carol and Duke. Don't miss it!

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—Treasury reports disclosed today that about one-fourth of the veterans' savings bonds issued last year ago still are holding them.

Hollywood

Sights and Sounds
By Robin Coons
By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—Deanna Durbin is a sweet child and a sweet singer but she doesn't know yet all there is to know about acting. So Henry Koster tells her, like a variety cheer leader. Koster, whose pleasant expression might be as here again if his "Three Smart Girls" hadn't been a surprise hit, is a young man who puts his soul into his work. He's making "100 Men and a Girl," and it's the most amusing set in Hollywood today. The set represents an enormous garage turned into an impromptu rehearsal hall by Adolphe Menjou and his 110 musical recruits to symphony. Menjou plays the trombone, and sponsors Deanna. The hopes of a musician, are set on so impressive wealthy Eugene Palette that he'll play angel and take over the orchestra. Palette admits they're good but folds up his wings. He'll take over, he says, in any condition you get Leopold Stokowski to conduct. (That being a movie, and Universal having arranged all that months ago, you don't need to worry about the outcome.) But this particular scene is the build-up to the angel's ultimatum: the entrance of Palette. Menjou and Deanna and the musicians—real ones selected for types—are all overjoyed in their welcome. They play "He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and Menjou bawls and flourishes on the trombone while Deanna urges more pep. But it's Koster who has the pep. He "conducts" the orchestra, keeps time with feet and arms and body, which all seem to wave and gyrate with excitement and enthusiasm. He calls for take after take, between whistles coaching Deanna, who seems too poised, in the art of showing real excitement. He speaks not in a roar but gently, demonstrates what he means by getting down on his knees and pleading. His idea gets over. The next take is good. And Koster has never once lost his temper or yelled. He seems to be having too good a time to think of it. Herbert Mundin used to work for a theatrical manager who chose play titles deliberately to bait critical wisecracks. He liked especially a piece called "Yes!" because the critics could say "No." (They did.) Mundin is working now in a picture called "That's My Story." But until the preview we won't know whether he's stuck with it.

Congressman's Widow
To Appear in Movies
HOLLYWOOD, June 16 (AP)—Rube Nix Zioncheck, 22, widow of Congressman Marion Zioncheck of Washington, conferred here today with agents arranging for her debut in motion pictures. In training herself as an actress, she has studied dancing, singing and dramatics. A novel and autobiography are two writing projects she has started.

SINGING CONVENTION
BROWNFIELD, Tex., June 16—A crowd of from 5,000 to 6,000 people is expected here Saturday and Sunday, June 19-20, when the Panhandle-Plains singing convention stages its fifth annual convention. This is said to be the largest regional singing convention in Texas and probably anywhere else. It embraces the area of the entire Texas Panhandle and South Plains to the T. & P. railroad, and includes 18 Texas counties.

Farm Unit Organized

Committee Advises Cotton Acreage Reduction In Martin Co. Next Year

STANTON, June 16—Reduction, in 1938, of about 7,000 acres from the amount planted to cotton this year in Martin county was found advisable by the county committee and county planning board in a meeting here Saturday, County Agent G. A. Bond reported. This would be a total reduction of about 21,000 acres from the old established base plantings. Higher reduction payments and smaller soil-building payments were advocated, along with some provision to take care of new farms now going in and provision that no base or group of bases crop land. Some provision should be made to increase compliance with the government's program, the group decided. Considerable progress has been made in the county under the conservation program and farmers are in better financial condition was the consensus of opinion. Members also expressed the belief that considerable soil building and soil saving work has been carried out that would not otherwise have been accomplished. Taking part in the meeting were J. R. Sale, J. B. McNew, V. R.

Great Plains Seen Guarded By Tree Belt

Forest Service Announces 100 Million Shrubs Have Been Planted

WASHINGTON, June 16 (UP)—More than 100,000,000 trees planted in the Great Plains shelterbelt are affording effective protection against winds, according to the forest service. The shelterbelt, at which many persons scoffed, is a "complete success," Earl W. Tinker, assistant chief of the forest service, said. Tinker made a tour of the mid-western area to inspect growth of the trees. The shelterbelt extends from Texas almost to the Canadian border. It ranges from a few hundred yards to several miles wide. In places there are several strips of "belts." From 700 to 1,000 trees were planted per acre. CCC Enrollees Aid The forest service has planted approximately 35,000,000 of these trees. About 30,000,000 were distributed to farmers for woodland and shelterbelt planting. Not all of the planting has been done in the Great Plains. CCC enrollees have planted other millions in many states. Federal and state nurseries have produced an additional 150,000,000 trees for planting. The forest service has distributed more than 50,000,000 trees for private plantings during the past two years. Tinker said a check of trees planted in the western shelterbelt showed 81 per cent had survived under adverse drought conditions. Their effectiveness will increase as they grow, he said. "Many thousands of young trees planted during the 1935 season are now six feet high and already are bringing about a lessening of wind movement with their protective range," Tinker said. Some 16 Feet High "Height up to 16 feet have been noted in some instances," he said. "I saw fields of cantaloupes and watermelons growing in what were formerly dust fields, protected by rows of newly planted trees." Tinker said more than 1,281 miles of shelterbelt strips and 6,415 acres of farmsteads have been planted. More than 4,500 farmers participated in tree plantings. Trees found to have made the best growth were the green ash, cottonwood, Chinese elm, red cedar, and "Poncha" spruce. The forest service said farmers who had seeded their land in trees valued it at an average of $1,046 per farm. "Experience gained thus far in shelterbelt and windbreak planting demonstrates the value of this type of work in the Great Plains region where an urgent necessity exists for an extensive tree planting program," the forest service said.
