Kitty's Korner

By Kitty Montgomery

Our weekend rain was just great. I thought we got at least a couple of inches, but not quiet an inch was the official measurement. Guess it had been so long since I had seen rain, I overestimated.

I think it improved everyone's disposition. With the exception, of course, of a skunk who lives at our house. We've never seen him and we can't find him, but he has a not-so-subtle way of letting us know he's around. Can't understand it either, we don't have anything around that would upset a skunk. The only thing I can possibly think of is "Tom's snoring," and that would irritate most any living thing.

The reason I think of this is the fact that he wakes us up with his presence about 4 o'clock in the morning, and that's about the heaviest snoring period for Tom during the sleeping hours. I've been waked up many times without the skunk. However, the cool rainy nights prompted us to cut off the cooler and leave all the windows up, and I guess Mr. Skunk, who seems to be sleeping right under our window, just couldn't stand the noise.

I finally got to participate in a poll. Several weeks ago I received a questionnaire from The Stop Immorality on TV Assn., filled it in and promptly forgot about it. This week I received the results.

From some 2.7 million people throughout the country who were polled, 150 thousand have responded so far.

According to the survey results, 91 percent believe TV fare is more immoral today than it was 10 years ago, while 9 percent do not; 92 percent believe that television is eroding the nation's moral fibre, while 8 percent do not, and a big 88 percent say they would favor a national boycott of products of companies that exploit sex to sell their products, while 12 percent would not.

Of course, that would mean giving up practically everything that is advertised on T-V, but it sure would make a big difference in programming of commercials.

The disclosure this week that all the President's telephone conversations were bugged "for posterity," seems to have taken the wind out of the sails of many of his critics, and it's liable to knock some pretty big holes in Mr. Dean's precise testimony. Time will tell.

Even the most rabid Nixon-hater would be hard-put to explain why the President would have his conversations taped if he had anything to hide.

Weekend Rainfall Is Near Inch For Ozona

Although Ozona and Crockett County failed to get the enormous amounts of rain which fell in other parts of Texas over the weekend, almost an inch of rain was recorded in the official gauge at the Water District office for the two days. Saturday's rainfall amounted to .25 and Sunday's rainfall measured .72 of an inch. The rain was spotted throughout the county, with the heaviest falls reported directly south of Ozona.

The James Baggett ranch reported up to three inches of rainfall for the two day period. However, an electrical storm knocked out the telephone line to the ranch.

Only .60 of an inch of rainfall was recorded at the Glas, E. Davidson ranch, east, south-east of Ozona, and north of Ozona the John Childress ranch only reported .30 of an inch.

Reports were not available in the western part of the county, but the heaviest rainfall was measured in the south part of the county.

The rain was the first of any consequence for Ozona in three months, bringing the total for the month to 1.13 inches of moisture. This will be the first time since March that the rainfall has amounted to as much as an inch, and ranches were getting dry, due to extremely hot weather. Many grass fires have been reported in the past three months.

The weekend rain brought the total for the year to 7.57, almost 4 inches less than the total for this time last year.

The year got off to a good start as far as rainfall was concerned, with a total of 1.23 recorded for January. February added 1.88 inches of moisture, followed by March with 1.63. April showers amounted to only .77 of an inch while May turned in only .57 of an inch. The total rain fall for June was a dry .36 of an inch.

Court On School Aid

Though religious groups, primarily Roman Catholics, have succeeded in various ways in various states over the years in circumventing the Constitution to get public funds for parochial schools, the recent Supreme Court decision dooming tax reimbursement programs in effect in New York and Pennsylvania is the death knell for much subterfuge, and is welcome.

Even though politicians have often knuckled under to the political pressure, including President Nixon, who in the 1972 campaign pledged to try to help Roman Catholics get tax rebates if they sent their children to Catholic schools, any form of direct or indirect government aid to any religious school lies in the face of the First Amendment, which bars all government aid to any religion.

At first glance, the court decision and indeed the separation of church and state amendment in the Constitution seems harsh; on sober reflection, it is one of the greatest features of the American system, and the founding fathers wrote it into the Constitution so that federal monies could not be used in any way to support any religious theory, or faith. They knew, viewing the history of Europe, from which they all came, what chaos, division, inequality, discrimination and even loss of life religious squabbling had caused for centuries.

Because Roman Catholics run by far the largest church school system in America, as the largest church, and because this powerful church gets tax monies in many countries, is involved in politics and is often given exclusive and discriminatory authority in some countries, allowing church hands even indirectly in the federal treasury would mean disproportionate aid to the Roman church, its power and what it teaches. It would bolster its church schools, and others, in relation to their current position vis-a-vis the public schools.

And though financial need among the churches today makes the plea for money an appealing one if the long-term dangers are not considered, giving tax rebates or aid in other forms, to circumvent the meaning of the First Amendment, would be a possible fatal mistake for the U.S. system of non-involvement and which opens the door to innumerable future problems and divisions. It would place other private schools on a footing similar to that of the neutral, publicly supported school system. It would inevitably lead also to federal control over private schools.

Religious schools already enjoy many benefits from the state, local and federal government, some based on very shaky legal ground. They get construction funds, through a circumventing tactic, tax exemptions, book and lunch aid in many states, and transportation and other aid in many cases. The fight against the First Amendment has been waged relentlessly, in fact, for over a century by some and the chipping away process has already achieved these many highly questionable supports to religious schools.

While Catholic schools in this country in many cases could use money, it is also true that the international Catholic Church is immensely wealthy, that the disposal of its billions annually is not public information, that it naturally and logically seeks to increase its power and influence, its leaders often feeling it is the only true church; moreover it is ruled autocratically from abroad, and its leadership is, by undemocratic process, almost an Italian monopoly.

Considering all this, and seeing the results of its teaching which make so many Americans willing to violate the First Amendment, for their church (and the voting of the high court hints if there were more Catholics on that court the church interest might prevail over the Constitution), one would be indeed blind to history to favor violations giving tax monies or tax rebates to any religious organization.

Agnew's Future

Unless political conditions and political odds change, Vice President Spiro Agnew will be nominated for President by the Republican Party in 1976. Since that is the odds-on possibility, it behooves the President to do everything possible now to acquaint the Vice President with the operation and management of the executive branch, on a high level.

Such a course is only a matter of common sense, since the Vice President could become President and because he has had very little experience in government at the federal level. Mr. Agnew was Governor of Maryland only a short time before being selected to run with Mr. Nixon in 1968. He had no service as a Senator or Congressman prior to that, as did Nixon, Johnson and Kennedy before him.

Unfortunately, the younger whiz-bangs who ran the executive branch for the President for almost five years assumed and wielded almost all power in the executive branch; Mr. Agnew, though the second highest elected official of the land, has been given little authority and few vital functions.

Mr. Nixon should move now to correct this unsatisfactory situation, for the good of the Vice President, the Republican Party, and primarily the nation and its future.

Runaway Trailer

To move some household goods to the country, Watson hitched up his trailer and set out along the highway. But as he was climbing a hill the trailer broke loose, veered across the center line, and slammed into a car coming the other way.

The other driver was seriously injured, and in due course brought suit for damages. At the trial, Watson insisted that he was not to blame because "it all happened so suddenly."

But the evidence showed that the trailer hitch had a faulty weld, and that the defect had been plainly visible before the accident. Result: Watson was held liable.

Anyone who undertakes to haul a trailer on the public roads must also undertake reasonable precautions. He must exercise a degree of care commensurate with the size and speed of this extra vehicle.

Furthermore, he must conform to the special requirements—such as a "fall safe" set of chains—that may be called for by the local traffic code.

Even if a trailer does not actually break loose, it may still be dangerous because of swaying. Another driver incurred liability because his trailer, swinging from side to side, knocked down a woman walking on the shoulder of the highway.

On the other hand, not every injury inflicted by a trailer is the driver's fault. Consider another case in which a runaway trailer caused a collision. This time, the trailer came loose as a result of the shearing off of a pin in the hitching mechanism.

But there was nothing to put the driver on guard for such an eventuality—no visible defect, no prior experience to warn him of danger.

Accordingly, a court refused to make him pay damages. "The collision," said the judge, "was the result of an unavoidable accident."

TV Scripts

The Writers Guild of America recently voted to end a four-month strike against movie and television producers, accepting a new contract which allows production to resume.

Reaction to the settlement is certainly mixed. The average script on U.S. commercial television (the thirteen best channels) is so pitifully inept and puerile one wonders for what the writers are paid.

One's reaction is even further soured when it's taken into consideration that the fare we are subjected to from most of these writers is to be rewarded by higher pay. Minimum salary for a top-budget, feature-length show is now to $16,000 rather than $13,000.

Rather than a pay hike, it seems most of the TV writers deserve fines.

"Wildlife is a product of edges." This statement has long been an axiom in game management circles. Although hunters may not have thought of it in these terms, this principle is one that most of them realize instinctively.

What does it mean? Dr. J. P. Linduska of Remington Arms explains it this way. When you go hunting for cottontails (and that's legal in Texas anytime) you don't put your beagle down in the center of a cornfield, or in the middle of a dense wood. You work the hedgerows, brushpiles, and woodland borders . . . the edges.

It's the same with quail and pheasants. For every one of these birds you find out in the center of the field, you'll stir up a dozen on the borders, on the banks of ditches and just inside the thickets. Again it's the edges.

Of course the real give-away as to where game hangs out is to watch a bird dog with a couple of seasons of savvy behind him. He won't putter around in the big uniform places. He will skirt the edges of the field, the edges of the plum thickets, the edges of the orchard, and all the other edges where different types of vegetation meet.

Dr. Kinduska says "It's no mystery why game inhabit the edges. That's where they find, in close proximity, all the things necessary for a good life."

He points out that the center of a picked cornfield offers food aplenty and occasionally the birds will wander to the center. Also the center offers protection, so now and then the birds will stray in. But by far the greatest advantage to the hunter is to be found at the edges . . . since that's where the game spends most of its time.

Succinctly put "it's a matter of safety and logistics." Whether it's game or some other species of animal life it's not enough simply to have lots of food and cover. Unless they are properly distributed . . . one in relation to the other . . . the amount of wildlife an area will support will be limited well below its real potential.

That's why, other things being equal, 10 one-acre ponds will produce more ducks than one big 10-acre pond.

It's a large part of the reason, too, why the small patch farms of yore were more productive of game than the big, consolidated, Texas ranches of today.

Modern day game management strives to improve habitat partly by increasing and bettering "edge" conditions. Naturally, such a program doesn't allow for too many generalities. In a large timber stand it might well mean creating openings to insert food producing units in a uniform habitat of trees. In a large area of open fields it might call for hedgerows, or fence-row plantings of shrubs and trees to add cover to a barren landscape.

Whatever the formula, it will vary with the nature of the countryside and the type of game you want to encourage. But you can be sure that giving wildlife an edge on numbers will require, first of all, giving them an edge on which to live.

Unneeded Operations

There's much profit in surgery, and it's no secret some have indulged in excessive surgery. Now comes a report from the United Store Workers Union in New York which says getting a second doctor to give an opinion on the need for surgery revealed some 19 per cent of recommended surgery was unnecessary.

A second medical opinion was sought in the cases of 289 union members in the last year, according to the administrator of the union's health and welfare fund, and in 51 cases the individual concerned was told he or she need not, after all, undergo surgery.

The second medical opinion showed some original diagnoses incorrect and in a few cases a third medical opinion was sought.

The United Store Workers Union shows the way others can follow. Unnecessary surgery not only wastes victims' money but endangers lives and often aggravates congestion in hospitals.

In addition, it runs up the cost of medical care, for insurance companies pay many of these surgery bills, and set their rates for insurance accordingly. A second medical opinion, then, is a good precaution when surgery is recommended.

Correct Errors In Billing At Once

With so many people using credit today, the possibility of billing errors increases greatly.

"When an error occurs, a consumer may have difficulty locating the cause of error and the right person to correct it," says Mrs. Doris Myers, home management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University.

Should an error occur, the specialist offered the following steps to correct it. Notify the store immediately, informing them of the error.

Obtain the name of the person contacted, making a note of it and date contacted. This information is helpful

BOY TO CRAWFORDS

Airman and Mrs. Ricky Crawford are the parents of a son born Tuesday, July 17, at 4:30 a. m. at the Eldorado hospital in El Dorado. The baby weighed 7 pounds and 1 ounce, and has been named Richard Shane.

RECIPE

By Sarah Anne Sheridan
During these hot summer days the wise homemaker keeps extra packages of mixes and frozen fruit concentrates in the freezer. Many delicious dishes may be made with them.

Angel Peach Dessert

- 1 pkg. angel cake mix
- 1 3-oz. pkg. orange flavored gelatin
- 2 c sliced peaches
- 1 c whipped cream
- 1 4-oz. pkg. shredded coconut, toasted

Bake angel cake according to directions on package. Cook. Remove from pan. Cut center from cake to make hole 4 inches across. Place cake on a flat plate. Prepare gelatin as directed on package. Chill until partially set and fold in peaches. Fill center of cake with this mixture. Chill until set. Frost top and sides with whipped cream and sprinkle with toasted coconut.

in case of necessary future contacts.

If contact is made in writing, don't send it with the bill, and don't write on the bill itself. Keep a copy of any letters sent for future reference.

Send a registered letter to the credit manager or company president if you experience difficulty obtaining adjustments on legitimate complaints.

In the letter, explain complaint in complete detail and give facts in a courteous manner. Also request that the post office furnish the signature of the person receiving the letter.

If still unable to settle a complaint, write the local Credit Bureau and Better Business Bureau. Provide details and copies of bills, receipts, cancelled checks or other evidence that prove your point. Also send a carbon copy of this contact to the merchant involved.

"Usually with accurate records and business-like manner, consumers can correct billing errors," the specialist continued.

"Legitimate businesses are anxious to retain the consumer's good will, and keep him as a customer."

Mrs. Myers also listed several things consumers can do to help prevent billing errors in the first place.

Use a credit card when charging merchandise. Examine sales slips to insure all spaces are correctly filled in and no unnecessary marks included.

Before signing a bill, make sure the total is correct and in the right place.

Save duplicate sales slips and check bills against them.

Know when billing dates are and make or mail payments in time to arrive before deadlines.

Return the correct portion of a bill with remittance.

Check bills for errors as soon as they're received.

Tips For Gardeners

From the Ozona Garden Club by Mrs. Bailey Post

Garden clubs over the state are now busy planning another years program and projects. In this way, members help with improving the environment in which we live.

Many and varied are the projects and fund raising activities of the Ozona Garden Club. Helping with the park's in our city has been one of the projects for several years.

Another is cooperating with the Chamber of Commerce for the Christmas lighting and scene in the Live Oak Park and old car removals, which has not been accomplished up to this time.

A favorite project each fall is the "Tasting Supper" in October to raise funds for the spring and fall clean-up campaign, the County has been most cooperative in furnishing trucks to remove trash during the designated weeks, and too, the mowing of vacant lots and the draws help create civic pride in Ozona. There are still many lots, areas around signs, and along fences that need to be attended to, so if you live nearby, get your neighbors to help clear it or get the owner to see about it. This may help avoid grass fires and surely will improve the appearance of the streets and highways.

The club would appreciate any suggestions immediately for civic improvement in next years project. Call Mrs.

Terry Gries, Mrs. Joe Boy Chapman, Mrs. Gene Lilly, Mrs. J. W. Howell or me.

The new Texas Garden Club, Inc. president is Mrs. G. Browning Smith of Brownsville. Her theme is "To Preserve and Sustain Our Heritage".

Her concern is to share horticulture education, the joy of landscape design study, the observance of good conservation, and to make a special effort to include new comers to our communities. She says "Every one will find something of interest if they are looking for that which is conducive to the well being of the individual or useful to the community."

Mrs. Zeno Hemphill of Coleman is the District VIII new director. Her theme is "Our Heritage - Enlightened Effort To Preserve and Restore".

The refreshing showers of last week were most welcome though far short of what we really need now.

Is your kitchen as safe as it could be? Without proper care and caution, your kitchen can be dangerous. Accidents cause injuries, and foods not properly stored can cause illness. Remember to keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold.

Cleanliness is also very important in keeping food safe to eat. Always wash hands with soap and water before working with food. Make sure dishes, utensils and work areas are clean at all times. Chlorine laundry bleach used according to package directions will destroy bacteria.

Household insects such as flies and cockroaches can carry bacteria. Garbage should be disposed of quickly and openings around drain pipes and radiator pipes and radiator pipes should be sealed to keep insects out. If you use an insecticide read the label and follow directions exactly.

Look at foods closely when shopping to be sure they are not spoiled before you buy them. Do not buy cans that are badly dented, leaking or bulging at the ends. Do not select presealed packages on which the seal has been broken. Kitchen injuries can range from burns or cuts to falls. To prevent accidents follow these tips.

Label all household cleaning products and keep them out of reach of children. Never mix two or more cleaning agents unless recommended by the manufacturer. Do not allow pot handles to extend over the edge of the cooking stove where they might be knocked off. Turn handles in, but not over lighted burners.

Keep flammable materials including pot holders, towels, hair, curtains, etc. away from cooking flames or hot electric coils.

When using a knife, slice foods in a direction away from you, and chop foods on a clean cutting board or other hard surface. Keep knives away from small children and do not keep them in a crowded place where sharp edges can be hidden. Never leave sharp knives in dish water where they can't be seen. Cracked or chipped dishes and glasses can cause cuts, and bacteria can hide in cracks that are hard to wash clean.

Be careful when walking on freshly waxed floors, and keep electrical cords off the floor to avoid tripping.

Take a look around your kitchen and make this a family effort to have a safer kitchen.

Fort Stockton Water Carnival July 19-21

Johnny Rodriguez, nationally-famous country and western singer, will headline the final night of the 1973 Water Carnival scheduled July 19-21 in Fort Stockton. The artist will be included on the panel of judges that night for the last of five divisions of the beauty revue, and will sing one of his recording hits to the newly-crowned Miss Fort Stockton for 1973.

A Jaycee - sponsored dance will follow the aquatic production, with Johnny Rodriguez accompanied by Billy Gray and the Cowtowners at the Pecos County Exhibition Building.

With the first water curtain scheduled to rise on "WC Goes C and W" at 8:30 p.m. on July 19, multiple events surround the three-night water show which will be held at Comanche Springs Swimming Pool on Spring Drive.

Contestants entered in the beauty revue in Wee Miss, Sub-Teen, Junior Miss, Miss Teen and Miss Fort Stockton Categories will promenade on their respective nights around the olympic pool to vie for the beauty titles.

Judges who will score the beauties nightly are Holly Wood of Seguin, Texas Press Women, Inc., state president; Joe Don Jones of Austin's Radion Inc.; and John Hoesteben of Odessa, State Representative. --0--

Bobbie Kincaid of Fort Stockton, revue director, and her committee are in charge of arrangements, which will include the appearance nightly of Miss Fort Stockton, area beauties and 1972 Miss Fort Stockton Karen Broyles.

Alice Duerksen is director of the aquatic production, with colorful costumed swimmers and dancers to perform nightly to western musical scores, such as "Running Bear," "Cool, Clear Water," "I Never Promised You a Rose Garden," "Waltz Across Texas" and a barrage of western favorites. Dance routines and precision water ballets will flow smoothly toward the completion of a montage of performers extending a traditional Blue Ribbon City farewell nightly to spectators.

On the morning of July 20 an area swim meet is planned at Comanche Springs Swimming Pool with multiple events to be directed by Floyd Coker. Registration is 25 cents per event per swimmer.

Fort Stockton Golf Course will be filled Saturday and Sunday of Water Carnival week-end as golfers tee off during the second annual Jaycee Golf Tournament.

And, if you don't want to play golf, then be in downtown Fort Stockton around 10:30 a.m. Saturday for the annual Water Carnival parade which will fill the streets of the city with colorful floats, bicycles, cars, beauty contestants, aquatic performers and much more.

That evening a bar-b-que is scheduled in James Rooney Park to satisfy taste buds of spectators prior to the final performance of the show. And then on to the pool one more time to view the multitude of talented residents--it may be a local show, but it is professionally executed. --0--

A GOOD KID

It's nice to see a headline about a good kid—because that's what most of them are.

Of course, his parents worry about him. That's one of the reasons he is a good kid. He's had plenty of opportunity to learn how much they love him . . . how much they care.

They have given him many things, some at considerable sacrifice to themselves. Fortunately, though, their giving didn't end with material gifts.

They have given him ideals . . . standards . . . principles. These are the intangible treasures that you aren't likely to acquire if you didn't find them at home.

And they have given him a faith. It was their faith first. At home and in church they shared it with him. Out of it the ideals and standards and principles naturally grew.

Yes. He's a good kid—due to the Lord.

Spanish Shipwrecks Investigated By Texas Antiquities Committee

Port Mansfield - The second summer of underwater surveying and recovery of the 18th-century Spanish shipwrecks which lie off Padre Island began June 10 under the sponsorship of the Texas Antiquities Committee. It was announced by Dr. Fred Wendorf, chairman of the committee.

The effort is a continuation of the first scientifically conducted investigation of these wrecks, which are believed to have foundered in a storm off the Gulf Coast about 1554. They are of particular scientific importance in that they represent the earliest verified shipwrecks discovered to date in the Western Hemisphere. Carl Clausen, state underwater archeologist with the Texas State Historical Survey Committee, will supervise this summer's project; he also headed last summer's effort.

In speaking of the activities being carried out this summer, Wendorf said that a 15-day survey using a proton magnetometer (an electronic sensing device for finding various components of shipwrecks) is planned, along with 30 full days of underwater excavation.

The archeological team plans to complete last year's investigation of a small wreck from the Spanish fleet and then move to another site believed to be part of the same fleet. They will also investigate, under a National Park Service grant, an additional Spanish ship thought to be from the fleet. The project is expected to end in late August.

Port Mansfield on the South Texas coast is serving as home base for the crew, which will work in a six-square-mile area located north of the Port Mansfield Cut, off Padre Island.

The work is being carried out by approximately seven persons under contract to the Texas Antiquities Committee and 13 students enrolled in a nine-week field course in underwater archeology which is being offered by the University of Texas at Austin.

The University of Texas at Austin, the Marine Science Institute at Port Aransas, the Marine Biomedical Institute, and the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston are also aiding the project in various ways. The project is the only team effort in underwater archeology offered in the United States this summer.

When the season's work has been concluded, the Texas Archeological Research Laboratory, a branch of the University of Texas located at the Balcones Research Center outside Austin, will clean and preserve the artifacts recovered. This will be done under an agreement with the Texas Antiquities Committee.

A report detailing the results of the investigation of the small shipwreck is planned for early summer 1974 and will be published by the Texas Antiquities Committee as the first number in a new series on underwater archeology. Subsequent issues will report on other shipwreck investigations as well as discuss the techniques and results from newly developed conservation methods used in cleaning and stabilizing the more than 400-year-old artifacts from these sites. The availability of the reports will be announced later.

Speaking of the importance of the investigation, archeologist Clausen said, "Historical period shipwreck sites constitute an extremely valuable source of information on the periods of exploration, colonization, early development, and naturalization in this hemisphere.

"Information which archeologists can obtain from proper investigation and recovery of material from underwater sites is often due to the rather unique circumstances surrounding the sinking of a vessel - rare or unobtainable in sites of a similar nature ashore."

He added that, if possible, a traveling display detailing the circumstances of the shipwreck disaster, with commentary in both English and Spanish, will be developed from the investigation and from historical research, and should be available early in 1974 for circulation to schools and other interested institutions and groups. Filmstrips on the subject may also be made, he said.

Americans Eat Weight In Sugar

Americans eat their weight in sugar each year - almost. "Consumption of refined sugar averages about 102 pounds per person per year," Judy Grubbs, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, observed this week.

"Americans are getting more sweets into life than ever before, consuming 25 per cent more total sugars than they did in the early 1900's," she added, quoting recent United States Department of Agriculture survey figures.

With increased use of sugar, there is less control over sugar content in diets due to "hidden" sugar in commercially prepared food and beverage products, the specialist said.

"Beverages alone, especially soda pop - comprise the largest use of refined sugar." Other reasons she cited for eating and drinking more sugar are higher income levels, a greater number of teenage youth who consume "a large quantity of soft drinks," and new uses for sugar stemming from technological developments.

Turning to ways of reducing sugar consumption, Miss Grubbs suggested, "A great deal of the steps necessary are up to the individual himself.

"One of the best ways to reduce sugar consumption is to consume fewer soft drink beverages. Substitute fruit juices, milk, water, and coffee or tea without sugar.

She also suggested cultivating a taste for less sugar in foods, such as fruit packed in light syrup instead of heavy syrup.

"Actually sugar often masks the distinctive flavor of foods with which it's used - reducing it can mean an awakening to new food flavor."

Another sugar-reducing tactic involves using cereal and bread products instead of more costly high-sugar products, the specialist said.

It's a woman's WORLD

by MARY LEE THOMPSON

Do you know how much of each dollar you spend on farm-produced food at the store goes to the farmer? According to a U.S. Department of Agriculture bulletin, the farmer received an average of 40-cents out of each dollar in 1972. Of course, he received less for some products and more for others: for example, 11 cents on canned corn, but 64 cents on choice beef.

Farm prices fluctuate widely because of forces largely beyond the farmer's control. Weather, yields, pests, total planting, feed supplies, and foreign trade all have a substantial impact on prices. For instance, broilers were up seven per cent in 1969 but then fell 11 per cent in 1970. Eggs were up 18 per cent in 1969 but down 17 per cent in 1971. Hog prices rose 20 per cent in 1969, another two per cent in 1970, and then dropped 21 per cent in 1971.

Produce items also have sharp ups and downs. Typical is the price of iceberg lettuce which dropped from $5 a carton on January 12, 1973 to $2.50 on January 18 - a 50 per cent drop in just one week.

Meanwhile, changes in farm prices show up in the supermarket slowly and not always in the same direction.

Meanwhile, the farmer's total production costs have more than doubled in the last 20 years. Wages, farm machinery, real estate taxes, feed and seed have all increased in price.

While the farmer is producing more food, he is not sharing fully in the benefits of his own productivity. The average disposable income of farm people still lags 17 per cent behind the average income of nonfarm people. In the last 10 years, farmers only averaged 3.9 per cent return on the equity of their capital investment. Money left in the savings bank would earn more than that.

Young Men Still Must Register For Draft

Colonel Melvin N. Glantz, the State Director of Selective Service for Texas, reminded young men that they still must register with Selective Service even though there is no draft. Glantz urged those men who have not registered to do so promptly, saying: "Failure to register is a violation of Federal Law and could result in prosecution by the Department of Justice."

The President's authority to induct men into the Armed Forces expired on July 1, 1973. The Nixon Administration does not plan to seek an extension of this authority, and the Defense Department is relying on volunteer enlistments to supply military manpower.

Glantz emphasized that only the authority to induct expired. All other provisions of the Military Selective Service Act remain in force. The annual lottery will be held, young men will continue to register, and their local boards will continue to classify them as to their availability for possible military service should Congress authorize the resumption of inductions in the event of a national emergency.

The State Director said the law requires all male persons, except certain nonimmigrant aliens, to register with Selective Service within 30 days before or after their 18th birthday. He said: "Young men have three legal obligations: (1) they must register at age 18, (2) they must notify their local draft board when they change address, and (3) they must carry their draft cards with them until their liability for service expires, for most men this is age 26."

The Colonel explained that Selective Service is undergoing a major reorganization and that as Selective Service goes into a standby operation, no inductions are taking place. Many local board offices are being relocated, with the result of fewer draft board offices in Texas. Glantz said there are places of registration provided in each Texas county for the convenience of young men in registering. The registrars for local board no. 110 are:

Joys Of Summer Often Spoiled By Drowning

By: Texas Medical Assn.
Summer has officially arrived in Texas, and with it comes increased opportunities of fun-time outdoor activities such as swimming and boating and often tragedy.

Each year in Texas, an alarming number of persons die in boating and drowning accidents. Only automobile accidents claim a larger number of lives in Texas.

Many, if not most, of these drownings need not happen, according to the Texas Medical Association. TMA offers the following basic safety rules that will help to avoid a tragic water accident in your family--

Learn to swim and to relax in the water.
Never swim alone.

Do not swim when overly tired or when the water is extremely cold.

Do not overestimate your ability and endurance.

Swim at protected pools or beaches under the supervision of a trained lifeguard.

If a boat overturns, stay with it and don't try to swim a long distance to shore.

Never dive into waters of unknown depth.

Try new activities, such as water skiing or SCUBA diving, only after learning the skills from qualified instructors.

Since many families will do much of their swimming this summer in private pools, some special safety precautions are indicated--

Make certain the pool is kept clean and the water chemically purified.

Walk, don't run, about the pool. Horseplay should be forbidden.

Fence the pool and keep the gate locked to keep out small children.

Keep handy rescue equipment, such as long poles and ring buoys.

Keep bottles and glasses away from the concrete or metal pool deck.

TMA emphasized that good manners and common sense in boating will prevent most accidents. The rules are well known: Don't overload the boat; have life preservers for each occupant; don't stand up or change seats in a small boat while under way; keep a watchful eye out for other boats, swimmers and fishermen; and give all a comfortably wide berth. Even though the rules are known, there are still drownings because someone ignored them.

Knowing about artificial respiration and how to apply it could save a life. The mouth-to-mouth method is not very difficult, but start immediately, even in the water; the victim can survive without oxygen to the brain for only a few minutes; with the victim's face up, pull the chin forward, make certain the windpipe is clear; put your mouth over the victim's mouth, pinch shut the nose, and blow; repeat 12 or 15 times per minute; keep it up until medical help arrives.

Tests for Good Vision Urged for Vacationers

The American Optometric Association recommends that vacationists go in for an 'eye check' when the car goes for a safety check before leaving for vacation.

Stating that about 90 per cent of driving decisions are based on what you see, the Association reminds us that you should be able to see effectively ahead, to the sides and in the rear view mirror and your depth perception should enable you to judge distances between your car and other cars or objects.

Foreign Service Tests

More than 10,000 U. S. citizens took the written examination for the Foreign Service on December 2, 1972 in 295 cities across the country and at Foreign Service posts abroad. Between 100 and 200 Foreign Service Officers and Foreign Service Information Officers are hired each year.

Nuclear energy plants require from 8 to 10 years from concept to completion.
