Daring Texas Pilot To Wed

QUEBEC (U)—That Texas pilot who flew a plane under two ancient London bridges says he is now engaged to the girl he did it for.

Gene Thompson, 29, a former cropduster from Lubbock, swooped under London Bridge and Tower Bridge a week ago yesterday in a rented light-plane. He said he did it to impress Miss Helen Brown, 21, also of Lubbock.

Helen reportedly wouldn't speak to Thompson when she first heard about his feat that started London lunch-hour crowds. Both were in England on a student tour.

But Thompson said yesterday, when the couple arrived on the liner Atlantic, that they're engaged now.

"Maybe it was the rough crossing that wore her down," he said with a grin.

Their plans are indefinite. Both are still enrolled at Texas Tech in Lubbock. Thompson is studying business administration, and Helen has a year to go for a master of arts degree.

Although both live in Lubbock, they had not met before the student European tour this summer.

The couple left last night on a boat train for Montreal, where Helen will meet her parents and drive back to Texas.

Thompson said he is scheduled to take a train "but if there's any chance of hanging onto the running board of the car, I'll do it."

Shivers, Yarborough Continue Vote Drive

By BRUCE HENDERSON Associated Press Staff Writer

Gov. Allan Shivers has declared the struggle between him and Ralph Yarborough for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination boils down to "a fight for principles of government." Yarborough charges Shivers with "radically changing" his political convictions.

With nine days left before the Aug. 28 run-off primary, both candidates campaigned without letup. Shivers, his wife and children will appear at a 16-county rally in Austin's Woodridge Park Thursday night. Yarborough campaigned Thursday at Laredo and will make night state radio speech from there.

Wednesday, Shivers stumped from West Texas into Wichita Falls for a night rally and radio speech. Yarborough spoke Wednesday at Comptche, Yoakum and Fairburn, then headed into the Lower Rio Grande Valley and appeared at Harlingen and Brownsville.

In his Wichita Falls speech, Shivers said the race is not merely between two men or factions for state prestige. "It is a fight for principles of government," he said, with those who oppose him advocating "federalization, centralization and socialism."

Shivers declared forces behind Yarborough want to eliminate him from politics because "they want a governor of Texas who will surrender in advance our influence and votes at the next Democratic national convention in 1956."

At Gonzalez, Yarborough said of Shivers: "He has been in office now 20 years—20 years of unbroken power does strange things to people. Twenty years ago I do not believe he would have taken the $450,000 in that mysterious Hidalgo County land deal."

"Twenty years ago I do not believe he would have awarded state printing contracts to a printing firm of which he was one of the owners—in violation of the state Constitution. Twenty years ago I do not believe he would have let his crony and a former campaign manager make $11,000 to keep a busted insurance company open another 10 months. . . . He is so near absolute power in Texas that he imagines people around him have changed."

Shivers said at Wichita Falls election returns proved false Yarborough's "wild charge" in the first primary that Shivers had the support of South Texas politico George Parr.

The governor said public safety officials and newspaper investigations "branded as a falsehood" Yarborough's statement that Rangers had been taken out of Duval County, Parr's stronghold.

Yarborough geared much of his Harlingen speech Wednesday night to problems of the Rio Grande Valley—where Shivers has a farm home and drew heavy support in the first primary.

Yarborough said a charge he would let the CIO dominate Texas farm labor was one of the "most ridiculous" ever made. "I'll work with the farmers and do nothing to affect your farm economy," he said.

Shivers has charged that if Yarborough is elected there will be a drive to unionize farm and ranch hands.

Shivers campaign headquarters announced Wednesday the Governor has received the endorsement of 29 state representatives.

At Amarillo Wednesday, State Sen. Andy Rogers called Shivers' "federalization, centralization and socialism" program "a recipe for disaster."

administration "the most brilliant record of hypocrisy and deceit in the history of Texas."

Rogers said Shivers is taking credit for all improvements in state government. "The truth is," Rogers said, "there have been none. If anything state institutions have deteriorated."

At Austin Wednesday night, Joe Steadham, state legislative representative of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, said Shivers' blast at the BRT president was "very much uncalled for." Shivers had linked BRT president W. P. Kennedy of Cleveland, O., with "the outside labor bosses who are determined to have their way in Texas." Kennedy had predicted in a Fort Worth speech Texas will elect Yarborough.

Yarborough has called Shivers disloyal for leading Texas' bolt to Republican Dwight Eisenhower in the last presidential election.

Shivers argues he backed Eisenhower in the best interests of Texas and the nation.

Shivers said he supported Eisenhower because Stevenson would have vetoed a bill confirming Texas' title to its tidelands. The 1953 session of Congress passed such a bill, and Eisenhower signed it.

Shivers told a women's rally at Austin recently he is "eternally thankful" Eisenhower was elected. "I am thankful that today we hear no more about Communists in the State Department, no more about influence peddlers in the White House, no more about shameful waste and extravagance, no more about higher and higher taxes," he said.

Yarborough has said it was all right for private citizens who are Democrats to vote for Eisenhower. But he has charged that the governor is "the pitcher on the team" and that by supporting a Republican Shivers "let the whole team down."

Eisenhower, at a recent Washington news conference, gave Shivers a pat on the back, saying he thinks Shivers has made a good governor. Yarborough said Eisenhower was trying to tell Texas Democrats how to vote.

Company Honors Hero Collie Dog
CHICAGO (U)—Tang—a 65-pound collie dog from Denison, Tex.—today had $1,000, a gold medal, a gold plaque, a gold-plated leash and collar and a year's supply of dog food.

Tang deserved everything he got. He has saved four small children from possible death by pushing them from in front of automobiles.

Last night, in a ceremony in Chicago, Tang was honored as America's dog hero of heroes for 1954. The award was announced by Ken-L-Ration, makers of a dog food.

The awards were made by Fire Capt. Joseph J. McCarthy, a Medal of Honor winner in World War II. Looking on were Tang's owners, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice L. Dyer of Denison, and their children, Mark, 5, and Paula, 3. Both of the children were among the four rescued by Tang, all on different occasions.

Memo From Denver To Ike: Vacation's Ready For You

Memo: To President Eisenhower, and Mrs. Eisenhower to feel at home.

Subject: Colorado Vacation
From: The Associated Press, Denver

Date: August 19, 1954

Denver and Colorado are all set for your arrival at the summer White House. Your advance staff is completing the administration arrangements at your office at Lowry Air Base, the Secret Service is setting up its elaborate guards, there's not a cigarette butt in sight on the post grounds, and the fish are jumpin'.

Aksel Nielsen, the genial host of Byers Peak Ranch at Fraser, says the trouting is good in St. Louis Creek. The water was low early in the season because Aksel had to irrigate the hay crop for his fat cattle, but the situation is ideal now.

Bal Swan reports the South Platte at his place near Buffalo Creek, where you've been fishing for 20 years, is tops now. But you'd better hurry because a newspaperman warming up the river for you pulled seven trout out of that hole under the bridge not long ago.

Both Bal and Aksel will try to be patient while you finish up official business after you get here, but they're drooping for some fish they expect you to catch and fry for them over a camp fire on the river bank.

Rip Arnold, golf pro at Cherry Hills Country Club, reports the course is in very good shape now. It was a little dry earlier in the year, but the new irrigating system has fixed it up great.

The Rev. Robert E. Lutz, minister at the Corona Presbyterian church you attend out here, apologizes for the construction that's going on. However, services are going on as usual and the congregation is looking forward to having you join them again.

Over at 750 Lafayette St., your mother-in-law Mrs. John Doud, has been scurrying around getting everything ready for your visit. The neighbors report they'll be happy to have you come home again for a vacation.

They said, by the way, they don't think the Secret Service men are a nuisance at all. Mrs. Alvin J. Schrepferman, your neighbor, said "they do their job without bothering anybody."

As another of your summer neighbors put it, they want you and Mrs. Eisenhower to feel at home.

That's about the situation. Nielsen, Gov. Dan Thornton, Mrs. Doud and the Leary commander, Brig. Gen. John T. Sprague, will be on hand to meet you. Everybody hopes Congress gets through so you can get out here by Saturday.

And they're all prepared to get you have the kind of vacation you want — fishing, golfing or just plain relaxing. The glass vacuum coffee maker was first patented in France in 1942.

Re-Elect Arthur Stallings

Commissioner, Pct. No. 3

Who will continue to devote all his time and energy for a sound and progressive Howard County.

Famous Trichologist Tells Truth About Saving And Improving Hair

This new method of home treatment for saving and growing thicker hair will be demonstrated in Big Spring, Texas, Sunday ONLY, Aug. 22, 1954.

These private individual demonstrations will be held at the Crawford Hotel on Sunday ONLY, Aug. 22, 12 noon to 8 p.m.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 11—In an interview here today D. Russell Collins, internationally famous trichologist and director of the Collins Hair and Scalp Experts, Inc., said, "There are 16 different scalp disorders that cause most men and women to lose hair. Using common sense, a person must realize no one tonic or so-called cure-all could correct all the disorders," he explained.

GUARANTEED
"The Collins firm, recognizing that most people are skeptical of claims that hair can be grown on balding heads, offer a guarantee," Collins said.

Once a person avails himself to the Collins treatment his skepticism immediately disappears. To insure this, we offer this guarantee: "If you are not completely satisfied with your hair progress at the end of 25 days your money will be returned."

HOPELESS CASES DISCOURAGED
First, the Collins specialist are quick to tell hopeless cases that they cannot be helped. Only if a man is completely, shily bald is he in this last category.

FREE EXAMINATION
This examination is very thorough and highly technical. It requires 20 to 30 minutes. There is no charge for this examination and an appointment is necessary.

After the examination he is told the required length of treatment and how much it will cost.

After starting treatment, he makes regular reports to the Collins firm in Oklahoma City, and a trichologist will return to check his progress periodically.

To spread the opportunity of normal, healthy hair to the thousands who are desperately looking for help the Collins firm is sending specialists to various cities throughout the United States to conduct examinations and start home treatment.

NO CURE-ALL
"We have no cure-all for slick, shiny baldness," Collins emphasizes. "If there is any, the root is still capable of creating hair and we can perform what seems to be a miracle."

There is one thing Collins wants to be certain every man and woman knows. If a recession appears at the temple or a spot begins to show up on the crown of the head there is something wrong and it should be given immediate attention.

HAIR FOR LIFETIME
"If clients follow our directions during the treatment and after they finish the course, there is no reason why they will not have hair all the rest of their lives," Collins said. "Our firm is definitely behind this treatment, it all depends on the individual client's faithful observation of a few simple rules."

HOW'S YOUR HAIR?
If it worries you call Trichologist C. H. Southard at the Crawford Hotel in Big Spring, Texas on Sunday ONLY, Aug. 22, 12 noon to 8 p.m.

You do not need an appointment. The examinations are private and you will not be embarrassed or obligated in any way. Men and Women welcome. References: Financial, First Nat'l Bank and Trust Co. of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma—Adv.

Note: Trichologist Southard will be in Snyder, Tex. on Tues. Aug. 24

Bridesmaids' Luncheon Honors Miss Masters

A bride's cake was the principal decoration for the table at a bridesmaids' luncheon given for Jan Masters Tuesday at Morales; by Gayle Price, Ann Crocker and Marilyn Miller. Tiny cups were placed in confection roses on the cake, and these were used in a toast to the bride-elect.

Other decorations were in silver and white with white tapers in silver holders and with white satin ribbons down the center of the table bearing the names of the betrothed couple.

White place cards decorated with silver wedding bells marked places for the following: the non-oree, her mother, Mrs. Joe Masters, Cheryl Masters, Judy Masters, Mrs. Stanley Wheeler of Stanton, mother of the prospective bridegroom, Susan Houser, Wanda Petty, Kay Jamison and the three hostesses.

Miss Masters, who will become the bride of Bobby Wheeler of Stanton on Saturday evening at the First Baptist Church, presented her bridesmaids with gifts.

Elizardos Honored At Two Showers

The Frank Elizardos, a recent bridegroom, was honored recently in the home of Mrs. Roy Franklin with a bridal shower. Mrs. Nell J. S. Bilsard and Mrs. E. L. Stephens were co-hostesses.

The refreshment table was laid with a white lace cloth with organza ruffles. Yellow ribbon bows were fastened at the corners. The floral arrangement was of yellow and pale orchid flowers. Yellow roses filled the center of the cake, which had the names, "Bobby and Frank" on it. About 50 guests attended.

About 25 attended the second in a series of post-nuptial showers given for Mrs. Frank Elizardo recently in the home of Mrs. Derue Farmer. Hostesses for this party were Mrs. Orville Wright and Mrs. E. D. Stephens.

Morning Party At Country Club

Another in the series of informal morning parties for the women of the Country Club was given Wednesday morning with Mrs. P. W. Malone, Mrs. Roy Reeder, Mrs. Bob Middleton and Mrs. Ira Thurman as hostesses.

Fall fruit in a wicker basket formed the centerpiece on a table laid in green linen and placed in one end of the club patio. Snacks were served buffet style and the hostesses served bottled drinks. About 30 attended the party, including an out-of-town guest, Mrs. Shirley Robbins of Midland. Mrs. Robbins formerly lived in this city.

Open House Planned

Although formal invitations are not being issued, Mrs. Bernard Fisher is expecting all friends to call at the open house being held in her home 500 Runnels, on Saturday afternoon. The occasion is in honor of her mother, Mrs. B. Eckhaus, and calling hours are between 2 and 6 p.m.

Dr. and Mrs. T. M. Collins have returned from Ruidoso, N. M., where they have been since the middle of June. While there they had as guests for a month Mrs. Collins' son, C. J. S. Durham, his wife and daughter, Nancy, of McLean, Va. They also made one trip to Big Spring during that time.

Lester Bohls Hosts At Dinner, Reunion For W. S. Shaw

KNOTT—Dr. and Mrs. Leslie D. Bohls and daughter entertained with a birthday dinner honoring W. S. Shaw recently. It was also a family reunion.

Present were Mrs. Shaw, Ronald, Delano, Franklin and Roosevelt; Mrs. Sarah E. Peterson; Mr. and Mrs. Gene Shaw and Becky; Mr. and Mrs. Larry Shaw, Larry Don and Linda; Mrs. Rhodell Hughes, Brenda, Terry, Debbie and Kenneth; Mr. and Mrs. Veri Shaw, Dero and Angela; Mr. and Mrs. J. WESTBROOK — Mr. and Mrs. Hazelwood have returned home after a fishing trip to Buchanan Lake. They were joined there by their children, Mr. and Mrs. V. V. Ames and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson and son of Houston. The group then came to Westbrook for a visit with the Rev. and Mrs. Leslie McCara and daughter of Ontario, Calif. The McCaras will leave this week for their home, where Rev. McCara is pastor of the First Baptist Church.

Advice For Mothers

Audrey Totter, a star who recently had a baby, stresses the importance of caring for your figure during pregnancy. She stars for Columbia in "Women's Prison."

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Has A Helpful Routine For Expectant Mothers

By LYDIA LANE

HOLLYWOOD—I had lunch with Audrey Totter yesterday. While I was in Europe she had her baby, and she looks just wonderful. They've named her Mary Elizabeth Ann.

I asked Audrey how she felt while she was expecting her baby. "I felt wonderful all of the time," Audrey told me. "I didn't gain too much, my skin had never been better—nor my nails."

We had lunch in the patio of Audrey's attractive home, and she was served cottage cheese, sliced cantaloupe, a glass of skim milk and a green salad. "I only gained thirteen and a half pounds," Audrey told me. "I never drank milk before, but I'm continuing to now that my baby has been born."

"I have a list of foods I had to eat. I was hungry most of the time, but it was worth it. Every day I needed cereal, eggs, citrus fruit, one serving of meat or liver, three vegetables, two slices of whole-grain bread and a green salad. "I was not allowed any over-processed foods like white rice, white bread or cake, but once in a while I had what my husband calls a 'bonus day,' and I ate spaghetti."

I told Audrey that in the health stores she could get high protein spaghetti made from whole-grain flour. "I'm sure your doctor would have permitted this."

"My husband is a doctor," Audrey explained, "and he helped to keep me in line."

I wanted to know if she exercised. "I walked a lot in flat shoes but I didn't do any of the setting-up kind," Audrey told me. "But it's well worth watching your weight during pregnancy because you can wear your old clothes soon again, and you don't have that horrible struggle to get back into shape."

"As far as the baby is concerned, your weight and what the child weighs have very little relation. It's important to eat what is nutritionally rich and not fill your stomach with foods which have no value."

"Oh!" Audrey added, "another important thing I forgot to mention is that I was to have a minimum amount of salt and as much water as I could comfortably drink."

"If you have a relative or a friend who is blessed-venting, you might give them Audrey Totter's routine for keeping fit during pregnancy."

Elaine Hazlewood Is Dress Revue Winner In Martin

Elaine Hazlewood, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Hazlewood Sr. of Courtney Community, was named winner of the annual Martin County dress revue here Tuesday evening. Miss Hazlewood's dress was made of cotton trimmed with detachable veiveteen collar and cuffs. She chose navy shoes, bag and gloves. A camellia pink hat was her accent color.

La Rue Amed in a silk organza formal and Betty Hill in a trendy cotton dress with orlon fascio jacket were the runners-up.

Other blue ribbon winners in the revue were Loretta Jenkins, Mona Lou Epley, Glenda Payne, Dorothy Hull, Sandra Miller, Joyce Green, Alice Sims and Jean Mott.

Alice Ramsey, Johnnie Rhodes, Carolyn Ramsey, Zella Odum, Sandra Kelly, Bobbie Newman, Carolyn Manning, Linda Nichols, Bonnie Green, Barbara Hill, Alice Stewart, Verna Mae Turner, Virginia Bryant and Faye Ramsey made up the red ribbon winners.

A screen covered with bolts of material, buttons, buckles, patterns, the unfinished back of a shirt, and scissors made up the stage for the revue. Jeaneese Gibson was the announcer. Glenda Powell and Joy Martin sang "Blue-eyes Blues" after the 9-11 year olds had modeled their dresses. Between the 12-13 year old group and the 14 and above group, Jan Nichols sang "I Understand Just How You Feel." Music during the entire revue was furnished by Lorene Burns, pianist.

Members Honored By Rebekahs

After a short business session at the IOOF Hall the Big Spring Rebekah Lodge No. 294, had a covered dish dinner Tuesday evening honoring two of the members. Mrs. Amanda Hughes, who is leaving soon, and A. Knapp, who had a birthday, were the honorees.

It was reported that 12 of the members helped with the free chest X-rays. Plans were made for a benefit coffee to be held in the home of Mrs. J. R. Petty, 1013 Sycamore, on Friday morning beginning at 8 o'clock. This is to add funds to the treasury of the lodge. Thirty members were present at the meeting.

Wednesday the Big Spring Rebekah Lodge honored Mrs. H. H. Roger with a shower in the home of Mrs. S. A. Wilson, Mrs. Bill Graddy and Mrs. K. J. Nielsen were co-hostesses. About 40 attended, including friends of the honoree as well as the members of the John A. Kee Rebekah Lodge.

Barbara Rome Honored With Shower

A farewell party and hope chest shower honored Barbara Rome Wednesday evening in the home of Mrs. L. D. Jenkins. Hostesses with Mrs. Jenkins were Marybeth Jenkins, Angela Fausel, Marie Hill and Mary Hays.

Miss Rome is to leave Saturday to make her home in Donaldsonville, La.

The color scheme used was yellow, white and green. The refreshment table was covered with an Irish lace cloth over green and centered with an arrangement of yellow daisies and frosted fern in a green bowl. Yellow candles flanked the centerpiece. A crystal punch service was used.

Miss Jenkins served punch and Miss Hill and Miss Hays served cakes. Miss Fausel kept the register.

Summer flowers were used at vantage points throughout the house.

Miss Rome was presented with a corsage and then shown into a room where her gifts were displayed. Lou Hale made pictures of the honoree and her gifts.

The guest list included Pat Tidwell, Cathy Leonard, Gloria Thompson, Mrs. E. G. Fausel, Frankie Morgan, Edna Mae Morgan, Mrs. J. M. Morgan, Anne Kinski, Mrs. K. G. Smith, Mrs. J. W. Hale, Cooke Rankin, Martha Ann Denton, Modesta Ingram, Mrs. Jack Wilcox and Kay, Anis Underwood, Carrie Scholz, Polly Settles, Helen Green, Lois Smith, Eva Mary Ragsdale and Irene Linnemon.

New Rebekahs

Mrs. Brookie Martin and M. W. Horn were elected to membership in John A. Kee Rebekah Lodge Tuesday evening. Team practice was held. Initiation will be held at the meeting next Tuesday. Mrs. Violet Jarrett presided. Twenty-eight were present.

Jones No. 2-C Miller Completes For 325 Barrels in Jo-Mill Field

Another completion was logged today in the Jo-Mill (Spraberry) field of Borden County. The new producer is J. E. Jones No. 2-C W. L. Miller, which made potential flow of 325 barrels of oil.

Lone Star staked two new locations in the Luther Southeast field—the No. 2 Merworth and the No. 3 Haney. Fleming and Fleming and Kimbell No. 2-B Snyder is a new Snyder pool try, and Continental No. 5 Gilbreth is a new Howard-Glasscock venture.

Borden

J. E. Jones Drilling Company No. 2-C W. L. Miller has been finished in the Jo-Mill (Spraberry) field for a 24-hour flowing potential of 325 barrels of oil.

Production on test was from perforations between 7-140 and 7-190 feet through a 19-48ths inch choke. Gravity of oil is 28 degrees, and the gas-oil ratio is around 960-1. Tubing pressure on test measured 380 pounds, and the casing pressure was 510 degrees. The completion was natural. Total depth is 7,380 feet, and plugged back depth is 7,500. The 5 1/2-inch casing is bottomed at 7,229 feet, and top of pay is 7,147. Elevation measures 2,863 feet. This location, about 13 miles southwest of Gail, is 1,980 from west and 2,350 from north lines, 12-33-4n, T&P survey, Phillips No. 1 Quartz, C NW SE, 15-33-4n, T&P survey, has been plugged back to 8,456 feet, and operator is now preparing to pull tubing.

A Bible Thought For Today—

But the universe is full of wonders. The human body, its several parts and their functions never have been fully comprehended by the greatest scholars. The atom is full of wonders, small and great, all creation is full of wonders. "There appeared a great wonder in heaven." — Rev. 12:1,3.

Trials Can Be Orderly And Still Be Procedures Open To The Public

A section of the American Bar Association meeting in Chicago this week got into an argument over ABA's Canon 35 relating to judicial ethics, which holds that the taking of photographs in the courtroom or televising proceedings "are calculated to detract from the essential dignity of the proceedings, distract the witness in giving his testimony, degrade the court, and create misconceptions with respect thereto in the mind of the public, and should not be permitted."

Canon 35 was alternately granted and condemned. Federal Judge George H. Boldt of Tacoma, Wash., said the Sixth Amendment of the Constitution specifies rights "the accused shall enjoy."

"It is significant that the Constitution does not say that the public has the right to 'enjoy' or even attend trials," Judge Boldt declared.

The Sixth Amendment does accord the accused right of "public trial." Justin M. Miller, former associate justice of the U. S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, pointed out, and access to the trial "should be equally available to all media of communication—assuming that the proper dignity, decorum and normal activities of all participants can be maintained."

None of the learned gentlemen who spoke on this point, pro or con, seems to have pointed out the obvious, to-wit: that the right of an accused to "a speedy and public trial" means what it says. The right of the public to be present would seem to be one of our constitutional guarantees, and that in turn implies the right of the public's representatives, the press and other media of publication, to be present and to report the proceedings.

It may be that photography and television by their very nature tend to disturb the proceedings. Glaring lights and huge piles of equipment stacked around a courtroom hardly contribute to orderly and decorous procedures.

However, that is something that falls within the discretion of the presiding judge, if such distractions prove insupportable, obviously he has the right to put a stop to them, just as he could bar a brass band from the courtroom. In most cases of public trials turned into bedlam, the laxity of the judge is responsible.

But it is better in a democracy to have some slight disturbance than to have Star Chamber proceedings.

State's Sound Policy Of Highway Building Should Not Be Upset

One Texas function that shouldn't be disturbed, regardless of the executive office, is the State Highway Department.

Few states in America have one comparable to it in efficiency, in scope of work and in objective achieved. This status has been brought about, since the days of Gov. Dan Moody, by the creation of a department run by able technical men without political attachment, under the general policy directives of the Highway Commission.

This policy has been to consult with local officials and citizens on their road problems and needs; then to study the full range of technical data, the money available, the comparative priority of a project, with final determination made by engineers in order of merit.

One incident in the governor's campaign has caused a former chairman of the Commission, and an outstanding leader for highway improvement in Texas, John S. Redditt, to voice concern over a departure from this policy, which has proven sound.

Redditt referred to a telegram which Candidate Ralph Yarborough sent to the Galveston County Commissioners Court, promising his support to a $5,000,000 bridge in which Galveston County is interested.

Redditt sees in this a break-down from the principle of keeping politics out of the state's road and highway program. There is no accusation of a promise or roads in exchange for political support, but the door could be opened in that direction. It could conceivably mean that meritorious projects which had been programmed on a long range and orderly basis would be put at the bottom of the list while special-privileges projects would be advanced to the top. It could badly impair the sound efficiency of the Texas highway program. And it is not the type of procedure that Texas would want to see.

Among the achievements of the Shivers administration has been a sound pursuance of a road program which has helped all of Texas. This approach to the policy should be continued.

Matter Of Fact — Joseph And Stewart Alsop

Grave Decision To Be Made On Development Of Guided Missile

WASHINGTON — The nation's highest policy-making body, the National Security Council, might do well to call in a self-assessive, highly opinionated, former German general, called Walter Dornberger.

The National Security Council is currently "saddled" with the problem of the intercontinental ballistic missile, the ICBM, as it is known among the knowledgeable, is the weapon which will be capable of flying half-way round the globe, at supersonic speed, carrying a hydrogen warhead. No one doubts that the ICBM will one day be made, either in this country or in Russia. The question before the NSC is whether to embark on a major and ultimately very costly effort, patterned on the war-time Manhattan District, to make sure that the ICBM is made in this country first.

On this point, Gen. Dornberger is worth listening to simply because, more than any other man, he is the father of the missile art. An engineer-scientist in civilian life, he was chosen by the German General Staff to head the war-time Peenemünde Rocket Research Institute. It was at Peenemünde that the V2 super-sonic missile, which bombarded Britain in the last months of the war, was made.

Dornberger talks in a heavy German accent, and with an absolute Teutonic assurance. This dogmatism might be irritating in another man, but in Dornberger it is impressive. For as a technical and engineering achievement, the V2 is rated by some experts ahead of the atomic bomb itself. Moreover, Dornberger knows our own missile effort very much from the inside—he has been working here on missiles ever since the end of the war, first for the Pentagon, more recently for the Bell Aircraft Company.

He has also had access to the best estimates of Soviet missile progress. Thus when he assesses the race for the ICBM, he speaks with considerable authority. He says very flatly that as of today, the United States and the Soviet Union are about even in this race. He says almost as flatly that the Russians are likely to take up to nine years to get an operational long range missile into the air, with six years as a minimum, whereas we could do the job in five years or conceivably less. But we will only win the race, Dornberger believes, on certain conditions.

To explain these conditions, he compares the past and the present.

The first V2 hit London in September, 1944. Churchill and Eisenhower have both written that the whole course of the war would have been changed if the weapon had been ready in quantity a few months earlier. Dornberger, who wisely believes that his beloved V2 was unnecessarily delayed by at least a year for three reasons.

One was a dream of Adolph Hitler, that the V2 would never reach England. This caused Hitler to lose all interest in the weapon, so that essential materials had to be bootlegged to Peenemünde. Another was the bitter political rivalry in the Nazi High Command. And the third reason, by no means the least, was the Nazi Security system.

Here in this country, Dornberger says, there are no Hitlerian dreams, no material shortages, no bombings. The American obsession with security, he says, is beginning to dry up the immensely stimulating free exchange of opinion which so impressed him when first arrived here. But, he says judicially, the American security system still does not have the absolutely paralyzing effect of the Gestapo.

Yet, in many ways, he says, it was easier to make missiles, even when the art was wholly unknown, even under the bombs, than it is here. He himself left the Pentagon for fear of strangling in red tape.

"Over there," he says, "you could get a decision made. It was often wrong, but at least you knew where you stood. Now you have to get twenty-seven men to make any decision, all generals, all changing their jobs and their minds all the time."

This country will only win the missile race if the essential experimental part at least, of the missile effort is taken right out of the Pentagon, Dornberger believes. What is needed is an organization in which the scientists and engineers have the freedom to experiment without justifying their every move to "twenty-seven generals."

Above all, as in the Manhattan District, one man must be given the power to decide.

This view of Dornberger's is shared by the great majority of the most distinguished American scientists. This, indeed, is why the NSC is seized with the problem. There is bitter resistance to a Manhattan District effort—from the services which will lose empire, and from the economists, since the effort will be very costly in the long run.

Mendes-France May Seek Compromise On Suggested Changes In EDC Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — American hopes for a single European army, which could form a solid wall against Russian attack, were in danger of landing on history's scrap heap in Brussels today.

There, representatives of the six governments which would make up that army met so France could lay down her new terms for joining the European Defense Community (EDC). The other five are West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

France herself first proposed the single army. Having suggested it, she has stalled on joining it ever since, thus keeping it from coming into existence.

Under EDC, troops from all six nations would form a single army, wearing the same uniforms, using the same weapons. And all under a single command chosen by the six from among themselves.

After long, painful consultation, all six nations in May 1952 signed a treaty to create EDC. But the signing by the various foreign ministers wasn't enough. EDC couldn't be born until the parliaments of all six had ratified the agreement. The parliaments of West Germany, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg did so.

Italy still hasn't but that has not been considered a stumbling block. The Italians were expected to go along as soon as the French Parliament approved.

But the French Parliament, more than two years after the treaty was signed, hasn't acted. There are a number of reasons, mainly these: fear of a rearmé Germany; national pride; Russian influence.

The Russian influence showed in actions of the Communist members of the French Parliament. Russia doesn't want a rearmé West Germany, so they don't.

The Nationalists don't like the idea of France becoming part of a multi-national military force which would mean a long step toward the end of a separate French army under full French control.

And there is the fear of Germany. After two world wars the French have reason to worry about a Germany rearmé. And letting West Germany into EDC would mean rearming her, although in a limited way. She'd have about 300,000 men in 12 divisions in EDC. Yet, part of the original French thinking in suggesting EDC was that, if Germany were in EDC, she no longer would have her own army, as a possible threat to her neighbors, and the German general staff would not be revived.

Further, the United States, Britain and many West Europeans felt any defense against Russian attack would be weak unless West German manpower was included on the side of the West.

The United States and Britain repeatedly have pressed the French to ratify the EDC agreement. Because of the mixed feeling in their Parliament, French leaders backed away from a test.

Then a new French premier, Pierre Mendes-France, came on the scene — a man of force, decision and action. He negotiated a truce in the Indo-China war. He offered home rule to the Tunisians.

As he promised to lay the question of ratifying EDC before the French Parliament this month.

Since the mood of Parliament was not good, he and his staff sought a solution that might be acceptable there.

His solution according to reports from Europe, would require the other five EDC countries to agree to some changes in the treaty. Those changes are described as so far-reaching that while they might be acceptable to the French Parliament — they might also wreck any hope for a real EDC.

In short, although the French agreed to all the details of the EDC treaty back in 1952, they now want to change it. For that reason Mendes-France arranged to talk to the foreign ministers of the other five EDC countries at Brussels today.

Those countries, plus the United States and Britain, have taken a chilly view of Mendes-France's idea as reported. A shrewd man, he may deliberately be sounding tough to get a compromise.

Vacation Driving Tip Is To Buy Your Gas Before It Turns Hot

The opinions contained in this and other articles in this column are solely those of the writers who sign them. They are not to be interpreted as necessarily reflecting the opinions of The Herald—Editor's Note.

Hot weather driving tips, for people with vacations who must go, come: Always buy your gasoline in the cool of the morning. You get more that way. When the mercury goes up, gasoline in the service station storage tanks expands. As a result, you get less fuel per gallon. That's according to Leonard M. van Noppen, vice president of the Universal CIT Credit Corporation, an automobile finance agency.

He says that when a motorist purchases gasoline at 80 degrees, it takes 101.3 gallons to provide the same amount of weight and power of an even 100 gallons at 80 degrees.

For the average motorist, the purchase of "cool" gasoline would mean a saving of about $2 per year.

When you take that August or September vacation, and head for the cool of the mountains, do your driving in the heat of the day.

It may be cooler and much more comfortable at night, but it's also more dangerous, the Department of Public Safety says. You can't see as well as you think you can at night and you face the additional hazard of on-coming headlights.

Late in the afternoon—about dusk—and in the dawn's early light are other dangerous driving times. If your trip takes more than a day, start stopping early in the afternoon. Take time to find a comfortable place to spend the night and avoid the hazards of evening and after-dark travel.

Something else you could run into on a hot weather trip is a vapor lock. That's when your automobile stalls, for no apparent reason, usually a thousand miles from no place. A combination of hot sun and hot engine has warmed the fuel line so that gasoline vaporizes before it reaches the carburetor.

If it happens, don't sit there and run your battery down grinding on the starter. Let the car rest a few minutes, while the gasoline vapors return to the liquid state. Then it'll start right off.

Take along a thermos jug for refreshment in case you do stall out.

Much Bitterness Still Exists Within The Republican Ranks

The schism within the Republican party is not a family quarrel. To understand it all, it must be recognized that from 1880 to 1890, a large number of men and women, some of great personal sacrifice, did the chores of keeping an unpopular party together. During that 10-year period, numerous Republicans passed over to the New Deal, some, such as Henry Wallace, Harold Ickes, Frank Knox and Henry Stimson, taking office in Mr. Roosevelt's Cabinet.

There was hope in 1946 among Republicans that they might carry the country on the third term issue. Party workers hoped that the candidates would be either Robert A. Taft or Thomas E. Dewey; they were elated out by an effective public relations campaign organized by a group in the National Association of Manufacturers who projected Wendell Willkie, a Democrat, a former county committeeman in Tammany Hall.

(It has often been denied that the National Association of Manufacturers had anything to do with this. Such a denial is only correct in the sense that no direct formal action was taken and none was necessary. I was then associated with the N.A.M. and speak of my own knowledge that the first projection of Willkie was from this N.A.M. group.)

Most organization Republicans resented Willkie and enough of them stayed away from the polls on election day. Willkie's subsequent close relations with Roosevelt and with New Deal and even left wing groups further alienated him from organization Republicans. "Freedom House" in New York rather than the Republican party is symbolic of Willkie's short career in politics.

The Republican party was largely held together by the conservative element which followed the leadership of Robert A. Taft and the guidance of Herbert Hoover. However, it must be noted that the other important leader of this party was Thomas E. Dewey, governor of New York but who also exhibited about half those elements in the party who were opposed to what they called, "isolationism."

In the 1952 Republican Convention, it can be said that there were two distinct political parties meeting under one roof, each claiming control of the Republican party. One was led by Robert A. Taft; the other by Thomas E. Dewey. The wounds of that convention have never healed, although Taft, in his last months, ministered to them.

For want of a better designation, those who regard themselves as Taft Republicans now feel that their "shade of opinion," traditional in their party, is being blotted out. They find that two elements prevail in their party.

The present Dewey group whom they have resented for 10 years, more or less; E. New Dealers, political opportunists, A.D.A. Republicans, C.I.O. Republicans, Eisenhower personal friends, the so-called internationalists who worked with Roosevelt, Truman, Marshall, Acheson and against whom the Republicans waged the 1952 campaign.

For a while in 1952, particularly when Taft was alive, both sides fought for Eisenhower's ear and friendship. In those days there was no opposition to Eisenhower.

From the standpoint of realistic politics, the President will have to purge the Republican party of the conservative elements or he will have to find a selfish formula for placating some of them. It is too late to do much about it for the 1954 campaign, but should the conservative Republicans gain strength in the Senate, or should the Democrats gain either house in the next election, only a change of attitude in the White House can save this party from disintegration.

Washington Calling—Marquis Childs

Tunisia A New Responsibility French Government Must Meet

TUNIS — In some respects the problem that the French Premier Mendes-France confronts in Tunisia resembles the dilemma that he faced in Indochina. The urgency is nothing like as great, since it is not a question, for the time being at least, of direct Communist aggression.

Yet, as in Indochina, the responsibility he must accept here represents a long accumulation of error, of delay and uncertainty. Even among French businessmen fearful that they will lose investments carefully built up here over the years, there is recognition that in the final showdown the new Premier had no choice but to offer the Tunisians an independent government with control over internal affairs.

The promise of freedom has several times been advanced and each time it has come to nothing. A government in Paris with liberal intentions has followed one that pursued a policy of widespread repression, jailing and killing the Neo-Destourian leaders. The savage terrorism and chaos that followed in Tunisia would make it plain that another such cycle could end only in a disastrous explosion.

There are overtones here of the kind of change taking place almost everywhere in the world. The French planter sounds like the Southerner in the United States. He likes the Arabs and he understands them. They work on his plantation and he and his wife are kind to them, giving them medicine and food beyond the wages they receive. If only the politicians in Tunis and in Paris would stop their trouble-making, everything would be all right.

The pattern is familiar from India, Burma and Indonesia. The French colonize says that he knows from his own experience that the natives are not ready for self-government. Give them time, a probationary period of 10 or 15 years, and then it may work.

All this may be literally true and yet, as such a tough-minded realist as Mendes-France clearly understands, it is too late for the gradual solution. The time for such a solution was 25 years ago. The flames of nationalism have burned too fiercely and the effort to suppress that fire has cost too much hatred and resentment.

In the last wave of opposition ten years ago, hundreds of independence leaders were put in prison camps, held under house arrest or exiled to remote French islands. One of Mendes-France's first moves before his dramatic flight to Tunis was to bring Habib Bourguiba, exiled Neo-Destourian leader, back to France for consultations.

The most extreme member of the new government is one of the three ministers of state, Mongi Slim, who will negotiate the basic agreement with France. Slim spent five and a half years in the worst jail in France, in Marseilles.

Yet as he talks in the big high-ceilinged reception room of his house, he expresses confidence in Mendes-France and in the peaceful development of an autonomous government. This will be true so long as the French Premier lives up to his promise. If he goes back on that promise, under pressure from the powerful interests opposing his program, the violence in Tunisia will know no limits.

If an agreement can be reached in Paris, the chances are good for peaceful development of a semi-independent Tunisia within the French Union. But Slim and the other Neo-Destourian leaders leave no doubt that they consider their country one step on the way to full independence.

Even in this first stage, the pressure will be strong for the next step and the right to carry on foreign relations and assume the burden of defense.

Ross Barbecue Is Prepared Of Choice Meats

With the season just right for plunking and entertaining, wise planners will go to Ross Bar-B-Q Stand. Ross' speciality may be obtained in any amount.

Owner Ross keeps secret his famous barbecue and sauce recipes. But he stands ready to give out many of the techniques he employs in his own preparations—Techniques learned through years of experience.

The best way to get good barbecue is to purchase the very finest of choice meats, Ross says. And that's just what he does at his own establishment.

Customers may dine in air-conditioned comfort at Ross', where the service is quick and efficient.

French fries were recently added to the menu. Included in the tasty barbecue specials are both plates and sandwiches. Prices are economical.

The cafe offers adequate facilities for approximately 30 persons. No curb service is offered at Ross' Stand, but any items may be purchased "to go."

An out-of-doors meal will do you good. Why not drop by Ross Bar-B-Q Stand today and pick up the meal America loves.

Hanoi Refugees Killed In Crash

SAIGON, Indochina (U.S.)—A twin-engine cargo plane evacuating Vietnamese refugees from Hanoi crashed in the Se Don River near Pakse in southern Laos yesterday, killing 46 persons. Most of the dead were women and children.

Three of the four French crewmen and a Vietnamese woman and child were the only survivors.

The plane had taken off from Hanoi for Saigon with the refugees, fleeing occupation of that area by the Communist-led Vietminh.

Alport authorities at Pakse said the pilot had radioed an hour before the crash that one of the engines of his Bristol plane had conked out and he was heading for the Pakse landing strip. Cornish, in for the landing, the plane suddenly nosed into the river a mile short of its goal.

Survivors Of Hainan Incident Reach U. S.

LOS ANGELES (U.S.)—Silent and grieving, Mrs. Frances Parrish and her daughter, Valerie, 6, survivors of a British plane shot down July 23 off Hainan by Red Chinese fighter planes, arrived by plane in Los Angeles last night.

The only thing she would say to reporters was that her trip from Honolulu was fine.

Mrs. Parrish and her daughter were accompanied by Perry Cutbirth, Pittsburg, Kan., a longtime family friend, and were met by another friend, Les Marsh. Her husband, Leonard L. Parrish, and their two sons, Larry, 4, and Phillip, 2, were lost in the airliner crash.

Carlton Station Provides Fast Service, Top Products

Humble service stations are distinctive throughout the Southwest not only because of the efficient manner in which they are operated and the courtesy practiced by their employees but their spick-and-span appearance.

When approached by the motorist, the Humble station gives the appearance that—no matter how busy the attendants might be at the moment—they can always turn their attention to his problems without undue delay.

One such concern here is the Travis Carlton Humble Service Station, located at 800 West Third Street.

The Carlton station, owned and operated by a man long experienced in catering to the motoring public, boasts long approach-ways fronting on Highway 80 and is completely equipped.

From grease racks to gasoline pumps, from accessory racks to rest rooms, the station is kept spotlessly clean.

Carlton not only offers the best in Humble gasolines and motor oils but such products as Atlas tires and tubes and Atlas batteries, as well.

For the stranger to the community seeking the best route to his destination, Carlton maintains a fairly complete supply of road maps which are supplied free of charge by the Humble Oil and Refinery Company.

Carlton has been in his present location since June 18, 1953. Previously, he operated stations here on East Third Street and the Lamesa Highway.

The station opens at 8 a.m. and closes at midnight daily.

When you buy fish fillets or steaks, remember to allow about one-third pound for each person you are planning to serve.

The 1954 NAA Ford Tractor

Now on display at Big Spring Tractor Company, Lamesa Highway, is the powerful new Ford tractor pictured above. The tractor is bigger, longer than last year's model and has more than ample power for the great majority of farming jobs. It has a big, low friction engine that saves fuel, oil and upkeep expense. It is said by observers to be one of the more economical tractors on the road today. The vehicle has the valve-in-head engine and the live power lift. It has more cooling capacity and larger fuel capacity along with a free flowing oil filter. Lloyd Wasson, manager of the company, or one of the clerks on duty are available during all business hours to point out the features of the new model. A complete line of Dearborn accessory equipment is also in stock.

Service Clubs Find Wagon Wheel Ideal

Service club members in Big Spring are finding the Wagon Wheel Restaurant an ideal place to hold dinner meetings.

A number of club meetings are now being scheduled in the restaurant's Western and Candlelight rooms, and quite a few of these meetings have been set up on a regular basis.

Reservations for any club or private party can be obtained at the Wagon Wheel. Accommodations are available for parties ranging in number from six to 100.

The Howard County Bar Association and the Toastmaster's Club, both small in numbers, meet in the private Western Room quite often. The Jaycees and the area medical association frequently make use of the larger Candlelight room.

A number of oil companies and trucking firms hold their monthly gathering at the Wagon Wheel now, too.

Herbert Vinson, manager, points out that there is no charge for the room reservations. Those holding the meetings are billed only for the food served.

Waitresses are stationed in the rooms during such meetings, and their only duty is to serve those in the party. Food is prepared in advance and is ready to serve at the desired time.

Reservations should be made well in advance to assure accommodations, Vinson said. The phone number at the restaurant is 4-8332, and Vinson or his wife Lee schedule the reservations.

Any type of food desired can be served during the meetings or parties. Specialties of the house include steaks, Mexican foods and seafoods. There is a large selection list containing other items.

A new refrigerated air conditioning unit and cooling tower has been installed at the restaurant this summer to add to the comfort of the customers.

Herbert Vinson, manager, points out that there is no charge for the room reservations. Those holding the meetings are billed only for the food served.

Charles P. Taft Tells Churchmen Of U.S. System

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—Charles P. Taft spoke up today for the American social and economic system before fellow Christians from many lands.

Taft, brother of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, voiced his views while delegates to the Assembly of the World Council of Churches were engaged in a round of discussions on the broad subject of a "responsible society."

"We Americans are a responsible society," Taft told an audience of visitors to the convention—a gathering of representatives of 163 denominations from 48 nations.

He mentioned social security, workmen's compensation for injuries on the job, the minimum wage law, the 40-hour week, farm price floors and public housing, and said:

"I am not reciting these facts to boast but to show you that we are not, and probably never have been, a laissez-faire capitalism. In nearly all of this legislation and in its enforcement has been evidence of the strong reform instincts of America. It comes in large part out of our religious and missionary background."

The day's program of the assembly featured President Eisenhower.

A crowd of 15,000 was expected to hear him.

Taft, who lives in Cincinnati and is a delegate to the assembly, mentioned in a prepared address American qualities of "risk-taking, ingenuity, the urge to work."

"This nation's 'business culture,'" he said, is "the setting for our religious life."

"We work under pressure of competition and fight the natural impulse to make things easier by dividing markets and fixing prices—that is, cartelization," he said.

Dr. C. I. Patijn, director of international organizations in the Dutch Ministry of Foreign Affairs, opened discussions about a "responsible society" last night.

He recalled that the first assembly of the council in 1948 at Amsterdam produced a report that was critical of both communism and laissez-faire (free of government interference) capitalism.

Speaking of points that have come up in consideration of a report to be made at the current gathering, he said:

"There is more interest in the problems of production and efficiency than before. At the same time it is more generally accepted that the state has an important part to play in economic life, although the extent of state intervention is still a controversial point."

"Since there is also a better understanding of the significance of private initiative and the dangers of centralization and rigidity in the economic system, it seems as though the old controversy between socialism and capitalism is beginning to lose its sting."

Postman Admits Dumping Letters In Atlantic Ocean

NEW YORK (AP)—A letter carrier faces charges of destroying mail — by swimming out and dumping it in the Atlantic Ocean.

Authorities said Joseph J. Michalozic, 31, admitted yesterday he put the mail in a shoebox and swam out about a mile off Gilgo Beach to dump it.

A lifeguard at Lido Beach, some miles down the Long Island shore, found the box with the letters still inside and turned it over to postal authorities.

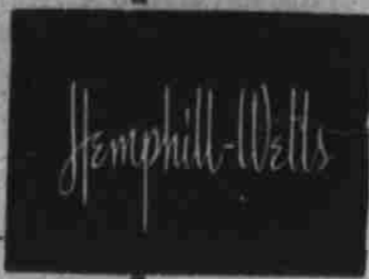

Then postal inspectors traced a shoe company label on the box to Michalozic, through post office records showing he had received a package from the company recently. Michalozic, of Hempstead, N.Y., is a summer substitute postman.

He was quoted as saying his wife's suicide after childbirth and pain from a war injury had combined to make him too "lazy" to deliver the mail.

What Was This Call Worth?

"Mummy, can I stay at grandmother's tonight?" That was little Carol's very first telephone call — a real thrill that can hardly be measured in dollars and cents. Yet, Mrs. Caroline Nimsayer, Carol's grandmother, can tell you what that call cost. She is one of a group of customers who kept day-by-day records of calls made for a week — a total of 30 calls covering 133 miles. Then she broke her telephone bill down into the actual cost per call. "I was amazed," she reported, "at how little my telephone service cost for all the convenience and happiness it delivers." CONSUMERS' BILL TELEPHONE COMPANY . . . UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

Indian boy pushing his young pet tapir—after the animal, tried to eat the boy's dinner.

A tapir might be called "an animal which started out to be an elephant but stopped too soon." It has a snout which forms a short trunk, and there is a little tuak at each side of the mouth.

Grass, leaves and other parts of plants make up the food of tapirs. They move about mostly after sunset, and are very timid. A slight noise will make them dash into the underbrush, or they may plunge into a river. They are excellent swimmers.

Dark brown is the common color of tapirs, but the young have white markings. Stripes extend across almost the length of the body. In addition there are several white spots.

Young tapirs have the spots and stripes for about six months. The stripes for about six months. The most tapirs live in the New World. They are found from Central America to Brazil. Only one other section of the earth has these beasts—they exist in southeastern Asia and on islands nearby.

Indians and other residents of Latin America sometimes keep tapirs as pets. The pets are caught while they are young, and then are provided with food.

A pet tapir is gentle enough, but it also is a bit greedy. Sometimes it sniffs the food prepared for the family, and may eat some unless it is pushed away.

There are several kinds of tapirs in South America, and they differ in small ways. Those which live in mountains have thick coats of crinkled hair. This "wool" protects them from the cold weather.

Now and then a zoo displays a tapir. Not long ago the Bronx Zoo in New York obtained a tapir of a rare kind.

Tomorrow: Water Deer.

Presence Of Czech Preacher Protested

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—Ten pickets paraded outside the Assembly of the World Council of Churches last night in protest against the presence of Dr. Joseph Hromadka of the Czech Evangelical Churches.

They carried signs saying "2,000 priests in jail. Why is Hromadka here?" They identified themselves as members of the Alliance of Czechoslovaks in Exile.

Hromadka, dean of the Prague Theological Seminary, has voiced the view that churches must learn to get along under communism to survive. He has said he is not a Communist.
