Kitty's Korner

By Kitty Montgomery

Webworms are rearing their ugly heads again, or should I say spinning their ugly webs again? At any rate, they are springing up all over town and don't seem to discriminate.

It's sort of hopeless to have your trees sprayed unless the entire neighborhood follows suit. This is especially true on our beautiful tree-lined streets where trees all intermingle. What with the wind and the togetherness, as soon as the spray dries new worms take up occupancy.

The city of Del Rio thinks it has the problem licked. In the past few years they have had webworms in epidemic proportions. Recently the authorities began subsidizing the spraying of webworms, and the spraying is carried out systematically. Tree owners pay $1 per tree for each spraying and the governing body pays for spraying owner-less trees. In this manner, the spraying can be done at the proper time, and infested areas can all be sprayed in the interval.

We came up with an idea something like that last year for Ozona, but never were able to get the message across to the proper authorities.

We were well-blessed with letters to the editor this week, and I must say very pleased. You will notice one from a former Ozonan on the energy crisis, and he certainly has a point. Although politicians and oil companies are at odds over the cause, there is no doubt about the reality.

I can't help but wonder if government meddling has not done as much to bring about the crisis as ecology freaks have. For instance, all new cars have emission controls etc., which cut gas mileage to practically nothing, in the name of "clean air." Auto makers were forced by law to install these devices.

If this really cleaned up the environment one could see the point. However, for every gas-eating, emission-controlled new car, you see an old clunker spewing smoke and fumes and behind it, a huge truck belching clouds of black smoke. So what's the point? I don't know.

I do know one thing. The President's voluntary cut-back on fuel use is obviously being ignored. The traffic in front of this office (Hwy. 290) is tremendous, often looking like a California freeway. And well over half the tourists are pulling trailers, boats, another vehicle or are driving a mobile home.

County Plays Important Role In Petroleum Production In 1972

The petroleum industry in Crockett County played a significant role in 1972 in helping to satisfy the unprecedented demand for Texas' crude oil and natural gas.

Crockett was one of 190 of Texas' 254 counties which produced oil and gas valued in excess of $100,000 in a record production year for the state's No. 1 industry, according to figures compiled by the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association.

Bill King Completes Air Force Training

Specialist Billy J. King a 1971 graduate of Ozona High School, has successfully completed airborne training at 8th Infantry Division Airborne Academy at Wiesbaden, Germany. Specialist King was one of 81 graduates of the 165 volunteers who began the training. Training involved instruction in the areas of parachuting hazards and malfunctions, directing the parachute on descent and physical training which includes progressive running up to 8 miles.

Specialist King was required to qualify in the areas of parachute landing falls, and aircraft exits using a 34 foot high "aircraft simulator" as a training aid.

Four Ozona Men Enlist In Army

Four soldiers from Ozona, were among 170 young men who enlisted as a unit between home games of a San Antonio Brewers doubleheader last month.

They are: Privates Rogelio T. Garza, 19, and Ramon Garza, 18, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Fermin A. Garza, 157 Santa Rosa. Private Rene D. Tambunga, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Renal M. Tambunga, Santa Rosa St., and Private Americo M. Tambunga Jr., 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Americo Tambunga, 149 Santa Rosa St.

Five regular Army units combined to sponsor the Alamo Platoon in one of the largest enlistment ceremonies in Army history. The young men were afforded all the options of current recruiting benefits even though they were sworn in as a group.

The ceremony and several demonstrations and displays were witnessed by more than 6,700 people.

the state in the value of petroleum produced, $50.9 million. The sale of crude oil brought $27.6 million; natural gas $23.3 million.

But despite this record year, due in large part to nine months of production at 100-percent of the maximum efficient rate, the nation's largest producer of petroleum could not produce enough to satisfy demand.

"To further stimulate production, we need a restoration of the open market force," said Robert A. Buschman of San Antonio, president of the Association.

"This would produce two much-needed effects: First, it would channel the state's petroleum products to the most efficient and highest priority uses; second, it would help provide part of the capital needed so desperately to build refineries and support and to carry on expensive exploration and production activities," Buschman added.

This study by the Association also shows that production last year in Crockett County resulted in the payment of $6.4 million to royalty owners.

The state of Texas received $3 million in production taxes from county wells; $1.3 million on crude oil output and $1.7 million from natural gas production.

Oil and gas producers and developers spent $4.3 million drilling 62 wells in the county last year, with $649,000 of that figure lost in 17 dry holes. According to the Texas Employment Commission, 150 oil and gas industry employees worked in the county in 1972 and shared a payroll of $1 million.

Processing plants also added to the county's economy. Six natural gas processing plants with a total daily capacity of 163 million cubic feet, according to the "Oil and Gas Journal."

Ozona All Stars To Sonora Monday Nite

The Ozona All-Stars will play Sonora Monday evening at 8:30 in the Sonora Little League Park.

After a week of practice, team manager Jamie Pagan says the Ozona Stars have a good chance to take the first all star game. He is most impressed with the hitting and fielding of the Ozona team. "If there is a team weakness," Pagan says, "it would have to be in the pitching."

Pagan has been working with the team the past week along with coach Don Yeager. The starting line-up is not certain, but boys on the team will see action in the following positions:

Jeff Hill, catcher; Danny Sewell, pitching and infield; Shane Fenton, pitching and infield; Freddie Garza, outfield; Jeffrey Young, infield; Rojelio Longoria, pitching and outfield; Larry McMan, catching; Gary Yeager, outfield; Jose Rebelez, infield; Chad Buie will be out of town during the first two games and will be replaced by first alternate P. G. Fikes who will see action in the outfield; Joel Sanchez, infield and pitching; Joey Borrego, catching and outfield; Gilbert Gomez, outfield.

The winner of the game will play Big Lake in Big Lake July 19.

Ozona Cancer Donation In Research Grant

Joan Nicholas, chairman of the Crockett County Cancer Crusade, received word this week that the $1,500 gift, donated anonymously each year by an Ozona family, will go toward a fellowship for cancer research.

The money will go toward a specific research project this year, being included in the $3,600 grant awarded to James B. Goodman, M.D. at Baylor University Medical Center in Dallas.

Dr. Goodman, a native of Waco, will be making an immunologic evaluation of cervical lesions with regard to diagnosis and treatment. The local unit will receive periodic reports on the progress of this particular project.

Three Ozona FFA Members At State Convention

Three members of the Ozona Future Farmers of America Chapter are attending the State FFA convention in Fort Worth this week. The convention is based on the theme "FFA - United Youth with Opportunities."

David Bean will be the voting delegate of the Ozona Chapter. Other members attending are Vince Huffman and Bill Bissett, along with V. A. instructor Jim Leech.

go along with the Lockett Pool, Powell field, the old county barn and the Little League park. Contract for the construction of IH 10 through Ozona has not been let, but clearing of the right of way continues at a rapid pace.

Commissioners To Build Roof On Rodeo Stands

During the regular meeting of the Crockett County Commissioners Court Monday, the court agreed to build a roof over the grandstand at the rodeo arena.

Oscar Kost and Bill Watson met with the court and requested the roof. They informed the court that the Lions Club, the Ozona Horse Club and the Ozona Roping Club would raise $3,500 toward the project. Estimated cost is around $6,000.

Regular monthly reports were received and approved.

County Judge Troy Williams reported receiving another federal revenue sharing check in the amount of $23,747. The money will be placed in a certificate of deposit until needed for nursing home construction.

The county auditor was directed to request bids for replacements of two autos for the Sheriff's Department.

Jack Williams asked the court to install lights for the new tennis courts west of the draw. His request was approved.

The road department was instructed to begin paving streets and driveways in the city.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS A FIREMAN - B. W. Stuart is congratulated by Fire Chief Dorris Haire and the presentation of an engraved pen set is admired. The set is a gift from members of the Ozona Volunteer Fire Department commemorating Stuart's 25 year's service with the Department. The only other 25-year man is Bill Cooper.

On Counting Blessings

Everyone should occasionally count his blessings. We who live in Ozona should especially count them, one by one.

The thought is inspired by reading in the Big Lake Wildcat that the Reagan County Water Supply District has reduced its tax rate from 20 cents on the $100 valuation to 17 cents. The water district taxes are collected by the county tax office and are shown as a separate item on the tax statement.

Crockett County Water Control and Improvement District No. 1 is the comparable agency in this county. The District has been in existence since 1941 and has never levied a tax to support its operations. The eligible voters in the district have voted revenue bonds to support the system's expansion--including the sewer system which is operated by the district. These bonds have been retired at maturity without exception. And, incidentally, voters have approved without exception every such bond issue proposed by the District's board of directors.

With such bond-generated funds the District has provided a fine equalizing water distribution system for the town of Ozona that equals or exceeds any comparable system in the state. The city's water supply comes from nine deep wells from which the system can reach the peak demand point of 1,900,000 gallons of water daily. Three elevated storage tanks have a reserve capacity of 800,000 gallons of water in case of emergency. Although it is called on to supply a rapidly growing city, the water system has never faltered, never rationed water use, and never called on its customers to cut down on water use because of shortage.

A lot of the credit for the smooth, efficient operation of the water and sewer system must go to the dedicated men who have served on the District's board of directors through the years, and more to the capable management of W. D. (Bill) Cooper, who has been the district's manager for 30 of its 32 years of existence.

All of which is by way of developing the original theme--let's count our blessings. There are a great many more that might be pointed out but sufficient it is to point with pride to the fact that Ozona is not incorporated and thus is spared the cost as well as the restrictions of a city government while enjoying all the conveniences of government and governmental services that could possibly be enjoyed under a city government. And some mighty fine folk composing the town's population make it all possible.

WEW

The Dollar

The continuing fall of the dollar abroad has reached the stage where a major effort is necessary, in Washington, to bolster confidence in the American currency.

In rejecting appeals of foreign nations that it intervene to buy dollars in the world's money markets, Washington has, in effect, expressed confidence in the dollar. That is well and good, except that no one else has expressed confidence in it.

And as long as the U.S. trade balance remains in the red (the deficit is decreasing but the trade net is still in the red) the world must be convinced that Washington will actively and effectively support and defend the dollar, and can do so.

A Phase-Four economic program that obviously means business is a must, a program that will guarantee stability in the near future. Continued limiting spending is another must. An improved trade balance is a must. Presidential action of a special nature, such as limiting exports, might become necessary. Other special measures should be considered now, so that they might be adopted quickly if need be.

The value and stability of the nation's money is of vital importance all over the world, and at home. The dollar has taken a very bad beating in the world's money markets for so long the process cannot be allowed to continue, less all confidence in it be lost, and no one can accurately predict what the resulting panic might bring, not only to America but to other nations of the world.

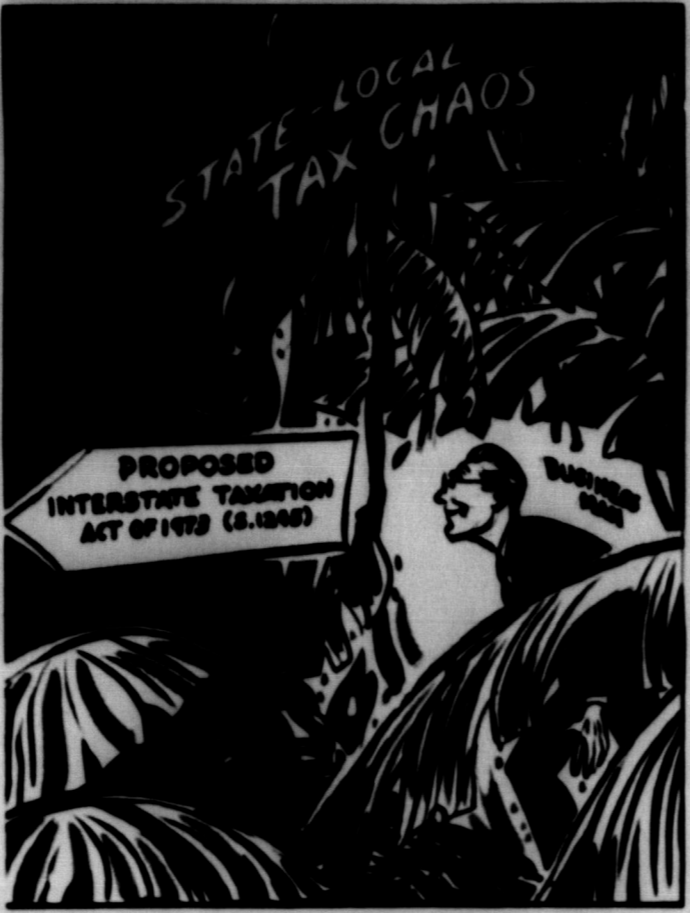

Tourists-A Limit

Not many years ago enterprising promoters discovered a financial bonanza in tourism. As airlines became capable of moving masses of travelers swiftly to all points of the globe, more and more communities, American states and governments went in for tourism in a big way.

Since people everywhere have in recent years had more leisure and money than ever before, fortunes have thus been made in the tourist business. In more recent years, however, some have begun to realize that even a good thing has limits. Many western states have put out the word they want no more tourists. Florida is also now acutely congested in winter.

Now word comes from London that many officials in greater London want an end to promotion to bring more tourists to London. Objections are raised on the grounds that taxpayers' money is being spent to bring in more and more tourists when facilities and accommodations to handle them are already overtaxed.

Mass tourist influxes, like influxes of new residents, are not always blessings. More enlightened communities are therefore moving to insure adequate planning in both resort and permanent growth areas; this will mean a limit on both new housing units and motel units in many cases, necessary if the interests and welfare of permanent residents, and of the community itself, are to be safeguarded.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR:

Dear Kitty,
I admire your good old Texas attitude of the current events, and was amazed at the editorial "The Gas Shortage."

For the past decade, the oil industry, independents and majors, have warned of the impending energy shortage. Politicians refused to acknowledge our problem.

Last winter, for the first time in my memory, fuel supplies ran ominously low. From Denver to Des Moines, schools closed for lack of heat, factories and schools were rationed here in Texas. As a result, the refineries were going at 100% capacity. Hence, when the summer demand came, the gasoline reserves were at an all time low.

No large refineries have been built for the past two years. Why? The urge for clean environment has complicated matters even further. Clean air laws, for instance, forbid the burning of oil and coal of high sulphur content. As a result, much available fuel cannot be used in many localities.

Insisting on environmental safeguards, that even environmentalists cannot agree upon, groups through legal and lobby pressure have delayed such projects as the Alaska pipeline and nuclear power plants, further limiting our domestic energy sources.

"Environmental and energy demands are on a collision course," sums up S. David Freeman of the Ford Foundation.

The United States has only 6% of the world population, but consumes almost one-third of its energy output. Gasoline demands are greater than ever. More cars on the road and pollution equipment required by law, has lowered our gas mileage to about one-half what it was 10 years ago. Remember when no one bragged of getting 18 to 20 miles per gallon?

I think the oil industry is going to keep us warm and our cars running. I have faith in America's ingenuity.

Lets get the panic out of ecology, and work with the energy industry.

Thanks for your time and give my regards to all my friends in Ozona.

Dear Mrs. Montgomery,
Mr. Claude Denham of Lubbock shared his June 28 issue of The Ozona Stockman with me. I especially enjoyed your story on the dedication of the Historical Marker at Emerald. It is wonderful that people are becoming increasingly interested in learning about and preserving the history of their home areas.

Thank you for the space devoted to the story on the restoration of the picket and sotol house at the Ranch Headquarters. The Ranch Headquarters Association is indeed grateful for the interest of the Suttors and others in Crockett County. We hope the Ranch Headquarters is the place where we can put it all together to tell the history of the ranching industry.

If you are in Lubbock any weekend in the summer, we would be happy to have you visit the Ranch Headquarters on either Saturday or Sunday, 2 to 4 p.m., and see the progress that is being made. The annual meeting of the Ranch Headquarters Assn. will be held in Lubbock on Saturday, October 6, we would like to have you with us.

Sincerely,
Mrs. J. E. Blakey,

THE FAMILY LAWYER
Attractive Nuisances

When children come to visit, chances are you feel a sense of responsibility for their safety. But suppose a child comes onto your premises without permission--or, perhaps, when you are not even home. Could you be held legally liable in case he gets hurt?

Indeed you can, under the "attractive nuisance doctrine" now in force in most states. This doctrine says you may be responsible for having something hazardous on your property that a child is not likely to see and avoid.

As the name implies, the hazard must be one which youngsters would ordinarily find attractive.

You may be assured that his hard work and dedication will be written into the History of good government as it concerns this past session of the Legislature. I only hope that people throughout this state will be appreciative of the accomplishments and hard work that he and the entire committee have achieved.

I truly hope that the committee has served and will continue to serve agriculture to the best of its ability as we continue into the future in the legislative process.

It has been a pleasure to work with Hilary and the other members of the committee in the pursuit of good and beneficial legislation in the agricultural area this past session of the legislature. Let us hope that we shall be able to work together toward this end for many years to come.

The court said they should have realized, with a hazard so alluring to children, that they were inviting trouble.

Furthermore, the thing must be not only attractive but also a nuisance--that is, faulty in some way.

In another case, a boy was injured when he fell off an old couch in a neighbor's garage. But there was nothing wrong with the couch. It was therefore not an attractive nuisance, a court ruled later, and the homeowner did not have to pay damages.

Of course, the age of the victim is an important element in the situation. Courts have frequently turned down claims of children over 12, saying they were old enough to have recognized and avoided the particular hazard that brought them to grief.

Nor does the law expect a home owner to spend major sums of money to clear away minor dangers. It is not his duty, as one judge put it, to make his premises "child proof."

Tennis Boycott

Quite a flap erupted at this year's Wimbledon tennis tournament when male tennis stars voted to boycott the famed event because tournament officials banned a Yugoslav player who had the sympathy of the players.

Tennis pros are now organized into professional groups, thus are able to throw some weight around. And in the case of the player banned at Wimbledon, perhaps the players were right, in insisting he was innocent.

Nevertheless, the main point is that tournament officials should be allowed to run their tournaments. The players, many of whom now profit handsomely from lucrative meets, cannot attempt to decide on the many individual problems which arise at each tennis tournament throughout the world.

Baseball players have recently damaged their game's image by striking and threatening to strike and now come tennis players with their refusal to play. Sports fans in general think these professional athletes live a wonderful, lucrative life. Too much wielding of organized power, too many strikes and use of union-like tactics, will almost certainly dim their glow in the eyes of the average fan.

Holmes' Room

The fans of Sherlock Holmes, that matchless detective who captured the hearts of mystery readers all over the world, will be sorry to learn that his private room in a Swiss castle, maintained by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's son until three years ago, is to be moved.

Some of the collection of Sir Arthur has been sold to a Swiss antique dealer, though the items associated with his literary career and Holmes' sitting room are being retained by the Sir Arthur Conan Doyle Foundation.

The Foundation, headed by the wife of Sir Arthur's late son, plans to find new quarters for Holmes' sitting room furnishings (221-B Baker Street). Until now one could visit the Baker Street address at the Chateau de Lucens.

It's inconceivable that the Baker Street sitting room would be lost to the literary world. What would Dr. Watson think about that?

Washington News Letter

Webtacks and Bracers. A news item from Mexico City says that country, plagued with unemployment and explosive population growth, will open talks with U.S. authorities in July, seeking a new system of contract labor not unlike the one abandoned by Washington at the end of 1964, under which hundreds of thousands of Mexicans entered this country annually to help harvest crops and work on ranches.

Under that "bracero" program workers were admitted under contract, in labor shortage areas and at prevailing wage rates, so certified by the Secretary of Labor. By thus legalizing the workers and providing insurance and minimal housing, the braceros were duly accounted for and their whereabouts always known. With that workable arrangement in effect, webtacks were kept to a minimum.

But labor unions raised such a ruckus about the program it was scrapped by Congress 7 years ago. As a result, webtacks poured across the border and the tempo of the influx turned into an avalanche. The dike was broken and illegal aliens spread out over much of the country.

Let us hope the proposed return of the bracero program will not be opposed by those whose policies helped bring about the present deplorable conditions.

In the meantime, the Congress is about to enact a law to make it a criminal offense to employ an illegal alien. Of doubtful constitutionality this proposal would impose an unfair burden on employers and make it difficult for many legitimate and deserving Mexican-Americans to obtain jobs.

In case severe hot weather, worries readers of this newspaper, concerning sunstroke or heat prostration, we call attention to a few symptoms.

Sunstroke offers ample warning--including headache, nausea and a dry skin. Heat prostration cautions us with a pallor, feeble heart action and subnormal temperature.

Over-exertion in hot weather is dangerous, as is over-eating. Excess sugar and fat should be avoided. Cool water, not iced, is recommended, as are light clothes and frequent baths.

ASU Summer Registration is Monday

Registration for the second summer term at Angelo State University in San Angelo will be held Monday, July 16. Students who have pre-registered for their summer classes will pay their fees and make schedule changes between 8 a. m. and 11 a. m. that day with other students signing up for their classes after 11 a. m. Registration for day students will be conducted in the physical education building.

Those taking evening courses only will sign up for their classes also on Monday from 6 to 7 p. m. in the registrar's office.

Classes for the second term will begin on Tuesday, July 17 with finals and summer commencement planned for Friday, August 17.

New Nut Product Now On Market

A new imitation nut product on the market is a blend of wheat germ, milk protein and vegetable oil similar in texture and flavor to pecans and black walnuts.

It's selling at about half the price of natural nutmeats, according to Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"Test markets indicate consumer acceptance of this new product not only because of lower price, but also because supply will be available upon demand, unrestricted by growing conditions," she added.

Mrs. J. J. Marley recently returned from an extended tour of Europe.

Be On Lookout For Carpet Beetles

Carpet beetles like a warm home complete with furs, feathers, wool fabrics, lint, stuffed animals and stored food.

The larvae of the tiny beetles damage home furnishings, fabrics and most clothing, points out Dr. Phil Hamman, entomologist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. They may also infest peppers, cereals, cake mixes and stored grains.

Carpet beetle larvae may be found behind baseboards, molding and radiators and in floor cracks, corners, clothing and dresser drawers.

The Texas A&M University entomologist recommends the home vacuum cleaner as the best control tool. Thoroughly clean upholstered furniture, carpets and carpet pads, especially under and on top of carpet edges. Remove lint that has accumulated in furnace vents, floor cracks, corners and behind baseboards.

Regular dry cleaning of clothing is important to prevent carpet beetle damage. Dry cleaners often provide mothproofing as a service. A moth-proofing spray may also be used.

RECIPE

By Sarah Anne Sheridan
Mothers with school age children have a serious assignment to provide youngsters with the right food for growth and vitality--especially during summer vacation.

Orange & Prune Mold
1 package orange gelatin
1 c boiling water
1 c orange juice
10 cooked prunes
Grated American Cheese

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Cool and add orange juice. Remove pits from prunes and fill cavities with grated cheese. Place in bottom of individual molds or custard cups, cut sides down. Add gelatin mixture and chill until firm.

Date Wheat Bars

1 1/2 c brown sugar
3 eggs, well beaten
1/4 t salt
1/2 t vanilla
1 c whole wheat flour
1 c nuts chopped
1/2 c pitted dates chopped

Add sugar gradually to eggs, beating well after each addition. Add salt, vanilla, flour, nuts, and dates. Pour into two 7x11 inch greased pans. Bake in an oven 325 degrees about 25 minutes.

Store cleaned woolens in an air-tight closet or container and intersperse with crystals of paradichlorobenzene (PDB) or with naphthalene (moth balls), according to label directions. Most cedar chests and cedar closets, without chemicals, are ineffective against carpet beetles, notes the entomologist.

For spot treatments in the home, treat surfaces with two percent chlordane, .5 percent diazinon, .5 percent dichlorvos (Vapona), three percent malathion (premium grade) or three percent methoxychlor.

Do not use these insecticides on clothing or furniture and use only for surface spraying on rugs and carpets, cautions Hamman.

You are invited . . . to good times, good food

. . . in your own backyard with an outdoor gas grill and gas light. You can cook up a party at a moment's notice, because a gas grill is ready to cook in minutes. And it's so easy to cook on because you can control the heat. With a gas grill there's no charcoal mess, and you still get that delicious, outdoor char-broiled flavor that comes from the smoke of meat juices dripping on permanent ceramic briquets.

Besides the good times you'll have cooking out, you enjoy the convenience of having a gas grill. You'll probably find yourself cooking on it just because you wanted to get out of the kitchen or didn't want to mess up the broiler of your kitchen range.

Tips For Gardeners

From the Ozona Garden Club by Mrs. Bailey Post

One of our major garden problems is the baking of the top soil into a crust which keeps watering or summer rains from penetrating deeply around the root zone. When the surface begins to bake and crack, loosen the soil with a small hand rake, and add more humus to the top soil. This will keep the surface open and mellow.

For fall color, plant seeds of such quick growing annual bedding plants as ageratum, balsam, cosmos, marigold and zinnia.

Biennials may be sown now to relieve the monotony of annuals, and bring a wider variety of flowers form and color to beds, borders and rock gardens. Some of these are Canterbury bells, foxglove, sweet William, English daisies, violas, forget-me-nots, wall flowers and pansies.

Your hanging baskets should be ready to fill voids in your summer landscape to create a delightful picture of color and interest. Because of water requirements, they are usually more successful where located in the shade and not exposed to the hot sun. Plants that are suitable for sun include marigolds, periwinkle, petunias, mums, verbena, salvia and lantana.

If you have a houseplant called "rabbit tracks" or "prayer plants" (maranta) and it is not doing well, trim off all browned leaves to base of plant, keep out of direct sunlight and do not over water it. Soak the soil thoroughly when you do water, and don't rewater until the soil is dry again. Your plant should put on many new leaves.

Prolong the bearing of your beans, okra, cucumbers, egg plants, peppers, squash, tomatoes and other vegetables by harvesting frequently. If seeds within such vegetables are allowed to ripen and mature. These plants will either quit bearing entirely, or slow down production.

You people with vegetable gardens should be enjoying the fresh produce and beat the high price of vegetables at this time.

Poor communication can cause misunderstandings between adults and children. Just because a child doesn't respond immediately to something you've said, don't accuse him of ignoring orders. He or she hasn't heard or may not understand what you are saying. Many youth develop an ability to shut out conflicting or undesirable noises. For example, they can get their lessons done despite a loud radio or record player. Therefore, parents and teachers should determine whether they've also been "tuned out."

Adults wishing to improve a child's listening ability may utilize the following suggestions. Minimize misunderstandings--make sure conditions favor good communication.

--Touch the child with a friendly hand on the shoulder or arm. --Gain his attention by speaking his name clearly and distinctly. Wait for the child to respond before continuing the conversation. --Look him "in the eye" when speaking. If he's small, get on his eye level. --Speak in a quiet voice.

Children are a product of their experiences--if adults yell to gain attention, youngsters learn to do the same. --Discuss mutual interests. --Pay attention when the child talks. --Follow up family trips, outings and activities with "give-and-take" conversations.

Children respond favorably when parents and other adults care enough to listen to them. This fosters self-respect, as well as respect for others. Sharing an experience together is the surest way to strengthen a relationship. Later, there will be "good old times" and fond memories to talk about. Make an inexpensive suntan lotion at home:

SUNTAN LOTION

3/4 cup boiling water
3 tea bags
1/2 cup sesame seed oil
1/2 cup lanolin

Steep tea bags in boiling water for 20 minutes (do not use instant tea). Heat oils over hot water, in double boiler. Slowly add tea to oils while mixing with electric mixer. A few drops of perfume may be added.

Looks like a jumbled mass of wires, doesn't it? But to experienced fingers, each line has a meaning, and by plugging the right cord in the right place, a miracle in communication is established. Much in life seems hopelessly jumbled. Yet so many of our problems can be solved if we cut through the maze of our personal "tangled wires" and get to the heart of the matter. To do this, we need to know what is essential and what is non-essential. We need a sense of values. In this complicated age, it is hard to simplify things. It is difficult to grasp and understand those basic precepts which have always endured and which will serve us in the years to come. Go to the church of your choice next Sunday. Listen with open ears, mind, and heart. It may mark the beginning of a new, uncluttered channel of communication for you.

Beef cattle producers will have an opportunity to receive a complete package of information on more profitable beef cattle production through pastures and forages at Texas A&M University Aug 20 and 21.

The occasion is the 23rd Annual Beef Cattle Short Course and the 8th Annual Pasture and Forage Short Course, held together this year for the first time.

The combined short course will be directed to "increasing beef cattle profit opportunities with forage," says Dr. Dennis Herd, beef cattle specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Herd is serving as coordinator of the combined short course which will

Trans-Pecos Antelope On The Increase

Austin--The antelope population in Texas' Trans-Pecos area has shown a healthy increase, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologists, but antelope in the Permian Basin haven't fared so well.

In the nine-county Trans-Pecos area, adult antelope buck numbers are up by six to seven percent, and doe numbers are up by 11 to 12 percent.

But in the Permian Basin, the population has dropped by 13 percent and biologists are blaming poor range conditions. Trans-Pecos biologists say with normal reproduction the antelope population would be the highest in 20 years--more than 12,000 animals.

Permian Basin biologists are hoping fawn production there will offset this year's drop in the number of animals. Biologists counted 2,800 antelope in the Permian Basin last year.

Mrs. Bud Harrison, Nikki Harrison, Stacy Dockery, Richard Harrison and Ricky Perry are spending the week in Rudosa, N. M. be held at the Ramada Inn across from the A&M campus.

According to Herd, special emphasis will be given to forage since it is the most economic source of nutrients for cattle. Discussions will highlight both effective production and efficient utilization in year-round forage programs.

Headlining the list of speakers will be Dr. W. C. McCormick, head of the Department of Animal Science at the Georgia Coastal Plain Experiment Station. He has done extensive work with Coastal bermudagrass and winter forages.

Several ranchers will also be on hand to discuss grazing systems and improved forages. And Texas A&M University staff members will round out the program with a variety of discussions ranging from forage related diseases to protein supplements.

An equipment display featuring new forage harvesting machinery should also be of interest to producers, points out Herb.

Tourist traffic seems to be up over that of last year, so it's obvious that the general public is unconcerned about the energy crisis. Are we poorly informed or do we just not give a rip?

Now we are being warned of a food shortage in the near future. This is an unsettling thought in this land of plenty.

Perhaps when we are without energy to heat and cool our homes and to drive our air-conditioned cars and find only the bare necessities on the shelves at our grocery stores, we will take time to ponder our past good fortune.

It might even be good for us. Without energy for electricity, families might have to talk to each other instead of watch television. Instead of going off each in his own car, we might all travel together again. Being uncomfortably hot in the summer and sliding between cold sheets in the winter might toughen us. No we won't like it, but still it might be good for us.

Are you renting land...

when you should be renting money?

There are many good reasons why it takes some land of your own to be sure of a future in agriculture. You're always welcome to drop by our office and talk over the advantages of taking out a long-term mortgage on farm or ranch property. Right now could be the best time for you to start using borrowed money to buy land... Instead of using your own money to rent or lease.
