THAT'S SICK

There are 10 million people mentioned, white people who are poor, too. The census figures for our nation say that there are ten times as many poor whites as Negro. Do you think for one minute that those wretched, jobless whites in Appalachia would dare to march downtown to raid and loot every liquor store, TV shop and exclusive haberdashery in sight?

The finger-shaking Freuds who rush out of their segregated suburban homes to assert that "the major burden of responsibility for the current civil disturbances . . . must be accepted by the majority, white community of our nation," are patently phoney. They blaspheme the 99 percent of the black community in our country who work, save and pray on Sunday whether or not President Johnson requests them to do so.

That 99 percent doesn't think or talk about hyphenated-Americans. They learned from grandparents, parents and in person, in two world wars, in Korea and in Vietnam, that not even a hyphen separates Americans fighting to keep the American dream alive. There are no hyphenated - Americans in fox-holes or trenches.

Can the color-conscious Freudians or the quaking politicians name a county in the world where 10 percent of the population is represented in as many high posts, in and out of government, as in the United States? Russia? Britain? China? France? India?

Or what about Cuba, which hosts international conferences to incite insurrection in every country in the hemisphere? A Negro in Havana has the stature of a stray animal, and any Negro who bothers to read knows it.

And what about the wealthy Congo, where a Negro named Mobutu gouged out the eyes of two political opponents, then hanged them, wearing hoods to cover his brutality? He wants to do the same to a western-educated and refined Christian statesman named Tshombe. There hasn't been very much civil rights legislation passed in the Congo, really. And the Welfare State hasn't dawned. In the United States the kook who writes a threatening letter to the President of the United States is smothered by a swarm of Secret Service and FBI men.

But the kook who shouts "Burn, Baby, Burn," and incites 34 unnecessary deaths and millions of dollars in damage gets a full-color profile on TV and a double-page spread in the Sunday supplements.

Why? Because politicians in Washington fear they might lose some fraction of one-tenth of the vote in the United States. That's sick.

Recipe of the Week From Kitty's Kitchen

New Orleans Angel Cake

- 1 large pkg. angel-foof cake mix
- 2 tablespoons margarine
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1/4 cup chopped pecans
- 1 1/2 squares unsweetened chocolate
- 1 1/2 cups heavy cream

Early in day prepare, bake and cool angel-foof cake as mix label directs. While cake cools make candy crunch. In bowl, with pastry blender or 2 knives used scissor-fashion, cut margarine into brown sugar and flour until like corn meal. Stir in pecans and spread thinly on bottom of an 8" round cake pan and bake at 350 degrees 10 minutes. Remove from oven and cut chocolate in tiny pieces and scatter over top. Return to oven for about 3 minutes, then remove and spread melted chocolate over surface; refrigerate. With long paring knife, split inverted cake into 3 layers. Whip cream until just stiff. Place bottom cake layer on serving plate; spread it with one-third of whipped cream. Bread candy crunch into small pieces and sprinkle one-third of it over whipped cream. Repeat with two remaining layers. Refrigerate about 3 hours. Serve, cut into 12 wedges.

ONE OF THE BEST OF THE STATE

By Kay Fox

Mr. Franklin Reavis, chemistry and physics teacher, said Wednesday, "This lab is one of the best in the state."

Mr. Reavis was talking about the new chemistry and physics lab which was inaugurated on the third floor during the summer.

Mr. Reavis said that he was happy to have the new equipment. The lab is well equipped. There is a demonstration desk at the front of the room. At the tables there is plenty of storage area and adequate space for the student to take his notes while experimenting.

Mr. Reavis said that, unlike the old chemistry room, you stand up in the new lab. He also mentioned that it is best to stand up because some of the experiments might not work, and one needs to be able to get out of the way.

There are 39 chemistry students who use the lab. He sure they will put the new facilities to good use.

Wise and Otherwise
 Rambling Reflections
 By Dr. R. F. Curl

During recent months the Saturday Review has been running a series of articles by eminent world leaders on the general theme of "What I Have Learned." In the issue of September 9th Alan Paton, the famous South African author, now 64 years old, wrote under the caption, "The Challenge of Fear."

You would expect the author of Cry, The Beloved Country to write in crystal clear style of an almost poetic beauty. He does not disappoint. But always with Paton, style is but a vehicle for ideas.

In this article he vigorously propounds the theory that most of us are never really prepared to live until we are ready to die. This arises, in his thinking, from our acceptance of the romantic illusion that man is naturally good and can be expected to behave in an altruistic manner.

Yet, as he admits, all who are brought up to read the Bible as children should have realized that the world is actually populated with scribes and pharisees capable always of crucifying a Christ. Life teaches that in most societies man cannot be true to his highest ideals without paying for it in suffering.

This is, of course, especially true in totalitarian societies, whether communist or nazi. But even in our free and open democratic society there is failure to live up to the high religious faith and the noble political concept of freedom and justice for all on which any such society must of necessity be built.

History is a record of man's failure to grasp what he nobly professes and seeks. Too often self-interest leads men and nations to demean themselves in contempt and cruelty toward their fellowmen.

Paton claims that this arises from our fear of change and confesses, perhaps with the pessimism that inevitably tinges old age, that he sees no hope for the peace of the world so long as this fear of change dominates the hearts of men.

Then he raises a question of grave concern for us all: "Can our schools prepare our children for the complexity and waywardness of man?" Or must we live out all our lives to learn that the romantic illusion is deceptive? If we can learn no more than this, then man is totally bad and life intolerable. Or can we teach our children that love can overcome our justified fear and make us courageous to bear the strain and stress of working in a poisoned atmosphere?

Well, of course, I would be one of the first to say that it alone is not a responsibility of our school alone to prepare our children to live in a world stained by the complexity and waywardness of man. In fact, I would be quick to say that the home and the church bear primary responsibility here. And I am firmly convinced that our schools are doing today a better job than either home or church. This I say with shame, bearing my part of the responsibility as a parent and a churchman.

But if man is always to be a fearful alien in a world of change, then Thomas Wolfe's magnificent words, that we come from the prison of our mother's flesh "into the unspeakable and incommunicable prison of this earth," are true and life becomes a hideous nightmare.

But Paton concludes on a more optimistic note, professing that while life has taught him not to expect too much she has not taught him to expect nothing. Rather he declares: "She has taught me to seek sustenance from the endeavor itself, but to leave the result to God. And the strange thing is that my parents taught me all this more than half a century ago. It is a lesson that — for me — had to be learned at least twice. When I learned it in my youth, it meant Sir Galahad and the Holy Grail. When I learned it at my age, it meant Christ and the road to Golgotha. And looking back upon it all, I would not wish it otherwise. . . . To try to be free of self-deception, to try to see with clear eyes oneself and others and the world, does not necessarily bring an undiluted kind of happiness. Yet it is something I would not exchange for any built on any other foundation. There is only one way in which one can bear man's inhumanity to man and that is to try, in one's own life, to exemplify man's humanity to man."

Yes, I know those last sentences are preaching and good preaching, too. And I also know I am resolved not to make this column a pulpit. But this is Alan Paton, the South African author, astute business man, and politician, and not I speaking. And he speaks with such beauty and such power that I could not refrain sharing with you some impressions of an article that has moved me as few I have read this year.

I would like to commend it to you. If you take the magazine dig it out and read it. If you do not subscribe, go by our wonderful County High School Library and Miss Mildred North will be glad to make it available.

And, by the way, our County Judge and commissioners, our school superintendent and trustees, are to be praised by us all for having given such beautiful and adequate library facilities to our High School students and our citizenry at large. I understand that we are indebted to the Massie Foundation for participation in its gift. Crockett County has a most valuable asset in this facility.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,
In one of your latest editions of The Stockman, I noticed a few paragraphs in City's Corner that has prompted me in writing this letter. It could be that I have a negative attitude because I combined a combination that I feel very strongly about; elections, The American People and Vietnam.

Yes, we do seem to be doing "a bang-up job of teaching the Vietnamese, the American way of life." At last the Vietnamese people have had the chance to elect their own leaders and support their own ideas for their own country. I do not think anyone should belittle what America is doing to help the Vietnamese people and what they are trying to accomplish. One should stop and consider the amount of blood American blood, that has been shed to bring this dream of democracy to life. One should also check the records, for we have fought our own wars for the right to vote. And yet today, we can only muster 51% of the eligible voters to the polls; whereas the Vietnamese had 2%. As a step toward a free government and freedom, this was certainly a giant step on their part. This giant step was taken through a door that the American people opened, and we should be proud of that fact.

Maybe the American people have lost sight of our ideals. Certainly we can not put the blame entirely on our present day elections and politicians. The majority of the peoples vote put them into office. So, let us look into our own hearts and decide what is best for our country.

It is easily understandable that American casualties in Vietnam are vastly unpopular with the American public. But, let us hope that the idea that is behind these casualties in Vietnam or anywhere else in the world, never becomes unpopular with the American people. If this ever comes to pass; then all the men and women that have given their lives for America, died without reason. America's willingness to fight and die to defend what we believe in and to help others fight for the same thing is what has made America great. "The Star-Spangled Banner" still give me that certain feeling and I am proud that I am an American.

Sincerely,
Pat Aiguier
Ft. Leonard Wood,
Mo.

P. S. John and I look forward to receiving the Stockman every week as it keeps us informed about Ozona and our friends.

Kitty's Korner —

I know when I'm liked, and I realized long ago that my crusade for safe driving to, from and around the school was futile. I admire the lady who called, if she really did, but I would advise her to get up and get away a little early each day. Much better to come back to work a few minutes early than take a chance on a nervous collapse.

Who is this middle-man that makes so much money? When I complain about high prices everyone says its the middle-man. The retailers don't make any money, the producers don't make any money, salesmen don't make money and wholesale houses barely keep body and soul together. Who is this middle-man and how do you get to be one?

Hal C Woodward, chairman of the Highway Commission, cited the proposed improvements for their important role in the Department's continuing highway safety program.

"This combined effort extends and amplifies the Texas Highway Department's long-standing concern for the safety of those who travel on these two vital highway networks."

He said types of work included by the program includes surface widening and replacement, base strengthening, seal coating and resurfacing and rebuilding of shoulders.

tide. This was the beginning of our worldwide aid program, he pointed out.

The Greeks are a competent people and are making good use of our aid, Col. Cannon said. They have their own pilot training program under U. S. modernized methods and, although theirs is a small force, it could be effective if put to the test. Of course, they have the same personnel problems as we have, the colonel said, putting money into expensive training programs to turn out pilots only to lose them to industry.

"The Greeks are about the staunchest allies we have in the world," Col. Cannon said. "This is a comforting feeling when we read about how different it is in many of the countries receiving our aid."

Col. Cannon will be engaged in essentially the same kind of work in his Korean assignment, the training of combat units in the Korean air force. He will head a team consisting of two Air Force Majors and a number of experienced non-commissioned officers on the mission. He will leave next week for his new duty. Col Cannon is a native of Phoenix, Ariz. The Cannons have rented one of the Holiday Terrace Apartments.

The Home Demonstration Club will meet Monday afternoon at the Civic Center at 1:30. Rev. Jim Hancock, pastor of the First Baptist Church, will be the guest speaker.
