FLOOD RELIEF SESSION
LESSON FOR UNCLE SAM
YOUR IMPORTANT CELLS
WOMEN NATURAL TEACHERS

The President will call a special session of Congress for October, to take up the Mississippi flood disaster and the prevention question. The sooner prevention is discussed and arranged the better. The American Congress and people have a great faculty for forgetting—even a two billion-dollar calamity and 700,000 people being made homeless.

Twice in succession, American fliers have crossed the Atlantic at one "hop," Lindbergh flying to Paris, Chamberlin, with Lewis, almost to Berlin.

What will military and naval gentlemen say now about their theory that "The airplane is no real menace to this country?"

Out of two attempts to fly across the ocean by American fliers, both succeeded.

What would be the probable percentage of success if five thousand foreign aviators, with full government backing and unlimited expenditure of money, should fly the other way on a hostile errand?

Americans should take to heart the lesson that Lindbergh and Chamberlin have taught us and get ready to keep hostile fliers away from this continent.

Five or ten thousand first-class planes, carrying mail parcels and passengers in peace, ready to take on machine guns in war, would be the best investment this rich nation could make.

Golf, according to accident insurance companies, comes third among "dangerous sports." Victims of 451 golf accidents collected insurance last year. Twelve for "cuts with sharp instruments." The instruments were bottles, on the "19th hole." However, for one man injured at golf, one hundred die for lack of exercise, so play golf.

A German scientist says your heart is less important than the billions of cells that make up your body. The heart is important, of course, but the cells, eating, drinking, digesting, each living a separate life, are more important than the heart, even in blood circulation.

The human body is like a nation. Brain and heart are the government. The cells are the citizens, and most important.

Dr. Mendelssohn, of Berlin University, says, "The secret of life is the ability of living cells to effect change of matter and absorb and eject fluids. This change of fluids seems to be the principal cause of blood circulation."

The secret of making life worth while is the ability of the living brain to accept and absorb new ideas. That is the principal cause of human progress.

Students at Oxford worry because women are to teach there. "Lais," read by the Oxford young gentlemen, says that will eventually lead to a sex war, and is "a social revolution of the utmost significance."

Women are natural teachers; teaching has been their business from the beginning; teaching children, teaching husbands.

Hypatia, a better mathematician and philosopher than her father, Theon, was one of the greatest teachers that ever lived, until fanatical early Christian monks tore her from her chair, as she was going to her school, and murdered her, more than 1,500 years ago.

CROCKETT CO. BREEDERS WIN IN SHEEP SHOW

Local Sheepmen Hold Their Own Against Utah Breeders

PIERCE WOOL WINS

Odom Also Wins Again Ward Heavy Winner In Goat Show

Crockett County Rambouillet sheep breeders carried off a good share of honors in the sheep show held in connection with the second annual rodeo race meet and stock show of the Crockett County Fair Association, according to the tabulation of results by judges.

Competition was keen in all classes, with entries from some of the best flocks in Utah competing against Texas animals. V. I. Pierce, A. C. Hoover and B. B. Ingham were among the heaviest local winners. Texas breeders held their own well against such show herds as the Day Farms and Pendletons of Utah.

In the wool show, also, Crockett County breeders swept the field, V. I. Pierce winning first and second place on his 12 months fleece over an exhibit of W. C. Pendleton of Parawan, Utah, from his ram, Duke, grand champion of the state of Utah. Pendleton won third place in this division.

Again in the 8 months clip, Will Odom of Ozona won first place. This is the second year that Mr. Odom has won a first place in the wool. Joe T. Davidson won second place and H. O. Word third, both from Ozona. There were about 50 entries in the wool show. J. V. Drisdale was judge and Jones Miller was in charge.

Following is the tabulation of results in the sheep show places awarded by Prof. Mackey, professor of animal husbandry at A & M.

PINER LOSES FOOT IN GUN MISHAP HERE

Accidentally Discharged When He Attempted To Unload It

TAKEN TO ANGELO Amputation Necessary To Save Life Declared

F. E. Piner, former proprietor of the Ozona Boot Shop and a long time resident of Ozona, suffered the loss of his right foot early Thursday morning when a 12-gauge shotgun was accidentally discharged while he was attempting to unload it.

Mr. Piner, who has been in failing health for some time, was preparing to leave for Temple for treatment at a hospital there. Just before leaving he remembered that the shotgun had not been unloaded and went back to throw out the shells.

In some manner the gun was accidentally discharged, the full load striking Mr. Piner in the foot at close range. The member was badly mangled by the shot and opinion was expressed that amputation will be necessary to save his life.

The injured man was given first aid treatment here by Dr. G. L. Coates after which he was rushed to San Angelo to a hospital. The foot was all but shot completely away, only a few pieces of skin and ligaments holding it on. The shot entered the top of the foot just above the instep and ploughed through it, shattering bone and tearing flesh and ligaments.

Great uneasiness was expressed here Thursday morning by the many friends of Mr. Piner who fear that he will not survive the operation. On account of his weak condition resulting from many months of serious illness, coupled with the loss of blood, it is feared that the accident will prove fatal.

Kerrville Plans Best Convention

City Promises Royal Entertainment To Sheep And Goat Men

KERRVILLE, Texas, July 7. All roads for the sheep and goat men lead to Kerrville where preparations are being made to stage the greatest convention in the twelve years history of the Sheep and Goat Raisers Association of Texas on July 19, 20 and 21.

The housing situation in a resort city like Kerrville, where the tourist tide is at its height in mid-summer has been solved by the whole-hearted spirit of co-operation shown by citizens, who have agreed to throw open their homes to the visiting delegates and their families. R. A. Franklin, chairman of the housing committee is making a systematic check of the city and plenty of room is assured for all who attend the big three-day meeting. Officials and executive committee-men, as well as many members of the association, already have reservations at downtown hotels.

Representatives of other allied associations from all parts of the United States have made reservations, and the Kerrville meeting will be attended by buyers for the Russian government and a large sugar corporation in Porto Rico. Best breeders in the country have entered animals for the three-day auction sale, which will be the daily feature on the convention program.

Ally Beitel, chairman of the entertainment committee, and his co-workers are going to pull some surprises on the visitors just to show them what a Kerrville welcome really is.

The official convention program is now being arranged by President T. A. Kincaid of Ozona and the executive committee.

OVER 10,000 ESTIMATED ATTENDANCE AT OZONA'S BIGGEST CELEBRATION

The curtain was rung down on the greatest celebration in the history of Ozona Wednesday night after more than 10,000 had been entertained during the three days event.

The celebration started off with a bang Monday morning July 4, with more than 8,000 persons crowding the town. Traffic in the down town section and on the road to the fair grounds was jammed throughout the day. A free barbecue in the park at noon attracted the largest crowd ever fed in Crockett County, more than 8,000 plates being handed out during the two and a half hours required to feed the immense crowd.

Crowds here for the last two days, of course, were smaller than on the opening day, but visitors declared that the average attendance was far above any similar celebration in West Texas. With barbecue and all the trimmings, including iced tea, water, coffee, pickles, bread, beans, etc. as free as the air at noon each day in the park, free ice water at the grounds throughout the day each day and even passed around through the grand stand that visitors might have a drink during the program without leaving the stand, the best racing card ever staged in West Texas with nine thrilling races, a rodeo program filled with excitement every moment and one of the largest stock shows and sales in the state, Ozona's July celebration this year was pronounced by visitors the feature entertainment of the year in the West.

Only one accident through the entertainment period marred the event. This occurred on the closing day when Joe Wolf of Snyder in his fourth exhibition of bull-dogging a steer from the running board of a speeding automobile in front of the grand stand missed his hold and suffered a broken collar bone when the steer stepped on his shoulder. The steer attempted to turn just as Wolf left the car in his leap and hung a horn in the fence. This made Wolf miss his hold and the steer charged over him. The broken bone was set by Dr. Coates.

All parts of the state were represented in the crowds here for the celebration and stock show. Some of the best breeders of fine stock from Texas and Utah entered animals in the stock show and sales, which was declared by stock men to have equalled any show held this year in the state. The fair association is planning to stage an even larger show and sale next year and to attract hundreds of breeders from all over the United States.

The Robert Massie Company ambulance was kept standing on the grounds throughout the three days time to be ready in case of accident. This service was donated through the courtesy of Mr. Massie and Fred Cox, manager of the San Angelo firm.

The Rainbow Band of San Angelo made things lively in the grand stand each afternoon while the Lone Star Entertainers of San Angelo played for big crowds of dancers each night on the concrete platform near the grand stand.

THE OZONA STOCKMAN

Published Every Thursday Morning at Ozona, Texas, County Seat of Crockett County by

W. EVART WHITE EDITOR and PUBLISHER
Entered at the Post Office at Ozona, Texas, as Second Class Mail Matter under Act of Congress, March 3rd, 1879.

Ozona, Texas, Thursday July, 7, 1927.

When school opens Sept. 5 the usual lovely conditions will prevail in the first four grades - large convenient, well equipped primary rooms. The fifth, sixth and seventh grades, which include about 40 per cent of the entire school, will be housed in one room made into two by a thin partition and the recitation overflow allowed to "root" for a stray room wherever it can be found. Conditions in the eighth, ninth, tenth and eleventh grades will be almost as bad, a crowded study-hall, two rooms entirely too small for the classes accommodated, etc. etc.

No real progress in a school way can be made in Ozona until this housing condition has been remedied. That anything worthwhile is out of the question, the initial move, even if it had not proven abortive, came too late for that. But something can and ought to be done before school opens in September 1928. School buildings progress slowly. No time is to be lost even if 1928 is to witness relief.

The board is alive to the situation and has already taken definite steps to grant such relief. Quiet, but very definite, steps are already in progress toward that end. Within two months or so a complete plan will be presented to the public for approval or rejection. This plan will call for an ample, well-built, practical school building. It is believed Ozona people are ready and even impatient for the submission of such plan.

Tired but happy, members of the Crockett County Fair Association and people of Ozona saw the curtain rung down Wednesday night on the greatest celebration in the history of Ozona.

A splendid success from start to finish, the celebration was all that those who have spent many weary months arranging could have wished. Orderly throughout, a brand of entertainment second to none, a stock show that attracted the interest of some of the best breeders in the state, and the wholehearted hospitality of a people that can not be excelled in all the world were factors that contributed to the success of the celebration and to the satisfaction of visitors, some of whom came hundreds of miles to attend the fair.

It would be a difficult task to pick individuals to whom most credit is due for the success of the celebration. One would be more nearly correct in saying that everybody in Ozona contributed liberally to the success of the entertainment, officials and members of the fair association who worked unceasingly toward arranging a show that would outstrip any previous effort and equal anything attempted in West Texas, the business men of Ozona who contributed of their money and time, and the people of Ozona who co-operated in carrying out plans and in taking care of visitors upon their arrival.

To those who participated it might seem that the 1927 celebration was a supreme effort brought to a glorious success, but already officials of the fair association are at work on plans for next year's event and for the mid-winter affair in December. And as far as this year's show excelled the first attempt in 1926, that far and farther will the 1928 show excel the one this year.

The pep and ginger that is included in the membership of the fair association is reflected in every performance, and constant improvement is the watchword of the whole outfit. Thus, it is certain that each year will see a greater entertainment offered by the people of Crockett County to West Texas. And if the people of Ozona are not alive to the great work the boys of the fair association are doing we miss our guess.

The deplorable accident Thursday morning which may cost the life of one of the best known and best liked men of Crockett County, Jack Piner, again brings to mind the vital need for a hospital in Ozona. His foot shot almost off, Mr. Piner could get nothing more than first aid treatment here and was forced to suffer untold agony before he could be taken by automobile to a hospital in San Angelo.

With as good a surgeon as can be found almost anywhere right here, it seems needless that an injured man or a sick man should suffer two hours or more automobile travel before he can get relief. But such is the case here. No surgeon can give a suffering man surgical relief without the proper instruments and equipment at least not without great risk, and the local physician is helpless when surgical correction or repair is necessary. The patient must be wheeled over 87 miles of rough road to where the proper equipment is available.

It is deplorable that an accident of this nature must occur to awaken a community again to its most vital need, but it seems that in most cases it takes a violent shock to bring people to a realization of needs. The hospital project was making good progress when it became sidetracked recently and it occurs now that it is time to revive talk of the undertaking and to plan a definite course of action.

Mrs. Hoover has recently secured complete plans for a small but adequate hospital building, drawn by a San Antonio architect who is recognized as one of the best in the state. The plans call for a one-story building of hollow tile suitable to take care of Ozona's needs for some time to come. The architect's estimate of the cost of the proposed building is approximately $20,000.

Such a building is in reach of this community. It would serve the purpose splendidly and possibly would meet the desires of the largest number of people. Therefore, the present developments in the project are worthy of attention again and it is time that steps were taken toward getting all details in the matter before the people in order that a decision might be reached now on the matter of whether or not Ozona is to have a hospital.

The lights may have blinked a few times during the celebration but anyway there was plenty of water for visitors—and it didn't cost them a cent.

Also there was plenty of barbecue and all that goes with it—and THAT didn't cost the visitors a cent. Nobody was arrested or fined and yet there was never a more orderly crowd gathered in West Texas. Ozona entertains 'em RIGHT.

Ozona Hi Wins History Credit

Additional Half Unit
Brings Maximum
To Local School

A report from the State Department of Education grants the Ozona High School an additional half-unit in American history, making a total of one whole unit in that subject and the maximum allowed. An unusual, highly complimentary letter accompanied the report. Among other things the letter declares the Ozona American history exhibit "decidedly the best history exhibit received by this department"—including all Texas. The exhibit is further declared "the last word in scientific American history efficiency".

Several pupils of this class were enrolled in the civics-economics class of last year which secured an additional unit in that subject and which drew from the Department a strong commendation. The class was composed of juniors and seniors and represented some of the best workers of these two classes. The class as a whole deserves much credit for its achievement.

Social science, history, civics, economics, with a total of 4½ credits, now leads all other departments of local work in the number of units held, this in spite of a voluntary loss of one unit in English history. The latter unit was lost through no pupils "electing" it during the last two years, the State Department had previously recommended that it be dropped in case the additional credits should be won in American history, civics, and economics.

who has accepted a place in the local schools as teacher of animal husbandry a new, practical and most interesting course being introduced to Ozona boys next year, is planning to build a home to make his permanent residence here. Mr. Brison comes well recommended both by the State Board for Vocational Education and by the people of Junction. He will teach manual training, also.

One or two units of this work will be offered for credit the first year, and additional units secured as the work expands.

Mr. Brison serves on a twelve month basis.

WHO'O WHO

Jeanne Beaufort, beautiful daughter of a Virginia tobacco planter, brave and daring, has lost her father and two brothers in the Civil War. She swears to get revenge. At the time she is living with her aunt.

Mrs. Wetmore, in the South, Jeanne lays her plans and goes to her Aunt Delier's in Richmond, Va.

Henry Morgan a debonaire young officer, who falls in love with her. She repels his advances. She is engaged as a spy for the Confederate government and urged to use all the wiles and power of her sex to find one.

Parson Kennedy and bring him within the Southern lines. It is planned to have her make headquarters with a family of southern sympathy in Washington. Jeanne learns telegraphy and other technical branches of her new calling. And clad as a boy often in the Blue of the North, she makes her way through the lines. She learns of an organization of eleven Union spies and of their meeting place in a Richmond loft. As she overhears the leaders address the masked men seated about a table Jeanne is discovered and dragged into the room. The leader unmasks as he threatens her with death, but is dissuaded from shooting her by the suggestion from one of the men that one of their number marry her. She consents and when one of the masked men volunteers to marry she refuses and claims the right to choose.

She rejects the volunteer and selects the one who suggested the marriage. Him she names "Irony." To her surprise the leader is no other than Parson John Kennedy.

He performs the ceremony. "Irony" says his name is among those who sign as witnesses, (just before leaving her bound), in the following code form:

John Kennedy, D. D.	H-RD-M
C-WG-L	P-PA-G
A-NK-S	J-NK-F
G-RD-A	F-BN-S
J-WG-A	W-BE-H
F-WG-S

Later Jeanne learns that Morgan is a spy.

Chapter XI

"Do you know, Morgana, I believe that I shall never attend your firing party in the morning."

"Indeed, Armitage, you'll be there. I wouldn't have you miss it for anything. I thought you had that ten-spot. Well, the game ends. So it does!"

Armitage's hand flew across the table with the quickness of an adler's strike and seized Morgan's pistol. He drew back with equal rapidity.

"Stir or make a sound and I'll kill you, Morgan. You know it. If I have to die, you'll go with me or before me."

Jeanne stood in the doorway, impelled irresistibly to return and pressed a book to her heart. She had picked it up at random, without thought or purpose.

Morgan stared at the round, black muzzle of his revolver; he was paralyzed by the unexpectedness of the coup.

"Call to the sentry to come around and enter the room," commanded Armitage. "Mind the tone."

The moment the sentry started to obey the command, Armitage drew back his hand and savagely struck Morgan behind the ear. Then he leaped from the window just as Jeanne hurled her book at the candelabrum, accurately!

When her arm was strong again, she determined to return to Washington. To learn for sure the name of the man who had married her had now become an obsession she must know or go mad.

She had not the slightest faith in Armitage's statement. He was not the man; she was so absolutely sure of this that no shadow of doubt regarding it ever entered her head. But, ah! if only he had spoken the truth! If only she had married him.

So, adroitly yet simply disguised, Jeanne entered Washington once more, in spite of the grave risks, in spite of the imminent dangers. She found an obscure but respectable boarding-house and lived there quietly. To Charles Lowell, one of the eleven whom she had met with Armitage, she wrote a letter.

It was a letter which would naturally rouse the curiosity of a man like Lowell. He took it to Kennedy who studied it for a few moments then passed it over to Armitage.

"What do you think of it, son?" he asked.

Armitage read:

"Lieutenant Charles Lowell:

"Will you do me the honor to call if I give you explicit directions how to find me? I have something to say to you which vitally concerns us both.

"Address W-X, general post office."

"What do you think of it, Parson countered Armitage. His voice was normal, his hands steady.

"I should tear it up and give it no further attention," Kennedy yawned. "It may be some woman who wants you to get her hubby or brother or son a job in the War Office. The town is full of them." "Good advice," agreed Armitage. "Tear it up, Charlie. Remember you two are to dine with me tonight at eight. I'm off."

Once in the street, Armitage pushed back his hat and wiped his forehead. What should he do? How should he act?

Lowell started to tear up the note when Kennedy stayed his hand.

"No. Answer it; keep the appointment. If it's a trap, I'll be close at hand. If it's only a political angler—well, I'll still be close at hand. And say nothing to Armitage to-night."

On the following afternoon Lowell was admitted to a modest house in the middle-class district. The light in the room was not very good; but presently he saw the figure of a woman, her back to the window.

"I am Jeanne Beaufort," she said quietly.

"Good Heaven!"

"I brought you here to ask a question. Who was the man I married that night? Sometimes it seems as if I were going mad! I am a proud woman." She sank to her knees. "See, on my knees I ask you! The name, the name!"

"Why in the world should you care? The man did not even touch your hand. You exaggerate the affair. Any court will annul it."

"Is he living or dead?"

"I have sworn never to reveal that man's name. But it was not I who married you, or I would break, one by one, all the oaths a man might swear to claim you as my own."

He tried to lift her up, but she hung back, a dead weight.

"You shall have twelve hours in which to leave the city—twelve hours and no more." Gently he freed his hands. "Good-by, Jeanne Beaufort; and God take you back safely to your own lines."

He passed out into the street. For several blocks Parson Kennedy followed him thoughtfully. There was a third man whom neither Kennedy nor Lowell observed.

Kennedy caught up with Lowell.

"Well, what was it about?" "Good Lord, Parson, I had forgotten all about you! Oh, there was nothing governmental in the affair. I'll let you know all about it in twelve hours."

Kennedy nodded and pretended not to notice Lowell's preoccupation. An idea took form and grew in his infernally bright mind. Lowell had seen Jeanne Beaufort.

The name was like wind upon glowing coals; his hate grew white hot. It was hatred which had no logic. At her feet he laid the death of six gallant men.

Jeanne Beaufort was Parson Kennedy's obsession, and he proposed to be rid of it that night, once and for all.

The moment he left Lowell, he put his idea into action. He would trap her by promising to give her the name of the man she had married (for no doubt that was the reason for her seeking Lowell); he would use Lowell's name besides. Oh, she would come to that old attic where she and Morgan had exchanged their bits of information!

It was moonlight outside. Kennedy and his men waited in the dark. They were all squatting on the floor in order to prevent the slightest sound.

As Jeanne entered from her left came the scrape of a match. It flared. She beheld a huge hand, and her fascinated glance ran up the arm to the face above.

She stood face to face with Parson Kennedy!

"All's fair in love and war," observed Kennedy. "Love for women and war for men. Well, Madam, what have you to say?"

"Nothing."

"There really isn't much to say, is there?"

"You tried to murder my soul; my body is nothing."

Parson Kennedy frowned. He wanted to humble this creature, to wring tears from those unflinching eyes, to bend her to her knees, to see her hands held out in passionate supplication; he wanted nothing less than that.

"I was a rare fool that night. I should have shot you."

"I gave you back your life once."

"Ha! But why? To save Armitage?"

"Hands up! The first man who turns dies!"

The voice came from the wall behind the clustered troopers. Two of them dropped their muskets, startled. Kennedy, looking over the heads of his men, beheld a yawning doorway and a man in front of it. Two revolvers were leveled steadily in his direction. The stranger wore a mask.

"I have twelve bullets, and when I shoot, it will be to kill. Take up that revolver from the table, girl."

Now step back toward me. Men, stand aside a little, but take heed not to turn. Quick, girl."

Even as he spoke, Jeanne was obeying his orders. She drew back from the troopers, who moved aside for her but did not turn. They had recognized the deathnote in that voice.

As the door swung into place, Jeanne's rescuer heard a yell of rage.

"Morgan! Shoot, you fools!"

But in the shadows the fugitives mounted safely and away. The man still kept the mask on his face. He had not uttered a single word since entering the lane. He suddenly drew in; and Jeanne's mount stopped of its own accord.

"Charles Lowell," she said rather breathlessly, "I shall always remember what you have done for me this night. You promised me twelve hours. Thank you. Your way is back there, mine yonder. We may never meet again. So, God bless you and keep you safe and whole."

"Wait!" The voice was smuffled. The man drew a folded paper from his pocket and handed it to her. He impulsively kissed the hand that reached out; then he folded the palm over the paper and let the hand fall.

"The horse is mine; keep it. Good-by, Jeanne Beaufort."

He wheeled suddenly and cantered away.

She thought it strange he did not raise his mask, inasmuch as she had discovered his identity. When he disappeared, she opened the paper curiously.

The moonlight was clear; but she had no need to read; she would have known that paper in the dark among all other papers in the world, by the mere feel of it.

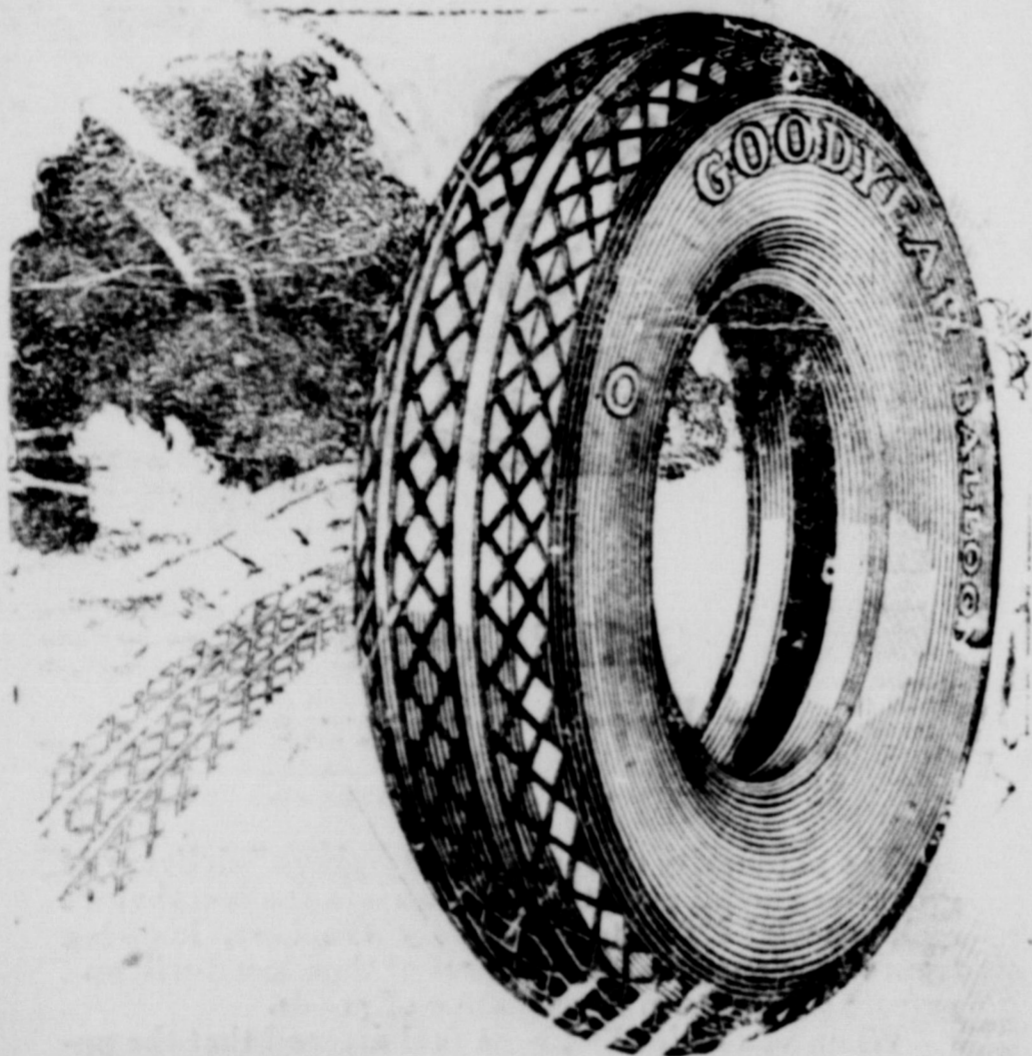

It was her marriage certificate! She laughed brokenly. She passed through a singularly trying ordeal and now, out of it all safely, her nerves began to go. She shook with transient vertigo and dared not start her horse lest she fall.

Henry Morgan! So many things she understood at last. He had left his own name out of the list he had given her—H-RD-M was on the certificate.

How simple it was! And so blind had been her faith in his loyalty little as she liked him, that not the least inkling of the truth had ever come to her.

Lowell was sitting in their room when Armitage, looking like a man who had ridden hard and far, entered.

 "I took Jeanne Beaufort out of Kennedy's hands tonight," said Armitage with a few preliminaries. "Am I a traitor?"
 "I don't know, John. She wanted to know from me which of us had married her. I told her that if it had been I, I would have broken every oath to claim her!"
 "You", began Armitage—
 Lowell suddenly sprang from his chair.
 "Get out of those clothes, instantly—chuck them, boots and all into the wardrobe. Don't you understand? Kennedy will be here to question us—remember he's mad at times."
 Within five minutes Armitage had changed into a dressing gown and slippers. He laid his pistols on the table. Kennedy entered. Very gray and weary he looked.
 "Anything wrong?" asked Armitage.
 Kennedy sipped a glass of sherry and set it on the table. His fingers touched the pistols and he took them up and balanced them on his broad palms. Suddenly he realized that, though the room was very warm, the weapons were very cold.

 "Which of you two snatched Jeanne Beaufort out of my hands this night?" he asked with ominous quiet.

RID YOUR RANGE OF FLIES

Flies are the greatest single menace to livestock. Flies perhaps cause more deaths among livestock than any other one thing.

This pest can be controlled with systematic effort on the part of ranchmen with the use of traps, the plan endorsed by the government departments of animal husbandry. Other counties in West Texas have entirely freed their ranges of flies with the use of scientifically constructed traps and systematic riding and baiting.

Now is the time to equip yourself for the fight and I will be glad to meet Crockett County ranchmen with a proposal to rid this county of these pests. Jess Sapp. —Adv.

Cemetery Association Makes $200 On Sheep Given By Day Farms

The treasury of the Ozona Cemetery was enriched by approximately $200 as a result of the sale of a registered Rambouillet ewe presented to the association by the Day Farms of Parowan, Utah, exhibitors at the annual sheep show of the Crockett County Fair Association.

The sheep was sold by lottery, won by Bill Grimmer. A yearling heifer was offered the association by W. E. Smith and was to have been sold at auction in front of the grand stand but through some misunderstanding the sale was not arranged.

A large quantity of wool, clipped from sheep entered in the show and sale was also donated to the cemetery association and was sheared at the grounds with a shearing machine and crew brought there for the purpose. Among those donating wool were Pierce, T. A. Kincaid, Wils Owens, Ira Carson, Cox Bros., Joe Davidson, Sid Millsbaugh, B. B. Ingham, S. E. Couch, Ernest Dunlap, Ralph Watson, Edgar Chapman, Horace Friend, H. O. Word, Pink Robison, Jim Mitchell, Jeff and Claud Owens and others.

A committee composed of Vernon Cox, John Bailey and Jones Miller was appointed by Mrs. J. B. Kincaid, president of the association, to sell the wool for the association.

Mr. Ranchman! If you are contemplating buying a buck or billy, put it off until July 19, 20 and 21. The pick of breeding stock in the United States will be on exhibit at the annual convention of the Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association of Texas on those dates. 123tc

INQUIRIES

Sometimes my readers write me, asking about little things not made clear in my letters to this paper—I thank them for the indirect confidence—sometimes for criticisms and suggestions. I cannot, of course, undertake the treatment of diseases by mail; have all I can do at home; but a self-addressed, stamped envelope will bring an immediate reply from me, in the interest of good newspaper service.

I have been asked recently what foods are most likely to make a "liver" liver worse. Sometimes a liver is an over-loaded, tired liver, not a lazy one. Hence I reply that, an overload of any kind of food will aggravate an over-loaded liver—fruits being the least harmful. The specific article of diet that I forbid, when dealing with an engorged liver is, starch, in its many forms, such as boiled or mashed potatoes, dry beans, white bread, and the like. The liver functions largely as a starch-transformer, and cannot do more than it is able to do.

One writer remonstrates—that fats work harm in "liver troubles"; referring to animal fats, I suppose. I have forbidden all meat-fats in gall-bladder conditions, but these are not "liver-troubles." Fat meats are not good in gall-bladder infections; dairy fats, butter, cream &c. in small quantity, do much less, if any harm. And, the vegetable oils, olive oil particularly have a reputation for being beneficial, among the older clinicians.

Every liver case is a law unto itself, and should be referred to the family physician, whether acute, subacute, or chronic. Especially after forty-five should all suspicion of liver disease be investigated. A switch in time may save several yards of catgut.
