TODAY and TOMORROW

Manchuria—The American Interest

Nearly a year ago, on December 10, the Council of the League of Nations decided to set up a Commission of Enquiry into the Manchurian question. Japan and China both formally agreed with the proposal, and the United States gave its moral approval. This commission, which took its name from its chairman, the Earl of Lytton, spent five months studying the situation in Japan, in China, and in Manchuria. On October 2 its report was published. This report is now before the Council of the League.

Thus the time has come when decisions have to be taken about the Manchurian question.

What, then, is the interest of the United States in the Manchurian question?

Manchuria is a large territory, potentially rich and strategically important. Three nations have a direct national interest. They are China, Russia and Japan. The United States has no direct national interest. Thirty years ago, perhaps even as recently as fifteen years ago, there were reasons for thinking that the United States might have some sort of imperialistic ambition in Manchuria. But that ambition, if it ever existed, was finally renounced at the Washington Conference of 1922, when the United States agreed to a limitation of navies which makes her incapable of exerting naval power in Asiatic waters. It is of the utmost importance that the Japanese people should realize that the United States is not now in any sense whatever a rival in the Far East. The United States does not desire to deprive Japan of anything in order to obtain that thing for herself.

Why then does the United States concern herself at all with the Far Eastern question? There are two reasons. The first is that the restoration of peace and order in the East is necessary to the maintenance of peace in the world. The effects of disorder and of eventual war in Asia could not be confined to China, Japan, and Russia, the three nations directly involved. It would disturb the trade and tranquility of the whole Pacific and it would cause difficulty and danger to the world around through the unsettled state of affairs on the European frontiers of Russia. The United States could not, without being guilty of great negligence, fail to use all her influence and good offices now to prevent the situation in the Far East from hardening to a point where it is insoluble by negotiation.

The second American interest is closely allied to this one. It is to uphold the collective machinery of peace established after the Great War. For only by upholding that machinery has modern civilization any chance of a secure prosperity. This interest has been eloquently expressed by the Earl of Lytton in a recent article: "Our Commission was told repeatedly that Japan has fought two wars upon the (i. e. Manchuria's) soil, that she has sacrificed 200,000 lives and spent a billion yen to acquire the rights and interests which she now claims there, that these historical associations were indelibly stamped upon the heart of every Japanese, and that Japan was very sensitive about any outside interference in matters which she claimed to be her sole concern. All this we accepted and have duly recorded in our Report, but we felt it our duty to remind the Japanese Foreign Minister that there was one thing for which other nations had made even greater sacrifices, which they valued as highly and which they were equally determined to defend, and that was the organization of collective responsibility for the dangerous experiment, but to be shown an honorable way of liquidating it. It should be, and undoubtedly will be, the object of American policy to cooperate with the other powers in offering to arrange a way which is consistent with the conclusions of the Lytton Report by which Japan can extricate herself from a very dangerous position. Such a policy must clearly have for its ultimate aim a peace conference between Japan and China in which all their outstanding differences can be compromised.

The way to such a conference is still open. When Japan and China are ready to take it, the United States will have no special claims of her own to assert and will ask for nothing for herself except adherence to the principle of the Kellogg Pact, that this great question be dealt with by measures involving no military force.

Note for Mr. Will Rogers

Mr. Rogers, having undertaken to tell Mr. Hoover and Mr. Roosevelt what to say at their conference, put these words into their mouths:

Mr. Roosevelt: What were your campaign promises?

Mr. Hoover: No postponements and no cancellations.

Mr. Roosevelt: Mine, too. What do you say, just for a novelty, that both parties keep their campaign promises?

If either Mr. Hoover or Mr. Roosevelt, after having recovered about postponement during the campaign, it's news and it would be nice of Mr. Rogers if he would be so kind as to say when either candidate mentioned the subject. (Copyright, 1932, New York Tribune, Inc.)

MICKY MOUSE NOTES

On the Saturday before Thanksgiving the mice took each a piece of fruit to their program at the Ritz. The fruit made a substantial basket, which was sent to the chamber of commerce. This organization gave it to Mrs. F. C. Scott, county and city welfare worker, to be distributed to hungry children.

Mrs. Scott has thanked all the mice in the following letter:

"Dear Micky Mice: For a long time I wondered just what you were. I wandered just what you stood for. I thought that probably you met each week for a jolly good time together, ate cake and ice cream, saw a good picture and then went home until next meeting. Of course that's all very nice and we should be glad if you could occasionally but we can't all live for ourselves and be very happy, can we?"

"Then dawned November 22 and with that day came the realization that the Micky Mice went about bringing cheer and sunshine. And were the little boys and girls happy to get the fruit and nuts that you sent them? You should have seen them. One little girl said: 'This is the first orange that I have ever eaten since my birthday. My uncle gave me one then.'

"Now just guess when her birthday was? I'll tell you. It was May the third. Wasn't that a long time to do without fruit?"

"Now for the little boys and girls who were made happy because you all like to do those things occasionally. One little girl said: 'I thank you. I wish the Micky Mice all kinds of good luck and much happiness and a great big God Bless you.'

Through deep snow drifts that blanketed Wolf Creek Pass, 10,800 feet above sea level in Colorado's Rockies, a great V-type snow plow doggedly pushed its way. RECEIVERSHIPS

The Irving Trust Company's remarkable collection of receiverships in the course of a good deal of private controversy in Wall Street. The company has handled more than 6,000 receiverships in three years. There are doubts among leaders of the legal profession as to the advisability of this virtual monopoly. "Take International Watch. That's a job for a man like the president of the United States—not for a clerical department in a bank."

Right now five other New York banks are somewhat annoyed at the Irving, which is blocking their attempt to dispose of collateral held against the defaulted loans of National Electric Power. Any receiver would do the same but somehow the banks feel it is unclimby for another bank to act that way.

The Irving Trust originally got into this type of business because one of its authoritative officers was sold the idea by judges that receiverships ought to be kept out of the hands of lame ducks and slysters. This officer had—and still has—active opposition within the ranks of his own associates to the bank acting as official receivers for this district. The bank lost plenty of money during the first two years it tried its hand at the business but the third year was distinctly profitable.

RESOLUTION OF KIWANIS CLUB IN MEMORY OF MR. WILLIAM FISHER, DECEASED
 Mr. William Fisher, father of Kiwanians Bernard and Joye Fisher has passed from this life to the Great Beyond. Mr. William Fisher has been closely identified with the City of Big Spring since the early days of its existence, and has been a true, progressive and beloved citizen throughout the history of Big Spring. He has always been a true and loyal citizen, and loved by his family and friends. In his latter days his presence and example with the city has exerted a wholesome influence for good upon all of us, and the entire city has suffered an irreparable loss in his passing.

We wish to extend to the family of Mr. William Fisher our sympathy with them in their great loss, and we also pay tribute to the character and memory of him. We therefore ask that the members of the Kiwanis Club stand and face the flag in testimonial of the fact that a true citizen and patriot has, after fulfilling his destiny, departed this life and passed on to a more full and complete life hereafter.

While monsters spawned their young in PENNSYLVANIA

IMAGINE this photograph taken in those early days. Beneath the feet of these lumbering brutes — far below the surface — lay the Bradford-Allegany oil pool formed in the Devonian Age millions of years before. Ages had already gone since that oil was formed—and ages more were yet to come before Bradford-Allegany crude would attain the perfect lubricating quality it boasts today.

Nothing but Bradford-Allegany crude—the costliest of all Pennsylvania grade crudes—is used in the manufacture of Sinclair Pennsylvania Motor Oil. But even Nature with all its hundred million years of mellowing and filtering needs man's help. Bradford-Allegany crude, like other crudes, contains non-lubricating petroleum jelly—which Sinclair removes at as low as 60° F. below zero.

While you are using Sinclair Pennsylvania, notice how it stands up. Notice especially at draining time how little oil has been used up—positive, visible proof of protection for the last mile as well as the first.

Note: For those who prefer a Mid-continent oil we also sell Sinclair Opaline, blended from the oldest Mid-continent crudes, de-waxed and also freed from petroleum jelly.

'SPORTS ON PARADE

By CURTIS BISHOP

We have changed our minds entirely about our all-district eleven. We were not fair to several Colorado and Big Spring players when we announced the Herald's choice Sunday. The following is our revised nomination:

Ends: Vines (B. S.) and Stagner (Colorado).
Tackles: Armstrong (B. S.) and Church (Colorado).
Guards: Martin (B. S.) and Smith (B. S.).
Center: Deier (B. S.).
Quarterback: Walter Bunker (Big Spring).
Halfbacks: Riechbourg (Big Spring) and Burris (Colorado).
Fullback: Zaratofetis (Big Spring).

Explanation is forthcoming. Of course there were other teams in the district besides the Steers and the Wolves, and better teams at that, but with Blundy Cross mentioning no one but Sweetwater and San Angelo players someone has to display a like partiality to someone what even the count. By using some of the cross logic we derived at a very novel backfield, Bunker took part in only two games, but he was a wizard in scrimmages. Of course Zaratofetis is not at present on the team, and in fact was not all season but he was a good man in 1932 and can easily stand the shift from Bovine backfield coach to fullback. Charles Vines, our center for and was a master at juggling a pigskin on his nose. Probably the best in this portion of the state. Church (Colorado) had hair as red as Ney's and for that reason is entitled to a tackle's berth or anyone's club. Stagner was probably the best basketball player in the district last year. He did not forget to put Ray McMahan, Herald pressman, on the roster. He never played a game of football in his life but then neither did some of those on Cross' honor roll. If there was a better guitar player in District 3 than Woodrow Armstrong—no question about it, there wasn't. Burris (Colorado) had a pair of white knickerbockers and anyone similarly garbed is a cinch for an all-star club.

Odds being quoted in the Sweetwater-Austin High contest this week-end are 5 to 3, which are not great enough. Austin was trampled into the mud by Amarillo some sixty, seventy, or eighty to nothing, and no one is going to trample the Mustangs this year. If you can't get at least 3 to 1 don't take any.

Contrary to reports published in Sweetwater newspapers the El Paso coaches and fans are very pessimistic about the outcome of the bi-district struggle. In the Borden County Panthers are given only a very slim chance to disturb the Hennigmen's march to the title.

The East Fourth Baptist Church dropped their first game of the season to the Coden Oilers 12 to 12 Saturday night, we have been informed. The Baptists this year have a gym of their own in Deats Storage Garage, made into a basketball court for the winter.

Basketball will be inaugurated for the Steers this afternoon, with George Brown again in charge and George Zaratofetis slated for an assistant's berth. One of the games planned for the Bovines is a contest with the bearded House of Davis clan here on the evening of January 4th.

The season will be, as usual, with Faculty Roughriders, D. H. Reid, press agent, being so abundant that the Roughriders will be stronger this year than usual.

Delker, Riechbourg, Sheridan, and Hall were the ranking quartet in the District 3 scoring parade through last season. Delker was held scoreless against the Mustangs, but his total of 88 points placed him well ahead of the Big Spring flyer, and a score or more points beyond the Pony Express who scored two touchdowns Turkey Day to go past the Colorado speedster. Schwarzenbach was another Big Spring player well up in the scoring list.

Delker's total does not compare with the 152 points amassed by Tack Dennis in 1931.

"Sloppy" Smith, former Steer linemen, is said to have approached All-American status in McMahan's final game of the season, with the Southwestern University Pirates in Georgetown which was a 0-0 tie. Smith has another season with the Indians.

Nearly every school in District 3 will suffer from graduation next spring. Sweetwater loses practically all of its stellar gridiron services, all but four of this year's regulars. Big Spring will miss the fourteen varsity players graduating or else running up against the eight semester rule, while Midland's lineup will also be torn to shreds by graduation.

Colorado will lose general line but only Morrison returning in the backfield. Stagner, Church, Alexander, Barnett, and Bridgerford are those having another year for the Wolves.

BRINGING 'EM BACK—DEAD

Remember Denver Wright, St. Louis manufacturer, who shot a sheriff's lion in with a sub-machine gun, shot the lions and ended Wright's safari. Well here's Wright in his trophy room with the same jungle cats stuffed. The outcome of his previous adventure caused no end of embarrassment, but he says he is going to buy a couple more lions for another hunt. (Associated Press Photo)

District 3 Ends Second Campaign With Mustangs Again Holding Flag; San Angelo Second, Big Spring 3rd

The district 3 football season rocked to a close Thursday with three comparatively high-scoring games and Sweetwater high school winning the championship the second straight year, defeating the San Angelo squad by almost the same score with which Sweetwater clinched the title last fall. The Sweetwater score in 1931 was 29 to 6. Thursday it was 21 to 0.

Sweetwater meets Austin high of El Paso in the interscholastic league bi-district championship game Friday afternoon at Sweetwater.

Austin finished mopping up in district 4 Wednesday when it beat El Paso high 33 to 0. Austin scored all its points in the first half, then left the game in charge of its second-stringers. The team, known as the Panthers, is coached by Pat Murphy, former assistant to Dewey Mayhew at Abilene high school.

San Angelo as result of the setback at Sweetwater finishes the season on the district 3 runner-up ledge with Big Spring third. Big Spring closed with a 19-to-7 win over Colorado after being held scoreless in the first half. The three leading teams this year finished in the same order last fall.

McCamey won its first class A game Thursday, defeating Midland, 26 to 12, and climbed out of the district cellar.

While Sweetwater carries on in the state race the other schools of the circuit turn to basketball and to plans for the 1933 season. A general check-up indicates most of the coaches will have to start from scratch next season. Sweetwater loses a majority of its stars. The San Angelo squad returns only four of its regulars. Big Spring is understood, loses practically its entire starting eleven. Midland's veteran team will be further disintegrated by the graduation and ineligibilities. Colorado and McCamey will lose many of their regulars.

The district's final standing and scores follow:

Merchandisers' Bulletins

GREENSBORO, N. C.—An increase in employment of over 42 per cent—a rise in volume of sales of more than 25 per cent!

That is the impressive record made by Vicks VapoRub, Vicks Nose and Throat Drops and Vicks Medicated Cough Drops for the first nine months of 1932—figures disclosed by L. Richardson, president of Vicks Chemical company.

The record is made even more impressive by the fact that the House of Vicks showed a healthy increase in volume of business and employment in the years of 1930 and 1931, too.

It's a story of business courage and of advertising faith.

A year ago—running counter to the general current of business and against the judgment of advisers—Vicks more than doubled its approposition for advertising, and introduced two new products. The bulk of this appropriation, as usual, went to newspapers. What has followed is an actual demonstration that sometimes the seemingly impossible "can be done."

Volume of sales of the Vicks leader—Vicks VapoRub, the almost universally used treatment for colds—has increased steadily. Rise of the two new products has been phenomenal.

Sales of Vicks Nose and Throat Drops—the new aid in preventing colds—exceeded estimates by more than 50 per cent. Sales of the unique Vicks Cough Drop—medicated with Vicks VapoRub—were little short of sensational—over 20 million packages the first season. Already this season, President Richardson states, sales on this item alone exceed seven and one-half million packages.

These new products, in combination with the famous Vicks VapoRub, made possible the new Vicks Plan for better Control of Colds. In clinical tests among thousands last winter, this plan was proved successful in reducing the number, duration and costs of colds by half. In view of that success, President
