Seek Addresses Of Ozona Servicemen

Mrs. Charles Applewhite is in the process of compiling a list of Ozona servicemen and their addresses for the Home Demonstration Club. The club plans to send individual packages to every Ozona youth in the service next Christmas.

Those having sons or relatives in the service are urged to call Mrs. Applewhite at 392-3260 and give her the name and address.

OPTIMIST'S VIEW — Yesterday is gone, tomorrow never comes. That leaves Today the Best Day of Your Life, as Bill Cooper, keeper of the bulletin board in front of the courthouse annex, sees it. Anyway, there wasn't an important announcement to post on the bulletin board that day.

Now Almost Full Amistad Lake Is Expected To Draw Estimated Two Million Visitors Annually

With water backed up more than 150 feet deep behind the 99 per cent completed Amistad Dam, Ozona suddenly finds itself with a big new fishing hole practically in its own back yard.

The huge dam has been placed across the Rio Grande by the United States and Mexico near Del Rio. That's only 115 highway miles from Ozona, not far at all according to standards by which distance is measured in the wide open spaces of West Texas.

Development of Amistad National Recreational Area is already underway.

It is expected to attract two million visitors a year from all over the United States and beyond.

Many of these will be traveling through Ozona, which is on Highway 163, a direct route to Lake Amistad. Thus, Lake Amistad will have a healthy impact on Ozona's economy as well as providing new recreational opportunities for the enjoyment of citizens here.

Allen To Lead Baptist Revival Song Services

Sam Allen of Lubbock will lead the music for the Crusade of The Americas Revival in the First Baptist Church here March 9-16. Mr. Allen has been in the ministry of evangelistic singing for some twenty years. Mr. Allen is an outstanding song leader and soloist each year in many southern assemblies and encampments. He recently served as soloist for the Southern Baptist Pastor's Conference and Southern Baptist Convention. Ozona people know Mr. Allen very well from their annual exposure to his singing at Paisano General Encampment.

Allen is a man of varied abilities and talents. He won the High School World Record in the 120 yd. high hurdles. He has won several World A. A. U. and National Collegiate championships in the high hurdles. He was twice named to the All-A (Continued on Last Page)

Coach Sewell's Ozona tracksters have been working overtime this week and will be vying for the Class AA trophy Saturday. The Lions got off to a disappointing start last Saturday in the Comanche Relays at Fort Stockton, but expect to be much improved for Saturday's events.

THE ATTACK ON THE ANTHEM

For several months our National Anthem has been under attack. It all started when 26-year-old Jose Feliciano gave a "soul" rendition of the Anthem preceding the fifth game of the world series. Something shook up the St. Louis Cardinals that day. They scored 3 runs in the top of the first, and didn't do anything the rest of the day, losing 5-3.

Whether or not it was the Feliciano rendition which did the trick is hard to say, but there is no doubt that a lot of people were rubbed the wrong way. Still a recording by the blind Puerto Rican later became a top-seller, and he now begins every public performance with his "soul" rendition of the Star Spangled Banner.

Many personalities have jumped into the controversy. Frank Sinatra has called it "a terrible piece of music." Joan Baez, who has found nothing that we can recall which she professes to like about this country, calls it "just so much trash." Mitch

Miller calls it "a joke".

On the other hand there are several great stars and composers who defend the song. Marian Anderson is "well satisfied" with it; Irving Berlin, who composed the great "God Bless America," (which is often mentioned as a replacement for the Star Spangled Banner) thinks that it would be a "terrible mistake" to change Richard Rodgers is on record as saying that "tradition is more important than simplicity," in answer to those who protest the difficulty of singing the Anthem. Duke Ellington commented that the singing of the song is not the issue: "It's the symbol of our great nation — and that's all there is to it."

Meantime, a national magazine is conducting a poll, with coupons for voting, on whether or not the anthem should be changed — and to what. The results are to be submitted to the Congress, the magazine proudly proclaims.

If you feel strongly about this, we'd suggest you write your Congressman and Senator. If you don't somebody else will.

As for us, Frank Sinatra may have trouble with the range of the Star Spangled Banner; it may be a "joke" to some, and "trash" to others; but it is the most beautiful — and meaningful — piece of music ever composed to so many Americans who were at Bataan, Panmunjon, and a thousand other points of tearful pride, that it would be a travesty and a tragedy even to consider making a change.

Too many men have wept, unashamedly, at the relief of hearing it played.

ON FAMILY BUSINESSES

The day of the family business is in the sunset stage, it appears. Over the past few years literally thousands of established and successful family business enterprises have been sold to conglomerates — giant corporate combines which pick the choice fruit of the business world when the family is confronted by Uncle Sam.

Actually, it is the confiscatory taxation imposed by the Federal Government which is forcing the successful family business out of existence. And there is scarcely a community in the country which has not suffered from this problem. The successful family business builds on its community reputation as well as its service to the commercial community. More often than not a major consideration is the goodwill established by the founding family's integrity and fair treatment of customers as well as employees.

But when the founding father of the family business gets on in years, Washington casts its shadow. For example: let's suppose that a provident businessman builds a company worth a million dollars in the course of a lifetime. At death the estate tax on the business would be $325,000. His heirs would have to hand up that sum, customarily in cash, to the tax men. Rarely will a family or a small business have that kind of cash available. Successful businessmen keep cash invested, in equipment, or expansion plans. The heirs probably will have to sell the business to meet the estate taxes.

Unhappily, Uncle Sam, who has never been able in modern times to manage his own affairs without buckets of red ink beside the desk, isn't a very good judge of businesses. He never seems to take into account what the founding head of the family business meant to it. The tax appraisal is made without lowering the value when the boss is gone.

Accordingly, successful businessmen who have nursed a family enterprise to profit and fame have had to escape the harsh treatment of heirs by selling the family business.

A conglomerate gives the family businessman stock. The stock is priced in the paper 5 days a week. The government can't appraise beyond the quoted price. The family sells enough stock to satisfy Washington. And a part of the community dies. It is a tragedy repeated endlessly because of a greedy government.

TRACK SEASON OFFICIALLY OPENED

By Doug Blanton
 Head Coach, L. T. Sewell, looks over the group of boys. All are at the football field, scattered out in little bunches along the playing area. Each bunch is doing something different. Some boys are running, others are jumping, and there are some boys not working out at all.
 These boys are not in the mood to begin work, and they think Coach won't see them goofing-off this afternoon. To their amazement, Coach sees them and has a careful eye on them, plus having a solution that will end their fun quickly. Other than this little problem Coach Sewell and his able Assistant Coach, Graydon Hicks, seem rather pleased at the work the boys have done and the improvement they have shown. Both coaches have one common idea - to have a winning team.

All of this adds up to the beginning of the track season for 1969. Last Saturday, February 22, the Lions traveled to Fort Stockton and competed with other track teams at the day event. The Lions tied for 8th place and then came home to begin a long practice to strengthen their weak points.

There are many boys out for track season this season. Some of these boys have been working out for a long time, while others have just begun, since basketball has been keeping them busy until now.

There are several track meets that the Lions will enter this year. The one of most importance and interest to us is our own Invitational Track Meet on March 15. The highlight of this meet is presentation of the queen and her court of duchesses. The queen and duchesses were selected in an election held in the field house, and Debbie Moore was chosen as Track Queen. Her court consists of four duchesses: Marsha Moore, Becky Cervantez, Patricia Whitley and Patsy Pearl. These girls will reign over the meet and present various medals and trophies to the boys and winning teams.

Following the preliminary meets, the Lions will go to McCombs to try for the district honors. From here, all the boys that place either first or second in the events will advance to the Regional Meet in Lubbock. The ones who do well here, move on to the state Meet in Austin.

The track season has just begun, and the Lions are ready for each meet they enter. From the time they take to the field until the end of the season, the team will do its best. We just hope when all the meets are over, we will see an Ozona Lion sitting on top of a crown, reigning as State Champs for 1969!

PARENTS AND THEIR TEENAGERS

By Odilia Sanchez
 Today, most parents do not understand their kids. Kids are topic of conversation in most homes. They like to dress shabbily, wear long hair and have a little freedom of appearance. As soon as parents see how their boy or girl is acting, they immediately tell them they look like hippies. They seem to think that any girl or boy who dresses as such, is weaker or not as good as the more civilized people. What they don't seem to realize is that millions of teen-agers from all over the world are doing the same thing. Teen-agers like music beat, innocent excitement, and freedom of appearance and ideals.

A couple of weeks ago an incident occurred at a high school. The kids were wearing shabby clothes, beads, and sun glasses. They were dressed like this because they were celebrating "hippie day." No ham came from that day. The kids were only trying to have fun and be gay. Why then, if their only purpose is to be gay and have fun, don't parents understand their behavior? For this simple reason, that teen-agers are kids like all the average American people, parents should take a few minutes to think and arrive at the very simple conclusion, that kids are just searching for their freedom and happiness in life.

WE FIND WHAT WE LOOK FOR

By Marsha Moore
 To a great extent, we find what we look for. We can imagine ourselves being like a radio receiving station. Every moment thousands of impressions are reaching us. We can tune in whatever we like to hear: on joy or sorrow, on success or failure, on optimism or fear. Ours is the choice.

Our generation has been criticized for many things such as our habits, our activities, our thoughts, and our actions. Seemingly, we are grouped into one large mass from which a not-too-desirable composite emerges.

In the beginning, God created a masterpiece that has been painted over with hardship, poverty, and evil. We can uncover His masterpiece by rubbing away the belief that all the world is bad and letting His perfect picture show through.

If we reject temptations, see only good in others, be helpful, considerate, and kind, then there is still hope that love and peace will prevail in our lifetime.

TEEN COUNCIL

By Debbie Moore
 Charles Turland got up a Teen Council because of the lack of things to do on a Friday and Saturday night. The Teen Council will have dances, with a band, once a month.

Charles met with the Civic Center Board to ask permission to form a Teen Council and use the Civic Center.

The board asked him, "what other activities would the Teen Council sponsor besides dances?" The Teen Council will have hamburger suppers, have the swimming pool open, with many other activities. In order to have money for the other dances there will be a small admission fee. The following rules were made: only high school students and their dates attend, out of town dates can come, and there is no drinking allowed.

 On February 14, the Missioners Court Teen Council two dollars to start their fund.
 The first dance will be March, with the next playing. It will be at the Civic Center from 7:00 till 1:00.

What can you lift?

God has a way of teaching spiritual truths through physical facts.

Tom used to have trouble lifting his mother's shopping bag—not any more!

That smile on his face isn't triumph—it's confidence. Given a few weeks, Tom will be lifting even heavier weights.

The first time you try to lift someone's burden, it's an awkward effort. Until you discover that physical development and spiritual growth work the same way.

Only practice makes one a friend, a helper, a partner to others in their troubles . . . and, incidentally, better able to bear your own.

Every Sunday that open church-door is an invitation to you to discover what needs to be lifted . . . and how best to begin.

Washington News Letter

Congressman O. C. Fisher

The defleecing of sheep by the use of a chemical drug called vytoxan may soon be a reality. The idea of using this drug developed from work by the National Cancer Institute where it was used in an experiment to stop the growth of cancer cells.

The Agricultural Research Service at Beltsville, Maryland, picked it up and has undertaken extensive tests by using the drug on sheep, under direction of Clair E. Terrill, Chief, Sheep and Animal Research Branch, at Beltsville — one of the best of its kind in the world.

First results were encouraging, after which the scientist observed: "Nothing looks as naked as a chemically defleeced heep."

The chemicals being tested interrupt cell growth in the bulb of each wool fiber, causing a ringlike constriction. The constriction moves up from the bulb of each fiber as it grows and in 6 to 7 days, reaches a position just below the skin surface, it was reported.

At that point, the fiber breaks easily and the whole fleece can be separated at the skinline, leaving the sheep completely bare. An operator grabbing a handful of wool and rolling his wrist along the skin can defleeced a sheep quickly.

The most recent test showed that defleecing can be delayed beyond the 6 or 7 days after chemical treatment, allowing for a short growth of new wool below the constriction point, which would give the sheep some protection against bad weather. The drug would work equally as well on mohair.

But despite preliminary successes, more research and testing is necessary before the process can be used in shearing pens.

Mr. Terrell has informed me that additional testing is needed for possible harmful side effects not previously detected. This phase of the research is being done by Dr. J. M. Shelton of the Livestock and Forage Research Center at McGregor, Texas.

"We are hopeful," Mr. Terrell recently wrote me, "that chemical shearing can be developed for practical use in a relatively short time. It offers hope of reducing the cost and difficulty of an essential job of sheep production. Our research is aimed at this objective for all phases of sheep production and this progress is certainly encouraging."

Local Dealers Introduce Coot, Versatile Vehicle

Coot is the new, versatile, all-terrain and amphibious vehicle that goes anywhere and out-performs all other four-wheel drive vehicles on the world market except in speed. This off-the-road marvel has been widely accepted in the United States for use in industry, agriculture and recreation since production began in August 1967. It is marketed by Coot, a division of Randtron, San Francisco. Lancaster Enterprises, 206 11th Street, has been named new Coot dealer for this area, according to Armond Hoover, agency owner, and Sonny Henderson, associate.

Originally designed as a "worker," the Coot is also an ideal "playmate." It has a low center of gravity, optional four-wheel steering and a unique frameless, water-tight steel body, made in two hulls which pivot around a center joint, keeping all four wheels in surface contact no matter how rough the going.

The Coot twists and climbs over obstacles and "swims" in water. Neither rough terrain, boulder, tree trunks, underbrush, lakes, streams, mud, snow, swamp, slide rock nor grade to 25% of vertical can change the course of a Coot!

Power comes from a 12-horsepower Tecumseh air-cooled engine under the front seat. With two forward speeds and reverse, solid-state ignition and alternator, the Coot runs on a gallon of ordinary gas for two to four hours, depending on the terrain.

All driving parts are in-board, and mechanism is

Research Center At San Angelo To Study Livestock

College Station — A Texas A&M University Research and Extension Center will be established at San Angelo, with construction of facilities expected to begin within a year.

The West Texas center, which will be oriented toward sheep and goat research, was authorized Saturday by the Texas A&M University System Board of Directors.

A&M President Earl Rudder promised during a San Angelo speech last month that he would recommend formation of the center.

He said the facilities will cost approximately $300,000. San Angelo's Board of City Development, an organization similar to a chamber of commerce, has agreed to provide $150,000 for building costs, with Texas A&M furnishing remainder of the funds.

The facility, which will be operated by A&M's Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in cooperation with Angelo State College, will be located on range land now leased by ASC on the north side of North Concho Lake.

While primarily oriented toward sheep and goat research, the center may be used for other research activities benefiting the Edwards Plateau region of Texas, noted Dr. H. O. Kunkel, A&M dean of agriculture and acting TAES director.

Brenda Brentz Scott Henderson Married Saturday

Miss Brenda Susan Brentz and John Scott Henderson were united in marriage in a Saturday evening ceremony at First Baptist Church in Long Beach, Miss. February 22.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Q. A. Brentz of Long Beach and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Henderson of Aguilar, Colo., all formerly of Ozona. The bridegroom is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Henderson of Ozona.

Dr. Gale DeBord performed the double ring ceremony before an altar of white candleabra and pedestals adorned with carnations.

Nuptial music was furnished by Bryan Allen.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a street-length dress of white re-embroidered rose point lace over ice-blue French silk. Her dress featured an A-line skirt and long sleeves, fastened at the wrist with pearl buttons.

Her mantilla veil was formed of petals and leaves of ice-blue bridal satin and trimmed with small blue pearls over matching bridal illusion. The bride's bouquet was of miniature white roses and carnations.

Miss Diane Henderson, sister of the bridegroom, was maid-of-honor. Bob Freasier served as best man.

Following the wedding, the couple left for New Orleans for a honeymoon trip.

Out-of-town guests were

Mr. and Mrs. Henderson, parents of the bridegroom, and Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Newel of Decatur, Miss.
