Kitty's Korner

By Kitty Montgomery

Well, it was "out with the old and in with the new" as far as the race for governor was concerned, and nobody predicted the outcome. I do believe that Texas voters are smarter than the politicians give them credit for. Voters in the June 3 primary will certainly have a choice, the most distinct one in years, a conservative man or a liberal woman. That should be interesting.

The rain was certainly a welcome relief, even if they did have to cancel the 4-H Horse Show and the VFW dance at the platform. Nobody seemed upset, they were so glad to see the rain. I understand that moving the dance into the post made a pretty crowded affair, but all the officials seemed pretty happy with the outcome. Guess they enjoyed the togetherness.

And, the horse show has been rescheduled for the first Monday following the closing of school, so that should give the kids an extra day of "something to do" before summer vacation sets in.

I sure got a good crop of weeds in my newly fertilized lawn. They are growing and multiplying so fast, I fear they will cover the house before it's dry enough to mow.

kk
Everybody's always talking about "too many chiefs and not enough Indians," and it reminds me of a story I heard the other day.

A man who had just been promoted to vice-president of his company boasted so much about it to his wife that she finally retorted: "Vice-presidents are a dime a dozen. Why in the supermarket they even have a vice-president in charge of prunes."

Furious, the husband phoned the supermarket in the expectation of refuting his wife. He asked to speak to the vice-president in charge of prunes.

"Which kind?" was the reply. "Packaged or bulk?"

kk
I have noticed that the President's commission to study marijuana and its effects has reported that it's perfectly harmless and at least one of the members of the commission reported that he had smoked it himself. I don't know what kind of research they did or how well, but I find this a bit distressing.

I am more inclined to believe Dr. Jess Lord, associate professor of sociology, UT at Arlington, who has recently had a book published on the subject. After two and a half years of research the professor said: "As I went through research, I became more and more impressed with the damaging aspects of marijuana. My impression of the drug shifted, believing it to be more dangerous than I had thought originally."

Dr. Lord launched research for his book by supervising the extensive testing of 37 marijuana users, both male and female, ages 17 to 23. Results of the testing revealed that what a marijuana user feels and what he thinks he feels while under the influence of the drug differs sharply. Also, the 37 marijuana users were poorly adjusted, considerably more so than the normal college age group. He found that as the amount of marijuana smoked increased, the level of undesirable response rose accordingly.

He obtained "very definite reactions" from the test subjects in five broad areas - contact with reality, overt anxiety, social adjustment, excitement and personal adequacy.

In the final chapter of his book, "Marijuana and Personality Change," Dr. Lord stresses that a great deal about the drug and its use is unknown and utilizes the final chapter to pose unanswered questions.

Rains Fail To Dampen VFW Meet Enthusiasm

The district VFW convention, hosted by the local chapter last weekend was counted a success in spite of the heavy rainfall which curtailed having the beauty contest and the dance at the county platform.

Around 60 out-of-town families registered at the post home Saturday afternoon, and the barbecue held Sunday at the civic center was attended by 140.

The contest for district queen was held in the newly opened ballroom at the VFW hall Saturday evening. Mrs. Beecher Montgomery interviewed the contestants, and judges were Mrs. Max Louis of Rowena, Mrs. Beall Barbee of Ozona, and Mrs. Mac Lucas of San Angelo.

Carol Halfmann of Rowena was selected to represent the district at the Department Contest. Patti Schroeder of Ozona was first runner-up, and Sharlagay Hufstuler of Ballinger was second runner-up. Other contestants were from Winters and San Angelo.

A large crowd was on hand for the dance which followed the contest. A Big Lake band furnished the music. Both events were planned for the county platform, but a driving rain forced the participants back to the post home.

Following meetings of the auxiliary at the civic center and the VFW at the local post, the meeting was closed.

Local post commander Larry Albers expressed his appreciation to the commanders of Post 1815 in San Angelo, Post 4395 Sonora, Post 4402 Ballinger, Post 8549 Eden, Post 9193 Winters, Post 9196 Rowena, and Post 5622 Brady. All posts were represented at the convention.

Marley In Run-Off With Reina For Prec. 1 Commissioner Post

Crockett County voters went along with the remainder of Texas voters for the most part in the Democratic Primary held Saturday. A total of 1,382 voters cast ballots out of 2,039 who were eligible.

Voting was heaviest in Precincts 1 and 3 where the commissioners' races were contested.

Jesse Marley, incumbent commissioner, Precinct 1, polled the most votes but was thrown into a run-off with Armando Reina in the June 3 second primary election. Marley led the contest with 223 votes, followed by Reina with 186. W. P. Seahorn with 75 and Weldon Maness with 46.

In the commissioner's race for Precinct 3, incumbent Jack Williams beat his opponent, Ted M. Lewis, by a count of 274 to 174.

Crockett County voters gave District Attorney Dixon Mahon a resounding vote of confidence. Mahon polled 1,177 votes, while his opponent, Fort Stockton attorney Charles Prock, only received 187. Mahon also won in the district.

A write-in vote for Democratic Chairman for the county gave John R. Hunnicutt, local rancher, a clear-cut majority over Robert Flores, county employee. Hunnicutt received 341 votes to Flores' 68. There were other scattered write-ins.

Luis Martinez, another county employee, got 58 write-in votes to become Democratic Precinct Chairman for Precinct 1, while Buster Deaton polled a majority of the write-in votes in Precinct 3 to get the job. He received 17 votes.

Votes for precinct chairman in Precincts 2 and 4 were scattered with several tied for the post in both polling places. The outcome had not been settled at press time.

County votes in the race for United States Senator went to former Senator Ralph Yarborough, 552, and Barefoot Sanders, 429. Other candidates and votes were Alfonso Veloz, 138; Hugh Wilson, 106, and Thomas Cartledge, 53.

O. C. Fisher ran unopposed for U. S. Representative, District 21, receiving 784 votes.

For Governor, Dolph Briscoe, Uvalde rancher, received the majority of the Crockett County vote, polling 782. His opponent in the June 3, run-off, Frances Farenthold, received 251 votes to come in second. Governor Preston Smith and Lt. Governor Ben Barnes had poor showings with 163 and 128 votes respectively.

For Lt. Governor Bill Hobby and Wayne Connally ran well ahead of the pack as in the rest of the state. Hobby polled 525 votes to lead the ticket and Connally had 492. The nearest to the leaders was Ralph M. Hall with 127. Other candidates in the field of eight failed to compete with the front runners.

In the Attorney General's race John Hill outpolled the incumbent Crawford Martin, 643 to 511, with the other candidate, Williams Pate receiving 34 votes.

Robert S. Calvert, the incumbent Comptroller of Public Accounts, led his six opponents with 561 votes. R. G. Pendleton was second with 157, followed by James Wilson with 128 and Dallas Blankenship with 119. The other three candidates polled well under 75 votes each.

Incumbent Jesse James led the ticket for State Treasurer with 635 votes. His nearest opponent, out of a field of six, Lauro Cruz, received 259 votes.

AND LIKE A CRAB, WE WOULD CRAWL BACKWARDS

American businessmen are acutely aware of the social, economic and environmental problems that confront our country. Despite the prophets of doom blowing their brains stockpiling accusations against industry — and whose only contribution toward a solution is like a crab, to crawl backwards — modern management is busy picking priorities, weighing alternatives, seeking answers with the broadest possible applications for the common good.

While the disaster lobby sits waiting for a return to "cave and candle," there is a growing "dynamic center," according to American Can Company's Chairman and President William F. May in a recent address before the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, which "has made poverty a matter of conscience and public policy — not an accepted way of life." It is teaching students that "lending a creative hand will turn out to be a lot more fulfilling than copping out." The dynamic center recognizes "the idiot left and the maniac right" are just as much of a nuisance in science, research, sociology and economics as they are in politics.

"We are the first society in all the world in which the majority is not poor and I suggest that the sense of private responsibility that built this uniqueness represents the most significant revolution the world has ever seen," declared American Can's chief executive. In order to maintain this "uniqueness" we must maintain America's "can do" tradition. We must "sharpen our critical faculties and stop believing everything we hear." We must "put our managers to work evolving new structures to tackle our problems." We must "set our scientists and technologists to work, with the resources they need, to develop safer chemicals for agriculture, and better methods of non-polluting transportation, and better techniques for the recycling or re-use of resources. We will get them to work on breeder reactors and hopefully controlled fusion energy sources and all the other innovative developments that can improve the quality of life."

A certain romantic aura surrounds the idea of "cave and candle." But we think it wouldn't last. There are not enough natural caves to go around, and digging new ones with a piece of shale or a pointed stick would be horribly hard work, much too hard for most of the forecasters of doom. Somewhere, we think some enterprising caveman — out of dim tribal memory or some vision of a brave new world — would re-invent the bulldozer. Then with cave, candle, and bulldozer, we would be on our way once more!

The American's Creed

The American's Creed was written in 1918 by William Tyler Page, as the winning nationwide contest entry. The then Mayor of Baltimore, James H. Preston, donated the $1,000 award. "I believe in the United States of America as a Government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign Nation of many sovereign States; a perfect union, one and inseparable, established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its Constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag; and to defend it against all enemies."

Mrs. Tom Cameron and daughters, Bonnie and Katy, of Waco, were here last week visiting relatives. Mrs. Cameron is the former June Bunger.

Notes From a Newcomer

OZONA, THE SHADY CITY

Shady with trees, that is.

There's nothing shady about our law enforcement, or our business practices, or our morals. What's shady is our streets, and our parks, and our homes. These are shaded by large, tall, beautiful pecan trees.

Do you know what is the State Tree of Texas? The Pecan.

Which tree gives a fine shade and produces a fine crop of nuts each fall? The Pecan.

To all who will take the trouble to harvest them, pecans are free in Ozona from the lofty mature trees in the square at the center of the city. Help yourself. First come, First served.

These shade trees obligingly shed their leaves to let the sun thru in winter, when we want the sun for warmth.

Yes, at this time of year, it's Ozona, The Shady City.

This summer, when it gets too hot for you in Florida, or Arizona, or California, come stay with us.

You'll enjoy the shade in our SHADY CITY!

Ozona Entries Win Places In State Meet

Bad luck plagued the Lion Track Team at the State Meet in Austin last Friday, but they managed two sixth places, and most will be back next year for another try.

David Sewell placed sixth in the high hurdles with a time of 15 flat.

Mike Wellman was running at the top in the intermediate hurdles when he hit a hurdle and crossed into an opponent's lane, and was disqualified.

The Mile Relay team won a sixth place in spite of having the anchor man Gerald Huff knocked off the track and onto the football field by an opponent. Until the mishap they were in second place.

The 440-Relay Team drew the inside lane and were forced to run in water ankle-deep, cutting its chance to place to zero.

OUTDOORS IN TEXAS

By Vera Sanford

A female brown will deposit something like 50,000 eggs. For some unknown reason their percentage of survival seems to be higher than any other fish.

There are many members of this particular family, some are called blue gills. Others are referred to as pumpkinseed, redear, perch or brown. All are found in a "fadion."

They'll stand your back, however and the larger game fish might nibble on; and some will over-populate any body of water.

Perch grow rapidly—up to a point. Some of them get large enough to be good "frying size." But, most of them never get larger than good "outdoor bait."

They'll hit on anything and many times will find a bass fisherman.

A brown or perch usually is the first fish caught by a child.

These fish are eaten with live worms or small lizards, usually while fishing off a dock. They can be found in swamps around most lakes. They also play around the edge of big dams, or against high, rocky cliffs.

Scarcely every lake in Texas has a few fatling bass, barge or marlin, with well made, wavy scales like a fish. These are very popular with women, children, the elderly and especially among those without boats.

Some of these anglers fish only for perch. Others fish for bass. Most of them try to get a big worm down thru the concentration, to where there might be a larger fish, such as a cat or black bass. No telling what you'll land.

"Frying fishing for perch." You bet! It's the world of fun. Some give for ultra light tackle. Great sport!

One of the best bass fishermen in Texas likes to tie a very small jig to about a foot of monofilament, back of a small spinner or lure, and has it against a light rock cliff. When it falls into the water the perch fight for it. Occasionally a bass will enter the fray and the angler comes up with a good fish.

In East Texas there are real brown fishermen. They are after nothing but large brown or crappie.

They use a cane pole about 10 feet long, with a line shorter than the pole and with a couple of small hooks. They bait these hooks, then move their square-end boats around from one tree trunk to another, catching the worms (or crappie) at the base of the tree. If there is a large brown or crappie present, it is a sure catch.

This type of fishing is an art within itself. It is known as "cutting."

Using a short-handled paddle, swinging it through the water in a figure-eight movement, the angler guides his boat from one old tree to another.

This is real fishing in such places as Galveston, Lake of the Pines, Miram, Bayou and many other East Texas impoundments.

Although it has many homes, the perch is a good "frying fish." It should be cleaned, scaled, gutted in most and then cooked in the hottest grease possible until crispy brown.

When small perch are cooked and brown, most of the bones break easily. Then they can be eaten with no danger of swallowing one.

When you tackle some of those hard-to-get or distinctive-size red snappers—at the dinner table—along with a few slices of homemade onion and bread pudding, you have a meal that needs no dessert.

Some fishermen say "burrhead for the perch"—others about indignantly "to look with the perch." Nevertheless, there's not a good fisherman today who can't look back on his boyhood with fond memory of these very active little pests.

There have been many letters circulated by my opponent that were untrue. Anything that I have to say to the voters of Precinct 1 will be published in the paper or on the radio. Anything you may hear otherwise is untrue. I will continue to represent all the people of Precinct 1.

Play At Your Own Risk

Eddie and the corner grocer were boon companions. Often, when business was slow, the two men would engage in friendly scuffling around the store. One day, the grocer shoved Eddie a little too vigorously. Eddie lost his footing, fell against the counter, and cracked two ribs. That ended their friendship. In short order, Eddie sued the grocer for damages on grounds of assault and battery. But a court turned him down, saying his claim was barred by the doctrine of "assumption of risk." This doctrine has wide application in all kinds of playful and recreational activities. "One who takes part in a sport," said one court, "accepts the dangers that are obvious and necessary, just as a fencer accepts the risk of a thrust by his antagonist."

Most often, the doctrine has been applied in golf. Thus: A golfer shanked an iron shot, and his ball struck another player standing far to the right. Admittedly, he had not yelled "Fore!" before taking his swing. Nevertheless, he could not fairly have foreseen danger to anyone so far out of range. Result: a court ruled that the victim should not collect damages. The court said this was the kind of risk he had assumed by going onto a golf course in the first place. But the doctrine does not apply to risks that are not "natural" to the sport—that are due instead of somebody's misconduct.

In another case two fishermen were sitting in a rowboat when one, trying to make a backward cast, hooked his companion in the cheek. Sued later for damages, he sought refuge in the doctrine of assumption of risk. "Accidents," he said, "will happen."

But the court said accidents like this will not happen if fishermen are reasonably careful with their hooks. The victim had not assumed a risk, said the court, that was preventable by plain common sense.
